THE TEMPEST.

Einleitung.

Die erste Ausgabe dieses Dramas ist die Gesamtausgabe der Shakspeare'schen Dramen in Folio (1623), worin The Tempest die Reihe der Comedies und des ganzen Bandes eröffnet. Es steht daselbst in Acte und Scenen eingetheilt und mit einem Personenverzeichniss versehen, das die späteren Herausgeber beibehalten konnten. Der Text ist correcter gedruckt und macht der Kritik geringere Schwierigkeit, als der mancher anderen Shakspeare'schen Dramen aus seiner spätern Zeit, die zuerst in der Folioausgabe erschienen sind.

Als früheste Notiz vom Tempest findet sich in den oft erwähnten Accounts of the Revels at Court, dass am 1. November 1611 a play called the Tempest vor dem Könige im Palaste zu Whitehall aufgeführt wurde, und zwar By the King's Players, d. h. von der Schauspielergesellschaft, welcher Shakspeare selbst angehört hatte. Der Name des Verfassers ist übrigens in dieser Notiz unerwähnt gelassen. Dass dieses Drama damals ein neues war, hat, abgesehen von den innern Gründen des Styls und Verses, welche entschieden auf ein spätes Datum in des Dichters schriftstellerischer Thätigkeit hinweisen, namentlich Malone wahrscheinlich gemacht durch die Beziehungen, welche er zwischen dem Shakspeare'schen Schauspiel und zwischen verschiedenen Reiseberichten von einem Seesturm und Schiffbruch an den Bermudasinseln im Jahre 1609 hervorgehoben hat. Das betreffende Ereigniss wird in Howes' Ergänzung zu Stowe's Annalen so erzählt:

In the year 1609 the adventurers and Company of Virginia sent from London a fleet of eight ships, with people to supply and make strong the colony in Virginia; Sir Thomas Gates being general, in a ship of 300 tons: in this ship was also Sir George Sommers, who was admiral, and Captain Newport, vice-admiral, and with them about 160 persons. This ship was „Admiral“, and kept company with the rest of the fleet to the height of 30 degrees; and being then assembled to consult touching divers matters, they were surprised with a most extreme violent storm, which scattered the whole fleet, yet all the rest of the fleet bent their course for Virginia, where, by God's special favour, they arrived safely; but this great ship, though new, and far stronger than any of the rest, fell into a great leak, so as mariners and passengers were forced, for three days' space, to do their utmost to save themselves from sudden sinking: but notwithstanding their incessant pumping, and casting out of water by buckets and all other means, yet the water covered all the goods within the hold, and all men were utterly tired, and spent in strength, and overcome with labour; and hopeless of any succour, most of them were gone to sleep, yielding themselves to the mercy of the sea, being all very desirous to die upon any shore wheresoever. Sir George Sommers, sitting at the stern, seeing the ship desperate of relief, looking every minute when the ship would sink, he espied land, which, according to his and Captain Newport's opinion, they judged it should be that dreadful coast of the Bermudas, which islands were, of all nations, said and supposed to be enchanted, and inhabited with witches and devils, which grew by reason of accustomed monstrous thunder-storm and tempest near unto those islands; also for that the whole coast is so wondrous dangerous of rocks that few can approach them but with unspeakable hazard of shipwreck. Sir George Sommers, Sir Thomas Gates, Captain Newport, and the rest, suddenly agreed of two evils to choose the least, and so, in a kind of desperate resolution, directed the ship mainly for these islands, which, by God's divine providence, at a high water ran right between two strong rocks, where it stuck fast without breaking, which gave leisure and good opportunity for them to hoist out their boat, and to land all their people, as well sailors as soldiers and others, in good safety; and being come ashore they were soon refreshed and cheered, the soil and air being most sweet and delicate.

Nach Malone's plausibler Beweisführung soll Shakspeare namentlich einen Bericht benutzt haben, den ein Reisegefährte, ein gewisser Silvester Jourdan, im folgenden Jahre 1610 veröffentlichte unter dem Titel: A Discovery of the Bermudas, otherwise called the Isle of Divels, by Sir Thomas Gates, Lord George Sommers, and Captain Newport, with divers others. Einzelne Ausdrücke, welche sich in Shakspeare's Drama übereinstimmend mit diesem Berichte finden, so wie die entsprechenden Verhältnisse der wunderbaren Rettung des Admirals und seiner Mannschaft, von denen erst später, nachdem der Rest der nach Virginien weitergesegelten Flotte sie schon verloren gegeben, eine Kunde verlautete, der Aufenthalt der Gestrandeten auf einer bis dahin für unwirthlich und verzaubert gehaltenen Insel, endlich die ausdrückliche Erwähnung der Bermudasinseln als the still-vex'd Bermoothes in unserm Drama (A. 1, Sc. 2), machen es sehr wahrscheinlich, dass Shakspeare daher die Idee zu seinem Tempest schöpfte, wenigstens zu dem Rahmen, der die eigentliche Intrigue des Dramas umgiebt. Für die letztere und für die darin auftretenden Personen hat sich eine novellistische oder dramatische Quelle, die Shakspeare benutzt haben könnte, bisher nicht auffinden lassen. Und doch deuten manche Züge in einem deutschen Drama des Shakspeare'schen Zeitgenossen, des Nürnberger Notars Jacob Ayler, »die schöne Sidea«, welche eine auffallende Aehnlichkeit mit einzelnen Zügen in Shakspeare's Tempest aufweisen, auf eine gemeinsame, von beiden Dichtern benutzte Quelle hin, sei es nun, dass diese eine jetzt verlorne italienische Novelle, oder, was wahrscheinlicher ist, ein nicht mehr vorhandenes altenglisches Drama war.

Zu A. 1, Sc. 1. Lord Mulgrave's Aufsatz über Shakspeare's Anwendung nautischer Ausdrücke lautet im Wesentlichen folgendermassen:

The first scene of The Tempest is a very striking instance of the great accuracy of Shakspeare's knowledge in a professional science, the most difficult to attain without the help of experience. He must have acquired it by conversation with some of the most skilful seamen of that time. No books had then been published on the subject.

The succession of events is strictly observed in the natural progress of the distress described; the expedients adopted are the most proper that could have been devised for a chance of safety: and it is neither to the want of skill of the seamen, or the bad qualities of the ship, but solely to the power of Prospero, that the shipwreck is to be attributed.

The words of command are not only strictly proper, but are only such as point the object to be attained, and no superfluous ones of detail. Shakspeare's ship was too well manned to make it necessary to tell the seamen how they were to do it, as well as what they were to do.

He has shown a knowledge of the new improvements, as well as the doubtful points of seamanship; one of the latter he has introduced, under the only circumstance in which it was indisputable.

The events certainly follow too near one another for the strict time of representation: but perhaps, if the whole length of the play was divided by the time allowed by the critics, the portion allotted to this scene might not be too little for the whole. But he has taken care to mark intervals between the different operations by exits.

1st Position.

Fall to 't yarely, or we run ourselves aground.

1st Position.

Land discovered under the lee; the wind blowing too fresh to hawl upon a wind with the topsail set. — Yare is an old seaterm for briskly, in use at that time. This first command is therefore a notice to be ready to execute any orders quickly.

2d Position.

Yare, yare! Take in the topsail! Blow, till thou burst thy wind, if room enough!

2d Position.

The topsail is taken in. — 'Blow, till thou burst thy wind, if room enough.' The danger in a good sea-boat, is only from being too near the land: this is introduced here to account for the next order.

3d Position.

Down with the topmast!) Yare; lower, lower! Bring her to try with the main-course!*

3d Position.

The gale encreasing, the topmast is struck, to take the weight from aloft, make the ship drive less to leeward, and bear the mainsail under which the ship is laid-to.

4th Position.

Lay her a-hold, a-hold! set her two courses! off to sea again; lay her off!

4th Position.

The ship, having driven near the shore, the main-sail is hauled up; the ship wore, and the two courses set on the other tack, to endeavour to clear the land that way.

5th Position.

We split! we split!

5th Position.

The ship, not able to weather a point, is driven on shore.

Zu A. 1, Sc. 2. Schon Farmer machte auf ein im Jahre 1577 erschienenenes Reisewerk Eden's Historye of Travayle in the West and East Indies aufmerksam, dem Shakspeare Einzelnes zur Charakteristik seines Caliban entlehnt haben möchte. Von diesem Buche, in welchem der Dichter auch die Namen mancher Personen seines Tempest gefunden habe, theilt Staunton folgende zwei hierher gehörige Auszüge mit:

Departing from hence, they sayled to the 49 degree and a halfe under the pole antartike; where being wyntered, they were inforced to remayne there for the space of two monethes: all which time they sawe no man, excepte that one day by chaunce they espyed a man of the stature of a giant, who came to the haven daunsing and singyng, and shortly after seemed to cast dust over his head. The captayne sent one of his men to the shore, with the shyppe boate, w^{ch} made the lyke signe of peace. The which thyng the giant seeyng, was out of feare, and came with the captayne's servaunt, to his presence, into a little ilande. When he sawe the captayne with certayne of his company about him, he was greatly amased, and made signes, holdyng up his hande to heaven, signifying thereby, that our men came from thence. This giant was so byg, that the head of one of our men of a meane stature came but to his waste. He was of good corporature, and well made in all partes of his bodie, with a large visage painted with divers colours, but, for the most parte, yelow. Uppon his cheekes were paynted two hartes, and red circles about his eyes. The heare of his head was coloured whyte, and his apparell was the skynne of a beast sowde togeather. This beast, as seemed unto us, had a large head, and great eares lyke unto a mule, with the body of a camell and tayle of a horse. The feete of the giant were foulded in the sayde skynne, after the maner of shooes. — The captayne caused him to eate and drynke, and gave him many thinges, and among other a great lookyng glasse, in the which, as soone as he sawe his ownelykenesse, was sodaynly afrayde, and started backe with such violence, that hee overthrewe two that stode nearest about him. When the captayne had thus gyven him certayne haukes belles, and other great belles, with also a lookyng glasse, a combe, and a payre of beades of glasse, he sent him to lande with foure of his owne men well armed. —

*) The striking the topmasts was a new invention in Shakspeare's time, which he here very properly introduces. Sir Henry Manwaring says, "It is not yet agreed amongst all seamen whether it is better for a ship to hull with her topmast up or down." In the Postscript to the Seaman's Dictionary, he afterwards gives his own opinion: "If you have sea-room, it is never good to strike the topmast." Shakspeare has placed his ship in the situation in which it was indisputably right to strike the topmast, when he had not sea-room.

The captayne retayned two of these [giants] which were youngest and beste made. He tooke them by a deceite in this maner, — that givynge them knyves, sheares, looking glasses, bells, beades of crystall and suche other trifles, he so filled theyr handes, that they could holde no more; then caused two payre of shackels of iron to be put on theyr legges, makynge signes that he would also give them those chaynes, which they lyked very wel, bycause they were made of bright and shining metall. — When they felte the shackels faste about theyr legges, they began to doubt; but the captayne dyd put them in comfort, and bad them stand still. In fine, when they sawe how they were deceived, they roared lyke bulles, and cryed upon theyr great devill, Setebos, to helpe them. — They say, that when any of them dye, there appeare X or XII devils, leaping and daunsing about the bodie of the dead, and seeme to have theyr bodies painted with divers colours, and that among other there is one seene bigger then the residue, who maketh great mirth and rojoycing. This great devyll they call Setebos.

Zu A. 2, Sc. 1. Die von Shakspeare benutzte Stelle aus Florio's Uebersetzung des Montaigne, betitelt The Essayes, or Morall, Politike and Militarie Discourses, of Lo: Michaell de Montaigne, Knight, (1603), steht in dem 30. Capitel des ersten Buches unter der Ueberschrift Of the Caniballes und lautet:

Those nations seeme therefore so barbarous unto mee, because they have received very little fashion from humane wit, and are yet neere their originall naturalitie. The lawes of nature do yet commaund them, which are but little bastardized by ours. And that with such puritie, as I am sometimes grieved the knowledge of it came no sooner to light, at what time ther were men that better than wee could have judged of it. I am sorie, Licurgus and Plato had it not: for me seemeth that what in those nations we see by experience, doth not onlie excede all the pictures wherewith licentious Poesie hath proudly imbellished the golden age, and al hir quaint inventions to faine a happy condition of man, but also the conception and desire of Philosophie. They could not imagine a genuitie so pure and simple, as we see it by experience; nor ever beleve our societie might be maintained with so little arte and humane combination. It is a nation, would I answer Plato, that hath no kinde of traffike, no knowledge of Letters, no intelligence of numbers, no name of magistrate, nor of politike superiortie; no use of service, of riches, or of poverty; no contracts, no successions, no dividences, no occupation but idle; no respect of kinred, but common, no apparell but naturall, no manuring of lands, no use of wine, corne, or mettle. The very words that import lying, falshood, treason, dissimulation, covetousnes, envie, detraction, and pardon, were never heard of amongst them.

Zu A. 2, Sc. 1. Die als Bat-fowling bekannte Jagd wird von Markham in seinem Buche Hunger's Prevention so beschrieben:

For the manner of Bat-fowling it may be vsed either with Nettes, or without Nettes: If you vse it without Nettes (which indeede is the most common of the two) you shall then proceede in this manner. First, there shall be one to cary the cresset of fire (as was showed for the Lowbell), then a certain number as two, three, or foure (according to the greatnesse of your company), and these shall haue poales bound with dry round wispes of hay, straw, or such like stuffe, or else bound with pieces of Linkes, or Hurdes dipt in Pitch, Rosen, Grease, or any such like matter that will blaze. Then another company shall be armed with long poales, very rough and bushy at the upper endes, of which the Willow, Byrche, or long Hazell are best, but indeede acording as the Country will afford, so you must be content to take.

Thus being prepared and comming into the Bushy or rough ground where the haunts of Birds are, you shall then first kindle some of your fiers as halfe, or a third part, according as your prouision is, and then with your other bushy and rough poales you shall beat the Bushes, Trees and haunts of the Birds, to enforce them to rise, which done you shall see the Birds which are raysed, to flye and play about the lights and flames of the fier, for it is their nature through their amazednesse, and affright at the strangenes of the light and the extreame darknesse round about it, not to depart from it, but as it were almost to scorch their wings in the same: so that those which haue the rough bushye poales may (at their pleasures) beat them down with the same, and so take them. Thus you may spend as much of the night as is darke, for longer is not convenient, and doubtlesse you shall finde much pastime, and take great store of birds, and in this you shall obserue all the obseruations formerly treated of in the Lowbell; especially, that of silence, vntill your lights be kindled, but then you may vse your pleasure, for the noyse and the light when they are heard and seene a farre of, they make the birds sit the faster and surer.

EINLEITUNG.

The byrdes which are commonly taken by this labour or exercise are, for the most part, the Rookes, Ring-doues, Blackebirdes, Throstles, Feldyfares, Linnets, Bulfinches, and all other Birdes whatsoeuer that pearch or sit vpon small boughes or bushes.

Zu A. 4, Sc. 1. Die Stelle in Lord Sterline's Tragedie of Darius, welche unserm Dichter bei Abfassung von Prospero's Betrachtung über die Vergänglichkeit alles Irdischen vorgeschwebt haben muss, lautet folgendermassen:

*Let greatness of her glassy scepters vaunt,
Not scepters, no, but reeds, soon bruis'd, soon broken;
And let this worldly pomp our wits enchant,
All fades, and scarcely leaves behind a token.
Those golden palaces, those gorgeous halls,
With furniture superfluously fair,
Those stately courts, those sky-encount'ring walls,
Evanish all like vapours in the air.*

Zu A. 5, Sc. 1. Die von Shakspeare für Prospero's Beschwörung benutzte Stelle aus Ovid's Metamorphosen lautet in Golding's unserm Dichter bekannter Uebersetzung so:

*Ye airs and winds, ye elves of hills, of brooks, of woods alone,
Of standing lakes, and of the night, approach ye every one.
Through help of whom (the crooked banks much wondering at the thing)
I have compelled streams to run clear backward to their spring.
By charms I make the calm sea rough, and make the rough sea plain,
And cover all the sky with clouds, and chase them thence again.
By charms I raise and lay the winds; and burst the viper's jaw;
And from the bowels of the earth both stones and trees do draw.
Whole woods and forest: I remove, I make the mountains shake,
And even the earth itself to groan and fearfully to quake.
I call up dead men from their graves, and thee, O lightsome moon,
I darken oft, though beaten brass abate thy peril soon.
Our sorcery dims the morning fair, and darks the sun at noon.
The flaming breath of fiery bulls ye quenched for my sake,
And caused their unyielding necks the bended yoke to take.
Among the earth-bred brothers you a mortal war did set,
And brought asleep the dragon fell, whose eyes were never shut.*

SCENE, the Sea, with a Ship; afterwards an Island.

ACT I.

SCENE I.

On a Ship at Sea.

A tempestuous noise of Thunder and Lightning heard.¹

Enter a Ship-master and a Boatswain, severally.

Master. Boatswain!

Boats. Here, master: what cheer?

Mast. Good, speak to the mariners: fall to 't yarely,² or we run ourselves aground: bestir, bestir. [Exit.]

Enter Mariners.

Boats. Heigh, my hearts! cheerly, cheerly, my hearts! yare, yare. Take in the topsail; tend to the master's whistle. — Blow, till thou burst thy wind,³ if room enough!

Enter ALONSO, SEBASTIAN, ANTONIO, FERDINAND, GONZALO, and Others.

Alon. Good boatswain, have care.⁴ Where 's the master? Play the men.⁵

Boats. I pray now, keep below.

Ant. Where is the master, boson?⁶

Boats. Do you not hear him? you mar our labour. Keep your cabins; you do assist the storm.⁷

Gon. Nay, good, be patient.

Boats. When the sea is. Hence! What care these roarers⁸ for the name of king? To cabin: silence! trouble us not.

Gon. Good,⁹ yet remember whom thou hast aboard.

Boats. None that I more love than myself. You are a counsellor: if you can command these elements to silence, and work the peace of the present,¹⁰ we will not hand a rope more; use your authority: if you cannot, give thanks you have lived so long, and make yourself ready in your cabin for the mischance of the hour, if it so hap.¹¹ — Cheerly, good hearts! — Out of our way, I say.

[Exit.]

Gon. I have great comfort from this fellow: methinks, he hath no drowning mark upon him; his complexion is perfect gallows.¹² Stand fast, good fate, to his hanging! make the rope of his destiny our cable, for our own doth little advantage! If he be not born to be hanged, our case is miserable. [Exeunt.]

Re-enter Boatswain.

Boats. Down with the topmast:¹³ yare; lower, lower.

1) Diese Bühnenweisung findet sich schon in der Fol. 2) yarely = gewandt, munter. — good ist die ermunternde Anrede des Schiffspatrons an den Bootsmann. — Sh.'s genaue Kenntniss nautischer Details, wie sie aus dieser ganzen Scene erhellt, bezeugt mit kompetenter Autorität Lord Mulgrave in einer längeren Anmerkung, die zuerst in Malone's Ausgabe erschien. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 2. 3) Steevens wollte lesen till thou burst thee, wind. — Der Sturm wird humoristisch wie ein Mensch aufgefasst, der so bläst, dass er darüber seinen Athem oder seine Athemsorgane vernichtet oder platzen lässt. — if room enough erklärt Dryden in seiner Bearbeitung des Tempest (1667): Let's have sea-room enough, and then let it blow the devil's head off. 4) have a care bei Dryden. 5) play the men = handelt wie Männer. So in K. Henry VI. First Part (A. 1, Sc. 6) When they shall hear how we have play'd the men. — Der Gegensatz findet sich in Macbeth (A. 4, Sc. 3) I could play the woman with mine eyes. 6) So die Fol. Viele Hgg. setzen das gewöhnlichere boatswain dafür, woraus boson durch Abschleifung entsteht ist. 7) So in Pericles (A. 3, Sc. 1) Patience, good sir; do not assist the storm. 8) these roarers bezeichnet der Bootsmann gleich nachher genauer als these elements. — Für care hat die Fol. cares, was Rowe verbessert, die Cambridge Edd. aber beibehalten, indem sie bemerken: This grammatical inaccuracy, which escaped correction in the later Folios, probably came from Shakespeare's pen. Similar cases occur frequently, especially when the verb precedes its nominative. 9) Vgl. oben Anm. 2. 10) present = der gegenwärtige Augenblick. 11) Bereitet Euch in der Kajüte auf Euren Tod vor, wenn es so schlimm ausgeht. 12) Der Gesell hat kein Merkmal an sich, dass er im Wasser umkommen soll; vielmehr deutet sein Gesicht ganz auf den Galgen hin. — Dieselbe Anspielung auf das Sprichwort He that is born to be hanged is not drowned ist auch in Two Gentlemen of Verona (A. 1, Sc. 1). 13) Wie Lord Mulgrave bemerkt, war das Herunterschlagen der Bramstange zu Sh.'s Zeit eine neue Erfindung, über deren Thunlichkeit

Bring her to try with main-course.¹⁴ [A cry within.]
A plague upon this howling! they are louder than the weather, or our office.¹⁵ —

Re-enter SEBASTIAN, ANTONIO, and GONZALO.

Yet again! what do you here? Shall we give o'er, and drown? Have you a mind to sink?

Seb. A pox o' your throat, you bawling, blasphemous, incharitable dog!

Boats. Work you, then.

Ant. Hang, cur, hang! you whoreson, insolent noise-maker, we are less afraid to be drowned than thou art.

Gon. I'll warrant him for drowning,¹⁶ though the ship were no stronger than a nutshell, and as leaky as an unstanch'd¹⁷ wench.

Boats. Lay her a-hold, a-hold!¹⁸ Set her two courses:
off to sea again; lay her off.

Enter Mariners, wet.¹⁹

Mar. All lost! to prayers, to prayers! all lost!

[Exeunt.]

Boats. What, must our mouths be cold?

Gon. The king and prince at prayers! let's assist them,
For our case is as theirs.

Seb. I am out of patience.

Ant. We are merely²⁰ cheated of our lives by drunkards. —
This wide-chopp'd rascal, — 'would, thou might'st lie drowning,

The washing of ten tides!²¹

Gon. He'll be hang'd yet,
Though every drop of water swear against it,
And gape at wid'st to glut him.²²

[A confused noise within.] Mercy on us! — We split, we split! — Farewell, my wife and children! —
Farewell, brother! — We split, we split, we split! —

Ant. Let's all sink wi' the king.²³

[Exit.]

Seb. Let's take leave of him.

[Exit.]

Gon. Now would I give a thousand furlongs of sea for an acre of barren ground; long heath, brown furze,²⁴ any thing. The wills above be done! but I would fain die a dry death.

[Exit.]

SCENE II.

The Island: before the cell of PROSPERO.

Enter PROSPERO and MIRANDA.

Mira. If by your art, my dearest father, you have Put the wild waters in this roar, allay them.
The sky, it seems, would pour down stinking pitch,
But that the sea, mounting to the welkin's cheek,¹
Dashes the fire out. O! I have suffer'd
With those that I saw suffer: a brave vessel,
Who had no doubt some noble creatures² in her,
Dash'd all to pieces. O! the cry did knock
Against my very heart. Poor souls, they perish'd.
Had I been any god of power, I would
Have sunk the sea within the earth, or ere³
It should the good ship so have swallow'd, and
The fraughting⁴ souls within her.

Pro. Be collected:
No more amazement. Tell your piteous heart,
There's no harm done.

Mira. O, woe the day!

Pro. No harm.
I have done nothing but in care of thee,
(Of thee, my dear one! thee, my daughter!) who Art ignorant of what thou art, nought knowing
Of whence I am; nor that I am more better⁵
Than Prospero, master of a full poor⁶ cell,
And thy no greater father.

Mira. More to know
Did never meddle with my thoughts.⁷

Pro. 'T is time
I should inform thee further. Lend thy hand,
And pluck my magic garment from me. — So:

[Lays down his mantle.]
Lie there, my art.⁸ — Wipe thou thine eyes; have comfort.
The direful spectacle of the wrack, which touch'd
The very virtue of compassion in thee,
I have with such provision⁹ in mine art die Sachverständigen noch nicht einig waren. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 2 die Anmerkung. 14) Wie Malone vermuthet, entlehnte Sh. dieses Manoeuvre aus Hackluyt's Voyages (1598), wo es heisst: And when the barke had way, we cut the hawser, and so gate the sea to our friend, and tried out all that day with our maine course. — Zur Erklärung citirt Steevens aus Smith's Sea Grammar (1627) unter dem Artikel How to handle a ship in a storm Folgendes: Let us lie as Trie with our maine course; that is to hale the tacke aboard, the sheat close aft, the boling set up, and the helme tied close aboard. 15) Die Passagiere machen mit ihrem Angstgeheul mehr Lärm als der Sturm und die lärmende Arbeit der Matrosen. 16) Steevens und Malone ändern ohne Grund from drowning. — for drowning = in Betreff des Ertrinkens. 17) unstanch'd = unersättlich, geil. 18) to lay her a-hold = das Schiff hart an den Wind legen. — Dazu gehört denn die folgende Ordre. Vgl. Lord Mulgrave's Erklärung in der Einleitung pag. 2. Steevens interpungirt Set her two courses off; etc. 19) So schon in der Fol. 20) merely = schier, gänzlich. 21) Möchtest Du so lange ertrinken, wie zehnmal Fluth und Ebbe wechseln, wie die Fluth zehnmal anspült. 22) to glut = verschlingen. — Das folgende wirre Geschrei der Ertrinkenden, das hinter der Scene laut wird, drucken manche Ausgg. als einen Theil von Gonzalo's Rede. 23) So Capell. — Die Fol. hat with King, die späteren Folioausgg. with King, wofür die meisten Hgg. with the king setzen. 24) hanmer las ling, heath, broom, furze. — furze ist firrs in der Fol.

1) cheek für Angesicht, Antlitz im Allgemeinen, in übertragenem Sinne, kehrt bei Sh. öfter wieder; so in K. Richard II. (A. 3, Sc. 3) the cloudy cheeks of heaven, und in Coriolanus (A. 5, Sc. 3) the wide cheeks o' the air. — Staunton schlägt crack für cheek vor. 2) creatures ist Theobald's Verbesserung für creature der Fol. 3) or ere = ehe, wofür im ältern Englisch auch bloss or steht. — Die gewöhnliche Schreibweise ist or e'er für or ever. 4) fraughting in der Fol. wird von manchen Hgg. in das gewöhnlichere freighting umgeändert: die Seelen im Schiffe, welche die Ladung ausmachten. 5) more better, für das einfachere better, wie Sh. oft den Comparativ doppelt bezeichnet: vornehmer, von höherem Range. 6) full poor = ganz arm. 7) to meddle with = sich in Etwas mischen, sich mit Etwas zu schaffen machen: mehr zu erfahren, hat nie meine Gedanken gekümmert. 8) Da Prospero's Zauberkraft wesentlich in dem Zaubermantel steckt, den er jetzt ablegt, so redet er in diesem, der nun ungebraucht daliegt, seine Zauberkunst an, deren er für den Augenblick nicht mehr bedarf.

So safely order'd, that there is no soul —¹⁰
 No, not so much perdition as an hair,
 Betid to any creature in the vessel
 Which thou heard'st cry, which thou saw'st sink. Sit down;

For thou must now know further.

Mira. You have often
 Begun to tell me what I am; but stopp'd,
 And left me to a bootless inquisition,
 Concluding, »Stay, not yet.«

Pro. The hour's now come,
 The very minute bids thee ope thine ear;
 Obey, and be attentive. Canst thou remember
 A time before we came unto this cell?
 I do not think thou canst, for then thou wast not
 Out three years¹¹ old.

Mira. Certainly, Sir, I can.

Pro. By what? by any other house, or person?
 Of any thing the image tell me, that
 Hath kept with thy remembrance.

Mira. 'T is far off;
 And rather like a dream, than an assurance
 That my remembrance warrants. Had I not Four or five women once, that tended me?

Pro. Thou hadst, and more, Miranda. But how is it,
 That this lives in thy mind? What seest thou else
 In the dark backward and abysm¹² of time?
 If thou remember'st aught, ere thou cam'st here,
 How thou cam'st here, thou may'st.¹³

Mira. But that I do not.

Pro. Twelve year since, Miranda, twelve year since,¹⁴
 Thy father was the duke of Milan, and
 A prince of power.

Mira. Sir, are not you my father?

Pro. Thy mother was a piece of virtue, and
 She said — thou wast my daughter; and thy father
 Was duke of Milan, and his only heir
 A princess; —¹⁵ no worse issued.

Mira. O, the heavens!
 What foul play had we, that we came from thence?
 Or blessed was 't, we did?

Pro. Both, both, my girl:

By foul play, as thou say'st, were we heav'd thence;
 But blessedly help hither.

Mira. O! my heart bleeds
 To think o' the teen¹⁶ that I have turn'd you to,
 Which is from my remembrance. Please you, further.

Pro. My brother, and thy uncle, call'd Antonio, —
 I pray thee, mark me, — that a brother should
 Be so perfidious! — he whom, next thyself,
 Of all the world I lov'd, and to him put
 The manage of my state; as, at that time,
 Through all the signories it was the first,
 And Prospero the prime duke; being so reputed
 In dignity and, for the liberal arts,
 Without a parallel: those being all my study,
 The government I cast upon my brother,
 And to my state grew stranger, being transported,
 And rapt in secret studies. Thy false uncle —
 Dost thou attend me?

Mira. Sir, most heedfully.

Pro. Being once perfected¹⁷ how to grant suits,
 How to deny them, who to advance, and who
 To trash for over-topping,¹⁸ new created
 The creatures that were mine, I say, or chang'd them,
 Or else new form'd them: having both the key¹⁹
 Of officer and office, set all hearts i' the state
 To what tune pleas'd his ear; that now he was
 The ivy, which had hid my princely trunk,
 And suck'd my verdure out on 't. — Thou attend'st not.

Mira. O good Sir! I do.

Pro. I pray thee, mark me.
 I thus neglecting worldly ends, all dedicated²⁰
 To closeness, and the bettering of my mind
 With that, which, but by being so retir'd,
 O'er-priz'd all popular rate, in my false brother
 Awak'd an evil nature: and my trust,
 Like a good parent,²¹ did beget of him
 A falsehood, in its contrary as great
 As my trust was; which had, indeed, no limit,
 A confidence sans bound.²² He being thus lorded,
 Not only with what my revenue yielded,
 But what my power might else exact, — like one,
 Who having, unto truth, by telling of it,
 Made such a sinner of his memory,

9) Für provision änderte Hunter prevision. — provision ist = ein thätiges Vorhersehen, Vorsorge. — Die zweite Folioausg. setzt aus Versehen compassion für provision, was auch Rowe noch beibehält. 10) Rowe ergänzt den Satz, den Sh. mit einem ihm geläufigen Constructionswechsel unterbricht, mit no soul lost. — Capell setzt no loss für no soul. 11) out three years old = volle drei Jahre alt, so dass man aus den drei Jahren heraus ist. 12) Sh. hat abysm hier und in Antony and Cleopatra (A. 3, Sc. 11). — Das gewöhnlichere abyss kommt bei ihm nicht vor. 13) scil.thou may'st remember: dann kannst Du Dich auch erinnern, auf welche Weise Du hierher geriethest. 14) year ist, wie Steevens bemerkt, zuerst zweisylbig, und nachher einsylbig zu lesen. Manche Hgg. setzen, im Widerspruch mit der Fol., an beiden Stellen years. 15) a princess verbessert Pope das and princess der Fol. — no worse issued = von nicht geringerer Abstammung, bezieht sich im Allgemeinen auf Miranda. 16) teen = Kummer, Noth. — which is from my remembrance = dessen ich mich nicht mehr entsinne. 17) Da er einmal darin ausgelernt war, wie ein Fürst sich zu benehmen hat, wie er Gesuche gewährt oder abschlägt u. s. w. 18) to trash = anhalten, niederhalten, eigentlich von zu raschen und hitzigen Jagdhunden, denen man einen Strick mit einem Gewicht beschwert um den Hals bindet. — for over-topping = damit sie nicht zu übermüthig werden, eine Sh.'sche Construction, die sich auch sonst findet; so in Two Gentlemen of Verona (A. 1, Sc. 2) Yet here they shall not lie, for catching cold. — Dryden hat dagegen in seiner Bearbeitung Whom to advance, or lop for over-topping. — whom für who der Fol. findet sich schon in den spätern Folioausgg. 19) key ist, in Verbindung mit dem folgenden to set und tune der Stimmhammer, womit ein musikalisches Instrument gestimmt wird. 20) Steevens setzte, aus metrischen Gründen, dedicate für dedicated: ich war ganz der Stille ergeben und bemüht, meinen Geist mit dem auszustatten, was alle Schätzung des Volkes übersteigen würde, wenn es nur nicht so geheim wäre, also der Kunde des Volkes sich entzöge. 21) Wie ein guter, zu nachsichtiger Vater leicht ungerathene Kinder hat. 22) sans bound = ohne Grenze. — sans für without. 23) unto truth, wie Warburton das von Dyce beibehaltene into truth der Fol. plausibel umändert,

To credit his own lie,²³ — he did believe
He was indeed the duke; out o' the substitution,²⁴
And executing the outward face of royalty,
With all prerogative: hence his ambition growing, —
Dost thou hear?

Mira. Your tale, Sir, would cure deafness.

Pro. To have no screen between this part he play'd,
And him he play'd it for, he needs will be Absolute Milan.²⁵ Me, poor man, my library
Was dukedom large enough:²⁶ of temporal royalties
He thinks me now incapable; confederates
(So dry he was for sway)²⁷ wi' the king²⁸ of Naples,
To give him annual tribute, do him homage,
Subject his coronet to his crown,²⁹ and bend
The dukedom, yet unbow'd, (alas, poor Milan!)
To most ignoble stooping.

Mira. O the heavens!

Pro. Mark his condition, and the event;³⁰ then tell me
If this might be a brother.

Mira. I should sin
To think but nobly of my grandmother:³¹
Good wombs have borne bad sons.

Pro. Now the condition.
This king of Naples, being an enemy
To me inveterate, hearkens my brother's suit;
Which was, that he in lieu o' the premises,³²
Of homage, and I know not how much tribute,
Should presently extirpate me and mine
Out of the dukedom, and confer fair Milan,
With all the honours, on my brother: whereon,
A treacherous army levied, one midnight
Fated to the purpose,³³ did Antonio open
The gates of Milan; and, i' the dead of darkness,
The ministers for the purpose hurried thence
Me, and thy crying self.

Mira. Alack, for pity!
I, not rememb'ring how I cried out then,

Will cry it o'er again: it is a hint,
That wrings mine eyes to 't.³⁴

Pro. Hear a little further,
And then I'll bring thee to the present business
Which now 's upon us; without the which this story
Were most impertinent.

Mira. Wherefore did they not
That hour destroy us?

Pro. Well demanded, wench:
My tale provokes that question. Dear, they durst not,
So dear the love my people bore me,³⁵ nor set
A mark so bloody on the business; but
With colours fairer painted their foul ends.
In few,³⁶ they hurried us aboard a bark,
Bore us some leagues to sea; where they prepar'd
A rotten carcass of a boat,³⁷ not rigg'd,
Nor tackle, sail, nor mast; the very rats
Instinctively have quit it, there they hoist us,
To cry to the sea that roar'd to us: to sigh
To the winds, whose pity, sighing back again,
Did us but loving wrong.

Mira. Alack! what trouble
Was I then to you!

Pro. O, a cherubim
Thou wast, that did preserve me. Thou didst smile,
Infused with a fortitude from heaven,
When I have deck'd³⁸ the sea with drops full salt,
Under my burden groan'd; which rais'd in me³⁹
An undergoing stomach, to bear up
Against what should ensue.

Mira. How came we ashore?

Pro. By Providence divine.
Some food we had, and some fresh water, that
A noble Neapolitan, Gonzalo,
Out of his charity, (who⁴⁰ being then appointed Master of this design) did give us; with gehört zu sinner: Einer, der sein Gedächtniss zu einem solchen Sünder gegen die Wahrheit gemacht hat, Einer, der sein Gedächtniss sich so an der Wahrheit versündigen lässt, dass er seine eigene Lüge glaubt. — by telling of it, wofür M. Mason by telling oft lesen wollte, wird meistens auf das folgende his own lie bezogen: indem er seine Lüge wiederholt oder äussert. Vielleicht ist es ganz allgemein, ohne bestimmte Beziehung: indem er davon sprach. 24) out of the substitution etc. = in Folge der Statthalterschaft und weil er u. s. w. gehört noch zu dem vorhergehenden he did believe etc. 25) Der erklärte, vollkommene Herzog von Mailand. 26) Mir, armem Mann, war, nach der Ansicht meines Bruders, meine Bibliothek ein hinlänglich grosses Herzogthum. 27) So sehr düstete ihn nach der Herrschaft. — dry = durstig, hat Sh. auch in Troilus and Cressida (A. 2, Sc. 3) Pour in, pour in; his ambition is dry. 28) So Rowe und Capell für with king der Fol. — Die meisten Hgg. setzen with the king. 29) his coronet = Antonio's Herzogskrone von Mailand; his crown = Alonso's Königs-krone von Neapel. 30) his condition ist der Vertrag Antonio's mit dem Könige von Neapel; the event die Folge, das Ergebniss desselben. 31) Ich würde sündigen, wenn ich anders als edel von meiner Grossmutter denken wollte, weil sie zugleich die Mutter eines so schlechten Sohnes gewesen. 32) Auf Grund der verabredeten Bedingungen. — in lieu of wird in diesem Sinn = auf Grund von, als Erwiderung für, auch sonst gebraucht; so in As you like it (A. 2, Sc. 3) In lieu of all thy pains and husbandry. — Knight und Staunton streichen das Comma hinter premises. 33) Dryden hat in seiner Bearbeitung And on a night mated to his design. 34) to 't, das Steevens streichen wollte, bezieht sich auf das vorhergehende cry it o'er again = Etwas auf's Neue beweinen. — hint = Wink, Motiv, Anlass. — to wring = auspressen, hier von den Augen, wie sonst von den Thränen selbstgebraucht; so in Much Ado about Nothing (A. 5, Sc. 1) Your over-kindness doth wring tears from me. 35) So innig war die Liebe, die mein Volk für mich hegte. 36) in few = in wenig Worten, kurz gesagt. 37) boat, das sich schon in Dryden's Bearbeitung fand, setzte Rowe in den Text für butt der Fol. — Nach Dryden's Vorgange änderte Rowe weniger plausibel auch zwei Zeilen weiter had quit it für have quit it. — quit für quitted im älteren Englisch. So ist vielleicht auch hoist als Präteritum, nicht als Präsens zu fassen. 38) to deck, oder auch to deg, ist im nordenglischen Dialekt = to sprinkle, und in diesem Sinne scheint Sh. das Wort hier zu gebrauchen. 39) which rais'd etc. bezieht sich auf thou didst smile etc. = was in mir einen Muth zu dulden erweckte, um mich aufrecht zu halten bei Allem, was da kommen mochte. 40) Für who, das kein Verbum hinter sich hat, setzt Capell he. Indess ist solche Nachlässigkeit der Construc-tion, namentlich in der Anwendung der Relativpronomina in parenthetischen Sätzen, bei Sh. nicht selten.

Rich garments, linens, stuffs,⁴¹ and necessities,
Which since have steaded much: so, of his gentleness,⁴²
Knowing I lov'd my books, he furnish'd me,
From my own library, with volumes that
I prize above my dukedom.

Mira. 'Would I might
But ever see that man!

Pro. Now I arise.⁴³ —
Sit still, and hear the last of our sea-sorrow.
Here in this island we arriv'd; and here
Have I, thy schoolmaster, made thee more profit
Than other princess'⁴⁴ can, that have more time
For vainer hours, and tutors not so careful.

Mira. Heavens thank you for 't! And now, I pray you, Sir,

For still 't is beating in my mind, your reason
For raising this sea-storm?

Pro. Know thus far forth. —
By accident most strange, bountiful Fortune,
Now my dear lady,⁴⁵ hath mine enemies
Brought to this shore; and by my prescience
I find my zenith doth depend upon
A most auspicious star, whose influence
If now I court not, but omit, my fortunes
Will ever after droop. Here cease more questions.
Thou art inclin'd to sleep; 't is a good dulness,
And give it way:⁴⁶ — I know thou canst not choose. —

[MIRANDA sleeps.]

Come away, servant, come! I am ready now.

Approach, my Ariel: come!

Enter ARIEL.

Ari. All hail, great master; grave Sir, hail! I come
To answer thy best pleasure; be 't to fly,
To swim, to dive into the fire, to ride

On the curl'd clouds: to thy strong bidding task
Ariel, and all his quality.⁴⁷

Pro. Hast thou, spirit,
Perform'd to point⁴⁸ the tempest that I bade thee?

Ari. To every article.
I boarded the king's ship; now on the beak,
Now in the waist,⁴⁹ the deck, in every cabin,
I flam'd amazement: sometimes, I 'd divide,
And burn in many places; on the topmast,
The yards and bowsprit,⁵⁰ would I flame distinctly,⁵¹
Then meet, and join. Jove's lightnings,⁵² the precursors
O' the dreadful thunder-claps, more momentary
And sight-outrunning⁵³ were not: the fire, and cracks
Of sulphurous roaring the most mighty Neptune
Seem⁵⁴ to besiege, and make his bold waves tremble,
Yes, his dread trident shake.

Pro. My brave spirit!
Who was so firm, so constant, that this coil
Would not infect his reason?

Ari. Not a soul
But felt a fever of the mad,⁵⁵ and play'd
Some tricks of desperation. All, but mariners,
Plung'd in the foaming brine, and quit⁵⁶ the vessel,
Then all a-fire with me: the king's son, Ferdinand,
With hair up-staring (then like reeds, not hair),
Was the first man that leap'd; cried, »Hell is empty,
And all the devils are here.«

Pro. Why, that 's my spirit!
But was not this nigh shore?

Ari. Close by, my master.

Pro. But are they, Ariel, safe?

Ari. Not a hair perish'd;
On their sustaining garments⁵⁷ not a blemish,
But fresher than before; and, as thou bad'st me,
In troops I have dispers'd them 'bout the isle.

41) stuffs wie necessaries ist = Reisegeräth, Gepäck aller Art. 42) of his gentleness = vermöge seiner Freundlichkeit, gehört zu dem folgenden he furnish'd me etc. 43) Der Sinn dieser Worte ist dunkel. Blackstone fügt sie noch zu der vorigen Rede der Miranda, welche, in der Meinung, die Erzählung ihres Vaters sei zu Ende, von ihrem Sitze sich erheben will und von Prospero mit den folgenden Worten Sit still zurückgehalten wird. — Steevens erklärt, dass Prospero damit das gesteigerte Interesse seiner ferneren Erzählung andeuten wolle. — Dyce fügt zur Erklärung die Bühnenweisung hinzu: Resumes his robe. — Staunton meint, dass Prospero diese Worte an den nur ihm sichtbaren Ariel richte. — Die Deutung von Dyce scheint die plausibelste zu sein, insofern Prospero sich wieder in seiner zaubermächtigen Rolle als ein höheres Wesen zeigen will. 44) princesse in der Fol., der Sh.'sche Plural für princesses, der auch in As you like it (A. 1, Sc. 2) vorkommt. Die meisten Hgg. setzen princes dafür. — Sidney Walker verallgemeinert die Regel, indem er aufstellt: The plurals of substantives ending in s, in certain instances; in se, ss, ce, and sometimes ge; occasionally too, but very rarely in sh and ze; are found without the usual addition of s or es — in pronunciation at least, although in many instances the plural affix is added in printing, where the metre shows that it is not to be pronounced. — Wie die Cambridge Edd. bemerken, findet sich der für Sh.'s Zeit angezwiefelte Plural princesses in dem alten Drama von King Lear. Ob das Wort daselbst aber, der jetzigen Aussprache gemäss, dreisylbig zu lesen ist, erscheint mindestens zweifelhaft. Die Stelle lautet: Sweet princesses, || I am glad I met you heere so luckily, || Having good newes which doth concern you both || And craveth speedy expedition. 45) Die gütige Fortuna, die jetzt meine Gönnerin ist. So in Cymbeline (A. 2, Sc. 3) Your mother too: she's my good lady. 46) Es ist eine rechte, ächte Müdigkeit, eine Schlafsucht, der Du nachgeben darfst. — Dass diese Müdigkeit in der Miranda eine übernatürliche, durch Prospero's Zauber schon länger vorbereitete war, zeigen seine früheren Fragen und Bemerkungen, wie Dost thou attend me? und I pray thee, mark me u. s. w. 47) quality = Begabung, Kunst. So in Hamlet (A. 2, Sc. 2) Will they pursue the quality no longer than they can sing? 48) to point = genau, Punkt für Punkt. 49) beak = Schiffsschnabel; waist = Bauch des Schiffes. 50) Für bowsprit hat die Fol. bore-sprit und Rowe bolt-sprit. 51) distinctly = getrennt: in mehreren einzelnen Flammen zugleich. — Sh. schildert hier das Phänomen des sog. St. Elmsfeuers, wie er es vielleicht in Hackluyt's Voyages beschrieben fand. 52) Die Fol. hat im Singular lightning neben dem pluralischen precursors. 53) sight-outrunning = das Auge überholend im Lauf, ist wie momentary mit more zu verbinden. 54) Für seem, das durch die lebhaftete Schilderung gerechtfertigte Präsens, setzen viele Hgg. stillschweigend seem'd. 55) a fever of the mad = ein Fieber, wie es die Wahnsinnigen haben. — Dryden's Bearbeitung hat a fever of the mind. 56) quit für quitted. Vgl. oben Anm. 37. 57) sustaining garments erklärt Steevens: die Kleider,

The king's son have I landed by himself,
Whom I left cooling of the air with sighs,
In an odd angle of the isle, and sitting,
His arms in this sad knot.⁵⁵

Pro. Of the king's ship
The mariners, say, how thou hast dispos'd,
And all the rest o' the fleet?

Ari. Safely in harbour
Is the king's ship; in the deep nook, where once
Thou call'dst me up at midnight to fetch dew
From the still-vex'd Bermoothes;⁵⁹ there she 's hid:
The mariners all under hatches stow'd;
Whom, with a charm join'd to their suffer'd labour,
I have left asleep: and for the rest o' the fleet
Which I dispers'd, they all have met again,
And are upon the Mediterranean flote,⁶⁰
Bound sadly home for Naples,
Supposing that they saw the king's ship wrack'd,
And his great person perish.

Pro. Ariel, thy charge
Exactly is perform'd; but there 's more work.
What is the time o' the day?

Ari. Past the mid season.

Pro. At least two glasses.⁶¹ The time 'twixt six and now
Must by us both be spent most precious.

Ari. Is there more toil? Since thou dost give me pains,
Let me remember thee what thou hast promis'd,
Which is not yet perform'd me.

Pro. How now? moody?
What is 't thou canst demand?

Ari. My liberty.

Pro. Before the time be out? no more!

Ari. I pr'ythee,
Remember, I have done thee worthy service;
Told thee no lies, made thee⁶² no mistakings, serv'd
Without or grudge, or grumblings. Thou didst promise
To bate me a full year.

Pro. Dost thou forget
From what a torment I did free thee?

Ari. No.

Pro. Thou dost; and think'st it much, to tread the ooze
Of the salt deep,
To run upon the sharp wind of the north,
To do me business in the veins o' th' earth,
When it is bak'd with frost.

Ari. I do not, Sir.

Pro. Thou liest, malignant thing! Hast thou forgot
The foul witch Sycorax, who, with age and envy,
Was grown into a hoop? hast thou forgot her?

Ari. No, Sir.

Pro. Thou hast. Where was she born? speak;
tell me.

Ari. Sir, in Argier.⁶³

Pro. O! was she so? I must,
Once in a month, recount what thou hast been,
Which thou forgett'st. This damn'd witch, Sycorax,
For mischiefs manifold, and sorceries terrible⁶⁴
To enter human hearing, from Argier,
Thou know'st, was banish'd: for one thing she did,⁶⁵
They would not take her life. Is not this true?

Ari. Ay, Sir.

Pro. This blue-ey'd⁶⁶ hag was hither brought with child,

And here was left by the sailors: thou, my slave
As thou report'st thyself, wast⁶⁷ then her servant:
And, for thou wast a spirit too delicate
To act her earthy⁶⁸ and abhorr'd commands,
Refusing her grand hests,⁶⁹ she did confine thee,
By help of her more potent ministers,
And in her most unmitigable rage,
Into a cloven pine; within which rift
Imprison'd, thou didst painfully remain
A dozen years; within which space she died,
And left thee there, where thou didst vent thy groans
As fast as mill-wheels strike. Then was this island (Save for the son that she did litter here,
A freckled whelp, hag-born) not honour'd with
A human shape.

Ari. Yes; Caliban, her son.

Pro. Dull thing, I say so; he, that Caliban,
Whom now I keep in service. Thou best know'st
What torment I did find thee in: thy groans
Did make wolves howl, and penetrate the breasts
Of ever-angry bears. It was a torment
To lay upon the damn'd, which Sycorax
Could not again undo: it was mine art,
When I arriv'd and heard thee, that made gape
The pine, and let thee out.

Ari. I thank thee, master.

Pro. If thou more murmur'st, I will rend an oak, welche sie über Wasser hielten; M. Mason aber: die Kleider, welche ohne Schaden das Meerwasser über sich ergehen lassen. Letztere Erklärung ist die wahrscheinlichere. 58) Indem er traurig die Arme so in einander verschlingt. — Ariel ahmt dabei pantomimisch Ferdinand's Haltung nach. 59) Die stets von Stürmen und Brandungen heimgesuchten Bermudasinseln kannte Sh. aus verschiedenen Reisebeschreibungen. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 1. Sie galten zugleich als ein Wohnsitz von Hexen und bösen Geistern und werden in dieser Beziehung häufig bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen erwähnt. — Bermoothes für Bermudas oder Bermudos gehört nicht bloss Sh. an; so steht in Webster's Dutchess of Malfi: I would sooner swim to the Bermoothes. 60) flote oder float, wie Dryden in seiner Bearbeitung das Wort schreibt, = Fluth. So in Middleton's Spanish Gipsy: It did not || More check my rash attempt, than draw to ebb || The float of those desires. 61) Staunton interpungirt At least two glasses — the time 'twixt six and now — || Must by us both etc., damit nicht Prospero eine Frage thue und selbst beantworte. — Upton wollte eben deswegen die Worte at least two glasses dem Ariel zutheilen. Indess scheint es ganz natürlich, dass Prospero Ariel's Zeitangabe näher bestimme. — two glasses = zwei Stunden, nach dem Stundenglas berechnet. 62) thee ist vielleicht, wie manche Hgg. vermuthen, durch ein Versehen des Abschreibers oder Setzers hier wiederholt, weshalb Pope es streicht. Indess hat selbst Dryden in seiner Bearbeitung es beibehalten. 63) Argier, die ältere Form für Algiers. 64) too terrible bei Dryden. 65) Da Sh. das for one thing she did unerklärt lässt, so ist die natürlichste Erklärung in dem folgenden with child zu suchen. Man wollte in Algier die Hexe Sycorax nicht umbringen, weil sie sich hatte schwängern lassen. 66) blue-ey'd = mit blauen Augenrändern. So in As you like it (A. 3, Sc. 2) a blue eye, and sunken. — Staunton vermuthete blear-eyed dafür. 67) was in der Fol., von Rowe verbessert. 68) earthy = irdisch, gemein, grobsinnlich, steht im Gegensatze zu delicate, was den Ariel als einen zarten Luftgeist charakterisirt. 69) hests veraltet für

And peg thee in his knotty entrails, till
Thou hast howl'd away twelve winters.

Ari. Pardon, master:
I will be correspondent to command,
And do my spriting gently.

Pro. Do so, and after two days
I will discharge thee.

Ari. That 's my noble master!
What shall I do? say what? what shall I do?

Pro. Go, make thyself like ⁷⁰ a nymph o' the sea: be subject

To no sight but thine and mine; invisible
To every eyeball else. Go, take this shape,
And hither come in 't: go, hence, with diligence.

[Exit ARIEL.]

Awake, dear heart, awake! thou hast slept well;
Awake!

Mira. The strangeness of your story put Heaviness in me. ⁷¹

Pro. Shake it off. Come on:
We 'll visit Caliban, my slave, who never Yields us kind answer.

Mira. 'T is a villain, Sir,
I do not love to look on.

Pro. But, as 't is,
We cannot miss him: ⁷² he does make our fire,
Fetch in our wood, and serves in offices
That profit us. — What ho! slave! Caliban!
Thou earth, ⁷³ thou! speak.

Cal. [Within.] There 's wood enough within.

Pro. Come forth, I say, there 's other business for thee:
Come, thou tortoise! when! ⁷⁴

Re-enter ARIEL, like a water-nymph. ⁷⁵

Fine apparition! My quaint Ariel, ⁷⁶
Hark in thine ear.

Ari. My lord, it shall be done. [Exit.]

Pro. Thou poisonous slave, got by the devil himself
Upon thy wicked dam, come forth!

Enter CALIBAN.

Cal. As wicked ⁷⁷ dew as e'er my mother brush'd
With raven's feather from unwholesome fen,
Drop on you both! a south-west blow on ye, ⁷⁸
And blister you all o'er!

Pro. For this, be sure, to-night thou shalt have cramps,
Side-stitches that shall pen thy breath up; urchins ⁷⁹
Shall forth, at vast of night, ⁸⁰ that they may work
All exercise on thee: thou shalt be pinch'd
As thick as honey-comb, each pinch more stinging
Than bees that made them. ⁸¹

Cal. I must eat my dinner.
This island 's mine, by Sycorax my mother,
Which thou tak'st from me. When thou camest first, ⁸²
Thou strok'dst me, and mad'st ⁸³ much of me; wouldst give me

Water with berries in 't; and teach me how
To name the bigger light, and how the less, ⁸⁴
That burn by day and night: and then I lov'd thee,
And show'd thee all the qualities o' th' isle,
The fresh springs, brine-pits, barren place, and fertile.
Cursed be I that did so! ⁸⁵ — All the charms
Of Sycorax, toads, beetles, bats, light on you!
For I am all the subjects that you have,
Which first was mine own king; and here you sty me,
In this hard rock, whiles you do keep from me
The rest o' the island.

Pro. Thou most lying slave,
Whom stripes may move, not kindness! I have us'd thee,
Filth as thou art, with human care; and lodg'd thee
In mine own cell, till thou didst seek to violate
The honour of my child.

Cal. O ho! O ho! ⁸⁶ — 'would it had been done!
Thou didst prevent me; I had peopled else
This isle with Calibans. ⁸⁷

Pro. Abhorred slave,
Which any print of goodness wilt ⁸⁸ not take,
Being capable ⁸⁹ of all ill! I pitied thee, behests. 70) Die zweite Fol. hat like to, weshalb Steevens, indem er zugleich thine and weglässt, die Verse so regulirt: Go, make thyself like to a nymph o' the sea: || Be subject to no sight but mine; invisible || To every eyeball else. — Schon Dryden in seiner Bearbeitung strich thine and. 71) Miranda schreibt ihre Einschläferung, welche in der That von Prospero's Zauber herrührte, dem Auffallenden und Wunderbaren seiner Erzählung zu. — Die Cambridge Edd. vermuthen strange heaviness. 72) Wir können ihn nicht entbehren, nicht ohne ihn fertig werden. 73) Vgl. oben Anm. 68. 74) when! ein Ausruf der Ungeduld und der Zurechtweisung, der bei Sh. und seinen Zeitgenossen häufig vorkommt. 75) So schon in der Fol. 76) quaint = gewandt, geschickt, mit dem Nebensinne des Gefälligen und Artigen. 77) wicked = böseartig, verderblich. So kommt wicked weed bei Spenser vor. 78) Douce citirt hierzu Folgendes aus dem Sh. höchst wahrscheinlich bekannten Buche Batman's uppon Bartholome his booke De proprietatibus rerum (1582), woher nach Douce's Ansicht Sh. den Namen von Caliban's Mutter entlehnte und modificirte: The raven is called corvus of Corax — it is said that ravens birds be fed with deaw of heaven all the time that they have no black feathers by benefit of age, and in einer andern Stelle desselben Buches: This Southern wind is hot and moyst — Southern winds corrupt and destroy; they heat and maketh men fall into sicknesse. 79) urchin = Igel, Stachelschwein. Von dem widerlichen, unheimlichen Aussehen dieses Thieres wurde auch eine Art von Kobold so bezeichnet, und Sh. fasst wahrscheinlich das Wort hier in solchem Doppelsinn. 80) vast of night = die Oede und Leere, die grauenhafte Stille der Nacht, in der solche Kobolde ihr Strafamt an Caliban ausüben sollen. Die Hgg. lasen bisher, nach Vorgang der Fol.: urchins || Shall for that vast of night that they may work, || All exercise on thee, bis Ingleby auf die, wie er sagt, schon von Thomas White im Jahre 1793 angegebene evidente Textverbesserung wieder hinwies. 81) Caliban soll von den Kobolden so über und über gezwickt werden, wie in den Honigwaben eine Bienenzelle dicht neben der andern liegt, und jeder Zwick soll schmerzhafter sein, als der Stich der Bienen, welche die Honigwaben machen. 82) Ritson wollte lesen When thou cam'st here first, da die Fol. cam'st liest. 83) Die Fol. hat stroakst und made, was zuerst Rowe verbesserte, nach Dryden's Vorgange. 84) Das grössere Licht, das bei Tage brennt, und das kleinere, das bei Nacht brennt. 85) Da die Fol. Curs'd liest, so setzen die späteren Folioausgg. Curs'd be I that I did so. 86) O ho! ist der charakteristische Ausruf des Teufels in den altenglischen Moraliäten. 87) Die folgende Rede, welche die Fol. der Miranda zuertheilt,

Took pains to make thee speak, taught thee each hour
One thing or other: when thou didst not, savage,
Know thine own meaning,⁹⁰ but wouldst gabble like
A thing most brutish, I endow'd thy purposes
With words that made them known; but thy vile race,⁹¹
Though thou didst learn, had that in 't which good natures

Could not abide to be with: therefore wast thou
Deservedly confin'd into this rock,
Who hadst deserv'd more than a prison.

Cal. You taught me language: and my profit on 't
Is, I know how to curse. The red plague rid you⁹²
For learning me your language!

Pro. Hag-seed, hence!
Fetch us in fuel; and be quick, thou 'rt best,⁹³
To answer other business. Shrugg'st thou, malice?
If thou neglect'st, or dost unwillingly
What I command, I 'll rack thee with old⁹⁴ cramps;
Fill all thy bones with aches;⁹⁵ make thee roar,
That beasts shall tremble at thy din.

Cal. No, 'pray thee! —
[Aside.] I must obey: his art is of such power,
It would control my dam's god, Setebos,⁹⁶
And make a vassal of him.

Pro. So, slave; hence! [Exit CALIBAN.]

*Re-enter ARIEL, invisible,⁹⁷ playing and singing;
FERDINAND following him.*

ARIEL'S Song.

*Come unto these yellow sands,
And then take hands:
Court'sied when you have, and kiss'd, —
The wild waves whist,⁹⁸ —
Foot it featly here and there;*

And, sweet sprites, the burden bear.⁹⁹

Hark! hark!

Burden. Bowgh, wowgh.

The watch-dogs bark

Burden. Bowgh, wowgh.

Hark, hark! I hear

The strain of strutting chanticleer

Cry, Cock-a-diddle-dow.¹⁰⁰

Fer. Where should this music be? i' the air, or the earth? —

It sounds no more; — and sure, it waits upon
Some god o' the island. Sitting on a bank,
Weeping again¹⁰¹ the king my father's wreck,
This music crept by me upon the waters,
Allaying both their fury, and my passion,
With its sweet air: thence I have follow'd it,
Or it hath drawn me rather: but 't is gone. —
No, it begins again.

ARIEL sings.

Full fathom five thy father lies;

Of his bones are coral made;

Those are pearls that were his eyes:

Nothing of him that doth fade,

But doth suffer a sea-change

Into something rich and strange.¹⁰²

Sea-nymphs hourly ring his knell:

[Burden. Ding-dong.]

Hark! now I hear them, — ding-dong, bell.¹⁰³

Fer. The ditty does remember my drown'd father. —
This is no mortal business, nor no sound
That the earth owes.¹⁰⁴ — I hear it now above me.

Pro. The fringed curtains of thine eye¹⁰⁵ advance,
And say, what thou seest yond.

giebt zuerst Theobald, nach Dryden's Vorgange, dem Prospero, dem sie offenbar auch zukommt. 88) Für wilt der Fol. setzen viele Hgg. mit den späteren Folioausgg. will. 89) capable of = empfänglich für Etwas, ist in Verbindung mit dem vorhergehenden any print aufzufassen. 90) Diesen etwas ungenauen Ausdruck erläutert Steevens: when thou didst utter sounds to which thou hadst no determinate meaning: Du äussertest Dich in einer Weise, dass Du Dich selber nicht verstandest. — Capell änderte when thou couldst not, savage, || Show thine own meaning. 91) race = die angeborne Art: obgleich Caliban gelehrig war, so behielt er doch vermöge seiner teuflischen Abstammung Etwas in sich, mit dem edlere Geschöpfe es nicht aushalten konnten. 92) to rid = aus dem Wege räumen, wegschaffen. — So in K. Henry VI. Third Part (A. 5, Sc. 5) As, deathsmen, you have rid this sweet young prince. — Wie hier red plague, so steht in Coriolanus (A. 4, Sc. 1) als Verwünschung the red pestilence. Ob Sh. damit speciell die als Erysipelas bezeichnete Krankheit verstanden wissen will, erscheint doch sehr zweifelhaft. 93) Für thou 'rt best, was parenthetisch als drohende Insinuation steht, setzen manche Hgg. thou wert best. — Die späteren Folioausgg. haben thou art best. 94) old = reichlich, mehr als genug. 95) Das substantivische aches war im Unterschiede von dem verbalen akes zweisylbig mit palataler Aussprache des ch; so in Timon of Athens (A. 1, Sc. 1) Aches contract and starve your supple joints. 96) Setebos fand Sh. in Eden's Historie of Travayle in the West and East Indies als einen von den Patagoniern angerufenen Oberteufel. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 2 u. 3. 97) Steevens citirt dazu aus dem Verzeichniss einer Theatergarderobe (1598) u. A. a robe for to go invisibell. 98) Da die Fol. kein Interpunctuationszeichen hinter kiss'd hat, so liesse sich der Passus deuten: Wenn Ihr Euch verneigt und die wilden Wellen geküsst habt, dass sie stille sind. Indess scheint es natürlicher, mit Steevens the wild waves whist parenthetisch zu fassen: während die wilden Wellen stille sind, und das kiss'd wie das court'sied als Einleitung zum Tanze zu erklären. 99) Die Fol. hat bear the burden, was Theobald nach Dryden's Vorgange umstellte, um den Reim herzustellen. — Die dann folgende alte Bühnenweisung Burden dispersedly besagt, dass auf Ariel's Geheiss die Geister von verschiedenen Seiten und mit nachgeahmten Thierstimmen den Refrain zu Ariel's Gesange bilden, um den Ferdinand zu verwirren und in den Zauber zu verstricken. 100) So die Fol. — Die Hgg. setzen meistens das gewöhnliche cock-a-doodle-do. 101) again versteht Malone hier als die veraltete Form der Präposition against = gegenüber, im Angesichte des Wrackes, und Rowe setzt sogar against in diesem Sinne in den Text, wie schon vor ihm Dryden in seiner Bearbeitung. Indess scheint es natürlicher, again in dem gewöhnlichen Sinne zu nehmen: indem ich auf's Neue den Untergang des Königs, meines Vaters, beweinte. 102) Alles Vergängliche an ihm wird durch den Einfluss des Meeres in etwas Kostbares und Seltenes verwandelt, wie z. B. die Augen in Perlen. 103) Denselben Refrain hat Sh. in Merchant of Venice (A. 3, Sc. 2) Let us all ring fancy's knell: || I'll begin it. — Ding, dong, bell. 104) to owe = sein eigen nennen. 105) Diese poetische Umschreibung

Mira. What is 't? a spirit?
Lord, how it looks about! Believe me, Sir,
It carries a brave form: — but 't is a spirit.

Pro. No, wench: it eats and sleeps, and hath such senses

As we have, such. This gallant, which thou seest,
Was in the wrack; and but he 's something stain'd
With grief, that 's beauty's canker, thou mightst call him
A goodly person. He hath lost his fellows,
And strays about to find them.

Mira. I might call him
A thing divine, for nothing natural
I ever saw so noble.

Pro. [Aside.] It goes on, I see,
As my soul prompts it. — Spirit, fine spirit! I'll free thee
Within two days for this.

Fer. Most sure, the goddess
On whom these airs attend! ¹⁰⁶ — Vouchsafe, my prayer
May know if you remain upon this island,
And that you will some good instruction give,
How I may bear me here; my prime request,
Which I do last pronounce, is, O you wonder!
If you be maid, ¹⁰⁷ or no?

Mira. No wonder, Sir;
But certainly a maid.

Fer. My language! heavens! —
I am the best of them that speak this speech,
Were I but where 't is spoken.

Pro. How! the best?
What wert thou, if the king of Naples heard thee?

Fer. A single thing, as I am now, that wonders
To hear thee speak of Naples. He does hear me,
And that he does I weep: ¹⁰⁸ myself am Naples;
Who with mine eyes, ne'er since at ebb, ¹⁰⁹ beheld
The king, my father, wrack'd.

Mira. Alack, for mercy!

Fer. Yes, faith, and all his lords; the duke of Milan,
And his brave son, ¹¹⁰ being twain.

Pro. The duke of Milan,
And his more braver daughter could control thee,
If now 't were fit to do 't. — [Aside.] At the first sight
They have chang'd eyes: — delicate Ariel,
I'll set thee free for this! — [To him.] A word, good Sir;
I fear, you have done yourself some wrong: ¹¹¹ a word.

Mira. Why speaks my father so ungently? This Is the third man that e'er I saw; the first
That e'er I sigh'd for. Pity move my father
To be inclin'd my way!

Fer. O! if a virgin,
And your affection not gone forth; I'll make you
The queen of Naples.

Pro. Soft, Sir: one word more. — [Aside.] They are both in either's powers: but this swift business

I must uneasy make, lest too light winning
Make the prize light. [To him.] One word more:
I charge thee,

That thou attend me. Thou dost here usurp
The name thou ow'st not; and hast put thyself
Upon this island as a spy, to win it
From me, the lord on 't.

Fer. No, as I am a man.

Mira. There 's nothing ill can dwell in such a temple:
If the ill spirit have so fair a house,
Good things will strive to dwell with 't.

Pro. [To FERD.] Follow me. —
Speak not you for him; he 's a traitor. — Come.
I'll manacle thy neck and feet together;
Sea-water shalt thou drink, thy food shall be
The fresh-brook muscles, wither'd roots, and husks
Wherein the acorn cradled. Follow.

Fer. No;
I will resist such entertainment, till
Mine enemy has more power.

[He draws, and is charmed from moving. ¹¹²

Mira. O, dear father!
Make not too rash a trial of him, for
He 's gentle, and not fearful. ¹¹³

Pro. What! I say:
My foot my tutor? — Put thy sword up, traitor;
Who mak'st a show, but dar'st not strike, thy conscience
Is so possess'd with guilt: come from thy ward, ¹¹⁴
For I can here disarm thee with this stick,
And make thy weapon drop.

Mira. 'Beseech you, father!

Pro. Hence! hang not on my garments.

Mira. Sir, have pity.
I'll be his surety.

Pro. Silence! one word more Shall make me chide thee, if not hate thee. What!
An advocate for an impostor? hush!
Thou think'st there is ¹¹⁵ no more such shapes as he,
Having seen but him and Caliban: foolish wench!
To the most of men this is a Caliban, ¹¹⁶
And they to him are angels.

Mira. My affections

für Augenlider fand Sh. in Sidney's Arcadia: Sometimes my eyes would lay themselves open — or cast my lids, as curtains, over the image of beauty her presence had painted in them. ¹⁰⁶) Die Göttin, auf deren Befehl diese Lüfte solche zauberische Musik ertönen lassen. ¹⁰⁷) Für maid der Fol. lesen viele Hgg. mit der vierten Folioausg. made, als fragte Ferdinand die Miranda, ob sie geschaffen sei oder nicht. Vielmehr fragt er, dem sie zuerst als eine Göttin erschienen war, sie jetzt, ob sie das sei, als was sie ihm jetzt erscheint, eine Jungfrau. So versteht auch Miranda Ferdinand's Frage, wie aus ihrer Antwort erhellt. ¹⁰⁸) Da er tot und ein Geist ist, so kann er mich hören, und dass er das kann, das beweine ich. ¹⁰⁹) Meine Augen haben seitdem nicht aufgehört zu fluthen, Thränenströme zu vergiessen. ¹¹⁰) Dieser Sohn des Herzogs von Mailand kann hier nur aus Versehen von dem Dichter erwähnt sein, da weiterhin, wo alle aus dem Schiffbruch Geretteten auftreten, nirgendwo von einer solchen Person die Rede ist. — Unter dem duke of Milan versteht Ferdinand den Antonio, Prospero versteht darunter sich selbst. — Für control = zurechtsetzen, seines Irrthums überführen, vermuthet Staunton console. ¹¹¹) Ferdinand hat sich selbst zu nahe gethan, indem er sich für verwaist und demnach für den König von Neapel hält und erklärt. ¹¹²) Diese Bühnenweisung ist aus der Fol. ¹¹³) fearful = geeignet Furcht einzuflossen, schrecklich; also der natürliche Gegensatz zu gentle = sanft, freundlich. — Staunton erklärt mit Smollet zu gesucht he is of a lofty spirit and not to be intimidated. — Für foot im folgenden Verse vermuthet Sidney Walker sinnreich fool, wie Prospero bald nachher seine Tochter als foolish wench anredet. ¹¹⁴) Gieb Deine Fechterstellung auf, Deine Position mit gezücktem Schwerte. ¹¹⁵) Für is der Fol.

Are then most humble: I have no ambition
To see a goodlier man.

Pro. [To FERD.] Come on; obey:
Thy nerves are in their infancy again,
And have no vigour in them.

Fer. So they are:
My spirits, as in a dream, are all bound up.
My father's loss, the weakness which I feel,
The wrack of all my friends, nor¹¹⁷ this man's threats,
To whom I am subdued, are but light to me,
Might I but through my prison once a day
Behold this maid: all corners else o' the earth
Let liberty make use of; space enough
Have I in such a prison.

Pro. It works. — Come on. — Thou hast done well, fine Ariel! — [To FERD.] Follow me. —

[To ARIEL.] Hark, what thou else shalt do me.

Mira. Be of comfort.
My father's of a better nature, Sir,
Than he appears by speech: this is unwonted,
Which now came from him.

Pro. Thou shalt be as free
As mountain winds; but then exactly do
All points of my command.

Ari. To the syllable.

Pro. Come, follow. — Speak not for him.¹¹⁸ [Exeunt.

ACT II.

SCENE I.

Another Part of the Island.

Enter ALONSO, SEBASTIAN, ANTONIO, GONZALO, ADRIAN,
FRANCISCO, and Others.

Gon. 'Beseech you, Sir, be merry: you have cause
(So have we all) of joy, for our escape
Is much beyond our loss. Our hint of woe¹
Is common: every day, some sailor's wife,
The master² of some merchant, and the merchant,
Have just our theme of woe; but for the miracle,

I mean our preservation, few in millions
Can speak like us: then wisely, good Sir, weigh
Our sorrow with our comfort.

Alon. Pr'ythee, peace.

Seb. He receives comfort like cold porridge.

Ant. The visitor³ will not give him o'er so.

Seb. Look; he's winding up the watch of his wit: by and by it will strike.

Gon. Sir, —

Seb. One: — tell.⁴

Gon. When every grief is entertain'd, that's offer'd,
Comes to the entertainer —

Seb. A dollar.

Gon. Dolour comes to him, indeed:⁵ you have spoken truer than you purposed.

Seb. You have taken it wiselier than I meant you should.

Gon. Therefore, my lord, —

Ant. Fie, what a spendthrift is he of his tongue!

Alon. I pr'ythee, spare.

Gon. Well, I have done. But yet —

Seb. He will be talking.

Ant. Which, of he or Adrian,⁶ for a good wager, first begins to crow?

Seb. The old cock.

Ant. The cockrel.

Seb. Done. The wager?

Ant. A laughter.

Seb. A match!

Adr. Though this island seem to be desert, —

Seb. Ha, ha, ha! So, you're paid.⁷

Adr. Uninhabitable, and almost inaccessible, —

Seb. Yet —

Adr. Yet —

Ant. He could not miss it.⁸

Adr. It must needs be of subtle, tender, and delicate temperance.

Ant. Temperance⁹ was a delicate wench.

Seb. Ay, and a subtle, as he most learnedly delivered.

Adr. The air breathes upon us here most sweetly.

Seb. As if it had lungs, and rotten ones.

Ant. Or as 't were perfumed by a fen.

Gon. Here is every thing advantageous to life.

setzen viele Hgg. are. 116) Im Verhältniss zu den meisten Männern ist dieser hässlich wie Caliban, und sie sehen ihm gegenüber wie Engel aus. 117) Für nor der Fol. setzte Rowe, nach Dryden's Vorgange, and, und Capell plausibler or. Indess wechselte Sh. vielleicht die beabsichtigte Satzwendung und setzte nor, als wolle er fortfahren: würden mich nicht kümmern. — Ebenso müsste mit genauerer Construction were but light to me stehen: sie würden mir geringfügig oder leicht erträglich sein, wenn ich nur einmal täglich u. s. w. 118) Come, follow ist an Ferdinand, Speak not for him an Miranda gerichtet.

1) Unser Anlass zur Klage, die Veranlassung, die wir haben zu trauern. So in A. 1, Sc. 2: it is a hint that wrings mine eyes. 2) So liest Capell plausibler für masters der Fol., wofür Steevens mistress (maistres in alter Orthographie) vermuthete. — Die Cambridge Edd. vermuthen the master's, wozu also wife aus dem vorhergehenden some sailor's wife zu suppliren wäre. — master = Schiffspatron; some merchant = irgend ein Kauffahrteischiff, und gleich darauf the merchant im gewöhnlichen Sinne = der Besitzer dieses Schiffes. 3) visitor = der im Dienst der Kirche Kranke besucht und tröstet. 4) one bezieht sich auf it will strike: die Uhr seines Witzes hat schon Eins geschlagen, und die Andern sollen die weiteren Schläge zählen. 5) Das Wortspiel zwischen dollar (dollor in der Fol.) und dolour kehrt wieder in Measure for Measure (A. 1, Sc. 2) und in King Lear (A. 2, Sc. 4). 6) So die Fol.: Wer von den Beiden, von ihm und von Adrian, um darauf ordentlich zu wetten, fängt zuerst an zu krähen? — he steht nachdrücklich für him. — Dieselbe Construction hat Sh. in Midsummer-Night's Dream (A. 3, Sc. 2) Now follow, if thou dar'st to try, whose right, || Of thine or mine, is most in Helena. — Die meisten Hgg. setzen stillschweigend which of them, he or Adrian. 7) Theobald verbindet die Worte So, you're paid, welche die Fol. dem Antonio zuschreibt, mit Sebastian's vorhergehendem Ha, ha, ha! — Da Adrian zuerst das Disput beginnt, also der junge Hahn zuerst kräht, so hat Antonio die Wette gewonnen, und Sebastian bezahlt sie ihm, indem er lacht. — Capell ändert So, you've paid, und lässt diese Worte dem Antonio. 8) Er konnte in seiner Schilderung der Insel nicht fehlgehen. 9) Adrian gebraucht temperance in gezielter Höflingsrede für temperature, und Antonio fasst Temperance als den Namen eines ihnen bekannten

Ant. True; save means to live.
Seb. Of that there 's none, or little.
Gon. How lush¹⁰ and lusty the grass looks! how green!
Ant. The ground, indeed, is tawny.
Seb. With an eye of green in 't.¹¹
Ant. He misses not much.
Seb. No; he doth but mistake the truth totally.
Gon. But the rarity of it is, which is indeed almost beyond credit —
Seb. As many vouch'd rarities are.
Gon. That our garments, being, as they were, drenched in the sea,¹² hold, notwithstanding, their freshness, and glosses; being rather new-dyed, than stain'd with salt water.
Ant. If but one of his pockets could speak; would it not say, he lies?
Seb. Ay, or very falsely pocket up his report.¹³
Gon. Methinks, our garments are now as fresh as when we put them on first in Afric, at the marriage of the king's fair daughter Claribel to the king of Tunis.
Seb. 'T was a sweet marriage, and we prosper well in our return.
Adr. Tunis was never graced before with such a paragon to their queen.¹⁴
Gon. Not since widow Dido's time.
Ant. Widow? a pox o' that! How came that widow in?¹⁵ Widow Dido!
Seb. What if he had said, widower Aeneas too? Good Lord, how you take it!
Adr. Widow Dido, said you? you make me study of that: she was of Carthage; not of Tunis.
Gon. This Tunis, Sir, was Carthage.
Adr. Carthage?
Gon. I assure you, Carthage.
Ant. His word is more than the miraculous harp.¹⁶
Seb. He hath rais'd the wall, and houses too.
Ant. What impossible matter will he make easy next?
Seb. I think he will carry this island home in his pocket, and give it his son for an apple.
Ant. And sowing the kernels of it in the sea, bring forth more islands.
Gon. Ay?¹⁷
Ant. Why, in good time.

Gon. Sir, we were talking, that our garments seem now as fresh, as when we were at Tunis at the marriage of your daughter, who is now queen.
Ant. And the rarest that e'er came there.
Seb. Bate, I beseech you, widow Dido.¹⁸
Ant. O! widow Dido; ay, widow Dido.
Gon. Is not, Sir, my doublet as fresh as the first day I wore it? I mean, in a sort.
Ant. That sort was well fish'd for.
Gon. When I wore it at your daughter's marriage?
Alon. You cram these words into mine ears, against The stomach of my sense.¹⁹ 'Would I had never Married my daughter there! for, coming thence, My son is lost; and, in my rate, she too, Who is so far from Italy remov'd, I ne'er again shall see her. O thou, mine heir Of Naples and of Milan! what strange fish Hath made his meal on thee?
Fran. Sir, he may live.
I saw him beat the surges under him, And ride upon their backs: he trod the water, Whose enmity he flung aside, and breasted The surge most swoln that met him: his bold head 'Bove the contentious waves he kept, and oar'd Himself with his good arms in lusty stroke To the shore, that o'er his wave-worn basis bow'd, As stooping to relieve him.²⁰ I not doubt, He came alive to land.
Alon. No, no; he 's gone.
Seb. Sir, you may thank yourself for this great loss That would not bless our Europe with your daughter, But rather lose her to an African; Where she, at least, is banish'd from your eye, Who hath cause to wet the grief on 't.
Alon. Pr'ythee, peace.
Seb. You were kneel'd to, and importun'd otherwise²¹ By all of us; and the fair soul herself Weigh'd, between lothness and obedience, at Which end o' the beam she 'd bow.²² We have lost your son, I fear, for ever: Milan and Naples have More widows in them, of this business' making, Than we bring men to comfort them:

Mädchens. — Darauf bezieht sich auch das folgende a subtle scil. a subtle wench. 10) lush = üppig, saftig. 11) an eye of green = ein leichter Anflug von Grün. 12) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 2, Anm. 57. 13) Das Wortspiel zwischen pocket = Tasche, und to pocket = Etwas in die Tasche stecken, hat Sh. auch in K. Henry V. (A. 3, Sc. 2). — falsely = unrechtlich. 14) Die Bewohner von Tunis hatten niemals vorher solch ein unvergleichliches Geschöpf zu ihrer Königin. 15) Antonio begreift nicht, wie man die Dido als Wittwe bezeichnen könnte, und Sebastian denkt dabei an den Aeneas, der die Dido treulos verliess. — good Lord, das manche Hgg. good lord schreiben und als Anrede an den Antonio fassen, ist ein Ausruf = guter Gott! wie Ihr das aufnehmt! 16) Indem Gonzalo Carthago und Tunis für eine Stadt erklärt, hat sein Wort mehr vermocht, als die wunderbare Harfe des Amphion, welche doch nur die Mauern Thebens auführte, während Gonzalo auch die Häuser dazu schafft. — Die Cambridge Edd. theilen diese Rede wie die folgende dem Sebastian zu. 17) Dieses ironische Ay? = Wirklich? mit dem Gonzalo die von den Höflingen über ihn gemachten Witze abfertigt, ertheilt Staunton als einen Seufzer oder Ausruf dem König Alonso zu, der mit diesem Ay! aus seiner träumerischen Melancholie aufahre. — Natürlicher scheint es, dass Gonzalo mit seiner nächsten Rede erst den König aus diesem Grübeln und Sinnen zu erwecken sucht. 18) Abgerechnet die Wittwe Dido, wenn ich bitten darf. — Manche Hgg. schreiben 'bate als abgekürzt aus abate. 19) Ihr stopft diese Worte in mein Ohr, ohne dass ich Lust habe, sie zu hören oder zu verstehen. — Bei cram und stomach dachte Sh. an Thiere, die sich wider Willen nudeln lassen. 20) Das ausgehöhlte Gestade, dessen Fuss von den Wellen ausgespült war, neigte sich gleichsam vorneüber in die Fluthen, als wolle es dem Ferdinand die Arme zur Rettung entgegenstrecken. — So in Hamlet (A. 1, Sc. 4) the dreadful summit of the cliff || That beetles o'er his base into the sea. 21) Wir beschworen Euch auch in anderer Weise, nicht bloss durch einen Kniefall. 22) Die Fol. hat should bow, was Pope beibehielt, indem er las at || Which end the beam should bow. — Malone hält mit Recht should für eine Abkürzung von she would (sh' ould) und setzt demnach she'd. — Claribella schwankte zwischen dem Widerwillen gegen die Heirath und dem Gehorsam gegen

The fault 's your own.

Alon. So is the dearest of the loss.²³

Gon. My lord Sebastian,

The truth you speak doth lack some gentleness,
And time to speak it in; you rub the sore,
When you should bring the plaster.

Seb. Very well.

Ant. And most chirurgically.²⁴

Gon. It is foul weather in us all, good Sir,
When you are cloudy.

Seb. Foul weather?

Ant. Very foul.

Gon. Had I plantation of this isle, my lord, —

Ant. He 'd sow 't with nettle-seed.

Seb. Or docks, or mallows.

Gon. And were the king on 't, what would I do?

Seb. Scape being drunk, for want of wine.²⁵

Gon. I 'd the commonwealth I would by contraries

Execute all things, for no kind of traffic

Would I admit; no name of magistrate;

Letters should not be known; riches, poverty,

And use of service, none; contract, succession,

Bourn, bound of land, tilth, vineyard, none;

No use of metal, corn, or wine, or oil;

No occupation, all men idle, all;

And women too, but innocent and pure;

No sovereignty: —

Seb. Yet he would be king on 't.

Ant. The latter end of his commonwealth forgets the beginning.

Gon. All things in common nature should produce,

Without sweat or endeavour: treason, felony,

Sword, pike, knife, gun, or need of any engine,²⁶

Would I not have; but nature should bring forth,

Of its²⁷ own kind, all foison, all abundance,²⁸

To feed my innocent people.

Seb. No marrying 'mong his subjects?

Ant. None, man; all idle; whores, and knaves.

Gon. I would with such perfection govern, Sir,
To excel the golden age.²⁹

Seb. 'Save his majesty!

Ant. Long live Gonzalo!

Gon. And, do you mark me, Sir? —

Alon. Pr'ythee; no more: thou dost talk nothing to me.³⁰

Gon. I do well believe your highness; and did it to minister occasion to these gentlemen, who are of such sensible and nimble lungs, that they always use to laugh at nothing.

Ant. 'T was you we laugh'd at.

Gon. Who, in this kind of merry fooling, am nothing to you:³¹ so you may continue, and laugh at nothing still.

Ant. What a blow was there given!

Seb. An it had not fallen flat-long.

Gon. You are gentlemen of brave mettle: you would lift the moon out of her sphere, if she would continue in it five weeks without changing.

*Enter ARIEL, invisible; solemn music playing.*³²

Seb. We would so, and then go a bat-fowling.³³

Ant. Nay, good my lord, be not angry.

Gon. No, I warrant you; I will not adventure my discretion so weakly. Will you laugh me asleep, for I am very heavy?

Ant. Go sleep, and hear us.

[All sleep but ALON., SEB., and ANT.]

Alon. What! all so soon asleep? I wish mine eyes
Would, with themselves, shut up my thoughts: I find,
They are inclin'd to do so.

Seb. Please you, Sir,

Do not omit the heavy offer of it:³⁴

It seldom visits sorrow; when it doth,

It is a comforter.

Ant. We two, my lord,

Will guard your person while you take your rest,
And watch your safety.

Alon. Thank you. Wondrous heavy. —

[ALONSO sleeps. Exit ARIEL.]

Seb. What a strange drowsiness possesses them!

Ant. It is the quality o' the climate.

Seb. Why

Doth it not then our eyelids sink? I find not Myself dispos'd to sleep.

Ant. Nor I: my spirits are nimble.

They fell together all, as by consent;³⁵

They dropp'd, as by a thunder-stroke. What might,

Worthy Sebastian — O! what might — no more: —

And yet, methinks, I see it in thy face,

What thou shouldst be. The occasion speaks thee,³⁶ and

My strong imagination sees a crown

Dropping upon thy head.

ihren Vater, an welchem Ende des Wagebalkens sie sich neigen oder senken sollte. 23) Wie mein die Schuld ist, so ist mein auch der schmerzlichste Theil des Verlustes. 24) chirurgically = wie ein Wundarzt. — Das Wort kommt sonst kaum vor. 25) Ich würde dem Trunk entgehen, da es auf der Insel keinen Wein giebt. — Für die folgenden Reden Gonzalo's benutzte Sh. theilweise wörtlich einen Abschnitt aus Montaigne's Essais, das in englischer Uebersetzung von Florio im Jahre 1603 erschienen war, ein Buch, von dem Sh.'s eigenes, mit seinem Autograph Willm Shakspeare versehenes Exemplar sich auf dem British Museum in London findet. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 3. — Der Abschnitt ist überschrieben Of the Caniballes, und man hat vermuthet, dass Sh. daher auf den Namen Caliban verfiel. 26) need of any engine = Bedarf irgend einer Art von Kriegsgeräth. 27) it in der Fol., its in den späteren Folioausgg. — Zu Sh.'s Zeit schwankte der Sprachgebrauch zwischen it und its als Possessivpronomen, wofür gewöhnlicher his steht. 28) foison und abundance sind Synonyme. 29) Vgl. damit die Stelle in Florio's Montaigne: I am sorie, Licurgus and Plato had it not etc. in Einleitung pag. 3. 30) So in Merchant of Venice (A. 1, Sc. 1) Gratiano speaks an infinite deal of nothing. 31) In dieser lustigen Narrheit bin ich ein Nichts im Vergleich mit Euch, kann ich mich mit Euch nicht messen. Wenn Ihr also über mich lacht, so lacht Ihr über nichts. 32) Ariel tritt auf, unsichtbar für die Anwesenden, während zugleich eine feierliche Musik ertönt. — Die Bühnenweisung der Fol. ist Enter Ariel playing solemn music, wozu Steevens mit Recht bemerkt, dass Ariel nicht selbst diese Musik spiele. 33) Wenn wir den Mond vom Himmel entfernt, also die Nacht ganz dunkel gemacht hätten, so könnten wir mit Fackeln auf die Vogeljagd gehen. — Diese Art von Jagd wird in Markham's Hunger's Prevention (1600) näher geschildert. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 3 u. 4. 34) of it bezieht sich auf das in asleep steckende sleep: die dämpfe Aufforderung des Schlafs. — heavy ist = schläfrig, und = einschläfernd. 35) Wie auf Verabredung unter einander. 36) Die günstige Gelegenheit

Seb. What! art thou waking?

Ant. Do you not hear me speak?

Seb. I do; and, surely,
It is a sleepy language, and thou speak'st
Out of thy sleep. What is it thou didst say?
This is a strange repose, to be asleep
With eyes wide open; standing, speaking, moving,
And yet so fast asleep.

Ant. Noble Sebastian,
Thou let'st thy fortune sleep, die rather; wink'st
Whiles thou art waking.

Seb. Thou dost snore distinctly:
There's meaning in thy snores.

Ant. I am more serious than my custom: you
Must be so too, if heed me; which to do,
Trebles thee o'er.³⁷

Seb. Well: I am standing water.

Ant. I'll teach you how to flow.

Seb. Do so: to ebb
Hereditary sloth instructs me.

Ant. O!
If you but knew, how you the purpose cherish,
Whiles thus you mock it! how, in stripping it,
You more invest it!³⁸ Ebbing men, indeed,
Most often do so near the bottom run
By their own fear, or sloth.

Seb. Pr'ythee, say on.
The setting of thine eye, and cheek, proclaim
A matter from thee, and a birth, indeed,
Which throes thee much to yield.³⁹

Ant. Thus, Sir.
Although this lord of weak remembrance,⁴⁰ this,
(Who shall be of as little memory,
When he is earth'd) hath here almost persuaded (For he's a spirit of persuasion, only Professes to persuade)⁴¹ the king, his son's alive,
'T is as impossible that he's undrown'd,
As he that sleeps here, swims.

Seb. I have no hope
That he's undrown'd.

Ant. O! out of that no hope,
What great hope have you! no hope, that way, is Another way so high a hope, that even Ambition cannot pierce a wink beyond,
But doubts discovery there.⁴² Will you grant with me,
That Ferdinand is drown'd?

Seb. He's gone.

Ant. Then, tell me,
Who's the next heir of Naples?

Seb. Claribel.

Ant. She that is queen of Tunis; she that dwells
Ten leagues beyond man's life;⁴³ she that from Naples
Can have no note,⁴⁴ unless the sun were post,
(The man i' the moon's too slow) till new-born chins
Be rough and razorable;⁴⁵ she, from whom
We all were sea-swallow'd, though some cast again;⁴⁶
And by that destiny to perform an act,
Whereof what's past is prologue, what to come,
In yours and my discharge.

Seb. What stuff is this! — How say you?
'T is true, my brother's daughter's queen of Tunis;
So is she heir of Naples; 'twixt which regions
There is some space.

Ant. A space whose every cubit
Seems to cry out, >How shall that Claribel
Measure us back to Naples? Keep in Tunis,
And let Sebastian wake!⁴⁷ — Say, this⁴⁸ were death
That now hath seiz'd them; why, they were no worse
Than now they are. There be that can rule Naples
As well as he that sleeps; lords that can prate
As amply and unnecessarily,
As this Gonzalo; I myself could make
A chough of as deep chat.⁴⁹ O, that you bore
The mind that I do! what a sleep were this
For your advancement! Do you understand me?

verkündet Dich als das, was Du sein kannst, was Du wirst. 37) Ihr müsst auch ernsthafter als gewöhnlich sein, wenn Ihr auf meine Reden achtet; wenn Ihr das thut, so verdreifacht es Euch, so macht es Euch dreimal so gross, als Ihr seid. — In den folgenden Wechselreden wird das Gleichniss von einem Wasserstande, der weder fluthet noch ebbt, also unentschieden ist, weiter ausgesponnen. So in Twelfth-Night (A. 1, Sc. 5) 't is with him in standing water. 38) Sebastian, indem er seine angeborene Trägheit, die er mit einer Ebbe vergleicht, vorschützt, um nicht auf Antonio's Pläne einzugehen, legt um so mehr diesen Plan gleichsam wie ein Gewand an, je mehr er scheinbar es von sich abzustreifen sucht. 39) Eine Geburt, die von Dir zu geben Dir viele Geburtsschmerzen verursacht. 40) this lord of weak remembrance, d. h. der aus Altersschwäche vergessliche Gonzalo, steht im Gegensatz zu dem folgenden of as little memory = dessen man sich ebenso wenig erinnern wird, wenn er einmal beerdigt ist. 41) Antonio bemerkt zu hath here almost persuaded the king, his son's alive in einer Parenthese höhnisch in Bezug auf Gonzalo: denn er ist ein Geist der Ueberredung, macht sich ein einziges Geschäft daraus, Andere zu überreden, zu beschwatzen. — Steevens wollte professes to persuade streichen, und las dann For he's a spirit of persuasion only. 42) there bezieht sich auf a wink beyond: Diese Hoffnungslosigkeit nach der einen Seite begreift nach der andern Seite in sich eine Hoffnung von solcher Höhe, dass der Ehrgeiz selbst mit seinem Blicke nicht darüber hinausdringt, sondern die Möglichkeit, dort noch Entdeckungen zu machen, bezweifelt, oder vor Entdeckungen, die er dort noch machen könnte, sich scheut. — doubts verbessert Capell das doubt der Fol. 43) Sie, die zehn Meilen weiter wohnt, als wohin ein Mensch in einem ganzen Leben kommen kann. 44) note = Kunde, von Sh. allgemein für notice gebraucht. 45) razorable = für das Rasirmesser geeignet, also = bärtig. — Das Wort, das in der Fol. Razor-able gedruckt ist, kommt sonst kaum vor. 46) Sie, von der zurückkehrend wir Alle von der See verschlungen wurden, wenn auch Einige von der See wieder ausgespien wurden. — Die Fol. hat she that from whom. — Zu some cast again gehört auch das folgende by that destiny: und um gemäss diesem Schicksal eine That zu vollbringen, zu der die Vergangenheit nur das Vorspiel war, und bei der die Zukunft in Eurer und meiner Erledigung beruht. — Erwähnenswerth erscheint Staunton's Conjectur: though some cast again, — || And that by destiny, — to perform. — Für in yours and my discharge ist vielleicht mit Pope is yours etc. zu lesen. 47) Bleibe in Tunis und lass den Sebastian wachen, sich auf alle Fälle gerüstet halten. Diese Worte, an die Claribella gerichtet, gehören so gut wie die vorhergehenden, noch zu seems to cry out. 48) this, d. h. dieser Schlaf, der die Uebrigen so plötzlich überfallen hat. 49) chough = Dohle, wird als Bezeichnung

Seb. Methinks, I do.
 Ant. And how does your content
 Tender your own good fortune?
 Seb. I remember,
 You did supplant your brother Prospero.
 Ant. True:
 And look how well my garments sit upon me;
 Much feater than before. My brother's servants
 Were then my fellows, now they are my men.
 Seb. But, for your conscience —
 Ant. Ay, Sir; where lies that? if it were a kibe,
 'T would put me to my slipper; but I feel not
 This deity in my bosom:⁵⁰ twenty consciences,
 That stand 'twixt me and Milan, candied be they,
 And melt,⁵¹ ere they molest! Here lies your brother, —
 No better than the earth he lies upon,
 If he were that which now he 's like, that 's dead,⁵² —
 Whom I, with this obedient steel, three inches of it,
 Can lay to bed for ever; whiles you, doing thus,⁵³
 To the perpetual wink for aye might put
 This ancient morsel, this Sir Prudence, who Should not upbraid our course: for all the rest,
 They 'll take suggestion⁵⁴ as a cat laps milk;
 They 'll tell the clock to any business that
 We say befits the hour.
 Seb. Thy case, dear friend,
 Shall be my precedent: as thou got'st Milan,
 I 'll come by Naples. Draw thy sword: one stroke
 Shall free thee from the tribute which thou pay'st,
 And I the king shall love thee.
 Ant. Draw together;
 And when I rear my hand, do you the like,
 To fall it⁵⁵ on Gonzalo.
 Seb. O! but one word.
 [They converse apart.⁵⁶

Music. Re-enter ARIEL, invisible.

Ari. My master through his art foresees the danger
 That you, his friend, are in; and sends me forth
 (For else his project dies) to keep them⁵⁷ living.
 [Sings in GONZALO's ear.

While you here do snoring lie,
 Open-ey'd Conspiracy
 His time doth take.
 If of life you keep a care,
 Shake off slumber, and beware:
 Awake! Awake!

Ant. Then let us both be sudden.
 Gon. Now, good angels,
 Preserve the king. [They wake.
 Alon. Why, how now, ho! awake! Why are you drawn?⁵⁸
 Wherefore this ghastly looking?
 Gon. What 's the matter?
 Seb. Whiles we stood here securing your repose,
 Even now, we heard a hollow burst of bellowing
 Like bulls, or rather lions: did it not wake you?
 It struck mine ear most terribly.
 Alon. I heard nothing.
 Ant. O! 't was a din to fright a monster's ear,
 To make an earthquake: sure, it was the roar
 Of a whole herd of lions.
 Alon. Heard you this, Gonzalo?
 Gon. Upon mine honour, Sir, I heard a humming,
 And that a strange one too, which did awake me.
 I shak'd you, Sir, and cry'd; as mine eyes open'd,
 I saw their weapons drawn. — There was a noise,
 That 's verity:⁵⁹ 't is best we stand upon our guard,
 Or that we quit this place. Let 's draw our weapons.
 Alon. Lead off this ground, and let 's make further search
 For my poor son.
 Gon. Heavens keep him from these beasts,
 For he is, sure, i' the island.
 Alon. Lead away. [Exeunt.
 Ari. Prospero, my lord, shall know what I have done:
 So, king, go safely on to seek thy son. [Exit.

SCENE II.

Another Part of the Island.

Enter CALIBAN, with a burden of wood.

A noise of thunder heard.

Cal. All the infections that the sun sucks up eitler Geschwätzigkeit auch sonst gebraucht; so in Hamlet (A. 5, Sc. 2) von dem Höfling Osrick: 't is a chough. — deep ironisch für das Gegenteil = seicht. 50) Das Gewissen ist eine verborgene Gottheit, die ich in meiner Brust nicht fühle, die für mich nicht existirt. 51) candied in Bezug auf consciences ist = ein verhärtetes Gewissen, so wie melt = ein Gewissen, das flüssig wird, das sich regt. Dieser Process hätte sich zwanzigmal auf Antonio's Wege zum Besitze von Mailand wiederholen können, ohne dass Antonio dadurch sich belästigt gefühlt hätte. — Für and melt liest Capell would melt und Steevens or melt — Beides ohne Noth. 52) Aus dem parenthetischen Zwischensatze no better — — that 's dead strich Steevens die letzten Worte als eine aus Versehen in den Text gerathene Glosse. Der Sinn zeigt aber die Nothwendigkeit derselben: Er wäre nicht besser als die Erde, darauf er liegt, wenn er das wäre, was er jetzt nur scheint, das heisst todt. — whom knüpft dann wieder an your brother an: den ich mit diesem willfährigen Schwerte, mit drei Zoll davon, für immer zur Ruhe bringen kann. 53) Zu doing thus ist eine begleitende Pantomime des Schwertzückens hinzuzudenken: während Ihr, so verfahren, zum Schliessen der Augen auf ewig dieses alte Stück, diesen Herrn Weisheit, d. h. Gonzalo, veranlassen könntet. — Derselbe Euphemismus für Tod ist in Winter's Tale (A. 1, Sc. 2) give mine enemy a lasting wink. 54) Sie werden sich so leicht gewinnen lassen, wie eine Katze Milch schlürft. — suggestion gebraucht Sh. allgemein für temptation. 55) to fall = senken, niederfallen lassen. 56) Diese zur Erklärung nothwendige Bühnenweisung ist erst von den späteren Hggn. hinzugefügt. — Die folgende Bühnenweisung lautet in der Fol. Enter Ariel with music and song. Vgl. oben Anm. 32. 57) them kann sich nur auf die beiden eben jetzt vom Tode Bedrohten, Alonso und Gonzalo, beziehen, wenn auch die Construction, wie häufig bei Sh. in Folge einer eingeschobenen Parenthese, ungenau ist. — Dyce setzt thee für them, auf you, his friend, bezüglich, und Malone liest and sends me forth, || For else his projects die, to keep them living, indem er them auf projects bezieht. 58) Warum habt Ihr das Schwert gezückt? — Diese Reden vertheilt Staunton, abweichend von der Fol. und allen anderen Ausgg., so: Gon. (Waking.) Now, good angels, preserve the king! || Why, how now? ho, awake! Why are you drawn? || Wherefore this ghastly looking? — Alon. (Waking.) What 's the matter? 59) verity verbesserte Pope das verily der Fol.

From bogs, fens, flats, on Prosper fall, and make him
By inch-meal a disease! His spirits hear me,
And yet I needs must curse; but they 'll nor pinch,
Fright me with urchin-shows,¹ pitch me i' the mire,
Nor lead me, like a firebrand, in the dark
Out of my way, unless he bid 'em; but
For every trifle are they set upon me:
Sometime like apes, that moe² and chatter at me,
And after, bite me;³ then like hedge-hogs, which Lie tumbling in my bare-foot way, and mount
Their pricks at my foot-fall:⁴ sometime am I
All wound⁵ with adders, who with cloven tongues
Do hiss me into madness. — Lo, now! lo!
Here comes a spirit of his, and to torment me,
For bringing wood in slowly: I 'll fall flat;
Perchance, he will not mind me.

Enter TRINCULO.

Trin. Here 's neither bush nor shrub to bear off any weather at all, and another storm brewing; I hear it sing i' the wind: yond same black cloud, yond huge one, looks like a foul bombard⁶ that would shed his liquor.
If it should thunder, as it did before, I know not where to hide my head: yond same cloud cannot choose but fall by pailfuls. — What have we here? a man or a fish?
Dead or alive? A fish: he smells like a fish; a very ancient and fish-like smell; a kind of, not of the newest,
Poor-John.⁷ A strange fish!⁸ Were I in England now
(as once I was), and had but this fish painted, not a holiday fool there but would give a piece of silver: there would this monster make a man: any strange beast there makes a man.⁹ When they will not give a doit to relieve a lame beggar, they will lay out ten to see a dead Indian.¹⁰ Legg'd like a man! and his fins like arms!
Warm; o' my troth! I do now let loose my opinion, hold it no longer; this is no fish, but an islander, that hath lately suffered by a thunder-bolt. [Thunder.] Alas!
the storm is come again: my best way is to creep under his gaberdine;¹¹ there is no other shelter hereabout:

misery acquaints a man with strange bedfellows. I will here shroud, till the dregs¹² of the storm be past.

Enter STEPHANO, singing; a bottle in his hand.

Ste. I shall no more to sea, to sea,

Here shall I die a-shore. —

This is a very scurvy tune to sing at a man's funeral.
Well, here 's my comfort. [Drinks.]

The master, the swabber, the boatswain, and I,

The gunner, and his mate,

Lov'd Mall, Meg, and Marian, and Margery,

But none of us car'd for Kate;

For she had a tongue with a tang,

Would cry to a sailor, Go hang:

She lov'd not the savour of tar, nor of pitch,

Yet a tailor might scratch her where-e'er she did itch;

Then to sea, boys, and let her go hang.

This is a scurvy tune too; but here 's my comfort.

[Drinks.]

Cal. Do not torment me: O!

Ste. What 's the matter? Have we devils here? Do you put tricks upon us with savages, and men of Inde?¹³ Ha! I have not scap'd drowning, to be afeard now of your four legs; for it hath been said, As proper a man as ever went on four legs¹⁴ cannot make him give ground: and it shall be said so again, while Stephano breathes at nostrils.

Cal. The spirit torments me: O!

Ste. This is some monster of the isle, with four legs, who hath got, as I take it, an ague. Where the devil should he learn our language? I will give him some relief, if it be but for that: if I can recover him, and keep him tame, and get to Naples with him, he 's a present for any emperor that ever trod on neat's-leather.¹⁵

Cal. Do not torment me, pr'ythee: I 'll bring my wood home faster.

Ste. He 's in his fit now, and does not talk after the wisest. He shall taste of my bottle: if he have never

1) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 2, Anm. 79. 2) to moe = Gesichter schneiden. Das Wort wird auch mow und mowe geschrieben. 3) Dryden setzt in seiner Bearbeitung often für after. 4) Die Stachelschweine wälzen sich auf dem Wege, den ich barfuss gehe, und sträuben ihre Stacheln, wie ich den Fuss niedersetze. — Douce citirt zu diesem und dem vorhergehenden Passus eine Stelle aus Harsnett's Declaration of Popish Impostures, einem Buche, das Sh. bei seinem King Lear benutzt hat. Es heisst dort von angeblich besessenen jungen Mädchen: they make antick faces, girn, mow and mop like an ape, tumble like a hedge-hogge etc. 5) wound von to wind = umwinden, umringeln. 6) bombard = grosser, dicker Weinschlauch, von Leder gemacht. 7) Poor-John = eingesalzener Stockfisch. 8) strange fish wird im weiteren Sinne von allem seltsamen Gethier gebraucht, das in der See gefangen sein sollte und zu Sh.'s Zeit die Schaulust der Londoner in hohem Grade anlockte und befriedigte. So ist in den Registern der Buchhändlergilde von 1604 ein Buch verzeichnet mit dem Titel: A strange report of a monstrous fish, that appeared in the form of a woman from her waist upward, seen in the sea; und in dem Notizbuche des Sir Henry Herbert, vom Jahre 1632, der als damaliger Master of the Revels solche Ausstellungen zu autorisiren hatte, findet sich A license to James Seele to shew a strange fish for half a yeare. 9) to make a man = Jemandes Glück machen, ihn zum gemachten Manne machen. Dabei ist ein Gegensatz zwischen monster und man, wie zwischen beast und man. 10) Wie solche Unthiere des Meeres wurden auch Wilde, Indianer, die die englischen Schiffe mitgebracht, für Geld gezeigt, nicht nur lebendig, sondern auch nach ihrem Tode, einbalsamirt oder ausgestopft. So in K. Henry VIII. (A. 5, Sc. 3) or have we some strange Indian with the great tool come to court, the women so besiege us? 11) gaberdine = ein weiter Rock, der sich nicht anschliesst, so dass also Trinculo bequem darunter kriechen konnte. 12) Wie Trinculo vorher die schwere Regenwolke mit einem dicken Weinschlauch verglichen hatte, so bezeichnet er hier den letzten Regenguss als den Bodensatz des Weins. 13) Die Fol. schreibt salvages hier, nach einer älteren Orthographie, während sie gewöhnlich savages hat. So in Love's Labour's Lost (A. 4, Sc. 3) like a rude and savage man of Inde. 14) Die sprichwörtliche Wendung lautet eigentlich as proper a man as ever went on two legs, und wird von Stephano hier modificirt in Bezug auf das vierfüssige Geschöpf, als welches ihm Caliban mit dem Trinculo unter dem Rocke erscheint. — at' nostrils hat die Fol. am Schluss dieser Rede, woraus die Cambridge Edd., vielleicht mit Recht, at's nostrils machen. 15) So in Julius Caesar (A. 1, Sc. 1) as proper men as ever trod upon drunk wine afore, it will go near to remove his fit. If I can recover him, and keep him tame, I will not take too much for him:¹⁶ he shall pay for him that hath him, and that soundly.

Cal. Thou dost me yet but little hurt; thou wilt anon, I know it by thy trembling: now Prosper works upon thee.¹⁷

Ste. Come on your ways: open your mouth; here is that which will give language to you, cat.¹⁸ Open your mouth: this will shake your shaking,¹⁹ I can tell you, and that soundly: you cannot tell who's your friend; open your chaps again.

Trin. I should know that voice. It should be — but he is drowned, and these are devils. O! defend me! —

Ste. Four legs, and two voices! a most delicate monster. His forward voice, now, is to speak well of his friend; his backward voice is to utter foul speeches, and to detract. If all the wine in my bottle will recover him, I will help his ague. Come, — Amen!²⁰ I will pour some in thy other mouth.

Trin. Stephano!

Ste. Doth thy other mouth call me? Mercy! mercy! This is a devil, and no monster: I will leave him; I have no long spoon.²¹

Trin. Stephano! — if thou beest Stephano, touch me, and speak to me, for I am Trinculo: — be not afraid, — thy good friend Trinculo.

Ste. If thou beest Trinculo, come forth. I'll pull thee by the lesser legs: if any be Trinculo's legs, these are they. Thou art very Trinculo²² indeed! How cam'st thou to be the siege of this moon-calf?²³ Can he vent Trinculos?

Trin. I took him to be killed with a thunder-stroke. — But art thou not drowned, Stephano? I hope now, thou art not drowned. Is the storm overblown? I hid me under the dead moon-calf's gaberdine for fear of the storm. And art thou living, Stephano? O Stephano! two Neapolitans scap'd.

Ste. Pr'ythee, do not turn me about: my stomach is not constant.

Cal. These be fine things, an if they be not sprites. That's a brave god, and bears celestial liquor: I will kneel to him.

Ste. How didst thou scape? How cam'st thou hither? swear by this bottle, how thou cam'st hither. I escaped upon a butt of sack, which the sailors heaved over-board, by this bottle! which I made of the bark of a tree, with mine own hands, since I was cast a-shore.

Cal. I'll swear, upon that bottle, to be thy true subject, for the liquor is not earthly.

Ste. Here: swear then how thou escap'dst.²⁴

Trin. Swam a-shore, man, like a duck. I can swim like a duck, I'll be sworn.

Ste. Here, kiss the book. Though thou canst swim like a duck, thou art made like a goose.

Trin. O Stephano! hast any more of this?

Ste. The whole butt, man: my cellar is in a rock by the sea-side, where my wine is hid. How now, moon-calf? how does thine ague?

Cal. Hast thou not dropped from heaven?

Ste. Out o' the moon, I do assure thee: I was the man in the moon, when time was.

Cal. I have seen thee in her, and I do adore thee: My mistress show'd me thee, and thy dog, and thy bush.²⁵

Ste. Come, swear to that; kiss the book: I will furnish it anon with new contents:²⁶ swear.

Trin. By this good light, this is a very shallow monster: — I afraid of him!²⁷ — a very weak monster. — The man i' the moon! — a most poor credulous monster. — Well drawn, monster, in good sooth.²⁸

Cal. I'll show thee every fertile inch o' the island, And I will kiss thy foot. I pr'ythee, be my god.

Trin. By this light, a most perfidious and drunken monster; when his god's asleep, he'll rob his bottle.

Cal. I'll kiss thy foot: I'll swear myself thy subject.

Ste. Come on, then; down, and swear.

Trin. I shall laugh myself to death at this puppy-headed monster. A most scurvy monster: I could find in my heart to beat him, —

Ste. Come, kiss.

Trin. — but that the poor monster's in drink. An abominable monster!

Cal. I'll show thee the best springs; I'll pluck thee berries;

I'll fish for thee, and get thee wood enough.

A plague upon the tyrant that I serve!

I'll bear him no more sticks, but follow thee, Thou wondrous man.

Trin. A most ridiculous monster, to make a wonder of a poor drunkard!

neat's-leather, was zugleich an diese sprichwörtliche Wendung und an die ebenvorher berührte erinnert. 16) Boswell's Erklärung, Stephano wolle damit ironisch sagen: so will ich für ihn nehmen, was ich kann, erscheint plausibler als Malone's Deutung: so viel ich auch für ihn bekomme, ich werde nie zu viel für ihn bekommen; ich werde ihn nie zu theuer verkaufen können. 17) Indem Prospero seinen vermeintlichen Geist antreibt, den Caliban zu plagen, fängt dieser Geist an zu zittern, — ein Symptom, das die vom Teufel Besessenen charakterisirt. 18) Steevens citirt dazu ein altes Sprichwort Good liquor will make a cat speak. 19) Dieser Trunk wird Dir das Zittern vertreiben. Vgl. oben Anm. 17. 20) Amen! der Schluss des Gebets, ist hier als der Schluss des Trunkes gemeint, den Caliban genommen hat. — Den Rest der Flasche will Stephano in den andern Mund des Ungeheuers, d. h. in Trinculo's Mund giessen. 21) Anspielung auf das Sprichwort He who eats with the devil hath need of a long spoon. 22) So in Cymbeline (A. 4, Sc. 2) I am absolute, 't was very Cloten. 23) siege = Nachtstuhl, Stuhlabgang. — Dass die letztere Bedeutung hier gilt, zeigen die folgenden Worte. 24) Bei diesen Worten reicht Stephano dem Trinculo die Flasche hin, wie ein Buch, auf das Jemand einen Eid leisten soll. Ebenso schon vorher swear by this bottle etc. und nachher Here, kiss the book. — Ritson wollte dagegen getrennt lesen: Ste. [To Cal.] Here swear then. [To Trin.] How escap'dst thou? — Es scheint aber, dass Stephano hier auf Caliban's Zwischenreden noch nicht hört und erst nachher mit den Worten how now, moon-calf? an ihn sich wendet. 25) So wird der Mann, wie ihn der Volksglaube im Monde entdeckt hatte, auch in Midsummer-Night's Dream (A. 5, Sc. 1) geschildert: I, the man in the moon; this thorn-bush, my thorn-bush; and this dog, my dog. 26) Die Flasche, die er wieder mit Sekt füllen will, muss auch hier wieder das Buch vorstellen, das jetzt Caliban bei seiner Eidesleistung küssen soll. 27) Trinculo weist mit Entrüstung den Gedanken zurück, dass er jemals sich vor einem so albernen Ungeheuer habe fürchten können. 28) Trinculo macht dem Caliban sein Compliment über

Cal. I pr'ythee, let me bring thee where crabs grow;
And I with my long nails will dig thee pig-nuts;
Show thee a jay's nest, and instruct thee how
To snare the nimble marmoset: I'll bring thee
To clustering filberts, and sometimes I'll get thee
Young scamels²⁹ from the rock. Wilt thou go with me?

Ste. I pr'ythee now, lead the way, without any more talking. — Trinculo, the king and all our company else being drowned, we will inherit here. — Here; bear my bottle. — Fellow Trinculo, we'll fill him by and by again.

Cal. [Sings drunkenly.]

Farewell, master; farewell, farewell.

Trin. A howling monster, a drunken monster.

Cal. No more dams I'll make for fish;

Nor fetch in firing

At requiring,

Nor scrape trencher,³⁰ nor wash dish;

'Ban, 'Ban, Ca — Caliban

Has a new master — get a new man.³¹

Freedom, hey-day! hey-day, freedom! freedom! hey-day, freedom!

Ste. O brave monster! lead the way.

[Exeunt.]

ACT III.

SCENE I.

Before PROSPERO's cell.

Enter FERDINAND, bearing a log.

Fer. There be some sports are painful, and their labour
Delight in them sets off:¹ some kinds of baseness
Are nobly undergone; and most poor matters
Point to rich ends. This my mean task
Would be as heavy to me, as odious;² but
The mistress which I serve quickens what 's dead,
And makes my labours pleasures; O, she is
Ten times more gentle than her father 's crabbed;
And he 's compos'd of harshness. I must remove
Some thousands of these logs, and pile them up,
Upon a sore injunction:³ my sweet mistress
Weeps when she sees me work; and says, such baseness
Had never like executor. I forget:

But these sweet thoughts do even refresh my labours;
Most busiest⁴ when I do it.

Enter MIRANDA; and PROSPERO at a distance.

Mira. Alas, now, pray you,
Work not so hard: I would, the lightning had Burnt up those logs that you are enjoin'd to pile.
Pray, set it down, and rest you: when this burns,
'T will weep for having wearied you.⁵ My father
Is hard at study; pray now, rest yourself:
He 's safe for these three hours.⁶

Fer. O most dear mistress!
The sun will set, before I shall discharge
What I must strive to do.

Mira. If you 'll sit down,
I'll bear your logs the while. Pray, give me that:
I'll carry it to the pile.

Fer. No, precious creature:
I had rather crack my sinews, break my back,
Than you should such dishonour undergo,
While I sit lazy by.

Mira. It would become me
As well as it does you; and I should do it
With much more ease, for my good will is to it,
And yours it is against.⁷

Pro. Poor worm! thou art infected:
This visitation shows it.⁸

Mira. You look wearily.

Fer. No, noble mistress; 't is fresh morning with me,
When you are by at night. I do beseech you,
Chiefly that I might set it in my prayers,
What is your name?

Mira. Miranda — O my father!
I have broke your hest⁹ to say so.

Fer. Admir'd Miranda!
Indeed the top of admiration;¹⁰ worth
What 's dearest to the world! Full many a lady
I have ey'd with best regard; and many a time
The harmony of their tongues hath into bondage
Brought my too diligent ear: for several virtues
Have I lik'd several women; never any
With so full soul, but some defect in her den tüchtigen Zug, den er aus der Flasche thut, welche Stephano ihm vorhält. 29) Scamels in der Fol., ein bisher unerklärtes Wort, höchst wahrscheinlich ein Druckfehler. Theobald vermuthete shamois und sea-malls oder sea-mells = eine Art von Möve, und dachte auch an staniels, wie man damals für stannyels schrieb. — Dass ein Vogel gemeint sei, der gefangen wird, ehe er flügge ist, scheint allerdings aus dem Context hervorzugehen. 30) trencher = hölzerner Teller, wie solche ehemals im Gebrauch waren, setzte Pope für trenchering der Fol. Auch Dryden in seiner Bearbeitung hat schon trencher für trenchering. 31) get a new man = schaffe Dir einen andern Diener an, ruft Caliban dem Prospero zu, den er in seinem Rausche anwesend glaubt.

1) Es giebt Spiele, die mit Anstrengung verknüpft sind, und deren Mühe das Vergnügen daran noch mehr hervorhebt. — Die Fol. hat set off. 2) Zur Verbesserung des Verses lesen manche Hgg. mit Pope as 't is odious und setzen would be in die vorhergehende Zeile. 3) Nach einem eingeschärften Gebote, das mir lästig und schmerzlich ist. — Wie hier injunction, so bald nachher those logs that you are enjoin'd to pile. 4) So verbessert Singer das sinnlose most busie lest der Fol. — Andere Hgg. lesen mit der zweiten Folioausg. most busie least, oder auch mit Theobald most busyless. — most busiest, was durch Sinn und Metrum sich gleicherweise empfiehlt, bezieht sich auf these sweet thoughts: Diese holden Gedanken, die mir die Arbeit erleichtern, sind am geschäftigsten, während ich die Arbeit thue. — Aus der Reihe hypothetischer Emendationen, welche die Cambridge Edd. verzeichnen, erscheinen noch zwei der Erwägung und Erwähnung werth: most busiliest von Bullock, die der corrupten Lesart der Fol. am nächsten kommt, und most busiest when idlest, wie Spedding das most busie lest, when I doe it, sinnreich genug liest. — Wegen do it wollte Staunton labour für labours setzen, indess ist Sh. in dieser Anwendung des Pronomens im Singular in Bezug auf einen vorhergehenden Plural durchaus nicht genau. 5) Miranda meint die Tropfen, welche das noch innerlich feuchte Holz beim Brennen ausschwitzt. 6) Er ist für die nächsten drei Stunden wohl aufgehoben, wird uns nicht stören. 7) scil. it is against your good will. — Steevens strich it is. 8) Der Besuch, den Miranda dem Ferdinand bei seiner Arbeit abstattet, zeigt, wie sehr sie von der Liebe inficirt ist. 9) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 2, Anm. 69. 10) top of admiration = der Gipfel der

Did quarrel with the noblest grace she ow'd,
And put it to the foil: ¹¹ but you, O you!
So perfect, and so peerless, are created
Of every creature's best.

Mira. I do not know
One of my sex; no woman's face remember,
Save, from my glass, mine own; nor have I seen
More that I may call men, than thou, good friend,
And my dear father: how features ¹² are abroad,
I am skill-less of; but, by my modesty
(The jewel in my dower), I would not wish
Any companion in the world but you;
Nor can imagination form a shape,
Besides yourself, to like of. But I prattle
Something too wildly, and my father's precepts
I therein do forget. ¹³

Fer. I am, in my condition,
A prince, Miranda; I do think, a king;
(I would, not so!) ¹⁴ and would no more endure
This wooden slavery, than to suffer
The flesh-fly blow my mouth. ¹⁵ — Hear my soul speak:
The very instant that I saw you, did
My heart fly to your service; there resides,
To make me slave to it: and for your sake,
Am I this patient log-man.

Mira. Do you love me?

Fer. O heaven! O earth! bear witness to this sound, ¹⁶
And crown what I profess with kind event,
If I speak true; if hollowly, invert
What best is boded me, to mischief! I,
Beyond all limit of what else i' the world,
Do love, prize, honour you.

Mira. I am a fool,
To weep at what I am glad of.

Pro. Fair encounter
Of two most rare affections! Heavens rain grace
On that which breeds between them!

Fer. Wherefore weep you?

Mira. At mine unworthiness, that dare not offer

What I desire to give; and much less take, ¹⁷
What I shall die to want. But this is trifling;
And all the more it ¹⁸ seeks to hide itself,
The bigger bulk it shows. Hence, bashful cunning!
And prompt me, plain and holy innocence!
I am your wife, if you will marry me;
If not, I'll die your maid: to be your fellow ¹⁹
You may deny me; but I'll be your servant,
Whether you will or no.

Fer. My mistress, dearest,
And I thus humble ever. ²⁰

Mira. My husband then?

Fer. Ay, with a heart as willing
As bondage e'er of freedom: ²¹ here 's my hand.

Mira. And mine, with my heart in 't: and now farewell,
Till half an hour hence.

Fer. A thousand thousand! ²²

[Exeunt FERD. and MIRA.]

Pro. So glad of this as they I cannot be,
Who are surpris'd withal; ²³ but my rejoicing
At nothing can be more. I'll to my book;
For yet, ere supper-time, must I perform
Much business appertaining. [Exit.]

SCENE II.

Another Part of the Island.

Enter CALIBAN with a bottle; STEPHANO and TRINCULO following. ¹

Ste. Tell not me: ² — when the butt is out, we will drink water; not a drop before: therefore bear up, and board 'em. ³ — Servant-monster, drink to me.

Trin. Servant-monster? the folly of this island! They say, there 's but five upon this isle: we are three of them; if the other two be brained like us, the state totters.

Ste. Drink, servant-monster, when I bid thee: thy eyes are almost set in thy head.

Bewunderung, das Bewundernswerthe, was es giebt, bezieht sich auf den eigentlichen Sinn des Namens Miranda. 11) Niemals habe ich ein Weib mit solcher Innigkeit und Hingebung geliebt, dass nicht irgend ein Gebrechen in ihr entgegentrat dem edelsten Reiz, den sie besass, und ihn damit in meinen Augen vereitelte. 12) feature = Körperbildung überhaupt, nicht bloss = Gesichtszug. So in Spenser's Faerie Queene Which the fair feature of her limbs did hide. 13) Steevens kürzt auch hier den Vers ab und liest therein forget, mit Auslassung von I und do. 14) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 2, Anm. 108. 15) Ich würde diese Sklaverei des Holzschleppens so wenig dulden, wie ich dulden würde, dass eine Fleischfliege sich auf meinen Mund setzte, um ihn zu beschmeissen. — Für than to suffer setzte Pope aus grammatischen und metrischen Gründen than I would suffer. Indess lässt Sh. auf einen Infinitiv ohne to, wie hier would no more endure, leicht einen Infinitif mit to folgen, wie hier than to suffer. So in Measure for Measure (A. 2, Sc. 4) that either || You must lay down the treasures of your body || To this supposed, or else to let him suffer. 16) this sound ist die folgende Liebesbetheuerung Ferdinand's. — In der vorletzten Zeile dieser Rede dachte Malone an of aught else für of what else, aber er selbst citirt zur Unterstützung der alten Lesart aus K. Henry VI. Third Part (A. 3, Sc. 1) With promise of his sister, and what else, || To strengthen and support king Edward's place. 17) Vor take ist aus dem Vorhergehenden dare zu suppliren: da ich nicht darzubieten wage, was ich zu geben begehre, und noch viel weniger das zu empfangen wage, bei dessen Entbehrung ich sterben würde, d. h. Ferdinand's Liebe. 18) it steht, als ob ein Wort wie Liebe oder Neigung vorhergegangen wäre. 19) fellow = Genossin, Ehegenossin, von gleichem Range mit dem Gatten, steht im Gegensatz zu dem folgenden your servant. 20) Zu diesen Worten ist eine begleitende Pantomime hinzuzudenken, mit welcher Ferdinand der Miranda seine Huldigung darbringt oder seine Ergebenheit bezeugt. 21) Mit so willigem Herzen, wie die Knechtschaft je zur Freiheit willig war. 22) A thousand thousand! das manche Hgg. weniger gut A thousand! thousand! interpungiren, bezieht sich auf farewell. 23) withal setzt Theobald für with all der Fol., das andere Hgg. beibehalten: So froh kann ich darüber nicht sein, wie die Beiden, die davon ganz bewältigt, hingerissen sind. — withal, für with it, bezieht sich auf of this. — Prospero contrastirt seine ruhigere Stimmung mit der leidenschaftlichen der beiden zunächst Betheiligten.

1) So stellt Dyce die richtige Bühnenweisung her, in Uebereinstimmung mit der Fol. Enter Caliban, Stephano and Trinculo, und mit dem Schlusse von A. 2, Sc. 2. — Die meisten Ausgg. lassen Stephano und

Trin. Where should they be set else? he were a brave monster indeed, if they were set in his tail.⁴

Ste. My man-monster hath drowned his tongue in sack: for my part, the sea cannot drown me: I swam, ere I could recover the shore, five-and-thirty leagues, off and on, by this light.⁵ — Thou shalt be my lieutenant, monster, or my standard.

Trin. Your lieutenant, if you list; he's no standard.⁶

Ste. We'll not run, monsieur monster.

Trin. Nor go neither; but you'll lie, like dogs, and yet say nothing neither.

Ste. Moon-calf, speak once in thy life, if thou beest a good moon-calf.

Cal. How does thy honour? Let me lick thy shoe I'll not serve him, he is not valiant.

Trin. Thou liest, most ignorant monster: I am in case to justle a constable. Why, thou deboshed⁷ fish thou, was there ever man a coward, that hath drunk so much sack as I to-day? Wilt thou tell a monstrous⁸ lie, being but half a fish, and half a monster?

Cal. Lo, how he mocks me! wilt thou let him, my lord?

Trin. Lord, quoth he! — that a monster should be such a natural!⁹

Cal. Lo, lo, again! bite him to death, I pr'ythee.

Ste. Trinculo, keep a good tongue in your head: if you prove a mutineer, the next tree!¹⁰ — The poor monster's my subject, and he shall not suffer indignity.

Cal. I thank my noble lord. Wilt thou be pleas'd to hearken once again to the suit I made to thee?

Ste. Marry will I; kneel and repeat it, I will stand, and so shall Trinculo.

Enter ARIEL, invisible.

Cal. As I told thee before, I am subject to a tyrant; a sorcerer, that by his cunning hath cheated me of the island.

Ari. Thou liest.

Cal. Thou liest, thou jesting monkey,¹¹ thou; I would, my valiant master would destroy thee: I do not lie.

Ste. Trinculo, if you trouble him any more in his tale, by this hand, I will supplant some of your teeth.

Trin. Why, I said nothing.

Ste. Mum then, and no more. — [To CAL.] Proceed.

Cal. I say, by sorcery he got this isle; From me he got it: if thy greatness will, Revenge it on him — for, I know, thou dar'st; But this thing dare not.¹²

Ste. That's most certain.

Cal. Thou shalt be lord of it, and I'll serve thee.

Ste. How now shall this be compassed? Canst thou bring me to the party?

Cal. Yea, yea, my lord: I'll yield him thee asleep, Where thou may'st knock a nail into his head.

Ari. Thou liest; thou canst not.

Cal. What a pied ninny's this! Thou scurvy patch!¹³

I do beseech thy greatness, give him blows, And take his bottle from him: when that's gone, He shall drink nought but brine; for I'll not show him Where the quick freshes are.

Ste. Trinculo, run into no further danger: interrupt the monster one word further, and, by this hand, I'll turn my mercy out of doors, and make a stock-fish of thee.¹⁴

Trin. Why, what did I? I did nothing. I'll go further off.¹⁵

Ste. Didst thou not say, he lied?

Ari. Thou liest.

Ste. Do I so? take thou that. [Strikes him.] As you like this, give me the lie another time.

Trin. I did not give the lie. — Out o' your wits, and hearing too? — A pox o' your bottle! this can sack and drinking do. — A murrain on your monster, and the devil take your fingers!

Cal. Ha, ha, ha!

Ste. Now, forward with your tale. r'ythee, stand further off.

Cal. Beat him enough: after a little time, I'll beat him too.

Ste. Stand further. — Come, proceed.

Cal. Why, as I told thee, 't is a custom with him I' the afternoon to sleep: there¹⁶ thou may'st brain him, Having first seiz'd his books; or with a log Batter his skull, or paunch him with a stake, Or cut his wezand with thy knife. Remember, First to possess his books; for without them He's but a sot, as I am, nor hath not One spirit to command: they all do hate him As rootedly as I. Burn but his books; He has brave utensils (for so he calls them), Which, when he has a house, he'll deck withal: And that most deeply to consider is The beauty of his daughter; he himself Calls her a nonpareil: I never saw a woman,¹⁷ But only Sycorax my dam, and she;

Trinculo zuerst auftreten und Caliban ihnen folgen. 2) tell not me = komme mir nicht damit, versetzt Stephano auf Trinculo's Vorschlag, das Zechen einzustellen. 3) Er denkt an das Entern eines Schiffes. 4) Stephano fasst almost set = fast geschlossen, fast untergegangen, wie von dem Sonnenuntergange das Wort gebraucht wird; Trinculo nimmt to set im gewöhnlichen Sinne = setzen, anbringen. — Farmer citirt dazu eine Anekdote aus der Chronik Stowe's, wo es von einem im Jahre 1574 bei Ramsgate an's Ufer geworfenen Wallfisch heisst: a monstrous fish; but not so monstrous as some reported — for his eyes were in his head and not in his back. 5) Knight und Staunton verbinden die Bethuerung by this light mit dem folgenden Satze. 6) Caliban ist so berauscht, dass er nicht aufrecht stehen kann. — standard = Fahnenträger, und = aufrechtwachsender Obstbaum. 7) So die Fol. deboshed in älterer Orthographie für debauched, was manche Hgg. in den Text setzen. 8) monstrous lie = eine ungeheure Lüge, und = die Lüge eines Ungeheuers, wie Caliban überall als monster titulirt wird. 9) d. h. solch ein Einfaltspinsel, den Stephano für einen Lord zu halten. 10) So wirst Du am nächsten Baum aufgehängt. 11) Als jesting monkey bezeichnet Caliban den Trinculo, dem er Ariel's Worte zu-rechnet, weil Trinculo ein privilegirter Spassmacher ist: a Jester, wie er im Personenverzeichniss heisst. 12) this thing = dieses Geschöpf da, verächtlich von Trinculo. 13) pied ninny und patch geht auf die bunte, aus verschiedenen Flickern zusammengesetzte Narrentracht, in der Trinculo erscheint. 14) Ich will Dich weich klopfen, wie man Stockfische klopft. 15) So die Fol. — Manche Hgg. lesen mit der zweiten Folioausg. I'll go no further off. 16) Wie Dyce bemerkt, gebrauchen die älteren Schriftsteller there im weiteren Sinne; so in Romeo and Juliet

But she as far surpasseth Sycorax,
As great'st does least.

Ste. Is it so brave a lass?

Cal. Ay, lord; she will become thy bed, I warrant,
And bring thee forth brave brood.

Ste. Monster, I will kill this man: his daughter and I will be king and queen; (save our graces!) and Trinculo and thyself shall be viceroys. — Dost thou like the plot, Trinculo?

Trin. Excellent.

Ste. Give me thy hand: I am sorry I beat thee; but, while thou livest, keep a good tongue in thy head.

Cal. Within this half hour will he be asleep;
Wilt thou destroy him then?

Ste. Ay, on mine honour.

Ari. This will I tell my master.

Cal. Thou mak'st me merry: I am full of pleasure.
Let us be jocund: will you troll¹⁸ the catch
You taught me but while-ere?

Ste. At thy request, monster, I will do reason, any reason. Come on, Trinculo, let us sing. [Sings.

Flout 'em, and scout 'em; ¹⁹ and scout 'em, and flout 'em;

Thought is free.

Cal. That's not the tune.

[ARIEL plays the tune on a tabor and pipe.

Ste. What is this same?

Trin. This is the tune of our catch, played by the picture of Nobody.²⁰

Ste. If thou beest a man, show thyself in thy likeness:²¹ if thou beest a devil, take 't as thou list.

Trin. O, forgive me my sins!

Ste. He that dies, pays all debts: I defy thee. — Mercy upon us.

Cal. Art thou afeard?

Ste. No, monster, not I.

Cal. Be not afeard; the isle is full of noises,²²
Sounds, and sweet airs, that give delight, and hurt not.
Sometimes a thousand twangling instruments
Will hum about mine ears; and sometime voices,
That, if I then had wak'd after long sleep,
Will make me sleep again: and then, in dreaming,
The clouds, methought, would open, and show riches
Ready to drop upon me, that when I wak'd
I cry'd to dream again.

Ste. This will prove a brave kingdom to me, where I shall have my music for nothing.

Cal. When Prospero is destroyed.

Ste. That shall be by and by:²³ I remember the story.

Trin. The sound is going away: let's follow it, and after do our work.

Ste. Lead, monster; we'll follow. — I would, I could see this taborer: he lays it on.²⁴

Trin. Wilt come? I'll follow, Stephano.²⁵ [Exeunt.

SCENE III.

Another Part of the Island.

*Enter ALONSO, SEBASTIAN, ANTONIO, GONZALO, ADRIAN,
FRANCISCO, and Others.*

Gon. By 'r lakin,¹ I can go no further, Sir;
My old bones ache: here's a maze trod, indeed,
Through forth-rights and meanders!² By your patience,
I needs must rest me.

Alon. Old lord, I cannot blame thee,
Who am myself attach'd with weariness,
To the dulling of my spirits: sit down, and rest.
Even here I will put off my hope, and keep it
No longer for my flatterer: he is drown'd,
Whom thus we stray to find, and the sea mocks
Our frustrate search on land.³ Well, let him go.

Ant. [Aside to SEB.] I am right glad that he's so out of hope.

Do not, for one repulse, forego the purpose
That you resolv'd to effect.

Seb. [Aside to ANT.] The next advantage
Will we take thoroughly.⁴

Ant. [Aside to SEB.] Let it be to-night;
For, now they are oppress'd with travel, they
Will not, nor cannot, use such vigilance,
As when they are fresh.

Seb. [Aside to ANT.] I say, to-night: no more.

Solemn and strange music; and PROSPERO above, invisible. Enter several strange Shapes, bringing in a banquet: they dance about it with gentle actions of salutation; and, inviting the King, etc. to eat, they depart.⁵

Alon. What harmony is this? my good friends, hark!

Gon. Marvellous sweet music!

(A. 2, Sc. 4) Bid her devise || Some means to come to shrift this afternoon; || And there she shall at friar Laurence's cell || Be shriv'd and married. 17) Pope änderte, um den Vers zu verkürzen, I ne'er saw woman. 18) to troll = trällern. So in Ben Jonson's Every Man in his Humour: If he read this with patience, I'll trol ballads. — Littleton erklärt to troll along his words lateinisch mit volubiliter sive rotunde loqui. 19) Die Fol. hat cout, jedoch bei der Wiederholung das richtige scout. 20) Trinculo bezieht sich auf ein damals auf Hausschildern und Büchertiteln vielfach angebrachtes Caricaturbild, das so hiess. Zugleich fasst er Nobody im eigentlichen Sinne, da er den Musiker, der die Melodie zu dem Canon spielt, nicht sieht. 21) Zeige Dich in Deiner eigentlichen Gestalt. — Diese Formel kommt auch sonst bei Geisterbeschwörungen vor; so in Romeo and Juliet (A. 2, Sc. 1) I conjure thee — || That in thy likeness thou appear to us. 22) noise = musikalischer Ton, Musik überhaupt. 23) by and by = alsbald. 24) Er versteht sich darauf, er macht seine Sachen gut. — Diesen Zug entlehnte Sh. vielleicht aus Frampton's englischer Uebersetzung des Marco Polo (1579), wo es von der Wüste Lop in Asien heisst: You shall hear in the air the sound of tabors and other instruments, to put the travellers in fear etc. by evil spirits that make these sounds, and also do call divers of the travellers by their names. 25) Wilt come? sagt, nach Heath's Erklärung, Trinculo zu dem zaudernden Caliban, während Ritson diese Worte noch dem Stephano zutheilt, worauf Trinculo antwortet I'll follow, Stephano.

1) lakin für ladykin, Diminutiv von lady. 2) Gonzalo denkt an künstlich angelegte Irrgärten, mit geradwinklichten und mit geschlängelten Wegen. 3) Das Meer, das meinen Sohn verschlungen hat, spottet unser, die wir ihn vergeblich auf dem Lande suchen. 4) So die Fol. Viele Hgg. setzen thoroughly. 5) Diese Bühnenweisung ist aus der Fol., nur dass dort on the top für above steht. — Die ersten nächstfolgenden Reden Alonso's und Gonzalo's kommen noch vor dem Auftreten der Geister, die das Mahl bringen; bei deren Erscheinung Alon. Give us kind keepers, heavens! What were these?

Seb. A living drollery.⁶ Now I will believe
That there are unicorns; that in Arabia
There is one tree, the phoenix' throne; one phoenix
At this hour reigning there.⁷

Ant. I'll believe both;⁸
And what does else want credit, come to me,
And I'll be sworn 't is true: travellers ne'er did lie,
Though fools at home condemn them.⁹

Gon. If in Naples
I should report this now, would they believe me?
If I should say, I saw such islanders¹⁰
(For, certes,¹¹ these are people of the island),
Who, though they are of monstrous shape, yet, note,
Their manners are more gentle-kind,¹² than of
Our human generation you shall find Many, nay, almost any.

Pro. [Aside.] Honest lord,
Thou hast said well; for some of you there present
Are worse than devils.

Alon. I cannot too much muse,
Such shapes, such gesture, and such sound, expressing
(Although they want the use of tongue) a kind
Of excellent dumb discourse.

Pro. [Aside.] Praise in departing.¹³

Fran. They vanish'd strangely.

Seb. No matter, since
They have left their viands behind, for we have stomachs.—
Will 't please you taste of what is here?

Alon. Not I.

Gon. Faith, Sir, you need not fear. When we were boys,
Who would believe that there were mountaineers
Dew-lapp'd like bulls, whose throats had hanging at them
Wallets of flesh? or that there were such men,
Whose heads stood in their breasts?¹⁴ which now we find,
Each putter-out of five for one¹⁵ will bring us
Good warrant of.

Alon. I will stand to, and feed,
Although my last: no matter, since I feel
The best is past. — Brother, my lord the duke,
Stand to,¹⁶ and do as we.

Thunder and lightning. Enter ARIEL like a harpy, claps his wings upon the table, and, with a quaint device,¹⁷ the banquet vanishes.

Ari. You are three men of sin, whom Destiny
(That hath to instrument this lower world,
And what is in 't) the never-surfeited sea
Hath caus'd to belch up you,¹⁸ and on this island
Where man doth not inhabit; you 'mongst men
Being most unfit to live. I have made you mad;
And even with such like valour men hang and drown
Their proper selves.

[Seeing ALON., SEB., etc. draw their swords.¹⁹

You fools! I and my fellows
Are ministers of fate: the elements,
Of whom your swords are temper'd, may as well
Wound the loud winds, or with bemock'd-at stabs
Kill the still-closing waters, as diminish
One dowe that 's in my plume:²⁰ my fellow-ministers sagt dann Alonso Give us kind keepers, heavens! und bei ihrem Verschwinden What were these? 6) Ein Puppenspiel, aber von lebendigen Personen aufgeführt; ein Spiel, wie man es sonst auf einem Marionettentheater sieht. 7) Malone citirt dazu aus Lyly's Euphues and his England: As there is but one phoenix in the world, so is there but one tree in Arabia wherein she buildeth. 8) both scil. unicorns und phoenix. 9) Wenn auch Thoren, die immer zu Hause bleiben, den wunderbaren Erzählungen der Reisenden keinen Glauben beimessen wollen, sondern diese für Lügner ausgeben. 10) islands in der Fol., von der zweiten Folioausg. verbessert. 11) certes = gewiss, fürwahr, zweisylbig zu lesen. 12) gentle-kind verbindet Theobald mit Recht zu einem Compositum; manche Hgg. lesen getrennt, wie die Fol., gentle kind. 13) Praise in departing = Lobe beim Ausgang, warte das Ende ab, lobe nicht zu früh, eine sprichwörtliche Phrase. 14) Der Kropf, der sich bei den Alpenbewohnern leicht ausbildet, wird in dem Glauben der Sh.'schen Zeitgenossen als etwas Unglaubliches noch zusammengestellt mit Leuten, deren Kopf in der Brust sitzt. Von den Letzteren erzählt auch der wunderbare Reisebericht in Othello (A. 1, Sc. 3) and men whose heads do grow beneath their shoulders. — Sh. kannte sie vielleicht aus Hackluyt's Voyages (1598): On that branch which is called Caora are a nation of people whose heads appear not above their shoulders. They are reported to have their eyes in their shoulders, and their mouths in the middle of their breast. 15) d. h. jeder Reisende. — Diese Umschreibung erklärt sich aus einem Gebrauche jener Zeit, dass Jemand, der eine weitere Reise unternahm, gleichsam als eine Art von Lebensversicherung eine Summe auslieh, für die er bei seiner wohlbehaltenen Rückkehr eine grössere Summe zurückerhielt, während im anderen Falle das ausgeliehene Geld verfallen war. Für eine besonders gefährvolle Reise scheint die fünffache Erstattung der ausgeliehenen Summe die Regel gewesen zu sein. So in Ben Jonson's Every Man in his Humour: I do intend, this year of jubilee coming on, to travel; and (because I will not altogether go upon expence) I am determined to put some five thousand pound to be paid me five for one upon the return of my wife, myself, and my dog, from the Turk's court in Constantinople. — Theobald liest on five for one, aber on und of sind im Sh.'schen Sprachgebrauch Synonyme. — Malone stellt um of one for five. Jedoch scheint five for one hier als ein Begriff zusammengefasst: Jeder, der sich auf ein solches Geldgeschäft einlässt. 16) Die Fol. hat stand too, was manche Hgg. beibehalten. Indess ist stand to offenbar die Wiederholung des vorhergehenden I will stand to and feed = ich will mich daran halten und essen. 17) quaint device ist die geschickte Erfindung des Theatermaschinisten, wodurch die Speisen vom Tische verschwinden, als ob Ariel, als Harpye, sie verschlungen hätte. 18) Viele Hgg. lesen, mit Weglassung von you: hath caused to belch up. Indess ist eine solche Wiederholung des Pronomens zu Ende des Satzes, wenn das Relativpronomen zu Anfang des Satzes lange vorangegangen ist, bei Sh. nicht ungewöhnlich: Ihr seid drei Sündenmänner, welche das Schicksal, das diese niedere Welt und was darauf ist zum Werkzeug hat, von der nie übersättigten See hat wiederausspeien lassen. 19) Diese Bühnenweisung ist zur Erklärung von Ariel's Worten even with such like valour etc. von den späteren Hggn. hinzugefügt. 20) dowle = die einzelne Flaumfeder. — plume verbessert Rowe das plumb der Fol. — Wie die Idee zu dieser ganzen Erscheinung der Harpye, so insbesondere Einiges zu diesen letzten Worten mag Sh. aus Virgil entlehnt haben, der ihm in Paaer's Uebersetzung bekannt sein mochte. Es heisst

Are like invulnerable. If you could hurt,
Your swords are now too massy for your strengths,
And will not be uplifted. But, remember,
(For that 's my business to you) that you three
From Milan did supplant good Prospero;
Expos'd unto the sea (which hath requit it)
Him, and his innocent child: for which foul deed
The powers, delaying, not forgetting, have Incens'd the seas and shores, yea, all the creatures,
Against your peace. Thee of thy son, Alonso.
They have bereft; and do pronounce by me:
Lingering perdition (worse than any death
Can be at once) shall step by step attend
You, and your ways; whose wraths to guard you from (Which here, in this most desolate isle, else falls Upon your heads), is nothing, but heart's sorrow,
And a clear life ensuing.²¹

He vanishes in thunder: then, to soft music, enter the Shapes again, and dance with mocks and mows,²² and carry out the table.

Pro. [Aside.] Bravely the figure of this harpy hast thou Perform'd, my Ariel; a grace it had, devouring.²³ Of my instruction hast thou nothing bated, In what thou hadst to say: so, with good life And observation strange,²⁴ my meaner ministers Their several kinds have done. My high charms work, And these, mine enemies, are all knit up In their distractions: they now are in my power; And in these fits I leave them, while I visit Young Ferdinand (whom they suppose is drown'd), And his and my lov'd darling. [Exit PROSPERO.]

Gon. I' the name of something holy, Sir, why stand you In this strange stare?

Alon. O, it is monstrous! monstrous! Methought, the billows spoke, and told me of it; The winds did sing it to me; and the thunder, That deep and dreadful organ-pipe, pronounc'd The name of Prosper: it did bass my trespass.²⁵ Therefore my son i' the ooze is bedded; and I'll seek him deeper than e'er plummet sounded, And with him there lie mudded. [Exit.]

Seb. But one fiend at a time, I'll fight their legions o'er.

Ant. I'll be thy second. [Exeunt SEB. and ANT.]

Gon. All three of them are desperate: their great guilt, Like poison given to work a great time after, Now 'gins to bite the spirits.²⁶ — I do beseech you, That are of suppler joints, follow them swiftly, And hinder them from what this ecstasy²⁷ May now provoke them to.

Adr. Follow, I pray you. [Exeunt.]

ACT IV.

SCENE I.

Before PROSPERO's cell.

Enter PROSPERO, FERDINAND, and MIRANDA.

Pro. If I have too austere punish'd you, Your compensation makes amends; for I Have given you here a thread¹ of mine own life, Or that for which I live; whom² once again I tender to thy hand. All thy vexations Were but my trials of thy love, and thou Hast strangely³ stood the test: here, afore Heaven, I ratify this my rich gift. O Ferdinand! Do not smile at me that I boast her off, For thou shalt find she will outstrip all praise And make it halt behind her.

Fer. I do believe it, Against an oracle.

Pro. Then, as my gift,⁴ and thine own acquisition Worthily purchas'd, take my daughter: but If thou dost break her virgin-knot before All sanctimonious ceremonies may, With full and holy rite, be minister'd, No sweet aspersion⁵ shall the heavens let fall To make this contract grow, but barren hate, Sour-ey'd disdain, and discord, shall bestrew The union of your bed with weeds so loathly, That you shall hate it both: therefore, take heed, As Hymen's lamps shall light you.

Fer. As I hope For quiet days, fair issue, and long life, With such love as 't is now, — the murkiest den, The most opportune place, the strong'st suggestion⁶ Our worser Genius can, shall never melt Mine honour into lust, to take away The edge of that day's celebration,⁷ daselbst u. A.: Their swords by them they laid. And on the filthy birds they beat, || But feathers none do from them fall, nor wound for stroke doth bleed, || Nor furee of weapons hurt them can. 21) Um Euch vor dem Zorn der himmlischen Mächte zu bewahren, der sonst auf dieser öden Insel auf Eure Häupter fällt, giebt es Nichts als Herzensreue und ein reines Leben in deren Gefolge. — Da which falls von wraths abhängt, so müsste eigentlich fall stehen. — whose bezieht sich auf the powers. 22) mocks and mows ist, nach dem Sh.'schen Gebrauche der Copula and, = spöttische Grimassen. Malone änderte ohne Grund mops and moves. 23) Die Harpye sah wirklich anmuthig aus, wie sie die Speisen verschlang. 24) with good life = mit Leib und Seele, mit ganzer Hingebung. — observation strange = seltener Pflichteifer, hervorstechende Achtsamkeit. 25) Der Donner verkündete mir meinen Frevel in tiefem Basstone. 26) Das an Prospero verübte Verbrechen, das erst jetzt nach so vielen Jahren sie quält, wird mit einem langsam schleichenden Gift verglichen, das man giebt, damit es erst lange nachher wirke. 27) ecstasy = jeder ekstatische Zustand, jede Seelenstörung bis zum Wahnsinn.

1) Prospero denkt eher an das gewöhnliche thread of life = Lebensfaden, als dass thread hier mit Hawkins als fibre zu fassen wäre. Die Fol. hat third, wahrscheinlich entstellt aus thrid, der alten Schreibweise für thread, Theobald's Verbesserung. 2) who in der Fol. 3) strangely = in seltener, hervorstechender Art. 4) gift verbessert Rowe das quest der Fol. 5) sweet aspersion = Besprengung mit befruchtendem Nass. In diesem veralteten ursprünglichen Sinne kommt aspersion auch in Tayler's Rule of Conscience vor: Straight-way Jesus went up out of the water, saith the gospel: He came up, therefore he went down. Behold an immersion, not an aspersion, saith Jeremy, the Patriarch. 6) suggestion = Versuchung. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 54. — our worser Genius geht auf die beiden Genien, die jedem Menschen auf seinem Lebenswege beigegeben

When I shall think, or Phoebus' steeds are founder'd,
Or Night kept chain'd below.

Pro. Fairly spoke.
Sit then, and talk with her; she is thine own. —
What, Ariel, my industrious servant Ariel!

Enter ARIEL.

Ari. What would my potent master? here I am.

Pro. Thou and thy meaner fellows your last service
Did worthily perform, and I must use you
In such another trick. Go, bring the rabble,⁸
O'er whom I give thee power, here, to this place:
Incite them to quick motion; for I must Bestow upon the eyes of this young couple
Some vanity⁹ of mine art: it is my promise,
And they expect it from me.

Ari. Presently?

Pro. Ay, with a twink.

Ari. Before you can say, »come,« and »go,«
And breathe twice, and cry, »so so;«
Each one, tripping on his toe,
Will be here with mop and mow.
Do you love me, master? no?

Pro. Dearly, my delicate Ariel. Do not approach,
Till thou dost hear me call.

Ari. Well, I conceive. [Exit.

Pro. Look, thou be true.¹⁰ Do not give dalliance
Too much the rein: the strongest oaths are straw
To the fire i' the blood. Be more abstemious,
Or else good night your vow.

Fer. I warrant you, Sir;
The white-cold virgin snow upon my heart
Abates the ardour of my liver.

Pro. Well. —
Now come, my Ariel! bring a corollary,¹¹
Rather than want a spirit: appear, and pertly. —
No tongue, all eyes;¹² be silent. [Soft music.

Enter IRIS.

Iris. Ceres, most bounteous lady, thy rich leas
Of wheat, rye, barley, vetches, oats, and pease;
Thy turfy mountains, where live nibbling sheep,
And flat meads thatch'd with stover,¹³ them to keep;
Thy banks with pioned and twilled brims,¹⁴
Which spongy April at thy best betrimms,
To make cold nymphs chaste crowns; and thy broom-groves,¹⁵
Whose shadow the dismissed bachelor loves,
Being lass-lorn;¹⁶ thy pole-clipt vineyard;¹⁷
And thy sea-marge, steril, and rocky-hard,
Where thou thyself dost air; the queen o' the sky,
Whose watery arch and messenger am I,
Bids thee leave these, and with her sovereign grace,
Here on this grass-plot, in this very place,
To come and sport: her¹⁸ peacocks fly amain:
Approach, rich Ceres, her to entertain.

Enter CERES.

Cer. Hail, many-colour'd messenger,¹⁹ that ne'er
Dost disobey the wife of Jupiter;
Who with thy saffron wings upon my flowers
Diffusest honey-drops, refreshing showers;
And with each end of thy blue bow dost crown
My bosky acres, and my unshrub'd down,²⁰
Rich scarf to my proud earth; why hath thy queen
Summon'd me hither, to this short-grass'd²¹ green?
Iris. A contract of true love to celebrate,
And some donation freely²² to estate
On the bless'd lovers.

Cer. Tell me, heavenly bow,
If Venus, or her son, as thou dost know,
Do now attend the queen? Since they did plot
The means that dusky Dis my daughter got,
Her and her blind boy's scandal'd company
I have forsworn.

sind, ein guter und ein böser. — opportune betont Sh. auf der zweiten Sylbe. 7) Im Voraus der Hochzeitsfeier gleichsam die Spitze abbrechen, der Feier jenes Tages, der mir so lang erscheinen wird, dass ich in meiner Bräutigamsungeduld glauben werde, dass entweder Phöbus' Rosse nicht von der Stelle können, oder dass die Nacht in der Unterwelt gefesselt ist, also nicht heraufkommen kann. 8) rabble = der ganze Haufen der geringeren Geister. 9) vanity = Blendwerk, nichts Wirkliches oder Wesentliches. — Sidney Walker vermuthete rarity für vanity. 10) Siehe zu, dass Du Dein Wort hältst, sagt Prospero in Bezug auf Ferdinand's frühere Bethuerungen, da er dessen zu grosse Zärtlichkeit gegen Miranda wahrnimmt. 11) corollary = Anhang, Zugabe: bringe lieber einen Uberschuss von Geistern, als dass Du einen Geist zu wenig bringst. 12) Ferdinand und Miranda sollen ganz Auge sein und, um den Zauber nicht zu stören, zugleich ganz stumm bei dem nun von Prospero's Geistern aufgeführten Spiel, das in den meisten Ausgg. als Masque bezeichnet ist, wie solche dramatisch-musikalische Festspiele, in denen allegorische und mythologische Figuren auftraten, zu Sh.'s Zeit hiessen. 13) stover = Schilfstroh, das zur Bedachung einer Schafhürde diente. 14) Es scheinen die aufgegrabenen (pioned) und in Reihen zusammengescharrten (twilled) Einfassungen der Aecker und Wiesen gemeint zu sein. Andere verstehen, weniger auf die Ceres bezüglich, Bachufer mit Päonien und Lilien oder Tulpen bewachsen, und setzen demnach peonied für pioned, lilied oder tulip'd für twilled. Für twilled dachte Capell auch an tilled. — Diese Einfassungen der Aecker und Wiesen schmückt auf Geheiss der Ceres der feuchte April mit Blumen, aus denen spröde Nymphen sich Kränze machen, die das Emblem der Keuschheit sind. 15) broom-groves = Dickichte von Ginster. Steevens bemerkt dazu: Near Gamlingay in Cambridgeshire, it (scil. broom = Spartium scoparium) grows high enough to conceal the tallest cattle as they pass through it. — Hammer änderte ohne Grund broom groves. 16) lass-lorn = von seinem Mädchen verlassen, erklärt näher das vorhergehende dismissed = verabschiedet. 17) pole-clipt vineyard kann nur auf die an den Stöcken beschnittenen Reben des Weinstocks gehen, so dass to clip = beschneiden ist, nicht = umranken, wie Steevens erklärt: the poles are clipped or embraced by the vines, was sich mit dem Text nicht verträgt. — vineyard ist nach Steevens' Bemerkung dreisylbig. 18) here in der Fol., von Rowe verbessert. 19) So in All's well that ends well (A. 1, Sc. 3) the many-colour'd Iris. — Douce citirt zu dieser Schilderung der Iris eine Stelle aus Phaer's Virgil: Dame rainbow down therefore with saffron wings of dropping showers, || Whose face a thousand sundry hues against the sun devours, || From heaven descending came. 20) Die mit Büschen eingehetzten Aecker werden hier dem buschlosen, kahlen, höhergelegenen Lande gegenübergestellt. 21) short-grass'd setzen die späteren Folioausgg. für short gras'd der Fol.

Iris. Of her society
Be not afraid: I met her deity
Cutting the clouds towards Paphos, and her son
Dove-drawn with her.²² Here thought they to have done
Some wanton charm upon this man and maid,
Whose vows are, that no bed-rite²³ shall be paid
Till Hymen's torch be lighted; but in vain:
Mars's²⁵ hot minion is return'd again;
Her waspish-headed son has broke his arrows,
Swears he will shoot no more, but play with sparrows,
And be a boy right out.

Cer. Highest queen of state,
Great Juno comes: I know her by her gait.

*Enter JUNO.*²⁶

Jun. How does my bounteous sister? Go with me,
To bless this twain, that they may prosperous be,
And honour'd in their issue.

SONG.

Jun. Honour, riches, marriage-blessing,
Long continuance, and increasing,
Hourly joys be still upon you!
*Juno sings her blessings on you.*²⁷

Cer. Earth's increase, foison plenty,²⁸
Barns and garners never empty;
Vines with clust'ring bunches growing;
Plants with goodly burden bowing;
Spring come to you, at the farthest,
In the very end of harvest!²⁹
Scarcity and want shall shun you;
Ceres' blessing so is on you.

Fer. This is a most majestic vision, and Harmonious charmingly.³⁰ May I be bold
To think these spirits?

Pro. Spirits, which by mine art
I have from their confines call'd, to enact
My present fancies.

Fer. Let me live here ever:
So rare a wonder'd father, and a wife,³¹
Makes this place Paradise.

[JUNO and CERES whisper, and send IRIS on employment.³²

Pro. Sweet, now, silence!
Juno and Ceres whisper seriously;
There 's something else to do. Hush, and be mute,
Or else our spell is marr'd.³³

Iris. You nymphs, call'd Naiads, of the wandering³⁴ brooks,
With your sedg'd crowns, and ever-harmless looks,
Leave your crisp³⁵ channels, and on this green land
Answer your summons: Juno does command.
Come, temperate³⁶ nymphs, and help to celebrate
A contract of true love: be not too late.

Enter certain Nymphs.

You sun-burnt sicklemen, of August weary,³⁷
Come hither from the furrow, and be merry.
Make holiday: your rye-straw hats put on,
And these fresh nymphs encounter every one
In country footing.

*Enter certain Reapers, properly habited: they join with the Nymphs in a graceful dance; towards the end whereof PROSPERO starts suddenly, and speaks;*³⁸ after which, to a strange, hollow, and confused noise, they heavily vanish.

Pro. [Aside.] I had forgot that foul conspiracy
Of the beast Caliban, and his confederates,
Against my life; the minute of their plot
Is almost come. — [To the Spirits.] Well done. —
Avoid; — no more.

Fer. This is strange: your father 's in some passion
That works him strongly.

Mira. Never till this day,
Saw I him touch'd with anger so distemper'd.

Pro. You do look, my son, in a mov'd sort,
As if you were dismay'd: be cheerful, Sir.
Our revels now are ended. These our actors,
As I foretold you, were all spirits, and
Are melted into air, into thin air:³⁹
And, like the baseless fabric of this vision,
The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous palaces,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself,

22) freely = freigebig. 23) Cupido befand sich mit seiner Mutter in dem mit Tauben bespannten Wagen, der auf dem Wege nach Paphos die Wolken durchschnitt. 24) bed-right in der Fol., die überhaupt zwischen right und rite nicht unterscheidet. 25) Marses in der Fol. 26) Die Fol. verzeichnet hier das Auftreten der Juno nicht; dagegen hat sie drei Zeilen vor dem Auftreten der Ceres die Bühnenweisung Juno descends. 27) Die folgenden Verse theilte zuerst Theobald der Ceres zu, während die Fol. das ganze Lied von der Juno singen lässt, im Widerspruch mit dem They sing der Fol., wofür die Hgg. Song setzen. 28) Manche Hgg. fügen mit der zweiten Folioausg. von 1632 and vor foison ein. Vielleicht ist aber earth's zweisylbig (earthes) zu lesen und increase auf der ersten Sylbe zu betonen. 29) d. h. unmittelbar an den Herbst soll sich wieder der Frühling schliessen. Staunton citirt dazu aus Spenser's Faerie Queene: There is continual spring, and harvest there || Continual, both meeting at one time. 30) harmonious charmingly = durch zauberische Einwirkung voll Musik, in zauberhafter Weise wohlklingend. 31) wife setzte schon Rowe für wise der Fol., deren langes s leicht mit f verwechselt wird. — so rare bezieht sich auf a wife, wie auf a wonder'd father = ein wunderthätiger Vater, und ebenso geht der Singular makes auf Beides. — Staunton, der einen von Sh. beabsichtigten Reim von wise und Paradise vermuthet und zugleich die Nothwendigkeit fühlt, dass Miranda hier nicht übergangen werden darf, liest So rare a wonder and a father wise. 32) Die Bühnenweisung lautet so in der Fol. 33) Vgl. oben Anm. 12. 34) Für windring der Fol. liest Rowe winding, Steevens wandering, und die Hgg. adoptiren entweder diese oder jene Lesart. 35) crisp = gekräuselt, ist entweder als synonym mit dem vorhergehenden wandering (winding) aufzufassen, oder bezeichnet die vom Winde gekräuselte Oberfläche des Wassers. Die erstere Auffassung erscheint als die natürlichere. 36) temperate = in gleichmässiger Stimmung, leidenschaftlos. In ähnlichem Sinne kam vorher cold nymphs vor, entsprechend dem Wasserelement, in dem sie leben. 37) Es scheint natürlicher, of August mit weary, als, wie Staunton interpungirt, mit sicklemen zu verbinden: die Ihr müde seid von der Hitze und der Arbeit des Augustmonats. — Die Fol. hat weder nach sicklemen, noch nach August ein Comma. 38) speaks bezieht sich auf die folgenden Worte Prospero's, so dass also das langsam zögernde Verschwinden der

Yea, all which it inherit,⁴⁰ shall dissolve,
And, like this insubstantial pageant faded,⁴¹
Leave not a rack⁴² behind. We are such stuff
As dreams are made on,⁴³ and our little life
Is rounded with a sleep. — Sir, I am vex'd:
Bear with my weakness; my old brain is troubled:
Be not disturb'd with my infirmity.
If you be pleas'd, retire into my cell,
And there repose: a turn or two I'll walk,
To still my beating mind.⁴⁴

Fer., Mira. We wish your peace.⁴⁵

Pro. Come with a thought! — I thank thee. — Ariel, come!

Enter ARIEL.

Ari. Thy thoughts I cleave to. What's thy pleasure?

Pro. Spirit,

We must prepare to meet with⁴⁶ Caliban.

Ari. Ay, my commander: when I presented Ceres,⁴⁷
I thought to have told thee of it; but I fear'd,
Lest I might anger thee.

Pro. Say again, where didst thou leave these varlets?

Ari. I told you, Sir, they were red-hot with drinking:
So full of valour, that they smote the air
For breathing in their faces; beat the ground
For kissing of their feet, yet always bending
Towards their project. Then I beat my tabor,
At which, like unback'd colts, they prick'd their ears,
Advanc'd their eyelids, lifted up their noses,
As⁴⁸ they smelt music: so I charm'd their ears,
That, calf-like, they my lowing follow'd,⁴⁹ through Tooth'd briers, sharp furzes, pricking goss, and thorns,
Which enter'd their frail shins:⁵⁰ at last I left them
I' the filthy-mantled⁵¹ pool beyond your cell,
There dancing up to the chins, that the foul lake
O'erstunk their feet.

Pro. This was well done, my bird.
Thy shape invisible retain thou still:
The trumpery in my house, go, bring it hither,
For stale⁵² to catch these thieves.

Ari. I go, I go. [Exit.

Pro. A devil, a born devil, on whose nature
Nurture⁵³ can never stick; on whom my pains,
Humanely taken, all, all lost, quite lost;
And as with age his body uglier grows,
So his mind cankers. I will plague them all,
Even to roaring.

*Re-enter ARIEL, laden with glistening apparel, etc.*⁵⁴

Come, hang them on this line.⁵⁵

PROSPERO and ARIEL remain invisible. Enter CALIBAN, STEPHANO, and TRINCULO, all wet.

Cal. Pray you, tread softly, that the blind mole may not Hear a foot fall; we now are near his cell.

Ste. Monster, your fairy, which, you say, is a harmless fairy, has done little better than played the Jack⁵⁶ with us.

Trin. Monster, I do smell all horse-piss, at which my nose is in great indignation.

Ste. So is mine. Do you hear, monster? If I should take a displeasure against you, look you, —

Trin. Thou wert but a lost monster.

Cal. Good my lord, give me thy favour still.
Be patient, for the prize I'll bring thee to Shall hoodwink this mischance: therefore, speak softly;
All's hush'd as midnight yet.

Trin. Ay, but to lose our bottles in the pool, —

Ste. There is not only disgrace and dishonour in that, monster, but an infinite loss.

Trin. That's more to me than my wetting: yet this is your harmless fairy, monster.

Ste. I will fetch off my bottle, though I be o'er ears for my labour.⁵⁷

Cal. Pr'ythee, my king, be quiet. Seest thou here,

Geister (they heavily vanish) erst nach den Worten Avoid; — no more zu denken ist. — Die Bühnenweisung steht wörtlich so in der Fol. 39) Zu der folgenden Betrachtung Prospero's citirt Steevens einen Passus aus Lord Sterling's Darius, (1603), welchen Sh. hier im Sinne gehabt haben mag. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 4. 40) to inherit = in Besitz haben: Alle, welche diesen grossen Erdball bewohnen. 41) Indem es verschwunden ist, wie dieses unwesentliche Schaugepränge, das die Geister uns vorgeführt. 42) rack, eigentlich = der Zug der Wolken am Himmel, wie sie vom Winde fortgetrieben und zerstreut werden, scheint Sh. hier = Wolkendunst zu gebrauchen. — Malone vermuthete wrack (wreck), das in der Orthographie der Sh.'schen Zeit zwar mit rack oft verwechselt wird, das aber hier zu den vorhergehenden Worten into thin air, dissolve, faded wenig passen will. 43) on scil. of, was manche Hgg. dafür in den Text setzen. — rounded = eingefasst, von allen Seiten umgeben. 44) So stand A. 1, Sc. 2 't is beating in my mind. 45) Rowe las mit der vierten Folioausg. you peace für your peace der Fol. — Auf diesen Wunsch der Beiden erwiedert Prospero I thank thee, indem thee sich auf Jeden von Beiden bezieht. — Theobald änderte I thank you. — Die Worte Come with a thought! = Komme so schnell wie ein Gedanke! sind durch das parenthetische I thank thee getrennt von Ariel, come! wozu sie eigentlich gehören. — Die Cambridge Edd. interpungiren Come with a thought. I thank thee, Ariel: come. 46) to meet with = Jemandem entgegentreten. 47) Ariel hat in der vorhergehenden Maske die bedeutendste Rolle, die der Ceres, gespielt. 48) Sie erhoben ihre Nasen, als ob sie die Musik nicht nur hören, sondern auch riechen wollten. 49) lowing bezieht sich mehr auf die Vergleichung calf-like, als auf die Töne, welche Ariel auf seiner Trommel hervorbringt: sie folgten meiner Musik, wie Kälber dem Gebrüll der Kuh. 50) frail shins sind die unbedeckten Schienbeine, die den eindringenden Dornen schutzlos preisgegeben waren. 51) filthy-mantled lesen auch die Cambridge Edd. als Compositum das filthy mantled der Fol. 52) Als Köder, um damit diese Diebe zu fangen. — Mit trumpery sind die glänzenden Kleidungsstücke gemeint, welche Ariel nachher auf die Bühne trägt. 53) nurture = Erziehung: ein geborener Teufel, an dessen Natur das ihm Anerzogene niemals haftet, niemals sich dauernd bewährt; an dem alle Mühen, die ich mir menschenfreundlich mit ihm machte, ganz verloren sind. — Für all, all lost vermuthete Malone are all lost. Indess fehlt are bei Sh., als ob es sich aus dem Vorigen ergänzen liesse. 54) So die Fol., die auch die folgende Bühnenweisung enthält. 55) Die Fol. stellt um hang on them this line, was Rowe verbesserte. — line ist eine Wäscheleine, meist aus Pferdehaaren gedreht, an der Ariel diese Kleidungsstücke aufhängen soll. 56) Jack für Jack o'lantern = Irrwisch. — Der Elfe, von dem Du sagtest, dass er ein harmloser Elfe sei (vgl. A. 3, Sc. 2), hat uns gegenüber die Rolle eines Irrlichtes gespielt, hat uns in

This is the mouth o' the cell: no noise, and enter:
Do that good mischief, which may make this island
Thine own for ever, and I, thy Caliban,
For aye thy foot-licker.

Ste. Give me thy hand. I do begin to have bloody thoughts.

Trin. O king Stephano! O peer! O worthy Stephano!⁵⁸ look, what a wardrobe here is for thee!

Cal. Let it alone, thou fool: it is but trash.

Trin. O, ho, monster! we know what belongs to a frippery: — O king Stephano!

Ste. Put off that gown, Trinculo: by this hand, I'll have that gown.

Trin. Thy grace shall have it.

Cal. The dropsy drown this fool! what do you mean, To dote thus on such luggage? Let 's alone,⁵⁹

And do the murder first: if he awake,
From toe to crown he'll fill our skins with pinches;
Make us strange stuff.⁶⁰

Ste. Be you quiet, monster.⁶¹ — Mistress line, is not this my jerkin? Now is the jerkin under the line: now, jerkin, you are like to lose your hair, and prove a bald jerkin.

Trin. Do, do: we steal by line and level, an 't like your grace.

Ste. I thank thee for that jest; here's a garment for 't: wit shall not go unrewarded, while I am king of this country. »Steal by line and level,« is an excellent pass of pate;⁶² there's another garment for 't.

Trin. Monster, come, put some lime⁶³ upon your fingers, and away with the rest.

Cal. I will have none on 't: we shall lose our time, And all be turn'd to barnacles,⁶⁴ or to apes With foreheads villanous low.

Ste. Monster, lay-to your fingers: help to bear this away, where my hogshead of wine is, or I'll turn you out of my kingdom. Go to; carry this.

Trin. And this.

Ste. Ay, and this.

A noise of hunters heard. Enter divers Spirits, in shape of hounds, and hunt them about: PROSPERO and ARIEL setting them on.

Pro. Hey, Mountain, hey!

Ari. Silver, there it goes, Silver!⁶⁵

Pro. Fury, Fury! there, Tyrant, there! hark, hark!

[CAL., STE., and TRIN. are driven out.

Go, charge my goblins that they grind their joints
With dry convulsions; shorten up their sinews
With aged cramps,⁶⁶ and more pinch-spotted make them,
Than pard or cat o' mountain.

Ari. Hark! they roar.

Pro. Let them be hunted soundly. At this hour
Lie at my mercy all mine enemies:
Shortly shall all my labours end, and thou
Shalt have the air at freedom: for a little
Follow, and do me service. [Exeunt.

ACT V.

SCENE I.

Before the cell of PROSPERO.

Enter PROSPERO in his magic robes; and ARIEL.

Pro. Now does my project gather to a head:
My charms crack not, my spirits obey, and time
Goes upright with his carriage.¹ How 's the day?

Ari. On the sixth hour; at which time, my lord,
You said our work should cease.

Pro. I did say so,
When first I rais'd the tempest. Say, my spirit,
How fares the king and 's² followers?

Ari. Confin'd together
In the same fashion as you gave in charge;
Just as you left them: all prisoners, Sir,
In the line-grove³ which weather-fends your cell;
They cannot budge till your release.⁴ The king,
His brother, and yours, abide all three distracted,
And the remainder mourning over them,
Brimful of sorrow and dismay; but chiefly
Him that you term'd, Sir, the good old lord, Gonzalo:
His tears run down his beard, like winter's drops
From eaves of reeds. Your charm so strongly works them,
That if you now beheld them, your affections
Would become tender.

Moräste geführt. 57) Wenn ich auch bis über die Ohren in den Sumpf gerathe. 58) In dieser Anrede liegt eine scherzhafte Anspielung auf eine alte Ballade, deren betreffende Verse Sh. in Othello (A. 2, Sc. 3) citirt: King Stephen was a worthy peer, || His breeches cost him but a crown etc. — Für Jemanden, mit dessen Garderobe es so schlecht bestellt war, mussten die an der Leine hängenden glänzenden Kleidungsstücke ein erwünschter Fund sein, gleichsam ein ganzer Trödeladen (frippery), wie Trinculo gleich nachher sagt. 59) let 's alone = lass uns gewähren, halte uns nicht auf. Theobald liest let 's along und Hammer let it alone. 60) Er wird uns zu seltsamen Geschöpfen machen, wird uns seltsam umgestalten. So vorher in dieser Scene we are such stuff as dreams are made on. 61) In dem Folgenden redet Stephano, indem er von der Leine ein Kleidungsstück herunterzieht, dasselbe als ein Mädchen an, daher under the line = unter der Linie, unter'm Aequator, zugleich mit einem obscönen Nebensinn = unter einem Weibergürtel. Damit hängt zusammen das folgende Wortspiel lose your hair = das Haar an der Lustseuche oder im heissen Klima verlieren, Haare lassen müssen, zugleich mit der Anspielung auf das Pferdehaar, aus dem die Leine gemacht ist. — Endlich setzt Trinculo den Witz fort mit by line and level = methodisch, systematisch. 62) pass of pate = witziger Einfall. 63) lime = Vogelleim, an dem die übrigen Kleider dann hängen bleiben und sich leicht von der Leine abziehen lassen. 64) barnacle = Baumgans, welche nach dem Volksglauben aus Entenmuscheln, die in's Meer fielen, entstand, oder, laut dem Index to Durburtas' Sylvester: a kind of fowls that grow of rotten trees and broken ship. 65) Silver ist auch der Name eines Jagdhundes in Taming of the Shrew (Induction Sc. 1). 66) aged cramps = Krämpfe, wie sie sonst eine Folge des Alters sind. So aged wrinkles in Titus Andronicus (A. 3, Sc. 1). — Aus dem folgenden pinch-spotted ist für die Vergleichung than pard, or cat o' mountain eigentlich nur spotted zu abstrahiren.

1) Die Zeit geht aufrecht mit ihrer Last, unterliegt nicht mit dem, was sie zu tragen hat. Die Zeit fördert meine Pläne. 2) and 's für and his steht schon in der Fol. — Steevens liest the king and his und streicht followers als verswidrig. 3) line-grove der Fol. verändern manche Hgg. mit Rowe nach Dryden's Vorgange stillschweigend in lime-grove. Indess ist line-tree der ältere Name für lime-tree. 4) your release = die von

Pro. Dost thou think so, spirit?

Ari. Mine would, Sir, were I human.

Pro. And mine shall.
Hast thou, which art but air, a touch,⁵ a feeling
Of their afflictions, and shall not myself,
One of their kind, that relish all as sharply
Passion as they,⁶ be kindlier mov'd than thou art?
Though with their high wrongs I am struck to the quick,
Yet, with my nobler reason, 'gainst my fury
Do I take part. The rarer action is
In virtue than in vengeance:⁷ they being penitent,
The sole drift of my purpose doth extend
Not a frown further.⁸ Go, release them, Ariel.
My charms I'll break, their senses I'll restore,
And they shall be themselves.

Ari. I'll fetch them, Sir. [Exit.]

Pro. Ye elves of hills, brooks, standing lakes, and groves;⁹
And ye, that on the sands with printless foot
Do chase the ebbing Neptune, and do fly him,
When he comes back; you demi-puppets, that
By moonshine do the green-sour ringlets¹⁰ make,
Whereof the ewe not bites; and you, whose pastime
Is to make midnight mushrooms; that rejoice
To hear the solemn curfew; by whose aid
(Weak masters though ye be)¹¹ I have bedimm'd
The noontide sun, call'd forth the mutinous winds,
And 'twixt the green sea and the azur'd vault
Set roaring war: to the dread rattling thunder
Have I given fire, and rifted Jove's stout oak
With his own bolt:¹² the strong-bas'd promontory
Have I made shake; and by the spurs pluck'd up
The pine and cedar: graves, at my command,
Have wak'd their sleepers, op'd, and let them forth
By my so potent art. But this rough magic
I here abjure; and, when I have requir'd
Some heavenly music (which even now I do),

To work mine end upon their senses, that
This airy charm is for, I'll break my staff,
Bury it certain fathoms in the earth,
And, deeper than did ever plummet sound,
I'll drown my book. [Solemn music.]

Re-enter ARIEL: after him, ALONSO, with a frantic gesture, attended by GONZALO; SEBASTIAN and ANTONIO in like manner, attended by ADRIAN and FRANCISCO: they all enter the circle which PROSPERO had made, and there stand charmed; which PROSPERO observing, speaks.

A solemn air, and the best comforter
To an unsettled fancy, cure thy brains,
Now useless, boil'd¹³ within thy skull! There stand,
For you are spell-stopp'd. —
Holy Gonzalo, honourable man,
Mine eyes, even sociable to the show of thine,
Fall fellowly drops.¹⁴ — The charm dissolves apace;
And as the morning steals upon the night,
Melting the darkness, so their rising senses
Begin to chase the ignorant¹⁵ fumes that mantle
Their clearer reason. — O good Gonzalo!
My true preserver, and a loyal sir
To him thou follow'st,¹⁶ I will pay thy graces
Home, both in word and deed. — Most cruelly
Didst thou, Alonso, use me and my daughter:
Thy brother was a furtherer in the act; —
Thou'rt pinch'd for't now, Sebastian. — Flesh and blood,¹⁷
You brother mine, that entertain'd ambition,
Expell'd remorse and nature; who, with Sebastian (Whose inward pinches therefore are most strong),
Would here have kill'd your king; I do forgive thee,
Unnatural though thou art. — Their understanding
Begins to swell, and the approaching tide
Will shortly fill the reasonable shores,¹⁸

Esch verfügte Loslassung. — So ist in einer folgenden Rede Prospero's their high wrongs = die von ihnen zugefügte grosse Unbill. — Rowe las mit den späteren Folioausgg. till you release. — Fünf Zeilen weiter lesen Rowe und Dyce like winter-drops mit der vierten Folioausg. 5) touch = Regung, Rührung, wird näher erklärt durch a feeling. 6) Dyce fasst wie die späteren Folioausgg. und Rowe passion substantivisch als Object zu relish, während die meisten anderen Hgg. mit den beiden ersten Folioausgg. ein Comma hinter sharply setzen und also passion als Verbum mit shall not myself verbinden. Erstere Interpunction und Auffassung entspricht besser dem Zusammenhange: soll ich nicht selbst, Einer ihrer Art, der ich die Affecte ebenso scharf empfinde, den natürlichen Regungen zugänglicher sein, als Du es bist? — kindlier bezieht sich auf das stamm- und sinnverwandte vorhergehende kind. — Pope liest passion'd für passion. 7) Ein erleseneres, höheres Thun besteht in der Tugendübung, als in der Rache. 8) So habe ich nicht einmal eine finstere, drohende Miene für sie noch übrig. 9) Für diese Geisterbeschwörung entlehnte Sh. Manches aus einer Geisterbeschwörung der Medea in Golding's Uebersetzung des Ovid. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 4. 10) green-sour ringlets sind die Kreise im Rasen, welche sich durch üppigeren Graswuchs auszeichnen und als Spuren der Rundtänze der Feen gelten. Das Epitheton green-sour erhält seine Erklärung durch whereof the ewe not bites. — Für green-sour vermuthete Douce greensward. 11) Diese Geister sind, sich selber überlassen, als Herren ihrer selbst schwach, und nur gewaltig in Prospero's Dienst, der sich ihrer Hülfe zu bedienen weiss. 12) Jove's own bolt = Jupiter's Donnerkeil. 13) boil'd, wofür die Fol. boil liest, ist Apposition zu brains. So in Winter's Tale (A. 3, Sc. 3) these boiled-brains. — boil'd ist eine Emendation Pope's. 14) Meine Augen, die sich der Demonstration Deiner Augen ganz zugesellen, die sich ebenso zeigen, wie die Deinigen, lassen gleichgesinnte Tropfen fallen. — holy = fromm, edel. 15) ignorant = unwissend machend, Unwissenheit oder Dumpfheit bewirkend. So in Webster's Appius and Virginia: So far benighted in an ignorant mist. 16) loyal ist mit to him etc. zu verbinden: Du bist ein Herr treuergeben Demjenigen, dessen Diener Du bist. 17) Dyce adoptirt Theobald's Interpunction, welche flesh and blood mit dem Vorhergehenden verbindet: Du wirst jetzt in Fleisch und Blut, ganz und gar, dafür gequält. — Indess scheint flesh and blood, nach der gewöhnlichen Interpunction, besser mit dem Folgenden verbunden: Du mein eigener Bruder, mein Fleisch und Blut, der Du den Ehrgeiz in Dir aufnimmst und dafür zärtliches und natürliches Gefühl (remorse and nature) aus Dir verbanntest. — entertain'd verbessert die zweite Fol. das entertain der Fol. Vgl. Anm. 13 oben. — who verbesserte Rowe das whom der Fol. 18) the reasonable shores = die der Vernunft angehörigen Ufer. — Die in den Köpfen der Verzauberten allmählich zurückkehrende Vernunft wird mit einer Meerfluth verglichen, welche ansteigt und die in der Ebbe schmutzig daliegenden Ufer wieder bedeckt und ausfüllt.

That now lie full and muddy. Not one of them,
That yet looks on me, or would know me. — Ariel,
Fetch me the hat and rapier in my cell; [Exit ARIEL.
I will discase me, and myself present,
As I was sometime Milan.¹⁹ — Quickly, spirit;
Thou shalt ere long be free.

ARIEL re-enters, singing, and helps to attire PROSPERO.

Ari. *Where the bee sucks, there suck I:
In a cowslip's bell I lie;
There I couch when owls do cry.
On the bat's back I do fly
After summer merrily.
Merrily, merrily, shall I live now,
Under the blossom that hangs on the bough.*²⁰

Pro. Why, that's my dainty Ariel! I shall miss thee;
But yet thou shalt have freedom: — so, so, so.²¹ —
To the king's ship, invisible as thou art:
There shalt thou find the mariners asleep
Under the hatches; the master, and the boatswain,
Being awake, enforce them to this place,
And presently, I pr'ythee.

Ari. I drink the air²² before me, and return
Or e'er your pulse twice beat. [Exit ARIEL.

Gon. All torment, trouble, wonder, and amazement
Inhabits here: some heavenly power guide us
Out of this fearful country!

Pro. Behold, sir king,
The wronged duke of Milan, Prospero.
For more assurance that a living prince
Does now speak to thee, I embrace thy body;
And to thee, and thy company, I bid
A hearty welcome.

Alon. Whe'r²³ thou beest he, or no,
Or some enchanted trifle²⁴ to abuse me,
As late I have been, I not know: thy pulse
Beats as of flesh and blood; and, since I saw thee,
The affliction of my mind amends, with which,²⁵
I fear, a madness held me. This must crave
(An if this be at all)²⁶ a most strange story.
Thy dukedom I resign; and do entreat
Thou pardon me my wrongs.²⁷ — But how should Prospero
Be living, and be here?

Pro. First, noble friend,
Let me embrace thine age, whose²⁸ honour cannot
Be measur'd, or confin'd.

Gon. Whether this be,
Or be not, I'll not swear.

Pro. You do yet taste
Some subtleties o' the isle, that will not let you Believe things certain.²⁹ — Welcome, my friends all. — [Aside to SEB. and ANT.] But you, my brace of lords, were I so minded,

I here could pluck his highness' frown upon you,
And justify you traitors: at this time
I will tell no tales.

Seb. [Aside.] The devil speaks in him.

Pro. No. —

For you, most wicked Sir, whom to call brother
Would even infect my mouth, I do forgive
Thy rankest fault; all of them; and require
My dukedom of thee, which perforce, I know,
Thou must restore.

Alon. If thou beest Prospero,
Give us particulars of thy preservation:
How thou hast met us here, who three hours since
Were wrack'd upon this shore; where I have lost (How sharp the point of this remembrance is!)
My dear son Ferdinand.

Pro. I am woe for 't,³⁰ Sir.

Alon. Irreparable is the loss, and patience
Says it is past her cure.

Pro. I rather think,
You have not sought her help; of whose soft grace,
For the like loss I have her sovereign aid,
And rest myself content.

Alon. You the like loss?

Pro. As great to me, as late;³¹ and, supportable³²
To make the dear loss, have I means much weaker
Than you may call to comfort you, for I
Have lost my daughter.

Alon. A daughter?
O heavens! that they were living both in Naples,
The king and queen there! that they were, I wish
Myself were mudded in that oozy bed
Where my son lies. When did you lose your daughter?

Pro. In this last tempest. I perceive, these lords
At this encounter do so much admire,
That they devour their reason, and scarce think
Their eyes do offices of truth, their words
Are natural breath:³³ but, howsoe'er you have Been jostled from your senses, know for certain,

— muddy ist doppelsinnig = schmutzig, und = dumpf von Sinnen, stumpfsinnig, im Gegensatz zu reasonable.
19) Ich will mich so darstellen, wie ich einst Herzog von Mailand war. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 2, Anm. 25. — Demgemäss lässt er sich von Ariel den Zaubermantel ausziehen und sein altes herzogliches Gewand, nebst Hut und Degen, anlegen. 20) So interpungirt Dyce diesen Gesang Ariel's. Die gewöhnlichen Ausgg. interpungiren: Where the bee sucks, there suck I; || In a cowslip's bell I lie: || There I couch. When owls do cry, || On the bat's back I do fly, || After summer, merrily: || Merrily etc. — Ariel fliegt auf dem Rücken einer Fledermaus hinter dem forteilenden Sommer her. — Dyce's Interpunction findet sich schon in Dryden's Bearbeitung, wo für On the bat's back I do fly aber On the swallow's wings I fly gesetzt ist. 21) so, so, so bezieht sich auf die Hülfe, welche Ariel dem Prospero beim jetzt beendeten Umkleiden leistet. 22) to drink the air, als Bezeichnung der Schnelligkeit, vergleicht Johnson passend mit to devour the way in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 1, Sc. 1). 23) whe'r, abgekürzt aus whether, unterscheidet die Orthographie der Fol. nicht von where. 24) trifle = Eitelkeit, Nichtigkeit. So in Othello (A. 3, Sc. 3) trifles, light as air, || Are, to the jealous, confirmations strong || As proofs of holy writ. — Vgl. auch A. 4, Sc. 1, Anm. 9. Dort steht vanity in demselben Sinne, wie hier trifle. 25) with which = vereint mit welchem, bezieht sich auf the affliction of my mind: den Alonso hielt zugleich eine Schwermuth und ein Wahnsinn, wie er fürchtet, gefesselt. 26) Wenn dies überhaupt wirklich ist. So bald nachher Whether this be, or be not, I'll not swear. 27) my wrongs = das Unrecht, das ich Dir angethan. Vgl. oben Anm. 4. 28) whose bezieht sich auf thine: Du, dessen Ehrenhaftigkeit. 29) Die Zauberkünste der Insel, die Ihr erprobtet, machen Euch misstrauisch auch gegen wirkliche und zuverlässige Dinge. 30) Es ist mir weh deshalb. 31) Mein Verlust ist ebenso gross für mich, ebenso neu, wie der Eurige. 32) supportable betont Sh. auf der ersten Sylbe.

That I am Prospero, and that very duke
Which was thrust forth of Milan; who most strangely
Upon this shore, where you were wrack'd, was landed,
To be the lord on 't. No more yet of this;
For 't is a chronicle of day by day,
Not a relation for a breakfast, nor Befitting this first meeting. Welcome, Sir;
This cell 's my court: here have I few attendants,
And subjects none abroad: pray you, look in.
My dukedom since you have given me again,
I will requite you with as good a thing;
At least, bring forth a wonder, to content ye
As much as me my dukedom.

*The entrance of the cell opens, and discovers FERDINAND and MIRANDA playing at chess.*³⁴

Mira. Sweet lord, you play me false.

Fer. No, my dearest love,
I would not for the world.³⁵

Mira. Yes, for a score of kingdoms you should wrangle,
And I would call it fair play.

Alon. If this prove
A vision of the island, one dear son
Shall I twice lose.

Seb. A most high miracle!

Fer. Though the seas threaten, they are merciful:
I have curs'd them without cause. [Ferd. kneels to ALON.]³⁶

Alon. Now, all the blessings
Of a glad father compass thee about!
Arise, and say how thou cam'st here.

Mira. O wonder!
How many goodly creatures are there here!
How beauteous mankind is! O brave new world,
That has such people in 't!

Pro. 'T is new to thee.³⁷

Alon. What is this maid, with whom thou wast at play?
Your eld'st acquaintance cannot be three hours:
Is she the goddess that hath sever'd us,
And brought us thus together?

Fer. Sir, she is mortal;
But, by immortal Providence, she 's mine:
I chose her, when I could not ask my father
For his advice, nor thought I had one. She
Is daughter to this famous duke of Milan,
Of whom so often I have heard renown,
But never saw before; of whom I have

Receiv'd a second life; and second father
This lady makes him to me.

Alon. I am hers.³⁸
But O! how oddly will it sound, that I
Must ask my child forgiveness.

Pro. There, Sir, stop:
Let us not burden our remembrances³⁹ with
A heaviness that 's gone.

Gon. I have inly wept,
Or should have spoke ere this. Look down, you gods,
And on this couple drop a blessed crown,
For it is you that have chalk'd forth the way,
Which brought us hither!

Alon. I say, Amen, Gonzalo.

Gon. Was Milan thrust from Milan,⁴⁰ that his issue
Should become kings of Naples? O! rejoice
Beyond a common joy, and set it down
With gold on lasting pillars. In one voyage
Did Claribel her husband find at Tunis;
And Ferdinand, her brother, found a wife,
Where he himself was lost; Prospero his dukedom,
In a poor isle; and all of us, ourselves,
When no man was his own.⁴¹

Alon. [To FERD. and MIR.] Give me your hands:
Let grief and sorrow still embrace his heart
That doth not wish you joy!⁴²

Gon. Be it so: Amen.

Re-enter ARIEL, with the Master and Boatswain: amazedly following.

O look, Sir! look, Sir! here is more of us.⁴³
I prophesied, if a gallows were on land,
This fellow could not drown. — Now, blasphemy,⁴⁴
That swear'st grace o'erboard, not an oath on shore?
Hast thou no mouth by land? What is the news?

Boats. The best news is, that we have safely found
Our king, and company: the next, our ship,⁴⁵
Which but three glasses since we gave out split,
Is tight, and yare, and bravely rigg'd, as when
We first put out to sea.

Ari. [Aside to PRO.] Sir, all this service
Have I done since I went.

Pro. [Aside to ARI.] My tricky⁴⁶ spirit!

Alon. These are not natural events; they strengthen
From strange to stranger. — Say, how came you hither?

Boats. If I did think, Sir, I were well awake,

— Steevens setzt portable dafür. 33) Diese Herren sind von diesem Zusammentreffen in solche Verwunderung versetzt, dass sie von ihrer Denkkraft ganz absehen und kaum glauben, dass ihre Augen ihnen wirkliche, zuverlässige Dienste leisten und dass ihre Worte aus wirklichem, natürlichem Athem bestehen. Sie trauen wie ihren eigenen Augen, so ihren eigenen Worten nicht. 34) Die Bühnenweisung der Fol. lautet, der Einrichtung des Sh.'schen Theaters gemäss: Here Prospero discovers Ferdinand and Miranda playing at chess. 35) to play false sagt Miranda in Bezug auf das Schachspiel; Ferdinand versteht es = untreu gegen die Geliebte sein, und erklärt, nicht für die Welt würde er das thun, worauf Miranda scherzhaft erwiedert, indem sie for the world wörtlich nimmt: ja, um zwanzig Königreiche möchte er Streit anfangen, und sie würde das ein ehrliches Spiel nennen. — fair play entspricht dem play me false. 36) Diese Bühnenweisung ist von den späteren Hgg. erst eingefügt. 37) Die Welt erscheint wenigstens der Miranda als neu, als eben geschaffen. 38) Alonso ist durch Ferdinand's Verlobung der Vater der Miranda. 39) Pope änderte remembrance. Indess ist remembrances, von der Erinnerung Zweier gebraucht, in Sh.'s Redeweise. — Malone rückte dafür with in die folgende Zeile. — Vgl. oben Sidney Walker's Bemerkung zu A. 1, Sc. 2, Anm. 44. 40) Milan zuerst = der Herzog von Mailand, dann = das Herzogthum, oder die Stadt, Mailand. 41) Und wir Alle fanden uns selbst, als Keiner von uns Herr seiner selbst war, als wir unserer Sinne nicht mächtig waren. 42) Das Herz Desjenigen, der Euch nicht Glück wünscht. 43) Hier kommt noch mehr, was zu uns gehört. — Für here is der Fol. setzen die meisten Hgg. here are. 44) blasphemy = Gotteslästerung, redet Gonzalo den Bootsmann an, der am Bord des Schiffes so arg fluchte, dass alle Frömmigkeit davor entflieht. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1. — So redet Prospero bald nachher den Ariel my diligence an. 45) Die Nachricht, die der besten am nächsten kommt, ist die, dass unser Schiff, das wir eben vor drei Stunden-

I'd strive to tell you. We were dead of sleep,⁴⁷
 And (how, we know not) all clapp'd under hatches,
 Where, but even now, with strange and several noises
 Of roaring, shrieking, howling, jingling chains,
 And more diversity of sounds,⁴⁸ all horrible,
 We were awak'd; straightway, at liberty:
 Where we, in all her trim,⁴⁹ freshly beheld
 Our royal, good, and gallant ship; our master
 Capering to eye her: on a trice, so please you,
 Even in a dream, were we divided from them,
 And were brought moping hither.

Ari. [Aside to Pro.] Was 't well done?

Pro. [Aside to Ari.] Bravely, my diligence! Thou shalt be free.

Alon. This is as strange a maze as e'er men trod;
 And there is in this business more than nature
 Was ever conduct of:⁵⁰ some oracle
 Must rectify our knowledge.

Pro. Sir, my liege,
 Do not infest your mind with beating on⁵¹
 The strangeness of this business: at pick'd leisure,
 Which shall be shortly, single⁵² I'll resolve you
 (Which to you shall seem probable) of every
 These happen'd accidents; till when, be cheerful,
 And think of each thing well. — [Aside to Ari.] Come hither, spirit:

Set Caliban and his companions free;
 Untie the spell. [Exit ARIEL.] How fares my gracious sir?
 There are yet missing of your company
 Some few odd lads, that you remember not.

Re-enter ARIEL, driving in CALIBAN, STEPHANO, and TRINCULO, in their stolen apparel.

Ste. Every man shift for all the rest, and let no man take care for himself, for all is but fortune. — Coragio!⁵³ bully-monster, coragio!

Trin. If these be true spies which I wear in my head, here's a goodly sight.

Cal. O Setebos! these be brave spirits, indeed.

How fine⁵⁴ my master is! I am afraid
 He will chastise me.

Seb. Ha, ha!

What things are these, my lord Antonio?

Will money buy them?

Ant. Very like: one of them
 Is a plain fish, and, no doubt, marketable.⁵⁵

Pro. Mark but the badges of these men, my lords,
 Then say, if they be true.⁵⁶ — This misshapen knave,
 His mother was a witch; and one so strong
 That could control the moon, make flows and ebbs,
 And deal in her command, without her power.⁵⁷
 These three have robb'd me; and this demi-devil
 (For he's a bastard one)⁵⁸ had plotted with them
 To take my life: two of these fellows you
 Must know, and own; this thing of darkness I Acknowledge mine.

Cal. I shall be pinch'd to death.

Alon. Is not this Stephano, my drunken⁵⁹ butler?

Seb. He is drunk now: where had he wine?

Alon. And Trinculo is reeling ripe: where should they Find this grand liquor that hath gilded 'em?⁶⁰
 How cam'st thou in this pickle?

Trin. I have been in such a pickle, since I saw you last, that, I fear me, will never out of my bones: I shall not fear fly-blowing.

Seb. Why, how now, Stephano?

Ste. O! touch me not: I am not Stephano, but a cramp.⁶¹

Pro. You'd be king of the isle, sirrah?

Ste. I should have been a sore⁶² one then.

Alon. [Pointing to Cal.] ⁶³ This is a strange thing as e'er I look'd on.

Pro. He is as disproportion'd in his manners
 As in his shape. — Go, sirrah, to my cell;
 Take with you your companions: as you look
 To have my pardon, trim it handsomely.

Cal. Ay, that I will; and I'll be wise hereafter,
 And seek for grace. What a thrice-double ass

Indess wird on und of bei Sh. beständig vertauscht. Manche Hgg. lesen dead asleep. 48) Und mit noch weiteren, verschiedenen Lauten, ausser den schon erwähnten roaring, shrieking etc. 49) in all our trim in der Fol., von Theobald verbessert. 50) conduct = Leiter, Führer: es ist mehr in dieser Angelegenheit verborgen, als wozu die Natur die Anleitung gab, mehr als was auf natürlichem Wege geschah. 51) to beat on = über Etwas grübeln, sich in Gedanken mit Etwas beschäftigen. So in K. Henry VI. Second Part (A. 2, Sc. 1) thine eyes and thoughts || Beat on a crown, the treasure of thy heart. 52) single für singly, wie Sh. oft die Adjectivendung auf le für die adverbiale Endung hat, bezieht sich auf das Folgende: ich will Euch einzeln, einen nach dem andern, diese Vorfälle erklären, die Euch dann plausibel erscheinen werden. 53) coragio ist ein modischer Ausruf der Ermuthigung, der auch in All's well that ends well (A. 2, Sc. 5) sich findet. 54) fine = schön angekleidet. — Caliban hat den Prospero früher nie in seinem herzoglichen Schmucke gesehen. 55) Der Eine ist ein offener Fisch und also eine käufliche Waare. And worship this dull fool!

Pro. Go to; away!

Alon. Hence, and bestow your luggage where you found it.

Seb. Or stole it, rather. [Exeunt CAL., STE., and TRIN.]

Pro. Sir, I invite your highness, and your train,
To my poor cell, where you shall take your rest
For this one night; which, part of it, I'll waste
With such discourse, as, I not doubt, shall make it
Go quick away; the story of my life,
And the particular accidents gone by,
Since I came to this isle: and in the morn,
I'll bring you to your ship, and so to Naples,
Where I have hope to see the nuptial

And thence retire me to my Milan, where Every third thought shall be my grave.

Alon. I long

And promise you calm seas, auspicious gales,
And sail so expeditious, that shall catch
Your royal fleet far off. — My Ariel, — chick, —
That is thy charge; then to the elements!⁶⁵
Be free, and fare thou well! — Please you, draw near.

EPILOGUE.

SPOKEN BY PROSPERO.

Now my charms are all o'erthrown,
And what strength I have 's mine own;
Which is most faint: now, 't is true,
I must be here confin'd by you,
Or sent to Naples. Let me not,
Since I have my dukedom got,
And pardon'd the deceiver, dwell
In this bare island, by your spell;
But release me from my bands,
With the help of your good hands.¹
Gentle breath of yours my sails
Must fill, or else my project fails,
Which was to please. Now I want
Spirits to enforce, art to enchant;
And my ending is despair,²
Unless I be reliev'd by prayer,
Which pierces so, that it assaults
Mercy itself, and frees all faults.
As you from crimes would pardon'd be,
Let your indulgence set me free.

1) Solche versteckte Aufforderung an das Publikum zum Beifallklatschen findet sich fast in allen Epilogen Sh.'scher Dramen. — Ebenso wird unter gentle breath der folgenden Zeile der Beifallruf der Zuschauer verstanden. 2) Jetzt, da es mir an Geistern gebricht, die ich zwingen kann, und an Zauberkunst, die ich üben kann, muss ich wie ein böser Hexenmeister in Verzweiflung enden, wenn nicht die Fürbitte frommer Seelen mir hilft.

THE TWO GENTLEMEN OF VERONA.

Einleitung.

Das Stück The Two Gentlemen of Verona erschien zuerst gedruckt im Jahre 1623 in der Folioausgabe der Shakspeare'schen Dramen. Es findet sich dort als das zweite in der Reihe der Comedies, welche die erste Abtheilung dieses Bandes bilden, ist in Acte und Scenen eingetheilt und mit einem Personenverzeichniss versehen. Der Text, obgleich flüchtig nach einer nicht ganz genauen und schwerlich jemals durchgesehenen Handschrift abgedruckt, bietet bei manchen Mängeln in Einzelheiten doch im Ganzen nur geringe Schwierigkeiten, da der Styl, als der Jugendperiode unseres Dichters angehörig, verständlich und klar ist. Diese Eigenthümlichkeit der Diction, verbunden mit dem mehr durch lyrischen Wohlklang, als durch dramatische Lebendigkeit ausgezeichneten Bau des Verses, sowie die ganze leicht entworfene Anlage des Stückes und die skizzenhafte Charakteristik der Personen, weisen denn auch den Two Gentlemen of Verona eine sehr frühe Stelle in der chronologischen Reihenfolge der Shakspeare'schen Dramen, unter den Lustspielen wahrscheinlich die früheste, an. Wenn die erste auf uns gekommene Notiz von diesem Stücke auch erst aus dem Jahre 1598 stammt, wo Francis Meres in seiner Palladis Tamia, Wit's Treasury, unter Shakspeare's Lustspielen »his Gentlemen of Verona« aufzählt, so machen die eben angedeuteten inneren Gründe es doch höchst wahrscheinlich, dass das Drama spätestens im Jahre 1591, wohin Malone es versetzt, vermuthlich aber schon früher, verfasst und aufgeführt worden ist.

Eine Quelle, aus welcher Shakspeare den Stoff zu den Two Gentlemen of Verona geschöpft hätte, hat sich bisher nicht nachweisen lassen und wird vielleicht auch niemals entdeckt werden, insofern muthmasslich der Dichter seinem Lustspiel nicht eine bestimmte Novelle zu Grunde gelegt, sondern wie bei manchem seiner späteren Werke das von verschiedenen Seiten her Entlehnte zu einem dramatischen Ganzen vereinigt hat. Von solchen fremden Elementen drängt sich denn bei einem eine so grosse Uebereinstimmung mit einem Theile der Two Gentlemen of Verona auf, dass sie kaum für zufällig gelten kann. Die Geschichte des Proteus und der Julia erinnert nämlich in vielen Details, welche Shakspeare nicht erfunden hat, zu deutlich an eine Episode in dem berühmten, auch in England weitverbreiteten spanischen Schäferromane La Diana des Dichters Jorge de Montemayor, als dass nicht mit ziemlicher Sicherheit eine Benutzung dieses Werkes von Seiten Shakspeare's anzunehmen wäre. Zwar ist die erste vollständige englische Uebersetzung der Diana von Bartholomew Yonge erst im Jahre 1598 erschienen, aber sie existirte handschriftlich schon in den Jahren 1582 oder 1583; und in dieser Gestalt, oder in einer ähnlichen, mochte Shakspeare die Diana des Montemayor so gut wie die gleichartige Arcadia des Sir Philip Sidney, die auch erst gedruckt wurde, nachdem sie handschriftlich lange circulirt hatte, kennen gelernt haben. Aus den von P. Cunningham für die Shakespeare-Society herausgegebenen Accounts of the Revels at Court in the Reigns of Queen Elizabeth and King James I. erhellt, dass derselbe Stoff schon vor Shakspeare auf die englische Bühne gebracht war. Es heisst daselbst unter den Aufführungen bei Hofe im Jahre 1584: The history of Felix and Philomena shewed and enacted before her highnes by her Maiesties servaunts on the sondaie next after neweyeaes daie, at night at Grenewiche, whereon way [was] imployed one battlement and a house of canvas. — Don Felix ist in der Diana das Vorbild des Shakspeare'schen Proteus, und Philomena ist entstellt aus Felismena, der Julia in den Two Gentlemen of Verona. Diese Felismena wird bei Montemayor selbst redend eingeführt und erzählt ihre Liebes- und Leidensgeschichte. Inwiefern Shakspeare dieses verloren gegangene Drama von unbekanntem Verfasser gekannt und benutzt haben mag, lässt sich jetzt nicht mehr bestimmen. Dass er aber die Geschichte der Schäferin Felismena, und zwar höchst wahrscheinlich in Yonge's handschriftlicher Uebersetzung der Diana des Montemayor, gelesen haben muss, ergiebt sich aus einer Vergleichung seines Dramas mit jener Episode des Romans, von der wir einige Auszüge hier folgen lassen.

Zunächst erinnert die Art und Weise, wie (A. 1. Sc. 2) Julia den Brief des Proteus von ihrer Zofe empfängt, auffallend an das, was Felismena von dem Anfange ihres Liebesverhältnisses mit dem Don Felix bei Montemayor erzählt. Es heisst daselbst in B. Yonge's Uebersetzung: Many daies Don Felix spent in endeavouring to make me know the paines which he suffered for me, and many more did I spende in making the matter strange, and that he did not suffer them for my sake: and I know not why love delaied the time so long by forcing me to love him, but onely tha' (when he came indeed) he might enter into my hart at once, and with greater force and violence. When he had, therefore, by sundrie signes, as by tylt and tourneyes, and by praucing up and downe upon his proude jennet before my windowes, made it manifest that he was in love with me (for at the first I did not so well perceive it), he determined in the end to write a letter unto me; and having practised divers times before with a maide of mine, and at length, with many gifts and faire promises, gotten her good will and furtherance, he gave her the letter to deliver to me. But to see the meanes that Rosina made unto me (for so was she called), the dutifull services and unwoonted circumstances, before she did deliver it, the othes that she sware unto me, and the subtile words and serious protestations she used, it was a pleasant thing, and worthie the noting. To whom (neverthesse) with an angrie countenance I turned againe, saying, If I had not regard of mine owne estate, and what hereafter might be said, I would make this shamelesse face of thine beknowne ever after for a marke of an impudent and bolde minion: but bicause it is the first time, let this suffice that I have saide, and give thee warning to take heed of the second.

Me thinkes I see now the craftie wench, how she helde her peace, dissembling very cunningly the sorrow that she conceived by my angrie answer; for she fained a counterfaite smiling, saying, Jesus, mistresse! I gave it you, bicause you might laugh at it, and not to moove your patience with it in this sort; for if I had any thought that it would have provoked you to anger, I praie God he may shew his wrath as great towards me as ever he did to the daughter of any mother. And with this she added many wordes more (as she could do well enough) to pacifie the fained anger and ill opinion that I had conceived of her, and taking her letter with her, she departed from me. This having passed thus, I began to imagine what might ensue thereof, and love (me thought) did put a certaine desire into my minde to see the letter, though modestie and shame forbad me to ask it of my maide, especially for the wordes that had passed betweene us, as you have heard. And so I continued all that day until night, in varietie of many thoughts; but when Rosina came to helpe me to bedde, God knowes how desirous I was to have her entreat me againe to take the letter, but she woulde never speake unto me about it, nor (as it seemed) did so much as once thinke thereof. Yet to trie, if by giving her some occasion I might prevaile, I saide unto her, And is it so, Rosina, that Don Felix, without any regard to mine honour, dares write unto me? These are things, mistresse (saide she demurely to me againe), that are commonly incident to love, wherefore I beseech you pardon me, for if I had thought to have angred you with it, I would have first pulled out the bals of mine eies. How cold my hart was at that blow, God knowes, yet did I dissemble the matter, and suffer my selfe to remaine that night onely with my desire, and with occasion of little sleepe. And so it was, indeede, for that (me thought) was the longest and most painfull night that ever I passed. But when (with a slower pace then I desired) the wished day was come, the discreet and subtile Rosina came into my chamber to helpe me to make me readie, in dooing whereof, of purpose she let the letter closely fall, which, when I perceived, What is that that fell downe? (saide I), let me see it. It is nothing, mistresse, saide she. Come, come, let me see it (saide I): what! moove me not, or else tell me what it is. Good Lord, mistresse (saide she), why will you see it: it is the letter I would have given you yesterday. Nay, that it is not (saide I), wherefore shewe it me, that I may see if you lie or no. I had no sooner said so but she put it into my handes, saying, God never give me good if it be anie other thing; and although I knewe it well indeede, yet I saide, What, this is not the same, for I know that well enough, but it is one of thy lovers letters: I will read it, to see in what neede he standeth of thy favour. And opening it, I founde it contained this that followeth.

"I ever imagined (deere mistresse), that your discretion and wisdom would have taken away the feare I had to write unto you, the same knowing well enough (without any letter at all) how much I love you, but the very same hath so cunningly dissembled, that wherein I hoped the only remedie of my griefes had been, therein consisted my greatest harme. If according to your wisdom you censure my boldnes, I shall not then (I know) enjoy one hower of life; but if you do consider of it according to loves accustomed effects, then will I not exchange my hope for it. Be not offended, I beseech you (good ladie), with my letter, and blame me not for writing unto you, untill you see by experience whether I can leave of to write: and take me besides into the possession of that which is yours, since all is mine doth wholly consist in your hands, the which, with all reverence and dutifull affection, a thousand times I kisse."

When I had now seene my Don Felix his letter, whether it was for reading it at such a time, when by the same he shewed that he loved me more than himselfe, or whether he had disposition and regiment over part of this wearied soule, to imprint that love in it whereof he wrote unto me, I began to love him too well, (and, alas, for my harme!) since he was the cause of so much sorrow as I have passed for his sake. Whereupon, asking Rosina forgiveness of what was past (as a thing needfull for that which was to come) and committing the secrecie of my love to her fidelitie, I read the letter once againe, pausing a little at every worde (and a very little indeede it was), bicause I concluded so soone with my selfe, to do that I did, although in verie truth it lay not otherwise in my power to do.

Die Abreise des Proteus, Julia's Entschluss, ihm in Männerkleidung zu folgen, ihre Belauschung der Nacht-musik, welche der Ungetreue seiner neuen Geliebten bringt, Alles das findet sein Vorbild bei Montemayor, wo Felismena in ihrer Erzählung so fortfährt: But my adverse fortune afterwardes would, that of these our mutuall loves (when as now they were most assured) his father had some intelligence, and whosoever revealed them first, perswaded him so cunningly, that his father (fearing lest he would have married me out of hand) sent him to the great Princesse Augusta Caesarinas court, telling him, it was not meete that a yoong gentleman, and of so noble a house as he was, should spende his youth idly at home, where nothing could be learned but examples of vice, whereof the verie same idlenes (he said) was the onely mistresse. He went away so pensive, that his great greefe would not suffer him to acquaint me with his departure; which when I knew, how sorrowfull I remained, she may imagine that hath bene at any time tormented with like passion. To tell you now the life that I led in his absence, my sadnes, sighes, and teares, which every day I poured out of these wearied eies, my toong is far unable: if then my paines were such that I cannot now expresse them, how could I then suffer them? But being in the mids of my mishaps, and in the depth of those woes which the absence of Don Felix caused me to feele, and it seeming to me that my greefe was without remedie, if he were once seene or knowne of the ladies in that court (more beautifull and gracious then my selfe), by occasion whereof, as also by absence (a capitall enemy to love), I might easily be forgotten, I determined to adventure that, which I think never any woman imagined; which was to apparell my selfe in the habit of a man, and to hie me to the court to see him, in whose sight al my hope and content remained. Which determination I no sooner thought of then I put in practise, love blinding my eies and minde with an inconsiderate regarde of mine owne estate and condition. To the execution of which attempt I wanted no industrie; for, being furnished with the helpe of one of my approved friends, and treasouresse of my secrets, who bought me such apparell as I willed her, and a good horse for my journey, I went not onely out of my cuntry, but out of my deere reputation, which (I thinke) I shall never recover againe; and so trotted directly to the court, passing by the way many accidents, which (if time would give me leave to tell them) would not make you laugh a little to heare them. Twenty daies I was in going thither, at the ende of which, being come to the desired place, I took up mine inne in a streete less frequented with concourse of people: and the great desire I had to see the destroyer of my joy did not suffer me to thinke of any other thing, but how or where I might see him. To inquire of him of mine host I durst not, lest my comming might (perhaps) have bene discovered; and to seeke him forth I thought it not best, lest some inopinate mishap might have fallen out, whereby I might have bene knowne. Wherefore I passed all that day in these perplexities, while night came on, each hower whereof (me thought) was a whole yeere unto me. But midnight being a little past, mine host called at my chamber doore, and told me if I was desirous to heare some brave musicke, I should arise quickly, and open a window towards the street. The which I did by and by, and making no noise at all, I heard how Don Felix his page, called Fabius (whom I knew by his voice) saide to others that came with him, Now it is time, my masters, bicause the lady is in her gallerie over her garden, taking the fresh aire of the coole night. He had no sooner saide so, but they began to winde three cornets and a sackbot, with such skill and sweetnesse, that it seemed celestiall musicke; and then began a voice to sing, the sweetest (in my opinion) that ever I heard. And though I was in suspence, by hearing Fabius speake, whereby a thousand doubtles and imaginations (repugnant to my rest) occurred in my minde, yet I neglected not to heare what was sung, bicause their operations were not of such force that they were able to hinder the desire, nor distemper the delight that I conceived by hearing it.

Wie bei Shakspeare tritt auch bei Montemayor die verlassene Geliebte unerkant als Page in den Dienst des treulosen Liebhabers und wird von ihm mit einer Botschaft an seine neue Geliebte gesandt. Wie weit die Celia des spanischen Dichters der Silvia Shakspeare's (in A. 4, Sc. 4) entspricht, mag ein letzter Auszug aus der Diana darthun: But taking the letter and mine errand with me, I went to Celia's house, imagining by the way the wofull estate whereunto my haplesse love had brought me; since I was forced to make warre against mine owne selfe, and to be the intercessour of a thing so contrarie to mine owne content. But comming to Celia's house, and finding a page standing at the dore, I asked him if I might speake with his ladie: who being informed of me from whence I came, tolde Celia how I would speake with her, commending therewithall my beautie and person unto her, and telling her besides, that Don Felix had but lately entertained me into his service; which made Celia saie unto him, What, Don Felix so soone disclose his secret loves to a page, but newly entertained? he hath (belike) some great occasion that mooves him to do it. Bid him com in, and let us know what he would have. In I came, and to the place where the enemy of my life was, and, with great reverence kissing her hands, I delivered Don Felix his letter unto her. Celia tooke it, and casting her eies upon me, I might perceive how my sight had made a sudden alteration in her countenance, for she was so farre besides herselfe, that for a good while she was not able to speake a worde, but, remembring her selfe at last, she saide unto me, What good fortune hath beene so favourable to Don Felix to bring thee to this court, to make thee his page? Even that, faire ladie, saide I, which is better then ever I imagined, bicause it hath beene an occasion to make me behold such singular beautie and perfections as now I see cleerely before mine eies. And if the paines, the teares, the sighes, and the continuall disquiets that my lord Don Felix hath suffred have greeved me heeretofore, now that I have seene the source from whence they flow, and the cause of all his ill, the pittie that I had on him is now wholly converted into a certaine kinde of envie. But if it be true (faire lady), that my comming is welcome unto you, I beseech you by that, which you owe to the great love which he beares you, that your answer may import no lesse unto him. There is not anie thing (saide Celia) that I would not do for thee, though I were determined not to love him at all, who for my sake hath forsaken another. For it is no small point of wisdom for me to learne by other womens harmes to be more wise, and warie in mine owne. Beleeve not, good lady (saide I), that there is any thing in the worlde that can make Don Felix forget you. And if he hath cast off another for your sake, woonder not thereat, when your beautie and wisdom is so great, and the others so small that there is no reason to thinke that he will (though he hath woorthelie forsaken her for your sake) or ever can forget you for any woman else in the worlde. Dost thou then know Felismena (saide Celia), the lady whom thy master did once love and serve in his owne countrey? I know her (saide I), although not so well as it was needfull for me to have prevented so many mishaps (and this I spake softly to my selfe). For my fathers house was neere to hers; but seeing your great beautie adorned with such perfections and wisdom, Don Felix cannot be blamed, if he hath forgotten his first love only to embrace and honour yours. To this did Celia answer, merily and smiling, Thou hast learned quickly of thy master to sooth. Not so, faire ladie, saide I, but to serve you woulde I faine learne: for flatterie cannot be, where (in the judgement of all) there are so manifest signes and proofes of this due commendation. Celia began in good earnest to ask me what manner of woman Felismena was, whom I answered, that, touching her beautie, Some thought her to be very faire; but I was never of that opinion, bicause she hath many daies since wanted the chieftest thing that is requisite for it. What is that? said Celia. Content of minde, saide I, bicause perfect beautie can never be, where the same is not adjoynd to it. Thou hast the greates^t reason in the world, said she, but I have seene some ladies whose lively hewe sadnes hath not one whit abated, and others whose beautie anger hath encreased, which is a strange thing me thinkes. Haplesse is that beauty, saide I, that hath sorrow and anger the preservers and mistresses of it, but I cannot skill of these impertinent things: And yet that woman, that must needes be molested with continuall paine and trouble, with greefe and care of minde and with other passions to make her looke well, cannot be reckoned among the number of faire women, and for mine owne part I do not account her so. Wherein thou hast great reason, said she; as in all things else that thou hast saide, thou hast showed thy selfe wise and discreete. Which I have deerely bought, said I againe: But I beseech you (gracious lady) to answer this letter, because my lord Don Felix may also have some contentment, by receiving this first well employed service at my hands. I am content, saide Celia, but first thou must tell me if Felismena in matters of discretion be wise, and well advised? There was never any woman (saide I againe) more wise then she, bicause she hath beene long since beaten to it by her great mishaps: but she did never advise her selfe well, for if she had (as she was accounted wise), she had never come to have bene so contrarie to her selfe. Thou speakest so wisely in all thy answeres, saide Celia, that there is not any that woulde not take great delight to heare them: which are not viands (said I) for such a daintie taste, nor reasons for so ingenious and fine a conceit (faire lady), as you have, but boldly affirming, that by the same I meane no harme at all. There is not any thing, saide Celia, whereunto thy wit cannot attaine, but because thou shalt not spende thy time so ill in praising me, as thy master doth in praying me, I will reade thy letter, and tell thee what thou shalt say unto him from me. Whereupon unfolding it, she began to read it to her selfe, to whose countenance and gestures in reading of the same, which are oftentimes outwarde signes of the inward disposition and meaning of the hart, I gave a watchfull eie. And when she had read it, she said unto me, Tell thy master, that he that can so well by wordes expresse what he meanes, cannot choose but meane as well as he saith: and comming neerer unto me, she saide softly in mine eare, And this for the love of thee, Valerius, and not so much for Don Felix thy master his sake, for I see how much thou lovest and tenderest his estate. And from thence, alas (saide I to my selfe), did all my woes arise. Whereupon kissing her hands for the great curtesie and favour she shewed me, I hied me to Don Felix with this answer, which was no small joy to him to heare it, and another death to me to report it, saying manie times to my selfe (when I did either bring him home some joyfull tydings or carrie letters or tokens to her), O thrise unfortunate Felismena, that with thine owne weapons art constrained to wounde thy ever-dying hart, and to heape up favours for him, who made so small account of thine.

In dem Fortgange und Ende der Erzählung weichen Shakspeare und Montemayor durchaus von einander ab, wie sich auch von den sonstigen Elementen des englischen Lustspiels in dem spanischen Schäferromane nichts Entsprechendes findet. — Für die Shakspeare'sche Figur des Valentin hat man einige Züge in Sidney's Arcadia finden wollen; indess läuft die ganze, rein zufällige Aehnlichkeit darauf hinaus, dass Pyrocles, einer der beiden Helden des Sidney'schen Romans, sich an die Spitze der Heloten stellt, welche sich gegen Lacedämon empört haben, wie Valentin an die Spitze der Verbannten. (Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 1.) — Andere Quellen, die Shakspeare bei den Two Gentlemen of Verona benutzt haben sollte, sind nicht nachgewiesen worden, so dass ein Vorhandensein solcher in hohem Grade zweifelhaft erscheint.

ACT I.

SCENE I.

An open Place in Verona.

Enter VALENTINE and PROTEUS.

Val. Cease to persuade, my loving Proteus:²
Home-keeping youth have ever homely³ wits.
Were't not affection chains thy tender days⁴
To the sweet glances of thy honour'd love,
I rather would entreat thy company,
To see the wonders of the world abroad,
Than, living dully sluggardiz'd at home,
Wear out thy youth with shapeless idleness.⁵
But since thou lov'st, love still, and thrive therein,
Even as I would, when I to love begin.

Pro. Wilt thou be gone? Sweet Valentine, adieu.
Think on thy Proteus, when thou haply seest
Some rare note-worthy object in thy travel:
Wish me partaker in thy happiness,
When thou dost meet good hap; and in thy danger,
If ever danger do environ thee,

Commend thy grievance to my holy prayers,
For I will be thy beadsman,⁶ Valentine.

Val. And on a love-book pray for my success.

Pro. Upon some book I love, I'll pray for thee.

Val. That's on some shallow story of deep love,
How young Leander cross'd the Hellespont.⁷

Pro. That's a deep story of a deeper love,
For he was more than over shoes in love.

Val. 'T is true; for you are⁸ over boots in love,
And yet you never swum the Hellespont.

Pro. Over the boots? nay, give me not the boots.⁹

Val. No, I will not, for it boots thee not.

Pro. What?

Val. To be in love, where scorn is bought with groans;
Coy looks, with heart-sore sighs; one fading moment's mirth,

With twenty watchful, weary, tedious nights:

If haply won, perhaps, a hapless gain;

If lost, why then a grievous labour won:¹⁰

However, but a folly bought with wit,

Or else a wit by folly vanquished.

Pro. So, by your circumstance you call me fool.

Val. So, by your circumstance,¹¹ I fear, you'll prove.

1) Das Personenverzeichnis findet sich bereits in der Fol. am Ende des Dramas abgedruckt unter dem Titel The Names of all the Actors. 2) Proteus, in der Fol. überall Protheus geschrieben, nach einer zu Sh.'s Zeit weitverbreiteten Orthographie, ist bald dreisylbig, bald zweisylbig zu lesen; Ersteres namentlich am Schlusse des Verses, wie hier. — Aus dem Zusammenhange erhellt, dass Proteus dem Valentin zuredet, zu Hause zu bleiben, statt auf Reisen zu gehen. — loving = freundlich, hold, bezieht sich auf das Freundschaftsverhältniss der Beiden, nicht auf Proteus' Liebe zur Julia. 3) Wortspiel zwischen homely und home-keeping. — youth als Collectiv = die Jugend, die jungen Leute, hat den Plural nach sich. 4) thy tender days = Dein jugendliches Leben. 5) shapeless idleness = ein Nichtsthun, das sich durch keine äussere Form empfiehlt. 6) beadsman = Fürbitter, eigentlich = Einer, der von einem Könige oder Grossen gedungen ist, täglich eine bestimmte Anzahl Gebete für ihn zu sprechen. So in Peele's Edward I.: he shall have forty pound of yearly fee and be my beadsman. 7) Malone findet hier eine Anspielung auf Marlowe's Gedicht Hero and Leander, das erst nach des Verfassers Tode 1593 in die Buchhändlerregister eingetragen wurde und erst 1598 im Drucke erschien. Handschriftlich mochte das Werk vielleicht unserem Dichter bekannt sein; indess kannte er die Sage ohne Zweifel auch sonst, wie er auf sie in seinen Dramen wiederholt hindeutet. 8) for you are etc. entspricht genau dem vorhergehenden for he was etc. 9) Ein Wortspiel zwischen over boots, als Steigerung von over shoes: so dass ihm das Wasser nicht nur in die Schuhe, sondern in die Stiefel liefe, und zwischen to give the boots = Einem die unter dem Namen der spanischen Stiefel bekannte Tortur anthun, um ihm ein Geständniss, hier ein Liebesgeständniss, zu erpressen. — Das Wortspiel wird noch fortgesetzt in dem folgenden it boots thee not = es frommt Dir nicht. — Andere erklären to give the boots = Jemanden prellen, ihn zum Besten haben, ein Sinn, der hier weniger passen will. 10) Wenn die Frucht der Liebeswerbung gewonnen ist, so ist das vielleicht ein unheilvoller Gewinn; wenn sie verloren geht, so hast Du damit nichts gewonnen, als eine saure, vergebliche Mühe; wie es auch sein mag, so wirst Du entweder mit Deinem Verstande nur eine Narrheit, nur einen Tand erkaufen, oder Dein Verstand wird durch eine Narrheit, durch die Verliebtheit, überwältigt werden. 11) circumstance fasst Proteus = ausführliche Dar-

Pro. 'T is love you cavil at: I am not Love.

Val. Love is your master, for he masters you;
And he that is so yoked by a fool,
Methinks, should not be chronicled¹² for wise.

Pro. Yet writers say, as in the sweetest bud
The eating canker dwells,¹³ so eating love
Inhabits in the finest wits of all.

Val. And writers say, as the most forward bud
Is eaten by the canker ere it blow,
Even so by love the young and tender wit
Is turn'd to folly; blasting¹⁴ in the bud,
Losing his verdure even in the prime,
And all the fair effects of future hopes.
But wherefore waste I time to counsel thee,
That art a votary to fond desire?

Once more adieu. My father at the road¹⁵
Expects my coming, there to see me shipp'd.

Pro. And thither will I bring thee, Valentine.

Val. Sweet Proteus, no; now let us take our leave.
To Milan¹⁶ let me hear from thee by letters,
Of thy success in love, and what news else
Betideth here in absence of thy friend;
And I likewise will visit thee with mine.¹⁷

Pro. All happiness bechance to thee in Milan!

Val. As much to you at home! and so, farewell. [Exit.]

Pro. He after honour hunts, I after love:
He leaves his friends to dignify them more;
I leave¹⁸ myself, my friends, and all, for love.
Thou, Julia, thou hast metamorphos'd me;¹⁹
Made me neglect my studies, lose my time,
War with good counsel, set the world at nought,
Made wit with musing weak, heart sick with thought.²⁰

Enter SPEED.

Speed. Sir Proteus, save you. Saw you my master?

Pro. But now he parted hence to embark for Milan.

Speed. Twenty to one then, he is shipp'd already,
And I have play'd the sheep²¹ in losing him.

Pro. Indeed, a sheep doth very often stray,
An if the shepherd be awhile away.

Speed. You conclude, that my master is a shepherd then, and I a sheep?²²

Pro. I do.

Speed. Why, then my horns are his horns, whether I wake or sleep.

Pro. A silly answer, and fitting well a sheep.

Speed. This proves me still a sheep.

Pro. True, and thy master a shepherd.

Speed. Nay, that I can deny by a circumstance.²³

Pro. It shall go hard, but I'll prove it by another.

Speed. The shepherd seeks the sheep, and not the sheep the shepherd; but I seek my master, and my master seeks not me: therefore, I am no sheep.²⁴

Pro. The sheep for fodder follow the shepherd, the shepherd for food follows not the sheep; thou for wages followest thy master, thy master for wages follows not thee: therefore, thou art a sheep.

Speed. Such another proof will make me cry »baa«.²⁵

Pro. But dost thou hear? gav'st thou my letter to Julia?

Speed. Ay, Sir: I, a lost mutton, gave your letter to her, a laced mutton;²⁶ and she, a laced mutton, gave me, a lost mutton, nothing for my labour.

Pro. Here's too small a pasture for such store of muttons.

Speed. If the ground be overcharg'd, you were best stick her.²⁷

Pro. Nay, in that you are astray: 't were best pound you.²⁸

Speed. Nay, Sir, less than a pound shall serve me for carrying your letter.

Pro. You mistake: I mean the pound, — a pinfold.

stellung oder Herleitung, Valentin aber fasst es = Umstände, in denen sich Jemand befindet oder in die er geräth. 12) to chronicle = verzeichnen, einregistriren, steht in demselben weiteren Sinne wie hier, auch in Othello (A. 2, Sc. 1) To suckle fools and chronicle small beer. 13) So in Sh.'s Sonnets (70) For canker vice the sweetest buds doth love. — Staunton citirt aus Topsell's Serpents (1608) die Ueberschrift eines Capitels: Of Caterpillars or Palmer-worms called of some Cankers, worin es heisst: They gnaw off and consume by eating both leaves, boughs and flowers, yea, and some fruits also, as I have often seen in peaches. 14) to blast ist hier Verbum Neutrum = welken, verkommen. 15) road = Rhede. Sh. scheint Verona als eine Seestadt aufzufassen, wo man sich einschiffet, um nach Mailand zu fahren. 16) to Milan = nach Mailand hin; gieb mir nach Mailand hin von Dir Nachricht. Viele Hgg. setzen mit der zweiten Folioausg. von 1632 at Milan dafür. 17) mine bezieht sich auf letters. 18) leave emendirte Pope das love der Fol. — and all ist als Object mit myself und my friends zu verbinden, nicht mit for love, wie viele Hgg. interpungiren. 19) to metamorphose ist hier nicht = die Gestalt verändern, sondern das Wesen: Du hast einen anderen Menschen aus mir gemacht, als der ich war. 20) scil. thou hast made my wit weak with musing, my heart sick with thought. — thought = Grübelelei, Tiefsinn, Schwermuth, kommt öfter bei Sh. vor, so auch in dem Compositum thought-sick in Hamlet (A. 3, Sc. 4). 21) Ich habe mich so dumm wie ein Schaf benommen. — Das Wortspiel zwischen sheep und ship, das hier zum Grunde liegt, tritt deutlicher hervor bei der in den mittleren Grafschaften Englands üblichen Aussprache, sheep = ship. 22) Den unbestimmten Artikel vor sheep fügt erst die zweite Folioausg. von 1632 hinzu. — Dass Speed bei sheep an einen Widder denkt, ergiebt sich aus seiner folgenden Rede, in welcher die Hörner eines Widders mit den Hörnern eines Hahnrei zusammengestellt werden. 23) Vgl. Anm. 11 dieser Scene. 24) Der Syllogismus in Speed's Rede wie in Proteus' Antwort hat einen Tonfall, der an den auch sonst in diesem Drama vorkommenden Doggerel-rhyme erinnert. 25) Mit einer zweiten Beweisführung der Art werdet Ihr mich so überzeugen, ich sei ein Schaf, dass ich anfangen werde zu bähnen wie ein Schaf. 26) Ein alliterirendes Wortspiel zwischen lost mutton = verlorenes Schaf, und laced mutton = lockeres Frauenzimmer. mutton = Schaf, Hammel, kommt auch vor in As you like it (A. 3, Sc. 3) the grease of a mutton. — a laced mutton, eigentlich = zubereitetes Hammelfleisch, ist in dem erwähnten Sinne auch bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen gebräuchlich. So in Middleton's Blurt Master Constable: I long for laced mutton. 27) Wenn der Weidegrund zu sehr in Anspruch genommen ist, so thätet Ihr gut, sie, das Schaf, todzustechen. — In to stick liegt zugleich ein obscöner Nebensinn. 28) Für astray wollte Thirlby a stray scil. a stray sheep lesen. Jedenfalls steht astray doppel-sinnig = im Irrthum, und = in der Irre. — to pound = in den Pfandstall stecken, wohin man herrenloses Vieh

Speed. From a pound to a pin? fold it over and over,
'T is threefold too little for carrying a letter to your lover.

Pro. But what said she? [SPEED nods.] Did she nod?²⁹

Speed. I.

Pro. Nod, I? why, that 's noddy.

Speed. You mistook, Sir: I say she did nod; and you ask me, if she did nod; and I say, I.

Pro. And that set together, is noddy.

Speed. Now you have taken the pains to set it together, take it for your pains.

Pro. No, no; you shall have it for bearing the letter.

Speed. Well, I perceive I must be fain to bear with you.

Pro. Why, Sir, how do you bear with me?

Speed. Marry, Sir, the letter very orderly; having nothing but the word noddy for my pains.

Pro. Beshrew me, but you have a quick wit.

Speed. And yet it cannot overtake your slow purse.

Pro. Come, come; open the matter in brief: what said she?

Speed. Open your purse, that the money, and the matter, may be both at once deliver'd.

Pro. Well, Sir, here is for your pains. What said she?

Speed. Truly, Sir, I think you 'll hardly win her.

Pro. Why? Couldst thou perceive so much from her?

Speed. Sir, I could perceive nothing at all from her; no, not so much as a ducat for delivering your letter. And being so hard to me that brought your mind, I fear she 'll prove as hard to you in telling your mind.³⁰ Give her no token but stones, for she 's as hard as steel.

Pro. What! said she nothing?

Speed. No, not so much as — »Take this for thy pains.« To testify your bounty, I thank you, you have testern'd³¹ me; in requital whereof, henceforth carry your letters yourself. And so, Sir, I 'll commend you to my master.

Pro. Go, go, be gone, to save your ship from wrack,
Which cannot perish, having thee aboard,
Being destin'd to a drier death on shore.³² —
I must go send some better messenger:
I fear my Julia would not deign³³ my lines,
Receiving them from such a worthless post. [Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

The Same. JULIA'S Garden.

Enter JULIA and LUCETTA.

Jul. But say, Lucetta, now we are alone,
Wouldst thou then counsel me to fall in love?

Luc. Ay, Madam; so you stumble not unheedfully.

Jul. Of all the fair resort of gentlemen,
That every day with parle¹ encounter me,
In thy opinion, which is worthiest love?

Luc. Please you, repeat their names, I 'll show my mind
According to my shallow simple skill.

Jul. What think'st thou of the fair Sir Eglamour?

Luc. As of a knight well-spoken, neat and fine;
But, were I you, he never should be mine.

Jul. What think'st thou of the rich Mercatio?

Luc. Well of his wealth; but of himself, so, so.

Jul. What think'st thou of the gentle Proteus?

Luc. Lord, Lord! to see what folly reigns in us!

Jul. How now! what means this passion² at his name?

Luc. Pardon, dear Madam: 't is a passing shame,
That I, unworthy body as I am,
Should censure³ thus on lovely gentlemen.

Jul. Why not on Proteus, as of all the rest?

Luc. Then thus, — of many good I think him best.

Jul. Your reason?

Luc. I have no other but a woman's reason:
I think him so, because I think him so.

Jul. And wouldst thou have me cast my love on him?

Luc. Ay, if you thought your love not cast away.

Jul. Why, he of all the rest hath never mov'd me.⁴

Luc. Yet he of all the rest, I think, best loves ye.

Jul. His little speaking shows his love but small.

Luc. Fire⁵ that 's closest kept burns most of all.

Jul. They do not love that do not show their love.

Luc. O! they love least, that let men know their love.

Jul. I would I knew his mind.

Luc. Peruse this paper, Madam.

Jul. »To Julia.« Say, from whom?

Luc. That the contents will show.

Jul. Say, say, who gave it thee?

Luc. Sir Valentine's page; and sent, I think, from Proteus.

He would have given it you, but I, being in the way,
Did in your name receive it: pardon the fault, I pray.

Jul. Now, by my modesty, a goodly broker!⁶

Dare you presume to harbour wanton lines?

To whisper and conspire against my youth?

Now, trust me, 't is an office of great worth,

And you an officer fit for the place.

There, take the paper: see it be return'd;

Or else return no more into my sight.

Luc. To plead for love deserves more fee than hate.

Jul. Will ye be gone?

bringt, bildet ein Wortspiel mit pound = ein Pfund Sterling, woran sich dann noch der Wortwitz pinfold = Pferch, und getrennt pin und fold schliesst. 29) Die Worte Did she nod? die sich in der Fol. nicht finden, sind von Theobald, der zweitfolgenden Rede Speed's gemäss, ergänzt. — Auch die Bühnenweisung Speed nods ist modern. — Das folgende Wortspiel beruht auf I = ich, und I für ay = ja, sowie auf der Zusammensetzung von nod und I zu noddy = Tropf, Pinsel, das Kartenblatt mit dem Bilde des Buben. — Diesen Namen eines Pinsels soll Proteus hinnehmen. 30) Da sie so hartherzig gegen mich war, der Eure Gesinnung brieflich überbrachte, so wird sie ebenso hartherzig gegen Euch sein, wenn Ihr Eure Gesinnung ihr mündlich mittheilt. 31) to testern, als Wortspiel mit to testify, scherzhaft gebildet aus dem substantivischen teston oder testern = eine kleine Münze aus der Zeit Heinrich's VIII., im Werthe von 12, später 6 Pfennigen. — Den Druckfehler der Fol. cesterned verbessert die zweite Folioausg. 32) Eine Anspielung auf das Sprichwort He that is born to be hanged is not drowned. So in Tempest (A. 1, Sc. 1) If he be not born to be hanged, our case is miserable. 33) to deign, als Gegensatz zu to disdain, = des Empfanges oder der Notiznahme würdigen.

1) parle = Unterredung. Unterhaltung. Die Fol. schreibt par'le. 2) this passion = dieser Affect, ist die plötzliche Beschämung, welche Lucetta wegen ihrer Thorheit affectirt, über solche Herren urtheilen zu wollen. — passion bildet eine Art Wortspiel mit dem folgenden passing = weitgehend. 3) to censure on oder of = über Etwas urtheilen, sein Urtheil abgeben. — Die Cambridge Edd. vermuthen censure on this lovely gentleman. 4) Er allein unter all' den Andern hat sich nie an mich um Liebe gewandt. 5) fire ist hier, wie oft bei Sh., zwei-

Luc. That you may ruminate.⁷ [Exit.
Jul. And yet, I would I had o'erlook'd the letter.
 It were a shame to call her back again,
 And pray her to a fault for which I chid her.
 What fool is she,⁸ that knows I am a maid,
 And would not force the letter to my view!
 Since maids, in modesty, say »No« to that
 Which they would have the profferer construe, »Ay.«
 Fie, fie! how wayward is this foolish love.
 That, like a testy babe, will scratch the nurse,
 And presently, all humbled, kiss the rod.
 How churlishly I chid Lucetta hence,
 When willingly I would have had her here:
 How angrily⁹ I taught my brow to frown,
 When inward joy enforc'd my heart to smile.
 My penance is, to call Lucetta back,
 And ask remission for my folly past. —
 What ho! Lucetta!

Re-enter LUCETTA.

Luc. What would your ladyship?
Jul. Is it near dinner-time?
Luc. I would it were;
 That you might kill your stomach¹⁰ on your meat,
 And not upon your maid.
Jul. What is 't that you took up so gingerly?
Luc. Nothing.
Jul. Why didst thou stoop then?
Luc. To take a paper up
 That I let fall.
Jul. And is that paper nothing?
Luc. Nothing concerning me.
Jul. Then let it lie for those that it concerns.
Luc. Madam, it will not lie¹¹ where it concerns,
 Unless it have a false interpreter.
Jul. Some love of yours hath writ to you in rhyme.
Luc. That I might sing it, Madam, to a tune:
 Give me a note: your ladyship can set.¹²

Jul. As little by such toys as may be possible:
 Best sing it to the tune of »Light o' love«.¹³
Luc. It is too heavy for so light a tune.
Jul. Heavy? belike, it hath some burden¹⁴ then.
Luc. Ay; and melodious were it, would you sing it.
Jul. And why not you?
Luc. I cannot reach so high.¹⁵
Jul. Let's see your song. — How now, minion!¹⁶
Luc. Keep tune there still, so you will sing it out:
 And yet, methinks; I do not like this tune.
Jul. You do not?
Luc. No, Madam; it is too sharp.
Jul. You, minion, are too saucy.
Luc. Nay, now you are too flat,¹⁷
 And mar the concord with too harsh a descant:
 There wanteth but a mean to fill your song.
Jul. The mean is drown'd with your¹⁸ unruly base.
Luc. Indeed, I bid the base for Proteus.¹⁹
Jul. This babble shall not henceforth trouble me.
 Here is a coil with protestation!²⁰ — [Tears the letter.
 Go, get you gone, and let the papers lie:
 You would be fingering them to anger me.
Luc. She makes it strange,²¹ but she would be best pleas'd
 To be so anger'd with another letter. [Exit.
Jul. Nay, would I were so anger'd with the same!
 O hateful hands! to tear such loving words:
 Injurious wasps, to feed on such sweet honey,
 And kill the bees that yield it with your stings!
 I'll kiss each several paper for amends.
 Look, here is writ — »kind Julia«. — Unkind Julia!
 As in revenge of thy ingratitude,
 I throw thy name against the bruising stones,
 Trampling contemptuously on thy disdain.
 And here is writ — »love-wounded Proteus«. —
 Poor wounded name! my bosom, as a bed,
 Shall lodge thee, till thy wound be thoroughly heal'd;
 And thus I search it²² with a sovereign kiss.

syllbig zu lesen. 6) broker = Kuppler, Kupplerin. So in K. Henry VI. Third Part (A. 4, Sc. 1) you shall give me leave || To play the broker in mine own behalf. 7) Ich soll fortgehen, damit Ihr ungestört über Proteus' Liebe grübeln könnt. 8) What fool is she etc. = Welche Närrin ist Lucetta u. s. w., ist nicht als Frage, sondern als Ausruf zu fassen. Manche Hgg. setzen hinter to my view ein Fragezeichen. — Die Cambridge Edd. lesen what a fool, weil die Fol. what' foole hat und der Apostroph hier, wie anderswo, eine Ellipse andeuten mag. 9) angrily, adjektivisch und adverbial, kommt auch sonst bei Sh. vor. Manche Hgg. setzen angrily dafür. 10) stomach = Trotz, Eifer, und = Esslust. 11) to lie = liegen, und = lügen. 12) Julia, welche zu componiren (set) versteht, soll ihr die Tonweise angeben, nach der Lucetta das fragliche Gedicht singen kann. — Julia in ihrer Antwort nimmt das set wieder auf und fasst to set by = Werth auf Etwas setzen: I set as little by such toys etc. 13) the tune of „Light o' love“, eine zu Sh.'s Zeit bekannte Tanzmelodie, wird auch erwähnt in Much Ado about Nothing (A. 3, Sc. 4) clap us into „Light o' love“; that goes without a burden. 14) burden = Last, Bürde, und = die Bassstimme, die den ganzen Gesang begleitete, nicht bloss erst zu dem Refrain einfiel. 15) Lucetta's Stimme geht nicht hoch genug hinauf, um das Lied zu singen, und, doppelsinnig, Proteus steht für sie zu hoch. 16) Die letzten Worte sind begleitet von einer zornigen Geberde oder Pantomime der Julia, nachdem sie den Brief des Proteus aus Lucetta's Hand empfangen hat. — Auf eine solche Pantomime bezieht sich das folgende I do not like this tune. 17) sharp und flat sind doppelsinnig, als musikalische Kunstaussdrücke und im gewöhnlichen Sinne, gebraucht. Ein ähnlicher Doppelsinn liegt auch den folgenden Worten concord, descant, mean = Tenor und base zu Grunde. 18) Die Fol. hat you für your. 19) Wortspiel zwischen base = Bassstimme, und = ein mit Wettlauf verbundenes, ländliches Spiel, prison base oder prison bars genannt, das auch in Cymbeline (A. 5, Sc. 3) erwähnt wird: lads more like to run the country base. — to bid the base = zu solchem Spiel einladen, es darin mit Jemandem aufnehmen, wurde sprichwörtlich in weiterem und übertragenem Sinne gebraucht, und kommt in Sh.'s Venus and Adonis vor: To bid the wind a base he now prepares, || And wher he run or fly, they know not whether. 20) protestation sind die Liebesbetheuerungen in Proteus' Briefe, welche der Julia lästig werden. Ebenso bezieht sich this babble auf den Brief, nicht etwa auf Lucetta's Geschwätz. 21) to make it strange = spröde thun, sich fremd anstellen. — Staunton vermuthet, dass die erste Zeile von Julia's folgender Rede noch zu Lucetta's Rede zu ziehen sei. 22) to search a wound = in eine Wunde eindringen mit irgend einem heilenden Stoffe. — In dem Folgenden sucht Julia unter den auf der Erde umherliegenden Papier-

But twice, or thrice, was Proteus written down:
 Be calm, good wind, blow not a word away,
 Till I have found each letter in the letter;²³
 Except mine own name; that some whirlwind bear
 Unto a ragged, fearful-hanging²⁴ rock,
 And throw it thence into the raging sea!
 Lo! here in one line is his name twice writ, —
 »Poor forlorn Proteus; passionate Proteus
 To the sweet Julia:« — that I'll tear away;
 And yet I will not, sith so prettily
 He couples it to his complaining names.
 Thus will I fold them one upon another:
 Now kiss, embrace, contend, do what you will.²⁵

Re-enter LUCETTA.

Luc. Madam,
 Dinner is ready, and your father stays.
Jul. Well, let us go.
Luc. What! shall these papers lie like tell-tales here?
Jul. If you respect them, best to take them up.
Luc. Nay, I was taken up²⁶ for laying them down;
 Yet here they shall not lie, for catching cold.²⁷
Jul. I see, you have a month's mind²⁸ to them.
Luc. Ay, Madam, you may say what sights you see;
 I see things too, although you judge I wink.
Jul. Come, come; will 't please you go? [Exeunt.]

SCENE III.

The Same. A Room in ANTONIO'S House.

Enter ANTONIO and PANTHINO.

Ant. Tell me, Panthino, what sad talk¹ was that,
 Wherewith my brother held you in the cloister?
Pant. 'T was of his nephew Proteus, your son.
Ant. Why, what of him?
Pant. He wonder'd, that your lordship
 Would suffer him to spend his youth at home,
 While other men, of slender reputation,²

Put forth their sons to seek preferment out:
 Some, to the wars, to try their fortune there;
 Some, to discover islands far away;³
 Some, to the studious universities.
 For any, or for all these exercises,
 He said that Proteus, your son, was meet,
 And did request me to importune⁴ you
 To let him spend his time no more at home,
 Which would be great impeachment⁵ to his age,
 In having known no travel in his youth.

Ant. Nor need'st thou much importune me to that Whereon this month I have been hammering.⁶
 I have consider'd well his loss of time,
 And how he cannot be a perfect man,
 Not being tried and tutor'd in the world:
 Experience is by industry achiev'd,
 And perfected by the swift course of time.
 Then, tell me, whither were I best to send him?

Pant. I think, your lordship is not ignorant,
 How his companion, youthful Valentine,
 Attends the emperor in his royal court.⁷

Ant. I know it well.
Pant. 'T were good, I think, your lordship sent him
 thither.

There shall he practise tilts and tournaments,
 Hear sweet discourse,⁸ converse with noblemen,
 And be in eye of every exercise,⁹
 Worthy his youth, and nobleness of birth.

Ant. I like thy counsel: well hast thou advis'd;
 And, that thou may'st perceive how well I like it,
 The execution of it shall make known.
 Even with the speediest expedition
 I will dispatch him to the emperor's court.

Pant. To-morrow, may it please you, Don Alphonso,
 With other gentlemen of good esteem,
 Are journeying to salute the emperor;
 And to commend their service to his will.

Ant. Good company; with them shall Proteus go:
 And, in good time.¹⁰ — Now will we break with him.

setzen solche, zwei oder drei, auf denen der Name Proteus geschrieben steht. 23) letter = Buchstabe, und = Brief. 24) Die Hgg. lesen mit der Fol. fearful, hanging. Indess scheint Sh. die Wörter als Compositum zu fassen: ein Felsen, der schroff und grauenerregend überhängt. 25) Julia's und Proteus' Namen, auf den Papierstreifen in einander gewickelt, mögen sich küssen, umarmen, zanken, wie sie wollen. 26) to take up = vom Boden aufnehmen, und = zur Rechenschaft ziehen, vornehmen. 27) Damit sie sich nicht erkälten, eigentlich: wegen möglicher Erkältung. — Dieser freie Gebrauch von for findet sich auch bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen. So in Peele's Edward I.: hold up your torches, for dripping. 28) month's ist zweisylbig (monthes) zu lesen. — a month's mind, eigentlich = eine religiöse Feier, die in Monatsfrist zur Erinnerung an Verstorbene stattfand, dann allgemein = andächtige Hingebung an Etwas. Manche Hgg. erklären es mit great mind oder strong inclination.

1) sad talk = ernsthafte Unterredung. So in Winter's Tale (A. 4, Sc. 3) my father and the gentlemen are in sad talk. — Die Fol. lässt Proteus mit Antonio und Panthino auftreten. — Die Fol. schwankt zwischen Panthino und Panthion, indess findet sich die erstere, ohnehin plausiblere Lesart an mehr Stellen, als die letztere. 2) Andere Leute, die nur in geringem Ansehen stehen, die nicht so viel gelten, wie Ihr. 3) Warburton weist darauf hin, dass an den Entdeckungsreisen, welche unter der Regierung der Königin Elisabeth unternommen wurden, namentlich auch Söhne adeliger Familien sich betheiligten. 4) to importune = dringend bitten, betont Sh. auf der zweiten Sylbe. 5) Es würde ein grosser Vorwurf für Proteus in seinem Alter sein, wenn er in seiner Jugend nicht gereist wäre. 6) Worüber ich schon seit einem Monat gegrübelt habe, womit ich mich in Gedanken beschäftigt habe. 7) So gebraucht Sh. das Adjectiv royal von einem Kaiser auch in Titus Andronicus (A. 5, Sc. 3) all hail! Rome's royal emperor! — Nach Steevens' Annahme ist hier der deutsche Kaiser gemeint, der seine zeitweilige Residenz in Mailand genommen und dessen Vasall der später auftretende Herzog von Mailand sein soll. Indess wird der Kaiser nachher nirgendwo mehr erwähnt, und Sh. scheint mit einer bei ihm nicht seltenen Inconsequenz den mailändischen Herzog und dessen Hof einfach an die Stelle des Kaisers und seiner Hofhaltung in Mailand, von denen hier die Rede ist, gesetzt zu haben. 8) sweet discourse = feine, angenehme Redeweise, wie sie am Hofe gebräuchlich ist. 9) Er wird dort jede ritterliche oder geistige Uebung vor Augen haben. 10) in good time ist elliptisch und bezieht sich auf das Auftreten des Proteus = eben recht, zu gelegener Zeit. So auch in K. Richard III. (A. 3, Sc. 1) And in good time here comes the sweating lord. — to break with ist Verbum

Enter PROTEUS.

Pro. Sweet love! sweet lines! sweet life!
Here is her hand, the agent of her heart;
Here is her oath for love, her honour's pawn.
O! that our fathers would applaud our loves,
To seal our happiness with their consents!
O heavenly Julia!

Ant. How now! what letter are you reading there?

Pro. May 't please your lordship, 't is a word or two
Of commendations sent from Valentine,
Deliver'd by a friend that came from him.

Ant. Lend me the letter: let me see what news.¹¹

Pro. There is no news, my lord, but that he writes
How happily he lives, how well belov'd,
And daily graced by the emperor;
Wishing me with him, partner of his fortune.

Ant. And how stand you affected to his wish?

Pro. As one relying on your lordship's will,
And not depending on his friendly wish.

Ant. My will is something sorted¹² with his wish.
Muse¹³ not that I thus suddenly proceed,
For what I will, I will, and there an end.

I am resolv'd, that thou shalt spend some time
With Valentinus¹⁴ in the emperor's court:

What maintenance he from his friends receives,
Like exhibition¹⁵ thou shalt have from me.

To-morrow be in readiness to go:

Excuse it not;¹⁶ for I am peremptory.

Pro. My lord, I cannot be so soon provided:
Please you, deliberate¹⁷ a day or two.

Ant. Look, what thou want'st shall be sent after thee:
No more of stay; to-morrow thou must go. —
Come on, Panthino: you shall be employ'd
To hasten on his expedition.

[Exeunt ANTONIO and PANTHINO.]

Pro. Thus have I shunn'd the fire for fear of burning,
And drench'd me in the sea, where I am drown'd.
I fear'd to show my father Julia's letter,
Lest he should take exceptions to my love;
And, with the vantage of mine own excuse,
Hath he excepted most against my love.¹⁸
O! how this spring of love resembleth¹⁹

The uncertain glory of an April day,
Which now shows all the beauty of the sun,
And by and by a cloud takes all away.

Re-enter PANTHINO.

Pant. Sir Proteus, your father calls for you.
He is in haste; therefore, I pray you, go.

Pro. Why, this it is: my heart accords thereto,
And yet a thousand times it answers, no.²⁰ [Exeunt.]

ACT II.

SCENE I.

Milan. A Room in the DUKE's Palace.

Enter VALENTINE and SPEED.¹

Speed. Sir, your glove.

Val. Not mine; my gloves are on.

Speed. Why, then this may be yours, for this is but one.²

Val. Ha! let me see: ay, give it me, it's mine. —
Sweet ornament, that decks a thing divine!³

Ah Silvia! Silvia!

Speed. Madam Silvia! Madam Silvia!

Val. How now, sirrah?

Speed. She is not within hearing, Sir.

Val. Why, Sir, who bade you call her?

Speed. Your worship, Sir; or else I mistook.

Val. Well, you'll still be too forward.

Speed. And yet I was last chidden for being too slow.

Val. Go to, Sir. Tell me, do you know Madam Silvia?

Speed. She that your worship loves?

Val. Why, how know you that I am in love?

Speed. Marry, by these special marks. First, you have learn'd, like Sir Proteus, to wreath your arms, like a malecontent; to relish a love-song, like a robin-red-breast; to walk alone, like one that had the pestilence;⁴
to sigh, like a school-boy that had lost his A B C;⁵ to weep, like a young wench that had buried her grandam; to fast, like one that takes diet;⁶ to watch, like one that fears robbing; to speak puling, like a beggar at Hallowmas.⁷ You were wont, when you laugh'd, to crow like a cock; when you walk'd, to walk like one of the lions;⁸

Neutrum = sich Jemandem eröffnen. — Proteus bei seinem Auftreten wird, in Julia's Brief vertieft, die beiden Anwesenden nicht sogleich gewahr. 11) scil. what news there are in the letter. 12) Mein Wille ist einigermaßen im Einklange mit Valentin's Wunsch. 13) to muse = sich wundern, in Staunen verloren sein. 14) Valentinus für Valentine steht hier des Verses wegen. 15) exhibition = eine bestimmte ausgesetzte Summe, ein Jahrgehalt. — friends in der vorigen Zeile sind die Verwandten. 16) Mache keine Einwendungen, weiche nicht aus. 17) to deliberate = Etwas anstehen lassen, keine Entscheidung fassen. 18) Meine eigene Ausrede, indem ich Julia's Brief für einen von Valentin ausgab, ist meinem Vater ein Anlass gewesen, am meisten meiner Liebe hinderlich in den Weg zu treten, indem er mich nun zu Valentin hinsendet. 19) resembleth ist viersylbig (resembleth) zu lesen. — Proteus vergleicht in diesem Couplet, dessen zweiter und vierter Vers sich reimt, diese erste Zeit seiner Liebe, diesen Liebesfrühling, mit dem unbeständigen Wetter des April. — Auf diese ersten unvollständig gereimten Vierzeilen folgen andere mit vollständigem Reim. 20) Mein Herz giebt gezwungen seine Zustimmung zu meiner Reise und widerspricht doch dieser Zustimmung mit tausendfachem Nein.

1) Die Fol. hat Enter Valentine, Speed, Silvia. — Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 3, Anm. 1. 2) Das hier beabsichtigte Wortspiel zwischen on und one wird nur verständlich, wenn man annimmt, dass die beiden Wörter zu Sh.'s Zeit ungefähr dieselbe Aussprache hatten, wie sie auch im Druck häufig mit einander verwechselt wurden. 3) Damit redet er den Handschuh als einen von Silvia verlorenen an und versteht unter a thing divine Silvia's Hand. 4) Wie Einer, der die Pest gehabt hat und der, in der Genesung begriffen, noch von den Menschen gemieden wird und sich allein halten muss. 5) A B C ist hier das A-B-C-Buch, nicht das Alphabet selbst. 6) to take diet = die Hungerkur gebrauchen, besonders von venerischen Patienten. 7) Das klägliche Gewinsel der Bettler um Allerheiligen bezieht Johnson auf die dann eintretende rauhere Jahreszeit, Toller auf einen Gebrauch, der sich in Staffordshire noch erhalten hat, dass die Bettler um die Zeit einen Rundgang halten, wobei sie für die Seelen der Verstorbenen beten. Die erstere Erklärung scheint die einfachere und natürlichere. 8) Nach Ritson's Vermuthung dachte Sh. bei the lions an die seinem Publikum wohlbekannten Löwen, die im Tower zu London gehalten wurden.

when you fasted, it was presently after dinner; when you look'd sadly, it was for want of money; and now you are metamorphos'd⁹ with a mistress, that, when I look on you, I can hardly think you my master.

Val. Are all these things perceived in me?

Speed. They are all perceived without¹⁰ ye.

Val. Without me? they cannot.

Speed. Without you? nay, that's certain; for, without you were so simple, none else would:¹¹ but you are so without these follies, that these follies are within you, and shine through you like the water in an urinal,¹² that not an eye that sees you, but is a physician to comment on your malady.

Val. But, tell me, dost thou know my lady Silvia?

Speed. She, that you gaze on so, as she sits at supper?

Val. Hast thou observed that? even she I mean.

Speed. Why, Sir, I know her not.

Val. Dost thou know her by my gazing on her, and yet know'st her not?

Speed. Is she not hard-favour'd, Sir?

Val. Not so fair, boy, as well-favour'd.¹³

Speed. Sir, I know that well enough.

Val. What dost thou know?

Speed. That she is not so fair, as (of you) well-favour'd.

Val. I mean, that her beauty is exquisite, but her favour infinite.¹⁴

Speed. That's because the one is painted, and the other out of all count.

Val. How painted? and how out of count?

Speed. Marry, Sir, so painted to make her fair, that no man counts of her beauty.

Val. How esteem'st thou me? I account of her beauty.

Speed. You never saw her since she was deform'd.

Val. How long hath she been deform'd?

Speed. Ever since you loved her.

Val. I have loved her ever since I saw her, and still I see her beautiful.

Speed. If you love her, you cannot see her.

Val. Why?

Speed. Because Love is blind. O! that you had mine eyes; or your own eyes had the lights they were wont to have, when you chid at Sir Proteus for going ungartered!¹⁵

Val. What should I see then?

Speed. Your own present folly, and her passing de-formity; for he, being in love, could not see to garter his hose; and you, being in love, cannot see to put on your hose.¹⁶

Val. Belike, boy, then you are in love; for last morning you could not see to wipe my shoes.

Speed. True, Sir; I was in love with my bed. I thank you, you swung me for my love, which makes me the bolder to chide you for yours.

Val. In conclusion, I stand affected to her.

Speed. I would you were set,¹⁷ so your affection would cease.

Val. Last night she enjoined me to write some lines to one she loves.

Speed. And have you?

Val. I have.

Speed. Are they not lamely writ?

Val. No, boy, but as well as I can do them. — Peace! here she comes.

Speed. O excellent motion! O exceeding puppet! Now will he interpret to her.¹⁸

Enter SILVIA.

Val. Madam and mistress, a thousand good-morrows.

Speed. O! 'give ye good even: here's a million of manners.¹⁹

Sil. Sir Valentine and servant,²⁰ to you two thousand.

Speed. He should give her interest, and she gives it him.

Val. As you enjoin'd me, I have writ your letter

Unto the secret nameless friend of yours;

Which I was much unwilling to proceed in,

But for my duty to your ladyship.

Sil. I thank you, gentle servant. 'T is very clerkly done.²¹

Val. Now trust me, Madam, it came hardly off;²²

For, being ignorant to whom it goes,

I writ at random, very doubtfully.

Sil. Perchance you think too much of so much pains?

Val. No, Madam: so it stead you, I will write,

Please you command, a thousand times as much.

And yet, —

Sil. A pretty period. Well, I guess the sequel;

And yet I will not name it; — and yet I care not; —

And yet take this again; — and yet I thank you,

Meaning henceforth to trouble you no more.

9) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 19. 10) Speed fasst without zuerst = ausserhalb, nachher adverbial = wenn nicht, Valentin fasst es = ohne. 11) scil. would be so simple. 12) Anspielungen auf die ärztliche Praxis, aus dem Urin des Kranken die Natur der Krankheit zu erforschen, kommen bei Sh. und seinen Zeitgenossen häufig vor. So in Macbeth (A. 5, Sc. 3) if thou couldst, doctor, cast || The water of my land, find her disease. 13) well-favour'd gebraucht Valentin doppelsinnig = von gutem Ansehen, als Gegensatz zu hard-favour'd = von abstossendem Ansehen, und = voll Gunst und Gaben. In letzterer Beziehung steht das Wort im Gegensatz zu fair, das nur auf die äussere Schönheit geht. — Speed setzt das Wortspiel mit well-favour'd dann noch fort. 14) exquisite und infinite entsprechen sich auch lautlich. — favour fasst Speed dann wieder = Gesichtszüge, und bezieht the one darauf, auf das geschminkte Gesicht der Silvia, während the other auf her beauty geht. 15) Dieses Merkmal von Verliebtheit, die sich in der Vernachlässigung des Aeussern kundgibt, kehrt auch wieder in As you like it (A. 3, Sc. 2) then your hose should be ungartered. 16) Valentin, der sogar seine Strumpfhose anzuziehen vergisst, ist noch ärger verliebt als Proteus, der doch nur seine Kniegürtel nicht zuband. — Die Cambridge Edd. vermuthen to put on your shoes, da sie die lächerliche Hyperbel Speed's, als ob Valentin ohne Hose herumlaufe, nicht gelten lassen. 17) set = gesetzt, und = untergegangen, wie die Sonne, als Gegensatz zu stand = sein, und = stehen. 18) motion ist das Marionettenspiel, puppet die einzelne Marionettenfigur, deren Pantomime der Spieler dann mit seinen Worten verdeutlichen muss. So in Hamlet (A. 3, Sc. 2) I could interpret between you and your love, if I could see the puppets dallying. — Staunton fasst, vielleicht richtig, motion hier als synonym von puppet, da allerdings auch an anderen Stellen motion nicht bloss = Marionettenspiel, sondern = Marionettenpuppe vorkommt. 19) Mit a million of manners = eine Million Artigkeiten, überbietet Speed das a thousand good-morrows Valentin's. 20) servant nennt Silvia in affectirter Redeweise den Valentin als ihren Anbeter. 21) Der Brief ist so geschickt abgefasst, als hätte ihn ein bestellter Schreiber (clerk) geschrieben.

Speed. And yet you will;²³ and yet another yet.

Val. What means your ladyship? do you not like it?

Sil. Yes, yes: the lines are very quaintly writ,
But since unwillingly, take them again.
Nay, take them.

Val. Madam, they are for you.

Sil. Ay, ay; you writ them, Sir, at my request,
But I will none of them; they are for you.
I would have had them writ more movingly.

Val. Please you, I'll write your ladyship another.

Sil. And when it's writ, for my sake read it over:
And, if it please you, so; if not, why, so.²⁴

Val. If it please me, Madam; what then?

Sil. Why, if it please you, take it for your labour:
And so good morrow, servant. [Exit.]

Speed. O jest unseen, inscrutable, invisible,²⁵
As a nose on a man's face, or a weathercock on a steeple!
My master sues to her, and she hath taught her suitor,
He being her pupil, to become her tutor.
O excellent device! was there ever heard a better,
That my master, being scribe, to himself should write the letter?

Val. How now, Sir! what, are you reasoning with yourself?

Speed. Nay, I was rhyming: 't is you that have the reason.²⁶

Val. To do what?

Speed. To be a spokesman from Madam Silvia.

Val. To whom?

Speed. To yourself. Why, she wooes you by a figure.²⁷

Val. What figure?

Speed. By a letter, I should say.

Val. Why, she hath not writ to me?

Speed. What need she, when she hath made you write to yourself? Why, do you not perceive the jest?

Val. No, believe me.

Speed. No believing you,²⁸ indeed, Sir: but did you perceive her earnest?

Val. She gave me none, except an angry word.

Speed. Why, she hath given you a letter.

Val. That's the letter I writ to her friend.

Speed. And that letter hath she deliver'd, and there an end.²⁹

Val. I would it were no worse!

Speed. I'll warrant you, 't is as well:
For often have you writ to her, and she, in modesty,
Or else for want of idle time, could not again reply;
Or fearing else some messenger, that might her mind discover,

Herself hath taught her love himself to write unto her lover.³⁰

All this I speak in print, for in print³¹ I found it. — Why muse you, Sir? 't is dinner-time.

Val. I have dined.

Speed. Ay, but hearken, Sir: though the chameleon Love can feed on the air, I am one that am nourish'd by my victuals, and would fain have meat. O! be not like your mistress: be moved, be moved.³² [Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

Verona. A Room in JULIA'S House.

Enter PROTEUS and JULIA.

Pro. Have patience, gentle Julia.

Jul. I must, where is no remedy.

Pro. When possibly I can, I will return.

Jul. If you turn not, you will return¹ the sooner.
Keep this remembrance for thy Julia's sake.

[Giving a ring.]

Pro. Why, then we'll make exchange: here, take you this.

Jul. And seal the bargain with a holy kiss.

Pro. Here is my hand for my true constancy;

And when that hour o'erslips me in the day,

Wherein I sigh not, Julia, for thy sake,

The next ensuing hour some foul mischance

Torment me for my love's forgetfulness.

My father stays my coming; answer not.

The tide² is now: nay, not thy tide of tears;

That tide will stay me longer than I should. [Exit JULIA.]

Julia, farewell! — What! gone without a word?

Ay, so true love should do: it cannot speak;

For truth hath better deeds than words to grace it.

Enter PANTHINO.³

Pant. Sir Proteus, you are stay'd for.

Pro. Go; I come, I come. —

Alas! this parting strikes poor lovers dumb. [Exeunt.]

SCENE III.

The Same. A Street.

Enter LAUNCE, leading a dog.

Launce. Nay, 't will be this hour ere I have done weeping: all the kind of the Launces have this very fault.
I have received my proportion, like the prodigious son, and am going with Sir Proteus to the imperial's court.¹

22) to come off = von Statten gehen. 23) scil. you will trouble him more. — In Silvia's folgender Rede ist quaintly = geschickt. 24) Wenn der Brief Euch gefällt, so ist es gut; wenn nicht, so ist es auch gut. 25) invisible, ein, freilich ungenauer, Reim auf steeple, ist, wie unseen und inscrutable, ironisch als das Gegentheil gemeint: ein handgreiflicher, Jedem sichtbarer Spass, den sich die Silvia mit Valentin erlaubt. 26) Die Zusammenstellung von rhyme und reason findet sich öfter bei Sh. 27) by a figure = figürlich. Zugleich ist figure = Ziffer, dem letter = Buchstabe, und = Brief, entgegengesetzt. 28) Man kann Euch in der That nicht glauben, dass Ihr so einfältig seid. — Speed verdreht auch hier Valentin's vorhergehende Worte. 29) Elliptisch: und damit hat die Sache ein Ende. 30) her love himself = der Geliebte der Silvia selbst, und her lover = ihr Liebhaber, ist Beides Valentin. 31) in print = genau, überlegt, und = gedruckt. Speed giebt scherzhaft die vier gereimten Verse, die er so eben improvisirt hat, für ein Citat aus einem gedruckten Buche aus. 32) be moved doppelsinnig = lasst Euch rühren, und = lasst Euch von der Stelle bewegen, um zu Tisch zu gehen. — Mit diesen verschiedenen Bedeutungen von to move spielt Sh. auch in Romeo and Juliet (A. 1, Sc. 1).

1) Wortspiel zwischen to turn = sich ändern, wechseln, und to return. 2) the tide = die Fluth, mit der allein das Schiff Verona verlassen kann. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 15. 3) In der Fol. wird das Auftreten des Panthino gleich zu Anfang dieser Scene verzeichnet. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 3, Anm. 1. — Dieselbe Eigenthümlichkeit wiederholt sich in diesem Druck auch bei den folgenden Scenen.

I think Crab,² my dog, be the sourest-natured dog that lives: my mother weeping, my father wailing, my sister crying, our maid howling, our cat wringing her hands, and all our house in a great perplexity, yet did not this cruel-hearted cur shed one tear. He is a stone, a very pebblestone, and has no more pity in him than a dog; a Jew would have wept to have seen our parting: why, my grandam, having no eyes, look you, wept herself blind at my parting. Nay, I'll show you the manner of it. This shoe is my father; — no, this left shoe is my father; — no, no, this left shoe is my mother; — nay, that cannot be so, neither: — yes, it is so, it is so; it hath the worser sole.³ This shoe, with the hole in it, is my mother, and this my father. A vengeance on 't! there 't is: now, Sir,⁴ this staff is my sister; for, look you, she is as white as a lily, and as small as a wand: this hat is Nan, our maid: I am the dog; — no, the dog is himself, and I am the dog, — O! the dog is me, and I am myself: ay, so, so. Now come I to my father; — Father, your blessing: — now should not the shoe speak a word for weeping: now should I kiss my father; well, he weeps on. Now come I to my mother; — O, that she could speak now, like a wood woman!⁵ — well, I kiss her; why, there 't is, here's my mother's breath up and down.⁶ Now come I to my sister; mark the moan she makes: now, the dog all this while sheds not a tear, nor speaks a word; but see how I lay the dust with my tears.⁷

Enter PANTHINO.

Pant. Launce, away, away, aboard: thy master is shipped, and thou art to post after with oars. What's the matter? why weep'st thou, man? Away, ass; you'll lose the tide, if you tarry any longer.

Launce. It is no matter if the tied⁸ were lost; for it is the unkindest tied that ever any man tied.

Pant. What's the unkindest tide?

Launce. Why, he that's tied here, Crab, my dog.

Pant. Tut, man, I mean thou'lt lose the flood; and, in losing the flood, lose thy voyage; and, in losing thy voyage, lose thy master; and, in losing thy master, lose thy service; and, in losing thy service, — Why dost thou stop my mouth?

Launce. For fear thou shouldst lose thy tongue.

Pant. Where should I lose my tongue?

Launce. In thy tale.

Pant. In thy tail?

Launce. Lose the tide, and the voyage, and the master, and the service, and the tied.⁹ Why, man, if the river were dry, I am able to fill it with my tears; if the wind were down, I could drive the boat with my sighs.

Pant. Come, come, away, man: I was sent to call thee.

Launce. Sir, call¹⁰ me what thou dar'st.

Pant. Wilt thou go?

Launce. Well, I will go. [Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.

Milan. A Room in the Duke's Palace.

Enter VALENTINE, SILVIA, THURIO, and SPEED.

Sil. Servant.

Val. Mistress?

Speed. Master, Sir Thurio frowns on you.

Val. Ay, boy, it's for love.

Speed. Not of you.

Val. Of my mistress then.

Speed. 'T were good you knock'd him.

Sil. Servant, you are sad.

Val. Indeed, Madam, I seem so.

Thu. Seem you that you are not?

Val. Haply I do.

Thu. So do counterfeits.

Val. So do you.

Thu. What seem I that I am not?

Val. Wise.

Thu. What instance of the contrary?

Val. Your folly.

Thu. And how quote¹ you my folly?

Val. I quote it in your jerkin.

Thu. My jerkin is a doublet.

Val. Well, then, I'll double your folly.

Thu. How?

Sil. What, angry, Sir Thurio! do you change colour?

Val. Give him leave, Madam: he is a kind of chameleon.²

1) Launce gebraucht nach der Art, die für die Sh.'schen Clowns charakteristisch ist, ein ähnlich klingendes Wort für ein anderes und sagt proportion für portion, prodigious für prodigal, und imperial für emperor. So sagt der Clown in Titus Andronicus (A. 4, Sc. 3) a matter of brawl betwixt my uncle and one of the imperial's men. 2) Der Name des Hundes, = Holzapfel, deutet schon auf das Epitheton sourest-natured hin, womit Launce ihn bezeichnet. 3) the worser sole findet seine Erklärung in dem folgenden with the hole in it. 4) Diese Anrede in Monologen an irgend eine eingebildete Person, die nicht weiter specificirt wird, kommt auch sonst vor. So in K. Richard II. (A. 5, Sc. 5) Now, Sir, the sound that tells what hour it is. 5) wood woman emendirt Theobald das sinnlose would-woman der Fol., wofür Pope ould (old) woman lesen wollte, und erklärt es mit frantic with grief. — Launce, indem er jetzt zu dem linken Schuh kommt, der seine Mutter vorstellt, wie sie sich beim Abschiede vor Schmerz toll geberdete, bedauert, dass der Schuh nicht ebenso sprechen, sich nicht ebenso toll geberden könne. — Der als Frau personifizierte Schuh, den Launce mit seiner Mutter verwechselt, wird deshalb she, nicht it, genannt. — Viele Hgg. interpungiren now come I to my mother, (O, that she could speak now!) like a wood woman. 6) Der Schuh, den Launce küsst, riecht ganz wie der Athem seiner Mutter. 7) So in K. Lear (A. 4, Sc. 6) To use his eyes for garden water-pots, || Ay, and laying autumn's dust. 8) Das Wortspiel zwischen tide und tied = der Gebundene, d. h. Launce's Hund, findet sich auch in Lyly's Endymion (1591): Epiton. You know, it is said, the tide tarrieth for no man. — Samias. True. — Epiton. A monstrous lie: for I was tied two hours, and tarried for one to unloose me. 9) Da die Orthographie der Fol. hier sowohl wie vorher zwischen tide und tied nicht unterscheidet, so ist es schwer zu bestimmen, ob hier zuerst tide und nachher tied zu setzen ist oder umgekehrt. Manche Hgg. setzen mit Vernachlässigung des offenbar beabsichtigten Wortspiels tide zweimal und interpungiren the master, and the service: — And the tide! 10) to call = rufen, und = nennen.

1) to quote = die Summe von Etwas ziehen, notiren, dann im Allgemeinen = beobachten. — Malone nimmt an, dass to quote damals = to cote gelautet habe, und findet in Valentin's Antwort ein Wortspiel zwischen

Thu. That hath more mind to feed on your blood, than live in your air.

Val. You have said, Sir.

Thu. Ay, Sir, and done³ too, for this time.

Val. I know it well, Sir: you always end ere you begin.

Sil. A fine volley of words, gentlemen, and quickly shot off.

Val. 'T is indeed, Madam, we thank the giver.

Sil. Who is that, servant?

Val. Yourself, sweet lady; for you gave the fire. Sir Thurio borrows his wit from your ladyship's looks, and spends what he borrows kindly in your company.

Thu. Sir, if you spend word for word with me, I shall make your wit bankrupt.⁴

Val. I know it well, Sir: you have an exchequer of words, and, I think, no other treasure to give your followers; for it appears by their bare liveries, that they live by your bare words.

Sil. No more, gentlemen, no more. Here comes my father.

Enter the Duke.

Duke. Now, daughter Silvia, you are hard beset. Sir Valentine, your father's in good health: What say you to a letter from your friends Of much good news?

Val. My lord, I will be thankful To any happy messenger from thence.

Duke. Know you Don Antonio, your countryman?

Val. Ay, my good lord; I know the gentleman To be of worth, and worthy estimation, And not without desert so well reputed.⁵

Duke. Hath he not a son?

Val. Ay, my good lord; a son, that well deserves The honour and regard of such a father.⁶

Duke. You know him well?

Val. I know⁷ him as myself; for from our infancy We have convers'd, and spent our hours together: And though myself have been an idle truant, Omitting the sweet benefit of time

To clothe mine age with angel-like perfection,⁸ Yet hath Sir Proteus, for that's his name, Made use and fair advantage of his days:

His years but young, but his experience old;

His head unmellow'd, but his judgment ripe;

And, in a word (for far behind his worth Come all the praises that I now bestow), He is complete in feature,⁹ and in mind, With all good grace to grace a gentleman.

Duke. Beshrew me, Sir, but, if he make this good, He is as worthy for an empress' love,¹⁰ As meet to be an emperor's counsellor.

Well, Sir, this gentleman is come to me

With commendation from great potentates;

And here he means to spend his time awhile.

I think, 't is no unwelcome news to you.

Val. Should I have wish'd a thing, it had been he.

Duke. Welcome him then according to his worth.

Silvia, I speak to you; and you, Sir Thurio: —

For Valentine, I need not cite him to it.¹¹

I'll send him hither to you presently. [Exit.]

Val. This is the gentleman, I told your ladyship, Had come along with me, but that his mistress Did hold his eyes lock'd in her crystal looks.

Sil. Belike, that now she hath enfranchis'd them, Upon some other pawn for fealty.

Val. Nay, sure, I think, she holds them prisoners still.

Sil. Nay, then he should be blind; and, being blind, How could he see his way to seek out you?

Val. Why, lady, Love hath twenty pair of eyes.

Thu. They say, that Love hath not an eye at all.

Val. To see such lovers, Thurio, as yourself: Upon a homely object Love can wink.

Enter Proteus.

Sil. Have done, have done. Here comes the gentleman.

Val. Welcome, dear Proteus! — Mistress, I beseech you, Confirm his welcome with some special favour.

Sil. His worth is warrant for his welcome hither, If this be he you oft have wish'd to hear from.

Val. Mistress, it is. Sweet lady, entertain him To be my fellow-servant¹² to your ladyship.

Sil. Too low a mistress for so high a servant.

Pro. Not so, sweet lady; but too mean a servant To have a look of such a worthy mistress.

Val. Leave off discourse of disability.¹³ — Sweet lady, entertain him for your servant.

Pro. My duty will I boast of, nothing else.

Sil. And duty never yet did want his meed.

Servant, you are welcome to a worthless mistress.

quote und coat, im Gegensatz zu jerkin, wie gleich darauf zwischen doublet und double. 2) Wie vorher (A. 2, Sc. 1 am Ende) auf die Sage angespielt wurde, dass das Chamäleon von der Luft lebe, so hier auf die Sage, dass es seine Farben nach Belieben wechselt. So in K. Henry VI. Third Part (A. 3, Sc. 2) I can add colours to the chameleon. 3) I have done = ich bin fertig, und = ich habe gethan, Letzteres im Gegensatze zu you have said. 4) Wenn Ihr es im Wortgefecht mit mir aufnehmt, so werde ich Euch an Witz bankerott machen. 5) Antonio ist ein Mann von Werth und wird auch als ein Mann von Werth geschätzt, und nicht unverdient steht er in so gutem Rufe. — Dyce macht auf eine ältere Bedeutung von worth = substance, wealth, aufmerksam. Indess reicht die gewöhnliche Bedeutung des Wortes hier vollkommen aus. 6) Ein Sohn, der wohl verdient, ebenso geehrt und geachtet zu werden, wie der Vater es ist. 7) knew in der Fol., von Hanner verbessert. 8) angel-like perfection = die Ausbildung oder Begabung, welche den Menschen dem Engel gleich macht. — mine age ist nicht = meine Jugend, das jetzige Lebensalter, sondern = das spätere, das Greisenalter, das sich mit den in der Jugend erworbenen Kenntnissen wie mit einem Kleide schmückt. So sagte Panthino in A. 1, Sc. 3: Which would be great impeachment to his age, || In having known no travel in his youth. 9) feature = körperliche Bildung, wird mit mind auch in K. Henry VIII. (A. 3, Sc. 2) zusammengefügt mit denselben Worten wie hier: complete in mind and feature. 10) So in A. 5, Sc. 4 And think thee worthy of an empress' love. 11) to cite = mahnen, entbieten zu Etwas. Malone setzt ohne Grund 'cite und sieht darin eine Abkürzung aus incite. — Sh. hat das Wort in demselben Sinne wie hier in K. Henry VI. Second Part (A. 3, Sc. 2) And had I not been cited so by them, und in K. Henry VI. Third Part (A. 2, Sc. 1) I think, it cites us, brother, to the field. 12) Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 20. 13) Diese Zeile ist an Silvia wie an Proteus gerichtet, da Beide von ihrer Unwürdigkeit (disability) gesprochen hatten. 14) Ich will mich in einen tödtlichen Kampf einlassen mit Jedem, der das sagt, ausser Euch selbst.

Pro. I'll die on him¹⁴ that says so, but yourself.

Sil. That you are welcome?

Pro. That you are worthless.

*Enter a Servant.*¹⁵

Serv. Madam, my lord, your father, would speak with you.

Sil. I wait upon his pleasure. [Exit Servant.] Come, Sir Thurio,

Go with me. — Once more, new servant, welcome:

I'll leave you to confer of home-affairs;

When you have done, we look to hear from you.

Pro. We'll both attend upon your ladyship.

[Exeunt SILVIA, THURIO, and SPEED.]

Val. Now, tell me, how do all from whence you came?

Pro. Your friends are well, and have them much commended.¹⁶

Val. And how do yours?

Pro. I left them all in health.

Val. How does your lady, and how thrives your love?

Pro. My tales of love were wont to weary you:

I know, you joy not in a love-discourse.

Val. Ay, Proteus, but that life¹⁷ is alter'd now:

I have done penance for contemning Love;

Whose¹⁸ high imperious thoughts have punish'd me

With bitter fasts, with penitential groans,

With nightly tears, and daily heart-sore sighs;

For, in revenge of my contempt of Love,

Love hath chas'd sleep from my enthralled eyes,

And made them watchers of mine own heart's sorrow.

O gentle Proteus! Love's a mighty lord,

And hath so humbled me, as, I confess,

There is no woe to his correction,¹⁹

Nor to his service no such joy on earth!

Now, no discourse, except it be of love;

Now can I break my fast, dine, sup, and sleep,

Upon the very naked name of love.

Pro. Enough; I read your fortune in your eye.

Was this the idol that you worship so?

Val. Even she; and is she not a heavenly saint?

Pro. No, but she is an earthly paragon.²⁰

Val. Call her divine.

Pro. I will not flatter her.

Val. O! flatter me, for love delights in praises.

Pro. When I was sick you gave me bitter pills,
And I must minister the like to you.

Val. Then speak the truth by her: if not divine,

Yet let her be a principality,²¹

Sovereign to all the creatures on the earth.

Pro. Except my mistress.

Val. Sweet, except not any,

Except thou wilt except against my love.

Pro. Have I not reason to prefer mine own?

Val. And I will help thee to prefer her too:

She shall be dignified with this high honour, —

To bear my lady's train, lest the base earth

Should from her vesture chance to steal a kiss,

And, of so great a favour growing proud,

Disdain to root the summer-swelling²² flower,

And make rough winter everlastingly.

Pro. Why, Valentine, what braggardism²³ is this?

Val. Pardon me, Proteus: all I can, is nothing

To her,²⁴ whose worth makes other worthies nothing.

She is alone.

Pro. Then let her alone.

Val. Not for the world. Why, man, she is mine own,

And I as rich in having such a jewel

As twenty seas, if all their sand were pearl,

The water nectar, and the rocks pure gold.

Forgive me, that I do not dream on thee,

Because thou seest me dote upon my love.

My foolish rival, that her father likes,

Only for his possessions are so huge,²⁵

Is gone with her along, and I must after,

For love, thou know'st, is full of jealousy.

Pro. But she loves you?

Val. Ay, and we are betroth'd; nay, more, our marriage-hour,

With all the cunning manner of our flight,

Determin'd of: how I must climb her window,

The ladder made of cords, and all the means

Plotted, and 'greed on, for my happiness.²⁶

Good Proteus, go with me to my chamber,

In these affairs to aid me with thy counsel.

Pro. Go on before; I shall enquire you forth.

I must unto the road,²⁷ to disembark

Some necessaries,²⁸ that I needs must use,

And then I'll presently attend you.

Val. Will you make haste?

Pro. I will. — [Exit VALENTINE.]

Even as one heat another heat expels,

Or as one nail by strength drives out another,

15) Die Fol. lässt hier statt des Dieners Thurio auftreten, ohne vorher dessen Weggang zu bezeichnen. Wahrscheinlich ist das ungehörige Auftreten Thurio's als eines Boten hier eine blosser Bühnenconvenienz, mit der man einen Schauspieler sparen wollte. Sh. selbst wollte offenbar Silvia's erste Worte I wait upon his pleasure nicht an Thurio gerichtet wissen. — Die Umänderung rührt von Theobald her. 16) Und sie lassen sich Dir sehr empfehlen. 17) Jenes Leben, in welchem ich nichts von Liebe hören mochte. 18) whose, wofür Johnson those lesen wollte, bezieht sich auf das personifizierte Love. Der Liebesgott hat in seinem stolzen, gebieterischen Sinn es nicht ertragen, dass ich ihn verschmähte, sondern hat mich gestraft. 19) Es ist kein Schmerz zu vergleichen der Züchtigung, der Amor mich unterworfen hat, und keine Freude auf Erden der Freude an seinem Dienste. 20) So in Cymbeline (A. 3, Sc. 6) By Jupiter, an angel! or, if not, || An earthly paragon! 21) principality = Fürstlichkeit, Herrlichkeit, eine bestimmte Classe in der Hierarchie der Engel und himmlischen Heerschaaren. Steevens citirt dazu aus der englischen Bibel, aus dem Römerbrief (Cap. 8, V. 38) nor angels nor principalities. — Im Folgenden bildet except = ausgenommen, wenn nicht, ein Wortspiel mit to except against = Ausstellungen machen gegen Etwas. 22) Steevens, der einmal an summer-smelling gedacht hatte, behält doch die alte Lesart bei und erklärt sie mit the flower which swells in summer, till it expands itself into bloom. 23) braggardism = Gressprahlerei, Gebrauch von pomphaften Wörtern und Bildern. Die Fol. hat Braggadisme. Sh.'s Zeitgenossen kennen ein synonymes braggardise. 24) Das elliptische all I can ist aus dem Zusammenhange zu vervollständigen: Alles, was ich zu ihrem Lobe sagen kann, ist nichts im Vergleich mit ihr. 25) Lediglich deshalb, weil seine, d. h. Thurio's, Besitzthümer so gross sind. 26) for my happiness ist mit all the means zu verbinden. 27) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 15. 28) So in Hamlet (A. 1, Sc. 3) my necessities are embarked. 29) Dieser Vers lautet, offenbar

So the remembrance of my former love
Is by a newer object quite forgotten.
Is it mine eye, or Valentinus' praise,²⁹
Her true perfection, or my false transgression,
That makes me, reasonless, to reason thus?
She's fair, and so is Julia that I love, —
That I did love, for now my love is thaw'd,
Which, like a waxen image 'gainst a fire,³⁰
Bears no impression of the thing it was.
Methinks, my zeal to Valentine is cold,
And that I love him not, as I was wont:
O! but I love his lady too too much;
And that's the reason I love him so little.
How shall I dote on her with more advice,³¹
That thus without advice begin to love her?
'T is but her picture I have yet beheld,
And that hath dazzled³² my reason's light;
But when I look on her perfections,³³
There is no reason³⁴ but I shall be blind.
If I can check my erring love, I will;
If not, to compass her³⁵ I'll use my skill. [Exit.]

SCENE V.

The Same. A Street.

Enter SPEED and LAUNCE.

Speed. Launce! by mine honesty, welcome to Padua!¹

Launce. Forswear not thyself, sweet youth, for I am not welcome. I reckon this always, that a man is never undone, till he be hang'd; nor never welcome to a place, till some certain shot be paid, and the hostess say, >Welcome!<

Speed. Come on, you madcap, I'll to the ale-house with you presently; where for one shot of five pence thou shalt have five thousand welcomes. But, sirrah, how did thy master part with Madam Julia?

Launce. Marry, after they closed in earnest, they parted very fairly in jest.²

Speed. But shall she marry him?

Launce. No.

Speed. How then? Shall he marry her?

Launce. No, neither.

Speed. What, are they broken?

Launce. No, they are both as whole as a fish.³

Speed. Why then, how stands the matter with them?

Launce. Marry, thus: when it stands well with him, it stands well with her.

Speed. What an ass art thou! I understand⁴ thee not.

Launce. What a block art thou, that thou canst not. My staff understands me.

Speed. What thou say'st?

Launce. Ay, and what I do too: look thee, I'll but lean, and my staff understands me.

Speed. It stands under thee, indeed.

Launce. Why, stand-under and under-stand is all one.

Speed. But tell me true, will't be a match?

Launce. Ask my dog: if he say, ay, it will; if he say, no, it will; if he shake his tail, and say nothing, it will.

Speed. The conclusion is then, that it will.

Launce. Thou shalt never get such a secret from me, but by a parable.⁵

Speed. 'T is well that I get it so. But, Launce, how say'st thou,⁶ that my master is become a notable lover?

Launce. I never knew him otherwise.

Speed. Than how?

Launce. A notable lubber, as thou reportest him to be.

Speed. Why, thou whoreson ass, thou mistak'st me.

Launce. Why, fool, I meant not thee; I meant thy master.

Speed. I tell thee, my master is become a hot lover.

Launce. Why, I tell thee, I care not though he burn himself in love. If thou wilt go with me to the ale-house,⁷ entstellt und unvollständig, in der Fol. It is mine, or Valentine's praise? woraus die zweite Folioausg. von 1632 machte: Is it mine then, or Valentine's praise? Dieser Lesart am nächsten kommt Capell's Conjectur Is it mine own, or Valentino's praise? Besser empfiehlt sich Warburton's Vermuthung, dass hinter mine ein Wort wie eye verloren gegangen, als Malone's Annahme, mine sei für mien geschrieben und vor dem Worte sei her, scil. Silvia's, zu suppliren. Die Antithese zwischen Silvia und Proteus kommt erst in dem folgenden Verse; in diesem erwartet man eine zwischen Proteus und Valentin. — Zu Valentinus für Valentine vgl. A. 1, Sc. 3, Anm. 14. 30) Dasselbe Bild in K. John (A. 5, Sc. 4) even as a form of wax || Resolveth from his figure 'gainst the fire. — Man dachte dabei an solche Wachfiguren, durch deren Schmelzen Zauberer und Hexen die Personen, welche in den Bildern dargestellt waren, hinschwinden liessen. 31) more advice = bessere Ueberlegung, Nachdenken, als Compositum zu fassen, ist Gegensatz zu without advice = unüberlegt. — Zwei Zeilen vorher setzen Dyce und Staunton, nach Halliwell's Vorgange, too-too much, und fassen too-too als Compositum = excessively. Indess ergiebt sich derselbe Sinn auch aus dem zur Verstärkung wiederholten too. Uebrigens schreibt schon die Fol. too-too much. 32) dazzled ist dreisylbig (dazzeled) zu lesen. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 3, Anm. 19. 33) her perfections = ihre inneren Vorzüge und Gaben, ist entgegengesetzt dem her picture = das Bild ihres Aeussern, ihre Aussenseite. Ebenso stehen to dazzle und to be blind einander gegenüber. 34) Collier meint, reason sei hier = doubt. Gewiss aber ist hier reason in dem gewöhnlichen Sinne zu fassen und elliptisch zu erklären: es ist kein Grund, anzunehmen, dass ich nicht erblinden werde, d. h. ich werde jedenfalls erblinden. 35) my erring love = meine von Julia zu Silvia abschweifende Liebe; her bezieht sich dann auf my love allein = der Gegenstand meiner Liebe, d. h. Silvia.

1) to Padua in der Fol., wofür Pope to Milan änderte, ist ein Versehen, das gewiss Sh. selbst sich zu Schulden kommen liess, wie im Verlaufe des Stückes noch mehrere ähnliche Ortsverwechselungen sich finden. 2) to close = eins werden, abschliessen mit Jemandem, steht dem to part = scheiden, auseinandergehen, so gegenüber wie in earnest dem in jest. 3) are they broken? = haben sie mit einander gebrochen? missversteht Launce geflissentlich = sind sie verwundet? und whole ist = ganz, heil, und = gesund. — as a fish = gesund wie ein Fisch im Wasser. 4) to understand knüpft an das vorhergehende, mit einem obscönen Nebensinne gebrauchte to stand an und ist ebenfalls doppelsinnig = verstehen, und = unter Jemandem stehen. 5) by a parable. Darunter versteht Launce die Verweisung auf seinen Hund, der statt seiner selbst Speed's Frage beantworten soll. — Speed scheint das Wort nicht zu verstehen. 6) Was sagst Du dazu, dass mein Herr u. s. w. So in Macbeth (A. 3, Sc. 4) How say'st thou, that Macduff denies his person || At our great bidding? 7) Wenn so; if not, thou art an Hebrew, a Jew,⁸ and not worth the name of a Christian.

Speed. Why?

Launce. Because thou hast not so much charity in thee, as to go to the ale⁹ with a Christian. Wilt thou go?

Speed. At thy service. [Exeunt.]

SCENE VI.

The Same. An Apartment in the Palace.

Enter PROTEUS.

Pro. To leave my Julia, shall I be forsworn;

To love fair Silvia, shall I be forsworn;

To wrong my friend, I shall be much forsworn;

And even that power which gave me first my oath,

Provokes me to this threefold perjury:

Love bade me swear, and Love bids me forswear.

O sweet-suggesting¹ Love! if thou hast sinn'd,

Teach me, thy tempted subject, to excuse it.

At first I did adore a twinkling star,

But now I worship a celestial sun.

Unheeded vows may heedfully be broken;²

And he wants wit that wants resolved will

To learn³ his wit to exchange the bad for better. —

Fie, fie, unreverend tongue! to call her bad,

Whose sovereignty so oft thou hast preferr'd

With twenty thousand soul-confirming oaths.⁴

I cannot leave to love, and yet I do;

But there I leave to love, where I should love.

Julia I lose, and Valentine I lose:

If I keep them, I needs must lose myself;

If I lose them, thus find I, by their loss,

For Valentine, myself; for Julia, Silvia.

I to myself am dearer than a friend,

For love is still most precious in itself;

And Silvia (witness heaven that made her fair!)

Shows Julia but a swarthy Ethiop.⁵

I will forget that Julia is alive,

Remembering that my love to her is dead;

And Valentine I'll hold an enemy,

Aiming at Silvia, as a sweeter friend.

I cannot now prove constant to myself

Without some treachery used to Valentine: —

This night, he meaneth with a corded ladder

To climb celestial Silvia's chamber-window;

Myself in counsel, his competitor.⁶

Now, presently I'll give her father notice

Of their disguising, and pretended⁷ flight;

Who, all enrag'd, will banish Valentine,

For Thurio, he intends, shall wed his daughter;

But, Valentine being gone, I'll quickly cross

By some sly trick blunt Thurio's dull proceeding.

Love, lend me wings to make my purpose swift,

As thou hast lent me wit to plot this drift! [Exit.]⁸

SCENE VII.

Verona. A Room in JULIA'S House.

Enter JULIA and LUCETTA.

Jul. Counsel, Lucetta; gentle girl, assist me;

And, e'en in kind love, I do conjure thee,¹

Who art the table² wherein all my thoughts

Are visibly character'd³ and engrav'd,

To lesson me; and tell me some good mean,

How, with my honour,⁴ I may undertake

A journey to my loving Proteus.

Luc. Alas! the way is wearisome and long.

Jul. A true-devoted pilgrim is not weary

To measure kingdoms with his feeble steps;

Much less shall she, that hath Love's wings to fly,

And when the flight is made to one so dear,

Of such divine perfection, as Sir Proteus.

Luc. Better forbear, till Proteus make return.

Jul. O! know'st thou not, his looks are my soul's food?

Pity the dearth that I have pined in,

By longing for that food so long a time.

Didst thou but know the inly touch of love,

Thou wouldst as soon go kindle fire with snow,

As seek to quench the fire of love with words.

Luc. I do not seek to quench your love's hot fire,

But qualify the fire's extreme rage,⁵

Lest it should burn above the bounds of reason.

Jul. The more thou damm'st it up, the more it burns.

Du mit mir in ein Wirthshaus gehen willst, so ist es gut. — Das so, das in diesem Sinne bei Sh. häufig elliptisch gebraucht wird (vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 24) ist in der Fol. zufällig ausgelassen, aber von der zweiten Folioausg. von 1632 richtig ergänzt. — Die Interpunction der Fol. zeigt, dass if thou wilt go etc. nicht mit dem vorhergehenden Satze zu verbinden ist. 8) So in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 2, Sc. 4) or I am a Jew else, an Ebrew Jew. 9) ale = Bier, Bierhaus, und = christliches Volksfest, an dem sich folglich ein Jude nicht betheiligen mag.

1) sweet-suggesting = süß verlockend, durch süsse Einflüsterungen verführend. — Diese Verlockung ist die Sünde, welche die Liebe sich hat zu Schulden kommen lassen: if thou hast sinn'd. 2) Gelübde, die man unachtsam geleistet hat, dürfen gebrochen werden, wenn man achtsamer geworden ist. 3) to learn für to teach. 4) soul-confirming oath = ein Eidschwur, den man aus oder mit ganzer Seele bekräftigt. 5) Ethiop = Negerin, als Repräsentantin weiblicher Hässlichkeit, hat Sh. öfter; so in Much Ado about Nothing (A. 5, Sc. 4) I'll hold my mind, were she an Ethiop, und in Love's Labour's Lost (A. 4, Sc. 3) Thou for whom Jove would swear || Juno but an Ethiop were. 6) Indem ich als sein Genosse im Geheimniß, im Vertrauen bin. — competitor = Theilhaber, Genosse, ist Sh.'sch. — Johnson fasst, weniger plausibel, das Wort in seiner gewöhnlichen Bedeutung = Nebenbuhler, und nimmt einen Gegensatz zwischen in counsel und his competitor an. 7) to pretend = einen Anschlag machen zu Etwas, projectiren. 8) Mit der folgenden Scene wollte Johnson den dritten Act beginnen. Indess ist es rathsam, die Abtheilung der Fol. beizubehalten.

1) to conjure = beschwören, dringend bitten, betont Sh. auf der ersten Sylbe; to conjure = Geister beschwören, bald auf der ersten, bald auf der zweiten Sylbe. — I do conjure thee ist mit to lesson me zu verbinden. 2) table = Schreibtafel, synonym mit table-book = Notizenbuch, gebraucht Sh. häufig in diesem übertragenen Sinne, so in All's well that ends well (A. 1, Sc. 1) in our heart's table, und Troilus and Cressida (A. 4, Sc. 5) And wide unclasp the tables of their thoughts || To every tickling reader. 3) to character = einschreiben, eingraben, betont Sh. auf der zweiten Sylbe. 4) Unbeschadet meiner Ehre, im Einklang mit meinem guten Rufe. 5) fire ist auch hier zweisylbig zu lesen und extreme auf der ersten Sylbe zu betonen. 6) wild

The current, that with gentle murmur glides,
Thou know'st, being stopp'd, impatiently doth rage;
But, when his fair course is not hindered,
He makes sweet music with the enamell'd stones,
Giving a gentle kiss to every sedge
He overtaketh in his pilgrimage;
And so by many winding nooks he strays
With willing sport to the wild ocean.⁶
Then, let me go, and hinder not my course.
I'll be as patient as a gentle stream,
And make a pastime of each weary step,
Till the last step have brought me to my love;
And there I'll rest, as, after much turmoil,⁷
A blessed soul doth in Elysium.

Luc. But in what habit will you go along?

Jul. Not like a woman; for I would prevent
The loose encounters of lascivious men.
Gentle Lucetta, fit me with such weeds
As may beseeem some well-reputed page.

Luc. Why, then your ladyship must cut your hair.

Jul. No, girl; I'll knit it up in silken strings,
With twenty odd-conceited true-love knots:⁸
To be fantastic,⁹ may become a youth
Of greater time than I shall show to be.

Luc. What fashion, Madam, shall I make your breeches?

Jul. That fits as well as — Tell me, good my lord,
What compass will you wear your farthingale?
Why, even what fashion¹⁰ thou best lik'st, Lucetta.

Luc. You must needs have them with a codpiece, Madam.

Jul. Out, out, Lucetta! that will be ill-favour'd.

Luc. A round hose, Madam, now's not worth a pin,
Unless you have a codpiece to stick pins on.¹¹

Jul. Lucetta, as thou lov'st me, let me have What thou think'st meet, and is most mannerly.
But tell me, wench, how will the world repute me
For undertaking so unstaidd¹² a journey?
I fear me, it will make me scandaliz'd.

Luc. If you think so, then stay at home, and go not.

Jul. Nay, that I will not.

Luc. Then never dream on infamy,¹³ but go.
If Proteus like your journey, when you come,
No matter who's displeas'd, when you are gone.
I fear me, he will scarce be pleas'd withal.

Jul. That is the least, Lucetta, of my fear.

A thousand oaths, an ocean of his tears,
And instances of infinite of love,¹⁴
Warrant me welcome to my Proteus.

Luc. All these are servants to deceitful men.

Jul. Base men, that use them to so base effect;
But truer stars did govern Proteus' birth:
His words are bonds, his oaths are oracles;
His love sincere, his thoughts immaculate;
His tears pure messengers sent from his heart;
His heart as far from fraud, as heaven from earth.

Luc. Pray heaven, he prove so, when you come to him!

Jul. Now, as thou lov'st me, do him not that wrong,
To bear a hard opinion of his truth:
Only deserve my love by loving him,
And presently go with me to my chamber,
To take a note of what I stand in need of,
To furnish me upon my longing journey.¹⁵
All that is mine I leave at thy dispose,
My goods, my lands, my reputation;
Only, in lieu thereof,¹⁶ dispatch me hence.
Come, answer not, but to it presently:
I am impatient of my tarriance. [Exeunt.]

ACT III.

SCENE I.

Milan. An Antechamber in the Duke's Palace.

Enter DUKE, THURIO, and PROTEUS.

Duke. Sir Thurio, give us leave, I pray, awhile:
We have some secrets to confer about. — [Exit THURIO.]
Now, tell me, Proteus, what's your will with me?

Pro. My gracious lord, that which I would discover,
The law of friendship bids me to conceal;
But, when I call to mind your gracious favours
Done to me, undeserving as I am,
My duty pricks me on to utter that
Which else no worldly good should draw from me.
Know, worthy prince, Sir Valentine, my friend,
This night intends to steal away your daughter:
Myself am one made privy to the plot.
I know you have determin'd to bestow her
On Thurio, whom your gentle daughter hates;
And should she thus be stol'n away from you,
It would be much vexation to your age.
Thus, for my duty's sake, I rather chose
To cross my friend in his intended drift,
Than, by concealing it, heap on your head ocean ist dem gentle stream entgegengesetzt. 7) turmoil = Plackerei, Erdennoth, welche der Mensch auszustehen hat, ehe er als seliger Geist (blessed soul) im Elysium ausruht. 8) true-love knots sind hier die Bandschleifen, welche das Haar zusammenfassen und in künstlicher Verschlingung symbolisch die innige Liebesverbin-dung zwischen Proteus und Julia andeuten sollen. 9) fantastic = von der Wirklichkeit abweichend, der Einbildung, namentlich der Liebe hingegeben, hier in Bezug auf die äussere Erscheinung und Tracht. So in Winter's Tale

(A. 4, Sc. 3) he seems to be the more noble in being fantastical. 10) So die Fol. Manche Hgg. ändern ohne Noth that fashion. — Für lik'st hat die Fol., einer nachlässigen und bequemeren Aussprache gemäss, likes, wie sie öfter das st der zweiten Person abschleift, um eine zu grosse Consonantenhäufung zu vermeiden. 11) Bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen wird die Mode, einen so dick ausgestopften Hosenlatz zu tragen, dass er füglich als Nadelkissen dienen könnte, mehrfach persiflirt. So in Tyro's Roaring Meg (1598) Tyro's round breeches have a cliff behind; ||
And that same perking longitude before, || Which for a pin-case antique plowmen wore. 12) unstaidd = unsolide, leichtsinnig. 13) infamy = übler Leumund, bezieht sich auf scandaliz'd. 14) infinite = unendliche Zahl oder Grösse, Unendlichkeit, gebraucht Sh. auch sonst substantivisch. So in Much Ado about Nothing
(A. 2, Sc. 3) the infinite of thought, und ohne bestimmten Artikel steht es bei Chaucer: although the life of it be stretched with infinite of time; also: und Proben von unendlich vieler oder grosser Liebe. — Viele Hgg. lesen mit der zweiten Folioausg. von 1632 dafür instances as infinite, und Malone instances of the infinite of love.
15) Nach Steevens' Meinung stände longing für longed, ein Particip für das andere. Richtiger erklärt M. Mason a journey which she shall pass in longing. 16) An dessen Statt, was ich Dir zur Verfügung zurücklasse.

A pack of sorrows, which would press you down,
Being unprevented,¹ to your timeless grave.

Duke. Proteus, I thank thee for thine honest care,
Which to requite, command me while I live.
This love of theirs myself have often seen,
Haply, when they have judg'd me fast asleep;
And oftentimes have purpos'd to forbid
Sir Valentine her company, and my court;
But, fearing lest my jealous aim² might err,
And so unworthily disgrace the man
(A rashness that I ever yet have shunn'd),
I gave him gentle looks; thereby to find
That which thyself hast now disclos'd to me.
And, that thou may'st perceive my fear of this,
Knowing that tender youth is soon suggested,³
I nightly lodge her in an upper tower,⁴
The key whereof myself have ever kept;
And thence she cannot be convey'd away.

Pro. Know, noble lord, they have devis'd a mean
How he her chamber-window will ascend,
And with a corded ladder fetch her down;
For which the youthful lover now is gone,
And this way comes he with it presently,
Where, if it please you, you may intercept him.
But, good my lord, do it so cunningly,
That my discovery be not aimed at;
For love of you, not hate unto my friend,
Hath made me publisher of this pretence.⁵

Duke. Upon mine honour, he shall never know
That I had any light from thee of this.

Pro. Adieu, my lord: Sir Valentine is coming. [Exit.]

Enter VALENTINE.

Duke. Sir Valentine, whither away so fast?

Val. Please it your grace, there is a messenger
That stays to bear my letters to my friends,⁶
And I am going to deliver them.

Duke. Be they of much import?

Val. The tenor of them doth but signify
My health, and happy being at your court.

Duke. Nay, then no matter: stay with me awhile.
I am to break with thee⁷ of some affairs,
That touch me near, wherein thou must be secret.
'T is not unknown to thee, that I have sought
To match my friend, Sir Thurio, to my daughter.

Val. I know it well, my lord; and, sure, the match
Were rich and honourable; besides, the gentleman
Is full of virtue, bounty, worth, and qualities

Beseeming such a wife as your fair daughter.

Cannot your grace win her to fancy him?

Duke. No, trust me: she is peevish, sullen, froward,
Proud, disobedient, stubborn, lacking duty;
Neither regarding that she is my child,
Nor fearing me as if I were her father:⁸
And, may I say to thee, this pride of hers,
Upon advice,⁹ hath drawn my love from her;
And, where¹⁰ I thought the remnant of mine age
Should have been cherish'd by her child-like duty,
I now am full resolv'd to take a wife,
And turn her out to who will take her in:
Then, let her beauty be her wedding-dower;¹¹
For me and my possessions she esteems not.

Val. What would your grace have me to do in this?

Duke. There is a lady in Verona here,¹²
Whom I affect; but she is nice, and coy,
And nought esteems my aged eloquence:¹³
Now, therefore, would I have thee to my tutor
(For long ago I have forgot to court;
Besides, the fashion of the time¹⁴ is chang'd),
How, and which way, I may bestow myself,
To be regarded in her sun-bright eye.

Val. Win her with gifts, if she respect not words.
Dumb jewels often, in their silent kind,
More than quick words do move a woman's mind.

Duke. But she did scorn a present that I sent her.

Val. A woman sometimes scorns what best contents her.¹⁵
Send her another; never give her o'er,
For scorn at first makes after-love¹⁶ the more.
If she do frown, 't is not in hate of you,
But rather to beget more love in you;
If she do chide, 't is not to have you gone,
For why¹⁷ the fools are mad, if left alone.
Take no repulse, whatever she doth say;
For, »get you gone« she doth not mean, »away.«
Flatter, and praise, commend, extol their graces;
Though ne'er so black, say they have angels' faces.
That man that hath a tongue, I say, is no man,
If with his tongue he cannot win a woman.

Duke. But she I mean is promis'd by her friends
Unto a youthful gentleman of worth,
And kept severely from resort of men,
That no man hath access by day to her.

Val. Why, then I would resort to her by night.

Duke. Ay, but the doors be lock'd, and keys kept safe,
That no man hath recourse to her by night.

Val. What lets¹⁸ but one may enter at her window?

1) being unprevented bezieht sich auf a pack of sorrows = wenn man ihnen nicht zuvorkäme. 2) my jealous aim = meine argwöhnische Vermuthung, die Richtung meines Argwohns. — Ebenso bald nachher to aim at = Etwas vermuthen, errathen. 3) to suggest = verlocken, verführen. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 6, Anm. 1. 4) d. h. in dem obern Theil oder Stockwerk eines Thurmes. 5) pretence = Anschlag. 6) my friends sind Valentin's Verwandte in Verona. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 3, Anm. 15. 7) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 3, Anm. 10. 8) Sie hat nicht die kindliche Ehrfurcht vor mir, die mir als Vater gebührt. 9) Nachdem ich mir die Sache überlegt habe. 10) where für whereas ist Sh.'sch. 11) So in K. Lear (A. 1, Sc. 1) thy truth then be thy dower. 12) There is a lady, Sir, in Milan here emendirte Pope den obigen Vers der Fol., den Sh. selbst so schrieb mit einer Ortsverwechslung, die ihm auch vorher und nachher in diesem Stücke widerfuhr. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 5, Anm. 1. — Pope's Emendation ist weniger gesucht, als Halliwell's a lady of Verona, da die Herkunft der Dame nichts zur Sache thut, oder Dyce's a lady in Milano, da Sh. sonst nirgendwo diese seinem Publikum unbekannte italienische Bezeichnung für das englische Milan anwendet. 13) Sie ist eigensinnig und spröde, und verachtet mein Reden, weil ich alt bin. 14) the fashion of the time bezieht sich auf to court: die Art und Weise, wie man früher und wie man jetzt einer Dame den Hof macht. 15) Um den Reim sent her — contents her zu verbessern, änderte Steevens überflüssig und willkürlich sent, Sir, und M. Mason content her. — Ungenaue Reime kommen bei Sh. in diesem Drama wie in andern vor. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 25. 16) after-love = spätere Liebe. — So in Coriolanus (A. 2, Sc. 2) after-meeting = spätere Zusammenkunft. 17) for why = because. — Manche Hgg. setzen mit

Duke. Her chamber is aloft, far from the ground,
And built so shelving, that one cannot climb it
Without apparent hazard of his life.

Val. Why then, a ladder quaintly made of cords,
To cast up, with a pair of anchoring hooks,
Would serve to scale another Hero's tower,
So bold Leander would adventure it.¹⁹

Duke. Now, as thou art a gentleman of blood,
Advise me where I may have such a ladder.

Val. When would you use it? pray, Sir, tell me that.

Duke. This very night; for Love is like a child,
That longs for every thing that he can come by.

Val. By seven o'clock I'll get you such a ladder.

Duke. But hark thee; I will go to her alone.
How shall I best convey the ladder thither?

Val. It will be light, my lord, that you may bear it
Under a cloak that is of any length.

Duke. A cloak as long as thine will serve the turn?

Val. Ay, my good lord.

Duke. Then, let me see thy cloak:
I'll get me one of such another length.

Val. Why, any cloak will serve the turn, my lord.

Duke. How shall I fashion me to wear a cloak? —
I pray thee, let me feel thy cloak upon me. —
What letter is this same? What's here? — »To Silvia«?
And here an engine fit for my proceeding!²⁰
I'll be so bold to break the seal for once. [Reads.

*My thoughts do harbour with my Silvia nightly;
And slaves they are to me, that send them flying:
O! could their master come and go as lightly,*

*Himself would lodge, where senseless they are lying.
My herald thoughts in thy pure bosom rest them;²¹*

*While I, their king, that thither them importune,
Do curse the grace that with such grace hath bless'd them,*

*Because myself do want my servants' fortune:
I curse myself, for²² they are sent by me,
That they should harbour where their lord should be.*

What's here?

„Silvia, this night I will enfranchise thee.“

'T is so; and here's the ladder for the purpose. —

Why, Phaethon (for thou art Merops' son),²³

Wilt thou aspire to guide the heavenly car,
And with thy daring folly burn the world?

Wilt thou reach stars, because they shine on thee?²⁴

Go, base intruder! overweening slave!

Bestow thy fawning smiles on equal mates,

And think my patience, more than thy desert,
Is privilege for thy departure hence.
Thank me for this, more than for all the favours,
Which, all too much, I have bestow'd on thee:
But if thou linger in my territories
Longer than swiftest expedition
Will give thee time to leave our royal court,²⁵
By heaven, my wrath shall far exceed the love
I ever bore my daughter, or thyself.
Be gone: I will not hear thy vain excuse;
But, as thou lov'st thy life, make speed from hence.

[Exit DUKE.

Val. And why not death, rather than living torment?²⁶
To die is to be banish'd from myself;
And Silvia is myself: banish'd from her,
Is self from self;²⁷ a deadly banishment.
What light is light, if Silvia be not seen?
What joy is joy, if Silvia be not by?
Unless it be, to think that she is by,
And feed upon the shadow of perfection.
Except I be by Silvia in the night,
There is no music in the nightingale;
Unless I look on Silvia in the day,
There is no day for me to look upon.
She is my essence; and I leave to be,
If I be not by her fair influence
Foster'd, illumin'd, cherish'd, kept alive.
I fly not death, to fly his deadly doom:²⁸
Tarry I here, I but attend on death;
But, fly I hence, I fly away from life.

Enter PROTEUS and LAUNCE.

Pro. Run, boy; run, run, and seek him out.

Launce. Soho! soho!²⁹

Pro. What seest thou?

Launce. Him we go to find: there's not a hair³⁰ on 's head, but 't is a Valentine.

Pro. Valentine?

Val. No.

Pro. Who then? his spirit?

Val. Neither.

Pro. What then?

Val. Nothing.

Launce. Can nothing speak? master, shall I strike?

Pro. Who wouldst thou strike?³¹

Launce. Nothing.

Pro. Villain, forbear.

Launce. Why, Sir, I'll strike nothing: I pray you, —

Unrecht ein Comma hinter for why. 18) to let = hindern. 19) Auch hier haben die Hgg. eine Anspielung auf Marlowe's Gedicht Hero and Leander finden wollen. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 7. 20) Er findet in Valentin's Mantel ausser dem Briefe noch solch eine Strickleiter, wie Valentin sie ihm eben empfohlen hatte. 21) Valentin's schriftlich ausgedrückte Gedanken, die er wie Herolde an Silvia sendet, ruhen aus an ihrer reinen Brust, indem sie den Brief in ihrem Busen verbirgt. — In demselben Sinne ist auch my thoughts do harbour etc. zu fassen. 22) for = deswegen, weil. 23) Diese Parenthese erklärt Johnson: Thou art Phaethon in thy rashness, but without his pretensions; thou art not the son of a divinity, but a terrae filius; Merops is thy true father, with whom Phaethon was falsely reproached. — Vielleicht wollte Sh. aber mit den eingeklammerten Worten nur sagen: denn Du bist wirklich Phaethon. 24) So in Greene's Novelle Pandosto and Fawnia: Stars are to be looked at with the eye, not reached at with the hand. 25) royal steht hier in demselben weiteren Sinne bei court, wie vorher. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 3, Anm. 7. 26) living torment = eine Marter, bei der man am Leben bleibt. 27) scil. is self banished from self = eine gewaltsame Zerreissung des eigenen Selbst, von der man stirbt. 28) his deadly doom ist das Todesurtheil, mit dem der Herzog den Valentin bedrohte für den Fall, dass dieser bliebe. Wenn Valentin diesem Urtheil ausweicht, indem er geht, so weicht er doch damit dem Tode nicht aus, da er ohne Silvia nicht leben kann. 29) soho, ein Jagdruf, wenn man den Hasen sitzen sieht. So attrapirt Launce das Wild, das er sieht, den Valentin nämlich. 30) Wortspiel zwischen hair = Haar, und hare = Hase. 31) Launce, der noch immer auf der Jagd begriffen ist, will den Valentin erlegen, der sich selbst

Pro. Sirrah, I say, forbear. — Friend Valentine, a word.

Val. My ears are stopp'd, and cannot hear good news, So much of bad already hath possess'd them.

Pro. Then in dumb silence will I bury mine,³² For they are harsh, untuneable, and bad.

Val. Is Silvia dead?

Pro. No, Valentine.

Val. No Valentine,³³ indeed, for sacred Silvia! — Hath she forsworn me?

Pro. No, Valentine.

Val. No Valentine, if Silvia have forsworn me!³⁴ — What is your news?

Launce. Sir, there is a proclamation that you are vanish'd.³⁵

Pro. That thou art banish'd: O! that is the news, From hence, from Silvia, and from me, thy friend.

Val. O! I have fed upon this woe already, And now excess of it will make me surfeit.³⁶ Doth Silvia know that I am banished?

Pro. Ay, ay; and she hath offer'd to the doom (Which, unrevers'd,³⁷ stands in effectual force) A sea of melting pearl, which some call tears: Those at her father's churlish feet she tender'd, With them, upon her knees, her humble self, Wringing her hands, whose whiteness so became them, As if but now they waxed pale for woe: But neither bended knees, pure hands held up, Sad sighs, deep groans, nor silver-shedding tears, Could penetrate her uncompassionate sire; But Valentine, if he be ta'en, must die.

Besides, her intercession chaf'd him so, When she for thy repeal was suppliant, That to close prison he commanded her, With many bitter threats of biding there.

Val. No more; unless the next word that thou speak'st Have some malignant power upon my life: If so, I pray thee, breathe it in mine ear, As ending anthem of my endless dolour.³⁸

Pro. Cease to lament for that thou canst not help, And study help for that which thou lament'st. Time is the nurse and breeder of all good. Here if thou stay, thou canst not see thy love; Besides, thy staying will abridge thy life. Hope is a lover's staff; walk hence with that, And manage it against despairing thoughts. Thy letters may be here, though thou art hence; Which, being writ to me, shall be deliver'd

Even in the milk-white bosom of thy love.³⁹

The time now serves not to expostulate:

Come, I'll convey thee through the city-gate, And, ere I part with thee, confer at large Of all that may concern thy love-affairs.

As thou lov'st Silvia, though not for thyself, Regard thy danger, and along with me!

Val. I pray thee, Launce, an if thou seest my boy, Bid him make haste, and meet me at the North-gate.

Pro. Go, sirrah, find him out. Come, Valentine.

Val. O my dear Silvia! hapless Valentine!

[Exeunt VALENTINE and PROTEUS.]

Launce. I am but a fool, look you, and yet I have the wit to think, my master is a kind of a knave; but that's all one, if he be but one knave.⁴⁰ He lives not now, that knows me to be in love: yet I am in love; but a team of horse shall not pluck that from me, nor who 't is I love; and yet 't is a woman: but what woman, I will not tell myself; and yet 't is a milkmaid; yet 't is not a maid, for she hath had gossips;⁴¹ yet 't is a maid, for she is her master's maid, and serves for wages. She hath more qualities than a water-spaniel,⁴² which is much in a bare Christian. Here is the cate-log [pulling out a paper] of her conditions.⁴³ Imprimis, »She can fetch and carry.« Why, a horse can do no more: nay, a horse cannot fetch, but only carry; therefore is she better than a jade. Item, »She can milk,« look you; a sweet virtue in a maid with clean hands.

Enter SPEED.

Speed. How now, Signior Launce? what news with your mastership?

Launce. With my master's ship?⁴⁴ why, it is at sea.

Speed. Well, your old vice still; mistake the word. What news, then, in your paper?

Launce. The blackest news that ever thou heard'st.

Speed. Why, man, how black?

Launce. Why, as black as ink.

Speed. Let me read them.

Launce. Fie on thee, jolt-head! thou canst not read.

Speed. Thou liest, I can.

Launce. I will try thee. Tell me this: who begot thee?

Speed. Marry, the son of my grandfather.

Launce. O illiterate loiterer! it was the son of thy grandmother. This proves, that thou canst not read.⁴⁵

Speed. Come, fool, come: try me in thy paper.

Launce. There, and saint Nicholas be thy speed!⁴⁶

als Nichts bezeichnet. — Für das Sh.'sche who als Accusativ setzen viele Hgg. willkürlich whom. 32) scil. my news, hier als Plural gefasst. 33) no = nein, und = kein, wurde schon einmal als Wortspiel benutzt. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 28. — sacred Silvia = die verklarte Silvia, bezieht sich auf die Frage: Is Silvia dead? 34) Valentin existirt nicht mehr, wenn Silvia sich von mir losgesagt hat. 35) Launce will banish'd sagen. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 3, Anm. 1. 36) So in Twelfth-Night (A. 1, Sc. 1) Give me excess of it; that, surfeiting, || The appetite may sicken, and so die. 37) unreversed = wenn es, das Urtheil, nicht widerrufen wird. 38) ending bezieht sich mit auf endless dolour = ein Trauerlied, das meinem endlosen Schmerz ein Ende macht, indem es mich tödtet. 39) Vgl. oben Anm. 21. — So ist in Hamlet (A. 2, Sc. 2) der Brief an Ophelia adressirt In her excellent white bosom, these. 40) Die Hgg. erklären theils: wenn er nur ein einfacher Schurke, kein doppelter Schurke ist; theils: wenn er nur ein ganzer, consequenter Schurke ist; theils: wenn er nur allein ein Schurke ist, und nicht ich auch einer bin. — Für die erstere Erklärung spricht, dass derselbe Ausdruck in sprichwörtlicher Anwendung auch sonst vorkommt. So in Edwards' Damon and Pythias: You lose money by him, if you serve him for one knave, for he serves for twain. — Für one knave wollte Warburton one kind scil. one kind of knave lesen. Staunton vermuthet one in love dafür. 41) Sie hat schon Gevatterinnen gehabt, hat schon ein Wochenbett überstanden. 42) Sie versteht mehr Künste als ein Hund, den man dressirt hat, in's Wasser zu gehen, zu apportiren und so weiter. 43) cate-log entstellt aus catalogue. — conditions verbessert die vierte Folioausg. das condition der früheren Folioausgg. 44) Das beabsichtigte Wortspiel stellte Theobald her, indem er das my mastership der Fol. in my master's ship emendirte. 45) Einem Menschen, der so unwissend ist, dass er

Speed. Imprimis, »She can milk.«
Launce. Ay, that she can.
Speed. Item, »She brews good ale.«
Launce. And thereof comes the proverb, — Blessing of your heart, you brew good ale.⁴⁷
Speed. Item, »She can sew.«
Launce. That 's as much as to say, Can she so?⁴⁸
Speed. Item, »She can knit.«
Launce. What need a man care for a stock with a wench, when she can knit him a stock?⁴⁹
Speed. Item, »She can wash and scour.«
Launce. A special virtue; for then she need not be wash'd and scour'd.
Speed. Item, »She can spin.«
Launce. Then may I set the world on wheels,⁵⁰ when she can spin for her living.
Speed. Item, »She hath many nameless virtues.«
Launce. That 's as much as to say, bastard virtues; that, indeed, know not their fathers, and therefore have no names.
Speed. Here follow her vices.
Launce. Close at the heels of her virtues.
Speed. Item, »She is not to be kissed⁵¹ fasting, in respect of her breath.«
Launce. Well, that fault may be mended with a breakfast. Read on.
Speed. Item, »She hath a sweet mouth.«⁵²
Launce. That makes amends for her sour breath.
Speed. Item, »She doth talk in her sleep.«
Launce. It 's no matter for that, so she sleep not in her talk.
Speed. Item, »She is slow in words.«
Launce. O villain, that set this down among her vices! To be slow in words is a woman's only virtue.⁵³ I pray thee, out with 't, and place it for her chief virtue.
Speed. Item, »She is proud.«
Launce. Out with that too: it was Eve's legacy, and cannot be ta'en from her.
Speed. Item, »She hath no teeth.«
Launce. I care not for that neither, because I love crusts.
Speed. Item, »She is curst.«
Launce. Well; the best is, she hath no teeth to bite.
Speed. Item, »She will often praise her liquor.«⁵⁴
Launce. If her liquor be good, she shall: if she will not, I will; for good things should be praised.
Speed. Item, »She is too liberal.«
Launce. Of her tongue⁵⁵ she cannot, for that 's writ down she is slow of; of her purse she shall not, for that I 'll keep shut; now, of another thing she may, and that cannot I help. Well, proceed.

Speed. Item, »She hath more hair than wit,⁵⁶ and more faults than hairs, and more wealth than faults.«

Launce. Stop there; I 'll have her: she was mine, and not mine, twice or thrice in that last article. Rehearse that once more.

Speed. Item, »She hath more hair than wit,« —

Launce. More hair than wit, — it may be; I 'll prove it: the cover of the salt hides the salt, and therefore it is more than the salt: the hair, that covers the wit, is more than the wit, for the greater hides the less. What 's next?

Speed. — »And more faults than hairs,« —

Launce. That 's monstrous: O, that that were out!

Speed. — »And more wealth than faults.«

Launce. Why, that word makes the faults gracious.⁵⁷ Well, I 'll have her; and if it be a match, as nothing is impossible, —

Speed. What then?

Launce. Why, then will I tell thee, — that thy master stays for thee at the North-gate.

Speed. For me?

Launce. For thee! ay; who art thou? he hath stay'd for a better man than thee.

Speed. And must I go to him?

Launce. Thou must run to him, for thou hast stay'd so long, that going will scarce serve the turn.

Speed. Why didst not tell me sooner? pox of your love-letters! [Exit.

Launce. Now will he be swing'd for reading my letter.⁵⁸ An unmannerly slave, that will thrust himself into secrets. — I 'll after, to rejoice in the boy's correction. [Exit.

SCENE II.

The Same. An Apartment in the Duke's Palace.

Enter DUKE and THURIO; PROTEUS behind.

Duke. Sir Thurio, fear not but that she will love you, Now Valentine is banish'd from her sight.

Thu. Since his exile¹ she hath despis'd me most; Forsworn my company, and rail'd at me, That I am desperate of obtaining her.

Duke. This weak impress of love is as a figure Trenched² in ice, which with an hour's heat seinen wirklichen Erzeuger nicht kennt, lässt sich auch nicht zutrauen, dass er lesen könne. 46) St. Nicolas war der Patron der Schüler und soll in dieser Eigenschaft dem Speed bei seinem Versuch zu lesen beistehen. — Vielleicht ist auch ein Wortspiel zwischen Speed und speed beabsichtigt. 47) So in Ben Jonson's Masque of Augurs: Our ale 's o' the best || And each good guest || Pray for their souls that brew it. 48) Wortspiel zwischen sew und so. — Die Fol. schreibt sowe für sew. 49) Wortspiel zwischen stock = Capital, das man mit dem Mädchen bekommt, und stock = Strumpf. 50) to set the world on wheels = die Welt sich drehen lassen, der Welt ihren Lauf lassen. So heisst es von der Welt in Antony and Cleopatra (A. 2, Sc. 7) that it might go on wheels. 51) kissed, das in der Fol. zufällig ausgefallen ist, ergänzte zuerst Rowe. So in Webster's Dutchess of Malfi: I would sooner eat a dead pigeon taken from the soles of the feet of one sick of the plague, than kiss one of you fasting. 52) to have a sweet mouth = lecker sein, gern Süßigkeiten naschen, fasst Launce in wörtlichem Sinne und stellt es dem sour breath gegenüber. 53) Eines Weibes auserlesene, vorzüglichste Tugend. — out with 't = streich' es aus. 54) to praise her liquor = dem Trunk ergeben sein, fasst Launce wieder wörtlich = ihren Trunk loben. 55) liberal, auch ohne den Zusatz of her tongue, gebraucht Sh. = frei in Reden; so in Hamlet (A. 4, Sc. 7) That liberal shepherds give a grosser name. 56) Dieses Sprichwort wird in Dekker's Satiromastix so erklärt: Hair! 't is the basest stubble; in scorn of it || This proverb sprung, — He has more hair than wit. 57) gracious = ausgestattet mit Eigenschaften, die beliebt machen. 58) Er wird Prügel bekommen, weil er sich verspätete, indem er mir den Brief vorlas.

Dissolves to water, and doth lose his form.
A little time will melt her frozen thoughts,
And worthless Valentine shall be forgot. —
How now, Sir Proteus? Is your countryman.
According to our proclamation, gone?

Pro. Gone, my good lord.

Duke. My daughter takes his going grievously.¹

Pro. A little time, my lord, will kill that grief.

Duke. So I believe; but Thurio thinks not so.
Proteus, the good conceit I hold of thee
(For thou hast shown some sign of good desert),
Makes me the better to confer with thee.²

Pro. Longer than I prove loyal to your grace,
Let me not live to look upon your grace.

Duke. Thou know'st how willingly I would effect
The match between Sir Thurio and my daughter.

Pro. I do, my lord.

Duke. And also, I think, thou art not ignorant
How she opposes her against my will.

Pro. She did, my lord, when Valentine was here.

Duke. Ay, and perversely she perseveres³ so.
What might we do to make the girl forget
The love of Valentine, and love Sir Thurio?

Pro. The best way is, to slander Valentine
With falsehood, cowardice, and poor descent;
Three things that women highly hold in hate.

Duke. Ay, but she'll think that it is spoke in hate.

Pro. Ay, if his enemy deliver it:

Therefore, it must, with circumstance,⁴ be spoken
By one whom she esteemeth as his friend.

Duke. Then you must undertake to slander him.

Pro. And that, my lord, I shall be loth to do:

'T is an ill office for a gentleman,
Especially, against his very friend.

Duke. Where your good word cannot advantage him,
Your slander never can endamage him:
Therefore, the office is indifferent,
Being entreated to it by your friend.

Pro. You have prevail'd, my lord. If I can do it,
By aught that I can speak in his dispraise,
She shall not long continue love to him.

But say, this weed her love from Valentine,⁵
It follows not that she will love Sir Thurio.

Thu. Therefore, as you unwind her love from him,
Lest it should ravel and be good to none,
You must provide to bottom⁶ it on me;

Which must be done, by praising me as much
As you in worth dispraise Sir Valentine.

Duke. And, Proteus, we dare trust you in this kind,
Because we know, on Valentine's report,
You are already Love's firm votary,
And cannot soon revolt, and change your mind.

Upon this warrant shall you have access
Where you with Silvia may confer at large;
For she is lumpish, heavy, melancholy,
And for your friend's sake, will be glad of you,
Where you may temper⁷ her, by your persuasion,
To hate young Valentine, and love my friend.

Pro. As much as I can do I will effect.

But you, Sir Thurio, are not sharp enough;
You must lay lime to tangle her desires⁸
By wailful sonnets, whose composed rhymes
Should be full fraught with serviceable vows.

Duke. Ay,

Much is the force of heaven-bred poesy.

Pro. Say, that upon the altar of her beauty

You sacrifice your tears, your sighs, your heart.

Write, till your ink be dry, and with your tears

Moist it again; and frame some feeling line,

That may discover such integrity:⁹

For Orpheus' lute was strung with poets' sinews,¹⁰

Whose golden touch could soften steel and stones,

Make tigers tame, and huge leviathans

Forsake unsounded deeps to dance on sands.¹¹

After your dire-lamenting elegies,¹²

Visit by night your lady's chamber-window

With some sweet concert:¹³ to their instruments

Tune a deploring dump;¹⁴ the night's dead silence

Will well become such sweet-complaining grievance.

This, or else nothing, will inherit her.¹⁵

Duke. This discipline shows thou hast been in love.

Thu. And thy advice this night I'll put in practice.

Therefore, sweet Proteus, my direction-giver,

Let us into the city presently,

To sort¹⁶ some gentlemen well skill'd in music.

I have a sonnet that will serve the turn

To give the onset to thy good advice.

Duke. About it, gentlemen!

Pro. We'll wait upon your grace till after supper,

And afterward determine our proceedings.¹⁷

Duke. Even now about it! I will pardon¹⁸ you.

[Exeunt.]

1) exile betont Sh. bald auf der ersten, bald auf der zweiten Sylbe. 2) to trench = einschneiden, furchen. — hour ist hier zweisylbig zu lesen, wie fire an einer früheren Stelle. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 7, Anm. 5. (3) Nach Malone's Angabe lesen einige Exemplare der Fol. heavily für grievously. Dass Letzteres die richtige Lesart ist, erhellt aus Proteus' Antwort will kill that grief. 4) Veranlasst mich um so eher, mit Dir zu verhandeln. 5) to persever, mit dem Tone auf der zweiten Sylbe, ist Sh.'s Wort. 6) with circumstance = mit den Details, die zur Bestätigung dienen. — circumstance wird als Collectiv im pluralischen Sinne gebraucht. 7) Valentin wird als der Boden betrachtet, in welchem Silvia's Liebe gewurzelt ist, aus dem sie daher ausgerottet werden muss. — Für weed las, den Cambridge Edd. zufolge, schon Rowe wean. 8) to bottom = aufwinden, zu einem Knäuel gestalten. Das Bild ist von einem Garn, das von einem Knäuel abgewunden und, damit es sich nicht verwirre, gleich auf einen anderen Knäuel aufgewunden wird. 9) to temper = handhaben, bearbeiten. 10) Das Bild ist von einem Vogel entlehnt, der mit einer Leimstange gefangen wird. 11) Malone vermuthete, dass hinter dieser Zeile eine folgende ausgefallen sei, auf welche such integrity sich beziehen müsste; Steevens will dagegen das such auf die vorhergehenden Zeilen beziehen. Wahrscheinlicher steht such ohne irgend eine bestimmte Beziehung: ein empfindender Vers, welcher eine solche Gefühlstiefe enthüllt, wie Ihr sie hegt oder kundgebt. 12) Nach Sh.'s Auffassung war die Laute des Orpheus mit Sehnen aus dem Leibe verstorbener Dichter bespannt. 13) So in K. Henry V. (A. 3, Sc. 3) As send precepts to the leviathan || To come ashore. — unsounded = unergründlich. 14) elegies ist dasselbe, was vorher sonnets hiess = Liebesgedichte, nicht gerade Sonette im eigentlichen Sinne des Wortes. 15) concert, wie Hammer das consort der Fol. verbessert, ist zugleich die Musik und die Musikanten, collectiv gefasst, dieselben, die bald nachher heissen some gentlemen well skill'd in music. 16) dump =

ACT IV.

SCENE I.

A Forest, between Milan and Verona.

Enter certain Outlaws.

1. Out. Fellows, stand fast: I see a passenger.

2. Out. If there be ten, shrink not, but down with 'em.

Enter VALENTINE and SPEED.

3. Out. Stand, Sir, and throw us that you have about you;

If not, we 'll make you sit,¹ and rifle you.

Speed. Sir, we are undone. These are the villains That all the travellers do fear so much.

Val. My friends, —

1. Out. That 's not so, Sir: we are your enemies.

2. Out. Peace! we 'll hear him.

3. Out. Ay, by my beard, will we; for he is a proper² man.

Val. Then know, that I have little wealth to lose.

A man I am cross'd with adversity;
My riches are these poor habiliments,
Of which if you should here disfigure me,
You take the sum and substance that I have.

2. Out. Whither travel you?

Val. To Verona.

1. Out. Whence came you?

Val. From Milan.

3. Out. Have you long sojourn'd there?

Val. Some sixteen months; and longer might have stay'd,

If crooked fortune had not thwarted me.

1. Out. What! were you banish'd thence?

Val. I was.

2. Out. For what offence?

Val. For that which now torments me to rehearse.

I kill'd a man, whose death I much repent;
But yet I slew him manfully in fight,
Without false vantage, or base treachery.

1. Out. Why, ne'er repent it, if it were done so.
But were you banish'd for so small a fault?

Val. I was, and held me glad of such a doom.³

2. Out. Have you the tongues?⁴

Val. My youthful travel therein made me happy,⁵
Or else I often had been miserable.

3. Out. By the bare scalp of Robin Hood's fat friar,⁶
This fellow were a king for our wild faction.

1. Out. We 'll have him. Sirs, a word.

Speed. Master, be one of them:
It is an honourable kind of thievery.

Val. Peace, villain!

2. Out. Tell us this: have you any thing to take to?

Val. Nothing, but my fortune.

3. Out. Know then, that some of us are gentlemen,
Such as the fury of ungovern'd youth
Thrust from the company of awful⁷ men:

Myself was from Verona banished
For practising to steal away a lady,
An heir, and near⁸ allied unto the duke.

2. Out. And I from Mantua, for a gentleman,
Who, in my mood,⁹ I stabb'd unto the heart.

1. Out. And I for such like petty crimes as these.

But to the purpose; for we cite our faults,
That they may hold excus'd our lawless lives;

And, partly, seeing you are beautified
With goodly shape, and by your own report

A linguist, and a man of such perfection,
As we do in our quality¹⁰ much want —

2. Out. Indeed, because you are a banish'd man,
Therefore, above the rest,¹¹ we parley to you.

Are you content to be our general?

To make a virtue of necessity,

And live, as we do, in this wilderness?

3. Out. What say'st thou? wilt thou be of our consort?¹²
Say, ay, and be the captain of us all.

We 'll do thee homage, and be rul'd by thee,
Love thee as our commander, and our king.

1. Out. But if thou scorn our courtesy, thou diest.

2. Out. Thou shalt not live to brag what we have offer'd.

Val. I take your offer, and will live with you;

Provided that you do no outrages

On silly¹³ women, or poor passengers.

So in Cymbeline (A. 3, Sc. 4) tell him wherein you are happy. — In der folgenden Zeile hat die Fol. often zweimal; das often vor miserable strich die zweite Folioausg. von 1632. 6) Der Räuber schwört bei dem kahlen Schädel des Mönches Tuck, der als Beichtvater unter den Gefährten Robin Hood's, des in englischen Dramen und Balladen vielgefeierten Wilddiebs und Räubers, dem Sh.'schen Publikum wohlbekannt war. — Drayton erwähnt ihn in seinem Polyolbion: Of Tuck the merry friar which many a sermon made || In praise of Robin Hood, his outlaws, and his trade. — Auf das lustige und sorglose Leben, das Robin Hood mit seinen Gefährten in den Wäldern Nordenglands führte, spielt auch Sh. an in As you like it (A. 1, Sc. 1) They say, he is already in the forest of Arden, and a many merry men with him: and there they live like the old Robin Hood of England. 7) awful, wofür Steevens lawful lesen wollte, fasst Johnson in dem gewöhnlichen Sinne = reverend, worshipful; Malone wohl richtiger in dem selteneren Sinne = full of awe and respect for the laws of society and the duties of life. So in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 4, Sc. 1) We come within our awful banks again. 8) near verbesserte Theobald das niece (Neece) der Fol. — Das and heir derselben ältesten Ausgabe hatten schon die späteren Folioausgg. verbessert. — heir gebraucht Sh. auch sonst für heiress. So in Tempest (A. 2, Sc. 1) so is she heir of Naples. 9) mood = leidenschaftliche Stimmung, Affect. 10) Als quality = Gewerbe, Profession, bezeichnet der Räuber euphemistisch sein Vagabunden- und Räuberleben. 11) above the rest = vor allen übrigen Gründen, die uns veranlassen, mit Euch zu unterhandeln. 12) consort, mit dem Tone

3. Out. No; we detest such vile, base practices. Come, go with us: we'll bring thee to our crews,¹⁴ And show thee all the treasure we have got, Which, with ourselves, all rest at thy dispose. [Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

Milan. The Court of the Palace.

Enter PROTEUS.

Pro. Already have I been false to Valentine, And now I must be as unjust to Thurio. Under the colour of commending him, I have access my own love to prefer; But Silvia is too fair, too true, too holy, To be corrupted with my worthless gifts. When I protest true loyalty to her, She twits me with my falsehood to my friend; When to her beauty I commend my vows, She bids me think how I have been forsworn, In breaking faith with Julia whom I lov'd: And, notwithstanding all her sudden quips,¹ The least whereof would quell a lover's hope, Yet, spaniel-like, the more she spurns my love, The more it grows, and fawneth on her still. But here comes Thurio. Now must we to her window, And give some evening music to her ear.

Enter THURIO, and Musicians.

Thu. How now, Sir Proteus? are you crept before us?

Pro. Ay, gentle Thurio; for you know that love Will creep in service where it cannot go.²

Thu. Ay; but I hope, Sir, that you love not here.

Pro. Sir, but I do; or else I would be hence.

Thu. Who?³ Silvia?

Pro. Ay, Silvia, — for your sake.

Thu. I thank you for your own. Now, gentlemen, Let's tune, and to it lustily awhile.

Enter Host and JULIA, behind; JULIA in boy's clothes.

Host. Now, my young guest; methinks you're all- cholly:⁴ I pray you, why is it?

Jul. Marry, mine host, because I cannot be merry.

Host. Come, we'll have you merry. I'll bring you where you shall hear music, and see the gentleman that you ask'd for.

Jul. But shall I hear him speak?

Host. Ay, that you shall.

Jul. That will be music.

[Music plays.]

Host. Hark! hark!

Jul. Is he among these?

Host. Ay; but peace! let's hear 'em.

SONG.

*Who is Silvia? what is she,
That all our swains commend her?
Holy, fair, and wise is she;
The heaven such grace did lend her
That she might admired be.
Is she kind, as she is fair?
For beauty lives with kindness:⁵
Love doth to her eyes repair,
To help him of his blindness;
And, being help'd, inhabits there.⁶
Then to Silvia let us sing,
That Silvia is excelling;
She excels each mortal thing
Upon the dull earth dwelling;
To her let us garlands bring.*

Host. How now? are you sadder than you were before? How do you, man? the music likes you not.

Jul. You mistake: the musician likes me not.⁷

Host. Why, my pretty youth?

Jul. He plays false, father.

Host. How? out of tune on the strings?

Jul. Not so; but yet so false, that he grieves my very heartstrings.

Host. You have a quick ear.

Jul. Ay; I would I were deaf! it makes me have a slow heart.⁸

Host. I perceive, you delight not in music.

Jul. Not a whit, when it jars so.

Host. Hark! what fine change is in the music.

Jul. Ay, that change is the spite.

Host. You would have them always play but one thing?

Jul. I would always have one play but one thing.

But, host, doth this Sir Proteus, that we talk on, Often resort unto this gentlewoman?

Host. I tell you what Launce, his man, told me, — he lov'd her out of all nick.⁹

Jul. Where is Launce?

Host. Gone to seek his dog; which, to-morrow, by his master's command, he must carry for a present to his lady.

Jul. Peace! stand aside: the company parts.

Pro. Sir Thurio, fear not you: I will so plead, That you shall say my cunning drift excels.

auf der letzten Sylbe = Verkehr, Genossenschaft. 13) silly = harmlos. 14) Die Bande ist auf dem Theater nur durch einige Wenige (certain outlaws) repräsentirt; zu den übrigen Mitgliedern derselben soll Valentin nun gebracht werden. — Für crews liest Dyce mit Collier's altem Corrector cave. Vielleicht wäre besser crew für crews zu lesen, wie Sh. das Wort sonst überall im Singular gebraucht. — Singer vermuthet caves für crews.

1) her sudden quips sind die schnöden, schnippischen Antworten, mit denen Silvia rasch bei der Hand ist, wenn Proteus sie um Liebe anfleht. 2) Reed citirt dazu das schottische Sprichwort Kindness will creep where it cannot gang. 3) Auch hier setzen viele Hgg. whom für who. Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 1, Anm. 31. 4) Dieselbe komische Entstellung aus melancholy hat Sh. in Merry Wives of Windsor (A. 1, Sc. 4) she is given too much to all-icholly and musing. 5) Die Schönheit hat nur Bestand, wenn sich Freundlichkeit und Huld ihr zugesellt. 6) Amor schlägt seine bleibende Wohnung in Silvia's Augen auf, nachdem dieselben ihn von seiner Blindheit geheilt haben. 7) Julia spricht doppelsinnig: der Musiker gefällt mir nicht, und: der Musiker liebt mich nicht. — to like construirt Sh. in beider Beziehung. — Ebenso doppelsinnig steht gleich darauf to play false, und endlich change, in musikalischem Sinne und im gewöhnlichen Sinne der Wörter. 8) quick ear = ein rasch auffassendes Ohr, feines Gehör, ist dem slow heart = schweres, nicht leicht vergessendes oder wechselndes Herz, entgegengesetzt. 9) nick, eigentlich die in das Kernholz eingeschnittene Rechnung, sagt der Wirth mit einem ihm naheliegenden Tropus = ausser aller Berechnung, über alle Massen. 10) Johnson erklärt to compass hier mit to gain, Douce mit to perform, to

Thu. Where meet we?

Pro. At saint Gregory's well.

Thu. Farewell.

[Exeunt THURIO and Musicians.

Enter SILVIA above, at her window.

Pro. Madam, good even to your ladyship.

Sil. I thank you for your music, gentlemen.

Who is that that spake?

Pro. One, lady, if you knew his pure heart's truth,
You would quickly learn to know him by his voice.

Sil. Sir Proteus, as I take it.

Pro. Sir Proteus, gentle lady, and your servant.

Sil. What is your will?

Pro. That I may compass¹⁰ yours.

Sil. You have your wish: my will is even this.

That presently you hie you home to bed.

Thou subtle, perjur'd, false, disloyal man!

Think'st thou, I am so shallow, so conceitless,¹¹

To be seduced by thy flattery,

That hast deceiv'd so many with thy vows?

Return, return, and make thy love amends.

For me, by this pale queen of night¹² I swear,

I am so far from granting thy request,

That I despise thee for thy wrongful suit,

And by and by intend to chide myself,

Even for this time I spend in talking to thee.

Pro. I grant, sweet love, that I did love a lady;
But she is dead.

Jul. [Aside.] 'T were false, if I should speak it;¹³
For, I am sure, she is not buried.

Sil. Say, that she be;¹⁴ yet Valentine, thy friend,

Survives, to whom, thyself art witness,

I am betroth'd; and art thou not asham'd

To wrong him with thy importunacy?¹⁵

Pro. I likewise hear, that Valentine is dead.

Sil. And so, suppose, am I; for in his grave,¹⁶
Assure thyself, my love is buried.

Pro. Sweet lady, let me rake it from the earth.

Sil. Go to thy lady's grave, and call hers¹⁷ thence;

Or, at the least, in hers sepulchre thine.

Jul. [Aside.] He heard not that.¹⁸

Pro. Madam, if your heart be so obdurate,
Vouchsafe me yet your picture for my love,
The picture that is hanging in your chamber:
To that I'll speak, to that I'll sigh and weep;
For, since the substance of your perfect self

Is else devoted, I am but a shadow,
And to your shadow will I make true love.

Jul. [Aside.] If 't were a substance, you would, sure,
deceive it,

And make it but a shadow, as I am.

Sil. I am very loth to be your idol, Sir;
But, since your falsehood shall become you well
To worship shadows, and adore false shapes,¹⁹
Send to me in the morning, and I'll send it.

And so, good rest.

Pro. As wretches have o'ernight,
That wait for execution in the morn.

[Exeunt PROTEUS, and SILVIA.

Jul. Host, will you go?

Host. By my halidom,²⁰ I was fast asleep.

Jul. Pray you, where lies²¹ Sir Proteus?

Host. Marry, at my house. Trust me, I think, 't is almost day.

Jul. Not so; but it hath been the longest night
That e'er I watch'd, and the most heaviest.²² [Exeunt.

SCENE III.

The Same.

Enter EGLAMOUR.

Egl. This is the hour that Madam Silvia
Entreated me to call, and know her mind.

There's some great matter she'd employ me in. — Madam, Madam!

Enter SILVIA above, at her window.

Sil. Who calls?

Egl. Your servant, and your friend;
One that attends your ladyship's command.

Sil. Sir Eglamour, a thousand times good morrow.

Egl. As many, worthy lady, to yourself.

According to your ladyship's impose,¹
I am thus early come, to know what service
It is your pleasure to command me in.

Sil. O Eglamour, thou art a gentleman
(Think not I flatter, for I swear I do not),
Valiant, wise, remorseful,² well accomplish'd.
Thou art not ignorant what dear good will
I bear unto the banish'd Valentine,
Nor how my father would enforce me marry
Vain Thurio, whom my very soul abhors.³
Thyself hast lov'd; and I have heard thee say, accomplish. Wahrscheinlich wollte Sh. den Proteus das Wort in ersterem Sinne, Silvia in ihrer Antwort aber dasselbe im letzteren Sinne auffassen lassen. 11) conceitless = ohne Auffassungsgabe, dumm. 12) So heisst der Mond in As you like it (A. 3, Sc. 2) thrice-crowned queen of night. 13) Wenn ich das Wort nähme, so würde es sich zeigen, dass das falsch ist, was Proteus sagt. 14) Angenommen auch, dass Deine Geliebte todt wäre, so lebt doch Valentin noch. 15) importunacy = dringende, lästige Bitte, betont Sh. auf der dritten Sylbe. 16) Das her grave der ersten Fol. verbesserte schon die zweite Folioausgabe in his grave. 17) scil. her love, wie in der folgenden Zeile thine für thy love steht: Begrabe, wenn Du Julia's Liebe nicht aus dem Grabe erwecken kannst, in ihrer gestorbenen Liebe auch die Deinige, statt dieselbe mir zuzuwenden. — to sepulchre = begraben, betont Sh. auf der zweiten Sylbe. 18) Er hörte nicht, dass ich oder dass meine Liebe begraben sei. 19) Doch da es Eurer Falschheit gut anstehen wird, oder, da Eure Falschheit Euch gut anstehen wird, wenn Ihr Schatten verehrt und falsche Bilder anbetet. — to become = gut anstehen, construirt Sh. sowohl mit dem Accusativ der Sache, als auch mit dem Accusativ der Person: I become something, und something becomes me. 20) halidom = Heiligkeit, Glaube, und holidame = heil. Jungfrau, werden in der Bethenerungsformel oft verwechselt. 21) to lie = im Quartier liegen, logiren. 22) Die Anwendung des doppelten Superlativ ist bei Sh. und seinen Zeitgenossen sehr gewöhnlich.

1) impose = Auftrag. Das Wort kommt sonst kaum vor. 2) remorseful = für zarte Empfindungen zugänglich. — valiant ist dreisylbig zu lesen. 3) So verbessert Hammer das abhor'd der Fol. 4) whose bezieht sich auf das in thy steckende thou. 5) grievances erklärt Johnson richtig mit sorrowful affections. Da

No grief did ever come so near thy heart,
 As when thy lady and thy true love died,
 Upon whose grave thou vow'dst pure chastity.
 Sir Eglamour, I would to Valentine,
 To Mantua, where, I hear, he makes abode;
 And, for the ways are dangerous to pass,
 I do desire thy worthy company,
 Upon whose⁴ faith and honour I repose.
 Urge not my father's anger, Eglamour,
 But think upon my grief, a lady's grief,
 And on the justice of my flying hence,
 To keep me from a most unholy match,
 Which heaven and fortune still rewards with plagues.
 I do desire thee, even from a heart
 As full of sorrows as the sea of sands,
 To bear me company, and go with me:
 If not, to hide what I have said to thee,
 That I may venture to depart alone.

Egl. Madam, I pity much your grievances;⁵
 Which since I know they virtuously are plac'd,
 I give consent to go along with you;
 Recking⁶ as little what betideth me,
 As much I wish all good befotune you.
 When will you go?

Sil. This evening coming.

Egl. Where shall I meet you?

Sil. At friar Patrick's cell,
 Where I intend⁷ holy confession.

Egl. I will not fail your ladyship.
 Good morrow, gentle lady.

Sil. Good morrow, kind Sir Eglamour. [Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.

The Same.

Enter LAUNCE with his dog.

Launce. When a man's servant¹ shall play the cur with him, look you, it goes hard: one that I brought up of a puppy; one that I saved from drowning, when three or four of his blind brothers and sisters went to it. I have taught him, even as one would say precisely, »thus I would teach a dog.« I was sent to deliver him as a present to Mistress Silvia from my master, and I came no sooner into the dining-chamber, but he steps me to her trencher, and steals her capon's leg.² O! 't is a foul thing, when a cur cannot keep himself³ in all companies. I would have, as one should say, one that takes upon him to be a dog indeed,⁴ to be, as it were, a dog at all things. If I had not had more wit than he, to take a fault upon me that he did, I think verily, he had been hang'd for 't: sure as I live, he had suffer'd for 't:⁵ you shall judge. He thrusts me⁶ himself into the company of three or four gentleman-like dogs under the duke's table: he had not been there (bless the mark)⁷ a pissing while,⁸ but all the chamber smelt him. »Out with the dog!« says one; »what cur is that?« says another; »whip him out,« says the third; »hang him up,« says the duke. I, having been acquainted with the smell before, knew it was Crab, and goes me to the fellow that whips the dogs:⁹ »Friend,« quoth I, »you mean to whip the dog?« »Ay, marry, do I,« quoth he. »You do him the more wrong,« quoth I; »'t was I did the thing you wot of.« He makes me no more ado, but whips me out of the chamber. How many masters would do this for his servant?¹⁰ Nay, I'll be sworn, I have sat in the stocks for puddings he hath stolen, otherwise he had been executed; I have stood on the pillory for geese he hath kill'd, otherwise he had suffer'd for 't: thou think'st not of this now. — Nay, I remember the trick you served me, when I took my leave of Madam Silvia.¹¹ Did not I bid thee still mark me, and do as I do? When didst thou see me heave up my leg, and make water against a gentlewoman's farthingale? Didst thou ever see me do such a trick?

Enter PROTEUS and JULIA.

Pro. Sebastian is thy name?¹² I like thee well,
 And will employ thee in some service presently.

Jul. In what you please: I will do what I can.

Pro. I hope thou wilt. — How now, you whoreson peasant!

Where have you been these two days loitering?

Launce. Marry, Sir, I carried Mistress Silvia the dog you bade me.

Pro. And what says she to my little jewel?

Launce. Marry, she says, your dog was a cur; and tells you, currish thanks is good enough for such a present.

Pro. But she receiv'd my dog?

Launce. No, indeed, did she not. Here have I brought him back again.

Pro. What! didst thou offer her this from me?

diese Kümernisse der Silvia eine tugendsame Begründung und Richtung haben, so willigt Eglamour ein, mit ihr zu reisen. 6) to reckon = in Rechnung ziehen, sich kümmern um Etwas. — Die Fol. schreibt mit einer auch sonst häufigen Verwechselung wreaking. 7) to intend = als Absicht zu erkennen geben, vorschützen. So in Lucrece: intending weariness; und in Taming of the Shrew (A. 4, Sc. 1) I intend, || That all is done in reverend care of her. — So scheint die Beichte auch hier nicht Silvia's Absicht, sondern ein Vorwand zu sein, um unbehindert ausgehen zu dürfen.

1) Unter dem Diener eines Menschen, der sich hündisch gegen seinen Herrn benommen hat, versteht Launce seinen Hund selber. 2) Der Hund stahl den Kapaunenschenkel von dem Teller der Silvia. — trencher ist auch sonst = Teller, im Allgemeinen. 3) keep himself erklärt Steevens mit restrain himself; es ist aber wohl nur = sich benehmen, seine Haltung beobachten. 4) indeed wäre vielleicht besser mit dem Folgenden als mit dem Vorhergehenden zu verbinden: Ich möchte, dass Einer, der ein Hund sein will, in der That auch in allen Dingen ein Hund wäre. 5) So wahr ich lebe, er würde dafür haben büßen müssen. 6) Das me ist hier ebenso pleonastisch, wie vorher he steps me, und nachher goes me, in nachlässiger Redeweise für I go. 7) Die vollständige Bethuerung God bless the mark und God save the mark kommt auch sonst bei Sh. vor; so in Merchant of Venice (A. 2, Sc. 2) und K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 1, Sc. 3). 8) Diese scherzhafte Zeitbestimmung, welche hier ganz besonders passt, findet sich sprichwörtlich auch in weniger eigentlichem Sinne; so in Ben Jonson's Magnetic Lady: have patience but a pissing while. 9) Der Mann bei Hofe, dessen Amt es war, die Hunde in Ordnung zu halten. 10) Pope änderte their servant. Aber aus many masters entnimmt Sh. jeden einzelnen Herrn in Bezug auf den betreffenden Diener. 11) Steevens wollte Julia für Silvia lesen und dachte an den Abschied, den Proteus von Julia in Verona nahm. 12) Julia hat, als Jüngling verkleidet, dem Proteus ihre Dienste Launce. Ay, Sir: the other squirrel¹³ was stolen from me by the hangman's boys in the market-place;¹⁴ and then I offer'd her mine own, who is a dog as big as ten of yours, and therefore the gift the greater.

Pro. Go get thee hence, and find my dog again, Or ne'er return again into my sight.

Away, I say! Stay'st thou to vex me here?

A slave that still an end¹⁵ turns me to shame.

[Exit LAUNCE.]

Sebastian, I have entertained¹⁶ thee, Partly, that I have need of such a youth, That can with some discretion do my business, For 't is no trusting to yond foolish lout; But, chiefly, for thy face, and thy behaviour, Which (if my augury deceive me not) Witness good bringing up, fortune, and truth: Therefore know thee,¹⁷ for this I entertain thee. Go presently, and take this ring with thee: Deliver it to Madam Silvia.

She lov'd me well, deliver'd it to me.¹⁸

Jul. It seems, you lov'd not her, to¹⁹ leave her token. She's dead, belike?

Pro. Not so: I think, she lives.

Jul. Alas!

Pro. Why dost thou cry, alas?

Jul. I cannot choose but pity her.

Pro. Wherefore shouldst thou pity her?

Jul. Because, methinks, that she lov'd you as well As you do love your lady Silvia.

She dreams on him, that has forgot her love;

You dote on her, that cares not for your love.

'T is pity, love should be so contrary;²⁰

And thinking on it makes me cry, alas!

Pro. Well, give her that ring, and therewithal This letter: — that's her chamber.²¹ — Tell my lady, I claim the promise for her heavenly picture.

Your message done, hie home unto my chamber,

Where thou shalt find me sad and solitary. [Exit.]

Jul. How many women would do such a message?

Alas, poor Proteus! thou hast entertain'd

A fox to be the shepherd of thy lambs.

Alas, poor fool! why do I pity him,

That with his very heart despiseth me?

Because he loves her, he despiseth me;

Because I love him, I must pity him.

This ring²² I gave him when he parted from me,

To bind him to remember my good will;

And now am I (unhappy messenger!)

To plead for that which I would not obtain;
To carry that which I would have refus'd,
To praise his faith which I would have disprais'd.²³

I am my master's true-confirmed love,

But cannot be true servant to my master,

Unless I prove false traitor to myself.

Yet will I woo for him; but yet so coldly,

As, heaven it knows, I would not have him speed.

Enter SILVIA, attended.

Gentlewoman, good day. I pray you, be my mean To bring me where to speak with Madam Silvia.

Sil. What would you with her, if that I be she?

Jul. If you be she, I do entreat your patience To hear me speak the message I am sent on.

Sil. From whom?

Jul. From my master, Sir Proteus, Madam.

Sil. O! he sends you for a picture?

Jul. Ay, Madam.

Sil. Ursula, bring my picture there. [A picture brought.]

Go, give your master this: tell him from me,

One Julia, that his changing thoughts forget,

Would better fit his chamber, than this shadow.

Jul. Madam, please you peruse this letter. —

Pardon me, Madam, I have unadvis'd

Deliver'd you a paper that I should not:

This is the letter to your ladyship.

Sil. I pray thee, let me look on that again.

Jul. It may not be: good Madam, pardon me.

Sil. There, hold.

I will not look upon your master's lines:

I know, they are stuff'd with protestations,²⁴

And full of new-found oaths,²⁵ which he will break

As easily as I do tear his paper.

Jul. Madam, he sends your ladyship this ring.

Sil. The more shame for him that he sends it me;

For I have heard him say a thousand times,

His Julia gave it him at his departure.

Though his false finger have profan'd the ring,

Mine shall not do his Julia so much wrong.

Jul. She thanks you.

Sil. What say'st thou?

Jul. I thank you, Madam, that you tender her.

Poor gentlewoman! my master wrongs her much.

Sil. Dost thou know her?

Jul. Almost as well as I do know myself:

To think upon her woes, I do protest,

That I have wept a hundred several times.

als Page angeboten, und ist so eben von ihm um den Namen befragt worden. 13) Launce nennt so den anderen Hund, einen Schosshund, weil er so klein war wie ein Eichhörnchen. 14) Die Buben des Scharfrichters, dem eine Art von Hundepolizei zustand, hatten auf dem Marktplatze dem Launce den kleinen Hund weggenommen. — Für the hangman's boys der Fol. hat die zweite Folioausgabe von 1632 the hangman's boy. — Dyce erklärt die von ihm adoptirte Lesart Singer's hangman boys mit rascal boys, indem er hangman als ein hier adjectivisch gebrauchtes Schimpfwort fasst. 15) still an end = immer wieder. In ähnlichem Sinne wird auch most an end gebraucht. 16) to entertain = in Dienst nehmen. 17) So die Fol. in familiärer Redeweise. Manche Hgg. lesen mit der zweiten Folioausgabe das correctere know thou. 18) Die Construction ist: She that delivered it to me, loved me well. 19) Die Fol. hat not für to. Verbessert in der zweiten Folioausgabe. — to leave = fahren lassen, dahingeben; so in Merchant of Venice (A. 5, Sc. 1) how unwillingly I left the ring. 20) contrary = von verkehrter Richtung, widersprechend. 21) that's her chamber = dort ist ihr Zimmer, ist mit einer begleitenden Handgeberde gesprochen. 22) Den Ring, den sie jetzt in Proteus' Namen der Silvia überbringen soll, hat sie ihm selbst beim Abschied geschenkt. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 2. 23) Ich soll jetzt das an Silvia überbringen, was ich gerne von Silvia zurückgewiesen sähe; und ich soll ihr dessen Treue anpreisen, den ich gerne von Silvia herabgewürdigt, geringgeschätzt sähe. So in Romeo and Juliet (A. 3, Sc. 5) Or to dispraise my lord with that same tongue || Which she hath prais'd him with above compare. 24) So sagt vorher einmal Julia von einem Briefe des Proteus: Here is a coil with protestation. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 2, Anm. 20. 25) So kommt new-tuned

Sil. Belike, she thinks, that Proteus hath forsook her.

Jul. I think she doth, and that 's her cause of sorrow.

Sil. Is she not passing fair?

Jul. She hath been fairer, Madam, than she is.

When she did think my master lov'd her well,
She, in my judgment, was as fair as you;
But since she did neglect her looking-glass,
And threw her sun-expelling mask²⁸ away,
The air hath starv'd the roses in her cheeks,
And pinch'd the lily-tincture of her face,
That now she is become as black as I.

Sil. How tall was she?

Jul. About my stature; for, at Pentecost,²⁷
When all our pageants of delight were play'd,
Our youth got me to play the woman's part,
And I was trimm'd in Madam Julia's gown,
Which served me as fit, by all men's judgments,²⁹
As if the garment had been made for me:
Therefore, I know she is about my height.
And at that time I made her weep agood,²⁹
For I did play a lamentable part.

Madam, 't was Ariadne, passioning³⁰
For Theseus' perjury and unjust flight;
Which I so lively acted with my tears,
That my poor mistress, moved therewithal,
Wept bitterly, and 'would I might be dead,
If I in thought felt not her very sorrow.

Sil. She is beholding to thee, gentle youth. —

Alas, poor lady! desolate and left! —

I weep myself, to think upon thy words.

Here, youth; there is my purse: I give thee this

For thy sweet mistress' sake, because thou lov'st her.

Farewell. [Exit SILVIA, attended.]

Jul. And she shall thank you for 't, if e'er you know her. —

A virtuous gentlewoman, mild, and beautiful!

I hope my master's suit will be but cold,
Since she respects my mistress' ³¹ love so much.

Alas, how love can trifle with itself!

Here is her picture. Let me see: I think,

If I had such a tire,³² this face of mine

Were full as lovely as is this of hers;

And yet the painter flatter'd her a little,

Unless I flatter with myself too much.

Her hair is auburn, mine is perfect yellow:³³

If that be all the difference in his love,

I'll get me such a colour'd periwig.³⁴

Her eyes are grey as glass,³⁵ and so are mine:

Ay, but her forehead 's low, and mine 's as high.³⁶

What should it be, that he respects in her,

But I can make respective³⁷ in myself,

If this fond Love were not a blinded god?

Come, shadow,³⁸ come, and take this shadow up,

For 't is thy rival. O thou senseless form!

Thou shalt be worshipp'd, kiss'd, lov'd, and ador'd,

And, were there sense in his idolatry,

My substance should be statue in thy stead.³⁹

I'll use thee kindly for thy mistress' sake,

That us'd me so,⁴⁰ or else, by Jove I vow,

I should have scratch'd out your unseeing eyes,

To make my master out of love with thee. [Exit.]

ACT V.

SCENE I.

The Same. An Abbey.

Enter EGLAMOUR.

Egl. The sun begins to gild the western sky,
And now it is about the very hour,
That Silvia at friar Patrick's cell should meet me.

oaths in K. Henry V. (A. 3, Sc. 6) vor. 28) Der Maske bedienten sich zu Sh.'s Zeit die Damen statt des Schleiers beim Ausgehen, um ihren zarten Teint vor der Sonne zu schützen. Seitdem die Maske nicht mehr das Gesicht der Julia vor dem Sonnenbrande hütet, ist das Roth auf ihrer Wange so verblüht und das Weisse darauf so rauh angefasst, dass sie einen brünetten Teint bekommen hat. — Wie hier das verbale to pinch, so gebraucht in demselben Sinne Sh. das Substantiv in Antony and Cleopatra (A. 1, Sc. 5) think on me, || That am with Phæbus' amorous pinches black. — black = brünett, als Gegensatz von fair = von feinem, weissem Teint. 27) Sh. dachte dabei an die altenglischen Schauspiele, ursprünglich religiöser Art, welche zu Pfingsten in verschiedenen Städten aufgeführt wurden, wie sich die Chester Whitsun Plays noch erhalten haben. — pageant of delight = ein ergötzliches Schauspiel, ein Schauspiel zur Belustigung. 28) So die Fol. Manche Hgg. ändern willkürlich judgment. 29) agood = ernstlich, aufrichtig. 30) to passion = einen Affect, namentlich der Liebe, darstellen oder empfinden. So in Venus and Adonis: Dumbly she passions, frantically she doteth. 31) my mistress, als Antithese zu my master, nennt Julia sich selbst, indem sie auch in ihrem Monolog den einmal angenommenen Charakter eines Dieners und Pagen beibehält. 32) Julia spricht von dem Kopfputz, in welchem Silvia sich hat malen lassen, der ihr Gesicht verschönt. 33) auburn = bräunlich gelb, perfect yellow = ganz blond. — In den vorigen Zeilen erscheint to flatter in doppelter Construction, als transitives Verbum, und als intransitives mit with. 34) Wenn der Unterschied, den Proteus zwischen Silvia und mir macht, bloss in der Farbe des Haares besteht, so will ich mir eine falsche Haartour (periwig) anschaffen, die solche Farbe hat wie Silvia's Haar. — Auf die damals unter den Damen weitverbreitete Mode, falsches Haar wegen der modischeren Farbe statt des eigenen zu tragen, spielt Sh. auch in Merchant of Venice (A. 3, Sc. 2) an: So are those crisped snaky golden locks, — Upon supposed fairness, often known || To be the dowry of a second head. 35) Der graublaue, bläuliche Glanz der Augen wird mit dem des ebenso gefärbten Glases verglichen. Schon in Chaucer's Canterbury Tales kommt diese Vergleichung als eine schmeichelhafte vor: Ful semely her wimple ypinched was; || Her nose tretis; her eyen grey as glas. — Coles' Dictionary übersetzt grey lateinisch mit caeruleus, glaucus. 36) scil. my forehead is as high as her forehead is low. — Julia hat also in der hohen Stirn einen Vorzug vor der Silvia voraus. 37) respective = beachtenswerth, der Berücksichtigung werth, in Bezug auf das vorhergehende to respect = beachten, berücksichtigen. Häufiger gebraucht Sh. respective in etwas modificirtem Sinne = rücksichtsvoll. 38) Als Schatten, wie hier, hatte Julia sich schon vorher bezeichnet, A. 4, Sc. 2, And make it but a shadow, as I am, da sie aus Liebe zu Proteus sich ihres Wesens und Charakters entäussert hatte. 39) Wäre ein Sinn in der verliebten Abgötterei des Proteus, so würde er nicht das Bild der Silvia

She will not fail; for lovers break not hours,
Unless it be to come before their time,
So much they spur their expedition.

Enter SILVIA.

See, where she comes. — Lady, a happy evening!

Sil. Amen, amen! go on, good Eglamour,
Out at the postern by the abbey-wall.

I fear, I am attended by some spies.

Egl. Fear not: the forest is not three leagues off;
If we recover that, we are sure enough. [Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

The Same. A Room in the DUKE's Palace.

Enter THURIO, PROTEUS, and JULIA.

Thu. Sir Proteus, what says Silvia to my suit?

Pro. O, Sir! I find her milder than she was;
And yet she takes exceptions at your person.

Thu. What! that my leg is too long?

Pro. No, that it is too little.

Thu. I'll wear a boot to make it somewhat rounder.

Jul. [Aside.] But love will not be spur'd to what it loathes.¹

Thu. What says she to my face?

Pro. She says it is a fair one.

Thu. Nay, then the wanton lies: my face is black.²

Pro. But pearls are fair, and the old saying is,
Black men are pearls in beauteous ladies' eyes.³

Jul. [Aside.] 'T is true, such pearls as put out ladies'
eyes;

For I had rather wink than look on them.

Thu. How likes she my discourse?

Pro. Ill, when you talk of war.

Thu. But well, when I discourse of love and peace?

Jul. [Aside.] But better, indeed, when you hold your peace.

Thu. What says she to my valour?

Pro. O, Sir! she makes no doubt of that.

Jul. [Aside.] She needs not, when she knows it cowardice.

Thu. What says she to my birth?

Pro. That you are well deriv'd.⁴

Jul. [Aside.] True; from a gentleman to a fool.

Thu. Considers she my possessions?

Pro. O! ay; and pities them.

Thu. Wherefore?

Jul. [Aside.] That such an ass should owe⁵ them.

Pro. That they are out by lease.⁶

Jul. Here comes the duke.

Enter DUKE.

Duke. How now, Sir Proteus? how now, Thurio?
Which of you saw Sir Eglamour⁷ of late?

Thu. Not I.

Pro. Nor I.

Duke. Saw you my daughter?

Pro. Neither.

Duke. Why, then

She's fled unto that peasant⁸ Valentine,
And Eglamour is in her company.

'T is true; for friar Laurence met them both,
As he in penance⁹ wander'd through the forest;
Him he knew well, and guess'd that it was she,
But, being mask'd,¹⁰ he was not sure of it;
Besides, she did intend¹¹ confession

At Patrick's cell this even, and there she was not.
These likelihoods confirm her flight from hence.

Therefore, I pray you, stand not to discourse,
But mount¹² you presently; and meet with me
Upon the rising of the mountain-foot,

That¹³ leads towards Mantua, whither they are fled.

Dispatch, sweet gentlemen, and follow me. [Exit.]

Thu. Why, this it is to be a peevish¹⁴ girl,
That flies her fortune when it follows her.

I'll after, more to be reveng'd on Eglamour,
Than for the love of reckless Silvia.¹⁵ [Exit.]

Pro. And I will follow, more for Silvia's love,
Than hate of Eglamour, that goes with her. [Exit.]

Jul. And I will follow, more to cross that love,
Than hate¹⁶ for Silvia, that is gone for love. [Exit.]

SCENE III.

The Forest.

Enter SILVIA, and Outlaws.

1. Out. Come, come;

Be patient, we must bring you to our captain.

anbeten, sondern das wahre Wesen der Julia anstatt des Bildes. — sense ist zugleich doppelsinnig = Empfindungsvermögen. — statue ist auch sonst in weiterem Sinne = Bild, obgleich Sh. hier vielleicht das Wort in Bezug auf my substance allerdings auch im gewöhnlichen Sinn, = Bildsäule, anwendet. — Wie Staunton vermuthet, hatte Sh. hier die Sage von Pygmalion im Sinn. 40) scil. that us'd me kindly.

1) Diese Worte ertheilt die Fol. dem Proteus zu, Boswell, in Uebereinstimmung mit den folgenden Bemerkungen der Julia, aber dieser. 2) Proteus fasst fair = schön, Thurio = hellfarbig, und als Gegensatz zu black = dunkelfarbig, brünett. Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 4, Anm. 26. 3) Malone citirt dazu aus Ray's Sprichwörtersammlung: A black man is a jewel in a fair woman's eye. — Die folgende Rede theilt die Fol. dem Thurio zu, während Rowe sie mit Recht der Julia giebt. 4) Proteus fasst derived = abgestammt, von guter Familie; Julia = durch Ableitung verändert, aus einem Edelmann zu einem Narren geworden. 5) to owe = besitzen, sein eigen nennen. 6) Nach Steevens' Erklärung bedauert Silvia, dass Thurio thörichter Weise seine Besitzungen unvorthellhaft verpachtet habe; nach Monk Mason's Deutung, dass die Besitzungen nicht in Thurio's eigenen Händen seien. Die letztere Deutung erscheint natürlicher als die etwas gesuchte von Lord Hailes, dass Proteus unter possessions die geistige Begabung Thurio's verstehe, welche nicht mehr sein Eigenthum sei. 7) So die vierte Folioausg. — Die erste Fol. lässt Sir vor Eglamour aus. 8) peasant wird hier als verächtliches Schimpfwort ganz abgesehen von seiner ursprünglichen Bedeutung gebraucht. 9) penance = fromme Uebungen. 10) Da sie eine Maske vor dem Gesicht hatte. Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 4, Anm. 26. 11) Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 3, Anm. 7. 12) to mount, hier als reflexives Verbum = zu Pferde steigen. 13) that bezieht sich auf the rising: der Weg, der vom Fusse des Gebirges aufsteigt und nach Mantua führt. 14) peevish = der nicht weiss, was er will. 15) reckless = der sich aus keiner Sache oder Person Etwas macht, der sich um nichts kümmert. 16) Vor hate ist ein for oder out of hinzuzudenken, das sich freilich aus dem Vorhergehenden nicht suppliren lässt. — Sh. beachtete nicht, dass die Construction hier eine andere ist, als in der entsprechenden Rede des Proteus more for Silvia's love, than (for) hate of Eglamour.

Sil. A thousand more mischances than this one
Have learn'd me how to brook this patiently.

2. Out. Come, bring her away.

1. Out. Where is the gentleman that was with her?

3. Out. Being nimble-footed, he hath outrun us;
But Moyses and Valerius follow him.

Go thou with her to the west end of the wood;
There is our captain. We'll follow him that's fled:
The thicket is beset; he cannot scape.

1. Out. Come, I must bring you to our captain's cave.
Fear not; he bears an honourable mind,
And will not use a woman lawlessly.

Sil. O Valentine! this I endure for thee. [Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.

Another Part of the Forest.

Enter VALENTINE.

Val. How use doth breed a habit in a man
This shadowy desert, unfrequented woods,
I better brook than flourishing peopled towns.
Here can I sit alone, unseen of any,

And to the nightingale's complaining notes
Tune my distresses, and record my woes.¹

O! thou that dost inhabit in my breast,
Leave not the mansion so long tenantless,

Lest, growing ruinous, the building fall,²

And leave no memory of what it was!

Repair me with thy presence, Silvia!
Thou gentle nymph, cherish thy forlorn swain! —

What halloing, and what stir, is this to-day?

These are my mates, that make their wills their law,
Have some unhappy passenger in chase.

They love me well; yet I have much to do,

To keep them from uncivil outrages.

Withdraw thee, Valentine: who's this comes here?

[Steps aside.]

Enter PROTEUS, SILVIA, and JULIA.

Pro. Madam, this service I have done for you³
(Though you respect not aught your servant doth),
To hazard life, and rescue you from him

That would have forc'd your honour and your love.

Vouchsafe me, for my meed,⁴ but one fair look;

A smaller boon than this I cannot beg,

And less than this, I am sure, you cannot give.

Val. How like a dream is this I see and hear!

Love, lend me patience to forbear awhile.

Sil. O miserable, unhappy that I am!

Pro. Unhappy were you, Madam, ere I came;⁵

But by my coming I have made you happy.

Sil. By thy approach thou mak'st me most unhappy.

Jul. [Aside.] And me, when he approacheth to your presence.

Sil. Had I been seized by a hungry lion,

I would have been a breakfast to the beast,

Rather than have false Proteus rescue me.

O heaven! be judge, how I love Valentine,

Whose life's as tender⁶ to me as my soul;

And full as much (for more there cannot be)

I do detest false perjur'd Proteus.

Therefore be gone: solicit me no more.

Pro. What dangerous action, stood it next to death,

Would I not undergo for one calm look!

O! 't is the curse in love, and still approv'd,⁷

When women cannot love, where they're belov'd.

Sil. When Proteus cannot love, where he's belov'd.

Read over Julia's heart, thy first best love,

For whose dear sake thou didst then rend thy faith

Into a thousand oaths; and all those oaths

Descended into perjury to love me.

Thou hast no faith left now, unless thou'dst two,

And that's far worse than none: better have none

Than plural faith,⁸ which is too much by one.

Thou counterfeit to thy true friend!⁹

Pro. In love,

Who respects friend?

Sil. All men but Proteus.

Pro. Nay, if the gentle spirit of moving words

Can no way change you to a milder form,

I'll woo you like a soldier, at arms' end,

And love you 'gainst the nature of love: force you.

Sil. O heaven!

Pro. I'll force thee yield to my desire.

Val. Ruffian, let go that rude uncivil touch;

Thou friend of an ill fashion!

Pro. Valentine!

Val. Thou common¹⁰ friend, that's without faith or love

(For such is a friend now); treacherous man!

Thou hast beguil'd my hopes: nought but mine eye

Could have persuaded me. Now I dare not say,

I have one friend alive: thou wouldst disprove me.

Who should be trusted now,¹¹ when one's right hand

Is perjur'd to the bosom? Proteus,

I am sorry I must never trust thee more,

But count the world a stranger for thy sake.

The private wound is deepest.¹² O time most accurst!

'Mongst all foes, that a friend should be the worst!

Pro. My shame and guilt confounds me. —

1) to record = anstimmen, singen, vorzugsweise vom Gesange der Vögel gebraucht. So in Beaumont und Fletcher's Pilgrim: O, sweet, sweet! How the birds record too! 2) Dasselbe Bild von einem Hause, das verfällt, weil es nicht bewohnt wird, findet sich in Comedy of Errors (A. 3, Sc. 2) Shall love, in building, grow so ruinous? 3) Proteus hat sein Leben auf's Spiel gesetzt, um Silvia aus der Gewalt der Räuber zu befreien. — Mit from him that would etc. ist der Hauptmann gemeint, zu dem die Räuber die Silvia bringen wollten. 4) meed = Gebühr, das Jemandem Zukommende. 5) Als Ihr in der Gewalt der Räuber waret. 6) tender = zärtlich gehegt, theuer. 7) to approve = erproben, erfahren. 8) plural faith = eine Treue, die Mehreren gewidmet wird. 9) Du bist ein Heuchler Deinem treuen Freunde gegenüber. 10) common = gewöhnlich, alltäglich, erhält seine nähere Erklärung in that's without faith or love, das heisst ohne Treue oder Anhänglichkeit, denn so sind die Freunde heutzutage. 11) Das now, das in der Fol. fehlt, fügt die zweite Folioausg. ein; Hanmer las dafür weniger gut Who should be trusted, when one's own right hand. — Valentin klagte auch schon vorher über die jetzige Zeit, in der es keine wahren Freunde mehr gebe: Auf wen kann man sich jetzt verlassen, wenn die rechte Hand Jemandes dem Herzen ebendesselben sich meineidig erweist? 12) Die Wunde, die den Menschen in seinen innigsten Beziehungen trifft, geht am tiefsten. — Der Vers ist so holpericht, dass er schwerlich so von Sh. geschrieben ist. Johnson las most curst. Eher wäre mit Hanmer das most vor accurst zu streichen.

Forgive me, Valentine. If hearty sorrow
Be a sufficient ransom for offence,
I tender 't here: I do as truly suffer
As e'er I did commit.

Val. Then I am paid;
And once again I do receive thee honest.
Who by repentance is not satisfied,
Is nor of heaven, nor earth; for these are pleas'd.¹³
By penitence the Eternal's wrath 's appeas'd:
And, that my love may appear plain and free,
All that was mine in Silvia I give thee.

Jul. O me unhappy! [Faints.]

Pro. Look to the boy.

Val. Why, boy! why, wag! how now? what is the matter?

Look up; speak.

Jul. O good Sir! my master charg'd me
To deliver a ring to Madam Silvia,
Which, out of my neglect, was never done.¹⁴

Pro. Where is that ring, boy?

Jul. Here 't is: this is it.
[Gives a ring.]

Pro. How! let me see.

Why, this is the ring I gave to Julia.

Jul. O! cry you mercy, Sir; I have mistook:
This is the ring you sent to Silvia. [Shows another ring.]

Pro. But, how cam'st thou by this ring?
At my depart I gave this unto Julia.

Jul. And Julia herself did give it me;
And Julia herself hath brought it hither.

Pro. How? Julia!

Jul. Behold her that gave aim to all thy oaths,¹⁵
And entertain'd them deeply in her heart:
How oft hast thou with perjury cleft the root!
O Proteus! let this habit make thee blush:
Be thou asham'd, that I have took upon me
Such an immodest raiment; if shame live
In a disguise of love.¹⁶

It is the lesser blot, modesty finds,
Women to change their shapes, than men their minds.

Pro. Than men their minds! 't is true. O heaven were man

But constant, he were perfect: that one error
Fills him with faults; makes him run through all the sins:
Inconstancy falls off, ere it begins.

What is in Silvia's face, but I may spy
More fresh in Julia's, with a constant eye?¹⁷

Val. Come, come, a hand from either.

Let me be blest to make this happy close:
'T were pity two such friends should be long foes.

Pro. Bear witness, heaven, I have my wish for ever.

Jul. And I mine.

Enter Outlaws, with DUKE and THURIO.

Out. A prize! a prize! a prize!

Val. Forbear: forbear, I say; it is my lord the duke. —
Your grace is welcome to a man disgrac'd,¹⁸
Banished Valentine.

Duke. Sir Valentine!

Thu. Yonder is Silvia; and Silvia 's mine.

Val. Thurio, give back, or else embrace thy death.
Come not within the measure of my wrath:¹⁹

Do not name Silvia thine; if once again,
Verona shall not hold thee.²⁰ Here she stands;
Take but possession of her with a touch;
I dare thee but to breathe upon my love.

Thu. Sir Valentine, I care not for her, I.
I hold him but a fool that will endanger
His body for a girl that loves him not:
I claim her not, and therefore she is thine.

Duke. The more degenerate and base art thou,
To make such means for her as thou hast done,²¹
And leave her on such slight conditions.²²

Now, by the honour of my ancestry,
I do applaud thy spirit, Valentine,
And think thee worthy of an empress' love.²³

13) Himmel und Erde werden durch eine aufrichtige Reue zufriedengestellt. — Die Commentatoren haben vielfach Anstoss genommen an der Art, wie Valentin plötzlich und unmotiviert allen Ansprüchen auf Silvia's Liebe zu Gunsten seines wiedergewonnenen Freundes Proteus entsagt. Baron Field schlägt deshalb vor zu lesen All that was thine in Silvia etc., und Staunton möchte die beiden letzten Zeilen dieser Rede dem Proteus, nicht dem Valentin in den Mund legen und demgemäss ändern All that was mine in Julia I give thee. — Dyce findet mit Recht keinerlei Schwierigkeit in dem alten Text, zu dessen genügender Erklärung er folgenden Passus aus Lamb's Tales from Shakespeare citirt: He (Proteus) expressed such a lively sorrow for the injuries he had done to Valentine, that Valentine whose nature was noble and generous, even to a romantic degree, not only forgave and restored him to his former place in his friendship, but in a sudden flight of heroism he said, "I freely do forgive you, and all the interest I have in Silvia, I give up to you." Julia who was standing beside her master as a page, hearing this strange offer, and fearing Proteus would not be able with this new-found virtue to refuse Silvia, fainted, and they were all employed in recovering her; else would Silvia have been offended at being thus made over to Proteus, though she could scarcely think that Valentine would long persevere in this over-strained and too generous act of friendship. 14) Die Fol. und manche Hgg. drucken diese Rede und die vorhergehende als Prosa, schwerlich im Sinne Sh.'s, der alle ernstesten Scenen dieses Dramas in Versen schrieb. 15) Sie, die allen Deinen Eiden ein Ziel darbot, die allen Deinen Schwüren ihre Richtung gab. — Das Bild von einem Schussziele wird fortgesetzt in dem zweitfolgenden Verse, wo the root, die Wurzel des Herzens, das Herz der Julia ist, das Proteus mit seinen Meineniden gespalten hat, wie der Pfeil den Pflock in der Schiessscheibe spaltet. 16) disguise of love = Verkleidung aus Liebe, und = Liebestäuschung. 17) In Silvia's Antlitz ist kein Reiz, den ich nicht jugendlicher, frischer in Julia's Antlitz entdeckte, wenn ich nur treu und beständig bin. 18) Wortspiel zwischen grace = Gnade, und disgraced = der in Ungnade ist. 19) measure of my wrath = so weit mein Schwert, das ich im Zorn zücke, reicht. 20) Wenn Du noch einmal Silvia die Deine nennst, so soll Verona selbst, meine Vaterstadt, Dich nicht vertheidigen oder behaupten gegen meinen Zorn. — Das müsste der Sinn sein, wenn nicht etwa, wie höchst wahrscheinlich, Sh. auch hier einen italienischen Städtenamen mit dem andern verwechselt hätte und eigentlich Milan für Verona hätte setzen wollen, da Thurio, wie es scheint, aus Mailand ist. — Theobald änderte daher nicht nur Verona in Milan, sondern auch des Verses wegen hold in behold um. — Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 5, Anm. 1 und A. 3, Sc. 1, Anm. 12. 21) to make means, in gehässigem Sinn =

Know then, I here forget all former griefs,²⁴
 Cancel all grudge, repeal thee home again. —
 Plead a new state²⁵ in thy unrivall'd merit,
 To which I thus subscribe: Sir Valentine,
 Thou art a gentleman, and well deriv'd;
 Take thou thy Silvia, for thou hast deserv'd her.

Val. I thank your grace; the gift hath made me happy.
 I now beseech you, for your daughter's sake,
 To grant one boon that I shall ask of you.

Duke. I grant it for thine own, whate'er it be.

Val. These banish'd men, that I have kept withal,²⁶
 Are men endued with worthy qualities:
 Forgive them what they have committed here,
 And let them be recall'd from their exile.²⁷
 They are reformed, civil, full of good,
 And fit for great employment, worthy lord.

Duke. Thou hast prevail'd; I pardon them, and thee:
 Dispose of them, as thou know'st their deserts.
 Come, let us go: we will include²⁸ all jars
 With triumphs,²⁹ mirth, and rare solemnity.

Val. And as we walk along, I dare be bold
 With our discourse to make your grace to smile.
 What think you of this page, my lord?

Duke. I think the boy hath grace in him: he blushes.

Val. I warrant you, my lord, more grace than boy.

Duke. What mean you by that saying?

Val. Please you, I'll tell you as we pass along,
 That you will wonder what hath fortun'd. —
 Come, Proteus; 't is your penance but to hear
 The story of your loves discovered:
 That done, our day of marriage shall be yours;
 One feast, one house, one mutual happiness.³⁰ [Exeunt.] allerlei Mittel anwenden, nicht gerade zu Werke gehen. So in K. Richard III. (A. 5, Sc. 3) One that made means to come by what he hath. 22) on such slight conditions = auf solche verächtliche Bedingungen hin, wie Valentin sie dem Thurio stellt. 23) Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 4, Anm. 10. 24) grief = Beschwerde, Verdruss. 25) Du darfst einen neuen, höheren Rang als den angeborenen beanspruchen in Deinem Verdienst, das von keinem Nebenbuhler erreicht wird. — plead ist Imperativ und beginnt einen neuen Satz, nach Tyrwhitt's Erklärung; andere Hgg. verbinden nach der Fol. das Wort mit dem Vorhergehenden und fassen demnach plead als Indicativ erste Person. 26) to keep with ist intransitives Verbum = sich zu Jemandem halten. — withal steht für with. — So in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 2, Sc. 4) him keep with, the rest banish. 27) Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 2, Anm. 1. 28) to include = einschliessen in Etwas, beseitigen, beilegen. — Hammer änderte ohne Grund conclude dafür. 29) triumphs = ritterliche oder höfische Feste und Schauspiele mit Prachtaufzügen verbunden, ohne dass dabei gerade an eine Siegesfeier zu denken ist. So in Midsummer-Night's Dream (A. 1, Sc. 1) With pomp, with triumph, and with revelling. 30) mutual = gemeinsam.

THE MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR.

Einleitung.

Das Lustspiel Merry Wives of Windsor erschien, nachdem es kurz vorher in die Register der Buchhändler eingetragen war, zuerst im Jahre 1602 in einer Quartausgabe mit folgendem Titelblatt: A Most pleasant and excellent conceited Comedie, of Syr Iohn Falstaffe, and the merrie Wives of Windsor. Entermixed with sundrie variable and pleasing humors, of Syr Hugh the Welch Knight, Iustice Shallow, and his wise Cousin M. Slender. With the swaggering vaine of Auncient Pistoll, and Corporall Nym. By William Shakespeare. As it hath bene diuers times Acted by the right Honorable my Lord Chamberlaines seruants. Both before her Maiestie, and else-where. London Printed by T. C. for Arthur Iohnson, and are to be sold at his shop in Powles Church-yard, at the signe of the Flower de Lense and the Crowne. 1602. — Der als Drucker bezeichnete T. C. ist Thomas Creede, welcher mehrere der früheren Quartausgaben Shakspeare'scher Dramen druckte. — Dieser ersten Ausgabe (Q. A.) folgte im Jahre 1619 eine zweite, die indess nichts als ein fast wörtlicher Abdruck derselben, mit höchst geringfügigen und kaum nennenswerthen Abweichungen, ist. — In der Gesamtausgabe der Shakspeare'schen Dramen in Folio vom Jahre 1623 steht The Merry Wives of Windsor als das dritte Stück in der Reihe der Comedies, und ist hier zuerst in Acte und Scenen eingetheilt, aber mit keinem Personenverzeichniss versehen, welches Rowe in seiner Ausgabe von 1709 beifügte. Aus der Folioausgabe endlich ist eine dritte Einzelausgabe in Quarto im Jahre 1630 eben so wörtlich abgedruckt, wie die Quarto von 1619 aus der Quarto von 1602.

Der Text dieser ersten Quartausgabe steht zu dem Texte der Folio in gleichem oder doch ähnlichem Verhältnisse, wie es sich bei drei andern Dramen unsers Dichters herausstellt. (Vgl. die Einleitungen zu Hamlet, Romeo and Juliet, und King Henry V.) Es wiederholt sich also auch hier die Frage, die bei jenen Dramen zur Sprache kommt, ohne in ganz bestimmter Antwort sich entscheiden zu lassen, die Frage nämlich, ob die kürzere und vielfach von der späteren vollständigen Gestalt abweichende Fassung des Quartotextes lediglich zurückzuführen sei auf die nachlässige und gewissenlose Art, mit welcher ein unrechtmässiger Herausgeber das ihm in ächter und ganzer Form nicht zur Verfügung gestellte Drama aus einzelnen Fetzen, vielleicht mit fremder und untergeordneter Beihülfe, nothdürftig zusammengeflickt und für den Druck zurecht gemacht habe; oder ob diese frühere Fassung hindeute auf eine frühere Bearbeitung von Seiten des Dichters selbst, auf eine Bearbeitung, die er später selbst verworfen und mit derjenigen vertauscht habe, welche uns in den Texten der Folioausgabe vorliegt. Diejenigen Kritiker, welche überhaupt solche doppelte Shakspeare'sche Bearbeitungen der betreffenden Dramen anzunehmen geneigt sind, entscheiden sich vorzugsweise bestimmt für diese Ansicht bei unserm Lustspiele und begründen ihre Hypothese zum Theil mit auf eine Tradition, die sich freilich nicht weiter zurück hat verfolgen lassen, als bis zum Jahre 1702, wo ein gewisser John Dennis unter dem Titel The Comical Gallant eine neue Bearbeitung der Merry Wives of Windsor auf die Bühne und dann auch in den Druck brachte. In der Widmungsepistel sagt Dennis von dem Shakspeare'schen Stück: That this comedy was not despicable, I guess'd for several reasons; First I knew very well that it had pleas'd one of the greatest queens that ever was in the world, great not only for her wisdom in the arts of government, but for her knowledge of polite learning, and her nice taste of the drama, for such a taste we may be sure she had, by the relish which she had of the ancients. This comedy was written at her command, and by her direction, and she was so eager to see it acted, that she commanded it to be finished in fourteen days; and was afterwards as tradition tells us very well pleas'd at the representation. — Einen weiteren Zug zu dieser Tradition fügt Rowe in seinem Life of Shakespeare (1709) hinzu, wenn er von der Königin Elisabeth sagt: She was so well pleased with that admirable character of Falstaff in the two parts of Henry IV., that she commanded him to continue it for one play more, and to show him in love: this is said to be the occasion of his writing the Merry Wives of Windsor. — Welche Beglaubigung diese erst um ein volles Jahrhundert nach der Entstehung des Lustspiels gelegentlich bei Dennis als Tradition auftauchende Sage für sich in Anspruch nehmen kann, ob ihr wirklich etwas Thatsächliches zu Grunde liegt, ob nicht vielmehr die auf dem Titelblatt der ersten Ausgabe von 1602 erhaltene Notiz, dass das Lustspiel von der Shakspeare'schen Schauspielergesellschaft vor der Königin aufgeführt sei, in Verbindung mit dem Umstande, dass die Scene in Windsor, der zeitweiligen Residenz der Königin, liegt, sowie mit der zum Schlusse eingeflochtenen Verherrlichung des Hosenbandordens, dem die Schlosskapelle in Windsor gewidmet ist, — ob nicht das Alles Veranlassung gewesen sein mag, auf einen ausdrücklichen Befehl der Königin anekdotisch zurückzuführen, was entweder Wunsch des Publicums oder Idee des Dichters selber war, — darüber wird sich eine endgültige Entscheidung heutzutage schwerlich mehr, in Ermangelung jeder früheren und zuverlässigeren Ueberlieferung, ermitteln lassen. Ganz undenkbar aber muss es jedenfalls erscheinen, obwohl manche Kritiker diese Ansicht hegen, dass die unvollkommene Skizze des Lustspiels, wie sie in der Quartausgabe von 1602 vorliegt, von dem Dichter als die Frucht seiner muthmasslichen vierzehntägigen Arbeit auf das Theater gebracht und laut des Titelblattes »vor der Königin wie anderswo« hat aufgeführt sein können. Dass die Merry Wives of Windsor in dieser unfertigen Gestalt so wenig wie Hamlet, Romeo and Juliet und King Henry V. in der Fassung ihrer ersten Ausgaben jemals vom Dichter geschrieben und zur Darstellung befördert sein konnten, wird sich am deutlichsten, wie bei den genannten drei Dramen, aus einigen Auszügen aus diesem ältesten, in jeder Beziehung mangelhaften Texte ergeben.

Zunächst stehe hier was in der Quarto von 1602 der ersten Scene des zweiten Acts entspricht:

Enter Mistresse Page, reading of a Letter.

Mis. Pa. Mistresse Page I loue you. Aske me no reason,
Because theyr impossible to alledge. Your faire,
And I am fat. Yon loue sack, so do I:
As I am sure I haue no mind but to loue,
So I know you haue no hart but to grant.
A souldier doth not vse many words, where a knowes
A letter may serue for a sentence. I loue you,
And so I leaue you.

Yours Syr John Falstaffe.

Now Ieshu blesse me, am I methomorphised? I thinke
I knowe not myselfe. Why what a Gods name doth this man see in mee, that thus he shootes at my honestie?
Well but that I knowe my owne heart, I should scarcely perswade my selfe I were hand.
Why what an vnreasonable wooll sack is this? He was neuer twice in my companie, and if then I thought I gaue such assurance with my eies, Ide pul them out, they should neuer see more holie daies. Well, I shall trust fat men the worse while I liue for his sake. O God that I knew how to be reuenged of him.
But in good time, heeres mistresse Foord.

Enter Mistresse Foord.

Mis. For. How now Mistris Page, are you reading Loue Letters? How do you woman?

Mis. Pa. O woman I am I know not what In loue vp to the hard eares. I was neuer in such a case in my life.

Mis. For. In loue, now in the name of God with whom?

Mis. Pa. With one that sweares he loues me,
And I must not choose but do the like againe:
I prethie looke on that Letter.

Mis. For. Ile match your letter iust with the like,
Line for line, word for word. Only the name
Of misteris Page, and misteris Foord disagrees:
Do me the kindness to looke vpon this.

Mis. Pa. Why this is right my letter.
O most notorious villaine!
Why what a bladder of iniquitie is this?
Lets be reuenged what so ere we do.

Mis. For. Reuenged, if we liue weel be reuenged.
O Lord if my husband should see this Letter
Ifaith this would euen giue edge to his Iealousie.

Enter Ford, Page, Pistoll and Nym.

Mis. Pa. See where our husbands are,
Mine's as far from Iealousie,
As I am from wronging him.

Pis. Ford the words I speake are forst:
Beware, take heed, for Falstaffe loues thy wife:
When Pistoll lies do this.

Ford. Why sir my wife is not young.

Pis. He wooes both yong and old, both rich and poore

None comes amis. I say he loues thy wife:
Faire warning did I giue, take heed,
For sommer comes, and Cuckoo birds appeare:
Page, belieue him what he ses, Away sir Corporall Nym. [Exit Pistoll.

Nym. Syr the humor of it is, he loues your wife,
I should ha borne the humor Letter to her:
I speake and I auouch tis true: My name is Nym.
Farwell, I loue not the humor of bread and cheese:
And theres the humor of it. [Exit Nym.

Pa. The humor of it, quoth you:
Heres a fellow frites humor out of his wits.

Mis. Pa. How now sweet hart, how dost thou?

Enter Mistresse Quickly.

Pa. How now man? How do you mistris Ford?

Mis. For. Well I thanke you good M. Page.
How now husband, how chaunce thou art so melancholy.

Ford. Melancholy, I am not melancholy.
Goe get you in, goe.

Mis. For. God saue me, see who yonder is:
Weele set her a worke in this businesse.

Mis. Pa. O sheele serue excellent.
Now you come to see my daughter An I am sure.
Quic. I forsooth that is my comming.

Mis. Pa. Come go in with me: Come Mis. Ford.
Mis. For. I follow you Mistresse Page.

[Exit Mistresse Ford, Mis. Page, and Quickly.
For. M. Page did you heare what these fellowes said?

Pa. Yes M. Ford, what of that sir?
For. Do you thinke it is true that they told is?

Pa. No by my troth do I not,
I rather take them to be paltry lying knaues,
Such as rather speakes of enuie,
Then of any certaine they haue
Of any thing. And for the knight, perhaps
He hath spoke merrily, as the fashion of fat men
Are: But should he loue my wife,
Ifaith Ide turne her loose to him:
And what he got more of her,
Then ill lookes, and shrowd words,
Why let me beare the penaltie of it.

For. Nay I do not mistrust my wife,
Yet Ide be loth to turne them together,
A man may be too confident.

Enter Host and Shallow.

Pa. Here comes my ramping host of the garter,
Ther's either licker in his hed, or mony in his purse,
That he lookes so merily. Now mine Host?

Host. God blesse you my bully rookes, God blesse
you.
Cauelera Iustice I say.

Shal. At hand mine host, at hand. M. Ford god den to you.
God den an twentie good M. Page.
I tell you sir we haue sport in hand.
Host. Tell him cauekira Iustice: tell him bully rooke.
Ford. Mine Host a the garter:
Host. What ses my bully rooke?
Ford. A word with you sir.
[Ford and the Host talkes.]
Shal. Harke you sir, Ile tell you what the sport shall be,
Doctor Cayus and sir Hu are to fight,
My merrie Host hath had the measuring
Of their weapons, and hath
Appointed them contrary places. Harke in your eare:
Host. Hast thou no shute against my knight,
My guest, my cauellira.
For. None I protest: But tell him my name
Is Rrooke, onlie for a Iest.
Host. My hand bully: Thou shalt
Haue egres and regres, and thy Name shall be Brooke: Sed I well bully Hector?
Shal. I tell you what M. Page, I beleue
The Doctor is no Iester, heele laie it on:

Um eine Probe von dem Blankverse der ersten Quarto zu geben, folge hier die vierte Scene des dritten Actes:

Enter M. Fenton, Page, and Mistresse Quickly.
Fen. Tell me sweet Nan, how doest thou yet resolve,
Shall foolish Slender haue thee to his wife?
Or one as wise as he, the learned Doctor?
Shall such as they enioy thy maiden hart?
Thou knowst that I haue alwaies loued thee deare,
And thou hast oft times swore the like to me.
An. Good M. Fenton, you may assure your selfe
My hart is settled vpon none but you,
Tis as my father and mother please:
Get their consent, you quickly shall haue mine.
Fen. Thy father thinks I loue thee for his wealth,
Tho I must needs confesse at first that drew me,
But since thy vertues wiped that trash away,
I loue thee Nan, and so deare is it set,
That whilst I liue, I nere shall thee forget.
Quic. Godes pitie here comes her father.
Enter M. Page, his wife, M. Shallow, and Slender.
Pa. M. Fenton I pray what make you here?
You know my answeere sir, shees not for you:
Knowing my vow, to blame to vse me thus.
Fen. But heare me speake sir.
Pa. Pray sir get you gon: Come hither daughter,
Sonne Slender let me speak with you. [they whisper.]
Quic. Speake to Misteris Page.
Fen. Pray misteris Page let me haue your cōsent —
Mis. Pa. Ifaith M. Fentō tis as my husband please.
For my part Ile neither hinder you, nor further you.
Quic. How say you this was my doings?
I bid you speake to misteris Page.
Fen. Here nurse, theres a brace of angels to drink,
Worke what thou canst for me, farwell. [Exit Fen.]
Quic. By my troth so I will, good hart.
Pa. Come wife, you an I will in, wee leaue M.
Slender

For tho we be Iustices and Doctors,
And Church men, yet we are
*The sonnes of women M. Page:*
Pa. True maister Shallow:
Shal. It will be found so maister Page:
Pa. Maister Shallow you your selfe
Haue bene a great fighter,
Tho now a man of peace:
Shal. M. Page I haue seene the day that yong
Tall fellowes with theier stroke & their passado,
I haue made them trudge Maister Page,
A tis the hart, the hart doth all: I
Haue seene the day, with my two hand sword
I would a made you foure tall Fencers
Scipped like Rattes.
Host. Here boyes, shall we wag, shall we wag?
Shal. Ha with you mine host.
[Exit Host and Shallow.]
Pa. Come M. Ford, shall we to dinner?
I know these fellowes sticks in your minde.
For. No in good sadnesse not in mine:
Yet for all this Ile try it further,
I will not leaue it so:
*Come M. Page, shall we to dinner?*
Pa. With all my hart sir, Ile follow you.
[Exit omnes.]

*And my daughter to talke together. *M. Shallow,
You may stay sir if you please.
[Exit Page and his wife.]
Shal. Mary I thanke you for that:
To her cousin, to her.
Slen. Ifaith I know not what to say.
An. Now M. Slender, whats your will?
Slen. Godeso theres a Iest indeed: why misteris
An,
I neuer made wil yet: I thāk God I am wise inough for that.
Shal. Fie cusse fie, thou art not right,
O thou hadst a father.
Slen. I had a father misteris Anne, good vncle Tell the Iest how my father stole the goose out of
The henloft. All this is nought, harke you mistresse Anne.
Shal. He will make you ioynter of three hundred pound a yeare, he shall make you a gentlewoman.
Slend. Ibe God that I vill, come cut and long taile, as good as any is in Glostershire, vnder the degree of a Squire.
An. O God how many grosse faults are hid,
And couered in three hundred pound a yeare?
*Well M. Slender, within a day or two Ile tell you* more.
Slend. I thanke you good misteris Anne, vncle I shall haue her.
Quic. M. Shallow, M. Page would pray you to *come you, and you M. Slender, and you mistris An.*
Slend. Well Nurse, if youle speake for me, Ile giue you more than Ile talke of.
[Exit omnes but Quickly.]
Quic. Indeed I will, Ile speake what I can for you,
*But specially for M. Fenton:*
But specially of all for my Maister.
And indeed I will do what I can for them all three.
[Exit

Ferner die vierte Scene des vierten Actes:

Enter Ford, Page, their wives, Shallow, and Slender. Syr Hu.

Ford. Well wife, heere take my hand, vpon my soule I loue thee dearer then I do my life, and joy I haue so true and constant wife, my iealousie shall neuer more offend thee.

Mi. For. Sir I am glad, & that which I haue done,

Was nothing else but mirth and modestie.

Pa. I misteris Ford, Falstaffe hath all the grieffe, And in this knauerie my wife was the chiefe.

Mi. Pa. No knauery husband, it was honest mirth.

Hu. Indeed it was good pastimes & merriments.

Mis. For. But sweete heart shall wee leaue olde Falstaffe so?

Mis. Pa. O by no meanes, send to him againe.

Pa. I do not thinke heele come being so much deceived.

For. Let me alone, Ile to him once againe like Brooke, and know his mind whether heele come or not.

Pa. There must be some plot laide, or heele not come.

Mis. Pa. Let vs alone for that. Heare my deuice. Oft haue you heard since Horne the hunter dyed, That women to affright their litle children, Ses that he walkes in shape of a great stagge. Now for that Falstaffe hath bene so deceived, As that he dares not venture to the house, Wee send him word to meet vs in the field, Disguised like Horne, with huge horns on his head,

Die interessantesten Punkte zur Vergleichung bietet der Schluss des Stückes, der in der ersten Quarto so lautet:

Enter Sir Iohn, with a Bucks head vpon him.

Fal. This is the third time, well Ile venter, They say there is good luck in odd numbers, Ioue transformed himselfe into a bull, And I am here a Stag, and I thinke the fattest In all Windsor forrest: well I stand here For Horne the hunter, waiting my Does comming.

Enter Mistris Page, and Mistris Ford.

Mis. Pa. Sir Iohn, where are you?

Fal. Art thou come my doe? what and thou too? Welcome Ladies.

Mi. For. I I sir Iohn, I see you will not faile, Therefore you deserue far better then our loues; But it grieues me for your late crosses.

Fal. This makes amends for all, Come diuide me betweene you, each a hanch, For my horns Ile bequeath the to your husbands, Do I speake like Horne the hunter, ha?

Mis. Pa. God forgiue me, what noise is this?

[There is a noise of hornes, the two women run away.]

Enter sir Hugh like a Satyre, and boyes drest like Fayries, mistresse Quickly, like the Queene of Fayries: they sing a song about him, and afterward speake.

Quic. You Fayries that do haunt these shady groues,

Looke round about the wood if you can espie A mortall that doth haunt our sacred round:

The houre shalbe iust betweene twelue and one, And at that time we will meet him both:

Then would I haue you present there at hand, With litle boyes disguised and dressed like Fayries,

For to affright fat Falstaffe in the woods.

And then to make a period to the Iest, Tell Falstaffe all, I thinke this will do best.

Pa. Tis excellent, and my daughter Anne Shall like a litle Fayrie be disguised.

Mis. Pa. And in that Maske Ile make Doctor steale my daughter An, & ere my husband knowes it, to carrie her to Church, and marrie her.

Mis. For. But who will buy the silkes to tyre the boyes?

Pa. That will I do, and in a robe of white Ile cloath my daughter, and aduertise Slender To know her by that signe, and steale her thence. And vnkowne to my wife, shall marrie her.

Hu. So kad vdge me the deuises is excellent. I will also be there, and be like a Iackanapes, And pinch him most cruelly for his lecheries.

Mis. Pa. Why then we are reuenged sufficiently. First he was carried and throwne in the Thames, Next beaten well, I am sure youle witnes that.

Mi. For. Ile lay my life this makes him nothing fat.

Pa. Well lets about this stratagem, I long To see deceit deceived, and wrong haue wrong.

For. Well send to Falstaffe, and if he come thither, Twil make vs smile and laugh one moneth together.

[Exit omnes.]

If such a one you can espie; giue him his due, And leaue not till you pinch him blacke and blew: Giue them their charge Puck ere they part away.

Sir Hu. Come hither Peane, go to the countrie houses,

And when you finde a slut that lies a sleepe, And all her dishes foule, and roome vnswept, With your long nailes pinch her till she crie, And sweare to mend her sluttish huswiferie.

Fai. I warrant you I will performe your will.

Hu. Where is Pead? go you & see where Brokers sleep,

And fox-eyed Seriants with their mase, Goe laie the Proctors in the street, And pinch the lowsie Seriants face: Spare none of these when they are a bed, But such whose nose looks plew and red.

Quic. Away begon, his mind fulfill, And looke that none of you stand still.

Some do that thing, some do this, All do something, none amis.

Hir. sir Hu. I smell a man of middle-earth.

Fal. God blesse me from that wealch Fairie.

Quic. Looke euery one about this round,

And if that any here be found, For his presumption in this place, Spare neither legge, arme, head, nor face.

Sir Hu. See I haue spied one by good luck, His bodie man, his head a buck.

Fal. God send me good fortune now, and I care not.

Quic. Go strait, and do as I commaund,
And take a Taper in your hand,
And set it to his fingers endes,
And if you see it him offends,
And that he starteth at the flame,
Then is he mortall, know his name:
If with an F. it doth begin,
Why then be shure he is full of sin.
About it then, and know the truth,
Of this same metamorphised youth.

Sir Hu. Giue me the Tapers, I will try
And if that he loue venery.

[They put the Tapers to his fingers, and he starts.

Sir Hu. It is right indeed, he is full of lecheries and iniquitie.

Quic. A little distant from him stand,
And euery one take hand in hand,
And compasse him within a ring,
First pinch him well, and after sing.

[Here they pinch him, and sing about him, & the Doctor comes one way & steales away a boy in red. And Slender another way he takes a boy in greene: And Fenton steales misteris Anne, being in white. And a noyse of hunting is made within: and all the Fairies runne away. Falstaffe pulles of his bucks head, and rises up. And enters M. Page, M. Ford, and their wiues, M. Shallow, Sir Hugh.

Fal. Horne the hunter quoth you: am I a ghost?
Sblood the Fairies had made a ghost of me:
What hunting at this time at night?

Ile lay my life the mad Prince of Wales
Is stealing his fathers Deare. How now who haue
We here, what is all Windsor stirring? Are you there?

Shal. God saue you sir Iohn Falstaffe.

Sir Hu. God plesse you sir Iohn, God plesse
you.

Pa. Why how now sir Iohn, what a pair of horns in your hand?

Ford. Those hornes he ment to place vpon my head,

And M. Brooke and he should be the men:
Why how now sir Iohn, why are you thus amazed?
We know the Fairies man that pinched you so,
Your throwing in the Thames, your beating well,
And whats to come sir Iohn, that can we tell.

Mi. Pa. Sir Iohn tis thus, your dishonest meanes
To call our credits into question,
Did make vs vndertake to our best,
To turne your leaud lust to a merry Iest.

Fal. Iest, tis well, haue I liued to these yeares
To be gulled now, now to be ridden?
Why then these were not Fairies?

Mis. Pa. No sir Iohn but boyes.

Fal. By the Lord I was twice or thrise in the mind

They were not, and yet the grosnesse
Of the fopperie perswaded me they were.
Well, and the fine wits of the Court heare this,
Thayle so whip me with their keene Iests,
That thayle melt me out like tallow,
Drop by drop out of my grease. Boyes!

Sir Hu. I trust me boyes sir Iohn: and I was Also a Fairie that did helpe to pinch you.

Fal. I, tis well I am your May-pole,
You haue the start of mee,
Am I ridden too with a wealch goate?
With a peece of toasted cheese?

Sir Hu. Butter is better than cheese sir Iohn,
You are all butter, butter,
For. There is a further matter yet sir Iohn,
There's 20. pound you borrowed of M. Brooke Sir
Iohn,

And it must be paid to M. Ford Sir Iohn.

Mi. For. Nay husband let that go to make amends,
Forgiue that sum, and so wee'll all be friends.

For. Well here is my hand, all's forgiuen at last.

Fal. It hath cost me well,
I haue bene well pinched and washed.

Enter the Doctor.

Mi. Pa. Now M. Doctor, sonne I hope you are.

Doct. Sonne begar you be de ville voman,
Begar I tinck to marry metres An, and begar
Tis a whorson garson Iack boy.

Mis. Pa. How a boy?

Doct. I begar a boy.

Pa. Nay be not angry wife, Ile tell thee truc,
It was my plot to deceiue thee so:

And by this time your daughter's married
To M. Slender, and see where he comes.

Enter Slender.

Now sonne Slender,
Where's your bride?

Slen. Bride, by Gods lyd I thinke theres neuer a man in the worell hath that crosse fortune that I haue: begod I could cry for verie anger.

Pa. Why whats the matter sonne Slender?

Slen. Sonne, nay by God I am none of your son.

Pa. No, why so?

Slen. Why so God saue me, tis a boy I haue married.

Pa. How a boy? why did you mistake the word?

Slen. No neither, for I came to her in red as you bad me, and I cried mum, and hee cried budget, so well as euer you heard, and I haue married him.

Sir Hu. Jeshu M. Slender, cannot you see but Enter Fenton and Anne.

Mis. Pa. Here comes the man that hath deceiued

Pa. At Church, what haue you done there?

Fen. Married to me, nay sir neuer storme,
Tis done sir now, and cannot be vndone.

Ford. Ifaith M. Page neuer chafe your selfe,
She hath made her choise wheras her hart was fixt,
Then tis in vaine for you to storme or fret.

Fal. I am glad yet then your arrow hath glanced.
Mi. For. Come mistris Page, Ile be bold with you,
Tis pitie to part loue that is so true.

Mis. Pa. Altho that I haue missed in my intent,
Yet I am glad my husbands match was crossed,
Here M. Fenton, take her, and God giue thee ioy.

Sir Hu. Come M. Page, you must needs agree.

Fo. I yfaith sir come, you see your wife is wel pleased.

*Pa. I cannot tel, and yet my hart's well eased,
And yet it doth me good the Doctor missed.
Come hither Fenton, and come hither daughter,
Go too, you might haue stai'd for my good will,
But since your choise is made of one you loue,
Here take her Fenton, & both happie proue.*

Sir Hu. I will also dance & eat plums at your weddings.

*Ford. All parties pleased, now let vs in to feast,
And laugh at Slender, and the Doctors ieast.
He hath got the maiden, each of you a boy
To waite vpon you, so God giue you ioy,
And sir Iohn Falstaffe now shal you keep your word,*

For Brooke this night shall lye with mistris Ford.

[Exit omnes.]

Es ergibt sich aus diesen Proben schon hinlänglich, dass die so verwahrloste und abweichende erste Quarto-edition für die Kritik und Correctur des gangbaren Textes, dem sich natürlich nur die Folioausgabe zu Grunde legen lässt, nur ausnahmsweise Anhaltspunkte und Aushilfe gewährt, namentlich da, wo bei dem wahrscheinlich nach einem Bühnenmanuscripte des Blackfriarstheaters ziemlich nachlässig besorgten Drucke in der Folioausgabe einzelne durch den Zusammenhang geforderte Worte oder Verse ausgefallen sind, welche sich zufällig in der Quarto finden. Im Uebrigen bietet bei der grossen Einfachheit und Klarheit der Sprache der Text der Merry Wives of Windsor wenig Schwierigkeiten, und die etwa nöthig werdenden Emendationen sind bereits von den früheren Commentatoren grösstentheils in sicherer und befriedigender Weise entdeckt und festgestellt.

Für die chronologische Bestimmung unseres Lustspiels ist einerseits zu erwägen, dass das Titelblatt der ersten Ausgabe von 1602 nichts enthält, was auf eine erst kürzlich erfolgte Aufführung hindeutete, sondern nur besagt: as it hath been diuers times acted, andererseits, dass das Drama jedenfalls erst nach King Henry IV. First and Second Part, vielleicht auch erst nach King Henry V. oder gleichzeitig mit dem letztern Schauspiel verfasst sein kann; denn erst die ungemeine Popularität, welcher Falstaff und seine Gesellen aus jenen Dramen sich erfreuten, durfte für den Dichter, sei es nun aus eigenem Antrieb oder auf Anlass der Königin Elisabeth, ein Beweggrund gewesen sein, dieselben Figuren nun auch einmal in einem Lustspiel wieder vorzuführen, natürlich mit denjenigen Modificationen des Charakters, welche durch die gänzlich veränderten neuen Umgebungen und Situationen geboten schienen. Dass der Dichter aber keinen engeren Zusammenhang, abgesehen von dieser Reproduktion bekannter und beliebter Theaterfiguren, zwischen den Merry Wives of Windsor einerseits und King Henry IV. und King Henry V. andererseits beabsichtigt haben konnte, erhellt schon aus den fehlgeschlagenen Bemühungen einzelner Kritiker, das Lustspiel irgendwo in die Reihenfolge der historischen Dramen Shakspeare's einzufügen und die Widersprüche zu beseitigen, welche sich jedem derartigen Versuche entgegenstellen. — Mit der Zeitbestimmung, welche sich für die Merry Wives of Windsor aus der unleugbaren Priorität des King Henry IV. ergibt, stimmt auch der Umstand überein, dass Francis Meres in seiner Palladis Tamia (1598) dies Lustspiel unter den Comedies unseres Dichters nicht erwähnt, — ein Stillschweigen, das sich gerade bei diesem von Shakspeare's sonstiger Dichtart so durchaus abweichenden, rein komischen Werke füglich nicht anders als durch dessen damaliges Nichtvorhandensein erklären lässt.

Als Quellen, die Shakspeare benutzt haben könnte, hat man, da eine bestimmte Quelle sich nicht wohl nachweisen liess, auf verschiedene italienische und aus dem Italienischen in's Englische übersetzte Novellen hingedeutet, von denen indess jede nur einzelne Umstände mit dem Drama und noch dazu nirgends in sehr auffallender Verwandtschaft gemein hat. Am nächsten der Art, wie Falstaff sich um die Frau Ford bewirbt, deren Gatten zu seinem Vertrauten macht und dessen Nachstellungen doch immer glücklich entgeht, kommt noch eine Novelle aus Le tredici piacevoli Notti del S. Gio. Fr. Straparola, welche in englischer Bearbeitung sich in Tarlton's Newes out of Purgatorie, 1590, unter dem Titel The Two Lovers of Pisa findet. Wir lassen die erste grössere Hälfte hier folgen:

In Pisa, a famous cittie of Italye, there lived a gentleman of good linage and landes, feared as well for his wealth, as honoured for his vertue; but, indeed, well thought on for both: yet the better for his riches. This gentleman had one onely daughter, called Margaret, who for her beauty was liked of all, and desired of many: but neither might their sutes, nor her own prevaile about her fathers resolution, who was determynd not to marrye her, but to such a man as should be able in abundance to maintain the excellency of her beauty. Divers yong gentlemen proffered large feoffments, but in vaine; a maide shee must bee still: till at last an olde doctor in the towne, that professed physicke, became a sutor to her, who was a welcome man to her father, in that he was one of the welthiest men in all Pisa. A tall strippling he was, and a proper youth, his age about fourescore; his heade as white as milke, wherein, for offence sake, there was left never a tooth: but it is no matter; what he wanted in person he had in the purse; which the poore gentlewoman little regarded, wishing rather to tie herselfe to one that might fit her content, though they lived meanely, then to him with all the wealth in Italye. But shee was yong, and forst to follow her father's direction, who, upon large covenants, was content his daughter should marry with the doctor; and whether she likte him or no, the match was made up, and in short time she was married. The poore wench was bound to the stake, and had not onely an olde impotent man, but one that was so jealous as none might enter into his house without suspition, nor shee do any thing without blame: the least glance, the smallest countenance, any smile, was a manifest instance to him, that shee thought of others better then himselfe; thus he himselfe lived in a hell, and tormented his wife in as ill perplexitie. At last it chaunced, that a yong gentleman of the citie comming by her house, and seeing her look out at her window, noting her rare and excellent proportion, fell in love with her, and that so extreame, as his passions had no meanes till her favour might mitigate his heartsicke discontent. The yong man that was ignorant in amorous matters, and had never beene used to courte anye gentlewoman, thought to reveale his passions to some one freend that might give him counsaile for the winning of her love; and thinking experience was the surest maister, on a daye seeing the olde doctor walking in the churche — that was Margaret's husband — little knowing who he was, he thought this was the fittest man to whom he might discover his passions, for that hee was olde and knewe much, and was a physition that with his drugges might helpe him forward in his purposes: so that, seeing the old man walke solitary, he joinde unto him; and, after a curteous salute, tolde him that he was to impart a matter of great import unto him; wherein, if hee would not onely be secrete, but indevour to pleasure him, his pains should bee every way to the full considered. You must imagine, gentleman, quoth Mutio — for so was the doctor's name — that men of our profession are no blabs, but hold their secrets in their hearts' bottome; and therefore reveale what you please, it shall not onely be concealed, but cured, if either my heart or counsaile may doo it. Upon this Lionell — so was the young gentleman called — told and discourst unto him, from point to point, how he was false in love with a gentlewoman that was married to one of his profession; discovered her dwelling and the house; and for that he was unacquainted with the woman, and a man little experienced in love matters, he required his favour to further him with his advise. Mutio, at this motion, was stung to the hart, knowing it was his wife hee was fallen in love withall; yet to conceale the matter, and to experience his wives chastity, and that if she plaide false, he might be revengde on them both, he dissembled the matter, and answered, that he knewe the woman very well, and commended her highly; but saide she had a churle to her husband, and therefore he thought shee would bee the more tractable. Trie her, man, quoth hee; fainte hart never woone faire lady; and if shee will not be brought to the bent of your bowe, I will provide such a potion as shall dispatch all to your owne content; and to give you further instructions for oportunitie, knowe that her husband is foorth every afternoone from three till sixe. Thus farre I have advised you, because I pittie your passions, as my selfe being once a lover; but I now charge thee, reveale it to none whomsoever, least it doo disparage my credit to meddle in amorous matters. The yong gentleman not onely promised all carefull secrecy, but gave him harty thanks for his good counsell, promising to meete him there the next day, and tell him what newes. Then hee left the old man, who was almost mad for feare his wife any way should play false. He saw, by experience, brave men came to besiege the castle; and seeing it was in a woman's custodie, and had so weake a governor as him selfe, he doubted it would in time be delivered up; which feare made him almost franticke, yet he drived of the time in great torment, till he might heare from his rival. Lionello, he hastes him home, and sutes him in his bravery, and goes downe towards the house of Mutio, where he sees her at her window, whome he courted with a passionate looke, with such an humble salute, as shee might perceive how the gentleman was affectionate. Margaretta, looking earnestly upon him, and noting the perfection of his proportion, accounted him, in her eye, the flower of all Pisa; thinkte herselfe fortunate if shee might have him for her freend, to supply those defaultes that she found in Mutio. Sundry times that afternoone he past by her window, and he cast not up more loving lookes than he received gracious favours: which did so incourage him, that the next daye, betweene three and sixe, hee went to the house, and, knocking at the doore, desired to speake with the mistris of the house, who, hearing by her maid's description what he was, commaunded him to come in, where she interteined him with all courtesie.

The youth that never before had given the attempt to covet a ladye, began his exordium with a blushe; and yet went forward so well, that hee discourst unto her howe hee loved her, and that if it might please her so to accept of his service, as of a freende ever vowde in all dutye to bee at her commaunde, the care of her honour should bee deerer to him then this life, and hee would bee ready to prise her discontent with his bloud at all times.

The gentlewoman was a little coye, but before they part they concluded that the next day, at foure of the clock, hee should come thither and eate a pound of cherries, which was resolved on with a succado des labras, and so, with a loath to depart, they tooke their leaves. Lionello, as joyfull a man as might be, hyed him to the church to meete his olde doctor, where hee found him in his olde walke. What newes, syr? quoth Mutio. How have you sped? Even as I can wishe, quoth Lionello; for I have been with my mistrisse, and have found her so tractable, that I hope to make the olde peasant, her husband, looke broadhedded by a paire of browantlers. How deepe this strooke into Mutio's hart, let them imagine that can conjecture what jelousie is; insomuch that the olde doctor askte when should be the time. Mary, quoth Lionello, to-morrow at foure of the clocke in the afternoone; and then, maister doctor, quoth hee, will I dub the olde squire knight of the forked order.

Thus they passed on in chat, till it grew late; and then Lyonello went home to his lodging, and Mutio to his house, covering all his sorrowes with a merrye countenance, with full resolution to revenge them both the next day with extremitie. He past the night as patiently as he could, and the next daye after dinner awaye hee went, watching when it should bee four of the clocke. At the houre justly came Lyonello, and was interteined with all curtesie: but scarce had they kist, ere the maide cried out to her mistresse that her maister was at the doore; for he hasted, knowing that a horne was but a litle while in grafting. Margaret, at this alarum, was amazed; and yet, for a shifte, chopt Lyonello into a great driefatte full of feathers, and sat her downe close to her woorke. By that came Mutio in blowing; and, as though hee came to looke somewhat in haste, called for the keyes of his chambers, and looked in everye place, searching so narrowly in everye corner of the house, that he left not the very privie unsearcht. Seeing he could not finde him, hee saide nothing; but, fayning himselfe not well at ease, staide at home, so that poor Lyonello was faine to staye in the drifatte till the olde churle was in bed with his wife; and then the maide let him out at a backe doore, who went home with a flea in his eare to his lodging.

Well, the next day he went againe to meete his doctor, whome hee found in his woonted walke. What newes, quoth Mutio? Howe have you sped? A poxe of the olde slave, quoth Lyonello; I was no sooner in, and had given my mistrisse one kisse, but the jealous asse was at the doore: the maide spied him, and cryed, her maister! so that the poore gentlewoman, for very shifte, was faine to put me in a driefatte of feathers that stode in an olde chamber, and there I was faine to tarrie while he was in bed and asleepe, and then the maide let me out, and I departed.

But it is no matter; 'was but a chaunce, and I hope to crye quittance with him ere it be long. As how, quoth Mutio? Marry thus, quoth Lionello: she sent me woord by her maide this daye, that upon Thursday next the olde churle suppeth with a patient of his a mile out of Pisa, and then I feare not but to quitte him for all. It is well, quoth Mutio; fortune bee your freende. I thanke you, quoth Lionello; and so after a little more prattle they departed.

To bee shorte, Thursdays came; and about sixe of the clocke foorth goes Mutio no further then a freendes house of his, from whence hee might descrye who went into his house. Straight hee sawe Lionello enter in; and after goes hee, insomuche that hee was scarcelye sitten downe before the mayde cryed out againe, my maister comes. The good-wife that before had provided for afterclaps, had found out a privie place between two seelings of a plauncher, and there she thrust Lionello; and her husband came sweting. What news, quoth shee, drives you home againe so soone, husband? Marry, sweete wife, quoth he, a fearefull dreame that I had this night, which came to my remembrance, and that was this: Methought there was a villeine that came secretly into my house with a naked poinard in his hand, and hid himselfe; but I could not finde the place: with that mine nose bled, and I came backe; and by the grace of God, I will seeke every corner in the house for the quiet of my minde. Marry, I pray you doo, husband, quoth she. With that he lockt in all the doors and began to search every chamber, every hole, every chest, every tub, the very well; he stabd every featherbed through, and made havocke, like a mad man, which made him thinke all was in vaine, and hee began to blame his eies that thought they saw that which they did not. Upon this he reste halfe lunaticke, and all night he was very wakefull; that towarde the morning he fell into a dead sleepe, and then was Lionello conveighed away.

ACT I.

SCENE I.

Windsor. Before PAGE's House.

Enter Justice SHALLOW, SLENDER, and Sir HUGH EVANS.

Shal. Sir Hugh,¹ persuade me not; I will make a Star-chamber matter² of it: if he were twenty Sir John Falstaffs, he shall not abuse Robert Shallow, esquire.

Slen. In the county of Gloster, justice of peace, and coram.³

Shal. Ay, cousin Slender, and cust-alorum.⁴

Slen. Ay, and ratolorum too; and a gentleman born, master parson; who writes himself armigero; in any bill, warrant, quittance, or obligation, armigero.

Shal. Ay, that I do; and have done⁵ any time these three hundred years.

Slen. All his successors, gone before him, hath done 't; and all his ancestors, that come after him, may: they may give the dozen white luses in their coat.

Shal. It is an old coat.

Eva. The dozen white louses do become an old coat well;⁶ it agrees well, passant; it is a familiar beast to man, and signifies love.

Shal. The luce is the fresh fish; the salt fish is an old coat.⁷

Slen. I may quarter, coz?

Shal. You may, by marrying.

Eva. It is marring, indeed, if he quarter it.⁸

Shal. Not a whit.

Eva. Yes, per-lady: if he has a quarter of your coat, there is but three skirts for yourself, in my simple conjectures. But that is all one: if Sir John Falstaff have committed disparagements unto you, I am of the church, and will be glad to do my benevolence, to make atonements and compremises between you.

1) Sir, ein Titel, der der niedern Geistlichkeit erteilt wurde, eine Uebersetzung des lateinischen Dominus. — In Folge einer Verwechselung mit dem Sir, welches dem Ritter zukam, wird auf dem Titelblatte der Q. A. Sir Hugh irrthümlich als the Welch Knight bezeichnet. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 71. 2) Eine Sache, die vor die Sternkammer gehört. Dieser Criminalgerichtshof in Westminster hiess so von dem Sitzungssaal, dessen Decke mit goldenen Sternen geziert war. Die Befugnisse dieses Gerichtshofes giebt Ben Jonson in seiner Magnetic Lady so an: There is a court above, of the Star-chamber, || To punish routs and riots. 3) Slender, der die volle Titulatur Shallow's angeben will, hält auch das lateinische coram für dazu gehörig, aus der Phrase, mit welcher der Friedensrichter im Zeugenverhör unterschrieb: Jurat coram me, Roberto Shallow, armigero. 4) cust-alorum, oder nach Malone's Vermuthung cust-ulorum, eine handschriftliche Abkürzung für lat. custos rotulorum = Actenbewahrer. Slender, der diese Abkürzung nicht versteht, fügt noch einmal rotulorum, zu ratolorum entstellt, hinzu. — In gleicher Unwissenheit setzt er den lateinischen Ablativ armigero (vgl. Anm. 3) aus Shallow's Unterschrift für armiger, das englische esquire. 5) scil. we have done. Slender erklärt Shallow's Meinung näher, indem er dabei jedoch nach seiner Weise successors und ancestors verwechselt. 6) Evans missversteht luses = Hechte, wie die Familie der Lucies deren drei in ihrem Wappen führte, Shallow aber ein ganzes Dutzend führen könnte, als louses für lice = Läuse, und ebenso coat = Wappenrock, als = alten Rock, in dem sich dieses Ungeziefer einnistet, als Zeichen der Anhänglichkeit an den Menschen. Als Wappenausdruck ist auch passant = in schreitender Stellung, gefasst. — Man hat hierin eine satyrische Anspielung auf einen Sir Thomas Lucy in Warwickshire finden wollen, der nach einer überlieferten Anekdote den jungen Shakspeare als Wilddieb bestraft haben soll. 7) Shallow will für seinen alten Wappenrock keinen jungen Hecht haben, sondern dem Alter des Wappenrocks gemäss einen alten, in Salz aufbewahrten. — Zugleich liegt darin neben der Anspielung auf die verschiedene Wappenfarbe ein Wortspiel zwischen Süßwasserfisch und Seefisch. 8) Evans verwechselt to marry und to mar und fasst to quarter = durch Verheirathung ein Wappen mit einem andern vereinigen, missverständlich = viertheilen.

Shal. The Council⁹ shall hear it: it is a riot.

Eva. It is not meet the Council hear a riot; there is no fear of Got in a riot. The Council, look you, shall desire to hear the fear of Got, and not to hear a riot: take your vizaments¹⁰ in that.

Shal. Ha! o' my life, if I were young again, the sword should end it.

Eva. It is petter that friends is the sword, and end it: and there is also another device in my prain, which, peradventure, prings goot discretions with it. There is Anne Page, which is daughter to Master George Page,¹¹ which is pretty virginity.

Slen. Mistress Anne Page? She has brown hair, and speaks small,¹² like a woman.

Eva. It is that fery person for all the 'orld; as just as you will desire, and seven hundred pounds of monies, and gold, and silver, is her grandsire, upon his death's-bed, (Got deliver to a joyful resurrections!) give, when she is able to overtake seventeen years old. It were a goot motion, if we leave our pribbles and prabbles, and desire a marriage between Master Abraham and Mistress Anne Page.

Shal. Did her grandsire leave her seven hundred pound? ¹³

Eva. Ay, and her father is make her a petter penny.

Shal. I know the young gentlewoman; she has good gifts.

Eva. Seven hundred pounds, and possibilities, is good gifts.¹⁴

Shal. Well, let us see honest Master Page. Is Falstaff there?

Eva. Shall I tell you a lie? I do despise a liar as I do despise one that is false; or, as I despise one that is not true. The knight, Sir John, is there; and, I beseech you, be ruled by your well-willers. I will peat the door for Master Page. [Knocks.] What, ho! Got pless your house here!

Page. [Within.] Who 's there?

Eva. Here is Got's plessing, and your friend, and justice Shallow; and here young Master Slender, that, peradventures, shall tell you another tale, if matters grow to your likings.

Enter PAGE.

Page. I am glad to see your worships well. I thank you for my venison, Master Shallow.

Shal. Master Page, I am glad to see you: much good do it your good heart. I wished your venison better; it was ill kill'd. — How doth good Mistress Page? — and I thank you always with my heart, la; with my heart.

Page. Sir, I thank you.

Shal. Sir, I thank you; by yea and no, I do.

Page. I am glad to see you, good Master Slender.

Slen. How does your fallow greyhound, Sir? I heard say, he was outrun on Cotsall.¹⁵

Page. It could not be judged, Sir.

Slen. You 'll not confess, you 'll not confess.

Shal. That he will not. — 'T is your fault, 't is your fault.¹⁶ — 'T is a good dog.

Page. A cur, Sir.

Shal. Sir, he 's a good dog, and a fair dog; can there be more said? he is good, and fair. Is Sir John Falstaff here?

Page. Sir, he is within; and I would I could do a good office between you.

Eva. It is spoke as a Christians ought to speak.

Shal. He hath wrong'd me, Master Page.

Page. Sir, he doth in some sort confess it.

Shal. If it be confess'd, it is not redress'd: is not that so, Master Page? He hath wrong'd me; indeed, he hath; — at a word, he hath; — believe me: — Robert Shallow, esquire, saith, he is wrong'd.

Enter Sir JOHN FALSTAFF, BARDOLPH, NYM, and PISTOL.

Fal. Now, Master Shallow, you 'll complain of me to the king?¹⁷

Shal. Knight, you have beaten my men, killed my deer, and broke open my lodge.¹⁸

Fal. But not kiss'd your keeper's daughter?

Shal. Tut, a pin! this shall be answered.

Fal. I will answer it straight: — I have done all this. — That is now answer'd.

Shal. The Council shall know this.

Fal. 'T were better for you, if it were known in counsel:¹⁹ you 'll be laughed at.

Eva. Pauca verba, Sir John; good worts.

Fal. Good worts? good cabbage.²⁰ — Slender, I broke your head: what matter have you against me?

Slen. Marry, Sir, I have matter²¹ in my head against you; and against your cony-catching²² rascals, Bardolph,

9) Einige Herausgeber halten Council für identisch mit Star-chamber, andere verstehen den Staatsrath des Königs (the king's Council) darunter, als eine von jener getrennte Körperschaft. Für erstere Annahme spricht der Text in Q. A., welcher lautet: Nere talke to me, Ile make a star-chamber matter of it. The Councell shall know it.

10) vizaments für das veraltete advisement = Ueberlegung, Rath. 11) So verbesserte Theobald, in Uebereinstimmung mit der sonstigen Namensbezeichnung (A. 2, Sc. 1 u. A. 5, Sc. 5), das Thomas Page der Fol. Vielleicht verwechselte der Abschreiber die Abkürzungen Geo. und Tho. 12) to speak small = im Discant reden. So in Webster's Westward Hoe: I'll speak in a small voice like one of the women. 13) Diese Rede und die zweitfolgende theilt die Fol. dem Slender, Capell mit grösserer Wahrscheinlichkeit dem Shallow zu, an den als an den natürlichen Vormund des einfältigen Slender Evans sich mit seinem Vorschlage gewandt hatte. 14) good gifts = gute Gaben, Eigenschaften, versteht Evans = gute Mitgift. — possibilities sind Anne Page's Aussichten auf das väterliche Erbtheil. 15) Cotswold in Glostershire, ein Hügelland, auf welchem grosse Wettrennen abgehalten wurden. So wird in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 3, Sc. 2) Will Squele, a Cotswold man, erwähnt als ein lustiger, ausgelassener Bursche. 16) Steevens fasst diese parenthetischen Worte als einen an Slender gerichteten Verweis. Plausibler nimmt Malone an, dass Shallow damit nur Page's Missgeschick beklage, dass ein sonst ausgezeichnete Windhund bei dem Cotswolder Rennen keinen entschiedenen Preis gewonnen habe. — fault = Missgeschick, Unglück, kommt auch sonst vor. 17) Für king der Fol. hat Q. A. council. Vgl. Anm. 9. 18) Auf lodge = Wohnung des Försters oder Wildhüters, bezieht sich Falstaff's Replik, die vielleicht ein Citat aus einer alten, verloren gegangenen Ballade ist. 19) Wortspiel zwischen Council (vgl. Anm. 9) und in counsel = im Vertrauen, im Geheimen. 20) Evans sagt worts für words, und Falstaff fasst persiflirend worts = Kraut, Kohl. 21) Das Wortspiel zwischen matter = Sache, Stoff im Allgemeinen, und = Materie, Eiterstoff aus einer

Bard. You Banbury cheese!²³

Slen. Ay, it is no matter.

Pist. How now, Mephostophilus?

Slen. Ay, it is no matter.

Nym. Slice, I say! pauca, pauca;²⁴ slice! that's my humour.

Slen. Where 's Simple, my man? — can you tell, cousin?

Eva. Peace! I pray you. Now let us understand: there is three umpires in this matter, as I understand; that is — Master Page, fidelicet, Master Page; and there is myself, fidelicet, myself; and the three party is, lastly and finally, mine host of the Garter.

Page. We three, to hear it, and end it between them.

Eva. Fery goot: I will make a prief of it in my notebook; and we will afterwards 'ork upon the cause, with as great discreetly as we can.

Fal. Pistol!

Pist. He hears with ears.

Eva. The tevil and his tam! what phrase is this, »He hears with ear«? Why, it is affectations.

Fal. Pistol, did you pick Master Slender's purse?

Slen. Ay, by these gloves,²⁵ did he (or I would I might never come in mine own great chamber again else), of seven groats in mill-sixpences,²⁶ and two Edward shovel-boards, that cost me two shilling and two pence a-piece of Yed²⁷ Miller, by these gloves.

Fal. Is this true, Pistol?

Eva. No; it is false, if it is a pick-purse.

Pist. Ha, thou mountain-foreigner!²⁸ — Sir John and master mine.

I combat challenge of this latten bilbo:²⁹

Word of denial in thy labras³⁰ here;

Word of denial: froth and scum, thou liest.

Slen. By these gloves, then 't was he.

Nym. Be avised, Sir, and pass good humours. I will say, »marry trap,« with you, if you run the nuthook's humour on me;³¹ that is the very note of it.

Slen. By this hat, then he in the red face had it; for though I cannot remember what I did when you made me drunk, yet I am not altogether an ass.

Fal. What say you, Scarlet and John?³²

Bard. Why, Sir, for my part, I say, the gentleman had drunk himself out of his five sentences.

Eva. It is his five senses: fie, what the ignorance is!

Bard. And being fap,³³ Sir, was, as they say, cashier'd; and so conclusions pass'd the careires.

Slen. Ay, you spake in Latin then too; but 't is no matter. I'll ne'er be drunk whilst I live again, but in honest, civil, godly company, for this trick: if I be drunk, I'll be drunk with those that have the fear of God, and not with drunken knaves.

Eva. So Got 'udge me, that is a virtuous mind.

Fal. You hear all these matters denied, gentlemen; you hear it.

Slen. O heaven! this is Mistress Anne Page.

Page. How now, Mistress Ford?

Fal. Mistress Ford, by my troth, you are very well met: by your leave, good mistress. [Kissing her.]

Page. Wife, bid these gentlemen welcome. — Come, we have a hot venison pasty to dinner: come, gentlemen, I hope we shall drink down all unkindness.

[Exeunt all but SHALLOW, SLENDER, and EVANS.]

Slen. I had rather than forty shillings, I had my Book of Songs and Sonnets here.³⁴

Wunde, kehrt wieder in Troilus and Cressida (A. 2, Sc. 1) then would come some matter from him. 22) cony-catching = gaunerisch. — Der folgende Satz They carried me — my pocket, der in der Fol. fehlt, ist aus Q. A. von Malone entlehnt. 23) Bardolph bezeichnet damit Slender's Magerkeit. So in Jack Drum's Entertainment: Put off your clothes, and you are like a Banbury cheese, — nothing but paring. — Banbury ist ein Städtchen in Oxfordshire. — Slender's abschreckende Magerkeit deutet dann Pistol an, indem er ihn Mephostophilus nennt, mit der Anspielung auf den teuflischen Gefährten des Doctor Faustus, den Marlowe auf's Theater gebracht hatte. 24) Nym meint pauca verba, wie Evans vorher schon gesagt, und fordert damit den Slender auf, seine Ausdrücke zu bemessen oder seine Rede abzuschneiden (slice). — humour ist Nym's überall wiederkehrendes Lieblingswort, ein von Sh. in seiner Vieldeutigkeit auch anderswo persifliertes Modewort. 25) Wie Slender hier bei seinen Handschuhen schwört, einem Modeartikel, auf den er sich Etwas einbildet, so schwört er ähnlich in Q. A. by this handkercher. 26) mill-sixpences = Sechspfennigstücke, die auf der Prägemühle (1562 — 1572) geschlagen waren und die später, nachdem man eine andere Prägweise anwandte, als Rechenpfennige dienten, wie man die Schillinge aus Edward's VI. Zeit im Brettspiel benutzte. — Für two Edward shovel-boards hat Q. A. deutlicher two fair shovel-board shillings. 27) Yed abgekürzt aus Yedward, welches K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 1, Sc. 2) für Edward steht. 28) Die Walliser werden auch sonst wegen ihres bergigen, rauhen Geburtslandes von den Engländern verhöhnt, so in K. Henry V. (A. 5, Sc. 1) you called me yesterday mountain-squire. 29) Als messingne Klinge bezeichnet Pistol verächtlich den unkräftigen Slender, den er zum Zweikampf herausfordern will. — challenge und combat sind emphatisch umgestellt. 30) Pistol gebraucht renommistisch das Fremdwort labras, spanisch, für Slender's Lippen, in welche er die von ihnen ausgegangene Lüge zurücksendet. In Q. A. sagt er I do retort the lie || Even in thy gorge, thy gorge, thy gorge. 31) Ich sage: Nehmt Euch in Acht, oder eigentlich: Attrapirt! wenn Ihr den Schergen bei mir spielen, mich als Dieb verhaften oder angeben wollt. — nuthook = eine Stange, um Nüsse von den Bäumen zu schlagen, kommt auch sonst als eine ehrenrührige Bezeichnung der Schergen oder Büttel vor. So in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 5, Sc. 4). Vielleicht liegt auch hier wieder eine Anspielung auf Slender's hageren Wuchs vor. — Q. A. hat But if you run base humours of me, I will say marry trap. And there's the humour of it. 32) So hiessen zwei Gefährten Robin Hood's, des in altenglischen Balladen gefeierten Wilddiebes und Vagabunden. — Falstaff spielt mit Scarlet auf Bardolph's rothes Gesicht an. 33) fap ein sonst nirgendwo vorkommendes Wort, das = betrunken, sein muss. — Bardolph drückt sich geflissentlich dunkel aus, ebenso in dem Folgenden, dessen eigentlicher Sinn nur der sein kann, dass Slender in seinem Rausch nichts mehr von sich gewusst habe und über alles Mass

Enter SIMPLE.

How now, Simple! Where have you been? I must wait on myself, must I? You have not the Book of Riddles³⁵ about you, have you?

Sim. Book of Riddles! why, did you not lend it to Alice Shortcake upon Allhallowmas last, a fortnight afore Michaelmas?³⁶

Shal. Come, coz; come, coz; we stay for you. A word with you, coz; marry, this, coz: there is, as 't were, a tender, a kind of tender, made afar off by Sir Hugh here: do you understand me?

Slen. Ay, Sir, you shall find me reasonable: if it be so, I shall do that that is reason.

Shal. Nay, but understand me.

Slen. So I do, Sir.

Eva. Give ear to his motions, Master Slender. I will description the matter to you, if you be capacity of it.

Slen. Nay, I will do as my cousin Shallow says. I pray you pardon me; he 's a justice of peace in his country, simple though I stand here.

Eva. But that is not the question; the question is concerning your marriage.

Shal. Ay, there 's the point, Sir.

Eva. Marry, is it, the very point of it; to Mistress Anne Page.

Slen. Why, if it be so, I will marry her upon any reasonable demands.

Eva. But can you affection the 'oman? Let us command³⁷ to know that of your mouth, or of your lips; for divers philosophers hold, that the lips is parcel of the mouth: therefore, precisely, can you carry your good will to the maid?

Shal. Cousin Abraham Slender, can you love her?

Slen. I hope, Sir, I will do as it shall become one that would do reason.

Eva. Nay, Got's lords and his ladies, you must speak possitable,³⁸ if you can carry her your desires towards her.

Shal. That you must. Will you, upon good dowry, marry her?

Slen. I will do a greater thing than that, upon your request, cousin, in any reason.

Shal. Nay, conceive me, conceive me, sweet coz: what I do, is to pleasure you, coz. Can you love the maid?

Slen. I will marry her, Sir, at your request; but if there be no great love in the beginning, yet heaven may decrease it upon better acquaintance, when we are married, and have more occasion to know one another: I hope, upon familiarity will grow more contempt;³⁹ but if you say, »marry her,« I will marry her; that I am freely dissolved, and dissolutely.

Eva. It is a fery discretion answer; save, the faul⁴⁰ is in the 'ort dissolutely: the 'ort is, according to our meaning, resolutely. — His meaning is good.

Shal. Ay, I think my cousin meant well.

Slen. Ay, or else I would I might be hanged, la!

Re-enter ANNE PAGE.

Shal. Here comes fair Mistress Anne. — 'Would I were young, for your sake, Mistress Anne!

Anne. The dinner is on the table; my father desires your worships' company.

Shal. I will wait on him, fair Mistress Anne.

Eva. Od's plessed will! I will not be absence at the grace.⁴¹ [Exeunt SHALLOW and EVANS.]

Anne. Will 't please your worship to come in, Sir?

Slen. No, I thank you, forsooth, heartily; I am very well.

Anne. The dinner attends you, Sir.

Slen. I am not a-hungry, I thank you, forsooth. — Go, sirrah, for all you are my man, go, wait upon my cousin Shallow. [Exit SIMPLE.] A justice of peace sometime may be beholding to his friend for a man.⁴² — I keep but three men and a boy yet, till my mother be dead; but what though? yet I live like a poor gentleman born.

Anne. I may not go in without your worship: they will not sit, till you come.

Slen. I' faith, I'll eat nothing; I thank you as much as though I did.

Anne. I pray you, Sir, walk in.

Slen. I had rather walk here, I thank you. I bruised my shin th' other day with playing at sword and dagger with a master of fence⁴³ (three veneys for a dish of stewed prunes),⁴⁴ and, by my troth, I cannot abide the smell of hot meat since. — Why do your dogs bark so? be there bears i' the town?

Anne. I think, there are, Sir; I heard them talked of.

Slen. I love the sport well; but I shall as soon quarrel at it⁴⁵ as any man in England. You are afraid, if you see the bear loose, are you not?

hinausgegangen sei. — Bardolph's Worte sind dem Slender so unverständlich, dass er sie für Latein hält. 34) Slender meint irgend eine gedruckte Gedichtsammlung, die er zu Hause hat und die er für ein Gespräch mit Anne Page gut benutzen zu können glaubt. Malone meint hier speciell die lyrischen Gedichte des Lord Surrey, Sir Thomas Wyatt u. A., welche im Jahre 1557 erschienen unter dem Titel: Songes and Sonnets, written by the Right Honorable Lord Henry Howard, late Earl of Surrey and others. 35) Collier vermuthet, dass damit The Booke of Merry Riddles gemeint sei, ein sehr populäres Buch, das viele Auflagen erlebte. 36) Da Allerheiligen in der That beinahe fünf Wochen nach Michaelis fällt, so wollte Theobald Martlemas für Michaelmas lesen. Indess liess Sh. wahrscheinlich den Simpel geflissentlich so falsch rechnen. 37) Evans will demand sagen. 38) Er meint positively. 39) contempt ist Theobald's Emendation für content der Fol., wie Slender dissolved für resolved u. s. w. sagt. — Slender denkt an das Sprichwort Too much familiarity breeds contempt. 40) fall in der Fol. So spricht Evans das Wort fault aus. 41) Evans als Geistlicher will das Tischgebet bei der Mahlzeit sprechen. — Q. A. hat diesen Passus erst in der zweiten Scene des ersten Acts. 42) Shallow kann sich schon einmal die Verpflichtung gefallen lassen, die er gegen seinen Verwandten Slender hat, weil Letzterer ihm durch seinen Bedienten bei Tisch aufwarten lässt. — Auch hier setzen die meisten Hgg. stillschweigend beholden für das Sh.'sche beholding. 43) Steevens will unter master of fence hier nicht bloss einen Fechtmeister oder Meister in der Fechtkunst verstanden wissen, sondern Einen, der darin förmlich einen Meistergrad erlangt hat. Indess scheint diese Erklärung überall, und namentlich für Slender, zu gesucht. 44) veney erklärt Bullokar's English Expositor: A touch in the body at playing with weapons. Wer also in dem Gefecht dreimal getroffen war, sollte dem Andern ein Gericht geschmorter Pflaumen bezahlen. 45) Slender, um sich als einen jungen Cavalier in allen dessen Modenarrheiten darzustellen, behauptet, dass er bei seiner Passion für Bären-

Anne. Ay, indeed, Sir.

Slen. That 's meat and drink to me,⁴⁶ now: I have seen Sackerson⁴⁷ loose twenty times, and have taken him by the chain; but, I warrant you, the women have so cried and shriek'd at it, that it pass'd:⁴⁸ but women, indeed, cannot abide 'em; they are very ill-favoured rough things.

Re-enter PAGE.

Page. Come, gentle Master Slender, come; we stay for you.

Slen. I 'll eat nothing, I thank you, Sir.

Page. By cock and pie,⁴⁹ you shall not choose, Sir. Come, come.

Slen. Nay, pray you, lead the way.

Page. Come on, Sir.

Slen. Mistress Anne, yourself shall go first.

Anne. Not I, Sir; pray you, keep on.

Slen. Truly, I will not go first: truly, la! I will not do you that wrong.

Anne. I pray you, Sir.

Slen. I 'll rather be unmannerly, than troublesome. You do yourself wrong, indeed, la! [Exeunt.

SCENE II.

The Same.¹

Enter Sir HUGH EVANS and SIMPLE.

Eva. Go your ways, and ask of doctor Caius' house, which is the way; and there dwells one Mistress Quickly, which is in the manner of his nurse, or his dry nurse, or his cook, or his laundry,² his washer, and his wringer.

Sim. Well, Sir.

Eva. Nay, it is petter yet.³ — Give her this letter; for it is a 'oman that altogether 's acquaintance⁴ with Mistress Anne Page: and the letter is, to desire and require her to solicit your master's desires to Mistress Anne Page: I pray you, be gone. I will make an end of my dinner: there 's pippins and cheese⁵ to come. [Exeunt.

SCENE III.

A Room in the Garter Inn.

Enter FALSTAFF, Host, BARDOLPH, NYM, PISTOL, and ROBIN.

Fal. Mine host of the Garter!

Host. What says my bully-rook?¹ Speak scholarly, and wisely.

Fal. Truly, mine host, I must turn away some of my followers.

Host. Discard, bully Hercules; cashier: let them wag; trot, trot.

Fal. I sit at ten pounds a week.²

Host. Thou 'rt an emperor, Caesar, Keisar, and Pheezar.³ I will entertain Bardolph; he shall draw, he shall tap: said I well, bully Hector?

Fal. Do so, good mine host.

Host. I have spoke; let him follow. — Let me see thee froth, and lime:⁴ I am at a word; follow. [Exit Host.

Fal. Bardolph, follow him. A tapster is a good trade: an old cloak makes a new jerkin; a withered serving-man, a fresh tapster. Go; adieu.

Bard. It is a life that I have desired. I will thrive. [Exit.

Pist. O base Gongarian wight! wilt thou the spigot wield?⁵

Nym. He was gotten in drink; is not the humour conceited?⁶ His mind is not heroic, and there 's the humour of it.

hetzen leicht in Handel gerathe. 46) Es ersetzt ihm Essen und Trinken, wenn er einen Bären sieht, der sich bei der Hetze von der Kette losgerissen hat. So in As you like it (A. 5, Sc. 1) It is meat and drink to me to see a clown. 47) Sackerson war der Name eines Bären, der in Paris-Garden in der Nähe des Sh.'schen Globustheaters oft gehetzt wurde. Er wird u. A. erwähnt in einer Epigrammensammlung von Sir John Davies (1598): Publius, a student of the common law, || To Paris-Garden doth himself withdraw; || Leaving old Ployden, Dyer, and Broke, alone || To see old Harry Hunkes, and Sacarson. 48) that it passed = dass es weit ging, dass es Alles übertraf. Vorzugsweise wird in diesem Sinne passing adverbial = überaus, gebraucht. 49) Eine Be-theuerung, die auch in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 5, Sc. 1) in ähnlichem Zusammenhange vorkommt.

1) Dyce verlegt die Oertlichkeit dieser Scene und bezeichnet sie An outer room in Page's house. 2) Evans meint laundress. — wringer verbessert Theobald das Ringer der Fol. 3) Es kommt noch besser, ich bin noch nicht fertig, versetzt Evans auf Simple's Well, Sir. 4) that altogether's acquaintance, d. h. that is altogether acquainted, setzte Tyrwhitt für that altogether's acquaintance der Fol. 5) Wegen der für die Walliser überhaupt charakteristischen Vorliebe für Käse wird Evans auch im Verlaufe des Dramas noch verhöhnt.

1) Wenn Douce bully-rook richtig mit a hectoring, cheating sharper erklärt, so muss der Wirth das Wort gebrauchen, ohne es genau zu verstehen, da er jedenfalls dem Falstaff keine Grobheit sagen will. — Wie aber Staunton bemerkt, hat bully-rook diese schimpfliche Bedeutung erst später erhalten, und ist zu Sh.'s Zeiten synonym mit dem familiären jolly dog gewesen. — Rowe las im Widerspruch mit Q. und Fol. bully-rock, was Whalley auf die rocks genannten Schachfiguren deutet. 2) Falstaff hat wöchentlich eine Zeche von zehn Pfund Sterling in dem Garter Inn zu Windsor. 3) Keisar = Kaiser, kommt auch bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen vor; so in Spenser's Faerie Queene: on mighty kings and keisars, und in dem alten Drama Appius and Virginia: you king and you keisar. — Nach der Alliteration bildet der Wirth scherzhaft dann noch Pheezar von to pheeze, was Q. A. Phessar, die Fol. Pheazar schreibt. 4) lyme in Q. A. und live in der Fol. — froth gilt von dem Biere, das die Küfer durch Zuthat von Seife zum Schäumen bringen mussten, lime von dem Sekt, den man durch Einmischung von Kalk kräftiger machte. So sagt Falstaff in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 2, Sc. 4) here's lime in this sack too. — lime für live setzte zuerst Steevens in den Text. — Staunton interpungirt Let me see thee, froth and lime. 5) Steevens hält diesen sechsfüssigen Jambus für die Parodie eines Verses aus einer alten bombastischen Tragödie, deren Namen er jedoch vergessen hat: Oh base Gongarian! wilt thou the distaff wield? — Für Gongarian der Q. A. hat die Fol. hungarian, scherzhaft = Hungerleider, und = Ungar, was in diesem Doppelsinn bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen öfter vorkommt; so in The Merry Devil of Edmonston: I have knights and colonels in my house, and must tend the Hungarians. 6) Der folgende Satz fehlt in der Fol. und ist von

Fal. I am glad I am so acquit of this tinder-box: his thefts were too open; his filching was like an unskilful singer, he kept not time.

Nym. The good humour is to steal at a minim's rest.⁷

Pist. Convey, the wise it call. Steal? foh! a fico for the phrase!⁸

Fal. Well, Sirs, I am almost out at heels.

Pist. Why, then let kibes ensue.

Fal. There is no remedy; I must cony-catch, I must shift.

Pist. Young ravens must have food.⁹

Fal. Which of you know Ford of this town?

Pist. I ken the wight: he is of substance good.

Fal. My honest lads, I will tell you what I am about.

Pist. Two yards, and more.¹⁰

Fal. No quips now, Pistol! Indeed, I am in the waist two yards about; but I am now about no waste; I am about thrift. Briefly, I do mean to make love to Ford's wife: I spy entertainment in her; she discourses, she carves,¹¹ she gives the leer of invitation: I can construe the action of her familiar style; and the hardest voice of her behaviour, to be Englished rightly,¹² is, >I am Sir John Falstaff's.<

Pist. He hath studied her well, and translated her well,¹³ out of honesty into English.

Nym. The anchor is deep:¹⁴ will that humour pass?

Fal. Now, the report goes, she has all the rule of her husband's purse; she hath a legion of angels.¹⁵

Pist. As many devils entertain,¹⁶ and >To her, boy,< say I.

Nym. The humour rises; it is good: humour me the angels.

Fal. I have writ me here a letter to her; and here another to Page's wife, who even now gave me good eyes too, examin'd my parts with most judicious ceilads:¹⁷ sometimes the beam of her view gilded my foot, sometimes my portly belly.

Pist. Then did the sun on dunghill shine.

Nym. I thank thee for that humour.

Fal. O! she did so course o'er my exteriors with such a greedy intention, that the appetite of her eye did seem to scorch me up like a burning-glass. Here's another letter to her: she bears the purse too; she is a region in Guiana, all gold and bounty.¹⁸ I will be cheaters¹⁹ to them both, and they shall be exchequers to me: they shall be my East and West Indies, and I will trade to them both. Go, bear thou this letter to Mistress Page; and thou this to Mistress Ford. We will thrive, lads, we will thrive.

Pist. Shall I Sir Pandarus of Troy become, And by my side wear steel?²⁰ then, Lucifer take all!

Nym. I will run no base humour: here, take the humour-letter. I will keep the haviour of reputation.

Fal. [To ROBIN.] Hold, sirrah, bear you these letters tightly:²¹

Sail like my pinnace to these golden shores.²² —

Rogues, hence! avaunt! vanish like hailstones, go;

Trudge, plod away o' the hoof; seek shelter, pack!

Falstaff will learn the humour of the age,²³

French thrift, you rogues: myself, and skirted page.

[Exeunt FALSTAFF and ROBIN.]

Pist. Let vultures gripe thy guts! for gourd and fullam holds,

And high and low beguile the rich and poor.²⁴

Tester I'll have in pouch, when thou shalt lack,

Base Phrygian Turk.

Theobald aus Q. A. entlehnt. 7) minim's verbessert Langton das minutes der Q. A. und der Fol. nach einer Stelle in Romeo and Juliet (A. 2, Sc. 4) rests me his minim rest, one, two, and the third in your bosom. 8) Pistol sagt euphemistisch to convey = heimlich fortschaffen, für to steal, ein grobes Wort, das er mit dem Ausdruck der Verachtung fico so abweist, wie er in K. Henry V. (A. 3, Sc. 6) Die änd be damn'd; and figo for thy friendship! ausruft. 9) Der Ausdruck ist sprichwörtlich. 10) Falstaff fasst about = mit Etwas beschäftigt, Pistol = ringsherum, in Anspielung auf Falstaff's Körperumfang. — Das folgende Wortspiel mit waist und waste macht Falstaff auch in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 1, Sc. 2). Es lässt sich schon früher in Heywood's Epigrams (1562) nachweisen. 11) to carve ist nach Grant White's Erklärung = ein geheimes Zeichen des Einverständnisses mit dem Finger machen, indem man das Glas zum Munde führt. Er citirt dazu aus Sir Thomas Overbury's A Very Woman: her lightness gets her to swim at top of the table, where her wry little finger bewrays carving. — Die Q. von 1630 hat craves für carves. 12) Das schwierigste Wort in ihrem Benehmen, wenn man es richtig in's Englische übersetzt, lautet: Ich gehöre Sir John Falstaff an. 13) Die Fol. hat beide Male will für well. Die entsprechende Stelle in Q. A. lautet He hath studied her well, out of honesty into English. — Die Cambridge Edd. vermuthen sinnreich studied her well, and translated her ill, behalten aber im Text die alte Lesart bei. 14) Unter dem tiefausgeworfenen Anker versteht Nym Falstaff's tiefangelegten Plan. 15) Q. A. liest She hath legions of angels und die Fol. he hath a legend of angels. — Die Anspielung auf die englische Goldmünze, angel von ihrem Gepräge genannt, kommt häufig bei Sh. vor. 16) Nimm Dir eben so viele Teufel in Dienst, wie sie Engel hat, und mache Dich an sie, Bursche, sage ich. — Pistol's Antwort macht es plausibel, in Falstaff's vorheriger Rede lieber she hath mit Q. A. als he hath mit der Fol. zu lesen. 17) Sehr prüfende, bedeutsame Blicke. Die Fol. schreibt das Wort, das Sh. auch in K. Lear (A. 4, Sc. 5) hat, illiads. 18) Nach Theobald's Vermuthung hatte Sh. hier die glänzenden Berichte über Guiana im Sinne, welche Sir Walter Raleigh 1596 von seiner Expedition nach Südamerika mitbrachte. — Die Stelle fehlt in Q. A. 19) Derselbe Doppelsinn von cheater = Schatzbeamter, eigentlich escheator, und = Preller, Betrüger, kommt auch in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 2, Sc. 4) vor. — Für cheates in Q. A. und Fol. setzt Theobald cheater. 20) Pistol weigert sich, da er einen Degen an der Seite trägt, den Kuppler für Falstaff zu spielen. — Pandarus, aus Sh.'s Troilus and Cressida bekannt, ist der Repräsentant aller Kuppler; so in Twelfth-Night (A. 3, Sc. 1) I would play lord Pandarus of Phrygia, Sir, to bring a Cressida to this Troilus. 21) tightly = gewandt, genau. 22) Der Page wird zu den beiden Frauen, deren Geld Falstaff ausbeuten will, gesandt, wie ein kleineres Boot von dem grösseren ausgesandt wird, um an einer Goldküste zu landen. 23) Die Q. A. hat the humour of this age, die Fol. the honour of the age. — Falstaff will die jetzige Mode der Galanterien mitmachen und auf diese französische Manier floriren. — Anders deutet Staunton French thrift: auf die französische Sitte, sich mit einem Pagen statt aller andern Dienerschaft zu begnügen. 24) gourd, fullam, high men und low men bezeichnen verschiedene Arten

Nym. I have operations,²⁵ which be humours of revenge.

Pist. Wilt thou revenge?

Nym. By welkin, and her star.²⁶

Pist. With wit, or steel?

Nym. With both the humours, I:

I will discuss the humour of this love to Page.²⁷

Pist. And I to Ford shall eke unfold,

How Falstaff, varlet vile,

His dove will prove, his gold will hold,

And his soft couch defile.

Nym. My humour shall not cool: I will incense Page to deal with poison; I will possess him with yellowness,²⁸ for the revolt of mien is dangerous: that is my true humour.

Pist. Thou art the Mars of malecontents: I second thee; troop on. [Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.

A Room in Doctor Caius's House.

Enter Mistress QUICKLY, SIMPLE, and RUGBY.

Quick. What, John Rugby! — I pray thee, go to the casement, and see if you can see my master, master doctor Caius, coming: if he do, i' faith, and find any body in the house, here will be an old¹ abusing of God's patience, and the king's English.

Rug. I'll go watch.

Quick. Go; and we'll have a posset² for 't soon at night, in faith, at the latter end of a sea-coal fire. [Exit RUGBY.] An honest, willing, kind fellow, as ever servant shall come in house withal; and, I warrant you, no tell-tale, nor no breed-bate:³ his worst fault is, that he is given to prayer; he is something peevish⁴ that way, but nobody but has his fault; but let that pass. Peter Simple you say your name is?

Sim. Ay, for fault of a better.

Quick. And Master Slender's your master?

Sim. Ay, forsooth.

Quick. Does he not wear a great round beard, like a glover's paring-knife?

Sim. No, forsooth: he hath but a little wee face,⁵ with a little yellow beard, a Cain-coloured beard.⁶

Quick. A softly-sprighted man, is he not?

Sim. Ay, forsooth; but he is as tall a man of his hands,⁷ as any is between this and his head: he hath fought with a warrener.

Quick. How say you? — O! I should remember him: does he not hold up his head, as it were? and strut in his gait?

Sim. Yes, indeed, does he.

Quick. Well, heaven send Anne Page no worse fortune! Tell master parson Evans, I will do what I can for your master: Anne is a good girl, and I wish —

Re-enter RUGBY.

Rug. Out, alas! here comes my master.

Quick. We shall all be shent.⁸ Run in here, good young man; go into this closet. [Shuts SIMPLE in the closet.] He will not stay long. — What, John Rugby! John, what, John, I say! — Go, John, go inquire for my master; I doubt, he be not well, that he comes not home. [Sings.⁹] And down, down, adown-a, etc.

Enter Doctor CAIUS.

Caius. Vat is you sing? I do not like dese toys. Pray you, go and vetch me in my closet un boitier vert;¹⁰ a box, a green-a box: do intend vat I speak? a green-a box.

Quick. Ay, forsooth; I'll fetch it you. [Aside.] I am glad he went not in himself: if he had found the young man, he would have been horn-mad.

Caius. Fe, fe, fe, fe! ma foi, il fait fort chaud. Je m'en vais à la cour, — la grande affaire.

Quick. Is it this, Sir?

Caius. Ouy; mettez le au mon pocket; dépêchez, quickly. — Vere is dat knave Rugby?

Quick. What, John Rugby! John!

Rug. Here, Sir.

Caius. You are John Rugby, and you are Jack Rugby:¹¹ come, take-a your rapier, and come after my heel to de court.

von falschen Würfeln, mit denen Pistol sich jetzt seinen Lebensunterhalt verdienen will. 25) Manche Hgg. fügen mit Pope nach operations aus Q. A. noch in my head ein. 26) So die Fol. Nym mochte einen besondern Stern am Firmament im Sinne haben, so dass die Emendation von Collier's altem Corrector stars unnöthig ist. Die Q. A. hat By welkin and her fairies. 27) Die Fol. hat to Ford in dieser Zeile und to Page in der folgenden. Die Q. A. hat das Richtige in beiden Fällen. 28) yellowness = Gelbsucht, als Farbe der Eifersucht. Q. A. hat Iallowes scil. yellows. — Auf diese Veränderung im Gesicht, die also für Falstaff Gefahr bedeutet, bezieht sich revolt of mien, wie Theobald das revolt of mine der Fol. umändert. — Pope las this revolt of mine, wie in K. Henry V. (A. 2, Sc. 2) For this revolt of thine, methinks, is like || Another fall of man. — Die Cambridge Edd. vermuthen den Ausfall eines Wortes wie anger hinter mine.

1) old = reichlich, mehr als genug. — Gottes Geduld wird der Doctor Caius missbrauchen durch die vielen gotteslästerlichen Flüche, die er ausstösst, und das Englische durch die vielen Sprachfehler, die er macht. 2) posset = eine gewürzte Suppe aus Milch und Bier, die man vor dem Schlafengehen ass, und welche die Quickly kochen will auf dem Kaminfener, an dem sie den Abend zubringen. — sea-coal heissen die Steinkohlen, weil sie zur See von Newcastle hergeschafft wurden. 3) breed-bate = Zänker, Friedensstörer. 4) peevish soll, wie Malone meint, die Quickly hier missverständlich für precise sagen. Indess reicht auch die gewöhnliche Sh.'sche Bedeutung des Wortes = unbeholfen, unpraktisch, hier aus. 5) wee = kümmerlich, klein, verstärkt das little. 6) Ein röthlich gelber Bart, wie ihn Cain, der Brudermörder, auf alten Bildern oder in den Mysterien trug. — Die Fol. hat Caine-coloured, die Q. A. kane-coloured, weshalb manche Hgg. cane-coloured = zimmetfarbig, lesen. 7) Simple versteht a tall man of his hands = ein tüchtiger Mann, der seine Hände zu gebrauchen versteht. — So erklärt Florio in seinem Dictionary (1598) das italienische manesco mit nimble, or quick-handed; a tall man of his hands. Es steht im Gegensatz zu softly-sprighted = ein sanfter, gutmüthiger Mensch, der sich viel gefallen lässt. 8) to shend = herunter machen, schlecht machen. 9) Sie trillert, um den argwöhnischen Doctor nichts merken zu lassen, den Refrain eines Liedes, den auch Ophelia in Hamlet (A. 4, Sc. 5) singt. 10) Die Fol. druckt unboyteene verd. Auch die folgenden französischen Brocken sind in den alten Ausgaben sehr entstellt. 11) Jack Rugby für John Rugby nennt er ihn verächtlich wegen seiner Langsamkeit und Einfalt. So nennt er bald

Rug. 'T is ready, Sir, here in the porch.

Caius. By my trot, I tarry too long. — Od's me! Qu'ay j'oublié? dere is some simples in my closet,¹² dat I will not for the varld I shall leave behind.

Quick. [Aside.] Ah me! he 'll find the young man there, and be mad.

Caius. O diable! diable! vat is in my closet? — Villany! larron! [Pulling SIMPLE out.] Rugby; my rapier!

Quick. Good master, be content.

Caius. Verefore shall I be content-a?

Quick. The young man is an honest man.

Caius. Vat shall de honest man do in my closet? dere is no honest man dat shall come in my closet.

Quick. I beseech you, be not so phlegmatic;¹³ hear the truth of it: he came of an errand to me from parson Hugh.

Caius. Vell.

Sim. Ay, forsooth, to desire her to —

Quick. Peace, I pray you.

Caius. Peace-a your tongue! — Speak-a your tale.

Sim. To desire this honest gentlewoman, your maid, to speak a good word to Mistress Anne Page for my master, in the way of marriage.

Quick. This is all, indeed, la; but I 'll ne'er put my finger in the fire, and need not.

Caius. Sir Hugh send-a you? — Rugby, baillez me some paper: tarry you a little-a while. [Writes.]

Quick. I am glad he is so quiet: if he had been thoroughly moved, you should have heard him so loud, and so melancholy. — But notwithstanding, man, I 'll do you your master what good I can: and the very yea and the no is, the French doctor, my master, — I may call him my master, look you, for I keep his house; and I wash, wring, brew, bake, scour, dress meat and drink,¹⁴ make the beds, and do all myself; —

Sim. 'T is a great charge, to come under one body's hand.

Quick. Are you avis'd o' that? you shall find it a great charge: and to be up early and down late; — but notwithstanding, to tell you in your ear (I would have no words of it), my master himself is in love with Mistress Anne Page: but notwithstanding that, I know Anne's mind; that 's neither here nor there.¹⁵

Caius. You jack'nape, give-a dis letter to Sir Hugh; by gar, it is a challenge: I will cut his troat in de park; and I vill teach a scurvy jack-a-nape priest to meddle or make. — You may be gone; it is not good you tarry here: — by gar, I vill cut all his two stones; by gar, he shall not have a stone¹⁶ to trow at his dog. [Exit SIMPLE.]

Quick. Alas! he speaks but for his friend.

Caius. It is no matter-a for dat: — do not you tell-a me, dat I shall have Anne Page for myself? — By gar, I vill kill de Jack priest;¹⁷ and I have appointed mine host of de *Jartiere*¹⁸ to measure our weapon. — By gar, I will myself have Anne Page.

Quick. Sir, the maid loves you, and all shall be well. We must give folks leave to prate: what, the good-ger!¹⁹

Caius. Rugby, come to the court vit me. — By gar, if I have not Anne Page, I shall turn your head out of my door. — Follow my heels, Rugby.

[Exeunt CAIUS and RUGBY.]

Quick. You shall have An fool's-head of your own. No, I know Anne's mind for that: never a woman in Windsor knows more of Anne's mind than I do, nor can do more than I do with her, I thank heaven.

Fent. [Within.] Who 's within there? ho!

Quick. Who 's there, I trow? Come near the house, I pray you.

[Enter FENTON.]

Fent. How now, good woman? how dost thou?

Quick. The better, that it pleases your good worship to ask.

Fent. What news? how does pretty Mistress Anne?

Quick. In truth, Sir; and she is pretty, and honest, and gentle; and one that is your friend, I can tell you that by the way; I praise heaven for it.

Fent. Shall I do any good, think'st thou? Shall I not lose my suit?

Quick. Troth, Sir, all is in his hands above; but notwithstanding, Master Fenton, I 'll be sworn on a book,²⁰ she loves you. — Have not your worship a wart above your eye?

Fent. Yes, marry, have I; what of that?

Quick. Well, thereby hangs a tale. — Good faith, it is such another Nan;²¹ — but, I detest, an honest maid as ever broke bread: — we had an hour's talk of that wart. — I shall never laugh but in that maid's company; — but, indeed, she is given too much to allicholly²² and musing. But for you — well, go to.

Fent. Well, I shall see her to-day. Hold, there 's money for thee; let me have thy voice in my behalf: if thou seest her before me, commend me.²³

Quick. Will I? i' faith, that we will; and I will tell your worship more of the wart, the next time we have confidence, and of other wooers.

Fent. Well, farewell; I am in great haste now. [Exit.]

Quick. Farewell to your worship. — Truly, an honest gentleman: but Anne loves him not; for I know Anne's mind as well as another does. — Out upon 't! what have I forgot? [Exit.]

ACT II.

SCENE I.

Before PAGE's House.

[Enter MISTRESS PAGE, with a letter.]

Mrs. Page. What! have I¹ scaped love-letters in the holiday-time of my beauty, and am I now a subject for them? Let me see. [Reads.] nachher verächtlich den Hugh Evans Jack priest. 12) In Q. A. steht überall counting-house für closet. 13) Sie will choleric sagen, wie sie weiterhin melancholy = wüthend, rasend, gebraucht. 14) Ich mache ihm Speise und Trank zurecht. 15) Es ist nichts damit; mein Herr wird die Anne Page nicht bekommen. 16) Das Wortspiel zwischen stone = Stein, und stones = Hoden, hat Sh. auch anderswo; so in Timon of Athens (A. 2, Sc. 2). 17) Vgl. oben Anm. 11. 18) So setzt Dyce für Jartier der Fol. und citirt dazu aus Cotgrave's Dictionary: A Garter. Jartier, Jartiere, Jarretiere. 19) Entstellt aus goujere = Lustseuche, im Anklang an good year. 20) Ich will einen Eid auf die Bibel darüber ablegen. 21) Sie will sagen: es ist solch ein Annchen, wie es kein zweites giebt. — detest steht hier verkehrt für protest. 22) allicholly für melancholy sagt auch der Wirth in Two Gentlemen of Verona (A. 4, Sc. 2). 23) Manche Hgg. setzen hinter commend me statt des Punctums einen Gedankenstrich, als ob die Quickly den Fenton unterbräche.

»Ask me no reason why I love you; for though Love use Reason for his physician,² he admits him not for his counsellor. You are not young, no more am I: go to then, there 's sympathy; you are merry, so am I: ha! ha! then, there 's more sympathy; you love sack, and so do I: would you desire better sympathy? Let it suffice thee, Mistress Page, (at the least, if the love of a soldier can suffice) that I love thee. I will not say, pity me, 't is not a soldier-like phrase; but I say, love me. By me,

Thine own true knight,

By day or night,

Or any kind of light,

With all his might

For thee to fight,

JOHN FALSTAFF.⁴

What a Herod of Jewry³ is this! — O wicked, wicked world! — one that is well nigh worn to pieces with age, to show himself a young gallant! What an unweighed behaviour⁴ hath this Flemish drunkard⁵ picked (with the devil's name!) out of my conversation, that he dares in this manner assay me? Why, he hath not been thrice in my company. — What should I say to him? — I was then frugal of my mirth: — heaven forgive me! — Why, I'll exhibit a bill in the parliament for the putting down of men.⁶ How shall I be revenged on him? for revenged I will be, as sure as his guts are made of puddings.

Enter Mistress Ford.

Mrs. Ford. Mistress Page! trust me, I was going to your house.

Mrs. Page. And, trust me, I was coming to you. You look very ill.

Mrs. Ford. Nay, I'll ne'er believe that: I have to show to the contrary.⁷

Mrs. Page. Faith, but you do, in my mind.

Mrs. Ford. Well, I do then; yet, I say, I could show you to the contrary. O Mistress Page! give me some counsel.

Mrs. Page. What 's the matter, woman?

Mrs. Ford. O woman! if it were not for one trifling respect, I could come to such honour.

Mrs. Page. Hang the trifle, woman; take the honour. What is it? — dispense with trifles; — what is it?

Mrs. Ford. If I would but go to hell for an eternal moment or so,⁸ I could be knighted.

Mrs. Page. What? — thou liest. — Sir Alice Ford! — These knights will hack; and so, thou shouldst not alter the article of thy gentry.

Mrs. Ford. We burn day-light:⁹ — here, read, read; — perceive how I might be knighted. — I shall think the worse of fat men, as long as I have an eye to make difference of men's liking:¹⁰ and yet he would not swear; praised women's modesty, and gave such orderly and well-behaved reproof to all uncomeliness, that I would have sworn his disposition would have gone to the truth of his words; but they do no more adhere and keep place together, than the hundredth psalm to the tune of »Green Sleeves«.¹¹ What tempest, I trow, threw this whale, with so many tuns of oil in his belly, ashore at Windsor? How shall I be revenged on him? I think, the best way were to entertain him with hope, till the wicked fire of lust have melted him in his own grease. — Did you ever hear the like?

Mrs. Page. Letter for letter, but that the name of Page and Ford differs! — To thy great comfort in this mystery of ill opinions, here 's the twin-brother of thy letter: but let thine inherit first;¹² for, I protest, mine never shall. I warrant, he hath a thousand of these letters, writ with blank space for different names, (sure more) and these are of the second edition.¹³ He will print them, out of doubt; for he cares not what he puts into

1) I fehlt in der Fol., die auch in Falstaff's Brief den Artikel a vor soldier weglässt. 2) Johnson's plausible Vorschlag, physician für precisian der Fol. zu lesen, unterstützt Farmer durch ein Citat aus Sh.'s Sonnets (147) My reason, the physician to my love. — physician lesen auch Dyce, Staunton und die Cambridge Edd. 3) Als Herodes von Judäa bezeichnet sie den Falstaff wegen seiner Ruchlosigkeit. 4) an unweighed behaviour = ein unüberlegtes, unvorsichtiges Benehmen. 5) Flemish drunkard heisst Falstaff nicht bloss zufolge seiner Trinklust, sondern wegen seines aufgedunsenen und fetten Wanstes, was Beides als charakteristisch für die Niederländer galt; so in Othello (A. 2, Sc. 3) in ähnlichem Zusammenhange your swag-bellied Hollander. 6) Frau Page will, in ihrem halb scherzhaften Zorn über Falstaff's Dreistigkeit, einen Gesetzesvorschlag vor's Parlament bringen, der die Männer zu Schanden macht, damit solche Frechheit nicht wieder vorkomme. — to put down ist sowohl = abschaffen, wie z. B. einen bestehenden Missbrauch, als auch = herunter machen, zu Schanden machen. — Manche Hgg. fügen mit Theobald fat vor men ein. 7) Frau Page fasst to look ill = krank aussehen, Frau Ford = hässlich aussehen, was sie widerlegen will mit Falstaff's Liebesbrief. 8) for an eternal moment or so ist scherzhaft gesagt = für alle Ewigkeit: Wenn ich durch einen Ehebruch mein Seelenheil auf's Spiel setzen wollte, so könnte ich einen Ritter, d. h. den Falstaff, bekommen oder zum Ritter geschlagen werden. — Frau Page versteht knighted in letzterem Sinn, und, indem sie demgemäss ihre Freundin mit dem Ritterschlag als Sir Alice Ford scherzhaft anredet, warnt sie dieselbe vor solchem Ritterschlag, weil er auf diese zweideutige Art gewonnen den Ritter zu gemein machen würde. — to hack = gemein, gewöhnlich werden. — Einige Commentatoren finden darin eine Anspielung auf die Freigebigkeit, mit welcher Jacob I. den Ritterschlag ertheilte und damit entwerthete. 9) Der Ausdruck ist sprichwörtlich: Wir, indem wir hin und her reden, statt auf die Sache einzugehen, thun etwas Ueberflüssiges, wie Die, welche bei Tage ihr Licht verbrennen. 10) So lange ich Augen habe, um die körperliche Beschaffenheit der Männer zu unterscheiden. — liking in diesem Sinne steht in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 3, Sc. 3) while I am in some liking. 11) Falstaff's Sinnesart und Worte stimmen nicht besser überein, als der hundertste Psalm und die weltliche Melodie des Liedes vom grünen Aermel. — Von letzterem Liede, das nach den Zeugnissen der Zeitgenossen ein ziemlich ausgelassenes gewesen sein muss, ist der Text verloren gegangen und nur die Melodie hat sich erhalten. — Nach der Einzeichnung in die Register der Buchhändler war Greensleeves der Name oder Beiname einer Dame: Licensed unto Richard Jones a new northerne dittie of the Lady Green sleeves, und ebenso: Licensed unto Edward White, a ballad, being the Lady Green sleeves, answered to Jenkin her friend. 12) to inherit = den Besitz als ältester Erbe antreten, hier zugleich: der Liebe Falstaff's theilhaft werden. 13) Falstaff hat in seinem Leben schon eine ganze Auflage solcher Liebesbriefe verbraucht und ist jetzt bei der zweiten Auflage. 14) scil. put us two into the press. — press doppelsinnig = Druckpresse, und the press, when he would put us two:¹⁴ I had rather be a giantess, and lie under Mount Pelion.¹⁵ Well, I will find you twenty lascivious turtles, ere one chaste man.

Mrs. Ford. Why, this is the very same; the very hand, the very words. What doth he think of us?

Mrs. Page. Nay, I know not: it makes me almost ready to wrangle with mine own honesty. I'll entertain myself like one that I am not acquainted withal; for, sure, unless he know some strain¹⁶ in me, that I know not myself, he would never have boarded me in this fury.

Mrs. Ford. Boarding call you it? I'll be sure to keep him above deck.

Mrs. Page. So will I: if he come under my hatches, I'll never to sea again. Let's be revenged on him: let's appoint him a meeting; give him a show of comfort in his suit; and lead him on with a fine-baited delay, till he hath pawned his horses to mine host of the Garter.¹⁷

Mrs. Ford. Nay, I will consent to act any villany against him, that may not sully the chariness of our honesty.¹⁸ O, that my husband saw this letter!¹⁹ it would give eternal food to his jealousy.

Mrs. Page. Why, look, where he comes; and my good man too: he's as far from jealousy, as I am from giving him cause; and that, I hope, is an unmeasurable distance.

Mrs. Ford. You are the happier woman.

Mrs. Page. Let's consult together against this greasy knight. Come hither. [They retire.]

Enter FORD, PISTOL, PAGE, and NYM.

Ford. Well, I hope, it be not so.

Pist. Hope is a curtail dog²⁰ in some affairs: Sir John affects thy wife.

Ford. Why, Sir, my wife is not young.

Pist. He wooes both high and low, both rich and poor, Both young and old, one with another, Ford. He loves the gally-mawfry:²¹ Ford, perpend.²²

Ford. Love my wife?

Pist. With liver burning hot:²³ prevent, or go thou, Like Sir Actæon he, with Ringwood²⁴ at thy heels. O! odious is the name.

Ford. What name, Sir?

Pist. The horn, I say. Farewell: Take heed; have open eye, for thieves do foot by night:

Take heed, ere summer comes, or cuckoo-birds do sing.²⁵ —

Away, sir corporal Nym. —

Believe it, Page; he speaks sense.²⁶ [Exit.]

Ford. I will be patient: I will find out this.

Nym. [To PAGE.] And this is true; I like not the humour of lying. He hath wronged me in some humours: I should have borne the humoured letter to her; but I have a sword, and it shall bite upon my necessity. He loves your wife; there's the short and the long. My name is corporal Nym: I speak, and I avouch 't is true: — my name is Nym, and Falstaff loves your wife. — Adieu. I love not the humour of bread and cheese; and there's the humour of it.²⁷ Adieu. [Exit.]

Page. The humour of it, quoth 'a! here's a fellow frights humour²⁸ out of his wits.

Ford. I will seek out Falstaff.

Page. I never heard such a drawling, affecting rogue.

Ford. If I do find it: — well.

Page. I will not believe such a Cataian,²⁹ though the priest o' the town commended him for a true man.

Ford. 'T was a good sensible fellow:³⁰ well.

Page. How now, Meg?

Mrs. Page. Whither go you, George? — Hark you.

Mrs. Ford. How now, sweet Frank? why art thou melancholy?

Ford. I melancholy! I am not melancholy. — Get you home, go.

Mrs. Ford. 'Faith, thou hast some crotchets in thy head now. — Will you go, Mistress Page?

Mrs. Page. Have with you. — You'll come to dinner, George? — [Aside to Mrs. Ford.] Look, who comes yonder: she shall be our messenger to this paltry knight.

Mrs. Ford. Trust me, I thought on her: she'll fit it.

Enter Mistress QUICKLY.

Mrs. Page. You are come to see my daughter Anne?

Quick. Ay, forsooth; and, I pray, how does good Mistress Anne?

Mrs. Page. Go in with us, and see; we have an hour's talk with you.

[Exeunt Mrs. PAGE, Mrs. FORD, and Mrs. QUICKLY.]

Ford. You heard what this knave told me, did you not?

= die Presse, die das Gewicht von Falstaff's schwerem Körper darstellt. 15) Sh. denkt wahrscheinlich bei Mount Pelion an die Berge, welche die Titanen auf einander thürmten, als sie den Himmel stürmen wollten. 16) Das vieldeutige strain fasst Staunton hier vielleicht richtig = some turn, tendency. 17) Wir wollen ihn mit schönem Köder so lange hinhalten, bis er so bankerott geworden ist, dass er dem Wirth, bei dem er logirt, seine Pferde verpfänden muss, um nur seine Zeche zu bezahlen. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 3, Anm. 2. 18) the chariness of our honesty = die Sorglichkeit, mit der wir unsere Tugend zu hüten haben. So kommt the chariest maid in Hamlet (A. 1, Sc. 3) vor. 19) Gesetzt dass mein Gatte diesen Brief sähe, so würde das seiner Eifersucht ewige Nahrung geben. — O, that drückt hier keinen Wunsch aus, sondern nur die Möglichkeit. — Q. A. hat O Lord, if my husband should see this letter, 't faith, this would even give edge to his jealousy. 20) curtail dog erklärt Johnson mit a dog that misses his game. Es ist eigentlich ein Hund, dem der Schwanz gestutzt ist, zum Zeichen dass er nicht zur Jagd dienen kann. 21) gally-mawfry = Gemisch, Gemengsel: Falstaff liebt alle Weiber ohne Unterschied, durcheinander. 22) Eben so affectirt sagt Pistol perpend my words in K. Henry V. (A. 4, Sc. 4). 23) Die heisse Leber bezeichnet Falstaff's feurige Liebe. 24) Ringwood, eigentlich der Name eines Jagdhundes, bezeichnet collectiv die Jagdhunde, die den in einen Hirsch verwandelten Actæon zerrissen. — Mit dem so verwandelten Actæon wird dann der von Falstaff mit Hörnern versehene Ford verglichen. 25) Dass der Ton des Kuckucks den Hahnrei verhöhnen soll, ist ein Volksglaube, der auch bei Sh. wiederholt vorkommt. 26) Pistol vor seinem Weggange bestätigt noch, was mittlerweile Nym beiseite dem Page über Falstaff's Absicht in Bezug auf Frau Page mittheilt. 27) and there's the humour of it fehlt in der Fol. und ist mit Recht, wie Page's Antwort zeigt, aus Q. A. entlehnt. 28) humour in Q. A.; English in der Fol. 29) Cataian, ein Mann aus Catai, dem alten Namen für China, bezeichnet hier, im Gegensatz zu true man, einen Gauner. 30) Ford meint den Pistol. — Ford und Page erwägen in diesen kurzen Wechselreden Jeder für sich die Glaubwürdigkeit der Mittheilungen Pistol's und Nym's.

Page. Yes; and you heard what the other told me.

Ford. Do you think there is truth in them?

Page. Hang 'em, slaves; I do not think the knight would offer it: but these that accuse him, in his intent towards our wives, are a yoke of his discarded men; very rogues,³¹ now they be out of service.

Ford. Were they his men?

Page. Marry, were they.

Ford. I like it never the better for that. — Does he lie³² at the Garter?

Page. Ay, marry, does he. If he should intend this voyage³³ towards my wife, I would turn her loose to him; and what he gets more of her than sharp words, let it lie on my head.

Ford. I do not misdoubt my wife, but I would be loath to turn them together. A man may be too confident: I would have nothing lie on my head:³⁴ I cannot be thus satisfied.

Page. Look, where my ranting host of the Garter comes. There is either liquor in his pate, or money in his purse, when he looks so merrily. — How now, mine host?

Enter Host and SHALLOW.

Host. How now, bully-rook! thou 'rt a gentleman. — Cavalero-justice, I say.³⁵

Shal. I follow, mine host, I follow. — Good even, and twenty, good Master Page. Master Page, will you go with us? we have sport in hand.

Host. Tell him, cavalero-justice; tell him, bully-rook.

Shal. Sir, there is a fray to be fought between Sir Hugh, the Welch priest, and Caius, the French doctor.

Ford. Good mine host o' the Garter, a word with you.

Host. What say'st thou, my bully-rook?

[They go aside.]

Shal. [To PAGE.] Will you go with us to behold it? My merry host hath had the measuring of their weapons,³⁶ and, I think, hath appointed them contrary places; for, believe me, I hear, the parson is no jester.³⁷ Hark, I will tell you what our sport shall be.

Host. Hast thou no suit against my knight, my guest-cavalier?

Ford. None, I protest: but I'll give you a pottle of burnt sack to give me recourse to him, and tell him, my name is Brook,³⁸ only for a jest.

Host. My hand, bully: thou shalt have egress and regress; said I well? and thy name shall be Brook. It is a merry knight.³⁹ Will you go, Mynheers?⁴⁰

Shal. Have with you, mine host.

Page. I have heard, the Frenchman hath good skill in his rapier.

Shal. Tut, Sir! I could have told you more: in these times⁴¹ you stand on distance, your passes, stoccadoes, and I know not what: 't is the heart, Master Page; 't is here, 't is here. I have seen the time, with my long sword,⁴² I would have made you four tall fellows skip like rats.

Host. Here, boys, here, here! shall we wag?

Page. Have with you. — I had rather hear them scold than fight.⁴³ [Exeunt Host, SHALLOW, and PAGE.]

Ford. Though Page be a secure fool, and stands so firmly on his wife's frailty,⁴⁴ yet I cannot put off my opinion so easily. She was in his company⁴⁵ at Page's house, and what they made there, I know not. Well, I will look further into 't; and I have a disguise to sound Falstaff. If I find her honest, I lose not my labour; if she be otherwise, 't is labour well bestowed. [Exit.]

31) rogue = Vagabund, und = Spitzbube. 32) to lie = logiren, im Quartier liegen. 33) voyage, eigentlich = Unternehmungs- oder Entdeckungsreise, kommt im Sinne einer Bewerbung um die Gunst einer Dame auch in Cymbeline (A. 1, Sc. 5) vor: if you make your voyage upon her, and give me directly to understand you have prevailed. 34) Ford fasst lie on my head, das Page ganz allgemein = mir zur Last fallen, gebraucht hatte, mit specieller Anspielung auf das Horn des Hahnrei. 35) Der Wirth richtet die ersten Worte an Page, und wendet sich dann mit der pomphaften Anrede cavalero-justice an den ihm folgenden Friedensrichter zurück. — Der Modeausdruck cavalero = Cavalier, findet sich auch in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 5, Sc. 3) I'll drink to Master Bardolph, and to all the cavaleroes about London. — Manche Hgg. verbinden gentleman mit cavalero-justice. — Die Stelle lautet in Q. A. God bless you, my bully rooks, God bless you. Cavalero Justice, I say. 36) A. 1, Sc. 4 hatte Caius gesagt I have appointed mine host of de Jartiere to measure our weapon. — Der Wirth musste als Schiedsrichter darauf sehen, dass die Waffen gleich lang waren. 37) Der Pfarrer versteht keinen Spass, und um Unheil zu verhüten, hat der Wirth ihn und seinen Gegner an verschiedene Plätze zum Duell bestellt. 38) Brooke ist Ford's angenommener Name in Q. A.; Broome in der Fol. Ersterer scheint durch ein Wortspiel in der folgenden Scene gerechtfertigt. — Die Cambridge Edd. finden es wahrscheinlich, dass der ursprüngliche Name Brook später von den Schauspielern in Broom umgeändert wurde, weil ein Einwohner von Windsor wirklich Brook geheissen. 39) Die Worte beziehen sich auf Falstaff, der schon den Spass verstehen wird, welchen Ford mit ihm vorhat. 40) Mynheers schlug Theobald vor zu lesen für das sinnlose An-heires der Fol. — Der Wirth, der seine Titulaturen aus allen Sprachen entlehnt, gebraucht hier zur Abwechslung eine holländische. 41) Shallow contrastirt die jetzigen Zeiten und ihre pedantische und geschulte Fechtkunst mit der Fechtkunst seiner eigenen Zeit, wo es nicht auf regelrechte Haltung, sondern auf den Muth, auf das Herz ankam. 42) Für my long sword der Fol. hat Q. A. my two-hand sword. Beides bedeutet das grosse Schlachtschwert, im Gegensatz zu dem leichteren Stossdegen. Der Unterschied in der Handhabung beider ergiebt sich aus Carleton's Thankfull Remembrance of God's Mercy (1625), wo es von einem gewissen Rowland York heisst: he was a Londoner, famous among the cutters in his time, for bringing in a new kind of fight — to run the point of a rapier into a man's body. This manner of fight he brought first into England with great admiration of his audaciousness: when in England before that time the use was, with little bucklers and with broad swords, to strike and not to thrust: and it was accounted unmanly to strike under the girdle. 43) scil. than see them fight. — Page würde grösseren Spass daran finden, wenn Caius und Evans in ihrem schlechten Englisch auf einander losschimpften. 44) his wife's frailty, wofür Theobald fealty lesen wollte, erklärt Malone richtig mit his frail wife. 45) in his company versteht Ford von Falstaff, wie er unter she was seine eigene Frau versteht, obwohl Keiner der Beiden vorher erwähnt ist.

SCENE II.

A Room in the Garter Inn.

Enter FALSTAFF and PISTOL.Fal. I will not lend thee a penny.Pist. Why, then the world's mine oyster,
Which I with sword will open.¹*Fal.* Not a penny. I have been content, Sir, you should lay my countenance to pawn:² I have grated upon my good friends for three reprieves for you and your coach-fellow³ Nym; or else you had looked through the grate, like a geminy of baboons. I am damned in hell for swearing to gentlemen, my friends, you were good soldiers, and tall fellows;⁴ and when Mistress Bridget lost the handle of her fan,⁵ I took 't upon mine honour thou hadst it not.Pist. Didst thou not share? hadst thou not fifteen pence?Fal. Reason,⁶ you rogue, reason: think'st thou, I'll endanger my soul gratis? At a word, hang no more about me, I am no gibbet for you: — go: — a short knife and a throng:⁷ — to your manor of Pickt-hatch,⁸ go. — You'll not bear a letter for me, you rogue! — you stand upon your honour! — Why, thou unconfinable baseness, it is as much as I can do, to keep the terms of my honour precise. I, I, I myself sometimes, leaving the fear of heaven on the left hand, and hiding mine honour in my necessity, am fain to shuffle, to hedge, and to lurch; and yet you, rogue, will ensconce your rags, your cat-a-mountain looks, your red-lattice phrases,⁹ and your bold-beating¹⁰ oaths, under the shelter of your honour! You will not do it, you?Pist. I do relent:¹¹ what would thou more of man?Enter ROBIN.Rob. Sir, here's a woman would speak with you.Fal. Let her approach.Enter Mistress QUICKLY.Quick. Give your worship good morrow.Fal. Good morrow, good wife.Quick. Not so, an't please your worship.Fal. Good maid, then.Quick. I'll be sworn; as my mother was, the first hour I was born.¹²*Fal.* I do believe the swearer. What with me?Quick. Shall I vouchsafe your worship a word or two?
Fal. Two thousand, fair woman; and I'll vouchsafe thee the hearing.Quick. There is one Mistress Ford, Sir: — I pray, come a little nearer this ways. — I myself dwell with master doctor Caius.Fal. Well, on: Mistress Ford, you say, —Quick. Your worship says very true: — I pray your worship, come a little nearer this ways.Fal. I warrant thee, nobody hears: mine own people, mine own people.Quick. Are they so? Heaven bless them, and make them his servants!Fal. Well: Mistress Ford; — what of her?Quick. Why, Sir, she's a good creature. Lord, Lord! your worship's a wanton: well, heaven forgive you, and all of us, I pray!Fal. Mistress Ford; — come, Mistress Ford, —Quick. Marry, this is the short and the long of it. You have brought her into such a canaries,¹³ as 't is wonderful: the best courtier of them all, when the court lay¹⁴ at Windsor, could never have brought her to such a canary; yet there has been knights, and lords, and gentlemen, with their coaches; I warrant you, coach after coach, letter after letter, gift after gift; smelling so sweetly, all musk, and so rushling, I warrant you, in silk and gold; and in such alligant¹⁵ terms; and in such wine and sugar of the best, and the fairest, that would have won any woman's heart, and, I warrant you, they could never get an eye-wink of her. — I had myself twenty angels given me this morning; but I defy all angels,¹⁶ (in any such sort, as they say) but in the way of honesty: — and, I warrant you, they could never get her so much as sip on a cup with the proudest of them all; and yet there has been earls, nay, which is more, pensioners;¹⁷ but, I warrant you, all is one with her.Fal. But what says she to me? be brief, my good she-Mercury.Quick. Marry, she hath received your letter, for the which she thanks you a thousand times; and she gives you to notify, that her husband will be absence from his house between ten and eleven.Fal. Ten and eleven.Quick. Ay, forsooth; and then you may come and see the picture, she says, that you wot¹⁸ of: Master Ford, her husband, will be from home. Alas! the sweet woman leads an ill life with him; he's a very jealousy man; she leads a very frampold¹⁹ life with him, good heart.

1) Manche Hgg. fügen aus Q. A. hier noch folgenden Vers hinzu: I will retort the sum in equipage.
 2) Pistol hat, um sich durchzuschlagen, Falstaff's Protection benutzt oder dieselbe gleichsam verpfändet. So in Hamlet (A. 4, Sc. 2) that soaks up the king's countenance. 3) coach-fellow = der mit ihm an demselben Wagen zieht, Spiessgeselle. — to grate upon = sich an Jemandem reiben, ihm stark zusetzen, bildet ein Wortspiel mit grate = Gitter in einem Gefängnis oder vor einem Affenkäfig. 4) tall fellows = tüchtige, brave Kerle. 5) Fächer mit silbernem Stiel werden bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen oft erwähnt. 6) Das war recht und billig. 7) Falstaff weist den Pistol zu seinem Lebensunterhalt auf's Beutelschneiden an, das er mit einem kurzen Messer im Volksgedränge exerciren soll. So in K. Lear (A. 3, Sc. 2) Nor cutpurses come not to throngs. 8) Pickt-hatch, eine besonders wegen ihrer Bordelle verrufene Gegend in London, welche Falstaff ironisch als Pistol's Herrensitz bezeichnet. 9) red-lattice phrases = Reden, wie sie in gemeinen Kneipen üblich sind. Das roth angestrichene Fenstergitter bezeichnete solche Kneipen und Bordelle. 10) Flüche, die kühn dreinschlagen. — Hanmer wollte dafür bull-baiting oaths lesen. 11) So die Fol. Q. A. hat recant. 12) Die Fol. theilt den Satz in Reime sworn — born ab. 13) canary = ein rascher, leidenschaftlicher Tanz. Die Quickly gebraucht das Wort irrthümlich für irgend ein anderes; wie Steevens vermuthet, für quandaries. 14) Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 32. 15) alligant für elegant. — alligant terms geht wieder auf die Liebesbriefe, während rushling auf die Höflinge selber geht. 16) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 3, Anm. 15. 17) pensioners = Mitglieder der Leibwache der Königin, die aus lauter vornehmen und stattlichen Cavalieren bestand. 18) to wot veraltet für to know: das bewusste Bild. 19) fram-

Fal. Ten and eleven. — Woman, commend me to her; I will not fail her.

Quick. Why, you say well. But I have another messenger to your worship: Mistress Page hath her hearty commendations to you too; — and let me tell you in your ear, she's as fartuous²⁰ a civil modest wife, and one (I tell you) that will not miss you morning nor evening prayer, as any is in Windsor, who'er be the other: and she bade me tell your worship, that her husband is seldom from home, but she hopes there will come a time. I never knew a woman so dote upon a man: surely, I think you have charms; la; yes, in truth.

Fal. Not I, I assure thee; setting the attraction of my good parts aside, I have no other charms.

Quick. Blessing on your heart for 't!

Fal. But, I pray thee, tell me this: has Ford's wife, and Page's wife, acquainted each other how they love me?

Quick. That were a jest, indeed! — they have not so little grace,²¹ I hope: — that were a trick, indeed! But Mistress Page would desire you to send her your little page, of all loves:²² her husband has a marvellous infection²³ to the little page; and, truly, Master Page is an honest man. Never a wife in Windsor leads a better life than she does: do what she will, say what she will, take all, pay all, go to bed when she list, rise when she list, all is as she will; and, truly, she deserves it, for if there be a kind woman in Windsor, she is one. You must send her your page; no remedy.

Fal. Why, I will.

Quick. Nay, but do so, then: and, look you, he may come and go between you both; and, in any case, have a nayword,²⁴ that you may know one another's mind, and the boy never need to understand any thing: for 't is not good that children should know any wickedness; old folks, you know, have discretion, as they say, and know the world.

Fal. Fare thee well: commend me to them both. There's my purse; I am yet thy debtor. — Boy, go along with this woman. [Exeunt QUICKLY and ROBIN.] This news distracts me.

Pist. This punk²⁵ is one of Cupid's carriers. — Clap on more sails; pursue, up with your fights:²⁶ Give fire! She is my prize, or ocean overwhelm them all!

[Exit.]

Fal. Say'st thou so, old Jack?²⁷ go thy ways; I'll make more of thy old body than I have done. Will they yet look after thee? Wilt thou, after the expense of so much money, be now a gainer? Good body, I thank thee: let them say, 't is grossly done; so it be fairly done, no matter.

Enter BARDOLPH.

Bard. Sir John, there's one Master Brook below would fain speak with you, and be acquainted with you; and hath sent your worship a morning's draught of sack.²⁸

Fal. Brook is his name?

Bard. Ay, Sir.

Fal. Call him in. [Exit BARDOLPH.] Such Brooks are welcome to me, that o'erflow such liquor.²⁹ Ah! ha! Mistress Ford and Mistress Page, have I encompassed you? go to; via!

Re-enter BARDOLPH, with FORD disguised.

Ford. Bless you, Sir.

Fal. And you, Sir: would you speak with me?

Ford. I make bold to press with so little preparation upon you.

Fal. You're welcome. What's your will? — Give us leave, drawer. [Exit BARDOLPH.]

Ford. Sir, I am a gentleman that have spent much: my name is Brook.

Fal. Good Master Brook, I desire more acquaintance of you.

Ford. Good Sir John, I sue for yours; not to charge you;³⁰ for I must let you understand, I think myself in better plight for a lender than you are; the which hath something embolden'd me to this unseasoned intrusion, for, they say, if money go before, all ways do lie open.

Fal. Money is a good soldier, Sir, and will on.

Ford. Troth, and I have a bag of money here troubles me: if you will help to bear it, Sir John, take all, or half, for easing me of the carriage.

Fal. Sir, I know not how I may deserve to be your porter.

Ford. I will tell you, Sir, if you will give me the hearing.

Fal. Speak, good Master Brook; I shall be glad to be your servant.

Ford. Sir, I hear you are a scholar, — I will be brief with you, — and you have been a man long known to me, though I had never so good means, as desire, to make myself acquainted with you. I shall discover a thing to you, wherein I must very much lay open mine own imperfection; but, good Sir John, as you have one eye upon my follies, as you hear them unfolded, turn another into the register of your own, that I may pass with a reproof the easier, sith³¹ you yourself know, how easy it is to be such an offender.

Fal. Very well, Sir; proceed.

Ford. There is a gentlewoman in this town, her husband's name is Ford.

pold erklärt Ray unter den Provinzialismen mit fretful, peevish, cross, froward. 20) fartuous für virtuous.

21) So sehr sind sie doch hoffentlich nicht von Gott verlassen, dass sie einander das mittheilen sollten. 22) of all loves, eine dringende Bitte, eigentlich = von allem Freundlichen, was Ihr thun könnt. 23) infection für affection sagt auch der alte Gobbo in Merchant of Venice (A. 2, Sc. 2). 24) have ist Imperativ: Falstaff und Frau Page sollen ein Stichwort verabreden, mittelst dessen sie durch den Pagen verhandeln, ohne dass der Page selbst es verstehe. 25) Für punk wollte Warburton pink = kleines Postschiff, lesen, um das Bild vom Schiffe, das in der folgenden Zeile gebraucht wird, schon hier zu anticipiren. 26) fights erklärt Philip's World of Words so: Are the waste-cloaths which hang round about the ship to hinder men from being seen in fight. 27) Falstaff ist im Selbstgespräch begriffen: Was sagst Du zu dem Glücke, das Du trotz Deines Alters noch bei den Weibern machst? 28) Brook schickt, um sich bei Falstaff als Gast desselben Wirthshauses einzuführen, aus seinem Zimmer in Falstaff's Zimmer eine Flasche Sekt als Morgentrank. — Diese Art, Bekanntschaften anzuknüpfen, kommt auch sonst in Sh.'s Zeit vor. 29) Die Q. A. hat bloss Such Brookes are alwaies welcome to me. — Die Fol. hat auch hier mit Verwischung des Wortspiels Such brooms are welcome to me that o'erflows such liquor. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 38. 30) Ich suche Eure Bekanntschaft, jedoch nicht um Euch Kosten zu verursachen. 31) si h veraltet für since. — the easier, in Bezug auf das folgende how easy, ist zu verbinden mit pass: um so leichter

Fal. Well, Sir.

Ford. I have long loved her, and, I protest to you, bestowed much on her; followed her with a doting observance; engrossed opportunities to meet her; fee'd every slight occasion, that could but niggardly give me sight of her; not only bought many presents to give her, but have given largely to many, to know what she would have given. Briefly, I have pursued her, as love hath pursued me, which hath been, on the wing of all occasions: but whatsoever I have merited, either in my mind, or in my means, meed, I am sure, I have received none,³² unless experience be a jewel; that I have purchased at an infinite rate, and that hath taught me to say this:

Love like a shadow flies, when substance love pursues;

*Pursuing that that flies, and flying what pursues.*³³

Fal. Have you received no promise of satisfaction at her hands?

Ford. Never.

Fal. Have you importuned her to such a purpose?

Ford. Never.

Fal. Of what quality was your love then?

Ford. Like a fair house, built upon another man's ground; so that I have lost my edifice, by mistaking the place where I erected it.

Fal. To what purpose have you unfolded this to me?

Ford. When I have told you that, I have told you all. Some say, that though she appear honest to me, yet in other places she enlargeth her mirth so far, that there is shrewd construction made of her.³⁴ Now, Sir John, here is the heart of my purpose: you are a gentleman of excellent breeding, admirable discourse, of great admittance,³⁵ authentic in your place and person, generally allowed for your many war-like, court-like, and learned preparations.³⁶

Fal. O, Sir!

Ford. Believe it, for you know it. — There is money; spend it, spend it: spend more; spend all I have, only give me so much of your time in exchange of it, as to lay an amiable siege³⁷ to the honesty of this Ford's wife: use your art of wooing, win her to consent to you; if any man may, you may as soon as any.

Fal. Would it apply well to the vehemency³⁸ of your affection, that I should win what you would enjoy? Methinks, you prescribe to yourself very preposterously.

Ford. O! understand my drift. She dwells so securely on the excellency of her honour, that the folly of my soul dares not present itself: she is too bright to be looked against. Now, could I come to her with any detection in my hand, my desires had instance³⁹ and argument to commend themselves; I could drive her then from the ward of her purity, her reputation, her marriage-vow, and a thousand other her defences, which now are too too strongly embattled against me. What say you to 't, Sir John?

Fal. Master Brook, I will first make bold with your money; next, give me your hand; and last, as I am a gentleman, you shall, if you will, enjoy Ford's wife.

Ford. O good Sir!

Fal. I say you shall.⁴⁰

Ford. Want no money, Sir John; you shall want none.

Fal. Want no Mistress Ford, Master Brook; you shall want none.⁴¹ I shall be with her (I may tell you) by her own appointment; even as you came in to me, her assistant, or go-between, parted from me: I say, I shall be with her between ten and eleven; for at that time the jealous rascally knave, her husband, will be forth. Come you to me at night; you shall know how I speed.

Ford. I am blest in your acquaintance. Do you know Ford, Sir?

Fal. Hang him, poor cuckoldly knave! I know him not. — Yet I wrong him, to call him poor: they say, the jealous wittolly knave hath masses of money, for the which his wife seems to me well-favoured.⁴² I will use her as the key of the cuckoldly rogue's coffer, and there 's my harvest-home.

Ford. I would you knew Ford, Sir, that you might avoid him, if you saw him.

Fal. Hang him, mechanical salt-butter rogue!⁴³ I will stare him out of his wits; I will awe him with my cudgel: it shall hang like a meteor o'er the cuckold's horns. Master Brook, thou shalt know I will predominate over the peasant, and thou shalt lie with his wife. — Come to me soon at night. — Ford 's a knave, and I will aggravate his style;⁴⁴ thou, Master Brook, shalt know him for a knave and cuckold. — Come to me soon at night.

[Exit.]

Ford. What a damned Epicurean rascal is this! — My heart is ready to crack with impatience. — Who says, this is improvident jealousy? my wife hath sent to him, the hour is fixed, the match is made. Would any man have thought this? — See the hell of having a false woman! my bed shall be abused, my coffers ransacked, my reputation gnawn at; and I shall not only receive this villanous wrong, but stand under the adoption of abominable terms,⁴⁵ and by him that does me this wrong. Terms! names! — Amaimon sounds well; Lucifer, well;

mit einem Verweise davonkommen. 32) Was ich auch für meine hingebende Gesinnung oder für die Mittel, die ich angewendet, verdient haben mag, das mir Gebührende, einen Lohn, habe ich nicht erhalten. 33) Steevens vermuthet, dass dieser Sinnspruch ein Citat sei, das sich jedoch nicht weiter bis jetzt hat nachweisen lassen. 34) An andern Orten lässt sie sich in ihrer Munterkeit so weit gehen, dass man es ihr schlimm auslegt. 35) great admittance = Zutritt bei Grossen oder Vornehmen. 36) Ihr seid allgemein anerkannt wegen Eurer Talente oder Fertigkeiten als Soldat, Hofmann und Gelehrter. 37) an amiable siege erklärt Malone mit a siege of love. So in Much Ado about Nothing (A. 3, Sc. 3) this amiable encounter = verliebte Zusammenkunft. 38) Für vehemency der Fol. hat Q. A. veruensi; vielleicht aus fervency verdruckt. 39) instance erklärt Johnson hier mit example. Vielleicht ist es jedoch, wie an andern Stellen, = Anlass, Beweggrund. 40) So hat die Fol. Manche Hgg. lesen mit Q. A.: Master Brook, I say you shall. 41) Wie Ihr es mir nicht am Gelde fehlen lassen wollt, so will ich es Euch auch nicht an der Frau Ford fehlen lassen. 42) Seine Frau erscheint mir anziehend und hübsch, weil ihr Mann so viel Geld hat. 43) Ein handwerksmässiger, aus gesalzener Butter bestehender oder sich davon nährenden Wicht. 44) Falstaff will Ford's Titel, der bisher nur knave war, noch schwerer, gewichtiger machen, indem er ihm noch den Titel cuckold hinzufügt. 45) Ford meint, indem er von der Beilegung abscheulicher Namen spricht, die er sich noch dazu von Dem, der ihn kränkt, wird gefallen lassen müssen, den Namen Hahnrei, den Namen eines bewussten Hahnrei (wittol-cuckold), mit dem Falstaff ihn bedroht hatte. In Vergleich mit solchen

Barbason, well; yet they are devils' additions, the names of fiends: but cuckold! wittol-cuckold! the devil himself hath not such a name. Page is an ass, a secure ass; he will trust his wife, he will not be jealous: I will rather trust a Fleming with my butter, parson Hugh the Welchman with my cheese, an Irishman with my aqua-vitæ bottle, or a thief to walk my ambling gelding, than my wife with herself: then she plots, then she ruminates, then she devises; and what they think in their hearts they may effect, they will break their hearts but they will effect. Heaven be praised for my jealousy! — Eleven o'clock the hour: ⁴⁶ I will prevent this, detect my wife, be revenged on Falstaff, and laugh at Page. I will about it; better three hours too soon, than a minute too late. Fie, fie, fie! cuckold! cuckold! cuckold! [Exit.]

SCENE III.

Windsor Park.

Enter CAIUS and RUGBY.

Caius. Jack Rugby!

Rug. Sir.

Caius. Vat is de clock, Jack?

Rug. 'T is past the hour, Sir, that Sir Hugh promised to meet.

Caius. By gar, he has save his soul, dat he is no come: he has pray his Pible vell, dat he is no come. By gar, Jack Rugby, he is dead already, if he be come.

Rug. He is wise, Sir; he knew your worship would kill him, if he came.

Caius. By gar, de herring is no dead, so as I vill kill him. Take your rapier, Jack; I vill tell you how I vill kill him.

Rug. Alas, Sir! I cannot fence.

Caius. Villany, take your rapier.

Rug. Forbear; here 's company.

Enter Host, SHALLOW, SLENDER, and PAGE.

Host. 'Bless thee, bully doctor.

Shal. 'Save you, master doctor Caius.

Page. Now, good master doctor!

Slen. Give you good morrow, Sir.

Caius. Vat be all you, one, two, tree, four, come for?

Host. To see thee fight, to see thee foin, to see thee traverse, ¹ to see thee here, to see thee there; to see thee pass thy punto, thy stock, thy reverse, thy distance, thy montant. Is he dead, my Ethiopian? is he dead, my Francisco? ² ha, bully! What says my Æsculapius? my Galen? my heart of elder? ³ ha! is he dead, bully-stale? ⁴ is he dead?

Caius. By gar, he is de coward Jack priest of the world; he is not show his face.

Host. Thou art a Castilian, king Urinal: Hector of Greece, my boy.

Caius. I pray you, bear vittness that me have stay six or seven, two, tree hours for him, and he is no come.

Shal. He is the wiser man, master doctor: he is a curer of souls, and you a curer of bodies; if you should fight, you go against the hair ⁵ of your professions. Is it not true, Master Page?

Page. Master Shallow, you have yourself been a great fighter, though now a man of peace.

Shal. Bodykins, Master Page, though I now be old, and of the peace, if I see a sword out, my finger itches to make one. Though we are justices, and doctors, and churchmen, Master Page, we have some salt of our youth in us; we are the sons of women, Master Page.

Page. 'T is true, Master Shallow.

Shal. It will be found so, Master Page. Master doctor Caius, I am come to fetch you home. I am sworn of the peace: ⁶ you have showed yourself a wise physician, and Sir Hugh hath shown himself a wise and patient churchman. You must go with me, master doctor.Host. Pardon, guest-justice: — a word, Monsieur Mock-water. ⁷

Caius. Mock-vater! vat is dat?

Host. Mock-water in our English tongue is valour, bully.

Caius. By gar, then I have as much mock-vater as de Englishman. — Scurvy jack-dog priest! by gar, me vill cut his ears.

Host. He will clapper-claw ⁸ thee tightly, bully.

Caius. Clapper-de-claw! vat is dat?

Host. That is, he will make thee amends.

Caius. By gar, me do look, he shall clapper-de-claw me; for, by gar, me vill have it.

Host. And I will provoke him to 't, or let him wag.

Caius. Me tank you for dat.

Host. And moreover, bully, — but first, master guest,

Namen klingen die Namen von bösen Geistern, die Sh. hier aus Reginald Scott's Inventarie of the Names etc. of Devils and Sprites entlehnt, noch anständig. — Von den hier erwähnten Dämonen werden Amaimon und Lucifer in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 2, Sc. 4) und Barbason in K. Henry V. (A. 2, Sc. 1) namhaft gemacht. ⁴⁶ Falstaff hatte ihm gesagt I shall be with her between ten and eleven, und Ford nimmt die letztere Zeitbestimmung, um die Beiden desto sicherer bei einander zu treffen.

1) to foin und to traverse sind technische Fechtsprüche = zustossen, und = den Degen queer halten. Die folgenden Kunstaussprüche punto, stock für stoccado, reverse sonst punto reverso (in Romeo and Juliet A. 2, Sc. 4), montant (daher scherzhaft Signior Montanto in Much Ado about Nothing A. 1, Sc. 1) gehören ebenfalls der Fechtkunst an und finden sich auch sonst bei Sh. 2) Francisco in der Fol.; Francoyes in Q. A. Beides soll in der affectirten Sprache des Wirths = Franzose sein. 3) heart of elder ist scherzhaft und ironisch nach heart of oak gebildet, da der Hollunder im Innern hohl ist. 4) bully-stale, eines der Composita, welche der Wirth mit seinem Lieblingsworte bully bildet, geht, wie das folgende king Urinal auf die Anwendung, welche Caius und andre Aerzte der Zeit aus dem Urin und dem Uringlase zur Erforschung der Natur der Krankheiten machten. — Manche Hgg. interpungiren Thou art a Castilian king, Urinal, während doch der Wirth den Doctor einen Castilianer oder Spanier nennt, wie er ihn vorher einen Franzosen oder Aethiopier genannt hatte, Letzteres vielleicht wegen seiner dunkeln Gesichtsfarbe. 5) against the hair = gegen den Strich des Haares, gegen die Natur. 6) Ich bin als Friedensrichter vereidigt worden. 7) word, das in der Fol. zufällig fehlt, ist aus Q. A. ergänzt. — Mock-water in Q. A. und Fol. oder Muck-water = Mistwasser, wie manche Hgg. mit Farmer lesen, ist eine scherzhafte Benennung des Doctors mit Bezugnahme auf die obenerwähnte Praxis. Vgl. Anm. 4. 8) to clapper-claw = sich raufen. — Sh. hat das Wort in Troilus and Cressida (A. 5, Sc. 4) now they are and Master Page, and eke Cavalero Slender, go you through the town to Frogmore. [Aside to them.]

Page. Sir Hugh is there, is he?

Host. He is there: see what humour he is in, and I will bring the doctor about by the fields. Will it do well?

Shal. We will do it.

Caius. By gar, me vill kill de priest, for he speak for a jack-an-ape to Anne Page.

Host. Let him die. Sheathe thy impatience: throw cold water on thy choler. Go about the fields with me through Frogmore; I will bring thee where Mistress Anne Page is, at a farmhouse a-feasting, and thou shalt woo her. Cried I aim?⁹ said I well?

Caius. By gar, me tank you vor dat: by gar, I love you; and I shall procure-a you de good guest, de earl, de knight, de lords, de gentlemen, my patients.

Host. For the which I will be thy adversary¹⁰ toward Anne Page: said I well?

Caius. By gar, 't is good; vell said.

Host. Let us wag then.

Caius. Come at my heels, Jack Rugby. [Exeunt.]

ACT III.

SCENE I.

A Field near Frogmore.

Enter Sir HUGH EVANS and SIMPLE.

Eva. I pray you now, good Master Slender's serving-man, and friend Simple by your name, which way have you looked for Master Caius, that calls himself doctor of physick?

Sim. Marry, Sir, the Pitty-ward,¹ the park-ward, every way; old Windsor way, and every way but the town way.

Eva. I most feheemently desire you, you will also look that way.

Sim. I will, Sir. [Retiring.]

Eva. Pless my soul! how full of cholers I am, and trempling of mind! — I shall be glad, if he have deceived me. — How melancholies I am! — I will knog his urinals about his knave's costard, when I have good opportunities for the 'ork: — pless my soul! [Sings.]

clapper-clawing one another. 9) Q. A. und Fol. haben Cried game, was Steevens etwas gezwungen als eine Anrede an Doctor Caius im Sinne von professed buck auffasst. — Einfacher ist es, mit Douce cried I aim? = habe ich Dich ermuthigt, habe ich's getroffen? zu lesen. 10) Er meint accessary = Helfershelfer.

1) Die Fol. hat pittie-ward, eine Localität, die, wenn sie nicht auf einem Druckfehler beruht, jedenfalls jetzt nicht mehr nachzuweisen ist. Manche Hgg. lesen city-ward und verstehen damit die Richtung nach London. — old Windsor way = der Weg nach Alt-Windsor, bezeichnet eine andre Richtung als the town way = der Weg nach Windsor. 2) Der Pfarrer, um seine Angst zu betäuben, singt Verse aus verschiedenen Liedern, die er zusammenhanglos aneinanderreihet. Die vier ersten Zeilen sind aus einem Gedichte von Marlowe: The Passionate Shepherd to his Love, das in der Gedichtsammlung The Passionate Pilgrim von deren Herausgeber Jaggard dem Sh. selbst zugeschrieben wird. — Der Vers When as I sat in Pabylon ist aus einer metrischen Uebersetzung des 137. Psalms: When we did sit in Babylon, || The rivers round about, || Then in remembrance of Zion || The tears for grief burst out. — Q. A. hat dafür There dwelt a man in Babylon, den Anfang einer weltlichen Ballade, welche auch in Twelfth-Night (A. 2, Sc. 3) citirt wird. 3) Nach Shallow's letzten Worten ist anzunehmen, dass Evans, als werde er von den Ankommenden überrascht, sich plötzlich in ein Buch, wahrscheinlich in die Bibel, vertieft stelle. Darauf gehen auch die folgenden Worte Shallow's: the sword and the word. 4) Ritson findet, dass Shallow sich hier zu alt mache, und will threescore für fourscore lesen. Malone weist jedoch nach, wie Sh. die letztere Zahl, ohne sie gerade buchstäblich zu nehmen, als gewöhnliche Bezeichnung eines Greisenalters anwendet. 5) So weit abgeirrt von der Achtung, die er sich selber schuldet. 6) to question =

*To shallow rivers, to whose falls²
Melodious birds sing madrigals;
There will we make our peds of roses,
And a thousand fragrant posies.
To shallow —*

Mercy on me! I have a great dispositions to cry.

*Melodious birds sing madrigals; —
When as I sat in Pabylon, —
And a thousand vagram posies.
To shallow —*

Sim. [Coming forward.] Yonder he is coming, this way, Sir Hugh.

Eva. He's welcome. —

To shallow rivers, to whose falls —

Heaven prosper the right! — What weapons is he?

Sim. No weapons, Sir. There comes my master, Master Shallow, and another gentleman, from Frogmore, over the stile, this way.

Eva. Pray you, give me my gown; or else keep it in your arms.

Enter PAGE, SHALLOW, and SLENDER.

Shal. How now, master parson? Good morrow, good Sir Hugh. Keep a gamester from the dice, and a good student from his book,³ and it is wonderful.

Slen. Ah, sweet Anne Page!

Page. 'Save you, good Sir Hugh.

Eva. 'Pless you from his mercy sake, all of you!

Shal. What! the sword and the word? do you study them both, master parson?

Page. And youthful still, in your doublet and hose, this raw rheumatic day!

Eva. There is reasons and causes for it.

Page. We are come to you to do a good office, master parson.

Eva. Fery well: what is it?

Page. Yonder is a most reverend gentleman, who, be-like having received wrong by some person, is at most odds with his own gravity and patience that ever you saw.

Shal. I have lived fourscore years, and upward;⁴ I never heard a man of his place, gravity, and learning, so wide of his own respect.⁵

Eva. What is he?

Page. I think you know him; master doctor Caius, the renowned French physician.

Eva. Got's will, and his passion of my heart! I had as lief you would tell me of a mess of porridge.

Page. Why?

Eva. He has no more knowledge in Hibocrates and Galen, — and he is a knave besides; a cowardly knave, as you would desires to be acquainted withal.

Page. I warrant you, he 's the man should fight with him.

Slen. O, sweet Anne Page!

Shal. It appears so, by his weapons. — Keep them asunder: — here comes doctor Caius.

Enter Host, CAIUS, and RUGBY.

Page. Nay, good master parson, keep in your weapon.

Shal. So do you, good master doctor.

Host. Disarm them, and let them question:⁶ let them keep their limbs whole, and hack our English.

Caius. I pray you, let-a me speak a word vit your ear: verefore vill you not meet-a me?

Eva. Pray you, use your patience: in good time.

Caius. By gar, you are de coward, de Jack dog, John ape.

Eva. Pray you, let us not be laughing-stogs to other men's humours; I desire you in friendship, and I will one way or other make you amends. — I will knog your urinals about your knave's cogscomb⁷ for missing your meetings and appointments.

Caius. Diable! — Jack Rugby, — mine host de Jartiere, have I not stay for him to kill him? have I not, at de place I did appoint?

Eva. As I am a christians soul, now, look you, this is the place appointed. I'll be judgment by mine host of the Garter.

Host. Peace, I say! Gallia and Guallia,⁸ French and Welch, soul-curer and body-curer.

Caius. Ay, dat is very good: excellent.

Host. Peace, I say! hear mine host of the Garter. Am I politic? am I subtle? am I a Machiavel?⁹ Shall I lose my doctor? no; he gives me the potions and the motions. Shall I lose my parson? my priest? my Sir Hugh? no; he gives me the proverbs and the no-verbs.¹⁰ — Give me thy hand, terrestrial; so. — Give me thy hand, celestial; so. — Boys of art, I have deceived you both; I have directed you to wrong places: your hearts are mighty, your skins are whole, and let burnt sack be the issue. — Come, lay their swords to pawn. — Follow me, lad of peace; follow, follow, follow.

Shal. Trust me, a mad host. — Follow, gentlemen, follow.

Slen. O, sweet Anne Page!

[Exeunt SHALLOW, SLENDER, PAGE, and Host.]

Caius. Ha! do I perceive dat? have you make-a de sot¹¹ of us? ha, ha!

Eva. This is well; he has made us his vlouting-stog. — I desire you, that we may be friends, and let us knog our prains together to be revenge on this same scall,¹² scurvy, cogging companion, the host of the Garter.

Caius. By gar, vit all my heart. He promise to bring me vere is Anne Page: by gar, he deceive me too.

Eva. Well, I will smite his noddles. — Pray you, follow. [Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

A Street in Windsor.

Enter Mistress PAGE and ROBIN.

Mrs. Page. Nay, keep your way, little gallant: you were wont to be a follower, but now you are a leader. Whether had you rather lead mine eyes, or eye your master's heels?

Rob. I had rather, forsooth, go before you like a man, than follow him like a dwarf.

Mrs. Page. O! you are a flattering boy: now, I see, you 'll be a courtier.

Enter FORD.

Ford. Well met, Mistress Page. Whither go you?

Mrs. Page. Truly, Sir, to see your wife: is she at home?

Ford. Ay; and as idle as she may hang together, for want of company. I think, if your husbands were dead, you two would marry.

Mrs. Page. Be sure of that, — two other husbands.

Ford. Where had you this pretty weathercock?

Mrs. Page. I cannot tell what the dickens his name is my husband had him of. — What do you call your knight's name, sirrah?

Rob. Sir John Falstaff.

Ford. Sir John Falstaff!

Mrs. Page. He, he; I can never hit on 's name. — There is such a league between my good man and he! Is your wife at home, indeed?

Ford. Indeed, she is.

Mrs. Page. By your leave, Sir: I am sick, till I see her.

Ford. Has Page any brains? hath he any eyes? hath he any thinking? Sure, they ' sleep; he hath no use of them. Why, this boy will carry a letter twenty miles, as easy as a cannon will shoot point-blank twelve score. He² pieces out his wife's inclination; he gives her folly motion and advantage: and now she 's going to my wife, and Falstaff's boy with her. A man may hear this shower sing in the wind:³ — and Falstaff's boy with her! — sich besprechen, sich in ein Gespräch einlassen. 7) Die folgenden Worte bis appointments fehlen in der Fol. und sind aus Q. A. ergänzt. 8) Die Fol. hat Gallia and Gaule; Q. A. gawle and gawlia. Das folgende French and Welch zeigt die Nothwendigkeit der Verbesserung. 9) Machiavel, als Repräsentanten schlauer Staatskunst, hat Sh. auch in K. Henry VI. First Part (A. 5, Sc. 4). Alençon, that notorious Machiavel! — Die Q. A. schreibt den Namen Matchavil. 10) Das scherzhaft und sinnlos gebildete no-verbs ist ebenso zu proverbs, worunter der Wirth Bibelsprüche versteht, hinzugefügt, wie motions zu potions. — Das folgende Give me thy hand, terrestrial; so fehlt in der Fol. und ist aus Q. A. entlehnt, als nothwendiger Gegensatz zu Give me thy hand, celestial; so. — Der Wirth wendet sich erst an den mit irdischen Dingen beschäftigten Caius, dann an den mit himmlischen Dingen beschäftigten Evans, und nennt sie Beide vertraulich boys of art = Knaben der Wissenschaft, statt = Männer der Wissenschaft. Eben so cordial bezeichnet er dann den schon mit Come, lay their swords etc. angeredeten Friedensrichter als lad of peace, wie die Fol. liest. Dyce liest mit der Q. A. lads of peace, als bezögen sich die Worte auf Caius und Evans. 11) sot französisch: habt Ihr uns zu Narren gehabt? 12) scall für scald.

1) they bezieht sich auf brains, eyes und thinking zusammen. 2) he scil. Page. 3) Man kann das Gewitter, das bevorsteht, schon in dem Pfeifen des Windes hören, so deutlich wie die Liebesintriguen unserer Weiber

Good plots! — they are laid; and our revolted wives share damnation together. Well; I will take him,⁴ then torture my wife, pluck the borrowed veil of modesty from the so seeming⁵ Mistress Page, divulge Page himself for a secure and wilful Actæon;⁶ and to these violent proceedings all my neighbours shall cry aim.⁷ [Clock strikes.] The clock gives me my cue, and my assurance bids me search; there I shall find Falstaff. I shall be rather praised for this than mocked; for it is as positive as the earth is firm, that Falstaff is there: I will go.

Enter PAGE, SHALLOW, SLENDER, Host, Sir HUGH EVANS, CAIUS, and RUGBY.

Page, Shal. etc. Well met, Master Ford.

Ford. Trust me, a good knot. I have good cheer at home, and I pray you all go with me.

Shal. I must excuse myself, Master Ford.

Slen. And so must I, Sir: we have appointed to dine with Mistress Anne, and I would not break with her⁸ for more money than I'll speak of.

Shal. We have lingered about a match⁹ between Anne Page and my cousin Slender, and this day we shall have our answer.

Slen. I hope, I have your good will, father Page.

Page. You have, Master Slender; I stand wholly for you: — but my wife, master doctor, is for you altogether.

Caius. Ay, by gar; and de maid is love-a me: my nursh-a Quickly tell me so mush.

Host. What say you to young Master Fenton? he capers, he dances, he has eyes of youth, he writes verses, he speaks holiday,¹⁰ he smells April and May:¹¹ he will carry't, he will carry't; 't is in his buttons;¹² he will carry't.

Page. Not by my consent, I promise you. The gentleman is of no having:¹³ he kept company with the wild prince and Poin; ¹⁴ he is of too high a region; he knows too much. No, he shall not knit a knot in his fortunes with the finger of my substance: if he take her, let him take her simply; the wealth I have waits on my consent, and my consent goes not that way.

Ford. I beseech you, heartily, some of you go home with me to dinner: besides your cheer, you shall have sport; I will show you a monster.¹⁵ — Master doctor, you shall go: — so shall you, Master Page, — and you, Sir Hugh.

Shal. Well, fare you well. — We shall have the freer wooing at Master Page's.¹⁶ [Exeunt SHALLOW and SLENDER.

Caius. Go home, John Rugby; I come anon.

[Exit RUGBY.

Host. Farewell, my hearts. I will to my honest knight Falstaff, and drink canary with him.

[Exit.

Ford. [Aside.] I think, I shall drink in pipe-wine¹⁷ first with him; I'll make him dance. Will you go, gentles?

All. Have with you, to see this monster. [Exeunt.

SCENE III.

A Room in FORD'S HOUSE.

Enter Mistress FORD and Mistress PAGE.

Mrs. Ford. What, John! what, Robert!

Mrs. Page. Quickly, quickly. Is the buck-basket —

Mrs. Ford. I warrant. — What, Robin, I say!

Enter Servants with a basket.

Mrs. Page. Come, come, come.

Mrs. Ford. Here, set it down.

Mrs. Page. Give your men the charge: we must be brief.

Mrs. Ford. Marry, as I told you before, John, and Robert, be ready here hard by in the brewhouse; and when I suddenly call you, come forth, and (without any pause, or staggering) take this basket on your shoulders: that done, trudge with it in all haste, and carry it among the whitsters in Datchet-mead,¹ and there empty it in the muddy ditch, close by the Thames side.

Mrs. Page. You will do it?

Mrs. Ford. I have told them over and over; they lack no direction.² Be gone, and come when you are called.

[Exeunt Servants.

sich schon jetzt spüren lassen. 4) Ford will den Falstaff auf der That ertappen. 5) Steevens erklärt seeming mit specious. Indess scheint das so auf das vorhergehende modesty hinzuweisen, das adjectivisch zu suppliren ist, also modest-seeming. 6) Ein Hahnrei, der in seiner Zuversicht und Sorglosigkeit mit eigenem Willen ein Hahnrei ist. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 24. 7) Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 3, Anm. 9. 8) to break with = Jemandem sein Wort brechen. 9) Wir haben uns schon länger mit einer Partie zwischen Anne Page und Slender beschäftigt, die Sache hat sich schon länger hingezogen. 10) Er spricht in feinen und gesuchten Phrasen, wie sie für den Werkeltag zu gut sind. So in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 1, Sc. 3) With many holiday and lady terms. 11) Er duftet wie der April und Mai, wie die Monate, welche die ersten Blumen bringen. — Q. A. hat he smells all April and May. 12) buttons wird gewöhnlich von einer Blume gedeutet, die zur Art der Lychnis gehört und als bachelors' buttons häufig bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen vorkommt. Die Junggesellen trugen sie mit sich herum und prophezeiten aus ihrem Blühen oder Welken, ob sie in der Liebe glücklich sein würden oder nicht. — Knight jedoch versteht 't is in his buttons von den Hosenknöpfen, wie das sprichwörtliche It does not lie in your breeches, also: er ist der Mann dazu. 13) having = Besitzthum. 14) Unter the wild prince and Poin ist Prinz Heinrich, der Sohn Heinrich's IV., und sein Freund Poin gemeint. Vgl. K. Henry IV. First und Second Part. 15) monster = ein Naturwunder, wie ein seltenes Thier, eine Missgeburt oder dgl. Zugleich liegt darin die versteckte Anspielung auf den gehörnten Hahnrei, wie in Othello (A. 4, Sc. 1) a horned man's a monster. 16) Wenn die Uebrigen nicht mitgehen, so werden wir um so ungestörter in Page's Hause unsere Werbung um seine Tochter anbringen können. 17) pipe-wine ist zugleich = Wein vom Fasse, im Gegensatz zum Wein aus der Flasche, und = Wein, der gleichsam zum Tanze pfeift, so dass der Mittrinker dazu tanzt. In beiden Bedeutungen bezieht sich pipe-wine auf canary, das zugleich = ein Tanz, und = Wein von den Kanarischen Inseln, Sekt, bedeutet. — to drink in = in einem Wein mit Jemandem zechen: ich werde zuerst, noch eher als der Wirth, mit Falstaff zechen.

1) Datchet-mead, eine Wiese, die sich zwischen der nördlichen Terrasse des Windsorschlusses und der Themse hinzog und von den Bleichern (whitsters) benutzt wurde. Sie wurde von einem morastigen Graben (muddy ditch) durchschnitten, der mit dem Flusse in Verbindung stand. 2) Sie wissen schon was sie zu thun haben.

Mrs. Page. Here comes little Robin.

Enter ROBIN.

Mrs. Ford. How now, my eyas-musket?³ what news with you?

Rob. My master, Sir John, is come in at your back-door, Mistress Ford, and requests your company.

Mrs. Page. You little Jack-a-Lent,⁴ have you been true to us?

Rob. Ay, I'll be sworn. My master knows not of your being here; and hath threatened to put me into everlasting liberty, if I tell you of it, for he swears he'll turn me away.⁵

Mrs. Page. Thou'rt a good boy; this secrecy of thine shall be a tailor to thee, and shall make thee a new doublet and hose. — I'll go hide me.

Mrs. Ford. Do so. — Go tell thy master, I am alone. [Exit ROBIN.] — Mistress Page, remember you your cue.

Mrs. Page. I warrant thee: if I do not act it, hiss me.⁶ [Exit.]

Mrs. Ford. Go to then: we'll use this unwholesome humidity, this gross watery pumpion; — we'll teach him to know turtles from jays.

Enter FALSTAFF.

Fal. Have I caught my heavenly jewel?⁷ Why, now let me die, for I have lived long enough: this is the period of my ambition. O this blessed hour!

Mrs. Ford. O sweet Sir John!

Fal. Mistress Ford, I cannot cog, I cannot prate, Mistress Ford. Now shall I sin in my wish: I would thy husband were dead. I'll speak it before the best lord, I would make thee my lady.⁸

Mrs. Ford. I your lady, Sir John! alas, I should be a pitiful lady.

Fal. Let the court of France show me such another. I see how thine eye would emulate the diamond: thou hast the right arched beauty⁹ of the brow, that becomes the ship-tire, the tire-valiant, or any tire of Venetian admittance.¹⁰

Mrs. Ford. A plain kerchief, Sir John: my brows become nothing else; nor that well neither.

Fal. By the Lord, thou art a tyrant to say so:¹¹ thou wouldst make an absolute courtier;¹² and the firm fixture of thy foot would give an excellent motion to thy gait, in a semi-circled farthingale. I see what thou wert, if Fortune thy foe were not, Nature thy friend:¹³ come, thou canst not hide it.

Mrs. Ford. Believe me, there's no such thing in me.

Fal. What made me love thee? let that persuade thee, there's something extraordinary in thee. Come; I cannot cog, and say thou art this and that, like a many of these lispings hawthorn-buds,¹⁴ that come like women in men's apparel, and smell like Bucklersbury in simple-time:¹⁵ I cannot; but I love thee, none but thee, and thou deservest it.

Mrs. Ford. Do not betray me, Sir. I fear, you love Mistress Page.

Fal. Thou mightst as well say, I love to walk by the Counter-gate,¹⁶ which is as hateful to me as the reek of a lime-kiln.

Mrs. Ford. Well, heaven knows, how I love you; and you shall one day find it.

Fal. Keep in that mind; I'll deserve it.

Mrs. Ford. Nay, I must tell you, so you do, or else I could not be in that mind.

Rob. [Within.] Mistress Ford! Mistress Ford! here's Mistress Page at the door, sweating, and blowing, and looking wildly, and would needs speak with you presently.

Fal. She shall not see me. I will ensconce me behind the arras.¹⁷

Mrs. Ford. Pray you, do so: she's a very tattling woman. — [FALSTAFF hides himself.]

Re-enter MISTRESS PAGE and ROBIN.

What's the matter? how now!

3) eyas-musket = ein junger Sperber, der noch nicht aus dem Neste kommt, hier scherzhaft von dem kleinen Robin, wie in Hamlet (A. 2, Sc. 2) eyases von den Kinderschauspielern. 4) Jack-a-Lent = eine Pappe, mit Lumpen bekleidet, die in der Fastenzeit den Knaben als Zielscheibe bei ihren Spielen diente. So in Ben Jonson's Tale of a Tub: Thou that when last thou wert put out of service, || Travell'd to Hampstead Heath on an Ashwednesday, || Where thou didst stand six weeks the Jack of Lent || For boys to hurt three throws a penny at thee. 5) Falstaff schwört, er wolle den Knaben aus dem Dienste jagen, wenn derselbe der Frau Page sein Einverständniß mit Frau Ford verriethe, und damit droht er ihm, wie Robin scherzhaft sich ausdrückt, die ewige Freiheit an, wie sonst wohl ein ewiges Gefängniß. 6) Zischt mich aus, wie einen Schauspieler, der sein Stichwort ausser Acht läßt. 7) Falstaff citirt den Anfang eines Liedes aus Sidney's Astrophel and Stella. Die Q. A. hat die Worte übereinstimmend mit dem Original, die Fol. fügt thee hinter caught ein. 8) So erzählt die Wirthin von Falstaff in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 2, Sc. 1) thou didst swear to me then, to marry me and make me my lady thy wife. 9) So die Fol. Manche Hgg. lesen willkürlich arched bent, weil Q. A. hat how the arched bent of thy brow would become the ship-tire, the tire vallet, or anie Venetian attire. — ship-tire = ein Kopfputz, der den Damen das Ansehen eines Schiffes mit vollen Segeln gab; tire-valiant, wofür Steevens tire-volant vermuthete, = ein Kopfputz von herausforderndem, kühnem Aussehen. 10) Irgend ein Kopfputz, den die venetianische Mode, die auch in England mustergültig war, zulässt oder billigt. 11) Die Fol. läßt das by the Lord der Q. A., das die Censur strich, aus. Für tyrant = Wütherich, d. h. Wütherich gegen sich selbst, wie die Fol. hat, lesen die meisten Hgg. mit Q. A. traitor. 12) Frau Ford würde vollkommen geeignet sein, bei Hofe zu erscheinen. 13) Ich sehe, was Du sein würdest, wenn nicht Fortune Deine Feindin wäre, da die Natur Deine Freundin ist. — Fortune thy foe soll an den Anfang einer populären und oft citirten Ballade erinnern: Fortune my foe, why dost thou frown on me? || And will my fortune never better be? — Manche Hgg. fügen mit Pope hinter Nature ein is ein, da vielmehr being dafür zu suppliren ist. 14) Die sich so leicht wegblasen lassen, so wenig fest sind, wie eine Hagedornknospe. 15) Bucklersbury, eine Strasse in London, vorzugsweise von Apothekern und Kräuterhändlern bewohnt, wird auch in Webster's Westward Hoe erwähnt: Go into Bucklersbury and fetch me two ounces in preserved melons. — in simple-time = in der Zeit, wo die Medicinalkräuter gesammelt und getrocknet werden. 16) Counter-gate = das Thor des Londoner Schuldgefängnisses, Counter genannt, auf das in einem Wortspiel auch in Comedy of Errors (A. 4, Sc. 2) angespielt wird. 17) Zwischen

Mrs. Page. O Mistress Ford! what have you done? You're shamed, you are overthrown, you're undone for ever.

Mrs. Ford. What's the matter, good Mistress Page?

Mrs. Page. O well-a-day, Mistress Ford! having an honest man to your husband, to give him such cause of suspicion!

Mrs. Ford. What cause of suspicion?

Mrs. Page. What cause of suspicion? — Out upon you! how am I mistook in you!

Mrs. Ford. Why, alas! what's the matter?

Mrs. Page. Your husband's coming hither, woman, with all the officers in Windsor, to search for a gentleman, that, he says, is here now in the house, by your consent, to take an ill advantage of his absence. You are undone.

Mrs. Ford. 'T is not so, I hope.¹⁸

Mrs. Page. Pray heaven it be not so, that you have such a man here; but 't is most certain your husband's coming, with half Windsor at his heels, to search for such a one: I come before to tell you. If you know yourself clear, why, I am glad of it: but if you have a friend here, convey him out. Be not amazed; call all your senses to you: defend your reputation, or bid farewell to your good life for ever.

Mrs. Ford. What shall I do? — There is a gentleman, my dear friend; and I fear not mine own shame so much as his peril: I had rather than a thousand pound he were out of the house.

Mrs. Page. For shame! never stand »you had rather«, and »you had rather«: your husband's here at hand; bethink you of some conveyance:¹⁹ in the house you cannot hide him. — O, how have you deceived me! — Look, here is a basket: if he be of any reasonable stature, he may creep in here; and throw foul linen upon him, as if it were going to bucking: or, it is whiting-time, send him by your two men to Datchet-mead.

Mrs. Ford. He's too big to go in there. What shall I do?

Re-enter FALSTAFF.

Fal. Let me see 't, let me see 't! O, let me see 't! I'll in, I'll in. — Follow your friend's counsel. — I'll in.

Mrs. Page. What! Sir John Falstaff? Are these your letters,²⁰ knight?

Fal. I love thee:²¹ help me away; let me creep in here; I'll never —

[He gets into the basket; they cover him with foul linen.]

Mrs. Page. Help to cover your master, boy. Call your men, Mistress Ford. — You dissembling knight!

Mrs. Ford. What, John! Robert! John! [Exit ROBIN.]

Re-enter Servants.

Go take up these clothes here, quickly; where's the cowl-staff?²² look, how you drumble:²³ carry them to the laundress in Datchet-mead; quickly, come.

Enter FORD, PAGE, CAIUS, and Sir HUGH EVANS.

Ford. Pray you, come near: if I suspect without cause, why, then make sport at me, then let me be your jest; I deserve it. — How now? whither bear you this?

Serv. To the laundress, forsooth.

Mrs. Ford. Why, what have you to do whither they bear it? You were best meddle with buck-washing.

Ford. Buck? I would I could wash myself of the buck! Buck, buck, buck? Ay, buck; I warrant you, buck, and of the season too, it shall appear.²⁴ [Exeunt Servants with the basket.] Gentlemen, I have dreamed to-night: I'll tell you my dream. Here, here, here be my keys: ascend my chambers, search, seek, find out: I'll warrant, we'll unkennel the fox. — Let me stop this way first: — so, now uncape.²⁵

Page. Good Master Ford, be contented: you wrong yourself too much.

Ford. True, Master Page. — Up, gentlemen; you shall see sport anon: follow me, gentlemen. [Exit.]

Eva. This is fery fantastical humours, and jealousies.

Caius. By gar, 't is no de fashion of France: it is not jealous in France.²⁶

Page. Nay, follow him, gentlemen: see the issue of his search. [Exeunt PAGE, CAIUS and EVANS.]

Mrs. Page. Is there not a double excellency in this?

Mrs. Ford. I know not which pleases me better, that my husband is deceived, or Sir John.

Mrs. Page. What a taking was he in, when your husband asked who was in the basket!²⁷

Mrs. Ford. I am half afraid he will have need of washing; so, throwing him into the water will do him a benefit.

Mrs. Page. Hang him, dishonest rascal! I would all of the same strain were in the same distress.

Mrs. Ford. I think, my husband hath some special suspicion of Falstaff's being here; for I never saw him so gross in his jealousy till now.

Mrs. Page. I will lay a plot to try that; and we will yet have more tricks with Falstaff: his dissolute disease will scarce obey this medicine.²⁸

Mrs. Ford. Shall we send that foolish²⁹ carrion, Mistress Quickly, to him, and excuse his throwing into the water; and give him another hope, to betray him to another punishment?

der von der Decke herabhängenden Tapete und der Wand war so viel Platz, dass Falstaff sich dort verstecken konnte. Denselben Versteckplatz hatte er in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 2, Sc. 4) aufgesucht. 18) Manche Hgg. setzen vor diesem Worte aus Q. A. als beiseit gesprochen Speak louder: Frau Page soll lauter sprechen, damit Falstaff Alles höre. — Die Fol. hat Speak louder erst A. 4, Sc. 2. 19) conveyance = Mittel zur heimlichen Fortschaffung. 20) Frau Page erinnert ihn an die Liebesbriefe, die er ihr geschickt hat, während sie ihn jetzt bei der Frau Ford findet. 21) Manche Hgg. fügen auch hier aus Q. A. hinzu and none but thee, was in der Fol. fehlt, da Falstaff dasselbe schon vorher zu Frau Ford gesagt hatte. 22) cowl-staff = die Stange, an der der Waschkorb fortgetragen wird. 23) to drumble = zaudern, sich ungeschickt anstellen. 24) Wortspiel zwischen buck = eingeweichte Wäsche, und = Bock, mit Anspielung auf dessen Hörner, weshalb er buck of the season heisst. 25) to uncape = den Fuchs aus seinem Bau treiben; hier angewandt auf Falstaff, den Ford irgendwo in seinem Hause versteckt glaubt und heraustreiben will. 26) Er will sagen: man ist nicht eifersüchtig in Frankreich. 27) Ritson wollte, in Uebereinstimmung mit dem Vorhergehenden, lesen what was in the basket. — Indess mag dieses who auf einem Versehen Sh.'s beruhen. 28) Seine liederliche Krankheit, seine Liederlichkeit, wird dieser Arznei, die wir angewandt, schwerlich schon Folge leisten; wir werden ihn nochmals in die Cur nehmen müssen. 29) Die Fol. hat aus Versehen, wegen des folgenden carrion, foolishion für foolish, was indess schon die Fol. von 1632

Mrs. Page. We'll do it: let him be sent for to-morrow eight o'clock, to have amends.

Re-enter FORD, PAGE, CAIUS, and Sir HUGH EVANS.

Ford. I cannot find him: may be, the knave bragged of that he could not compass.

Mrs. Page. Heard you that?³⁰

Mrs. Ford. You use me well, Master Ford, do you?

Ford. Ay, I do so.

Mrs. Ford. Heaven make you better than your thoughts!

Ford. Amen.

Mrs. Page. You do yourself mighty wrong, Master Ford.

Ford. Ay, ay; I must bear it.

Eva. If there be any pody in the house, and in the chambers, and in the coffers, and in the presses, heaven forgive my sins at the day of judgment!³¹

Caius. By gar, nor I too, dere is no bodies.

Page. Fie, fie, Master Ford! are you not ashamed? What spirit, what devil suggests this imagination? I would not have your distemper in this kind for the wealth of Windsor Castle.

Ford. 'T is my fault, Master Page: I suffer for it.

Eva. You suffer for a pad conscience: your wife is as honest a 'omans as I will desires among five thousand, and five hundred too.

Caius. By gar, I see 't is an honest woman.

Ford. Well; I promised you a dinner. — Come, come, walk in the park: I pray you, pardon me; I will hereafter make known to you, why I have done this. — Come, wife; — come, Mistress Page: I pray you pardon me; pray heartily, pardon me.

Page. Let 's go in, gentlemen; but, trust me, we'll mock him. I do invite you to-morrow morning to my house to breakfast; after, we'll a-birding together: I have a fine hawk for the bush. Shall it be so?

Ford. Any thing.

Eva. If there is one, I shall make two in the company.

Caius. If there be one or two, I shall make-a de turd.³²

Ford. Pray you, go, Master Page.

Eva. I pray you now, remembrance to-morrow on the lousy knave, mine host.

Caius. Dat is good; by gar, vit all my heart.

Eva. A lousy knave! to have his gibes, and his mockeries!

[Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.

A Room in PAGE's House.

Enter FENTON and ANNE PAGE.

Fent. I see, I cannot get thy father's love; Therefore, no more turn me to him, sweet Nan.

Anne. Alas! how then?

Fent. Why, thou must be thyself.¹

He doth object, I am too great of birth, And that my state being gall'd with my expense, I seek to heal it only by his wealth.

Besides these, other bars he lays before me, —

My riots past, my wild societies;

And tells me, 't is a thing impossible

I should love thee, but as a property.

Anne. May be, he tells you true.

Fent. No, heaven so speed me in my time to come!

Albeit, I will confess, thy father's wealth

Was the first motive that I woo'd thee, Anne:

Yet, wooing thee, I found thee of more value

Than stamps in gold, or sums in sealed bags;

And 't is the very riches of thyself

That now I aim at.

Anne. Gentle Master Fenton,

Yet seek my father's love; still seek it, Sir:

If opportunity and humblest suit

Cannot attain it, why, then, — hark you hither.

[They converse apart.]

Enter SHALLOW, SLENDER, and Mistress QUICKLY.

Shal. Break their talk, Mistress Quickly: my kinsman shall speak for himself.

Slen. I'll make a shaft or a bolt on't.² 'Slid, 't is but venturing.

Shal. Be not dismay'd.

Slen. No, she shall not dismay me: I care not for that, — but that I am afraid.

Quick. Hark ye; Master Slender would speak a word with you.

Anne. I come to him. — This is my father's choice.

O! what a world of vile ill-favour'd faults

Looks handsome in three hundred pounds a year!

Quick. And how does good Master Fenton? Pray you, a word with you.

Shal. She's coming; to her, coz. O boy! thou hadst a father!³

Slen. I had a father, Mistress Anne: my uncle can tell you good jests of him. — Pray you, uncle, tell Mistress Anne the jest, how my father stole two geese out of a pen,⁴ good uncle.

Shal. Mistress Anne, my cousin loves you.

Slen. Ay, that I do; as well as I love any woman in Glostershire.

Shal. He will maintain you like a gentlewoman.

Slen. Ay, that I will, come cut and long-tail,⁵ under the degree of a squire.

Shal. He will make you a hundred and fifty pounds jointure.

Anne. Good Master Shallow, let him woo for himself.

Shal. Marry, I thank you for it; I thank you for that good comfort. She calls you, coz: I'll leave you.

verbessert. 30) Manche Hgg. lassen mit Q. A. die Frau Ford auf diese bei Seite an sie gerichtete Frage der Frau Page antworten Ay, ay, peace. 31) Evans will eigentlich das Gegenteil sagen: der Himmel vergebte mir meine Sünden nicht, da er überzeugt ist, dass Niemand in dem überall durchsuchten Hause versteckt geblieben sei. 32) Auch hier fügen manche Hgg. aus Q. A. ein Wort des Pfarrers Evans, der Caius' letzte Worte missversteht, ein: In your teeth, for shame. — Die Q. A. hat übrigens diese letzten Reden an einer andern Stelle, zum Schlusse von A. 3, Sc. 2.

1) Du musst Dir selbst angehören, selbst über Dich entscheiden. — Diese Scene folgt in der Q. A. erst auf die nächste fünfte. 2) Sprichwörtlich: Ich werde die Sache so oder so zur Entscheidung bringen. — shaft = ein scharfer, gefiederter Pfeil; bolt = ein stumpfer, dicker Vogelbolzen. 3) Shallow will seinen Neffen ermutigen, indem er ihn auf seinen dreisteren Vater hinweist. 4) out of the henloft in Q. A. 5) cut and long-tail = Stutzwanz und Langschwanz, soll in Slender's Redeweise Leute verschiedenen Ranges bezeichnen, die es ihm in der Art, wie er Anne Page halten wird, nicht gleichthun sollen, wenn sie nur nicht höher als er gestellt, d. h. vom

Anne. Now, Master Slender.

Slen. Now, good Mistress Anne.

Anne. What is your will?

Slen. My will? ⁶od's heartlings! that 's a pretty jest, indeed. I ne'er made my will yet, I thank heaven; I am not such a sickly creature, I give heaven praise.

Anne. I mean, Master Slender, what would you with me?

Slen. Truly, for mine own part, I would little or nothing with you. Your father, and my uncle, have made motions: if it be my luck, so; if not, happy man be his dole! ⁷They can tell you how things go better than I can: you may ask your father; here he comes.

Why, how now? what does Master Fenton here?

You wrong me, Sir, thus still to haunt my house:

I told you, Sir, my daughter is dispos'd of.

Fent. Nay, Master Page, be not impatient.

Mrs. Page. Good Master Fenton, come not to my child.

Page. She is no match for you.

Fent. Sir, will you hear me?

Page. No, good Master Fenton. —

Come, Master Shallow; come, son Slender, in. — Knowing my mind, you wrong me, Master Fenton.

[Exeunt PAGE, SHALLOW, and SLENDER.]

Quick. Speak to Mistress Page.

Fent. Good Mistress Page, for that I love your daughter in such a righteous fashion as I do,

Perforce, against all checks, rebukes, and manners, ⁸

I must advance the colours of my love,

And not retire: let me have your good will.

Anne. Good mother, do not marry me to yond fool.

Mrs. Page. I mean it not; I seek you a better husband.

Quick. That 's my master, master doctor.

Anne. Alas! I had rather be set quick i' the earth, And bowl'd to death with turnips. ⁹

Mrs. Page. Come, trouble not yourself. — Good Master Fenton,

I will not be your friend, nor enemy:

My daughter will I question how she loves you,

And as I find her, so am I affected.

Till then, farewell, Sir: she must needs go in;

Her father will be angry. [Exeunt Mrs. PAGE and ANNE.]

Fent. Farewell, gentle mistress. — Farewell, Nan.

Quick. This is my doing, now. — Nay, said I, will you cast away your child on a fool, and a physician? ¹⁰ look on Master Fenton. — This is my doing.

Fent. I thank thee; and I pray thee, once ¹¹ to-night Give my sweet Nan this ring. There 's for thy pains.

[Exit.]

Quick. Now, heaven send thee good fortune! A kind heart he hath: a woman would run through fire and water for such a kind heart. But yet I would my master had Mistress Anne; or I would Master Slender had her; or, in sooth, I would Master Fenton had her. I will do what I can for them all three, for so I have promised, and I 'll be as good as my word; but speciously ¹² for Master Fenton. Well, I must of another errand to Sir John Falstaff from my two mistresses: what a beast am I to slack ¹³ it! [Exit.]

SCENE V.

A Room in the Garter Inn.

Enter FALSTAFF and BARDOLPH.

Fal. Bardolph, I say, —

Bard. Here, Sir.

Fal. Go fetch me a quart of sack; put a toast in 't. [Exit BARDOLPH.] Have I lived to be carried in a basket, like a barrow of butcher's offal, and to be thrown in the Thames? Well, if I be served such another trick, I 'll have my brains ta'en out, and buttered, and give them to a dog for a new year's gift. The rogues slighted ¹ me into the river with as little remorse as they would have drowned a blind bitch's puppies, ² fifteen i' the litter; and you may know by my size, that I have a kind of alacrity in sinking: if the bottom were as deep as hell, I should down. I had been drowned, but that the shore was shelvy and shallow; a death that I abhor, for the water swells a man, and what a thing should I have been, when I had been swelled! I should have been a mountain of mummy.

Re-enter BARDOLPH with the wine.

Bard. Here 's Mistress Quickly, Sir, to speak with you.

Fal. Come, let me pour in some sack to the Thames water, ³ for my belly 's as cold, as if I had swallowed snowballs for pills to cool the reins. Call her in.

Bard. Come in, woman.

Range eines Esquire sind. 6) Wortspiele zwischen den verschiedenen Bedeutungen von will = Testament, letzter Wille, und = Wunsch, Wille, hat Sh. auch anderswo; so in Much Ado about Nothing (A. 5, Sc. 4) und Merchant of Venice (A. 1, Sc. 2). 7) Wenn es mein Glück sein soll, Euch zu bekommen, so ist es gut; wenn nicht, Heil Dem, dem es zu Theil wird. — Happy man be his dole ist in diesem Sinne sprichwörtlich. 8) Gegen allen Anstand, der mir gebieten müsste, mich zu bescheiden, kann ich es nicht unterlassen, die Fahne meiner Liebe hoch zu tragen. 9) Lieber als den Doctor Caius heirathen, wollte Anne Page sich lebendig begraben lassen, so dass nur der Kopf aus dem Boden herausragte und den Kegelkugeln als Wurfziel diente. Der Zusatz with turnips soll diese mehrfach erwähnte martervolle Todesart hier in's Spasshafte verkehren. Ohne solchen Zusatz findet sich in Ben Jonson's Bartholomew Fair: Would I had been set in the ground, all but the head of me, and had my brains bowl'd at. — In der folgenden Rede der Frau Page sind die ersten Worte an ihre Tochter, erst die folgenden an Fenton gerichtet. Manche Hgg. aber interpungiren Come, trouble not yourself: good Master Fenton, etc. 10) Die Quickly versteht unter fool den Slender, dem Page seine Tochter verschaffen will, unter physician den Caius, dem Frau Page sie zuwenden möchte. — Hanmer las or a physician in engerem Anschluss an das Sprichwort A fool or a physician. 11) once erklärt Steevens mit some time. Eher möchte once auch hier die Bedeutung haben, die es sonst bisweilen bei Sh. hat: einmal für allemal, kurz und gut. — Fenton will durch den Ring sich kurz und gut mit Anne Page verloben. 12) Sie meint especially. — Q. A. hat specialty. 13) to slack = Etwas saumselig betreiben.

1) Q. A. hat slided. — remorse = Erbarmen, Bedenken. 2) a blind bitch's puppies in Q. A. und Fol. steht in nachlässiger oder komischer Redeweise für a bitch's blind puppies, wie Theobald änderte und die meisten Hgg. lesen. 3) Er meint, zu dem Themsewasser, das er unfreiwillig geschluckt hat. 4) Diese letzten

Enter Mistress QUICKLY.

Quick. By your leave. — I cry you mercy: give your worship good morrow.

Fal. Take away these chalices. Go, brew me a pottle of sack finely.

Bard. With eggs, Sir?

Fal. Simple of itself; I 'll no pullet-sperm in my brewage. ⁴ [Exit BARDOLPH.] — How now?

Quick. Marry, Sir, I come to your worship from Mistress Ford.

Fal. Mistress Ford! I have had ford enough: I was thrown into the ford; I have my belly full of ford. ⁵

Quick. Alas the day! good heart, that was not her fault: she does so take on with her men; they mistook their erection. ⁶

Fal. So did I mine, to build upon a foolish woman's promise.

Quick. Well, she laments, Sir, for it, that it would yearn your heart to see it. Her husband goes this morning a-birding: she desires you once more to come to her between eight and nine. I must carry her word ⁷ quickly: she 'll make you amends, I warrant you.

Fal. Well, I will visit her: tell her so; and bid her think, what a man is: let her consider his frailty, and then judge of my merit.

Quick. I will tell her.

Fal. Do so. Between nine and ten, say'st thou?

Quick. Eight and nine, Sir.

Fal. Well, be gone: I will not miss her.

Quick. Peace be with you, Sir. [Exit.]

Fal. I marvel, I hear not of Master Brook: he sent me word to stay within. I like his money well. O! here he comes.

Enter FORD.

Ford. Bless you, Sir.

Fal. Now, Master Brook; you come to know what hath passed between me and Ford's wife?

Ford. That, indeed, Sir John, is my business.

Fal. Master Brook, I will not lie to you. I was at her house the hour she appointed me.

Ford. And sped you, ⁸ Sir?

Fal. Very ill-favouredly, Master Brook.

Ford. How so, Sir? Did she change her determination?

Fal. No, Master Brook; but the peaking Cornuto ⁹ her husband, Master Brook, dwelling in a continual 'larum of jealousy, comes me in the instant of our encounter, after we had embraced, kissed, protested, and, as it were, spoke the prologue of our comedy; and at his heels a rabble of his companions, thither provoked and instigated by his distemper, and, forsooth, to search his house for his wife's love.

Ford. What, while you were there?

Fal. While I was there.

Ford. And did he search for you, and could not find you?

Fal. You shall hear. As good luck would have it, comes in one Mistress Page; gives intelligence of Ford's approach; and in her invention and Ford's wife's distraction, ¹⁰ they conveyed me into a buck-basket.

Ford. A buck-basket!

Fal. By the Lord, ¹¹ a buck-basket: rammed me in with foul shirts and smocks, socks, foul stockings, and greasy napkins; that, Master Brook, there was the rankest compound of villanous smell, that ever offended nostril.

Ford. And how long lay you there?

Fal. Nay, you shall hear, Master Brook, what I have suffered, to bring this woman to evil for your good. Being thus crammed in the basket, a couple of Ford's knaves, his hinds, were called forth by their mistress, to carry me in the name of foul clothes to Datchet-lane: ¹² they took me on their shoulders; met the jealous knave their master in the door, who asked them once or twice what they had in their basket. ¹³ I quaked for fear, lest the lunatic knave would have searched it; but fate, ordaining he should be a cuckold, held his hand. ¹⁴ Well; on went he for a search, and away went I for foul clothes. But mark the sequel, Master Brook: I suffered the pangs of three several deaths: ¹⁵ first, an intolerable fright, to be detected with a jealous rotten bell-wether; ¹⁶ next, to be compassed, like a good bilbo, ¹⁷ in the circumference of a peck, hilt to point, heel to head; and then, to be stopped in, like a strong distillation, with stinking clothes that fretted in their own grease: think of that, — a man of my kidney, — think of that; that am as subject to heat as butter; ¹⁸ a man of continual dissolution and thaw: it was a miracle, to scape suffocation. And in the height of this bath, when I was more than half stewed in grease, like a Dutch dish, ¹⁹ to be thrown into the Thames, and cooled, glowing hot, in that surge, like a horse-shoe; think of that, — hissing hot, — think of that, Master Brook.

Wechselreden zwischen Falstaff und Bardolph stehen in Q. A. schon zu Anfang der Scene. 5) Q. A. fügt noch hinzu she hath tickled me. 6) Die Quickly sagt missverständlich erection für direction; in Falstaff's Antwort ist dann erection = Bau, Aufführung eines Gebäudes, gefasst, und to build = bauen, im eigentlichen und uneigentlichen Sinne. 7) Ich muss ihr rasch Bescheid bringen, ob Ihr kommen wollt. 8) Und hattet Ihr guten Erfolg? — Malone liest dafür mit Q. A. And how sped you? 9) Dieses Fremdwort = gehörnter Hahnrei, hat Sh. nur hier; bei seinen Zeitgenossen findet sich auch das Verbum to cornute = zum Hahnrei machen. — Q. A. hat nur the jealous knave her husband. 10) Indem Frau Page darauf verfiel und Frau Ford in äusserster Bestürzung oder Verzweiflung war. — Für in der Fol. setzen manche Hgg. by mit Q. A. — Für distraction, das Q. A. und Fol. haben, wollte M. Mason lieber direction lesen. 11) Für by the Lord, das Q. A. hat, setzt die Fol. wegen der unter Jacob I. eingeführten Theatencensur bloss yes, und die zweite Folioausg. von 1632 yea. 12) Datchet-lane ist die Strasse, die von Windsor nach der Wiese am Themsenfer führt. Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 3, Anm. 1. 13) Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 3, Anm. 27. 14) Das Schicksal hielt Ford's Hand zurück, dass er den Wäschekorb nicht untersuchte, da es ihn einmal zum Hahnrei bestimmt hatte. 15) Q. A. hat I 'll tell you, Master Brook; by the Lord, for your sake I suffered three egregious deaths. — Q. A. führt dann als erste dieser Todesarten an, was die Fol. als die zweite hat, indem Q. A. den Wurf in die Themse als dritte Todesart aufzählt. 16) bell-wether geht wiederum auf die Hörner des Hahnrei. — rotten = schmutzig. — to be detected with für by ist Sh.'s Phraseologie, die with auch sonst so gebraucht. 17) bilbo = eine spanische Klinge, von der Stadt Bilboa so genannt, die in ihrer Elasticität sich so krümmen lässt, wie Falstaff zusammengekrümmt in einem Korbe von dem Umfang eines Viertelscheffelmasses lag. 18) Ein Mann, der den Einwirkungen der Hitze so leicht unterliegt, wie Butter. 19) Auf die Vorliebe der Niederländer für fette Speisen war schon hingedeutet A. 2, Sc. 2: I will rather trust a Fleming Ford. In good sadness,²⁰ Sir, I am sorry that for my sake you have suffered all this. My suit then is desperate; you 'll undertake her no more?

Fal. Master Brook, I will be thrown into Ætna, as I have been into Thames, ere I will leave her thus. Her husband is this morning gone a-birding: I have received from her another embassy of meeting; 'twixt eight and nine is the hour, Master Brook.

Ford. 'T is past eight already, Sir.

Fal. Is it? I will then address me²¹ to my appointment. Come to me at your convenient leisure, and you shall know how I speed, and the conclusion shall be crowned with your enjoying her: adieu. You shall have her, Master Brook; Master Brook, you shall cuckold Ford. [Exit.]

Ford. Hum: ha! is this a vision? is this a dream? do I sleep? Master Ford, awake! awake, Master Ford! there's a hole made in your best coat, Master Ford. This 't is to be married: this 't is to have linen, and buck-baskets. — Well, I will proclaim myself what I am:²² I will now take the lecher; he is at my house: he cannot scape me; 't is impossible he should: he cannot creep into a half-penny purse, nor into a pepper-box; but, lest the devil that guides him should aid him, I will search impossible places.²³ Though what I am I cannot avoid, yet to be what I would not, shall not make me tame: if I have horns to make one mad, let the proverb go with me, — I 'll be horn-mad.²⁴ [Exit.]

ACT IV.

SCENE I.

The Street.

Enter Mistress PAGE, Mistress QUICKLY, and WILLIAM.

Mrs. Page. Is he at Master Ford's already, think'st thou?

Quick. Sure, he is by this, or will be presently; but truly, he is very courageous¹ mad about his throwing into the water. Mistress Ford desires you to come suddenly.

Mrs. Page. I 'll be with her by and by: I 'll but bring my young man here to school. Look, where his master comes; 't is a playing-day, I see.

Enter Sir HUGH EVANS.

How now, Sir Hugh? no school to-day?

Eva. No; Master Slender is let the boys leave to play.

Quick. Blessing of his heart!

Mrs. Page. Sir Hugh, my husband says, my son profits nothing in the world at his book: I pray you, ask him some questions in his accidence.

Eva. Come hither, William; hold up your head; come.

Mrs. Page. Come on, sirrah; hold up your head; answer your master, be not afraid.

Eva. William, how many numbers is in nouns?

Will. Two.

Quick. Truly, I thought there had been one number more, because they say, Od's nouns.²

Eva. Peace your tattlings! — What is fair, William?

Will. Pulcher.

Quick. Polecats! there are fairer things than polecats, sure.

Eva. You are a very simplicity 'oman: I pray you, peace. — What is lapis, William?

Will. A stone.

Eva. And what is a stone, William?

Will. A pebble.

Eva. No, it is lapis: I pray you remember in your prain.

Will. Lapis.

Eva. That is good, William. What is he, William, that does lend articles?

Will. Articles are borrowed of the pronoun; and be thus declined, Singulariter, nominativo, hic, haec, hoc.

Eva. Nominativo, hig, hag, hog; — pray you, mark: genitivo, hujus. Well, what is your accusative case?

Will. Accusativo, hinc.

Eva. I pray you, have your remembrance, child: acusativo, hung, hang, hog.

Quick. Hang-hog is Latin for bacon,³ I warrant you.

Eva. Leave your prabbles, 'oman. — What is the fociative case, William?

Will. O — vocativo, O.

Eva. Remember, William; fociative is, caret.⁴

Quick. And that 's a good root.

Eva. 'Oman, forbear.

Mrs. Page. Peace!

Eva. What is your genitive case plural, William?

Will. Genitive case?

Eva. Ay.

Will. Genitive, — horum, harum, horum.

with my butter. 20) In vollem Ernste. 21) to address = rüsten, fertig machen. 22) Ich will mich selbst als Hahnrei bekannt machen; ich will die Sache offenbar machen. 23) impossible places = Stellen, die ihm unmöglich zum Versteck dienen können, undenkbare Versteckplätze. — In ähnlichem Sinne steht impossible conveyance in Much Ado about Nothing (A. 2, Sc. 1). 24) Dasselbe Wortspiel mit horn-mad = toll wie ein Hahnrei, und = toll mit den Hörnern, wie ein Stier, hat Sh. auch in Much Ado about Nothing (A. 1, Sc. 1) und in Comedy of Errors (A. 2, Sc. 1). — Für to make one mad liest Dyce to make me mad; indess liegt in dem one das me mit einbegriffen: Hörner, die Einen toll machen können.

1) courageous gebraucht die Quickly für outrageous, wie in Merchant of Venice (A. 2, Sc. 2) eben so irrthümlich the most courageous fiend steht. 2) Die Quickly verwechselt das Fluchwort Od's nouns für God's nouns = Gottes Namen, mit odd nouns = ungrade, mehr als zwei Nennwörter. — Die lateinische Grammatik, auf deren Details Sh. sich theilweise wörtlich in dieser Scene bezieht, heisst Lily's Accidence und wurde zuerst unter Heinrich VIII. in alle englischen Schulen eingeführt. Sh. kannte sie daher aus seiner eigenen Schulzeit. 3) Knight citirt dazu folgende Anekdote aus Lord Bacon's Apophthegms: Sir Nicholas Bacon being judge of the Northern Circuit, when he came to pass sentence upon the malefactors, was by one of them mightily importuned to save his life. When nothing he had said would avail, he at length desired his mercy on account of kindred. Prithee, said my lord, how came that in? Why, if it please you, my lord, your name is Bacon, and mine is Hog, and in all ages Hog and Bacon are so near kindred that they are not to be separated. Ay but, replied the judge, you and I cannot be kindred unless you be hanged: for Hog is not Bacon, till it be well hanged. 4) Diesen lateinischen Terminus = es fehlt, der auch in Love's Labour's

Quick. Vengeance of Jenny's case!⁵ fie on her! — Never name her, child, if she be a whore.

Eva. For shame, 'oman!

Quick. You do ill to teach the child such words. — He teaches him to hick and to hack,⁶ which they 'll do fast enough of themselves; and to call whorum, — fie upon you!

Eva. 'Oman, art thou lunatics? hast thou no understandings for thy cases, and the numbers of the genders? Thou art as foolish christian creatures as I would desires.

Mrs. Page. Pr'ythee, hold thy peace.

Eva. Show me now, William, some declensions of your pronouns.

Will. Forsooth, I have forgot.

Eva. It is qui, quae, quod; if you forget your quies, your *quæ*s, and your *quod*s, you must be preeches.⁷ Go your ways, and play; go.

Mrs. Page. He is a better scholar than I thought he was.

Eva. He is a good sprag⁸ memory. Farewell, Mistress Page.

Mrs. Page. Adieu, good Sir Hugh. [Exit Sir Hugh.] Get you home, boy. — Come, we stay too long.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

A Room in Ford's House.

Enter FALSTAFF and Mistress FORD.

Fal. Mistress Ford, your sorrow hath eaten up my sufferance. I see, you are obsequious¹ in your love, and I profess requital to a hair's breadth; not only, Mistress Ford, in the simple office of love, but in all the accoutrement, complement,² and ceremony of it. But are you sure of your husband now?

Mrs. Ford. He 's a-birding, sweet Sir John.

Mrs. Page. [Within.] What ho! gossip Ford! what ho!

Mrs. Ford. Step into the chamber, Sir John.

[Exit FALSTAFF.]

Enter Mistress PAGE.

Mrs. Page. How now, sweetheart? who 's at home besides yourself?

Mrs. Ford. Why, none but mine own people.

Mrs. Page. Indeed?

Mrs. Ford. No, certainly. — [Aside.] Speak louder.³

Mrs. Page. Truly, I am so glad you have nobody here.

Mrs. Ford. Why?

Mrs. Page. Why, woman, your husband is in his old lunes⁴ again: he so takes on⁵ yonder with my husband; so rails against all married mankind; so curses all Eve's daughters, of what complexion soever; and so buffets himself on the forehead, crying, »Peer out, peer out!«⁶ that any madness I ever yet beheld seemed but tameness, civility, and patience, to this his distemper he is in now. I am glad the fat knight is not here.

Mrs. Ford. Why, does he talk of him?

Mrs. Page. Of none but him; and swears, he was carried out, the last time he searched for him, in a basket: protests to my husband he is now here, and hath drawn him and the rest of their company from their sport,⁷ to make another experiment of his suspicion. But I am glad the knight is not here; now he shall see his own foolery.

Mrs. Ford. How near is he, Mistress Page?

Mrs. Page. Hard by; at street end: he will be here anon.

Mrs. Ford. I am undone! the knight is here.

Mrs. Page. Why, then you are utterly shamed, and he 's but a dead man.⁸ What a woman are you! — Away with him, away with him: better shame than murder.

Mrs. Ford. Which way should he go? how should I bestow him? Shall I put him into the basket again?

Re-enter FALSTAFF.

Fal. No, I 'll come no more i' the basket. May I not go out, ere he come?

Mrs. Page. Alas, three of Master Ford's brothers watch the door with pistols, that none shall issue out; otherwise you might slip away ere he came. But what make you here?

Fal. What shall I do? — I 'll creep up into the chimney.

Mrs. Ford. There they always use to discharge their birding-pieces.

Mrs. Page. Creep into the kiln-hole.⁹

Fal. Where is it?

Mrs. Ford. He will seek there, on my word. Neither press, coffer, chest, trunk, well, vault, but he hath an abstract for the remembrance of such places;¹⁰ and goes to them by his note: there is no hiding you in the house.

Fal. I 'll go out then.

Mrs. Page. If you go out in your own semblance, you die, Sir John. Unless you go out disguised,¹¹ —

Mrs. Ford. How might we disguise him?

Mrs. Page. Alas the day! I know not. There is no woman's gown big enough for him; otherwise he might put on a hat, a muffler, and a kerchief, and so escape.

Lost (A. 4, Sc. 2) vorkommt, verwechselt die Quickly mit dem englischen carrot. 5) genitive case klingt der Quickly wie Jenny's case, und horum wie whore. 6) Unter to hick and to hack, wie die Quickly das vorhergehende hig, hag, hog des Pfarrers ausspricht, soll, nach Steevens' Deutung, to do mischief gemeint sein; nach Blackstone's Meinung steht es für to stammer, or hesitate. 7) preeches für breeched. 8) sprag, ein Provinzialwort, das, wie Steevens sagt, noch in der Umgegend von Bath vorkommt, und = flink, munter, ist. Es wird eigentlich sprack geschrieben und lautet sprag nur nach Evans' Aussprache.

1) obsequious = treu ergeben bis zum Tode. 2) complement = Zubehör, Alles, was zur Vervollständigung einer Sache beiträgt. 3) Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 3, Anm. 18. 4) lunes verbesserte Theobald das lines der Fol. — Q. A. hat your husband is in his old vein again. 5) to take on = sich anstellen, sich geberden, nicht bloss = sich grämen. 6) Ford schlägt sich an die Stirn und fordert die Hörner des Hahnrei, die darin stecken, auf, herauszukommen. — Henley citirt dazu einen Kinderreim auf eine Schnecke, die sich in ihr Gehäuse verkriecht: Peer out, peer out, peer out of your hole, || Or else I'll beat you black as a coal. 7) d. h. von der Vogeljagd, zu der sie gegangen waren. 8) Falstaff ist so gut wie todt, wenn Ford ihn zu sehen bekommt. 9) Die Fol. theilt diese Worte noch der Frau Ford zu. Malone vermuthet mit Recht, dass sie der Frau Page gehören. 10) abstract ist dasselbe, was gleich nachher note heisst: ein kurzes Verzeichniss aller nur denkbaren Versteckplätze im Hause. 11) Die Fol. theilt diese Rede irrthümlich der Frau Ford zu, ebenso wie die folgende; und die zweite Folioausg. verbindet beide Reden zu einer, die sie auch der Frau Ford zuertheilt. Die richtige Anordnung

Fal. Good hearts, devise something: any extremity, rather than a mischief.

Mrs. Ford. My maid's aunt, the fat woman of Brentford,¹² has a gown above.

Mrs. Page. On my word, it will serve him; she's as big as he is, and there's her thrummed hat,¹³ and her muffler too. — Run up, Sir John.

Mrs. Ford. Go, go, sweet Sir John: Mistress Page and I will look some linen for your head.

Mrs. Page. Quick, quick: we'll come dress you straight; put on the gown the while. [Exit FALSTAFF.]

Mrs. Ford. I would, my husband would meet him in this shape: he cannot abide the old woman of Brentford; he swears, she's a witch; forbade her my house, and hath threatened to beat her.

Mrs. Page. Heaven guide him to thy husband's cudgel, and the devil guide his cudgel afterwards!

Mrs. Ford. But is my husband coming?

Mrs. Page. Ay, in good sadness, is he; and talks of the basket too, howsoever he hath had intelligence.

Mrs. Ford. We'll try that: for I'll appoint my men to carry the basket again, to meet him at the door with it, as they did last time.

Mrs. Page. Nay, but he'll be here presently: let's go dress him like the witch of Brentford.

Mrs. Ford. I'll first direct my men, what they shall do with the basket. Go up, I'll bring linen for him straight. [Exit.]

Mrs. Page. Hang him, dishonest varlet! we cannot misuse him¹⁴ enough.

We'll leave a proof, by that which we will do,

Wives may be merry, and yet honest too:

We do not act, that often jest and laugh;

'T is old but true, »Still swine eat all the draff.«¹⁵

[Exit.]

Re-enter Mistress FORD with Two Servants.

Mrs. Ford. Go, Sirs, take the basket again on your shoulders: your master is hard at door; if he bid you set it down, obey him. Quickly; despatch. [Exit.]

1. Serv. Come, come, take it up.

2. Serv. Pray heaven, it be not full of knight¹⁶ again.

1. Serv. I hope not; I had as lief bear¹⁷ so much lead.

Enter FORD, PAGE, SHALLOW, CAIUS, and Sir HUGH EVANS.

Ford. Ay, but if it prove true, Master Page, have you any way then to unfool me again?¹⁸ — Set down the basket, villains.¹⁹ — Somebody call my wife. — Youth in a basket!²⁰ — O you panderly rascals! there's a knot, a ging,²¹ a pack, a conspiracy against me: now shall the devil be shamed. — What, wife, I say! — Come, come forth.²² — Behold what honest clothes you send forth to bleaching.

Page. Why, this passes!²³ Master Ford, you are not to go loose any longer; you must be pinioned.

Eva. Why, this is lunatics; this is mad as a mad dog.

Shal. Indeed, Master Ford, this is not well; indeed.

Ford. So say I too, Sir.

Re-enter Mistress FORD.

Come hither, Mistress Ford; Mistress Ford, the honest woman, the modest wife, the virtuous creature, that hath the jealous fool to her husband! — I suspect without cause, mistress, do I?

Mrs. Ford. Heaven be my witness, you do, if you suspect me in any dishonesty.

Ford. Well said, brazen-face; hold it out.²⁴ — Come forth, sirrah. [Pulls the clothes out of the basket.]

Page. This passes!

Mrs. Ford. Are you not ashamed? let the clothes alone.

Ford. I shall find you anon.

Eva. 'T is unreasonable. Will you take up your wife's clothes?²⁵ Come away.

Ford. Empty the basket, I say.

Mrs. Ford. Why, man, why, —

Ford. Master Page, as I am a man, there was one conveyed out of my house yesterday in this basket: why may not he be there again? In my house I am sure he is: my intelligence is true; my jealousy is reasonable. — Pluck me out all the linen.

Mrs. Ford. If you find a man there, he shall die a flea's death.

Shal. By my fidelity, this is not well, Master Ford; this wrongs you.²⁶

Eva. Master Ford, you must pray, and not follow the imaginations of your own heart: this is jealousies.

Ford. Well, he's not here I seek for.

rührt von Malone her. 12) Q. A. hat my maid's aunt, Gillian of Brainford, in deutlicherer Anspielung auf eine bekannte Persönlichkeit, eine lustige Wirthin in Brentford, einem Städtchen zwischen Windsor und London, von deren Spässen ein eigenes Buch Jyl of Brentford's Testament, verfasst von Robert Copland, handelte. 13) thrummed hat = ein Hut, der aus grobem Abfall der Leinwand gemacht oder damit besetzt ist. — muffler = ein Tuch, das den unteren Theil des Gesichtes verhüllt. 14) him, das in der Fol. zufällig ausgefallen ist, ergänzt die Folioausg. von 1632. 15) Q. A. hat von diesen vier Versen drei, etwas modificirt und zwischen Frau Page und Frau Ford vertheilt, schon A. 3, Sc. 3. — act steht prägnant in bösem Sinne: wir, die wir viel scherzen und lachen, lassen uns nichts zu Schulden kommen. — Das Sprichwort Still swine eat all the draff entspricht unserm: Stille Wasser sind tief. 16) So die Fol., indem scherzhaft knight, wie etwa clothes, als der Inhalt des Korbes behandelt wird und ohne Artikel steht. — Manche Hgg. lesen mit der zweiten Folioausg. von 1632 of the knight. 17) So verbessert die zweite Folioausg. das I had lief as bear der ersten Fol. 18) Auf Page's Vorstellung, dass Ford's Eifersucht unmotivirt sein könnte, erwiedert dieser: Wenn sie aber begründet ist, wisst Ihr in Eurer überlegenen Weisheit ein Mittel, dass ich aufhöre, der Narr zu sein, zu dem meine Frau mich gemacht hat? 19) villains verbessert Dyce das villain der Fol., da Ford offenbar beide Träger des Korbes anredet, wie gleich nachher you panderly rascals. 20) Diese Worte scheinen, wie Halliwell bemerkt, sprichwörtlich gewesen zu sein. — Malone liest mit Q. A. You, youth in a basket, come out here! 21) ging = Bande, liest die zweite Folioausg. für gin der Fol. 22) Knight bemerkt mit Recht, dass die Worte Come, come forth, welche die Interpunction der meisten Hgg. mit dem Vorhergehenden und mit dem Folgenden verbindet, an den vermeintlich im Korbe steckenden Falstaff, nicht an die Frau Ford gerichtet sind. 23) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 48. 24) Führe Deine Tugendrolle nur so durch. 25) Dieselbe Zweideutigkeit findet sich in Taming of the Shrew (A. 4, Sc. 3) Take up my mistress' gown for thy master's use! — Die folgenden Worte der Frau Ford werden auch als Frage

Page. No, nor nowhere else, but in your brain.

Ford. Help to search my house this one time: if I find not what I seek, show no colour for my extremity; ²⁷ let me for ever be your table-sport; let them say of me, »As jealous as Ford, that searched a hollow walnut for his wife's leman.« ²⁸ Satisfy me once more; once more search with me.

Mrs. Ford. What ho! Mistress Page! come you and the old woman down; my husband will come into the chamber.

Ford. Old woman! What old woman's that?

Mrs. Ford. Why, it is my maid's aunt of Brentford. ²⁹

Ford. A witch, a quean, an old cozening quean! Have I not forbid her my house? She comes of errands, does she? We are simple men; we do not know what's brought to pass under the profession of fortune-telling. She works by charms, by spells, by the figure, and such daubery ³⁰ as this is, beyond our element: we know nothing. — Come down, you witch, you hag you; come down, I say.

Mrs. Ford. Nay, good, sweet husband. — Good gentlemen, let him not ³¹ strike the old woman.

Re-enter FALSTAFF in woman's clothes, led by Mistress PAGE.

Mrs. Page. Come, mother Prat; come, give me your hand.

Ford. I'll prat her. — Out of my door, you witch, [beats him] you hag, you baggage, you polecat, you ronyon: ³² out! out! I'll conjure you, I'll fortune-tell you. [Exit FALSTAFF.]

Mrs. Page. Are you not ashamed? I think, you have killed the poor woman.

Mrs. Ford. Nay, he will do it. — 'T is a goodly credit for you.

Ford. Hang her, witch!

Eva. By yea and no, I think, the 'oman is a witch indeed: I like not when a 'oman has a great peard; I spy a great peard under her muffler. ³³

Ford. Will you follow, gentlemen? I beseech you, follow: see but the issue of my jealousy. If I cry out thus upon no trail, never trust me when I open again. ³⁴

Mrs. Page. Trust me, he beat him most pitifully.

Mrs. Ford. Nay, by the mass, that he did not; he beat him most unpitifully, methought.

Mrs. Page. I'll have the cudgel hallowed, and hung o'er the altar: it hath done meritorious service.

Mrs. Ford. What think you? May we, with the warrant of womanhood, and the witness of a good conscience, pursue him with any further revenge?

Mrs. Page. The spirit of wantonness is, sure, scared out of him: if the devil have him not in fee-simple, with fine and recovery, ³⁵ he will never, I think, in the way of waste, attempt us again.

Mrs. Ford. Shall we tell our husbands how we have served him?

Mrs. Page. Yes, by all means; if it be but to scrape the figures ³⁶ out of your husband's brains. If they can find in their hearts the poor unvirtuous fat knight shall be any further afflicted, we two will still be the ministers.

Mrs. Ford. I'll warrant, they'll have him publicly shamed, and, methinks, there would be no period to the jest, should he not be publicly shamed. ³⁷

Mrs. Page. Come, to the forge with it then; shape it: I would not have things cool. ³⁸ [Exit.]

SCENE III.

A Room in the Garter Inn.

Enter Host and BARDOLPH.

Bard. Sir, the Germans desire ¹ to have three of your horses: the duke himself will be to-morrow at court, and they are going to meet him.

Host. What duke should that be, comes so secretly? I hear not of him in the court. ² Let me speak with the gentlemen; they speak English?

Bard. Ay, Sir; I'll call them ³ to you.

Host. They shall have my horses, but I'll make them pay; I'll sauce them: they have had my house a week at command; I have turned away my other guests: they must come off; ⁴ I'll sauce them. Come. [Exit.]

SCENE IV.

A Room in FORD'S House.

Enter PAGE, FORD, Mistress PAGE, Mistress FORD, and Sir HUGH EVANS.

Eva. 'T is one of the pest discretions of a 'oman as ever I did look upon.

interpungirt: Why, man, why? 26) Ihr thut Euch selbst zu nahe damit. 27) So sollt Ihr mein tolles Treiben nicht beschönigen, keinen Grund dafür angeben. 28) leman = Buhle, Galan. 29) Auch hier hat Q. A. Gillian of Brainford. — Auf die Zauberkünste dieser Person spielt auch eine Stelle in Webster's Westward Ho an: I doubt that old hag, Gillian of Brentford, has bewitched me. — Vgl. oben Anm. 12. 30) daubery = Gaukelei, eigentlich = Uebertünchung. — figure = Zahlenberechnung, Horoskop. 31) not, das in der Fol. zufällig ausgefallen ist, ergänzt die zweite Folioausg. 32) ronyon = Vettel. Sh. hat das Wort als Schimpfwort auch in Macbeth (A. 1, Sc. 3). 33) So Q. A.; die Fol. hat under his muffler. — Der Bart bei einem Weibe bezeugte die Hexe. 34) Das Bild ist von einem Jagdhund, der auf falscher oder gar keiner Fährte anschlägt. — to cry out und to open sind technische Ausdrücke. 35) Diese juristischen Ausdrücke besagen: wenn Falstaff nicht dem Teufel als ein Besitzthum ohne alle Einschränkung und Verkläusulirung des Eigenthumsrechts verfallen ist, so wird er uns nie wieder in Versuchung führen, um uns zu verderben. 36) figures = Einbildungen, Gebilde. So in Julius Caesar (A. 2, Sc. 1) Thou hast no figures, nor no fantasies, Which busy care draws in the brains of men. 37) Der Spass, den wir mit Falstaff getrieben, würde nicht zum Abschluss gelangen, wenn er nicht öffentlich blamirt würde. 38) Das Bild ist von einem Eisen gebraucht, das geschmiedet werden muss, so lange es heiss ist, und nicht abkühlen darf. — cool ist Verbum Neutrum.

1) Die Fol. hat the German desires, obgleich nachher they are going steht. 2) Der Wirth hat nicht gehört, dass am Hofe zu Windsor irgend ein Herzog erwartet werde. 3) him in der Fol., them in Q. A. — Ebenso hat Q. A. das Richtige in der folgenden Rede des Wirthes, da sie house für houses der Fol. liest. 4) to come off = sich abfinden durch Bezahlung, seine Zeche oder Schuld berichtigen.

Page. And did he send you both these letters at an instant?

Mrs. Page. Within a quarter of an hour.

Ford. Pardon me, wife. Henceforth do what thou wilt; I rather will suspect the sun with cold¹ Than thee with wantonness: now doth thy honour stand, In him that was of late an heretic, As firm as faith.

Page. 'T is well, 't is well; no more. Be not as extreme in submission As in offence;²

But let our plot go forward: let our wives Yet once again, to make us public sport, Appoint a meeting with this old fat fellow; Where we may take him, and disgrace him for it.

Ford. There is no better way than that they spoke of.

Page. How? to send him word they 'll meet him in the park at midnight? Fie, fie! he 'll never come.

Eva. You say, he has been thrown in the rivers, and has been grievously peaten, as an old 'oman: methinks, there should be terrors in him, that he should not come; methinks, his flesh is punished, he shall have no desires.

Page. So think I too.

Mrs. Ford. Devise but how you 'll use him when he comes,

And let us two devise to bring him thither.

Mrs. Page. There is an old tale goes, that Herne the hunter,

Sometime a keeper here in Windsor forest, Doth all the winter-time, at still midnight, Walk round about an oak, with great ragg'd horns; And there he blasts the tree,³ and takes⁴ the cattle; And makes milch-kine yield blood, and shakes a chain In a most hideous and dreadful manner: You have heard of such a spirit; and well you know, The superstitious idle-headed eld⁵ Received, and did deliver to our age, This tale of Herne the hunter for a truth.

Page. Why, yet there want not many, that do fear In deep of night to walk by this Herne's oak. But what of this?

Mrs. Ford. Marry, this is our device; That Falstaff at that oak shall meet with us, Disguis'd like Herne, with huge horns on his head.⁶

Page. Well, let it not be doubted but he 'll come: And in this shape when you have brought him thither,⁷ What shall be done with him? what is your plot?

Mrs. Page. That likewise have we thought upon, and thus:

Nan Page my daughter, and my little son, And three or four more of their growth, we 'll dress Like urchins, ouphes,⁸ and fairies, green and white, With rounds of waxen tapers on their heads, And rattles in their hands. Upon a sudden, As Falstaff, she, and I, are newly met, Let them from forth a sawpit rush at once With some diffused⁹ song: upon their sight, We two in great amazedness will fly: Then let them all encircle him about, And, fairy-like, to pinch¹⁰ the unclean knight; And ask him, why, that hour of fairy revel, In their so sacred paths he dares to tread, In shape profane.

Mrs. Ford. And till he tell the truth, Let the supposed fairies pinch him sound,¹¹ And burn him with their tapers.

Mrs. Page. The truth being known, We 'll all present ourselves, dis-horn the spirit,¹² And mock him home to Windsor.

Ford. The children must Be practised well to this, or they 'll ne'er do 't.

Eva. I will teach the children their behaviours; I will be like a jack-an-apes also, to burn the knight with my taber.

Ford. That will be excellent. I 'll go buy them vizards.

Mrs. Page. My Nan shall be the queen of all the fairies,

Finely attired in a robe of white.

Page. That silk will I go buy; — [aside] and in that tire¹³

Shall Master Slender steal my Nan away, And marry her at Eton. — Go send to Falstaff straight.

Ford. Nay, I 'll to him again in name of Brook; He 'll tell me all his purpose. Sure, he 'll come.

Mrs. Page. Fear not you that. Go, get us properties, And tricking¹⁴ for our fairies.

Eva. Let us about it: it is admirable pleasures, and fery honest knaveries. [Exeunt PAGE, FORD, and EVANS.]

Mrs. Page. Go, Mistress Ford, Send Quickly to Sir John, to know his mind.

[Exit Mrs. FORD.]

I 'll to the doctor: he hath my good will, And none but he, to marry with Nan Page. That Slender, though well landed, is an idiot;

1) cold ist Rowe's Emendation für gold der Fol. — Malone citirt passend dazu aus einem Buche, das Sh. bekannt sein musste, Westward for Smelts: I answere in the behalfe of one, who is as free from disloyaltie, as is the sunne from darkness or the fire from cold. 2) Geht jetzt nicht zu weit in den Bethuerungen Eurer Ergebenheit, wie Ihr vorher zu weit in Euren Kränkungen ginget. 3) Für tree, das hier collectiv steht, nicht in Bezug auf das vorhergehende an oak, wollte Hanmer trees lesen. 4) to take = mit Seuchen treffen. So in Hamlet (A. 1, Sc. 1) then no planets strike, no fairy takes. 5) eld collectiv = alte Leute. So in Lodge's Wounds of Civil War: peevish eld discoursing by a fire. — idle-headed = faselnd vor Altersschwäche. 6) Diese Zeile, die in der Fol. fehlt, entlehnt Malone aus Q. A., nur dass dort überall der Name des gespenstischen Jägers Horne statt Herne lautet. — Theobald hatte aus Q. A. sogar zwei Zeilen entlehnt: We 'll send him word to meet us in the field, || Disguis'd like Herne, with huge horns on his head. 7) So interpungirt Dyce diese beiden Verse. Die gewöhnliche Interpunction ist: Well, let it not be doubted but he 'll come, || And in this shape: when you have brought him thither, etc. 8) ouphe = Alf, Kobold. 9) diffused = wirr durcheinander, unverständlich. 10) to to-pinch = zerkneipen. — Dieses to, unserm zer- entsprechend, findet sich in vorshakspere'scher Zeit mit vielen Verben verbunden. 11) sound für soundly = tüchtig. — Diese Rede theilt die Fol. irrthümlich dem Ford zu. 12) d. h. dem als Herne und Gespenst verkleideten Falstaff seine Hörner abnehmen. 13) tire, hinweisend auf das vorhergehende Finely attired in a robe of white, worauf sich auch that silk bezieht, ist Theobald's Emendation für time der Fol. — Die Q. A. hat an der entsprechenden Stelle in that mask. 14) properties = Theaterrequisiten, hier was für die Feenmaskerade nöthig ist. — tricking =

And he¹⁵ my husband best of all affects:
The doctor is well money'd, and his friends
Potent at court: he, none but he, shall have her,
Though twenty thousand worthier come to crave her.

[Exit.]

SCENE V.

A Room in the Garter Inn.

Enter Host and SIMPLE.

Host. What wouldst thou have, boor? what, thick-skin?¹ speak, breathe, discuss; brief, short, quick, snap.

Sim. Marry, Sir, I come to speak with Sir John Falstaff from Master Slender.

Host. There 's his chamber, his house, his castle, his standing-bed, and truckle-bed:² 't is painted about with the story of the Prodigal,³ fresh and new. Go, knock and call: he 'll speak like an Anthropophaginian⁴ unto thee: knock, I say.

Sim. There 's an old woman, a fat woman, gone up into his chamber: I 'll be so bold as stay, Sir, till she come down; I come to speak with her, indeed.

Host. Ha! a fat woman? the knight may be robbed: I 'll call. — Bully knight! Bully Sir John! speak from thy lungs military: art thou there? it is thine host, thine Ephesian,⁵ calls.

Fal. [Above.] How now, mine host!

Host. Here 's a Bohemian-Tartar⁶ tarries the coming down of thy fat woman. Let her descend, bully, let her descend; my chambers are honourable: fie! privacy? fie!

Enter FALSTAFF.

Fal. There was, mine host, an old fat woman even now with me, but she 's gone.

Sim. Pray you, Sir, was 't not the wise woman⁷ of Brentford?

Fal. Ay, marry, was it, muscle-shell:⁸ what would you with her?

Sim. My master, Sir, Master Slender, sent to her, seeing her go through the streets, to know, Sir, whether one Nym, Sir, that beguiled him of a chain, had the chain, or no.

Fal. I spake with the old woman about it.

Sim. And what says she, I pray, Sir?

Fal. Marry, she says, that the very same man, that beguiled Master Slender of his chain, cozened him of it.

Sim. I would, I could have spoken with the woman herself: I had other things to have spoken with her too, from him.

Fal. What are they? let us know.

Host. Ay, come; quick.

Sim. I may not conceal them, Sir.⁹

Host. Conceal them, or thou diest.

Sim. Why, Sir, they were nothing but about Mistress Anne Page; to know, if it were my master's fortune to have her, or no.

Fal. 'T is, 't is his fortune.

Sim. What, Sir?

Fal. To have her, — or no. Go; say, the woman told me so.

Sim. May I be bold to say so, Sir?

Fal. Ay, Sir: like who more bold.¹⁰

Sim. I thank your worship. I shall make my master glad with these tidings. [Exit.]

Host. Thou art clerkly, thou art clerkly,¹¹ Sir John. Was there a wise woman with thee?

Fal. Ay, that there was, mine host; one, that hath taught me more wit than ever I learned before in my life: and I paid nothing for it neither, but was paid for my learning.¹²

Enter BARDOLPH.

Bard. Out, alas, Sir! cozenage; mere cozenage!

Host. Where be my horses? speak well of them, varletto.¹³

Bard. Run away with the cozeners; for so soon as I came beyond Eton, they threw me off from behind one of them in a slough of mire; and set spurs, and away, like three German devils, three Doctor Faustuses.¹⁴

Host. They are gone but to meet the duke, villain. Do not say, they be fled: Germans are honest men.

Enter Sir HUGH EVANS.

Eva. Where is mine host?

Ausstaffirung, Putz. 15) he nachdrücklich für him. So stand A. 3, Sc. 2: There is such a league between my good man and he!

1) thick-skin = ein Mensch von beschränktem Geist. — Steevens citirt dazu aus Holland's Uebersetzung des Plinius: men also, who are thicke-skinned, be more grosse of sence and understanding. — Sh. hat dasselbe Wort in Midsummer-Night's Dream (A. 3, Sc. 2). 2) truckle-bed ist das niedrige Feldbett, das, wenn es gebraucht werden sollte, unter dem grossen Bette (standing-bed) hervorgezogen wurde. — Q. A. hat trundle-bed für truckle-bed. 3) Die Geschichte vom verlorenen Sohne, auf eine Wandtapete gemalt, wird auch in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 2, Sc. 1) erwähnt: for thy walls, a pretty slight drollery, or the story of the Prodigal, is worth a thousand of these bedhangings. 4) Anthropophaginian, ein von dem Wirthe selbst gebildetes Wort aus dem einfachen Anthropophagi, das in Othello (A. 1, Sc. 3) sich findet. 5) Ephesian, wie es scheint, scherzhafte Bezeichnung eines lustigen Cumpans. — Sh. hat das Wort in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 2, Sc. 2), wo der Page auf die Frage des Prinzen nach Falstaff's Gesellschaft erwiedert Ephesians, my lord, of the old church. 6) Bohemian-Tartar, eine vom Wirthe gebildete Zusammensetzung = Zigeuner-Vagabund, um damit scherzhaft den Simple zu bezeichnen. 7) wise woman = Wahrsagerin, kluge Frau. 8) muscle-shell nennt Falstaff den Simple, nach Johnson's Erklärung, weil derselbe mit offenem Munde dasteht. 9) Simple sagt irrthümlich conceal für reveal, und der Wirth gebraucht scherzhaft das Wort dann auch in Simple's Sinne. — Simple's Worte legt die Fol. dem Falstaff bei, was Rowe zuerst verbesserte. 10) So die Fol., deren Lesart Dyce ganz richtig erklärt: Ay, Sir; like the boldest. — Die meisten Hgg. lesen dafür Ay, Sir Tike; who more bold? weil Q. A. hat I tike, who more bolde. 11) Du weisst so gut zu antworten und zu rathen, wie ein Gelehrter. 12) to pay doppelsinnig = bezahlen, und = abstrafen, prügeln. — Falstaff spielt auf die Schläge an, die er in dem Costüm der alten Frau in Ford's Hause empfing. 13) Der Wirth in seiner Sucht, Fremdwörter und seltsame Ausdrücke zu gebrauchen, macht varletto aus dem englischen varlet. 14) Sh.'s Publicum kannte aus dem Theater und aus populären Märchenbüchern die Sage von dem deutschen Doctor Faust, der mit dem Dämon Mephistopheles durch die Luft davon fuhr.

Host. What is the matter, Sir?

Eva. Have a care of your entertainments: ¹⁵ there is a friend of mine come to town, tells me, there is three cousin-germans, ¹⁶ that has cozened all the hosts of Readings, of Maidenhead, of Colebrook, of horses and money. I tell you for good will, look you: you are wise, and full of gibes and vlouting-stogs, ¹⁷ and 't is not convenient you should be cozened. Fare you well. [Exit.]

Enter Doctor Caius.

Caius. Vere is mine host de Jartiere?

Host. Here, master doctor, in perplexity, and doubtful dilemma.

Caius. I cannot tell vat is dat; but it is tell-a me, dat you make grand preparation for a duke de Jarmany: by my trot, dere is no duke, dat de court is know to come. I tell you for good vill: adieu. [Exit.]

Host. Hue and cry, villain! go. — Assist me, knight; I am undone. — Fly, run, hue and cry, villain! I am undone! [Exeunt Host and Bardolph.]

Fal. I would all the world might be cozened, for I have been cozened, and beaten too. If it should come to the ear of the court how I have been transformed, and how my transformation hath been washed and cudgelled, they would melt me out of my fat, drop by drop, and liquor fishermen's boots with me: I warrant, they would whip me with their fine wits, till I were as crest-fallen as a dried pear. I never prospered since I forswore myself at primero. ¹⁸ Well, if my wind were but long enough to say my prayers, ¹⁹ I would repent.

Enter Mistress Quickly.

Now, whence come you?

Quick. From the two parties, forsooth.

Fal. The devil take one party, and his dam the other, and so they shall be both bestowed. I have suffered more for their sakes, more than the villanous inconstancy of man's disposition is able to bear.

Quick. And have not they suffered? Yes, I warrant; speciously ²⁰ one of them: Mistress Ford, good heart, is beaten black and blue, that you cannot see a white spot about her.

Fal. What tell'st thou me of black and blue? I was beaten myself into all the colours of the rainbow; and I was like to be apprehended for the witch of Brentford: but that my admirable dexterity of wit, my counterfeiting the action of an old woman, deliver'd me, ²¹ the knave constable had set me i' the stocks, i' the common stocks, for a witch.

Quick. Sir, let me speak with you in your chamber; you shall hear how things go, and, I warrant, to your content. Here is a letter will say somewhat. Good hearts! what ado here is to bring you together! Sure, one of you does not serve heaven well, that you are so crossed.

Fal. Come up into my chamber. [Exeunt.]

SCENE VI.

Another Room in the Garter Inn.

Enter FENTON and Host.

Host. Master Fenton, talk not to me: my mind is heavy; I will give over all.

Fent. Yet hear me speak. Assist me in my purpose, And, as I am a gentleman, I'll give thee A hundred pound in gold more than your loss.

Host. I will hear you, Master Fenton; and I will, at the least, keep your counsel.

Fent. From time to time I have acquainted you With the dear love I bear to fair Anne Page; Who, mutually, hath answer'd my affection, So far forth as herself might be her chooser, ¹ Even to my wish. I have a letter from her Of such contents as you will wonder at; The mirth whereof so larded with my matter, That neither singly can be manifested. Without the show of both; ² — wherein ³ fat Falstaff Hath a great scene: the image of the jest I'll show you here at large. ⁴ Hark, good mine host: To-night at Herne's oak, just 'twixt twelve and one, Must my sweet Nan present the fairy queen; The purpose why, is here; in which disguise, While other jests ⁵ are something rank on foot, Her father hath commanded her to slip Away with Slender, and with him at Eton Immediately to marry: she hath consented.

Letzterer ist unter dem German devil verstanden. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 23. ¹⁵) Evans meint die Gäste, die der Wirth bei sich aufnimmt. ¹⁶) Er sagt cousin-germans = leibliche Vettern, für cozening Germans = betrügerische Deutsche. — Das Wortspiel mit cousin und cozen hat Sh. auch in K. Richard III. (A. 4, Sc. 4). ¹⁷) Q. A. fügt noch hinzu and can point wrong places, in deutlicherer Hinweisung auf die Art, wie der Wirth das Duell zwischen Evans und dem Doctor Caius vereitelt hatte. — vlouting-stog d. h. flouting-stock = Gegenstand oder Zielscheibe des Gespöttes, das Evans A. 3, Sc. 1 im richtigen Sinne gebraucht hatte, sagt er hier = Spöttelei. ¹⁸) primero = ein Kartenspiel, das auch in K. Henry VIII. (A. 5, Sc. 1) erwähnt wird, und folgendermassen in Greene's Tu Quoque: Primero! Why, I thought thou hadst not been so much gamester as to play at it. — In Minsheu's Dictionary wird es so erklärt: Primero and primavista, two games at cards. Primum et primum visum, that is, first, and first seen, because he that can show such an order of cards, wins the game. ¹⁹) to say my prayers fehlt in der Fol., wahrscheinlich als profan von der Theaterzensur gestrichen, und ist von Pope aus Q. A. ergänzt. ²⁰) Auch hier hat Q. A. specially. Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 4, Anm. 12. ²¹) Indem Falstaff in der Gefahr schwebte, als Hexe verhaftet zu werden, machte er so geschickt die Haltung eines harmlosen alten Weibes nach, dass man ihn als unverdächtig frei liess.

1) So weit wenigstens, wie sie selbst ihre Wahl treffen durfte. 2) Der Spass davon, d. h. die beabsichtigte Feenmaskerade, ist so innig mit meiner Angelegenheit, d. h. mit meiner Liebschaft, verknüpft, dass keins von Beiden einzeln zum Vorschein kommen kann, sondern Beides zugleich sich zeigen muss. 3) wherein, das in der Fol. fehlt, ergänzt Malone aus Q. A., wo der Vers lautet Wherein fat Falstaff had a mighty scare. — Die zweite Folioausg. vervollständigt den Vers der ersten Fol.: Without the show of both; — fat sir John Falstaff. 4) Manche Hgg. fügen hier die Bühnenweisung ein Showing the letter. — Indess lässt sich I'll show you here at large auf die folgende mündliche Auseinandersetzung beziehen. — Bei dem folgenden the purpose why, is here deutet Fenton allerdings auf den von Anne Page erhaltenen Brief hin, ohne ihn jedoch dem Wirth zum Lesen

Now, Sir,
Her mother, even⁶ strong against that match,
And firm for doctor Caius, hath appointed
That he shall likewise shuffle her away,
While other sports are tasking of their minds,
And at the deanery, where a priest attends,
Straight marry her: to this her mother's plot
She, seemingly obedient,⁷ likewise hath
Made promise to the doctor. — Now, thus it rests:
Her father means she shall be all in white;
And in that habit, when Slender sees his time
To take her by the hand, and bid her go.
She shall go with him: — her mother hath intended,
The better to denote⁸ her to the doctor,
(For they must all be mask'd and vizarded)
That quaint in green⁹ she shall be loose enrob'd,
With ribands pendent, flaring 'bout her head;
And when the doctor spies his vantage ripe,
To pinch her by the hand; and on that token
The maid hath given consent to go with him.

Host. Which means she to deceive? father or mother?

Fent. Both, my good host, to go along with me:
And here it rests,¹⁰ — that you 'll procure the vicar
To stay for me at church 'twixt twelve and one,
And, in the lawful name of marrying,
To give our hearts united ceremony.¹¹

Host. Well, husband your device: I 'll to the vicar.
Bring you the maid, you shall not lack a priest.

Fent. So shall I evermore be bound to thee;
Besides, I 'll make a present recompense. [Exeunt.]

ACT V.

SCENE I.

A Room in the Garter Inn.

Enter FALSTAFF and Mistress QUICKLY.

Fal. Pr'ythee, no more prattling; — go: — I 'll hold.¹
This is the third time; I hope, good luck lies in odd numbers.² Away, go. They say, there is divinity³ in odd numbers, either in nativity, chance, or death. — Away.

Quick. I 'll provide you a chain, and I 'll do what I can to get you a pair of horns.

Fal. Away, I say; time wears: hold up your head, and mince.⁴ [Exit Mrs. QUICKLY.]

Enter FORD.

How now, Master Brook? Master Brook, the matter will be known⁵ to-night, or never. Be you in the park about midnight, at Herne's oak, and you shall see wonders.

Ford. Went you not to her yesterday, Sir, as you told me you had appointed?

Fal. I went to her, Master Brook, as you see, like a poor old man; but I came from her, Master Brook, like a poor old woman. That same knave Ford, her husband, hath the finest mad devil of jealousy in him, Master Brook, that ever governed frenzy. I will tell you: — he beat me grievously, in the shape of a woman; for in the shape of man, Master Brook, I fear not Goliath with a weaver's beam, because I know also, life is a shuttle.⁶ I am in haste: go along with me; I 'll tell you all, Master Brook. Since I plucked geese,⁷ played truant, and whipped top, I knew not what it was to be beaten, till lately.
Follow me: I 'll tell you strange things of this knave Ford, on whom to-night I will be revenged, and I will deliver his wife into your hand. — Follow. Strange things in hand, Master Brook: follow. [Exeunt.]⁸

SCENE II.

Windsor Park.

Enter PAGE, SHALLOW, and SLENDER.

Page. Come, come: we 'll couch i' the castle-ditch, till we see the light of our fairies. — Remember, son Slender, my daughter.¹

Slen. Ay, forsooth; I have spoke with her, and we have a nayword,² how to know one another. I come to her in white,³ and cry, »mum;« she cries, »budget;«⁴ and by that we know one another.

Shal. That's good too: but what needs either your »mum«, or her »budget«? the white will decipher her well enough. — It hath struck ten o'clock.

Page. The night is dark; light and spirits will become it well.⁵ Heaven prosper our sport! No man means evil but the devil, and we shall know him by his horns.⁶
Let's away; follow me. [Exeunt.]

zu überreichen. 5) other jests, wie weiterhin other sports, sind die Spässe, welche die verkleideten Feen mit Falstaff anstellen wollen, und welche die Aufmerksamkeit der Uebrigen von Anne Page ablenken werden. 6) even strong ist mit and firm zu verbinden: ihre Mutter ist gleichmässig gegen diese Partie eingenommen und fest auf der Seite des Doctor Caius. — Manche Hgg. ändern ever für even. — Q. A. hat Now her mother still against the match || And firm for Doctor Caius. 7) obedient ist mit to this plot zu verbinden. 8) denote las Steevens für devote (deuote in der Fol.) der früheren Ausgg. 9) Steevens erklärt: fantastically drest in green. — Indess geht quaint in adverbialen Sinne wohl auf das Ganze und in green ist mit loose enrob'd zu verbinden: sie soll hübsch oder artig in ein loses grünes Gewand gekleidet werden. 10) Und darauf kommt es noch an. 11) united ceremony ist mit Sh.'scher Lizenz des Gebrauchs der Adjectiva und Participia gesagt: unseren Herzen die Form geben, welche sie verbindet. — Q. A. hat To give our hearts united matrimony.

1) Ich will festhalten, beharren in meinem Entschlusse und kommen. 2) Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 1, Anm. 2. — Der Ausdruck ist sprichwörtlich. 3) divinity = göttliche Fügung. 4) to mince = zierlich thun, zierlich gehen. 5) Es wird diese Nacht Etwas aus der Sache werden, oder niemals. 6) Eine Anspielung auf eine Stelle im Buche Hiob (Cap. 7, V. 6) my days are swifter than a weaver's shuttle. — Falstaff stellt weaver's beam und weaver's shuttle zusammen. 7) Falstaff spricht von seinen Jugendjahren, da er in knabenhaftem Muthwillen lebendigen Gänsen die Federn ansrupfte. Auf dieselbe Zeit bezieht sich das Hinter-die-Schule-laufen und das Kreisel-schlagen. 8) Diese Scene sowie die drei folgenden fehlen in der Q. A.

1) daughter, das in der Fol. zufällig ausgelassen ist, ergänzt die zweite Folioausg. von 1632. 2) Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 2, Anm. 21. 3) Ich komme zu Der, die in Weiss gekleidet ist. 4) mum sowohl wie mumbudget, ist = still! leise! eine Aufforderung zum Stillschweigen oder Leisereden. 5) Die Lichter, welche die verkleideten Geister tragen, und die Geister selbst werden zu einer so dunklen Nacht gut passen. 6) Eine Anspielung auf den mit Hörnern als Jäger Herne ausgestatteten Falstaff.

SCENE III.

The Street in Windsor.

Enter Mistress PAGE, Mistress FORD, and Doctor CAIUS.

Mrs. Page. Master Doctor, my daughter is in green: when you see your time, take her by the hand, away with her to the deanery, and dispatch it quickly. Go before into the park: we two must go together.

Caius. I know vat I have to do. Adieu.

Mrs. Page. Fare you well, Sir. [Exit CAIUS.] My husband will not rejoice so much at the abuse of Falstaff, as he will chafe at the doctor's marrying my daughter: but 't is no matter; better a little chiding, than a great deal of heart-break.

Mrs. Ford. Where is Nan now, and her troop of fairies? and the Welch devil, Hugh?¹

Mrs. Page. They are all couched in a pit² hard by Herne's oak, with obscured lights; which, at the very instant of Falstaff's and our meeting, they will at once display to the night.

Mrs. Ford. That cannot choose but amaze him.

Mrs. Page. If he be not amazed, he will be mocked; if he be amazed, he will every way be mocked.

Mrs. Ford. We 'll betray him finely.

Mrs. Page. Against such lewdsters, and their lechery, Those that betray them do no treachery.

Mrs. Ford. The hour draws on: to the oak, to the oak!
[Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.

Windsor Park.

Enter Sir HUGH EVANS, and Fairies.

Eva. Trib, trib, fairies: come; and remember your parts. Be pold, I pray you; follow me into the pit, and when I give the watch-ords, do as I bid you. Come, come; trib, trib.
[Exeunt.]

SCENE V.

Another Part of the Park.

Enter FALSTAFF disguised, with a buck's head on.

Fal. The Windsor bell hath struck twelve; the minute draws on. Now, the hot-blooded gods assist me! — Remember, Jove, thou wast a bull for thy Europa; love set on thy horns. — O powerful love! that, in some respects, makes a beast a man; in some other, a man a beast. — You were also, Jupiter, a swan, for the love of Leda; — O, omnipotent love! how near the god drew to the complexion of a goose! — A fault done first in the form of a beast;¹ — O Jove, a beastly fault! and then another fault in the semblance of a fowl: think on 't, Jove; a foul² fault. — When gods have hot backs, what shall poor men do?³ For me, I am here a Windsor stag; and the fattest, I think, i' the forest: send me a cool rut-time, Jove, or who can blame me to piss my tallow?⁴ Who comes here? my doe?

Enter Mistress FORD and Mistress PAGE.

Mrs. Ford. Sir John? art thou there, my deer?⁵ my male deer?

Fal. My doe with the black scut? — Let the sky rain potatoes;⁶ let it thunder to the tune of »Green Sleeves«;⁷ hail kissing-comfits,⁸ and snow eringoes; let there come a tempest of provocation,⁹ I will shelter me here.

[Embracing her.]

Mrs. Ford. Mistress Page is come with me, sweetheart.

Fal. Divide me like a bribed buck,¹⁰ each a haunch: I will keep my sides to myself, my shoulders for the fellow of this walk,¹¹ and my horns I bequeath your husbands. Am I a woodman?¹² ha! Speak I like Herne the hunter? — Why, now is Cupid a child of conscience; he makes restitution. As I am a true spirit,¹³ welcome.

[Noise within.]

Mrs. Page. Alas! what noise?

Mrs. Ford. Heaven forgive our sins!

1) Hugh setzt Capell für Herne der Fol. — Wahrscheinlich stand im Manuscripte der Name mit H abbreivirt. — Der welsche Pfarrer sollte in der Maskerade im Costüm eines Teufels, Satyrs oder Kobolds erscheinen, weshalb er nachher auch fairy Hugh angeredet wird. 2) Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 4, wo Frau Page sagt Let them from forth a sawpit rush at once.

1) Jupiter, indem er nach einander die Europa und dann die Leda liebte, verging sich zuerst in Gestalt eines Thieres, dann eines Vogels. 2) Wortspiel zwischen fowl und foul. 3) Malone citirt dazu aus Lyly's Euphues (1580) I think in those days love was well ratified on earth, when lust was so full authorized by the gods in heaven. — hot backs ist ein Symptom sinnlicher Erregung. 4) Ray in seiner Collection of Proverbs hat ein Sprichwort He has piss'd his tallow, das er so erklärt: This is spoken of bucks who grow lean after rutting-time, and may be applied to men. 5) Wortspiel zwischen dear und deer. 6) potatoes = Kartoffeln, werden bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen häufig als ein Reizmittel zum Liebesgenuss erwähnt. Sh. selbst hat in Troilus and Cressida (A. 5, Sc. 2) the devil Luxury, with his fat rump and potato-finger. — Ebenso eringoes = Brachdistel, deren Wirkung Drayton in seinem Polyolbion erwähnt: Whose root th' eringo is, the reins that doth inflame || So strongly to perform the Cytherean game. 7) Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 11. 8) kissing-comfits = Zuckerplätzchen, die den Mund wohlriechend machen. 9) a tempest of provocation = ein Sturm von Reizmitteln zur Liebe, fasst die vorher einzeln angeführten Aphrodisiaka potenzirt zusammen. 10) Die Fol. hat brib'd-buck, woraus Theobald bribe-buck, scil. a buck sent for a bribe, machte. — Dyce stellt die alte Lesart wieder her und fasst bribed in dem veralteten Sinne von to steal. Vielleicht ist bribed aber = zerlegt, um als Geschenk für verschiedene Personen zu dienen. 11) walk ist der District des Forstes, den ein einzelner Wärter, hier fellow genannt, zu beaufsichtigen oder zu begehen hat. Diesem kamen die Vorderblätter des erlegten Wildes zu. 12) Spreche und geberde ich mich nicht wie ein wirklicher Waidmann? 13) true spirit sagt Falstaff scherzhaft für true man, da er ein Gespenst, einen Geist darzustellen hat. 14) Die Fol. hat einfach Enter Fairies ohne speciellere Bezeichnung. Ausführlicher ist die Bühnenweisung der Q. A.: Enter Sir Hugh like a Satyr, and boys drest like fairies, mistress Quickly like the Queen of Fairies: they sing a song about him, and afterwards speak. — Dass die Quickly, und nicht Anne Page, die Feenkönigin darstellte, wäre in Widerspruch mit Allem, was vorher ausgemacht war. Der Irrthum ist wahrscheinlich veranlasst durch die Abbre-

Fal. What should this be?

Mrs. Ford.

Mrs. Page. } Away, away!

[They run off.]

Fal. I think, the devil will not have me damned, lest the oil that is in me should set hell on fire; he would never else cross me thus.

*Enter Sir HUGH EVANS, like a Satyr; ANNE PAGE, as the Fairy Queen, attended by her Brother and Others, dressed like Fairies, with waxen tapers on their heads.*¹⁴

Anne. Fairies, black, grey, green, and white,
You moonshine revellers, and shades of night,
You orphan heirs of fixed destiny,¹⁵
Attend your office, and your quality. —

Crier Hobgoblin, make the fairy oyes.¹⁶

Hobgoblin. Elves, list your names: silence, you airy toys!¹⁷

Cricket, to Windsor chimneys shalt thou leap:
Where fires thou find'st unrak'd,¹⁸ and hearths unswept,
There pinch the maids as blue as bilberry:¹⁹
Our radiant queen hates sluts, and sluttary.

Fal. They are fairies; he that speaks to them shall die:
I'll wink and couch. No man their works must eye.

[Lies down upon his face.]

Eva. Where's Bead?²⁰ — Go you, and where you find a maid,

That, ere she sleep, has thrice her prayers said,
Raise up the organs of her fantasy,²¹
Sleep she as sound as careless infancy;
But those as sleep and think not on their sins,
Pinch them, arms, legs, backs, shoulders, sides, and shins.

Anne. About, about!

Search Windsor castle, elves, within and out:²²

Strew good luck, ouches,²³ on every sacred room,
That it may stand till the perpetual doom.²⁴

In state as wholesome,²⁵ as in state 't is fit,
Worthy the owner, and the owner it.

The several chairs of order²⁶ look you scour
With juice of balm, and every precious flower:

Each fair instalment, coat, and several crest,
With loyal blazon, ever more be blest!

And nightly, meadow-fairies, look, you sing,
Like to the Garter's compass, in a ring:²⁷

The expressure that it bears, green let it be,
More fertile-fresh than all the field to see;

And, Honi soit qui mal y pense, write
In emerald tufts, flowers purple, blue, and white;

Like sapphire, pearl, and rich embroidery,
Buckled below fair knighthood's bending knee:

Fairies use flowers for their charactery.²⁸

Away! disperse! But, till 't is one o'clock,

Our dance of custom, round about the oak
Of Herne the hunter, let us not forget.

Eva. Pray you, lock hand in hand: yourselves in order set;

And twenty glow-worms shall our lanterns be,
To guide our measure²⁹ round about the tree.

But, stay! I smell a man of middle-earth.³⁰

Fal. Heavens defend me from that Welch fairy, lest he transform me to a piece of cheese!³¹

Hobgoblin. Vile worm, thou wast o'erlook'd³² even in thy birth.

Anne. With trial-fire touch me his finger-end:

If he be chaste, the flame will back descend,
And turn him to no pain;³³ but if he start,

It is the flesh of a corrupted heart.

viatur Qu. (scil. Queen), die vor den Reden der Feenkönigin im Manuscripte stand, und die dann zu Quickly umgedeutet wurde. 15) Unter orphan heirs of fixed destiny sind wahrscheinlich Kinder irdischer Eltern zu verstehen, welche von den Feen nach einem ewigen Schicksalsschlusse geraubt und adoptirt sind. — Staunton erklärt orphan heirs etc., wie er in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 4, Sc. 4) unfather'd heirs deutet: Leute, denen der Volksaberglaube eine übernatürliche Geburt und demgemäss eine prophetische Begabung zuschrieb, wie die Sage Beides von dem Merlin berichtete. 16) oyes = Proclamation des Herolds, nach deren herkömmlichem altfranzösischen Anfange oyez = hört! — Die meisten Herausgeber setzen dafür die missverständliche, aber gewöhnliche englische Form o-yez, die hier jedoch den nothwendigen Reim auf toys verwischt. — Der entsprechende Vers in Q. A. lautet Give them their charge, Puck, ere they part away. — Puck und Hobgoblin sind in der Feenmythologie dieselbe Figur. 17) Die Fol. setzt vor diese Rede Pist. scil. Pistol, eine Bezeichnung, aus der sich jedoch nur schliessen lässt, dass damals derselbe Schauspieler, der die Rolle Pistol's vorher gespielt, jetzt den Hobgoblin darstellte. 18) fires unrak'd = Feuer, die nicht zusammengescharrt sind. — Dass die Feen die Nachlässigkeit der Hausmägde bei Nacht an den Schläferinnen strafen, kommt auch sonst, z. B. in Romeo and Juliet (A. 1, Sc. 4) vor. 19) bilberry = Heidelbeere. 20) Bead = Kügelchen, wie vorher Cricket = Heimchen, der Name einer Fee. — Manche Hgg. lesen dafür mit Q. A. Pede; da jedoch Evans in seiner jetzigen Rolle des welschen Dialekts sich entäussert, den er sonst redet, so ist kein Grund, das Bead (Bede) der Fol. zu ändern. 21) to raise up = erheben, in höhere Regionen erheben, so dass ihr Schlaf von niedern und irdischen Träumen unberührt bleibt. 22) scil. within and without. 23) Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 4, Anm. 8. 24) perpetual doom = das jüngste Gericht, der jüngste Tag. — it bezieht sich auf Windsor castle. 25) wholesome = wohlbehalten, ist Apposition zu state = Zustand, während das folgende state = Pracht, königlicher Glanz, steht. 26) chairs of order sind die den einzelnen Rittern des Hosenbandordens angewiesenen Sitze, auf deren Ausstattung auch sich das folgende instalment = Installirungssitz, coat = Wappenrock, und crest = Wappenhelm, bezieht. 27) Die durch üppigeres Grün hervortretenden Ringe oder Kreise, welche die Feen bei ihrem Tanze auf dem Rasen zurücklassen, werden mit dem sich rund um das Bein schliessenden Hosenbandorden verglichen. Von diesem Grün des Rasens soll sich die Devise des Hosenbandordens Honi soit qui mal y pense ebenso in verschiedenen gefärbten Blumen, von den Feen zusammengewirkt, abheben, wie diese Devise auf dem Ordensband mit Saphir, Perlen und reicher Stickerei prangt, das unter dem sich beugenden Knie der Ordensritterschaft angeschnallt wird. 28) charactery = Zeichenschrift, Schrift. — Das Wort wird hier auf der zweiten Sylbe betont. 29) measure = Tanz. 30) middle-earth = die Erde, die Welt, als in der Mitte gelegen, im Gegensatze zu der untern und zu der obern Region. 31) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 2, Anm. 5. 32) Schon gleich bei Deiner Geburt durch böse Blicke verflucht oder entstellt. — to overlook geht auf den nachtheiligen Einfluss eines Feenblickes auf ein eben gebornes Kind. 33) to Hobgoblin. A trial! come.

Eva. Come, will this wood take fire?

[They burn him with their tapers.]

Fal. Oh, oh, oh!

Anne. Corrupt, corrupt, and tainted in desire!

About him, fairies, sing a scornful rhyme;

And, as you trip, still pinch him to your time.³⁴

SONG.

Fie on sinful fantasy!

*Fie on lust and luxury!*³⁵

*Lust is but a bloody fire,*³⁶

Kindled with unchaste desire,

Fed in heart; whose flames aspire,

As thoughts do blow them higher and higher.

Pinch him, fairies, mutually;

Pinch him for his villany;

Pinch him, and burn him, and turn him about,

Till candles, and star-light, and moonshine be out.

*During this song, the Fairies pinch FALSTAFF. Doctor CAIUS comes one way, and steals away a Fairy in green; SLENDER another way, and takes off a Fairy in white; and FENTON comes, and steals away ANNE PAGE. A noise of hunting is made within. All the Fairies run away. FALSTAFF pulls off his buck's head, and rises.*³⁷

Enter PAGE, FORD, Mistress PAGE, and Mistress FORD. They lay hold on him.

Page. Nay, do not fly: I think, we have watch'd you now.

Will none but Herne the hunter serve your turn?

Mrs. Page. I pray you, come; hold up the jest no higher. —

Now, good Sir John, how like you Windsor wives?

See you these, husband? do not these fair yokes³⁸

Become the forest better than the town?

Ford. Now, Sir, who 's a cuckold now? — Master Brook, Falstaff's a knave, a cuckoldly knave; here are his horns, Master Brook: and, Master Brook, he hath enjoyed nothing of Ford's but his buck-basket, his cudgel, and twenty pounds of money, which must be paid to Master Brook: his horses are arrested for it, Master Brook.

Mrs. Ford. Sir John, we have had ill luck; we could never meet. I will never take you for my love again, but I will always count you my deer.³⁹

Fal. I do begin to perceive, that I am made an ass.

Ford. Ay, and an ox too; both the proofs are extant.⁴⁰

Fal. And these are not fairies? I was three or four times in the thought, they were not fairies; and yet the guiltiness of my mind, the sudden surprise of my powers,⁴¹ drove the grossness of the foppery into a received belief, in despite of the teeth⁴² of all rhyme and reason, that they were fairies. See now, how wit may be made a Jack-a-Lent,⁴³ when 't is upon ill employment!

Eva. Sir John Falstaff, serve Got, and leave your desires, and fairies will not pinse you.

Ford. Well said, fairy Hugh.

Eva. And leave you your jealousies too, I pray you.

Ford. I will never mistrust my wife again, till thou art able to woo her in good English.

Fal. Have I laid my brain in the sun, and dried it, that it wants matter to prevent so gross o'erreaching as this? Am I ridden with a Welch goat too? shall I have a coxcomb of frize?⁴⁴ 'T is time I were choked with a piece of toasted cheese.

Eva. Seese is not good to give putter: your pelly is all putter.

Fal. Seese and putter! have I lived to stand at the taunt of one that makes fritters of English? This is enough to be the decay of lust, and late-walking through the realm.

Mrs. Page. Why, Sir John, do you think, though we would have thrust virtue out of our hearts by the head and shoulders, and have given ourselves without scruple to hell, that ever the devil could have made you our delight?

Ford. What, a hodge-pudding? a bag of flax?

Mrs. Page. A puffed man?

Page. Old, cold, withered, and of intolerable⁴⁵ entrails?

Ford. And one that is as slanderous as Satan?

Page. And as poor as Job?

Ford. And as wicked as his wife?

Eva. And given to fornications, and to taverns, and sack, and wine, and metheglins, and to drinkings, and swearings, and starings, pribbles and prabbles?

Fal. Well, I am your theme: you have the start of me; I am dejected; I am not able to answer the Welch flannel. Ignorance itself is a plummet o'er me:⁴⁶ use me as you will.

Ford. Marry, Sir, we 'll bring you to Windsor, to one Master Brook, that you have cozened of money, to whom turn mit dem Accusativ der Person und to der Sache = Jemandem zu Etwas gereichen. 34) to your time = zu dem Takte Eures Gesanges. — Manche Hgg. fügen hier mit Theobald eine Rede des Pfarrers Evans ein, die sich nur in Q. A. findet: It is right indeed he is full of lecheries and iniquity. 35) luxury = Geilheit, Wollust. 36) bloody fire = ein Feuer, das im Blute steckt. So in Tempest (A. 4, Sc. 1) the strongest oaths are straw to the fire i' the blood. 37) Diese Bühnenweisung, die in der Fol. ganz fehlt, ist von Theobald aus Q. A. entlehnt und angemessen modificirt. 38) yokes, die oben gekrümmten Joche, unter denen Rinder vor dem Wagen gehen, erinnern in ihrer Gestalt an die Hörner, welche Falstaff trägt. Diese Hörner passen eher für den Wald, in welchem die Scene spielt, als für die Stadt Windsor, wo Falstaff dem Page und dem Ford Hörner aufzusetzen versucht hat. — Aus yoakes der Fol. macht die zweite Folioausg. oaks, was M. Mason zu rechtfertigen sucht. — In Ford's folgender Rede wird auf Falstaff's Worte A. 2, Sc. 2 hingedeutet: Hang him, poor cuckoldly knave! I know him (scil. Ford) not. 39) Vgl. oben Anm. 5. 40) Die Beweise für Beides, dass Ihr ein Esel und ein Ochs wäret, liegen vor. 41) Die plötzliche Ueberrumpelung meiner Geisteskräfte. 42) in despite of the teeth vereinigt zwei Phrasen, die ungefähr dasselbe sagen: in despite of und in the teeth of. 43) Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 3, Anm. 4. 44) frize = ein Wollenstoff, der, wie das bald nachher in demselben Sinne erwähnte flannel, in Wales vorzugsweise bereitet wurde. — Auch in dem folgenden toasted cheese wird wiederum Evans als Walliser verhöhnt. 45) intolerable = ungeheuer. So in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 2, Sc. 4) this intolerable deal of sack. 46) plummet, wofür Johnson plume, und Farmer planet lesen wollte, erklärt Tyrwhitt am natürlichsten: ignorance itself is not so low as I am by the length of a plummet line. — Eine etwas modificirte Deutung giebt Staunton dem Worte hier, indem er als Parallelstelle aus Shirley's Love in a Maze citirt: Yongrave, how is 't, man? what!

you should have been a pander: over and above that you have suffered, I think, to repay that money will be a biting affliction.⁴⁷

Page. Yet be cheerful, knight: thou shalt eat a posset⁴⁸ to-night at my house; where I will desire thee to laugh at my wife, that now laughs at thee. Tell her, Master Slender hath married her daughter.

Mrs. Page. [Aside.] Doctors doubt that:⁴⁹ if Anne Page be my daughter, she is, by this, doctor Caius' wife.

Enter SLENDER.

Slen. Whoo, ho! ho! father Page!

Page. Son, how now? how now, son? have you despatched?

Slen. Despatched! — I'll make the best in Glostershire know on 't;⁵⁰ would I were hanged, la, else.

Page. Of what, son?

Slen. I came yonder at Eton to marry Mistress Anne Page, and she's a great lubberly boy: if it had not been i' the church, I would have swung him, or he should have swung me. If I did not think it had been Anne Page, would I might never stir, and 't is a postmaster's boy.

Page. Upon my life, then, you took the wrong.

Slen. What need you tell me that? I think so, when I took a boy for a girl: if I had been married to him, for all he was in woman's apparel, I would not have had him.

Page. Why, this is your own folly. Did not I tell you, how you should know my daughter by her garments?

Slen. I went to her in white,⁵¹ and cried, »mum,« and she cried, »budget,« as Anne and I had appointed; and yet it was not Anne, but a postmaster's boy.⁵²

Mrs. Page. Good George, be not angry: I knew of your purpose; turned my daughter into green;⁵³ and indeed, she is now with the doctor at the deanery, and there married.

Enter Doctor CAIUS.

Caius. Vere is Mistress Page? By gar, I am cozened; I ha' married un garçon, a boy; un paysan, by gar, a boy: it is not Anne Page; by gar, I am cozened.

Mrs. Page. Why, did you take her in green?

Caius. Ay, by gar, and 't is a boy: by gar, I'll raise all Windsor. [Exit.]

Ford. This is strange. Who hath got the right Anne?

Page. My heart misgives me. Here comes Master Fenton.

Enter FENTON and ANNE PAGE.

How now, Master Fenton?

Anne. Pardon, good father! good my mother, pardon!

Page. Now, mistress; how chance you went not with Master Slender?

Mrs. Page. Why went you not with master doctor, maid?

Fent. You do amaze her: hear the truth of it.

You would have married her most shamefully,

Where there was no proportion held in love.

The truth is, she and I, long since contracted,

Are now so sure, that nothing can dissolve us.

The offence is holy that she hath committed,

And this deceit loses the name of craft,

Of disobedience, or unduteous title,⁵⁴

Since therein she doth evitate and shun

A thousand irreligious cursed hours,

Which forced marriage would have brought upon her.

Ford. Stand not amaz'd: here is no remedy. —

In love, the heavens themselves do guide the state:

Money buys lands, and wives are sold by fate.

Fal. I am glad, though you have ta'en a special stand to strike at me, that your arrow hath glanced.

Page. Well, what remedy? Fenton, heaven give thee joy.

What cannot be eschew'd, must be embrac'd.

Fal. When night-dogs run, all sorts of deer are chas'd.⁵⁵

Mrs. Page. Well, I will muse no further. Master Fenton, Heaven give you many, many merry days. —

Good husband, let us every one go home,

And laugh this sport o'er by a country fire;

Sir John and all.

Ford. Let it be so. — Sir John,

To Master Brook you yet shall hold your word;⁵⁶

For he, to-night, shall lie with Mistress Ford. [Exeunt.]

Stamp them in the Cream and boyl, with Amber and Musk therein. Than take a Pint of Sack in a basin, and set it on a Chafing-dish, till it be blood-warm; then take the Yolks of twelve Eggs, with four of their Whites, and beat them well together; and so put the Eggs into the Sack. Then stir all together over the coals, till it is all as thick as you would have it. MEASURE FOR MEASURE.

Einleitung.

Shakspeare's Measure for Measure ist zuerst gedruckt in der Gesamtausgabe der Shakspeare'schen Dramen in Folio (1623) und steht daselbst, in Acte und Scenen eingetheilt, als das vierte Stück der Comedies. Der Text ist ziemlich verwahrlost und bietet manche Schwierigkeiten und Dunkelheiten, welche alle Erklärungsversuche und Aenderungsvorschläge späterer Herausgeber nicht gänzlich zu beseitigen vermocht haben. Die erste Notiz von diesem Schauspiel findet sich in den Verzeichnissen dramatischer Aufführungen bei Hofe unter Elisabeth und Jacob I., wo aus dem Jahrgang von October 1604 bis October 1605 folgendes Memorandum des Master of the Revels verzeichnet ist: By his Ma^{ty}s plaiers On St. Stevens Night in the Hall A play called Mesur for Mesur. Als Verfasser ist unter der danebenstehenden Rubrik, überschrieben The Poets weh mayd the plaies, der Name Shaxberd angegeben. — Es ergiebt sich daraus, dass Shakspeare's Measure for Measure am 26. December 1604 im Palaste zu Whitehall aufgeführt wurde von der Shakspeare'schen Schauspielergesellschaft, welche seit Mai 1603 den Titel The King's Players führte. Wahrscheinlich war das Stück damals neu; wenigstens sprechen gegen eine etwa viel frühere Abfassung die Eigenthümlichkeiten des Styls und Verses, die entschieden auf die letzte Periode in Shakspeare's dramatischer Thätigkeit hinweisen. Erwägenswerth bleiben auch noch einige vermeintliche, von den Kritikern hervorgehobene, Beziehungen auf bestimmte Charakterzüge König Jacob's, der seit dem März 1603 auf dem englischen Throne sass, in einigen Stellen von Measure for Measure; so I love the people etc. (vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1 gegen das Ende) und even so || The general, subject to a well-wish'd king etc. (vgl. A. 2, Sc. 4 in Angelo's Monolog).

Shakspeare legte seinem Drama ein älteres von George Whetstone zu Grunde, das unter dem Titel The Historie of Promos and Cassandra im Jahre 1578 im Druck erschien und das nicht viel früher geschrieben sein kann, nach der Anwendung des Blankverses zu schliessen, welcher, wenn auch nur sehr vereinzelt, neben dem sonst überall vorherrschenden Reime sich geltend macht. Whetstone schickt seinem Drama folgende Inhaltsanzeige voraus:

In the Cytie of Julio (sometimes under the dominion of Corvinus King of Hungarie, and Boemia) there was a law, that what man so ever committed Adultery, should lose his head, and the woman offender, should weare some disguised apparell, during her life, to make her infamouslye noted. This severe lawe, by the favour of some merciful magistrate, became little regarded, untill the time of Lord Promos auctority: who convicting a yong Gentleman named Andrugio of incontineny, condemned, both him, and his minion, to the execution of this statute. Andrugio had a very vertuous and beautiful Gentlewoman to his Sister, named Cassandra: Cassandra to enlarge her brothers life, submitted an humble petition to the Lord Promos: Promos regarding her good behaviours, and fantasying her great beawtie, was much delighted with the sweete order of her talke: and doying good, that evill might come thereof: for a time, he reprieved her brother: but wicked man, touning his liking unto unlawfull lust, he set downe the spoile of her honour, raunsome for her Brothers life: chaste Cassandra, abhorring both him and his sute, by no persuation would yeald to this raunsome. But in fine, worne with the importunitie of hir Brother (pleading for life) upon these conditions, she agreede to Promos. First that he should pardon her brother, and after marry her. Promos as feareles in promisse, as carelesse in performance, with sollemne vowe, sygned her conditions: but worse then any Infydel, his will satisfied, he performed neither the one nor the other: for to keepe his aucthoritye, unspotted with favour, and to prevent Cassandrea's clamors, he commaunded the Gayler secretly, to present Cassandra with her brother's head. The Gayler, with the outcryes of Andrugio, abhorring Promos lewdenes, by the providence of God, provided thus for his safety. He presented Cassandra with a felons head newlie executed, who (being mangled, knew it not from her brother's, by the Gaylor, who was set at libertie) was so agreede at this trecherye, that at the pointe to kyl her selfe, she spared that stroke to be avenged of Promos. And devisyng a way, she concluded, to make her fortunes knowne unto the kinge. She (executinge this resolution) was so highly favoured of the king, that forthwith he hasted to do justice on Promos: whose judgment was, to marrye Cassandra, to repaire her crased honour: which donne, for his hainous offence he should lose his head. This mariage solempnised, Cassandra tyed in the greatest bondes of affection to her husband, became an earnest suter for his life: the kinge (tendringe the generall benefit of the common weale, before her special case, although he favoured her much) would not graunt her sute. Andrugio (disguised amonge the company) sorrowing the grieve of his sister, bewrayde his safetie, and craved pardon. The kinge, to renoune the vertues of Cassandra, pardoned both him and Promos. — In diesem Argument of the whole Historie, wie es betitelt ist, fehlt jede Hindentung auf diejenigen Nebenpersonen des Dramas, welche dem Lucio, dem Clown, der Kupplerin u. s. w. entsprechen und fast die Hälfte des auf zehn Acte in zwei Abtheilungen vertheilten Stückes ausfüllen. — Wie wenig freilich Shakspeare ausser diesen allgemeinen, bei ihm noch bedeutend modificirten, Umrissen dem Whetstone'schen Schauspiel entlehnen konnte, davon mögen eine Probe geben diejenigen Scenen, welche der zweiten und der vierten Scene des zweiten Actes von Measure for Measure entsprechen:

ACTUS II. SCENA III.

Promos with the Shrieve, and their Officers.

Promos.

'Tis strange to thinke what swarms of unthrifts live
Within this towne, by rapine, spoyle, and theft,
That were it not that justice ofte them greeve
The just mans goods by rufers should be reft.
At this our syse are thirtie judgde to dye
Whose falles I see their fellowes smally feare,
So that the way is, by severity
Such wicked weedes even by the rootes to teare.
Wherefore, Shrieve, execute with speedy pace
The dampned wights, to cutte of hope of grace.

Shrieve.

It shal be done.

Cassandra to herselfe.

O cruell words they make my hart to bleede:
Now, now I must this dome seeke to reroke
Least grace come skort when starved is the steede.

She kneeling speakes to Promos.

Most mighty lord, a worthy judge, thy judgement
sharpe abate,
Vaile thou thine eares to heare the plaint that wretched I relate.
Behold the wofull syster here of poore Andrugio,
Whom though that lawe awardeth death, yet mercy do him show.
Way his yong yeares, the force of love which forced his amis,
Way, way that mariage works amends for what committed is.
He hath defilde no nuptiall bed, nor forced rape
hath mov'd;
He fel through love who never ment but wive the wight he lov'd:
And wantons sure to keepe in awe these statutes first were made,
Or none but lustfull leachers should with rygrous law be payd.
And yet to adde intent thereto is farre from my pretence;
I sue with teares to wyn him grace that sorrows his offence.
Wherefore herein, renowned lorde, justice with pitee payse
Which two, in equall ballance waide, to heaven your fame willraise.

Promos.

Cassandra, leave of thy bootlesse sute, by law he hath bene tride,
Lawe founde his faulte, lawe judgde him death.

Cassandra.

Yet this maye be replide,
That law a mischiefe oft permits to keepe due forme
of lawe,

That lawe small faultes, with greatest doomes, to keepe men styl in awe.

Yet kings, or such as execute regall authorithye,
If mends be made, may over-rule the force of lawe with mercie.

Here is no wylful murder wrought which axeth blood again;

Andrugio's faulte may valued be, marriage wipes out his stayne.

Promos.

Faire dame, I see the naturall zeale thou bearest to Andrugio,
And for thy sake (not his desart) this favour wyll
I shewe:

I wyll repryve him yet a whyle, and on the matter
pawse;

To-morrowe you shall lycence have afresh to pleade his cause.

Shrieve execute my chardge, but staye Andrugio,
Untill that you in this behalfe more of my pleasure
knowe.

Shrieve.

I wyll performe your wyll.

Cassandra.

O most worthy magistrate, my selfe thy thrall I binde,
Even for this lytle lightning hope which at thy han-des I finde.

Now wyl I go and comfort him which hangs twixt death and life. [Exit.

Promos.

Happie is the man that injoyes the love of such a wife.
I do protest hir modest wordes hath wrought in me amaze.

Though she be faire, she is not deackt with garish
shewes for gaze;

Hir bewtee lures, hir lookes cut off fond sutes with chast disdain;

O God I feelee a sodaine change that doth my free-dome chayne!

What didst thou say? fie Promos, fie! of hir avoide
the thought,

And so I will; my other cares will cure what love has wrought.

Come awaye. [Exeunt.

ACTUS III. SCENA I.

Promos alone.

Promos.

Do what I can, no reason cooles desire:
The more I strive my fonde affectes to tame,
The hotter (oh) I feelee a burning fire
Within my breast, vaine thoughts to forge and frame.
O straying effectes of blinde affected love,
From wisdomes pathes which doth astraye our wittes;
Which makes us haunt that which our harmes doth move,

A sicknesse lyke, the fever Etticke fittes,

Which shakes with colde when we do burne like fire.
 Even so in Love we freese through chilling feare,
 When as our hartes doth frye with hote desire.
 What saide I? like to Etticke fittes? nothing neare;
 In sowrest Love, some sweete is ever suckt:
 The lover findeth peace in wrangling strife,
 So that if paine were from his pleasure pluckt,
 There were no heaven like to the Lover's life.
 But why stande I to pleade their joye or woe,
 And rest unsure of hir I wish to have?
 I know not if Cassandra love, or noe:
 But yet admitte she graunt not what I crave,
 If I be nyce to hir brother lyfe to give:
 Hir brother's life too much wyll make her yeelde —
 A promise then to let hir brother lyve,
 Hath force inough to make her flie the fiede.
 Thus though sute fayle, necessitie shall wyn
 Of lordlie rule the conquering power is such:
 But (oh sweete sight) see where she enters in:
 But hope and dreade, at once my harte doth tuch.

ACTUS III. SCENA II.

Cassandra, Promos.

Cassandra speakes to herselfe.

Cassandra.

I see two thralles, sweete seemes a lytle joye;
 For fancies free Andrugio's breast hath scope:
 But least detract doth rayse a new annoye,
 I nowe will seeke to turne to happe his hope.
 See, as I wisht, Lord Promos is in place;
 Nowe in my sute God graunt I maye finde grace.

Shee kneeling speakes to Promos.

Renowned Lorde, whylst life in me doth last,
 In homage bondes I binde my selfe to thee;
 And though I did thy goodnesse latelie taste,
 Yet once againe on knees I mercie seeke
 In his behalfe that hanges twene death and life,
 Who styll is preast if you the mendes do leeke,
 His lawles love to make his lawfull wife.

Promos.

Faire dame, I wel have wayd thy sute, and wish to do thee good,
 But all in vaine, al things conclude to have thy brother's blood.
 The stricknes of the lawe condempnes an ignorant abuse,
 Then wylful faultes are hardlie helpt or cloked with excuse;
 And what maye be more wylfull then a maide to violate?

Cassandra.

The force was smal when with her wyl he, wretch,
 the conquest gate.

Promos.

Lawe ever at the worst doth conster evyl intent.

Cassandra.

And lawe even with the worst awardest them punishment;
 And sith that rigorous lawe adjudg'd him to dye,
 Your glorie will be much the more in showing him mercie.

The world will think how that you do but graunt him grace on cause:
 And where cause is there mercy should abate the force of lawes.

Promos.

Cassandra, in thy brother's halfe thou hast sayde
 what may be;
 And for thy sake it is, if I doe set Andrugio free.
 Shart tale to make, thy beauty hath surpryzed me
 with love,
 That maugre wit, I turne my thoughts as blynd affections move.
 And quite subdude by Cupids might, neede makes me sue for grace
 To thee Cassandra which doest holde my freedome in a lace.
 Yeelde to my will, and then commaund even what thou wilt of mee;
 Thy brother's life, and all that else may with thy liking gree.

Cassandra.

And may it be, a Judge himself the self same fault should ax, [Cassandra to herselfe.
 For which he domes an others death? O crime without excuse!
 Renowned lorde, you use this speach (I hope) your thrall to trye,
 If otherwise my brother's life so deare I will not bye.

Promos.

Faire dame my outward lookes my inward thoughts
 bewray,
 If you mistrust, to search my harte, would God you had a key!

Cassandra.

If that you love (as so you saye) the force of love
 you know,
 Which felt, in conscience you should my brother favour show.

Promos.

In doubtfull warre one prisoner still doth set another free.

Cassandra.

What so warre seekes, love unto warre contrary is you see.
 Hate fostreth warre, love cannot hate, then maye it covet force.

Promos.

The lover ofte sues to his foe, and findeth no remorse.
 Then if he hap to have a helpe to wyn his frowarde foe,
 Too kinde a foole I will him holde that lets such rantage goe.

Cassandra.

Well, to be short, my selfe wyll dye ere I my honor
 stayne,
 You know my minde, leave off to tempt, your offers are in vaine.

Promos.

Bethink yourself at price enough I purchase, sweet your love;

Andrugio's life suffis'd alone your straungenes to remove;
The which I graunt, with any wealth that else you wyll require:
Who buyeth love at such a rate, payes well for his desire.

Cassandra.

No, Promos, no; honor never at value maye be solde;
Honor farre dearer is then life, which passeth price of golde.

Promos.

To buie this Juel at the full, my wife I may thee make.

Cassandra.

For unsure hope, that peereless pearle I never will forsake.

Promos.

These sutes seemes strange at first, I see wher modesty beares sway; [To himself.
I therefore wil set down my wyll, and for hir answer staye.

Fayre Cassandra, the juel of my joye,
Howe so in showe my tale seemes straunge to thee,
The same well waide, thou need'st not be so coye,
Yet for to give thee respite I agree.

Whetstone hatte den Stoff zu seinem Drama aus der italienischen Novellensammlung Hecatonmithi des Giraldi Cinthio geschöpft und gab einige Jahre später eine novellistische Bearbeitung desselben Stoffes in seinem Heptameron of Civil Discourses (1582) unter dem Titel The Rare Historie of Promos and Cassandra, Reported by Madam Isabella. Die Erzählung ist mit Randglossen versehen, in deren erster Whetstone sich auf sein Drama bezieht: This historie for rareness thereof, is lively set out in a comedie, by the Reporter of the whole worke, but yet never presented upon stage. — Da Shakspeare unzweifelhaft auch diese Novelle gekannt und benutzt hat, so lassen wir daraus hier folgen, was der ersten Scene des dritten Actes in Measure for Measure entspricht:

Cassandra, mooved with a chaste disdayne, departed with the resolution, rather to dye her selfe, then to stayne her honour; and with this heauey newes, greeted her condemned brother. Poore man, alas, what should he do! Life was sweete; but to be redeemed with his sisters infamie could not but be alwayes unsaverie.

To perswade her to consente was unnaturall: too yealde to death was more greevous.

To choose the leaste of these evylles was difficult: to studie long was daungerous.

Fayne would he lyve, but shame cloased his mouth when he attempted to perswade his sister.

But necessytie, that maistereth both shame and feare, brake a passadge for his imprysoned intent.

Sweete Cassandra, (quoth he) that men love is usuall, but to subdue affection is impossyble; and so thornie are the motions of incontinent desire, as to finde ease the tongue is only occupied to perswade. The purse is ever open to entice, and wheare neither words nor giftes can corrupt (with the mightie) force shall constrayne, or dispight, avenge. That Promos do love is but just: thy beautie commaundes hym; that Promos be refused is more just, because consent is thy shame.

Thou maiste refuse and lyve; but he beyng rejected, I die: for wantyng his wyll in thee he wyll wreake his teene on mee.

This is my hard estate: my lyfe lieth in thy infamie, and thy honour in my death. Which of these evylles be leaste I leave for thee to judge.

The wofull Cassandra answered, that death was the leaste; whose darte we can not shunne, when honour, in deathes dispight, outlyveth tyme.

It is true (quoth Andrugio), but thy trespasse, wyll be in the leaste degree of blame; for in forced faultes justice sayth there is no intent of evyll.

Oh Andrugio, (quoth she), intent is now adayes lytle considred: thou art not condemned by the intent, but by the strickt worde of the law: so shall my crime bee reproched, and the forced cause passe unexcused; and such is the venome of envye, one evill deede shall disgrace ten good turnes, and in this yeelding, so shall I be valued: envye, disdain, spight, mallice, sclaunder, and many moe furies will endeavour to shame mee, and the meanest vertue wyll blush to help to support my honour; so that I see no lybertie for thee but death, nor no ease for mee but to hasten my ende.

O yes (quoth Andrugio), for if this offence be known thy fame will bee enlarged, because it will lykewise bee knowne, that thou receavedst dishonor to give thy brother lyfe: if it be secreat, thy conscience wyl be without scruple of guiltinesse. Thus, knowne, or unknowne, thou shalt be deflowred, but not dishonested, and for amends wee both shall lyve.

*I wyll two daies hope styll of thy consent;
Which if thou graunt (to cleare my clowdes of care)
Cloth'd like a Page (suspect for to prevent)
Unto my Court, some night, sweet wenche, repaire.
Tyl then adue; thou these my words in works perform'd shalt find.*

Cassandra.

Farewel my Lord, but in this sute you bootles wast your wind.

*Cassandra! O most unhappy, subject to everie woe,
What tonge can tel, what thought conceive, what pen thy guesse can shew!*

Whom to scourge, heaven and earth do heapes of thral ordain,

Whose words in waste, whose works are lost, whose wishes are in vain.

That which to others comfort yeelds, doth cause my heavy cheer,

I meane, my beautie breedes my bale, which many hold so deere.

I would to God that kinde else where bestowed had this blase,

My vertues then had wrought regard, my shape now gives the gase.

This forme so Promos fiers with love as wisdom cannot quench

His hote desire, tyll he lust in Venus' seas hath drencht.

EINLEITUNG.

Von Escalus und Mariana, von der Verkleidung des Herzogs als Mönch und seiner schliesslichen Vermählung mit Isabella fand Shakspere weder in Whetstone's Drama noch in dessen Novelle eine Spur; diese Figuren und Motive, sowie die Charakteristik auch der übrigen Personen, gehören ausschliesslich unserm Dichter an.

Zu A. 4, Sc. 1. Das Lied lautet vollständig in Fletcher's Drama The Bloody Brother, or Rollo, Duke of Normandy:

Take, oh, take those lips away,
That so sweetly were forsworn,
And those eyes, like break of day,
Lights that do mislead the morn!
But my kisses bring again,
Seals of love, though seal'd in vain.

Hide, oh, hide those hills of snow,
Which thy frozen bosom bears,
On whose tops the pinks that grow
Are of those that April wears!
But first set my poor heart free,
Bound in those icy chains by thee.

1) Dieses Personenverzeichniss findet sich in derselben Fassung — mit Auslassung von A Justice und Varrius — bereits in der Fol., wo es hinter dem Drama mit der Ueberschrift The Names of all the Actors gedruckt steht. Ebendasselbst ist auch die Localität angegeben: The Scene Vienna. 2) I am put to know erklärt Steevens mit I am compelled to acknowledge. — I am put ist wohl nur = ich bin veranlasst, in Stand gesetzt. — Pope las I am not to know. 3) Die beschränkenden Vorschriften jedes guten Rathes, den ich Euch zu geben vermöchte. 4) Der Satz ist dem Sinne und dem Verse nach corrupt. Wahrscheinlich sind durch ein Versehen des Setzers hinter sufficiency einige Wörter ausgefallen, welche Tyrwhitt vermuthungsweise so ergänzt: then no more remains, || But that to your sufficiency you put || A zeal as willing as your worth is able, || And let them work. — In ähnlicher Weise ergänzen andere Herausgeber das Fehlende, während Steevens endlich dem Sinn wieder aufzuhelfen sucht, indem er that, to vor sufficiency streicht. — Staunton macht den Vorschlag, ohne ihn jedoch in den Text aufzunehmen, zu setzen then no more remains, || To your sufficiency as your worth is able || But that you let them work. — sufficiency wird theils mit authority, theils mit ability erklärt. Es ist eine Tüchtigkeit, die dem übertragenen Amte gewachsen ist. 5) terms fasst Blackstone vielleicht zu speciell = die technischen Ausdrücke des Rechts; es ist wohl eher in Verbindung mit dem Folgenden = die Verhältnisse, die für das gemeine Recht bestehen, der Zustand oder die Art der Rechtsverwaltung. — pregnant = von leichter Auffassungsgabe, geschickt, gewandt. 6) with special soul = indem es uns besonders am Herzen lag. 7) our love bezieht sich wie our terror auf die Unterthanen, auf deren Scheu vor und auf deren Liebe zu ihrem Fürsten. — Als beider Träger soll nun Angelo erscheinen.

That, to the observer, doth thy history
Fully unfold.⁸ Thyself and thy belongings⁹
Are not thine own so proper, as to waste
Thyself upon thy virtues, they¹⁰ on thee.
Heaven doth with us, as we with torches do,
Not light them for themselves; for if our virtues
Did not go forth of us, 't were all alike
As if we had them not. Spirits are not finely touch'd,
But to fine issues;¹¹ nor nature never lends
The smallest scruple of her excellence,
But, like a thrifty goddess,¹² she determines
Herself the glory of a creditor,
Both thanks and use. But I do bend my speech
To one that can my part in him advertise;¹³
Hold, therefore, Angelo:¹⁴ —
In our remove, be thou at full yourself;
Mortality and mercy in Vienna
Live in thy tongue and heart.¹⁵ Old Escalus,
Though first in question,¹⁶ is thy secondary.
Take thy commission.

Ang. Now, good my lord,
Let there be some more test made of my metal,¹⁷
Before so noble and so great a figure
Be stamp'd upon it.

Duke. No more evasion:
We have with a leaven'd¹⁸ and prepared choice
Proceeded to you; therefore take your honours.
Our haste from hence is of so quick condition,
That it prefers itself, and leaves unquestion'd
Matters of needful value.¹⁹ We shall write to you,
As time and our concernings shall importune,
How it goes with us; and do look to know
What doth befall you here. So, fare you well:
To the hopeful execution do I leave you
Of your commissions.

Ang. Yet, give leave, my lord,
That we may bring you something on the way.²⁰

Duke. My haste may not admit it;
Nor need you, on mine honour, have to do
With any scruple: your scope is as mine own,²¹
So to enforce, or qualify the laws

As to your soul seems good. Give me your hand;
I'll privily away: I love the people,
But do not like to stage²² me to their eyes.
Though it do well,²³ I do not relish well
Their loud applause, and Aves vehement,
Nor do I think the man of safe discretion,
That does affect it. Once more, fare you well.

Ang. The heavens give safety to your purposes!

Escal. Lead forth, and bring you back in happiness!

Duke. I thank you. Fare you well. [Exit.]

Escal. I shall desire you, Sir, to give me leave
To have free speech with you; and it concerns me
To look into the bottom of my place:²⁴
A power I have, but of what strength and nature
I am not yet instructed.

Ang. 'T is so with me. Let us withdraw together,
And we may soon our satisfaction have Touching that point.

Escal. I'll wait upon your honour. [Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

A Street.

Enter Lucio and Two Gentlemen.

Lucio. If the duke, with the other dukes, come not to composition with the king of Hungary, why then, all the dukes fall upon the king.

1. Gent. Heaven grant us its peace, but not the king of Hungary's!

2. Gent. Amen.

Lucio. Thou concludest like the sanctimonious pirate, that went to sea with the ten commandments, but scraped one out of the table.

2. Gent. »Thou shalt not steal«?

Lucio. Ay, that he razed.

1. Gent. Why, 't was a commandment to command the captain and all the rest from their functions: they put forth to steal. There's not a soldier of us all, that, in the thanksgiving before meat, doth¹ relish the petition well that prays for peace.

8) M. Mason wollte character und history umstellen. — character ist = Schriftzeichen, das was für den Beobachter erkennbar in Angelo's Lebensweise verzeichnet ist und einen Schluss auf sein Wesen, seine Beschaffenheit oder Entwicklung verstattet. 9) belongings = Begabung, Eigenschaft: Dein Selbst, Deine Gaben gehören nicht so eigen Dir selbst an, dass Du sie im einseitigen Verkehr mit Dir selber allein verbrauchen könntest. — virtues ist synonym mit belongings. 10) So die Fol. mit einer Sh. sehr geläufigen Anwendung des absolut stehenden Personalpronomen. Die meisten Hgg. setzen mit Hammer them für they. 11) Die Geister sind nur deshalb mit schönen Regungen oder Empfindungen ausgestattet, dass sie schöne Ergebnisse liefern. 12) Die Natur ist eine wirtschaftliche Göttin, welche auch für die geringste Gabe, die sie ausleiht, sich selber allen Vortheil und Ruhm eines Gläubigers, Dank und Zinsen zuerkennt. — use ist zugleich = praktische Verwerthung der dargeliehenen Gabe. 13) Ich richte meine Rede an Einen, der in sich selbst meinen Theil, das was ich zu sagen hätte, lehren könnte, an Einen, der mich unterrichten könnte. — to advertise betont Sh. auf der zweiten Sylbe. — Andere verbinden my part in him und erklären my part deputed to him. 14) hold = nimm, sieh hier! Mit diesen Worten hält der Herzog dem Angelo seine Vollmacht hin, die er ihm dann übergibt mit den Worten Take thy commission. 15) mortality bezieht sich auf tongue: das Recht, die Todesstrafe zu verhängen und auszusprechen, wie mercy sich auf heart bezieht: das Recht, Begnadigung zu beschliessen. 16) Escalus, obgleich zuerst von ihm die Rede war, obgleich der Erste in der Berufung, ist Dir doch im Amt untergeordnet. 17) mettle in der Fol., deren Orthographie überhaupt zwischen metal und mettle nicht scharf unterscheidet. 18) leaven'd = gehörig durchgearbeitet, wie das Brod mit dem Sauerteig. 19) Meine Eile ist so gross, dass sie sich geltend macht auf Kosten wichtiger Angelegenheiten, die sie unerledigt, unbesprochen lässt. 20) to bring on the way = begleiten, das Geleite geben. 21) Ihr habt denselben freien Spielraum in der schärferen oder milderer Handhabung der Gesetze, je nach Eurem Gutdünken, wie ich ihn habe. 22) to stage = auf die Bühne stellen, zur Schau stellen. — Man hat in diesem Passus eine Anspielung auf den Charakter König Jacob's I. finden wollen. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 115. 23) Wenn es auch gut sein mag, dass das Volk lauten Beifall und stürmischen Segensgruss spendet. 24) Mir liegt daran, mein Amt gründlich, durch und durch kennen zu lernen.

2. Gent. I never heard any soldier dislike it.²

Lucio. I believe thee; for, I think, thou never wast where grace was said.

2. Gent. No? a dozen times at least.

1. Gent. What, in metre?³

Lucio. In any proportion, or in any language.

1. Gent. I think, or in any religion.

Lucio. Ay; why not? Grace is grace, despite of all controversy: as for example, thou thyself art a wicked villain, despite of all grace.⁴

1. Gent. Well, there went but a pair of shears between us.⁵

Lucio. I grant; as there may between the lists and the velvet: thou art the list.

1. Gent. And thou the velvet: thou art good velvet: thou art a three-pil'd piece, I warrant thee. I had as lief be a list of an English kersey, as be pil'd, as thou art pil'd, for a French velvet.⁶ Do I speak feelingly now?

Lucio. I think thou dost; and, indeed, with most painful feeling of thy speech:⁷ I will, out of thine own confession, learn to begin thy health; but, whilst I live, forget to drink after thee.

1. Gent. I think, I have done myself wrong, have I not?

2. Gent. Yes, that thou hast, whether thou art tainted, or free.

Lucio. Behold, behold, where Madam Mitigation⁸ comes!

1. Gent. I have purchased as many diseases under her roof, as come to —

2. Gent. To what, I pray?

Lucio. Judge.

2. Gent. To three thousand dollars a year.⁹

1. Gent. Ay, and more.

Lucio. A French crown more.¹⁰

1. Gent. Thou art always figuring diseases in me; but thou art full of error: I am sound.

Lucio. Nay, not as one would say, healthy; but so sound¹¹ as things that are hollow: thy bones are hollow; impiety has made a feast of thee.

Enter Bawd.

1. Gent. How now? Which of your hips has the most profound sciatica?

Bawd. Well, well; there's one yonder arrested, and carried to prison, was worth five thousand of you all.

2. Gent. Who's that, I pray thee?

Bawd. Marry, Sir, that's Claudio; Signior Claudio.

1. Gent. Claudio to prison! 't is not so.

Bawd. Nay, but I know, 't is so: I saw him arrested; saw him carried away; and, which is more, within these three days his head¹² to be chopped off.

Lucio. But, after all this fooling,¹³ I would not have it so. Art thou sure of this?

Bawd. I am too sure of it; and it is for getting Madam Julietta with child.

Lucio. Believe me, this may be: he promised to meet me two hours since, and he was ever precise in promise-keeping.

2. Gent. Besides, you know, it draws something near to the speech we had to such a purpose.

1. Gent. But most of all, agreeing with the proclamation.

Lucio. Away: let's go learn the truth of it.

[Exeunt Lucio and Gentlemen.]

Bawd. Thus: what with the war, what with the sweat,¹⁴ what with the gallows, and what with poverty, I am custom-shrunk.

*Enter Clown.*¹⁵

How now? what's the news with you?

Clo. Yonder man is carried to prison.

Bawd. Well: what has he done?

Clo. A woman.¹⁶

1) do in der Fol., was auch Rowe noch beibehielt. — Die vorher von dem ersten Edelmann gebrauchten Worte heaven grant us its peace sind wörtlich aus dem Ritual alter Tischgebete entnommen. — Hammer änderte thanksgiving after meat, was vielleicht Sh. im Sinne hatte. 2) to dislike = sein Missfallen laut bezeugen, tadeln. So in As you like it (A. 5, Sc. 4) I did dislike the cut of a certain courtier's beard. 3) grace in metre = ein Tischgebet in Versen. — Lucio in seiner Antwort, welche Ritson dem zweiten Edelmann zuertheilen wollte, fasst metre als synonym mit proportion = Mass, Verhältniss, im Allgemeinen. 4) grace = Tischgebet, und = Frömmigkeit. Ein ähnliches Wortspiel mit grace findet sich in Titus Andronicus (A. 4, Sc. 3). 5) Eine sprichwörtliche Redensart: wir sind aus demselben Stoffe, den eine Scheere in zwei Stücke zerschnitten hat. So in Marston's Malecontent: There goes but a pair of shears between an emperor and the son of a bagpiper; only the dying, dressing, pressing and glossing makes the difference. 6) Wortspiel zwischen three-pil'd = von Sammet, und = geschoren, von dem Haar, das man in Folge der Lustseuche einbüsste. — pil'd für pill'd. — Auf die Lustseuche (French sickness) spielt auch French velvet an. 7) Lucio giebt dem ersten Edelmann die Insinuation zurück, indem er sagt: Du fühlst den Sinn Deiner Anspielung auf die Lustseuche schmerzlich genug an Dir selber, so dass ich künftig, Deinem eigenen Geständniss gemäss, wohl Dir zutrinken, auf Dein Wohl trinken werde, nicht aber aus demselben Becher Dir Bescheid thun will, um nicht so von Dir angesteckt zu werden. 8) So betitelt Lucio scherzhaft die Kupplerin, weil sie die Schmerzen der hoffnungslosen Liebe lindert. — Die Fol. theilt auch noch die folgende Rede I have purchased bis come to — dem Lucio zu, obwohl sie offenbar dem ersten Edelmann angehört. Manche Hgg. legen mit Pope die ganze Rede von Behold bis come to — dem ersten Edelmann bei, ebenso das folgende Judge. 9) Die Fol. schreibt Dollours, um das hier beabsichtigte Wortspiel zwischen dolours und dollars, das Sh. auch in Tempest (A. 2, Sc. 1) und in K. Lear (A. 2, Sc. 4) hat, deutlicher hervorzuheben. 10) Dasselbe Wortspiel von French crown = ein Schädel, der in Folge der Lustseuche kahl geworden ist, und = französische Goldmünze, findet sich in Midsummer-Night's Dream (A. 1, Sc. 2). 11) sound = gesund, und = tönend, wie ein hohles Gefäss, hier von den durch Ausschweifungen ausgehöhlten marklosen Knochen. 12) So die Fol. Rowe fügte is hinter head ein, andre Hgg. setzen head's. 13) fooling geht auf das Witzgefecht, das Lucio mit seinen Freunden vollführt hat. 14) sweat = die Schwitzkur, der sich manche sonstige Kunden der Kupplerin zur Heilung von der Lustseuche unterwerfen mussten, scheint zugleich für diese Lustseuche selbst gebraucht zu sein. So in K. Henry IV. Second Part, Epilogue: Falstaff shall die of a sweat. 15) Der Clown dieses Dramas steht wie der entsprechende Charakter in Timon of Athens (A. 2, Sc. 2) im Dienste der Kupplerin. 16) Der Clown fasst to do in obscönem Sinn, wie in Titus Andronicus (A. 4, Sc. 2), wo auf Chiron's Vorwurf: Thou hast undone our mother Aaron versetzt Villain, I have done

Bawd. But what's his offence?

Clo. Groping for trouts in a peculiar river.¹⁷

Bawd. What, is there a maid with child by him?

Clo. No; but there's a woman with maid by him. You have not heard of the proclamation, have you?

Bawd. What proclamation, man?

Clo. All houses¹⁸ in the suburbs of Vienna must be pluck'd down.

Bawd. And what shall become of those in the city?

Clo. They shall stand for seed: they had gone down too, but that a wise burgher put in for them.

Bawd. But shall all our houses of resort in the suburbs be pull'd down?

Clo. To the ground, mistress.

Bawd. Why, here's a change, indeed, in the commonwealth! What shall become of me?

Clo. Come; fear not you:¹⁹ good counsellors lack no clients: though you change your place, you need not change your trade; I'll be your tapster still. Courage! there will be pity taken on you; you that have worn your eyes almost out in the service, you will be considered.

Bawd. What's to do here, Thomas Tapster?²⁰ Let's withdraw.

Clo. Here comes Signior Claudio, led by the provost to prison: and there's Madam Juliet. [Exeunt.]

SCENE III.

The Same.

*Enter Provost, CLAUDIO, JULIET, and Officers.*¹

Claud. Fellow, why dost thou show me thus to the world?

Bear me to prison, where I am committed.

Prov. I do it not in evil disposition, But from Lord Angelo by special charge.

Claud. Thus can the demi-god Authority Make us pay down for our offence by weight.² — The words³ of heaven; — on whom it will, it will; On whom it will not, so: yet still 't is just.

Enter Lucio and Two Gentlemen.

Lucio. Why, how now, Claudio? whence comes this restraint?

Claud. From too much liberty, my Lucio, liberty: As surfeit is the father of much fast, So every scope by the immoderate use Turns to restraint. Our natures do pursue, Like rats that ravin down their proper bane,⁴ A thirsty evil, and when we drink, we die.

Lucio. If I could speak so wisely under an arrest, I would send for certain of my creditors.⁵ And yet, to say the truth, I had as lief have the foppery of freedom, as the morality⁶ of imprisonment. — What's thy offence, Claudio?

Claud. What but to speak of would offend again.

Lucio. What, is it murder?

Claud. No.

Lucio. Lechery?

Claud. Call it so.

Prov. Away, Sir; you must go.

Claud. One word, good friend. — Lucio, a word with you. [Takes him aside.]

Lucio. A hundred, if they'll do you any good. Is lechery so look'd after?

Claud. Thus stands it with me: upon a true contract,⁷

I got possession of Julietta's bed:

You know the lady; she is fast my wife,

Save that we do the denunciation⁸ lack

Of outward order: this we came not to,

thy mother. 17) peculiar = im Privatbesitz befindlich, Etwas dessen Benutzung also verboten ist. Dasselbe Gleichniss kehrt wieder in Winter's Tale (A. 1, Sc. 2) And many a man there is, even at this present, || Now, while I speak this, holds his wife by the arm, || That little thinks she has been sluic'd in 's absence, || And his pond fish'd by his next neighbour. 18) Tyrwhitt schlägt vor, bawdy-houses oder houses of resort zu setzen. Indess ist houses in Verbindung mit in the suburbs als euphemistischer Ausdruck für Bordell deutlich genug. So steht in Beaumont und Fletcher's Dramen wiederholt euphemistisch suburb ladies = liederliche Weibsbilder. 19) Seid um Euretwillen unbesorgt. 20) Der eigentliche Name des Clown ist, wie sich später ergibt, Pompey. — Thomas oder Tom ist nur die herkömmliche Bezeichnung eines Zapfers = Tom Tapster.

1) Die Fol. und nach ihr die meisten Ausgaben beginnen hier eine neue dritte Scene, obgleich die Handlung ununterbrochen auf demselben Platze weiter geht. Wegen der Uebereinstimmung im Citiren ist es rathsam, von dieser einmal hergebrachten Sceneneintheilung nicht wieder abzuweichen. — Die Fol. lässt Lucio und die beiden Edelleute zugleich mit den Uebrigen auftreten oder nennt sie doch hier zu Anfang der Scene, in deren Verlauf sie erst erscheinen sollen. Ein ähnliches Verfahren beobachtet die Fol. auch bei andern Dramen, z. B. in Two Gentlemen of Verona. 2) Die Amtsgewalt, die wie ein Halbgott über den Menschen thront, zwingt uns für unsere Vergehungen nach dem vollen Gewicht zu zahlen, legt uns Bussen auf, die eben so schwer sind wie unsere Vergehungen. 3) Die Worte des Himmels, welche Sh. hier im Sinne hat, stehen in dem Römerbrief des Apostels Paulus (Cap. 9, V. 15 und 18) und lauten in der englischen Bibel For he saith to Moses, I will have mercy on whom I will have mercy und Therefore hath he mercy on whom he will have mercy. — Erwägenswerth ist Roberts' Conjectur word für words, die Staunton in den Text gesetzt hat. — Die Cambridge Edd. folgen der Fol., die kein Interpunctuationszeichen hinter weight setzt und also the words of heaven als Object mit dem Vorhergehenden verbindet. 4) Wie Ratten, die das ihnen bestimmte Gift niederschlingen. Steevens citirt dazu aus Chapman's Revenge for Honour: Like poison'd rats, which, when they have swallowed || The pleasing bane, rest not until they drink; || And can rest then much less until they burst. 5) Damit die Gläubiger mich auch verhaften liessen und mich so veranlassten, so weise zu reden, wie Claudio in seiner Haft thut. 6) morality verbesserte Davenant in seiner Umarbeitung dieses Dramas und des damit verschmolzenen Much Ado about Nothing, die 1633 unter dem Titel Law against Lovers erschien, das mortality der Fol. 7) contract betont Sh. bald auf der ersten und bald auf der zweiten Sylbe. 8) denunciation of outward order = die vorschriftsmässige, herkömmliche öffentliche Verkündigung der Vermählung. So gebraucht Sh. to denounce = verkünden, in K. John (A. 3, Sc. 1) I will denounce a curse upon his head: und in Hall's Cases of Conscience wird denunciation selbst ganz wie hier gebraucht: this public and reiterated denunciation of bans before

Only for propagation⁹ of a dower
 Remaining in the coffer of her friends,
 From whom we thought it meet to hide our love,
 Till time had made them for us.¹⁰ But it chances,
 The stealth of our most mutual entertainment¹¹
 With character too gross is writ on Juliet.

Lucio. With child, perhaps?

Claud. Unhappily, even so.

And the new deputy now for the duke, —
 Whether it be the fault and glimpse of newness,¹²
 Or whether that the body public be
 A horse whereon the governor doth ride,
 Who, newly in the seat, that it may know
 He can command, lets it straight feel the spur;
 Whether the tyranny be in his place,
 Or in his eminence that fills it up,
 I stagger in,¹³ — but this new governor
 Awakes me all the enrolled penalties,
 Which have, like unscour'd armour, hung by the wall
 So long, that nineteen zodiacs have gone round,¹⁴
 And none of them been worn; and, for a name,¹⁵
 Now puts the drowsy and neglected act
 Freshly on me: — 't is surely for a name.

Lucio. I warrant, it is: and thy head stands so tickle¹⁶ on thy shoulders, that a milkmaid, if she be in love, may sigh it off. Send after the duke, and appeal to him.

Claud. I have done so, but he's not to be found.

I pr'ythee, Lucio, do me this kind service.

This day my sister should the cloister enter,

And there receive her approbation:¹⁷

Acquaint her with the danger of my state;

Implore her, in my voice, that she make friends

To the strict deputy; bid herself assay him:

I have great hope in that; for in her youth

There is a prone¹⁸ and speechless dialect,
 Such as moves men; beside, she hath prosperous art,
 When she will play with reason and discourse,
 And well she can persuade.

Lucio. I pray, she may: as well for the encouragement of the like, which else would stand under grievous imposition,¹⁹ as for the enjoying of thy life, who I would be sorry should be thus foolishly lost at a game of tick-tack.²⁰ I'll to her.

Claud. I thank you, good friend Lucio.

Lucio. Within two hours, —

Claud. Come, officer; away! [Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.

A Monastery.

Enter DUKE and Friar THOMAS.

Duke. No, holy father; throw away that thought:
 Believe not that the dribbling¹ dart of love
 Can pierce a complete² bosom. Why I desire thee
 To give me secret harbour, hath a purpose
 More grave and wrinkled,³ than the aims and ends
 Of burning youth.

Fri. May your grace speak of it?

Duke. My holy Sir, none better knows than you
 How I have ever lov'd the life remov'd,⁴
 And held in idle price to haunt assemblies,
 Where youth, and cost, and⁵ witless bravery keeps.
 I have deliver'd to Lord Angelo
 (A man of stricture⁶ and firm abstinence)
 My absolute power and place here in Vienna,
 And he supposes me travell'd to Poland;

marriage. 9) propagation steht hier in ungewöhnlichem Sinne = Förderung, Vermehrung durch Verzinsung. Da die Fol. propagation liest, was erst die späteren Folioausgg. verbessern, so dachte Malone an prorogation; Jackson las procuration. — for propagation lässt sich auch fassen, wie Sh. öfter for im negativen Sinne gebraucht, z. B. for drowning in Tempest (A. 1, Sc. 1) und for catching cold in Two Gentlemen of Verona (A. 1, Sc. 2), also hier: weil die Mitgift nicht zu beschaffen war, die noch in den Kisten ihrer Familie steckte. 10) Bis die Zeit bewirkt haben würde, dass sie, Julietta's Verwandte, für uns wären. 11) Die Heimlichkeit unseres sehr vertrauten, einverständenen Verkehrs ist mit zu deutlicher Schrift an Julietta geschrieben, verräth sich zu deutlich an Julietta's äusserer Erscheinung. 12) fault and glimpse of newness ist mit Sh.'scher Licenz in der Anwendung der Copula und in der Coordination verschiedener Begriffe gesagt: Die Strenge, mit welcher der an die Stelle des Herzogs getretene neue Statthalter verfährt, ist entweder die Schuld der Neuheit des Amtes, von dem er deshalb erst einen flüchtigen Blick gewonnen hat, oder u. s. w. 13) Ich schwanke darin, bin ungewiss, ob die jetzt plötzlich geübte Härte ihren Grund in der Herrscherstellung hat, die Angelo einnimmt, oder in seiner eigenen erhabenen Person, welche diese Stellung bekleidet. 14) Diese Zeitrechnung von neunzehn Jahren, während welcher die Strafgesetze unausgeführt geblieben sind, stimmt nicht ganz genau zu dem, was der Herzog selbst A. 1, Sc. 4) sagt: Which for these fourteen years we have let sleep. 15) Um sich einen Namen zu machen. 16) tickle = kitzlich, bedenklich, unsicher. Sh. hat dasselbe Adjectiv in K. Henry VI. Second Part (A. 1, Sc. 1) the state of Normandy stands on a tickle point. 17) approbation = Probezeit, Noviziat. 18) prone wird von den Hgg. in diesem Zusammenhang verschieden erklärt: eine Redeweise, die, obgleich sie stumm ist, doch die Herzen sich geneigt macht, sich zuwendet; oder: eine geneigte, demüthige Redeweise; oder endlich: eine bereite, gewandte Redeweise. Die erste Deutung, die auch mit dem sonstigen Gebrauche der Adjectiva in causalem Sinne bei Sh. übereinstimmt, scheint die plausiblere zu sein. 19) imposition = Besteuerung, Belastung mit einer Busse oder Strafe. 20) game of tick-tack = ein Brettspiel, Trictrac, sprichwörtlich in obscönem Sinne gebraucht.

1) dribbling von einem Pfeil oder Schuss, der sein Ziel nur matt oder gar nicht trifft. Collier citirt dazu aus Sidney's Astrophel and Stella: Not at the first sight nor with a dribbling shot || Love gave the wound. 2) complete, von Sh. bald auf der ersten Sylbe, bald auf der zweiten betont, erklärt Johnson mit completely armed. Es ist wohl eher = fest, nach allen Seiten ganz. 3) wrinkled = runzlicht, wie das Greisenalter, charakterisirt die ehrbare, dem Alter anstehende Absicht, die der Herzog bei seinem Plane hegt. 4) life remov'd = ein zurückgezogenes, abgesondertes Leben. So in As you like it (A. 3, Sc. 2) Your accent is something finer than you could purchase in so removed a dwelling. 5) and ergänzt die zweite Folioausg.: wo Jugend und Verschwendung und sinnloser Prunk walten. — Die Cambridge Edd. vermuthen with willess etc. 6) stricture = Strenge, Genauigkeit, gebraucht Sh. für strictness, welches Wort Davenant dafür in seinem

For so I have strew'd it in the common ear,
And so it is receiv'd. Now, pious Sir,
You will demand of me, why I do this?

Fri. Gladly, my lord.

Duke. We have strict statutes, and most biting laws,
(The needful bits and curbs to headstrong steeds)⁷
Which for this fourteen years we have let sleep;⁸
Even like an o'er-grown lion in a cave,
That goes not out to prey. Now, as fond fathers,
Having bound up the threat'ning twigs of birch,
Only to stick it in their children's sight
For terror, not to use, in time the rod
Becomes⁹ more mock'd than fear'd; so our decrees,
Dead to infliction, to themselves are dead,
And liberty¹⁰ plucks justice by the nose;
The baby beats the nurse, and quite athwart
Goes all decorum.

Fri. It rested in your grace
To unloose this tied-up justice, when you pleas'd;
And it in you more dreadful would have seem'd,
Than in Lord Angelo.

Duke. I do fear, too dreadful:
Sith't was my fault to give the people scope,
'T would be my tyranny to strike and gall them
For what I bid them do: for we bid this be done,
When evil deeds have their permissive pass,
And not the punishment.¹¹ Therefore, indeed, my father,
I have on Angelo impos'd the office,
Who may, in the ambush of my name, strike home,
And yet my nature never in the fight,
To do it slander.¹² And to behold his sway,
I will, as't were a brother of your order,
Visit both prince and people: therefore, I pr'ythee,
Supply me with the habit, and instruct me
How I may formally in person bear me¹³
Like a true friar. More¹⁴ reasons for this action,
At our more leisure shall I render you;
Only, this one: — Lord Angelo is precise;
Stands at a guard with envy;¹⁵ scarce confesses
That his blood flows, or that his appetite

Is more to bread than stone: hence shall we see,
If power change purpose, what our seemers be. [Exeunt.]

SCENE V.

A Nunnery.

Enter ISABELLA and FRANCISCA.

Isab. And have you nuns no further privileges?

Fran. Are not these large enough?

Isab. Yes, truly: I speak not as desiring more,
But rather wishing a more strict restraint
Upon the sisterhood, the votarists of Saint Clare.

Lucio. [Within.] Ho! Peace be in this place!

Isab. Who's that which calls?

Fran. It is a man's voice. Gentle Isabella,
Turn you the key, and know his business of him:
You may, I may not; you are yet unsworn.
When you have vow'd, you must not speak with men,
But in the presence of the prioress:

Then, if you speak, you must not show your face,

Or, if you show your face, you must not speak.

He calls again: I pray you, answer him. [Exit.]

Isab. Peace and prosperity! Who is't that calls?

Enter Lucio.

Lucio. Hail, virgin, if you be, as those cheek-roses
Proclaim you are no less! Can you so stead me,
As bring me to the sight of Isabella,
A novice of this place, and the fair sister
To her unhappy brother Claudio?

Isab. Why her unhappy brother? let me ask,
The rather, for I now must make you know
I am that Isabella, and his sister.

Lucio. Gentle and fair, your brother kindly greets you.
Not to be weary with you,¹ he's in prison.

Isab. Woe me! for what?

Lucio. For that, which, if myself might be his judge,
He should receive his punishment in thanks:
He hath got his friend with child.

Law against Lovers setzte. 7) steeds verbesserte Theobald das weeds der Fol., welches Collier jedoch beibehält, indem er sagt weed is a term still commonly applied to an ill-condition'd horse. — Manche Hgg. setzen mit der spätern Folioausg. for headstrong für to headstrong. 8) Die Emendation sleep für slip der Fol., welche sich schon in Davenant's Umarbeitung findet, wird gerechtfertigt durch die folgenden Verse. — Manche Hgg. setzen, mit Verwischung des Sh.'schen Sprachgebrauchs, for these fourteen years, und Theobald änderte gar for these nineteen years. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 3, Anm. 14. Sh. ist bei der Wiederholung solcher Zahlenangaben niemals sehr consequent. 9) becomes, das in der Fol. fehlt, fügte zuerst Pope zur Ergänzung des Satzes wie des Verses ein, nach dem Vorgange von Davenant's Bearbeitung: Till it in time become more mock'd than fear'd. 10) liberty = Ausgelassenheit, Zügellosigkeit. So in Timon of Athens (A. 4, Sc. 1) Lust and liberty, || Creep in the minds and marrows of our youth. 11) Dyce fragt, ob vielleicht their punishment zu lesen sei. — Indess ist the punishment nicht Object zu evil deeds have, sondern Nominativ, zu dem aus have their permissive pass das Prädicat zu suppliren ist. 12) Hammer setzte zuerst sight für fight der Fol., und it für in der Fol. — Letztere Emendation scheint besser begründet, als erstere, da fight zu ambush und strike home sehr wohl passt, wenn auch nur im figürlichen Sinne: indem doch zugleich mein Wesen niemals im Gefecht, in einem Conflict, der mir Schmach bringen könnte, sich zeigt. — Ziemlich kühn ist Staunton's Conjectur, die er jedoch nicht in den Text setzt: And yet my nature never win the fight || To die in slander. — Dyce und Singer vermuthen light für fight. — Knight, der die alten Lesarten der Fol. beibehält, erklärt to do in slander etwas gesucht mit to be prominent in action and thus exposed to slander. 13) me, das in der Fol. fehlt und das zuerst Capell einfügte, scheint unentbehrlich: unterweise mich, wie ich mich gehörig im Aeussern als ein wahrer Mönch zu halten oder zu benehmen habe. In Davenant's Umarbeitung steht I may in person a true friar seem. — So heisst es in Tempest (A. 1, Sc. 2) And that you will some good instruction give, || How I may bear me here. 14) Für more hat die Fol. das veraltete moe, in der folgenden Zeile jedoch more. 15) Er steht auf seiner Hut der Anfeindung gegenüber; er benimmt sich so, dass ihm der Hass und Neid nichts anhaben kann.

1) Um Euch nicht zu langweilen, um Euch kurzen Bericht abzustatten. 2) So die Fol.: macht mich nicht zum Gegenstand Eurer spasshaften Erfindungen, oder, wie Ritson erklärt: do not make a jest of me. — Dyce

Isab. Sir, make me not your story.²

Lucio. It is true.

I would not, though 't is my familiar sin
With maids to seem the lapwing, and to jest,
Tongue far from heart,³ play with all virgins so:
I hold you as a thing ensky'd, and sainted
By your renouncement,⁴ an immortal spirit,
And to be talk'd with in sincerity,
As with a saint.

Isab. You do blaspheme the good in mocking me.

Lucio. Do not believe it. Fewness⁵ and truth, 't is thus:
Your brother and his lover⁶ have embrac'd:
As those that feed grow full; as blossoming time,
That from the seedness the bare fallow brings
To teeming foison,⁷ even so her plenteous womb
Expresseth his full tilth⁸ and husbandry.

Isab. Some one with child by him? — My cousin Juliet?

Lucio. Is she your cousin?

Isab. Adoptedly; as school-maids change their names
By vain, though apt, affection.⁹

Lucio. She it is.

Isab. O! let him marry her.

Lucio. This is the point.
The duke is very strangely gone from hence,
Bore many gentlemen, myself being one,
In hand, and hope of action;¹⁰ but we do learn,
By those that know the very nerves of state,
His givings-out¹¹ were of an infinite distance
From his true-meant design. Upon his place,
And with full line¹² of his authority,
Governs Lord Angelo; a man whose blood
Is very snow-broth; one who never feels
The wanton stings and motions of the sense,
But doth rebate and blunt his natural edge¹³
With profits of the mind, study and fast.
He (to give fear to use and liberty,¹⁴
Which have, for long, run by the hideous law,
As mice by lions) hath pick'd out an act,
Under whose heavy sense your brother's life
Falls into forfeit: he arrests him on it,

And follows close the rigour of the statute,
To make him an example. All hope is gone,
Unless you have the grace¹⁵ by your fair prayer
To soften Angelo; and that's my pith of business¹⁶
'Twixt you and your poor brother.

Isab. Doth he so seek his life?

Lucio. Has censur'd him
Already;¹⁷ and, as I hear, the provost hath
A warrant for his execution.

Isab. Alas! what poor ability's in me
To do him good?

Lucio. Assay the power you have.

Isab. My power, alas! I doubt, —

Lucio. Our doubts are traitors,
And make us lose the good we oft might win,
By fearing to attempt. Go to Lord Angelo,
And let him learn to know, when maidens sue,
Men give like gods; but when they weep and kneel,
All their petitions are as freely theirs
As they themselves would owe them.¹⁸

Isab. I'll see what I can do.

Lucio. But speedily.

Isab. I will about it straight,
No longer staying but to give the mother¹⁹
Notice of my affair. I humbly thank you:
Commend me to my brother; soon at night
I'll send him certain word of my success.

Lucio. I take my leave of you.

Isab. Good Sir, adieu. [Exeunt.]

ACT II.

SCENE I.

A Hall in ANGELO'S House.

Enter ANGELO, ESCALUS, a Justice, Provost, Officers, and other Attendants.

Ang. We must not make a scarecrow of the law,
Setting it up to fear¹ the birds of prey,

liest nach Davenant's Vorgänge scorn für story. — Malone ändert: Sir, mock me not: — your story und setzt demgemäss in Lucio's Antwort hinter I would not ein Punctum. 3) Auf eine Eigenthümlichkeit dieses Vogels, weit von seinem Neste zu schreien und so dieses vor Entdeckung zu sichern, wird von Sh. und seinen Zeitgenossen häufig angespielt, wie sich denn sprichwörtlich in Ray's Proverbs findet: The lapwing cries tongue from heart und The lapwing cries most, furthest from her nest. Lucio will sagen: obgleich es sonst mein Fehler ist, dass ich mit Mädchen scherze und anders rede als ich's meine, so würde ich doch nicht mit allen Jungfrauen solches Spiel mir erlauben. 4) Nach Collier's Interpunction, welche by your renouncement mit dem Vorhergehenden verbindet. Die meisten Hgg. setzen hinter sainted ein Semikolon und verbinden also By your renouncement an immortal spirit. 5) fewness eigentlich = die geringe Anzahl, hier der Worte, wie sonst in few gebraucht wird. Der Satz ist elliptisch: kurz und wahr zu reden, so verhält sich die Sache so. 6) lover = die liebende Geliebte, wie vorher friend in demselben Sinne. 7) foison = Fülle des Herbstes, reiche Ernte. 8) his full tilth = Claudio's volle, ausreichende Thätigkeit als Pflüger. — Denselben Tropus hat Sh. in den Sonnets (3) For where is she so fair, whose unear'd womb || Disdains the tillage of thy husbandry? 9) Die gegenseitige Zuneigung der Gespielinnen erweist sich in solchem Namenstausch zwar eitel, kindisch, aber doch natürlich. 10) to bear in hand = täuschend hinhalten, ist verbunden mit in hope of action = in Hoffnung auf Thätigkeit oder Beschäftigung, vielleicht auf kriegerische Thätigkeit. 11) Die Fol. hat giving-out, was Rowe verbessert. 12) line = Schnur als Mass, daher = Bezirk, Ausdehnung. 13) his natural edge = der angeborene Stachel des Fleisches in Angelo. — profits of the mind = Erwerbungen des Geistes. 14) use and liberty ist nach dem Sh.'schen Gebrauche der Copula and zu fassen = die herkömmliche, zur Gewohnheit gewordene Ausgelassenheit. — to give fear to = Furcht oder Schrecken einflössen. 15) Wenn Ihr nicht die Gabe besitzt. 16) my pith of business = der Kern oder eigentliche Inhalt meines Geschäfts. 17) Er hat ihn schon verurtheilt. — Für has wäre vielleicht h'as scil. he has, eine Sh. sehr geläufige Zusammenziehung, zu schreiben; indess ist auch die Auslassung des Personalpronomen, wenn es sich so leicht aus dem Vorhergehenden ergänzen lässt, Sh.'sch. 18) Wenn Mädchen weinen und knieen, so erlangen sie den Gegenstand ihrer Bitten so uneingeschränkt, als ob sie selber im Besitze ihrer Bitten oder der Gewährung ihrer Bitten wären. 19) mother ist der Titel, den die Nonnen der Aebtissin geben.

And let it keep one shape, till custom make it
Their perch, and not their terror.

Escal. Ay, but yet
Let us be keen, and rather cut a little,
Than fall,² and bruise to death. Alas! this gentleman,
Whom I would save, had a most noble father.
Let but your honour know
(Whom I believe to be most strait in virtue),
That, in the working of your own affections,
Had time coher'd with place, or place with wishing,
Or that the resolute acting of your³ blood
Could have attain'd the effect of your own purpose,
Whether you had not, sometime in your life,
Err'd in this point, which now you censure him,⁴
And pull'd the law upon you.

Ang. 'T is one thing to be tempted, Escalus,
Another thing to fall. I not deny,
The jury, passing on the prisoner's life,⁵
May in the sworn twelve have a thief or two Guiltier than him they try; what's open made to justice,

That justice seizes: what know the laws,⁶
That thieves do pass on thieves? 'T is very pregnant,⁷
The jewel that we find, we stoop and take it,
Because we see it; but what we do not see,
We tread upon, and never think of it.
You may not so extenuate his offence
For I have had such faults;⁸ but rather tell me,
When I, that censure him, do so offend,
Let mine own judgment pattern out my death,
And nothing come in partial. Sir, he must die.⁹

Escal. Be it as your wisdom will.

Ang.

Where is the provost?

Prov. Here, if it like your honour.

Ang.

See that Claudio

Be executed by nine to-morrow morning.
Bring him his confessor, let him be prepar'd;
For that's the utmost of his pilgrimage.

[Exit Provost.]

Escal. Well, heaven forgive him, and forgive us all!
Some rise by sin, and some by virtue fall:
Some run from brakes of vice,¹⁰ and answer none,
And some condemned for a fault alone.

Enter ELBOW and Officers, with FROTH and Clown.

Elb. Come, bring them away. If these be good people in a commonweal, that do nothing but use their abuses in common houses,¹¹ I know no law: bring them away.

Ang. How now, Sir! What's your name, and what's the matter?

Elb. If it please your honour, I am the poor duke's constable,¹² and my name is Elbow: I do lean upon justice, Sir; and do bring in here before your good honour two notorious benefactors.

Ang. Benefactors! Well; what benefactors are they?
are they not malefactors?¹³

Elb. If it please your honour, I know not well what they are; but precise villains they are, that I am sure of,
and void of all profanation¹⁴ in the world, that good Christians ought to have.

Escal. This comes off well:¹⁵ here's a wise officer.

Ang. Go to: what quality are they of? Elbow is your name: why dost thou not speak, Elbow?

Clo. He cannot, Sir: he's out at elbow.¹⁶

Ang. What are you, Sir?

Elb. He, Sir? a tapster, Sir; parcel-bawd;¹⁷ one that serves a bad woman, whose house, Sir, was, as they say, pluck'd down in the suburbs; and now she professes a hot-house,¹⁸ which, I think, is a very ill house too.

Escal. How know you that?

1) to fear = scheuchen, erschrecken. 2) to fall = niederfallen lassen, wobei, wie bei dem Vorhergehenden, ein Wort wie Richtschwert als Object zu suppliren ist. — Douce bezieht die Metapher, weil sie in diesem Sinne nicht recht zu dem cut a little passen will, eher auf das Fällen eines Baumes. Indess ist Sh. in der Durchführung seiner Bilder nicht immer ganz genau. 3) So verbessert Rowe das our der Fol. nach Davenant's Vorgang. 4) Wie Steevens meint, ist for zu suppliren. Der Sh.'schen Ellipse angemessener erscheint es, dass eigentlich in which stehen sollte, entsprechend dem vorhergehenden in this point. — Zu to censure vgl. A. 1, Sc. 5, Anm. 17. 5) to pass on = zu Gericht sitzen, aburtheilen über Leben und Tod des Gefangenen. 6) Was wissen die Gesetze, was weiss die Rechtspflege davon, dass Diebe selbst über Diebe zu Gericht sitzen? Die Fol. hat what knows, was sogar Rowe noch beibehält. 7) pregnant = zutreffend von einem Argument oder Beispiel. 8) Damit dass ich ähnliche Fehler gehabt habe, könnet Ihr sein Vergehen nicht entschuldigen; sondern sagt mir eher, wenn ich, der ich ihn verurtheile, in derselben Weise mich vergehe, dann soll das von mir gefällte Urtheil als Richtschnur zu meiner Verdammung zum Tode dienen, und nichts dagegen zu meinen Gunsten vor Gericht geltend gemacht werden. 9) Die Fol. hat hier erst Enter Provost und lässt ihn unter den Personen zu Anfang der Scene unverzeichnet. 10) Die Fol. hat brakes of Ice, was einige Hgg. als breaks of ice zu retten suchen. Plausibler lesen die meisten jedoch mit Rowe brakes of vice, was Tollet erklärt mit the thorny paths of vice = die dornigen Pfade des Lasters, in denen der Mensch leicht stecken bleibt. So in K. Henry VIII. (A. 1, Sc. 2) 'T is but the fate of place, and the rough brake || That virtue must go through. — Capell fand in Ice der Fol. eine Abkürzung von Justice und las Some run from brakes of Justice, answer none, wo er brake wahrscheinlich als ein ehemals angewandtes Marterwerkzeug, oder eine Fussfalle, oder Fussfessel fasst, wie manche Hgg. auch, weniger wahrscheinlich, brakes of vice in diesem Sinne nehmen. — to answer none = Keinem Rede stehen, keine Rechenschaft ablegen für ihre Vergehungen. 11) commonweal = Staat, und common houses = Bordelle, ist so zusammengestellt, wie use und abuses. 12) Er will sagen the duke's poor constable. Dieselbe Verdrehung der Worte gebraucht ein dem Elbow analoger Charakter in Much Ado about Nothing (A. 3, Sc. 5) we are the poor duke's officers. 13) So kennt auch Dogberry in Much Ado about Nothing (A. 4, Sc. 2) die eigentliche Bedeutung von malefactors nicht. 14) profanation gebraucht Elbow für das Gegentheil = Gottesfurcht. 15) Ein ironisch gemeintes Lob, das der gewandten Ausdrucksweise des Constablers gespendet wird. 16) Wortspiel zwischen to be out = aus dem Concept gerathen, in Verbindung mit dem Namen Elbow, und zwischen to be out at elbow = am Ellbogen ein Loch im Rock haben. 17) parcel-bawd = ein Stück von einem Kuppler, theilweise ein Kuppler, bezieht sich auf a tapster, das eigentliche und nominelle Gewerbe des Clown. So steht parcel-gilt in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 2, Sc. 1). 18) hot-house = Badehaus, wo heisse Bäder und Schwitzbäder genommen wurden, zugleich ein heimliches

Elb. My wife, Sir, whom I detest¹⁹ before heaven and your honour, —

Escal. How! thy wife?

Elb. Ay, Sir; whom, I thank heaven, is an honest woman, —

Escal. Dost thou detest her therefore?

Elb. I say, Sir, I will detest myself also, as well as she, that this house, if it be not a bawd's house, it is pity of her life,²⁰ for it is a naughty house.

Escal. How dost thou know that, constable?

Elb. Marry, Sir, by my wife; who, if she had been a woman cardinally given,²¹ might have been accused in fornication, adultery, and all uncleanness there.

Escal. By the woman's means?

Elb. Ay, Sir, by Mistress Overdone's means; but as she spit in his face, so she defied him.²²

Clo. Sir, if it please your honour, this is not so.

Elb. Prove it before these varlets here, thou honourable man, prove it.

Escal. [To ANGELO.] Do you hear how he misplaces?²³

Clo. Sir, she came in great with child, and longing (saving your honour's reverence) for stew'd prunes.²⁴ Sir, we had but two in the house, which at that very distant²⁵ time stood, as it were, in a fruit-dish, a dish of some three-pence: your honours have seen such dishes; they are not China dishes, but very good dishes.

Escal. Go to, go to: no matter for the dish, Sir.

Clo. No, indeed, Sir, not of a pin; you are therein in the right; but to the point. As I say, this Mistress Elbow, being, as I say, with child, and being great-bellied, and longing, as I said, for prunes, and having but two in the dish, as I said, Master Froth here, this very man, having eaten the rest, as I said, and, as I say, paying for them very honestly; — for, as you know, Master Froth, I could not give you three-pence again.

Froth. No, indeed.

Clo. Very well: you being then, if you be remember'd, cracking the stones of the foresaid prunes, —

Froth. Ay, so I did, indeed.

Clo. Why, very well: I telling you then, if you be remember'd, that such a one, and such a one, were past cure of the thing you wot of,²⁶ unless they kept very good diet, as I told you, —

Froth. All this is true.

Clo. Why, very well then, —

Escal. Come; you are a tedious fool: to the purpose.

— What was done to Elbow's wife, that he hath cause to complain of? Come me to what was done to her.

Clo. Sir, your honour cannot come to that yet.²⁷

Escal. No, Sir, nor I mean it not.

Clo. Sir, but you shall come to it, by your honour's leave. And, I beseech you, look into Master Froth here, Sir; a man of fourscore pound a year, whose father died at Hallowmas. — Was 't not at Hallowmas, Master Froth?

Froth. All-hallownd eve.

Clo. Why, very well: I hope here be truths. He, Sir, sitting, as I say, in a lower chair, Sir; — 't was in the Bunch of Grapes,²⁸ where, indeed, you have a delight to sit; have you not?

Froth. I have so, because it is an open room, and good for winter.²⁹

Clo. Why, very well then: I hope here be truths.

Ang. This will last out a night in Russia, When nights are longest there. I'll take my leave, And leave you to the hearing of the cause, Hoping you'll find good cause to whip them all.

Escal. I think no less. Good morrow to your lordship.

[Exit ANGELO.]

Now, Sir, come on: what was done to Elbow's wife, once more?

Clo. Once, Sir? there was nothing done to her once.

Elb. I beseech you, Sir, ask him what this man did to my wife.

Clo. I beseech your honour, ask me.

Escal. Well, Sir, what did this gentleman to her?

Clo. I beseech you, Sir, look in this gentleman's face. — Good Master Froth, look upon his honour; 't is for a good purpose. Doth your honour mark his face?

Escal. Ay, Sir, very well.

Clo. Nay, I beseech you, mark it well.

Escal. Well, I do so.

Clo. Doth your honour see any harm in his face?

Escal. Why, no.

Clo. I'll be supposed³⁰ upon a book, his face is the worst thing about him. Good then; if his face be the worst thing about him, how could Master Froth do the constable's wife any harm? I would know that of your honour.

Escal. He's in the right. Constable, what say you to it?

Elb. First, an it like you, the house is a respected³¹ house; next, this is a respected fellow, and his mistress is a respected woman.

Bordell. 19) detest für protest oder attest sagt irrthümlich auch die Quickly in Merry Wives of Windsor (A. 1, Sc. 4). 20) it is pity of her life = so ist es schade, dass sie lebt. *Dieselbe Betheuerung ohne eigentlichen Sinn gebraucht auch Sir Andrew in Twelfth-Night (A. 2, Sc. 5) An we do not, it is pity of our lives. 21) cardinally given für carnally given = fleischlich gesinnt. — accused scheint Elbow für seduced zu gebrauchen. 22) Mit his und him ist Master Froth gemeint, den freilich Elbow in seiner verwirrten Erzählung noch nicht namhaft gemacht hatte. 23) Wie er die Worte verkehrt anwendet. So hatte Elbow eben honourable für dishonourable gesagt. 24) Gekochte Pflaumen werden als eine gewöhnliche, aus Gesundheitsrücksichten gebrauchte Kost in Bordellen und als charakteristisch für diese Häuser bei Sh. und seinen Zeitgenossen häufig erwähnt. So wird eine Kupplerin in Lodge's Pamphlet Wit's Miserie so geschildert: This is she that lays way at all the carriers for wenches new come up to London, and you shall know her dwelling by a dish of stewed prunes in the window; and two or three fleering wenches sit knitting or sowing in the shop. — Die Fol. druckt prawns für prunes. 25) Er will instant sagen, was die späteren Folioausgg. mit Verkenennung des Witzes in den Text setzen. 26) the thing you wot of = das bewusste Ding, ist die Lustseuche. 27) Der Clown fasst das me, welches Escalus als ethischen Dativ gebraucht, in wirklichem Sinne: lasst mich dazu kommen, für: kommt Ihr dazu. 28) Die einzelnen Zimmer in Wirthshäusern wurden, statt mit Nummern, wie heutzutage, durch Namen und entsprechende Abzeichen unterschieden. 29) Knight erklärt open room mit a common room, und das Folgende mit which is also a warm room. — Nach der plausibleren Auffassung anderer Hgg. soll Froth mit seinen Worten in einen lächerlichen Widerspruch verfallen. 30) Er meint deposed: ich will auf die Bibel beeidigt werden. 31) Elbow

Clo. By this hand, Sir, his wife is a more respected person than any of us all.

Elb. Varlet, thou liest: thou liest, wicked varlet. The time is yet to come that she was ever respected with man, woman, or child.

Clo. Sir, she was respected with him, before he married with her.

Escal. Which is the wiser here? Justice, or Iniquity? ³² — Is this true?

Elb. O thou caitiff! O thou varlet! O thou wicked Hannibal! ³³ I respected with her, before I was married to her? — If ever I was respected with her, or she with me, let not your worship think me the poor duke's officer. Prove this, thou wicked Hannibal, or I'll have mine action of battery on thee.

Escal. If he took you a box o' th' ear, you might have your action of slander too.

Elb. Marry, I thank your good worship for it. What is 't your worship's pleasure I shall do ³⁴ with this wicked caitiff?

Escal. Truly, officer, because he hath some offences in him, that thou wouldst discover if thou couldst, let him continue in his courses, till thou know'st what they are.

Elb. Marry, I thank your worship for it. — Thou seest, thou wicked varlet, now, what's come upon thee: thou art to continue; ³⁵ now, thou varlet, thou art to continue.

Escal. Where were you born, friend?

Froth. Here in Vienna, Sir.

Escal. Are you of fourscore pounds a year?

Froth. Yes, an 't please you, Sir.

Escal. So. — What trade are you of, Sir?

Clo. A tapster; a poor widow's tapster.

Escal. Your mistress' name?

Clo. Mistress Overdone.

Escal. Hath she had any more than one husband?

Clo. Nine, Sir; Overdone ³⁶ by the last.

Escal. Nine! — Come hither to me, Master Froth. Master Froth, I would not have you acquainted with tapsters; they will draw you, ³⁷ Master Froth, and you will hang them. Get you gone, and let me hear no more of you.

Froth. I thank your worship. For mine own part, I never come into any room in a taphouse, but I am drawn in. ³⁸

Escal. Well: no more of it, Master Froth: farewell.

[Exit FROTH.] — Come you hither to me, master tapster. What's your name, master tapster?

Clo. Pompey.

Escal. What else?

Clo. Bum, Sir.

Escal. 'Troth, and your bum is the greatest thing about you, ³⁹ so that, in the beastliest sense, you are Pompey the Great. Pompey, you are partly a bawd, ⁴⁰ Pompey, howsoever you colour it in being a tapster. Are you not? come, tell me true: it shall be the better for you.

Clo. Truly, Sir, I am a poor fellow that would live.

Escal. How would you live, Pompey? by being a bawd? What do you think of the trade, Pompey? is it a lawful trade?

Clo. If the law would allow it, Sir.

Escal. But the law will not allow it, Pompey; nor it shall not be allowed in Vienna.

Clo. Does your worship mean to geld and splay ⁴¹ all the youth of the city?

Escal. No, Pompey.

Clo. Truly, Sir, in my poor opinion, they will to 't then. If your worship will take order ⁴² for the drabs and the knaves, you need not to fear the bawds.

Escal. There are pretty orders beginning, I can tell you: it is but heading and hanging.

Clo. If you head and hang all that offend that way but for then year together, you'll be glad to give out a commission for more heads. If this law hold in Vienna ten year, I'll rent the fairest house in it after three-pence a bay. ⁴³ If you live to see this come to pass, say, Pompey told you so.

Escal. Thank you, good Pompey; and, in requital of your prophecy, hark you: — I advise you, let me not find you before me again upon any complaint whatsoever; no, not for dwelling where you do: if I do, Pompey, I shall beat you to your tent, ⁴⁴ and prove a shrewd Cæsar to you. In plain dealing, Pompey, I shall have you whipt. So, for this time, Pompey, fare you well.

Clo. I thank your worship for your good counsel; [a-side] but I shall follow it, as the flesh and fortune shall better determine.

Whip me? No, no; let carman whip his jade;

The valiant heart's not whipt out of his trade.

[Exit.]

Escal. Come hither to me, Master Elbow; come hither, master constable. How long have you been in this place of constable?

Elb. Seven year and a half, Sir.

und nach ihm der Clown gebrauchen respected für suspected. 32) Justice und Iniquity, zwei Figuren aus den altenglischen Moral Plays, von denen die erste in allegorischer Darstellung die Gerechtigkeit, die zweite die Schelmerei und zugleich die lustige Person, gewöhnlich Vice genannt, vertrat. Unter Iniquity versteht Escalus den Clown, unter Justice den Constabler. 33) Missverständlich für cannibal, wie zum Schluss der Rede action of battery = Klage wegen Thätlichkeiten, missverständlich für action of slander = Verläumdungsklage, gebraucht wird. 34) Steevens und Malone setzen stillschweigend und willkürlich should für shall. 35) Elbow hält to continue für irgend eine schwere Strafe, die dem Clown zuerkannt wird. 36) Zweideutig: sie heisst Overdone von ihrem letzten Ehemann, und: sie ist zu stark mitgenommen, abgebraucht von dem letzten. 37) to draw = anzapfen, in Bezug auf das Gewerbe des tapster. Zugleich ist to draw, in Verbindung mit dem folgenden to hang, = zum Richtplatz schleifen, um gehängt zu werden. 38) to draw in = mit Gewalt hereinziehen, und = verlocken, prellen. 39) Eine Anspielung auf die hinten mit Pferdehaar oder Wolle dick ausgestaffirten Hosen, welche der Clown nach dem damaligen Zeitgeschmack trug. Diese Sitte nennt Escalus eine viehische (in the beastliest sense). 40) Vgl. oben Anm. 17. 41) to splay = verschneiden, castriren. Die meisten Hgg. setzen stillschweigend das gewöhnlichere spay dafür, doch kommt splay in diesem Sinne auch sonst vor; so in Chapman's Commentar zum Homer: unless you will take it for a splayed or gelded sow. — Für of the city setzen manche Hgg. mit der zweiten Folioausg. in the city. 42) to take order for = Anstalt treffen, Massregeln nehmen, in Bezug auf Etwas. 43) a bay of building erklärt Coles' lateinisches Lexikon mit mensura viginti quatuor pedum, also 24 Fuss Breite von der Fronte eines Hauses. — Pope änderte willkürlich a day. 44) Wie Escal. I thought, by the ⁴⁵ readiness in the office, you had continued in it some time. You say, seven years together?

Elb. And a half, Sir.

Escal. Alas! it hath been great pains to you. They do you wrong to put you so oft upon 't. Are there not men in your ward sufficient to serve it?

Elb. Faith, Sir, few of any wit in such matters. As they are chosen, they are glad to choose me for them: I do it for some piece of money, and go through with all. ⁴⁶

Escal. Look you bring me in the names of some six or seven, the most sufficient of your parish.

Elb. To your worship's house, Sir?

Escal. To my house. Fare you well. [Exit ELBOW. What 's o'clock, think you?

Just. Eleven, Sir.

Escal. I pray you home to dinner with me.

Just. I humbly thank you.

Escal. It grieves me for the death of Claudio; But there 's no remedy.

Just. Lord Angelo is severe.

Escal. It is but needful: Mercy is not itself, that oft looks so; Pardon is still the nurse of second woe. ⁴⁷ But yet, poor Claudio! — There is no remedy. Come, Sir. [Exeunt.

SCENE II.

Another Room in the Same.

Enter Provost, and a Servant.

Serv. He 's hearing of a cause: he will come straight. I 'll tell him of you.

Prov. Pray you, do. [Exit Servant.] I 'll know His pleasure; may be, he will relent. Alas! He hath but as offended in a dream: All sects, ¹ all ages smack of this vice, and he To die for it! —

Enter ANGELO.

Ang. Now, what 's the matter, provost?

Prov. Is it your will Claudio shall die to-morrow?

Ang. Did I not tell thee, yea? hadst thou not order? Why dost thou ask again?

Prov. Lest I might be too rash.

Under your good correction, ² I have seen, When, after execution, judgment hath Repented o'er his doom.

Ang. Go to; let that be mine: Do you your office, or give up your place, And you shall well be spar'd.

Prov. I crave your honour's pardon. What shall be done, Sir, with the groaning ³ Juliet? She 's very near her hour.

Ang. Dispose of her To some more fitter place, and that with speed.

Re-enter Servant.

Serv. Here is the sister of the man condemn'd, Desires access to you.

Ang. Hath he a sister?

Prov. Ay, my good lord; a very virtuous maid, And to be shortly of a sisterhood, If not already.

Ang. Well, let her be admitted. [Exit Servant. See you the fornicatress be remov'd: Let her have needful, but not lavish, means; There shall be order for 't.

Enter LUCIO and ISABELLA.

Prov. God save your honour!

Ang. Stay a little while. ⁴ — [To ISAB.] You 're welcome: what 's your will?

Isab. I am a woful suitor to your honour, Please but your honour hear me.

Ang. Well; what 's your suit?

Isab. There is a vice, that most I do abhor, And most desire should meet the blow of justice, For which I would not plead, but that I must; ⁵ For which I must not plead, but that I am At war 'twixt will and will not.

Ang. Well; the matter?

Isab. I have a brother is condemn'd to die: I do beseech you, let it be his fault, ⁶ And not my brother.

Prov. [Aside.] Heaven give thee moving graces! ⁷

Ang. Condemn the fault, and not the actor of it? Why, every fault 's condemn'd ere it be done. Mine were the very cipher of a function, To fine the faults, ⁸ whose fine stands in record, And let go by the actor.

der römische Julius Cäsar den Pompejus besiegte und zu seinen Zelten zurück in die Flucht schlug. ⁴⁵) Manche Hgg. ändern mit Pope by your readiness, obgleich der Sinn der alten Lesart klar genug ist. ⁴⁶) Elbow versieht das Constableramt für ein Stück Geld durch die Bank für alle Andern seines Stadtviertels. ⁴⁷) Der Sinn dieser zwei Verse wird in Romeo and Juliet (A. 3, Sc. 1) so in einen Vers zusammengefasst: Mercy but murders, pardoning those that kill.

1) Für sects wollte Sidney Walker sorts lesen. — sect für sex gebrauchen auch Sh.'s Zeitgenossen; so in Marston's Insatiate Countess: smooth promise || Deceives our sect of fame and chastity, und in Marlowe's Jew of Malta: a nunnery where none but their own sect may enter in. 2) under your good correction, eine Höflichkeitsphrase, mit der man eine Meinung äussert, die der Andere berichtigen oder rügen mag. 3) to groan, von dem Gestöhn der Kreissenden, worauf auch hier das folgende near her hour = die Stunde der Entbindung, geht. 4) Mit diesen Worten heisst Angelo den Schliesser noch verweilen, der mit dem vorhergehenden God save your honour! = Gott behüte Euer Gnaden! sich schon von ihm verabschieden wollte. 5) must bezeichnet hier den innern Drang geschwisterlicher Liebe, welcher die Isabella zwingt, für Claudio's Vergehen das Wort zu führen. — Das folgende must not im nächsten Verse geht auf das Sittengebot, das ihr verbietet, dieses Vergehen zu vertheidigen. — Diesen Widerstreit ihrer Gefühle bezeichnet sie dann mit at war 'twixt will and will not. 6) scil. let his fault be condemned: vertilgt sein Vergehen in ihm, aber nicht ihn selber. 7) moving graces = Gaben geistiger und leiblicher Anmuth, die den Angelo rühren können. — Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 5, Anm. 15. 8) Für faults der Fol. setzen manche Hgg. ohne Grund fault, und andere für to fine eben so unnöthig to find. — to fine = eine Strafe aussprechen oder verhängen: Angelo's Amt würde ganz überflüssig sein, wenn er eine Strafe Isab. O just, but severe law!

I had a brother then.⁹ — Heaven keep your honour!
Lucio. [To Isab.] Give 't not o'er so: to him again,
entreat him;
Kneel down before him, hang upon his gown;
You are too cold: if you should need a pin,
You could not with more tame a tongue desire it.
To him, I say!

Isab. Must he needs die?

Ang. Maiden, no remedy.

Isab. Yes; I do think that you might pardon him,
And neither heaven, nor man, grieve at the mercy.

Ang. I will not do 't.

Isab. But can you, if you would?

Ang. Look; what I will not, that I cannot do.

Isab. But might you do 't, and do the world no wrong,
If so your heart were touch'd with that remorse¹⁰
As mine is to him?

Ang. He's sentenc'd: 't is too late.

Lucio. [To Isab.] You are too cold.

Isab. Too late? why, no; I, that do speak a word,
May call it back¹¹ again. Well, believe this,¹²
No ceremony¹³ that to great ones 'longs,
Not the king's crown, nor the deputed sword,
The marshal's truncheon, nor the judge's robe,
Become them with one half so good a grace
As mercy does.

If he had been as you, and you as he,
You would have slipp'd like him; but he, like you,
Would not have been so stern.

Ang. Pray you, be gone.

Isab. I would to heaven I had your potency,
And you were Isabel! should it then be thus?
No; I would tell what 't were to be a judge,
And what a prisoner.

Lucio. [To Isab.] Ay, touch him; there 's the vein.¹⁴

Ang. Your brother is a forfeit of the law,
And you but waste your words.

Isab. Alas! alas!

Why, all the souls that were were forfeit once;
And He that might the vantage best have took,¹⁵
Found out the remedy. How would you be,
If He, which is the top of judgment,¹⁶ should
But judge you as you are? O, think on that,
And mercy then will breathe within your lips
Like man new-made!¹⁷

Ang. Be you content,¹⁸ fair maid,
It is the law, not I, condemns your brother:
Were he my kinsman, brother, or my son,
It should be thus with him: he must die to-morrow.

Isab. To-morrow? O, that 's sudden! Spare him, spare him!

He 's not prepar'd for death. Even for our kitchens
We kill the fowl of season:¹⁹ shall we serve heaven
With less respect than we do minister
To our gross selves? Good, good my lord, bethink you:
Who is it that hath died for this offence?
There 's many have committed it.

Lucio. [To Isab.] Ay, well said.²⁰

Ang. The law hath not been dead, though it hath slept:

Those many had not dar'd to do that evil,
If the first, that did the edict infringe,²¹
Had answer'd for his deed: now, 't is awake,²²
Takes note of what is done, and, like a prophet,
Looks in a glass,²³ that shows what future evils,
Either new,²⁴ or by remissness new-conceiv'd,
And so in progress to be hatch'd and born,
Are now to have no successive degrees,²⁵
But, ere they live, to end.

Isab. Yet show some pity.

Ang. I show it most of all, when I show justice; für Vergehungen verkünden wollte, deren Bestrafung schon das Gesetz vorherbestimmt hat, und wenn er dann das unterliesse, worin erst seine richterliche Thätigkeit besteht, d. h. die Vollziehung der Strafe an dem Schuldigen. 9) Der Nachdruck liegt auf had als Präteritum: Ich hatte also einen Bruder, und habe ihn nicht mehr, da er so gut wie todt ist. 10) remorse = Erbarmen, Gefühlsregung: wenn Euer Herz von solchem Mitleid gerührt wäre, wie das meinige es für Claudio empfindet. 11) back, das in der Fol. zufällig ausgelassen ist, ergänzt die zweite Folioausg. von 1632. 12) Der Nachdruck liegt auf this: davon seid fest überzeugt, dass u. s. w. 13) ceremony = jedes Attribut, das die Hochgestellten herkömmlich auszeichnet. Von solchen Attributen werden dann vier angeführt, die den König, den Statthalter, den Feldmarschall und den Richter als solche bezeichnen. Von diesen geht das zweite, the deputed sword für the deputy's sword = das dem Statthalter übertragene Schwert der Gerechtigkeit, speciell auf Angelo. 14) So in As you like it (A. 2, Sc. 7) you touch'd my vein at first. 15) Der die günstigste Veranlassung hatte, die Seelen als dem Gesetz verfallen zu behandeln. — Wie bei vantage ein Verbum wie bestrafen zu ergänzen ist, so bei remedy ein Verbum wie erlösen, von der Strafe entbinden. 16) top of judgment = die höchste Gerechtigkeit, der oberste Richter. — judgment ist im persönlichen Sinne zu fassen, wie vorher judgment hath repented o'er his doom. 17) Die Barmherzigkeit wird dann in Euch aufleben, in Eurem Munde, der sie ausspricht, den ersten Lebenshauch athmen, wie ein Mensch, der sein Dasein beginnt. 18) be you content = findet Euch darin, ergeht Euch darin, dass u. s. w., ist mit dem folgenden Verse zu verbinden, nicht durch ein Semikolon oder Punctum davon zu trennen. — condemns verbesserte Rowe das condemn der Fol. 19) the fowl of season = der Vogel, dessen Zeit gerade ist, der sich gerade dann für die Küche eignet. 20) Lucio denkt an sich selbst, wenn er Isabella's letzte Worte besonders treffend findet. 21) Zur Verbesserung des unvollständigen Verses lesen die meisten Hgg. mit Pope if the first man. — Plausibler ist, schon weil der Nachdruck auf first liegen bleibt, Capell's Lesart if he, the first. — edict betont Sh. gewöhnlich auf der letzten Sylbe, obgleich ihm auch die andere Betonung nicht fremd ist. 22) 't is awake bezieht sich auf das vorhergehende though it hath slept. 23) glass ist der Zauberspiegel, in welchem der Hexenmeister die kommenden Ereignisse vorhererkennt. 24) new liest Pope für now der Fol.: die künftigen Uebel sind entweder ganz neu, vorher noch nie da gewesen, oder solche, die früher schon einmal vorhanden, dann verschwunden waren und nun durch Nachsicht wieder neu entstanden sind. 25) successive degrees = erbliche Stufentfolge, stufenweise Erbfolge. — successive betont Sh. nur hier auf der ersten Sylbe, sonst überall auf der zweiten. — Das Gesetz, das erwacht ist, sorgt mit einem Blick in die Zukunft dafür, dass die Uebel, die sonst sich fortzupflanzen pflegen, nunmehr keinerlei Nachfolge haben, sondern dass sie ihr Ende finden, ehe sie leben. — Für das jedenfalls fehlerhafte but here they

For then I pity those I do not know,
Which a dismiss'd offence would after gall,
And do him right, that, answering one foul wrong,
Lives not to act another. Be satisfied:
Your brother dies to-morrow: be content.

Isab. So you must be the first that gives this sentence,

And he that suffers. O! it is excellent
To have a giant's strength, but it is tyrannous
To use it like a giant.²⁶

Lucio. [To ISAB.] That 's well said.

Isab. Could great men thunder
As Jove himself does, Jove would ne'er be quiet,
For every pelting,²⁷ petty officer
Would use his heaven for thunder; nothing but thunder. —

Merciful heaven!

Thou rather with thy sharp and sulphurous bolt
Splitt'st the unwedgeable and gnarled²⁸ oak,
Than the soft myrtle; but²⁹ man, proud man!
Drest in a little brief³⁰ authority,
Most ignorant of³¹ what he 's most assur'd,
His glassy essence, — like an angry ape,
Plays such fantastic tricks before high heaven,
As make the angels weep; who, with our spleens,
Would all themselves laugh mortal.³²

Lucio. [To ISAB.] O, to him, to him, wench! He will relent:

He 's coming; I perceive 't.

Prov. [Aside.] Pray heaven, she win him!

Isab. We cannot weigh our brother with ourself:³³
Great men may jest with saints: 't is wit in them,
But in the less foul profanation.

Lucio. [To ISAB.] Thou 'rt in the right, girl: more o' that.

Isab. That in the captain 's but a cholerick word,
Which in the soldier is flat blasphemy.

Lucio. [To ISAB.] Art avis'd o' that? more on 't.

Ang. Why do you put these sayings upon me?

Isab. Because authority, though it err like others,
Hath yet a kind of medicine in itself,
That skins the vice o' the top.³⁴ Go to your bosom;
Knock there, and ask your heart, what it doth know
That 's like my brother's fault: if it confess
A natural guiltiness, such as is his,
Let it³⁵ not sound a thought upon your tongue
Against my brother's life.

Ang. [Aside.] She speaks, and 't is Such sense, that my sense breeds with it.³⁶ Fare you well.

Isab. Gentle my lord, turn back.

Ang. I will bethink me. — Come again to-morrow.

Isab. Hark, how I 'll bribe you. Good my lord, turn back.

Ang. How, bribe me?

Isab. Ay, with such gifts, that heaven shall share with you.

Lucio. [To ISAB.] You had marr'd all else.

Isab. Not with fond shekels³⁷ of the tested gold,³⁸
Or stones, whose rates are either rich or poor
As fancy values them; but with true prayers,
That shall be up at heaven, and enter there
Ere sunrise: prayers from preserved³⁹ souls,
From fasting maids, whose minds are dedicate
To nothing temporal.

Ang. Well; come to me to-morrow.

Lucio. [To ISAB.] Go to; 't is well: away!

Isab. Heaven keep your honour safe!

Ang. [Aside.] Amen:

For I am that way going to temptation,
Where prayers cross.⁴⁰

Isab. At what hour to-morrow

Shall I attend your lordship?

Ang. At any time 'fore noon.

Isab. 'Save your honour!

[Exeunt LUCIO, ISABELLA, and Provost.]

Ang. From thee;⁴¹ even from thy virtue! —

What 's this? what 's this? Is this her fault, or mine?

live der Fol. setzt Hanmer but, ere they live, und Malone but where they live. — Erstere Emendation giebt den Sinn des Textes am besten wieder. 26) Steevens findet hier eine Anspielung auf die gewaltthätigen Riesen in den Ritterromanen. Vielleicht dachte Sh. aber an die himmelstürmenden Titanen, wie in Merry Wives of Windsor (A. 2, Sc. 1) I had rather be a giantess, and lie under Mount Pelion. 27) pelting = geringfügig, ärmlich. 28) gnarled = knorrig. 29) Die zweite Folioausg. von 1632 schiebt vor but zur Vervollständigung des Verses die Interjection O ein. 30) brief bezeichnet die kurze Dauer der Macht, wie little den geringen Umfang derselben. So in Macbeth (A. 5, Sc. 5) brief candle. 31) of gehört sowohl zu dem vorhergehenden ignorant wie zu dem folgenden assured. Die Weglassung der Präposition zum zweiten Male ist Sh.'sch: der Mensch bedenkt am wenigsten, was er am besten wissen sollte, wie gebrechlich, gleich dem Glase, sein Dasein ist. 32) Wären die Engel organisirt wie wir, so würden sie über die Thorheiten des Menschen, die sie als Engel beweinen, sich zu Sterblichen lachen; sie würden so darüber lachen, als wenn sie keine unsterblichen Wesen, sondern sterbliche wären. 33) Warburton änderte yourself. Indess ist der Sinn der alten Lesart der: Wir Menschen sind so verschieden geartet, dass wir Stärkeren den schwächeren Bruder nicht nach unserm eignen Masse messen dürfen. 34) Die Autorität hat in ihrem Ansehen eine heilende Kraft, mit der sie ihre eignen Gebrechen bedeckt, gleichsam die Wunden oben mit einer Haut überzieht. 35) it scil. your heart. 36) Der Sinn in Isabella's Reden wirkt anregend und befruchtend auf Angelo's Sinn. — Malone fasst, vielleicht zu gesucht, my sense als my sensual desires. 37) shekels = Seckel, eine altjüdische Münze, in der Fol. sickles, wie das Wort auch sonst bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen, und schon in Wickliffe's Bibelübersetzung, sich geschrieben findet. — fond = thöricht, nichtig. 38) tested gold fassen die Einen = geprägtes Gold, die Andern = geläutertes, durch die Probe des Schmelztiegels gegangenes Gold. Letztere Deutung erscheint als die natürlichere, da der Begriff des Prägens schon in shekels ausgedrückt ist. 39) preserved souls = Seelen, die sich rein erhalten haben. 40) Angelo bekräftigt das Abschiedswort der Isabella mit einem Amen, als sei es ein Gebet für die Erhaltung seiner Ehre, und fügt zur Erklärung seines Amen hinzu, dass er auf einem Wege zur Versuchung gehe, auf welchem das Gebet hinderlich entgegentrete, also ihn vor dem Weitergehen bewahre. — where bezieht sich auf that way. — Henley findet eine specielle Hindeutung auf den Passus im Vaterunser: Lead us not into temptation. — Tyrwhitt wollte lesen where prayers are crossed. 41) scil. God save my honour from thee. — Wie ebenvorher fasst auch

The tempter, or the tempted, who sins most?

Ha!

Not she, nor doth she tempt; but it is I,
That, lying by the violet in the sun,
Do, as the carrion does, not as the flower,
Corrupt⁴² with virtuous season. Can it be,
That modesty may more betray our sense
Than woman's lightness?⁴³ Having waste ground enough,
Shall we desire to raze the sanctuary,
And pitch our evils there?⁴⁴ O, fie, fie, fie!
What dost thou, or what art thou, Angelo?
Dost thou desire her foully for those things
That make her good? O, let her brother live!
Thieves for their robbery have authority,
When judges steal themselves. What! do I love her,
That I desire to hear her speak again,
And feast upon her eyes? What is 't I dream on?
O cunning enemy, that, to catch a saint,
With saints dost bait thy hook! Most dangerous
Is that temptation, that doth goad us on
To sin in loving virtue. Never could the strumpet,
With all her double vigour, art and nature,
Once stir my temper; but this virtuous maid
Subdues me quite. — Ever, till now,
When men were fond, I smil'd, and wonder'd how.⁴⁵

[Exit.]

SCENE III.

A Room in a Prison.

Enter DUKE, disguised as a friar, and Provost.

Duke. Hail to you, provost; so I think you are.

Prov. I am the provost. What's your will, good friar?

Duke. Bound by my charity, and my bless'd order,
I come to visit the afflicted spirits
Here in the prison: do me the common right
To let me see them, and to make me know
The nature of their crimes, that I may minister
To them accordingly.

Prov. I would do more than that, if more were needful.
Look, here comes one: a gentlewoman of mine,
Who, falling in the flames¹ of her own youth,
Hath blister'd her report. She is with child,
And he that got it, sentenc'd — a young man

More fit to do another such offence,
Than die for this.

Enter JULIET.

Duke. When must he die?

Prov. As I do think, to-morrow. —

[To JULIET.] I have provided for you: stay awhile,
And you shall be conducted.

Duke. Repent you, fair one, of the sin you carry?

Juliet. I do, and bear the shame most patiently.

Duke. I'll teach you how you shall arraign your conscience,

And try your penitence, if it be sound,
Or hollowly put on.

Juliet. I'll gladly learn.

Duke. Love you the man that wrong'd you?

Juliet. Yes, as I love the woman that wrong'd him.

Duke. So then, it seems, your most offenceful act
Was mutually² committed?

Juliet. Mutually.

Duke. Then was your sin of heavier kind than his.

Juliet. I do confess it, and repent it, father.

Duke. 'Tis meet so, daughter: but lest you do repent,³
As that the sin hath brought you to this shame;
Which sorrow is always toward ourselves, not heaven,
Showing, we would not spare heaven as we love it,
But as we stand in fear.

Juliet. I do repent me, as it is an evil,
And take the shame with joy.

Duke. There rest.⁴

Your partner, as I hear, must die to-morrow,
And I am going with instruction to him.

Grace go with you!⁵ Benedicite! [Exit.]

Juliet. Must die to-morrow! O, injurious love,⁶
That respites me a life, whose very comfort
Is still a dying horror!

Prov. 'Tis pity of him. [Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.

A Room in ANGELO's House.

Enter ANGELO.

Ang. When I would pray and think, I think and pray
To several subjects: heaven hath my empty words, hier Isabella your honour als höfliche Anrede, während Angelo seine durch die Versuchung gefährdete Ehre darunter versteht. 42) to corrupt = verfaulen, verwesen, als intransitives Verbum. — virtuous season ist der an sich wohlthätige Einfluss der Sonne, der auf das Veilchen zeitigend, auf das daneben liegende Aas verpestend einwirkt. 43) woman's ist auch zu modesty hinzuzudenken: Kann es geschehen, dass weibliche Sittsamkeit unsere Sinne, unsere Sinnlichkeit noch mehr verlockt als weibliche Leichtfertigkeit? 44) Der Sinn, in welchem evils hier gebraucht wird, ergiebt sich aus einem Passus der Bibel (2. Buch der Könige, Cap. 10, V. 27), den Henley dazu citirt: And they brake down the image of Baal, and brake down the house of Baal, and made it a draught house unto this day. 45) Ich wunderte mich, wie Leute so blind verliebt sein konnten. — Vgl. mit dieser Scene die entsprechende bei Whetstone, Einleitung pag. 116.

1) flames für flaws (flawes) der Fol. findet sich zuerst in Davenant's Bearbeitung und ist dann von Warburton aufgenommen worden: indem Julietta's Fall durch das heisse Blut der Jugend, durch ihr feuriges Temperament veranlasst wurde, versengten diese Flammen gleichsam ihren guten Ruf. 2) mutually = im Einverständniss. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 3, Anm. 11. — Indem Julietta nicht von Claudio verführt wurde, sondern sich ihm freiwillig hingab, beging sie eine schwerere Sünde als er. 3) Es ist recht, dass Du bereust, aber bereue nur nicht insofern als die Sünde Dich in diese gegenwärtige Schande versetzt hat. Solch eine Reue gilt immer mehr uns als dem Himmel und zeigt, wir würden dem Himmel nicht unsere Sünden ersparen aus Liebe zu ihm, sondern nur aus Furcht vor der Schande. — spare heaven erklärt Malone richtig mit spare to offend heaven. Manche Hgg. setzen ohne Grund seek für spare. 4) Bleibe dabei, in dieser reuigen Ergebung. 5) Die Worte Grace go with you! theilt Dyce nach Ritson's Vorgange der Julietta zu. 6) Für love setzt Hamner law. — Doch erklärt Staunton love richtig mit kindness und mercy. Weniger plausibel fasst Johnson love als Claudio's Liebe in ihren übeln Folgen für Julietta, oder Steevens noch gesuchter als Julietta's Liebe zu ihrem ungeborenen Kinde.

Whilst my invention,¹ hearing not my tongue,
 Anchors² on Isabel: heaven in my mouth,
 As if I did but only chew his name,
 And in my heart the strong and swelling evil
 Of my conception. The state, whereon I studied,
 Is like a good thing, being often read,
 Grown sear'd³ and tedious; yea, my gravity,
 Wherein (let no man hear me) I take pride,
 Could I, with boot,⁴ change for an idle plume,
 Which the air beats for vain. O place! O form!
 How often dost thou with thy case,⁵ thy habit,
 Wrench awe from fools, and tie the wiser souls
 To thy false seeming! — Blood, thou art blood:⁶
 Let's write good angel on the devil's horn,
 'T is not the devil's crest.⁷

Enter a Servant.

How now! who's there?

Serv. One Isabel, a sister,
 Desires access to you.

Ang. Teach her the way. [Exit Servant.]

O heavens!

Why does my blood thus muster to my heart,
 Making both it unable for itself,
 And dispossessing all my other parts
 Of necessary fitness?
 So play the foolish throngs with one that swoons;
 Come all to help him, and so stop the air
 By which he should revive: and even so
 The general, subject⁸ to a well-wish'd king,
 Quit their own part, and in obsequious fondness
 Crowd to his presence, where their untaught⁹ love
 Must needs appear offence.

Enter ISABELLA.

How now, fair maid?

Isab. I am come to know your pleasure.

Ang. That you might know it, would much better
 please me,

Than to demand what 't is. Your brother cannot live.

Isab. Even so. — Heaven keep your honour!

[Retiring.]

Ang. Yet may he live awhile; and, it may be,
 As long as you, or I: yet he must die.

Isab. Under your sentence?

Ang. Yea.

Isab. When, I beseech you? that in his reprieve,
 Longer or shorter, he may be so fitted,
 That his soul sicken not.

Ang. Ha! fie, these filthy vices! It were as good
 To pardon him, that hath from nature stolen
 A man already made,¹⁰ as to remit
 Their saucy sweetness,¹¹ that do coin heaven's image
 In stamps that are forbid: 't is all as easy
 Falsely to take away a life true made,¹²
 As to put metal in restrained means,
 To make a false one.

Isab. 'T is set down so in heaven, but not in earth.¹³

Ang. Say you so? then, I shall pose you quickly.
 Which had you rather, that the most just law
 Now took your brother's life, or, to redeem him,
 Give up your body to such sweet¹⁴ uncleanness
 As she that he hath stain'd?

Isab. Sir, believe this,
 I had rather give my body than my soul.¹⁵

Ang. I talk not of your soul. Our compell'd sins
 Stand more for number than for accompt.¹⁶

Isab. How say you?

Ang. Nay, I'll not warrant that; for I can speak Against the thing I say. Answer to this: —
 I, now the voice of the recorded law,
 Pronounce a sentence on your brother's life:

1) invention = Phantasie, Einbildungskraft. — Pope änderte ohne Grund intention dafür. 2) to anchor = festhaften an Etwas, mit den Gedanken wie mit einem Anker daran befestigt sein. So in Antony and Cleopatra (A. 1, Sc. 5) There would he anchor his aspect, and die || With looking on his life. 3) sear'd, was schon Hammer für das fear'd der Fol. vorschlug, fand Collier angeblich in einem Exemplar der Fol. im Besitze des Lord Ellesmere. — fear'd würde bedeuten: Etwas vor dem man sich scheut, während sear'd = trocken, dürr, besser in den Sinn und in den Zusammenhang mit tedious passt. 4) with boot = und noch obendrein Etwas dazugeben, d. h. zu der äussern Ehrbarkeit, die ich gerne los würde. 5) case = Hülle, wird näher erklärt in dem folgenden habit = Kleid. 6) Manche Hgg. setzen mit Malone zur Vervollständigung des Verses blood, thou still art blood; Andere mit Pope blood, thou art but blood. — Es ist hinter seeming eine Verspause anzunehmen. — blood ist die sinnliche Leidenschaft, die den Angelo fortreisst. 7) Der Teufel macht sich immer geltend in unserm Treiben: wenn wir ihn auch für einen Engel ausgeben, wenn wir auch den Namen »guter Engel« auf sein Horn schreiben, so ist er damit noch kein guter Engel, so ist diese Aufschrift doch nicht des Teufels Wappenschmuck oder Emblem. — Es bezieht sich also 't is nicht auf the devil's horn, sondern auf let's write good angel. — Johnson vermuthet 't is yet the devil's crest. — Vgl. diesen Monolog Angelo's mit dem des Promos bei Whetstone, Einleitung pag. 116 u. 117. 8) general = das Volk, der grosse Haufe, hat subject als Apposition bei sich, wie subject auch sonst collectiv für die Unterthanen gebraucht wird. 9) untaught = unmanierlich, ungezogen. — Vgl. Einleitung pag. 115. 10) Demjenigen, welcher ein schon vorhandenes Geschöpf dem Leben entwendet, d. h. es um's Leben bringt. 11) sweetness = Leckerhaftigkeit, ist hier = Lüsterheit in Bezug auf geschlechtliche Regungen. — Das folgende vom Falschmünzen entlehnte und auf die Erzeugung unehelicher Kinder angewandte Bild findet sich ebenso in dem Pseudo-Sh.'schen Drama K. Edward III. and will your sacred self || Commit high treason 'gainst the King, of heaven || To stamp his image in forbidden metal. Ebenso in Cymbeline (A. 2, Sc. 5) When I was stamp'd; some coiner with his tools || Made me a counterfeit. 12) a life true made = ein auf rechtmässige Art erzeugtes Dasein, ein legitimes Kind, ist der Gegensatz zu dem folgenden a false one = ein unrechtmässiges Dasein, ein Bastard. — restrained means = unerlaubte Werkzeuge, die zu solcher Schöpfung nicht gestattet sind. 13) Vor der himmlischen Gerechtigkeit mögen die beiden Vergehungen gleich sein, aber nicht vor der irdischen, wo der Mord schwerer bestraft wird, als geschlechtliche Sünden. 14) sweet uncleanness = lüsterne Verunreinigung. — Vgl. oben Anm. 11. — In der vorhergehenden Zeile setzte Rowe, nach Davenant's Bearbeitung, or für and der Fol. 15) Isabella will lieber ihren Leib dahingeben, als ihre Seele, d. h. lieber sterben, als in die von Angelo angedeutete Sünde willigen. 16) Sünden, die wir gezwungen begehen, werden nur gezählt,

Might there not be a charity in sin,
To save this brother's life?

Isab. Please you to do 't,
I 'll take it as a peril to my soul:
It is no sin at all, but charity.

Ang. Pleas'd you to do 't, at peril of your soul,
Were equal poise of sin and charity.¹⁷

Isab. That I do beg his life, if it be sin,
Heaven let me bear it! you granting of my suit,
If that be sin, I 'll make it my morn-prayer
To have it added to the faults of mine,
And nothing of your answer.¹⁸

Ang. Nay, but hear me.
Your sense pursues not mine: either you are ignorant,
Or seem so, craftily;¹⁹ and that 's not good.

Isab. Let me²⁰ be ignorant, and in nothing good,
But graciously to know I am no better.

Ang. Thus wisdom wishes to appear most bright,
When it doth tax itself: as these black masks²¹
Proclaim an enshield beauty ten times louder
Than beauty could, display'd. — But mark me;
To be received plain,²² I 'll speak more gross:
Your brother is to die.

Isab. So.

Ang. And his offence is so, as it appears
Accountant to the law upon that pain.²³

Isab. True.

Ang. Admit no other way to save his life,
(As I subscribe not that, nor any other,
But in the loss of question)²⁴ that you, his sister,
Finding yourself desir'd of such a person,
Whose credit with the judge, or own great place,
Could fetch your brother from the manacles

Of the all-building law,²⁵ and that there were
No earthly mean to save him, but that either
You must lay down the treasures of your body
To this suppos'd,²⁶ or else to let him suffer,
What would you do?

Isab. As much for my poor brother, as myself:
That is, were I under the terms of death,
The impression of keen whips I 'd wear as rubies,
And strip myself to death, as to a bed
That longing have²⁷ been sick for, ere I 'd yield
My body up to shame.

Ang. Then must your brother die.

Isab. And 't were the cheaper way.
Better it were, a brother died at once,²⁸
Than that a sister, by redeeming him,
Should die for ever.

Ang. Were not you then as cruel as the sentence
That you have slander'd so?

Isab. Ignomy²⁹ in ransom, and free pardon,
Are of two houses: lawful mercy
Is nothing kin to foul redemption.³⁰

Ang. You seem'd of late to make the law a tyrant;
And rather prov'd the sliding of your brother
A merriment, than a vice.

Isab. O, pardon me, my lord! it oft falls out,
To have what we would have, we speak not what we mean.
I something do excuse the thing I hate,
For his advantage that I dearly love.

Ang. We are all frail.

Isab. Else let my brother die,
If not a fedary, but only he,
Owe and succeed thy weakness.³¹

Ang. Nay, women are frail too.

nicht aber gerechnet. — Das for vor account lassen manche Hgg. mit Steevens weg. 17) Da Isabella die Insinuation Angelo's nicht versteht, sondern antwortet, als ob Angelo die Begnadigung Claudio's von Angelo's Seite meine, so legt er ihr nun seinen unkeusch gemeinten Antrag näher und sagt: Wenn es Euch beliebte, mit Gefährdung Eures Seelenheils, das Leben Eures Bruders zu retten, so würde die Sünde, die darin läge, nicht schwerer als die Nächstenliebe wiegen. 18) Und dass es nichts sei, was zu Eurer Verantwortung gehörte; nichts was Ihr zu verantworten hättet. 19) craftily setzte Rowe mit Davenant in den Text für crafty der Fol.; eine Aenderung, die schon der Vers anrath. 20) me ergänzt die zweite Folioausg. von 1632. 21) these steht ohne genauere und deutlichere Bezeichnung: solche schwarze Masken, wie die Damen sie beim Ausgehen tragen, verkünden eine dahinter versteckte Schönheit zehnmal lauter, als die Schönheit, wenn sie sich enthüllte, es vermöchte. — Für enshield scil. enshielded schlug Tyrwhitt inshell'd vor. 22) Um deutlich von Euch verstanden oder gefasst zu werden, will ich handgreiflicher reden. 23) that pain bezieht sich auf to die, also = die Todesstrafe. 24) in the loss of question = in dem planlosen, nichts bedeutenden Gange eines Gespräches, indem ich mich in ein Gespräch verliere. — Nur so gesprächsweise stimme ich diesem Mittel, sein Leben zu retten, bei. — Johnson vermuthete toss of question. — Singer schlug sehr plausibel loose of question vor: in der Freiheit, der Zwanglosigkeit des Gesprächs. 25) all-building law = das Alles bauende, gründende Gesetz, das Gesetz, auf dem jede staatliche Ordnung beruht. — Rowe setzte all-holding, und Theobald, dem die meisten Hgg. folgen, all-binding dafür. 26) Diesem angenommenen Manne, vorher als such a person etc. bezeichnet. — Das folgende or else to let him suffer, wo Hammer to streichen wollte, bezieht sich auf you must in einem Constructionswechsel zwischen Infinitiven mit und ohne to, welcher bei Sh. häufig vorkommt. 27) Das I, das sich vor have nach Sh.'scher Lizenz leicht suppliren lässt, fügen viele Hgg. mit Rowe in den Text ein. — So erklärt auch Staunton: Have, in this passage, by a not unfrequent ellipsis, is us'd for I have. 28) at once = kurz und gut, ein einzig Mal, steht im Gegensatz zu for ever = in Einem fort, immer. 29) ignomy, das Sh.'sche Wort, verwandelt die zweite Folioausg. in das gewöhnlichere ignominy. — Dieser Satz lautet in Davenant's Bearbeitung Ignoble ransom no proportion bears || To pardon freely given. 30) So die Fol. — Die meisten Hgg. ändern mit Steevens lawful mercy is || Nothing akin to foul redemption. — Die Cambridge Edd. schreiben die metrischen Mängel dieser Verse dem zufälligen Ausfall eines Wortes zu und stellen vermuthungsweise her Ignomy in ransom and free pardon are || Of two opposed houses: lawful mercy || Is nothing kin to foul redemption. 31) Isabella, indem sie auf Angelo's Bekenntniß We are all frail Bezug nimmt, sagt: Sonst, d. h. im entgegengesetzten Falle, mag mein Bruder sterben, wenn nicht ein Genosse, sondern er allein, die Schwäche, zu der Du Dich bekennst, als ein Erbtheil besitzt. — owe and succeed ist zu einem Begriffe durch die Copula and verknüpft. — Für thy weakness las Rowe by weakness, und Malone plausibler this weakness. — fedary (fedarie in der Fol.) ist dasselbe was federary = Verbündeter, Genosse, woraus es abgekürzt erscheint. — Die meisten Hgg. setzen mit den späteren

Isab. Ay, as the glasses where they view themselves,
Which are as easy broke as they make forms.
Women! — Help heaven! men their creation mar
In profiting by them.³² Nay, call us ten times frail,
For we are soft as our complexions are,
And credulous to false prints.³³

Ang. I think it well;
And from this testimony of your own sex,
(Since, I suppose, we are made to be no stronger,
Than faults may shake our frames) let me be bold:
I do arrest your words. Be that you are,
That is, a woman; if you be more, you're none;
If you be one (as you are well express'd
By all external warrants), show it now,
By putting on the destin'd livery.³⁴

Isab. I have no tongue but one:³⁵ gentle my lord,
Let me entreat you speak the former language.

Ang. Plainly conceive, I love you.

Isab. My brother did love Juliet; and you tell me,
That he shall die for 't.

Ang. He shall not, Isabel, if you give me love.

Isab. I know, your virtue hath a license in 't,³⁶
Which seems a little fouler than it is,
To pluck on others.

Ang. Believe me, on mine honour,
My words express my purpose.

Isab. Ha! little honour to be much believ'd,³⁷
And most pernicious purpose! — Seeming,³⁸ seeming! —
I will proclaim thee, Angelo; look for 't:
Sign me a present pardon for my brother,
Or with an outstretch'd throat I'll tell the world
Aloud what man thou art.

Ang. Who will believe thee, Isabel?
My unsoil'd name, the austereity of my life,
My vouch against you,³⁹ and my place in the state,
Will so your accusation overweigh,
That you shall stifle in your own report,
And smell of calumny. I have begun,
And now I give my sensual race⁴⁰ the rein:
Fit thy consent to my sharp appetite;
Lay by all nicety, and prolixious⁴¹ blushes,
That banish what they sue for; redeem thy brother
By yielding up thy body to my will,

Or else he must not only die the death,⁴²
But thy unkindness shall his death draw out
To lingering sufferance. Answer me to-morrow,
Or, by the affection that now guides me most,
I'll prove a tyrant to him. As for you,
Say what you can, my false o'erweighs your true.⁴³

[Exit.

Isab. To whom should⁴⁴ I complain? Did I tell this,
Who would believe me? O perilous mouths!
That bear in them one and the self-same tongue,
Either of condemnation or approof,
Bidding the law make court'sy to their will,
Hooking both right and wrong to the appetite,
To follow as it draws.⁴⁵ I'll to my brother:
Though he hath fallen by prompture⁴⁶ of the blood,
Yet hath he in him such a mind of honour,
That, had he twenty heads to tender down
On twenty bloody blocks, he'd yield them up,
Before his sister should her body stoop
To such abhorr'd pollution.
Then, Isabel, live chaste, and, brother, die:
More than our brother is our chastity.
I'll tell him yet of Angelo's request,
And fit his mind to death, for his soul's rest.⁴⁷ [Exit.

ACT III.

SCENE I.

A Room in the Prison.

Enter DUKE, as a friar, CLAUDIO, and Provost.

Duke. So, then you hope of pardon from Lord Angelo?

Claud. The miserable have no other medicine,
But only hope.

I have hope to live, and am prepar'd to die.

Duke. Be absolute for death;¹ either death, or life,
Shall thereby be the sweeter. Reason thus with life: —
If I do lose thee, I do lose a thing
That none but fools would keep;² a breath thou art,
Servile to all the skyey influences,
That do³ this habitation, where thou keep'st,
Hourly afflict. Merely, thou art death's fool;⁴

Folioausgg. feodary und fassen das Wort zum Theil als = Vasall, Lehnsmann. 32) Der Himmel möge den Weibern beistehen, da die Männer, indem sie von ihnen Vortheil ziehen, sinnlichen Genuss bei ihnen suchen, sich selbst oder die Weiber verderben, je nachdem their creation auf men oder auf women bezogen wird. Letztere Deutung scheint die natürlichere. 33) Zwei Begriffe sind hier verschmolzen: wir glauben falschen Versicherungen zu leicht, und: wir sind empfänglich, nachgiebig für falsche Eindrücke. 34) Indem Du die Tracht anlegst, die dem Weibe einmal von der Natur bestimmt ist, indem Du Dich schwach und gebrechlich zeigst, wie das Weib es von Natur ist. 35) Ich kann nicht anders sprechen, nicht anders antworten, als ich Euch vorher geantwortet habe. 36) Eure Würde hat das Vorrecht, dass sie sich etwas hässlicher oder befleckter stellen kann, als sie ist, um Andere fortzureissen zu Bekenntnissen. 37) Eure Ehre ist gering im Verhältniss zu dem grossen Glauben, den sie bei den Leuten findet oder beansprucht. 38) seeming = Heuchelei, ist auch bei dem Folgenden zu suppliren: ich will Dich als einen Heuchler bekannt machen. 39) Meine Erklärung gegen Dich; meine Betheuerung, dass Du mich fälschlich anlagst. 40) Der sinnliche Trieb Angelo's wird als ein Renner gefasst, dessen gestrecktem Laufe er den Zügel schiessen lässt. 41) nicety = Sprödigkeit, Bedenklichkeit. — prolixious = weitläufig, überflüssig, nicht zur Sache gehörig. 42) to die the death = des Todes sterben. 43) Wenn ich zu Deinen Aussagen falsch! sage, so gilt das mehr, als wenn Du sie für wahr erklärst. 44) Steevens und Malone setzen stillschweigend shall für should. — In der folgenden Zeile vermuthet Sidney Walker pernicious für perilous. 45) So dass Recht und Unrecht dahin folgen müssen, wohin das sinnliche Gelüste sie gleichsam an einem Haken schleift. 46) prompture = Eingebung, Verlockung, von to prompt. — Das Wort kommt sonst nicht vor. 47) Vgl. mit dieser Scene die entsprechende bei Whetstone, Einleitung pag. 117 u. 118.

1) Mache Dich entschieden auf den Tod gefasst. 2) to keep = in Acht nehmen, hüten. 3) dost in der Fol., was manche Hgg. zu retten suchen, indem sie die vorhergehende Zeile in Parenthese setzen. Indess bezieht sich der Relativsatz that do etc. offenbar auf all the skyey influences. — do setzte Hamner zuerst in den Text.

For him thou labour'st by thy flight to shun,
 And yet runn'st toward him still. Thou art not noble;
 For all the accommodations that thou bear'st
 Are nurs'd by baseness.⁵ Thou art by no means valiant;
 For thou dost fear the soft and tender fork
 Of a poor worm.⁶ Thy best of rest is sleep,
 And that thou oft provok'st; yet grossly fear'st
 Thy death, which is no more. Thou art not thyself;⁷
 For thou exist'st on many a thousand grains
 That issue out of dust. Happy thou art not;
 For what thou hast not, still thou striv'st to get,
 And what thou hast, forgett'st. Thou art not certain;
 For thy complexion shifts to strange effects,⁸
 After the moon. If thou art rich, thou 'rt poor;
 For, like an ass, whose back with ingots bows,
 Thou bear'st thy heavy riches but a journey,
 And death unloads thee. Friend hast thou none;
 For thine own bowels, which do call thee sire,⁹
 The mere effusion of thy proper loins,
 Do curse the gout, serpigo,¹⁰ and the rheum,
 For ending thee no sooner. Thou hast nor youth, nor age,
 But, as it were, an after-dinner's sleep,
 Dreaming on both; for all thy blessed youth
 Becomes as aged, and doth beg the alms
 Of palsied eld:¹¹ and when thou art old and rich,
 Thou hast neither heat, affection, limb, nor beauty,
 To make thy riches pleasant. What's yet in this,
 That bears the name of life? Yet in this life
 Lie hid more thousand deaths, yet death we fear,
 That makes these odds all even.

Claud. I humbly thank you.
 To sue to live, I find I seek to die,
 And, seeking death, find life:¹² let it come on.

Isab. [Without.] What, ho! Peace here; grace and good company!

Prov. Who's there? come in: the wish deserves a welcome.

Duke. Dear Sir, ere long I'll visit you again.

Claud. Most holy Sir, I thank you.

Enter ISABELLA.

Isab. My business is a word or two with Claudio.

Prov. And very welcome. Look, Signior; here's your sister.

Duke. Provost, a word with you.

Prov. As many as you please.

Duke. Bring me to hear them speak, where I may be conceal'd.¹³ [Exeunt DUKE and PROVOST.]

Claud. Now, sister, what's the comfort?

Isab. Why, as all comforts are; most good, most good,¹⁴ indeed.

Lord Angelo, having affairs to heaven,
 Intends you for his swift ambassador,
 Where you shall be an everlasting leiger:¹⁵
 Therefore, your best appointment¹⁶ make with speed;
 To-morrow you set on.

Claud. Is there no remedy?

Isab. None, but such remedy, as to save a head
 To cleave a heart in twain.

Claud. But is there any?

Isab. Yes, brother, you may live:
 There is a devilish mercy in the judge,
 If you'll implore it, that will free your life,
 But fetter you till death.

Claud. Perpetual durance?

Isab. Ay, just; perpetual durance: a restraint,
 Though all the world's vastidity¹⁷ you had,
 To a determin'd scope.¹⁸

Claud. But in what nature?

Isab. In such a one as, you consenting to't,
 Would bark your honour from that trunk you bear,
 And leave you naked.

Claud. Let me know the point.

Isab. O, I do fear thee,¹⁹ Claudio; and I quake,
 Lest thou a feverous life shouldst entertain,
 And six or seven winters more respect
 Than a perpetual honour. Dar'st thou die?
 The sense of death is most in apprehension,

4) Der Tod hat Dich geradezu zum Narren, treibt sein Spiel mit Dir, indem Du ihm zu entgehen suchst und ihm doch endlich in die Arme läufst. So in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 5, Sc. 4) But thought's the slave of life, and life time's fool, und in Romeo and Juliet (A. 3, Sc. 1) O, I am fortune's fool! — Vielleicht dachte Sh. auch an die Bilder des Todtentanzes, auf denen der Tod und der Narr neben einander figuriren. 5) baseness = Niedrigkeit, niedere Herkunft, steht im Gegensatze zu noble = adlig, vornehm. Der Mensch ist für Alles, was das Leben angenehm und bequem macht, angewiesen auf Wesen, die tief unter ihm stehen. 6) Die Schlange verwundet, nach dem damaligen Volksglauben, mit der gespaltenen Zunge. — Knight versteht unter worm den Wurm im Grabe. 7) Du hast kein eignes, bestimmtes, Dir selbst angehöriges Wesen, sondern hängst von tausend Kleinigkeiten ab. — Die Fol. schreibt exists für exist'st, wie sie auch sonst aus euphonischen Gründen s für st in der zweiten Person des Verbum setzt. 8) effects = Resultate, Symptome, die zum Vorschein kommen. — Johnson wollte affects lesen. 9) So verbessert die vierte Folioausg. von 1685 das fire der Fol. 10) serpigo = Aussatz. Die Fol. schreibt Sapego. 11) Deine Jugend, obgleich sie mit allen Gaben zum Genuss gesegnet ist, erscheint doch in ihrer Armuth als ob sie alt wäre und erbettelt sich von dem gelähmten, zum Genuss nicht mehr fähigen Alter ein Almosen, um ihr Dasein zu fristen. — blessed youth ist dem palsied eld entgegengesetzt. — Die Gaben, womit die Jugend gesegnet ist, werden nachher angeführt: warmes Blut, Trieb, körperliche Fähigkeit und Gabe zu gefallen (heat, affection, limb, beauty). 12) Claudio zieht das Resultat der vorhergehenden Rede: indem man sich um sein Leben bemüht, ist es eigentlich der Tod, den man erstrebt, und indem man den Tod sucht, findet man in dem Tode das wahre Leben. 13) Die Fol. hat Bring them to hear me speak, where I may be conceal'd, und die zweite Folioausg. Bring them to speak, where I may conceal'd || Yet hear them. Die drei letzten Worte, welche in der Fol. fehlen, behalten manche Hgg. bei. — Davenant setzte in seiner Bearbeitung Bring me where I conceal'd may hear them speak. 14) Manche Hgg. lassen most good des Verses wegen einmal weg. 15) leiger = Abgesandter, Agent an einem fremden Hofe. 16) appointment = Ausrüstung, Zurüstung. 17) vastidity = Weite, scheint von Sh. nach Analogie von validity aus vastity, das auch sonst vorkommt, gebildet zu sein. — though verbesserte Pope das through der Fol. 18) to a determin'd scope = auf einen engbegrenzten Spielraum, ist mit restraint = Beschränkung, zu verbinden. 19) Ich hege um Deinetwillen Besorgniss. 20) Claudio schöpft seine Entschlossenheit aus sich selbst, nicht aus einer Weichheit oder Zartheit, wie sie den Blumen eigen

And the poor beetle, that we tread upon,
In corporal sufferance finds a pang as great
As when a giant dies.

Claud. Why give you me this shame?
Think you I can a resolution fetch
From flowery tenderness? ²⁰ If I must die,
I will encounter darkness as a bride,
And hug it in mine arms.

Isab. There spake my brother: there my father's grave
Did utter forth a voice. Yes, thou must die:
Thou art too noble to conserve a life
In base appliances. ²¹ This outward-sainted deputy,
Whose settled visage and deliberate word
Nips youth i' the head, and follies doth emmew, ²²
As falcon doth the fowl, is yet a devil;
His filth within being cast, ²³ he would appear
A pond as deep as hell.

Claud. The princely Angelo? ²⁴

Isab. O, 't is the cunning livery of hell,
The damned'st body to invest and cover
In princely guards! Dost thou think, Claudio? —
If I would yield him my virginity,
Thou mightst be freed.

Claud. O heavens! it cannot be.

Isab. Yes, he would give it thee, from this rank offence,
So to offend him still. ²⁵ This night 's the time
That I should do what I abhor to name,
Or else thou diest to-morrow.

Claud. Thou shalt not do 't.

Isab. O! were it but my life,
I 'd throw it down for your deliverance
As frankly as a pin.

Claud. Thanks, dear Isabel.

Isab. Be ready, Claudio, for your death to-morrow.

Claud. Yes. Has he affections in him,
That thus can make him bite the law by the nose,

When he would force it? Sure, it is no sin; ²⁶
Or of the deadly seven it is the least.

Isab. Which is the least?

Claud. If it were damnable, he, being so wise,
Why would he for the momentary trick
Be perdurably fin'd? ²⁷ — O Isabel!

Isab. What says my brother?

Claud. Death is a fearful thing.

Isab. And shamed life a hateful.

Claud. Ay, but to die, and go we know not where;
To lie in cold obstruction, and to rot;
This sensible warm motion ²⁸ to become
A kneaded clod; and the delighted spirit ²⁹
To bathe in fiery floods, or to reside
In thrilling regions of thick-ribbed ice;
To be imprison'd in the viewless winds, ³⁰
And blown with restless violence round about
The pendent world; or to be worse than worst
Of those that lawless and incertain thoughts
Imagine howling! ³¹ — 't is too horrible.
The weariest and most loathed worldly life,
That age, ache, penury, ³² and imprisonment
Can lay on nature, is a paradise
To what we fear of death. ³³

Isab. Alas! alas!

Claud. Sweet sister, let me live.

What sin you do to save a brother's life,
Nature dispenses with the deed so far,
That it becomes a virtue.

Isab. O you beast!

O faithless coward! O dishonest wretch!
Wilt thou be made a man out of my vice? ³⁴

Is 't not a kind of incest, to take life
From thine own sister's shame? What should I think?
Heaven shield, my mother play'd my father fair;
For such a warped slip of wilderness ³⁵

ist, d. h. aus den Reden seiner Schwester. So kommt in Antony and Cleopatra (A. 2, Sc. 2) flower-soft hands vor. — Anders versteht D y c e den Sinn dieser Stelle, indem er mit Heath hinter tenderness ein Punctum statt des Fragezeichens setzt und think you = be assured fasst. 21) Indem mit gemeinen, niedrigen Mitteln Dein Leben erhalten wird. 22) to emmew ist der technische Ausdruck einer Falkenjagd: Angelo's strenge Miene scheucht die Thorheiten der Jugend so zusammen, wie ein Falke die Vögel, welche er umschwirrt, so dass sie sich nicht mehr zu regen wagen. 23) Wenn sein innerer Schmutz untersucht, aufgerührt würde. 24) Die Fol. hat hier The prenzie, Angelo? und ebenso drei Zeilen weiter in prenzie guards. — Die zweite Fol. setzt an beiden Stellen princely für prenzie, und Warburton priestly. — Knight las precise, was dem Verse widerstrebt. — Staunton's rev'rend und Singer's saintly weicht, so gut Beides dem Sinne nach passt, zu sehr in den Schriftzügen von prenzie ab. — Eben so leicht liesse sich an pious oder pensive denken. — Einige weitere Conjecturen für das räthselhafte prenzie führen die Cambridge Edd. an: pensie und primsie, Beides nordenglische Provinzialismen = demure. — guards eigentlich = Besatz am Kleide, dann = Kleid, Tracht. 25) Er würde Dir die Freiheit geben, in Folge solches schnöden Vergehens meinerseits, dass Du auf dieselbe Art auch ferner ihn kränkest, Dich gegen sein Gebot vergingest. — give it thee bezieht sich allgemein auf das vorhergehende thou mightst be freed. — Vielleicht ist from this rank offence auch damit zu verbinden und dann auf Claudio's, nicht auf Isabella's Vergehen, zu deuten. 26) Wenn Angelo Triebe in sich hat, die ihn so veranlassen können, dem Gesetz in's Gesicht zu schlagen, da er das Gesetz gerade in Kraft setzen will, so ist das Vergehen, um das es sich handelt, gewiss keine Sünde, oder doch von den sieben Todsünden die geringste. — Als diese sieben führt Douce an: pride, envy, wrath, sloth, covetousness, gluttony, lechery. 27) Mit dauernder, ewiger Strafe heimgesucht. 28) motion = eine Figur, die sich bewegen kann, ein Mechanismus, hier von dem Leibe des Menschen gebraucht und deshalb mit den Epithetis sensible warm als unterscheidenden Merkmalen versehen. 29) delighted spirit = der mit Freuden sonst gesegnete, an Genüsse gewöhnte Geist, steht im Gegensatze zu den Höllenstrafen, die gleich nachher erwähnt werden. 30) viewless, was Steevens mit invisible erklärt, steht in Bezug auf das vorhergehende to be imprison'd: die Winde halten die Seele gleichsam in einem unsichtbaren Gefängnis fest. 31) Oder schlimmer daran zu sein als die Schlimmsten unter Denen, welche ein verwegener und unsicherer Gedanke sich in der Hölle heulend vorstellt. — howling kommt in diesem prägnanten Sinne auch in Hamlet (A. 5, Sc. 1) vor: A ministering angel shall my sister be, || When thou liest howling. — thought hat die Fol. für thoughts. 32) perjury (periury) in der Fol. verbessert die zweite Folioausg. von 1632. 33) Ein Paradies im Verhältniss zu dem, was wir vom Tode fürchten. 34) Willst Du durch meine Sünde zum gemachten Mann werden? 35) slip of wilderness =

Ne'er issu'd from his blood. Take my defiance:³⁶
Die; perish! Might but my bending down
Reprieve thee from thy fate, it should proceed.³⁷
I'll pray a thousand prayers for thy death,
No word to save thee.

Claud. Nay, hear me, Isabel.

Isab. O, fie, fie, fie!

Thy sin's not accidental, but a trade.

Mercy to thee would prove itself a bawd:

'T is best that thou diest quickly. [Going.]

Claud. O hear me, Isabella!

Re-enter DUKE.

Duke. Vouchsafe a word, young sister; but one word.

Isab. What is your will?

Duke. Might you dispense with your leisure, I would by and by have some speech with you: the satisfaction
I would require, is likewise your own benefit.

Isab. I have no superfluous leisure: my stay must be stolen out of other affairs; but I will attend you awhile.

Duke. [Aside to CLAUDIO.] Son, I have overheard what hath passed between you and your sister. Angelo had never the purpose to corrupt her; only he hath made an assay of her virtue, to practise his judgment with the disposition of natures. She, having the truth of honour in her, hath made him that gracious denial which he is most glad to receive: I am confessor to Angelo, and I know this to be true; therefore prepare yourself to death. Do not satisfy your resolution with hopes³⁸ that are fallible: tomorrow you must die. Go; to your knees, and make ready.

Claud. Let me ask my sister pardon. I am so out of love with life, that I will sue to be rid of it.

Duke. Hold you there:³⁹ farewell. [Exit CLAUDIO.]

Re-enter Provost.

Provost, a word with you.

Prov. What's your will, fatlier?

Duke. That now you are come, you will be gone.
Leave me awhile with the maid: my mind promises with my habit, no loss shall touch her by my company.

Prov. In good time.⁴⁰ [Exit.]

Duke. The hand that hath made you fair hath made you good: the goodness that is cheap in beauty makes beauty brief in goodness; but grace, being the soul of your complexion, shall keep the body of it ever fair. The assault, that Angelo hath made to you, fortune hath con-vey'd to my understanding; and, but that frailty hath examples for his falling, I should wonder at Angelo. How will you do to content this substitute, and to save your brother?

Isab. I am now going to resolve him. I had rather my brother die by the law, than my son should be unlawfully born.⁴¹ But O, how much is the good duke deceived in Angelo! If ever he return, and I can speak to him, I will open my lips in vain, or discover his government.⁴²

Duke. That shall not be much amiss; yet, as the matter now stands, he will avoid your accusation: he made trial of you only.⁴³ — Therefore, fasten your ear on my advicings: to the love I have in doing good a remedy presents itself. I do make myself believe, that you may most uprightly do a poor wronged lady a merited benefit, redeem your brother from the angry law, do no stain to your own gracious person, and much please the absent duke, if, peradventure, he shall ever return to have hearing of this business.

Isab. Let me hear you speak further. I have spirit to do anything that appears not foul in the truth of my spirit.

Duke. Virtue is bold, and goodness never fearful. Have you not heard speak of Mariana, the sister of Frederick, the great soldier who miscarried at sea?

Isab. I have heard of the lady, and good words went with her name.

Duke. She should this Angelo have married; was af-fianced to her by oath,⁴⁴ and the nuptial appointed: between which time of the contract, and limit⁴⁵ of the solemnity, her brother Frederick was wrecked at sea, having in that peris'd vessel the dowry of his sister. But mark how heavily this befell to the poor gentlewoman: there she lost a noble and renowned brother, in his love toward her ever most kind and natural;⁴⁶ with him the portion and sinew of her fortune, her marriage-dowry;
with both, her combinate⁴⁷ husband, this well-seeming Angelo.

Isab. Can this be so? Did Angelo so leave her?

Duke. Left her in her tears, and dried not one of them with his comfort; swallowed his vows whole, pretending in her discoveries of dishonour:⁴⁸ in few,⁴⁹ bestowed her on her own lamentation, which she yet wears for his sake, and he, a marble to her tears, is washed with them, but relents not.

Isab. What a merit were it in death to take this poor maid from the world! What corruption in this life, that it will let this man live! — But how out of this can she avail?⁵⁰

Duke. It is a rupture that you may easily heal; and the cure of it not only saves your brother, but keeps you from dishonour in doing it.

Isab. Show me how, good father.

Duke. This forenamed maid hath yet in her the continuance of her first affection: his unjust unkindness, that in all reason should have quenched her love, hath, like an impediment in the current, made it more violent and unruly. Go you to Angelo: answer his requiring with a plausible obedience:⁵¹ agree with his demands to the point; only refer yourself to this advantage,⁵² — first, that your stay with him may not be long, that the time may have all shadow and silence in it, and the place answer to convenience. This being granted in course, — and now⁵³ follows all, — we shall advise this wronged maid to stand up your appointment, go in your place; if the encounter acknowledge itself hereafter,⁵⁴ it may compel him to her recompense; and here by this is your brother saved, your honour untainted, the poor Mariana advantaged, and the corrupt deputy scaled.⁵⁵ The maid will I frame, and make fit for his attempt.⁵⁶ If you think well to carry this, as you may, the doubleness of the benefit defends the deceit from reproof. What think you of it?

Isab. The image of it⁵⁷ gives me content already, and, I trust, it will grow to a most prosperous perfection.

Duke. It lies much in your holding up. Haste you speedily to Angelo: if for this night he entreat you to his bed, give him promise of satisfaction. I will presently to Saint Luke's; there, at the moated grange,⁵⁸ resides this dejected Mariana: at that place call upon me, and despatch with Angelo, that it may be quickly.

Isab. I thank you for this comfort. Fare you well, good father. [Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

The Street before the Prison.

Enter DUKE, as a friar; to him ELBOW, Clown, and Officers.¹

Elb. Nay, if there be no remedy for it, but that you will needs buy and sell men and women like beasts, we shall have all the world drink brown and white bastard.²

Duke. O heavens! what stuff is here?

Clo. 'T was never merry world, since, of two usuries,³ the merriest was put down, and the worser allow'd by order of law a furr'd gown to keep him warm; and furr'd with fox and lamb-skins too, to signify that craft, being richer than innocency, stands for the facing.

Elb. Come your way, Sir. — 'Bless you, good father friar.

Duke. And you, good brother father.⁴ What offence hath this man made you, Sir?

Elb. Marry, Sir, he hath offended the law: and, Sir, we take him to be a thief too, Sir; for we have found upon him, Sir, a strange picklock,⁵ which we have sent to the deputy.

Duke. Fie, sirrah: a bawd, a wicked bawd!

The evil that thou causest to be done,

That is thy means to live. Do thou but think

What 't is to cram a maw, or clothe a back,

From such a filthy vice: say to thyself,

From their abominable and beastly touches

I drink, I eat, array⁶ myself, and live.

Canst thou believe thy living is a life,

So stinkingly depending? Go mend, go mend.

Clo. Indeed, it does stink in some sort, Sir; but yet, Sir, I would prove —

Duke. Nay, if the devil have given thee proofs for sin, Thou wilt prove his.⁷ Take him to prison, officer;

Correction and instruction must both work,

Ere this rude beast will profit.

Elb. He must before the deputy, Sir; he has given him warning. The deputy cannot abide a whoremaster: if he be a whoremonger, and comes before him, he were as good go a mile on his errand.

Duke. That we were all, as some would seem to be,

From our faults,⁸ as faults from seeming, free!

Elb. His neck will come to your waist, — a cord, Sir.⁹

Clo. I spy comfort: I cry, bail. Here 's a gentleman, and a friend of mine.

fähigkeit. So steht plausibly in Lucrece: The Romans plausibly did give consent. — Umgekehrt gebraucht Sh. plausible im Sinne von plausible. 52) advantage = günstige Lage oder Bedingung. — to refer one's self to = sich auf Etwas beziehen, sich an Etwas halten. 53) Manche Hgg. lassen and willkürlich weg und setzen dann hinter all ein Punctum. 54) Wenn das Rendez-vous in seinen Folgen an den Tag kommt. 55) Der Sinn von scaled ist hier zweifelhaft, entweder = gewogen wie in einer Wagschale und zu leicht befunden; oder = enthüllt, wie ein Geschwür, dessen Decke man wegräumt. Letztere Erklärung erscheint als die natürlichere. 56) his attempt = Angelo's Angriff auf ihre Ehre. 57) the image of it = die Vorstellung davon in Gedanken, bezieht sich auf the doubleness of the benefit. 58) moated grange = ein mit einem Graben umgebener Meierhof, bezeichnet die Einsamkeit und Verlassenheit der unglücklichen Mariana.

1) Die Fol. bezeichnet hier keine neue Scene, und auch Rowe noch nicht. 2) bastard = ein schwerer süßer Wein aus Spanien, dessen beide Sorten, hell und dunkel, auch sonst erwähnt werden. So in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 2, Sc. 4) Why, then, your brown bastard is your only drink. — Zugleich ist hier ein Wortspiel mit der gewöhnlichen Bedeutung von bastard beabsichtigt. 3) Unter den beiden Wuchergeschäften versteht der Clown das jetzt verpönte Kupplergewerbe und den eigentlichen Geldwucher, der nicht nur geduldet wird, sondern auch in der Tracht ehrbarer und wohlhabender Bürger, in einem mit Pelz gefütterten Oberkleide, einhergehen darf. — craft bezieht sich auf fox-skin, und innocency auf lamb-skin, welches letztere als Unterfutter diente, während der Fuchspelz den Rock verbräunt. — Der Plural skins bezieht sich auf fox und lamb zugleich. 4) Da friar eigentlich = Bruder ist, so kehrt der Herzog die in sich widersprechende Begrüssung des Constablers scherzhaft um. 5) Da von diesem Dietrich nachher weiter keine Rede ist, so lässt sich nicht errathen, welche Bewandniss es eigentlich damit gehabt. 6) array ist Theobald's Emendation. — Die Fol. liest I eat away myself. — beastly touches = thierische Regungen. 7) So wirst Du Dich als dem Teufel angehörig erweisen. — to prove ist dem proofs for sin = Beispiele oder Argumente, die die Sünde rechtfertigen, entgegengesetzt. 8) Die zweite Folioausg. liest free from our faults, und die vierte Folioausg. free from all faults. Indess lässt sich our zweisylbig lesen. — Der Herzog denkt bei der Strafe, welche den Clown treffen soll, an Angelo und spricht den Wunsch aus: Möchten wir doch Alle so von unsern Fehlern frei sein, wie Einige davon frei scheinen möchten, und möchten ebenso

Enter Lucio.

Lucio. How now, noble Pompey? What, at the wheels¹⁰ of Cæsar? Art thou led in triumph? What, is there none of Pygmalion's images, newly made woman, to be had now, for putting the hand in the pocket and extracting it clutch'd?¹¹ What reply? Ha? What say'st thou to this tune, matter, and method? Is 't¹² not drown'd i' the last rain? Ha? What say'st thou, trot?¹³ Is the world as it was, man? Which is the way?¹⁴ Is it sad, and few words, or how? The trick of it?

Duke. Still thus, and thus: still worse!

Lucio. How doth my dear morsel, thy mistress? Procures she still? Ha?

Clo. Troth, Sir, she hath eaten up all her beef, and she is herself in the tub.¹⁵

Lucio. Why, 't is good; it is the right of it; it must be so: ever your fresh whore, and your powder'd bawd: an unshunn'd¹⁶ consequence; it must be so. Art going to prison, Pompey?

Clo. Yes, faith, Sir.

Lucio. Why, 't is not amiss, Pompey. Farewell. Go; say, I sent thee thither. For debt, Pompey, or how?

Elb. For being a bawd, for being a bawd.

Lucio. Well, then imprison him. If imprisonment be the due of a bawd, why, 't is his right: bawd is he, doubtless, and of antiquity too; bawd-born.¹⁷ Farewell, good Pompey. Commend me to the prison, Pompey. You will turn good husband now, Pompey; you will keep the house.

Clo. I hope, Sir, your good worship will be my bail.

Lucio. No, indeed, will I not, Pompey; it is not the wear.¹⁸ I will pray, Pompey, to increase your bondage: if you take it not patiently, why, your mettle is the more. Adieu, trusty Pompey. — Bless you, friar.

Duke. And you.

Lucio. Does Bridget paint still, Pompey? Ha?

Elb. Come your ways, Sir; come.

Clo. You will not bail me then, Sir?

Lucio. Then, Pompey, nor now.¹⁹ — What news abroad, friar? What news?

Elb. Come your ways, Sir; come.

Lucio. Go to kennel,²⁰ Pompey; go. [Exeunt Elbow, Clown, and Officers.] What news, friar, of the duke?

Duke. I know none. Can you tell me of any?

Lucio. Some say, he is with the emperor of Russia; other some, he is in Rome: but where is he, think you?

Duke. I know not where; but wheresoever, I wish him well.

Lucio. It was a mad fantastical trick of him, to steal from the state, and usurp the beggary he was never born to. Lord Angelo dukes it well in his absence: he puts transgression to 't.²¹

Duke. He does well in 't.

Lucio. A little more lenity to lechery would do no harm in him: something too crabbed that way, friar.

Duke. It is too general a vice, and severity must cure it.

Lucio. Yes, in good sooth, the vice is of a great kindred: it is well allied; but it is impossible to extirp it quite, friar, till eating and drinking be put down. They say, this Angelo was not made by man and woman, after this²² downright way of creation: is it true, think you?

Duke. How should he be made, then?

Lucio. Some report, a sea-maid spawn'd him; some, that he was begot between two stock-fishes. But it is certain, that when he makes water, his urine is congeal'd ice: that I know to be true; and he is a motion generative,²³ that's infallible.

Duke. You are pleasant, Sir, and speak apace.

Lucio. Why, what a ruthless thing is this in him, for the rebellion²⁴ of a codpiece to take away the life of a man? Would the duke, that is absent, have done this? Ere he would have hang'd a man for the getting a hundred bastards, he would have paid for the nursing a thousand. He had some feeling of the sport: he knew the service, and that instructed him to mercy.

Duke. I never heard the absent duke much detected²⁵ for women: he was not inclined that way.

Lucio. O, Sir, you are deceived.

Duke. 'T is not possible.

unsere Fehler von Heuchelei frei sein, sich unverhüllt zeigen. — Johnson schlägt vor, or faults from seeming zu lesen, was immerhin zu erwägen bliebe. 9) Eine scherzhafte Anspielung auf den Strick, mit dem der Herzog als Mönch sich umgürtet und mit dem der Clown gehängt werden soll. 10) So die Fol. — Steevens und Malone setzen willkürlich heels für wheels. — Pompey, der verhaftete Clown, wird als Pompejus gefasst, wie er kriegsgefangen neben dem Triumphwagen Cäsar's einerschreitet. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 44. 11) Wie die Galathea durch Pygmalion's Umarmung zum Weibe wurde, so werden die Mädchen, welche der Clown bisher zu verkuppeln hatte, durch die Umarmungen der Männer erst zu Weibern. Lucio fragt: Ist es nicht genug, dass solche Weibsbilder die Taschen bestehlen, dass Du jetzt selbst ein Taschendieb werden musst? — Die Fol. lässt it vor clutch'd aus. 12) is 't not bezieht sich auf What reply? Ist die Antwort, die Du mir geben sollst, im letzten Regen ertränkt? 13) Für trot = altes Weib, Kupplerin, wollte Grey to 't lesen. Collier schlägt troth vor. 14) Wie ist der Welt Lauf? Ist er traurig und lakonisch, oder wie? Was ist der Charakter davon? 15) Sie hat kein Fleisch mehr einzupökeln, sondern steckt jetzt selbst in der Pökeltonne. — tub ist zugleich die Tonne, in welcher die venerischen Kranken ihre Schwitzcur abmachen. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 2, Anm. 14. — Das Wortspiel wird in powder'd bawd fortgesetzt. 16) unshunn'd = unvermeidlich. So gebraucht Sh. die mit un- zusammengesetzten Participia überhaupt. 17) bawd-born = als Kuppler geboren. 18) wear = Tracht, Mode. 19) Manche Hgg. interpungiren Then, Pompey? nor now. Indess ist der Sinn wohl einfach: Ich will weder dann noch jetzt für Dich Bürge sein. — Sh. setzt für neither—nor häufig nor nur einmal. — then gebraucht der Clown = also, Lucio fasst es = dann, damals. 20) Johnson bemerkt dazu, dass Pompey auch ein Hundename sei. 21) Angelo spielt unterdess gut den Herzog und setzt der Sünde gehörig zu. 22) this steht in allgemeiner Beziehung = bekannt, bewusst. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 4, Anm. 21. — Viele Hgg. setzen stillschweigend the dafür. 23) Angelo ist nur eine zeugungsfähige Marionette, ein Mechanismus mit Zeugungswerken versehen, kein wirklicher zeugungsfähiger Mensch. Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 1, Anm. 28. — Theobald änderte ungenerative, und Capell las he is not a motion generative. 24) rebellion wird hier in demselben obscönen Sinne gefasst wie to rebel in Merchant of Venice (A. 3, Sc. 1) old carrion! rebels it at these years? 25) detected = blossgestellt, compromittirt, wegen eines Vergehens. So in Lucio. Who? not the duke? yes, your beggar of fifty.²⁶ and his use was to put a ducat in her clack-dish.²⁷ The duke had crotchets in him: he would be drunk too; that let me inform you.

Duke. You do him wrong, surely.

Lucio. Sir, I was an inward of his.²⁸ A shy fellow was the duke; and, I believe, I know the cause of his withdrawing.

Duke. What, I pr'ythee, might be the cause?

Lucio. No, — pardon: — 't is a secret must be lock'd within the teeth and the lips; but this I can let you understand, — the greater file²⁹ of the subject held the duke to be wise.

Duke. Wise? why, no question but he was.

Lucio. A very superficial, ignorant, unweighing³⁰ fellow.

Duke. Either this is envy in you, folly, or mistaking: the very stream of his life, and the business he hath helmed,³¹ must, upon a warranted need, give him a better proclamation. Let him be but testimonied in his own bringings-forth, and he shall appear to the envious a scholar, a statesman, and a soldier. Therefore, you speak unskilfully; or, if your knowledge be more, it is much darken'd in your malice.

Lucio. Sir, I know him, and I love him.

Duke. Love talks with better knowledge, and knowledge with dearer³² love.

Lucio. Come, Sir, I know what I know.

Duke. I can hardly believe that, since you know not what you speak. But, if ever the duke return (as our prayers are he may), let me desire you to make your answer before him: if it be honest you have spoke, you have courage to maintain it. I am bound to call upon you; and, I pray you, your name?

Lucio. Sir, my name is Lucio, well known to the duke.

Duke. He shall know you better, Sir, if I may live to report you.

Lucio. I fear you not.

Duke. O! you hope the duke will return no more, or you imagine me too unhurtful an opposite.³³ But, indeed, I can do you little harm: you'll forswear this again.

Lucio. I'll be hang'd first: thou art deceived in me, friar. But no more of this. Canst thou tell, if Claudio die to-morrow, or no?

Duke. Why should he die, Sir?

Lucio. Why? for filling a bottle with a tun-dish.³⁴ I would, the duke we talk of were return'd again: this ungenitur'd³⁵ agent will unpeople the province with continency; sparrows must not build in his house-eaves, because they are lecherous. The duke yet would have dark deeds darkly answer'd; he would never bring them to light: 'would he were return'd! Marry, this Claudio is condemn'd for untrussing. Farewell, good friar; I pr'ythee, pray for me. The duke, I say to thee again, would eat mutton on Fridays.³⁶ He's now past it; yet, and I say to thee, he would mouth with a beggar, though she smelt brown bread and garlic:³⁷ say, that I said so. Farewell. [Exit

Duke. No might nor greatness in mortality
Can censure scape: back-wounding calumny
The whitest virtue strikes. What king so strong,
Can tie the gall up in the slanderous tongue?
But who comes here?

Enter ESCALUS, Provost, Bawd, and Officers.

Escal. Go: away with her to prison!

Bawd. Good my lord, be good to me; your honour is accounted a merciful man; good my lord.

Escal. Double and treble admonition, and still forfeit³⁸ in the same kind? This would make mercy swear, and play the tyrant.³⁹

Prov. A bawd of eleven years' continuance, may it please your honour.

Bawd. My lord, this is one Lucio's information against me. Mistress Kate Keepdown was with child by him in the duke's time: he promised her marriage; his child is a year and a quarter old, come Philip and Jacob;⁴⁰ I have kept it myself, and see how he goes about to abuse me!

Escal. That fellow is a fellow of much license: — let him be called before us. — Away with her to prison! Go to; no more words. [Exeunt Bawd and Officers.] Provost, my brother Angelo will not be alter'd; Claudio must die to-morrow. Let him be furnished with divines, and have all charitable preparation: if my brother wrought by my pity, it should not be so with him.

Prov. So please you, this friar hath been with him, and advised him for the entertainment of death.

Escal. Good even, good father.

Duke. Bliss and goodness on you.

Escal. Of whence are you?

Duke. Not of this country, though my chance is now To use it for my time: I am a brother Of gracious order, late come from the See,⁴¹ In special business from his holiness.

Escal. What news abroad i' the world?

Duke. None, but that there is so great a fever on goodness, that the dissolution of it must cure it: novelty is only in request; and it is as dangerous to be aged in any kind of course, as it is virtuous to be constant in any undertaking.⁴² There is scarce truth enough alive to make societies secure, but security enough to make fellowships accurs'd.⁴³ Much upon this riddle runs the wisdom of the world. This news is old enough, yet it is every day's news. I pray you, Sir, of what disposition was the duke?

Escal. One that, above all other strifes, contended especially to know himself.

Duke. What pleasure was he given to?

Escal. Rather rejoicing to see another merry, than merry at anything which profess'd to make him rejoice: a gentleman of all temperance. But leave we him to his events, with a prayer they may prove prosperous, and let me desire to know how you find Claudio prepared. I am made to understand, that you have lent him visitation.

Duke. He professes to have received no sinister measure from his judge, but most willingly humbles himself to the determination of justice; yet had he framed to himself, by the instruction of his frailty, many deceiving promises of life, which I, by my good leisure, have discredited to him, and now is he resolved⁴⁴ to die.

Escal. You have paid the heavens your function, and the prisoner the very debt of your calling. I have labour'd for the poor gentleman to the extremest shore of my modesty; but my brother justice have I found so severe, that he hath forced me to tell him, he is indeed — Justice.⁴⁵

Duke. If his own life answer the straitness of his proceeding, it shall become him well; wherein⁴⁶ if he chance to fail, he hath sentenced himself.

Escal. I am going to visit the prisoner. Fare you well.

Duke. Peace be with you!

[Exeunt ESCALUS and Provost.]

He who the sword of heaven will bear

Should be as holy as severe;

Pattern in himself to know,

Grace to stand, and virtue go;⁴⁷

More nor less to others paying,

Than by self-offences weighing.

Shame to him, whose cruel striking

Kills for faults of his own liking!

Twice treble shame on Angelo,

To weed my vice,⁴⁸ and let his grow!

O, what may man within him hide,

Though angel on the outward side!

How may likeness made in crimes,

Making practice on the times,⁴⁹

To draw with idle spiders' strings

Most pond'rous and substantial things!

Craft against vice I must apply.

With Angelo to-night shall lie

His old betrothed, but despised:

So disguise shall, by the disguised,⁵⁰

Pay with falsehood false exacting,

And perform an old contracting.

ACT IV.

SCENE I.

A Room in MARIANA's House.

MARIANA discovered sitting; a Boy singing.

SONG.

Take, O! take those lips away,

That so sweetly were forsworn;

And those eyes, the break of day,

Lights that do mislead the morn:

But my kisses bring again,

bring again,

Seals of love, but seal'd in vain,

seal'd in vain.¹

Mari. Break off thy song, and haste thee quick away:

Here comes a man of comfort, whose advice

Hath often still'd my brawling discontent. — [Exit Boy.]

Enter DUKE, disguised as before.

I cry you mercy, Sir; and well could wish

You had not found me here so musical:

Let me excuse me, and believe me so,

My mirth it much displeas'd, but pleas'd my woe.²

Duke. 'T is good: though music oft hath such a charm,

To make bad good, and good provoke to harm.

constant. Der Sinn ist aber wohl: es ist schon ein Beweis von Tüchtigkeit, wenn man nur in irgend einem Unternehmen aushält. — Die Fol. hat and as it is as dangerous. Das überflüssige as strich die dritte Folioausg. 43) Wortspiel zwischen secure = sicher, und security = gerichtliche Sicherheit, Bürgschaft, die man für einen Freund eingeht und in der man stecken bleibt, so dass man darüber alle Freundschaft verwünscht. 44) to be resolved = auf Etwas gefasst sein. 45) Justice = die personifizierte Gerechtigkeit, im Gegensatz zu my brother justice = mein Mitrichter, mein College im Richteramt. 46) wherein bezieht sich auch auf his own life answer etc.: sollte er es in seinem eignen Leben daran fehlen lassen. 47) Vor go ist wie vor stand ein to zu ergänzen. Der Sinn dieses vielleicht corrupten Textes wäre dann: er müsste ein Muster sein, dass man in ihm, wie er geht und steht, Frömmigkeit und Tugend erkennt. — Staunton schlägt vor, show für know zu lesen und das Folgende von show abhängig zu machen. 48) my vice sagt der Herzog als Mensch im Allgemeinen, im Gegensatz zu his d. h. Angelo. 49) likeness made in crimes = ein äusserlicher Anschein, der in Verbrechen fertig, vollendet ist. — Für made dachte Malone an wade. — Für making practice = hinterlistige Anschläge machend gegen die Mitlebenden, sie täuschend, wollte Malone mocking practise lesen. — Diese Verse sind wahrscheinlich eben so corrupt wie die obigen, und wie das folgende to draw, wo to anakoluthisch stehen würde. — Barry Cornwall fasst practice als Verbum, setzt hinter times das Ausrufungszeichen und verbindet To draw etc. mit dem folgenden Craft against vice etc. — Heath vermuthete likeness trade in crimes, und Staunton masking, practise für making practice. 50) by the disguised = durch die als Isabella verkleidete Mariana. — false exacting = Angelo's treulose Zumuthung an die Isabella.

1) Diese Strophe findet sich, mit einigen geringfügigen Abweichungen und mit Hinzufügung einer zweiten Strophe, in Fletcher's Drama The Bloody Brother. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 119. — Es bleibt zweifelhaft, wer der eigentliche Verfasser des Liedes war. — Die letzte Zeile erinnert an eine Stelle in Sh.'s Sonnets (142) not from those lips of thine, || That have profan'd their scarlet ornaments, || And seal'd false bonds of love as oft as mine. 2) Die Musik in ihrer schwermüthigen Weise konnte meinen etwaigen Hang zur Lustigkeit in mir nicht

I pray you, tell me, hath any body inquired for me here to-day? much upon this time have I promis'd here to meet.

Mari. You have not been inquired after: I have sat here all day.

Duke. I do constantly³ believe you. — The time is come, even now. I shall crave your forbearance a little: may be, I will call upon you anon, for some advantage to yourself.

Mari. I am always bound to you.

[Exit.

Enter ISABELLA.

Duke. Very well met, and welcome.

What is the news from this good deputy?

Isab. He hath a garden circummur'd⁴ with brick, Whose western side is with a vineyard back'd; And to that vineyard is a planched⁵ gate, That makes his opening with this bigger key; This other doth command a little door, Which from the vineyard to the garden leads; there have I made my promise upon the heavy middle of the night to call upon him.⁶

Duke. But shall you on your knowledge find this way?

Isab. I have ta'en a due and wary note upon 't: With whispering and most guilty diligence, In action all of precept,⁷ he did show me The way twice o'er.

Duke. Are there no other tokens Between you 'greed, concerning her observance?⁸

Isab. No, none, but only a repair i' the dark; And that I have possess'd him⁹ my most stay Can be but brief: for I have made him know, I have a servant comes with me along, That stays upon me; whose persuasion is, I come about my brother.

Duke. 'T is well borne up. I have not yet made known to Mariana A word of this. — What, ho! within! come forth.

Re-enter MARIANA.

I pray you, be acquainted with this maid: She comes to do you good.

Isab. I do desire the like.

Duke. Do you persuade yourself that I respect you?

Mari. Good friar, I know you do, and have found it.¹⁰

Duke. Take then this your companion by the hand, Who hath a story ready for your ear.

I shall attend your leisure: but make haste; The vaporous night approaches.

Mari. Will 't please you walk aside?
[Exeunt MARIANA and ISABELLA.

Duke. O place and greatness! millions of false eyes Are stuck upon thee. Volumes of report Run with these false and most contrarious quests¹¹ Upon thy doings: thousand escapes of wit¹² Make thee the father of their idle dream, And rack¹³ thee in their fancies!

Re-enter MARIANA and ISABELLA.

Welcome! How agreed?

Isab. She 'll take the enterprise upon her, father, If you advise it.

Duke. It is not my consent,¹⁴ But my entreaty too.

Isab. Little have you to say, When you depart from him, but, soft and low, >Remember now my brother.<

Mari. Fear me not.¹⁵

Duke. Nor, gentle daughter, fear you not at all.

He is your husband on a pre-contract:

To bring you thus together, 't is no sin,

Sith that the justice of your title to him

Doth flourish¹⁶ the deceit. Come, let us go:

Our corn 's to reap, for yet our tithe 's¹⁷ to sow.

[Exeunt.

SCENE II.

A Room in the Prison.

Enter Provost and Clown.

Prov. Come hither, sirrah. Can you cut off a man's head?

Clo. If the man be a bachelor, Sir, I can; but if he be a married man, he is his wife's head, and I can never cut off a woman's head.

Prov. Come, Sir: leave me your snatches, and yield me a direct answer. To-morrow morning are to die Claudio and Barnardine. Here is in our prison a common executioner, who in his office lacks a helper: if you will take it on you to assist him, it shall redeem you from your gyves; if not, you shall have your full time of imprisonment, and your deliverance with an unpitied whipping,¹ for you have been a notorious bawd.

Clo. Sir, I have been an unlawful bawd, time out of fördern, sondern sagte nur meinem Leiden zu, das sich darin wiederfand. 3) constantly = fest, unbedenklich. 4) circummur'd = ringsummauert, wie es scheint, ein von Sh. nach Analogie von immured gebildetes Wort. 5) planched = aus Brettern gemacht. 6) So die Fol., nur dass sie diese offenbare Prosa in Verse abtheilt: There have I made my promise upon the || Heavy middle of the night to call upon him. — Capell und Steevens reguliren den Text so: There have I made my promise to call on him, || Upon the heavy middle of the night. — heavy bezeichnet das schwermüthige Dunkel der Mitternachtsstunde. 7) scil. all in action of precept = ganz in Geberden, in Handbewegungen, welche die Anweisung gaben, die mir ohne Worte den Weg zeigten. 8) Verabredete Zeichen, welche die Mariana zu beobachten hat. 9) to possess = benachrichtigen. — my most stay = mein längster Aufenthalt. 10) Pope setzte and I have found it. 11) quest = Erforschung, Auskundschaftung: ganze Massen von Gerüchten coursiren von solchen falschen und widersprechenden Ausspionirungen über das Thun und Treiben der Grossen. — Das quest der Fol. verbessert die zweite Folioausg. — Ueber these vgl. A. 2, Sc. 4, Anm. 21. 12) escape of wit = übermüthiger Ausbruch des Witzes, loser Streich des Witzes. 13) to rack = gewaltsam behandeln, hin und her zerren. 14) Es ist nicht nur meine Zustimmung, sondern auch u. s. w. — In diesem prägnanten Sinne steht not auch sonst bei Sh. 15) Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 1, Anm. 19. 16) to flourish = einer Sache den gehörigen Anstrich oder die rechte Façon geben. 17) Für tithe's (Tithes in der Fol.) lesen viele Hgg. mit Warburton tilth = das Ackerland, das zu bearbeiten, oder zu besäen (to sow) ist. — Indess ist tithe = das zur Aussaat zu verwendende Korn, in seinem Verhältniss zu dem zu erwartenden Ernteertrag (our corn's to reap).

mind; but yet I will be content to be a lawful hangman. I would be glad to receive some instruction from my fellow partner.

Prov. What ho, Abhorson! Where's Abhorson, there?

Enter ABHORSON.

Abhor. Do you call, Sir?

Prov. Sirrah, here's a fellow will help you to-morrow in your execution. If you think it meet, compound with him by the year, and let him abide here with you; if not, use him for the present, and dismiss him. He cannot plead his estimation with you:² he hath been a bawd.

Abhor. A bawd, Sir? Fie upon him! he will discredit our mystery.

Prov. Go to, Sir; you weigh equally: a feather will turn the scale. [Exit.]

Clo. Pray, Sir, by your good favour (for, surely, Sir, a good favour³ you have, but that you have a hanging look), do you call, Sir, your occupation a mystery?

Abhor. Ay, Sir; a mystery.

Clo. Painting, Sir, I have heard say, is a mystery; and your whores, Sir, being members of my occupation, using painting, do prove my occupation a mystery; but what mystery there should be in hanging, if I should be hang'd, I cannot imagine.

Abhor. Sir, it is a mystery.

Clo. Proof?

Abhor. Every true man's apparel fits your thief.⁴

Clo. If it be too little for your thief, your true man thinks it big enough; if it be too big for your thief, your thief thinks it little enough: so, every true man's apparel fits your thief.

Re-enter Provost.

Prov. Are you agreed?

Clo. Sir, I will serve him; for I do find, your hangman is a more penitent trade than your bawd: he doth oftener ask forgiveness.⁵

Prov. You, sirrah, provide your block and your axe to-morrow, four o'clock.

Abhor. Come on, bawd; I will instruct thee in my trade: follow.

Clo. I do desire to learn, Sir; and, I hope, if you have occasion to use me for your own turn, you shall find me yare;⁶ for, truly, Sir, for your kindness I owe you a good turn.

Prov. Call hither Barnardine and Claudio:

[Exeunt Clown and ABHORSON.]

The one has my pity; not a jot the other,
Being a murderer, though he were my brother.

Enter CLAUDIO.

Look, here's the warrant, Claudio, for thy death:

'T is now dead midnight, and by eight to-morrow

Thou must be made immortal. Where's Barnardine?

Claud. As fast lock'd up in sleep, as guiltless labour,

When it lies starkly⁷ in the traveller's bones:

He will not wake.

Prov. Who can do good on him?

Well, go; prepare yourself. But hark, what noise?

[Knocking within.]
Heaven give your spirits comfort! [Exit CLAUDIO.] By and by.⁸ —

I hope it is some pardon, or reprieve,

For the most gentle Claudio. —

Enter DUKE, disguised as before.

Welcome, father.

Duke. The best and wholesom'st spirits of the night
Envelop you, good provost! Who call'd here of late?

Prov. None, since the curfew rung.

Duke. Not Isabel?

Prov. No.

Duke. They⁹ will, then, ere't be long.

Prov. What comfort is for Claudio?

Duke. There's some in hope.

Prov. It is a bitter deputy.

Duke. Not so, not so: his life is parallel'd

Even with the stroke¹⁰ and line of his great justice.

He doth with holy abstinence subdue

That in himself, which he spurs on his power

To qualify¹¹ in others: were he meal'd¹² with that

Which he corrects, then were he tyrannous;

But this being so, he's just. — [Knocking within.]

Now are they come. — [Exit Provost.]

This is a gentle provost: seldom, when

The steeld gaoler is the friend of men. [Knocking.]

How now? What noise? That spirit's possessed with haste,

That wounds the unsisting¹³ postern with these strokes.

Re-enter Provost.

Prov. There he must stay, until the officer

Arise to let him in; he is call'd up.

1) an unpitied whipping = eine Auspeitschung ohne Mitleid, bei der ihr kein Erbarmen finden sollt, wenn ihr aus dem Gefängnis loskommt. 2) Er kann nicht behaupten, dass sein Ansehen darunter leide, wenn er Euch beim Henkeramte zur Hand geht. 3) Dasselbe Wortspiel zwischen favour = Vergünstigung, und favour = Miene, hat Sh. auch in Twelfth-Night (A. 2, Sc. 4). 4) Ehe noch Abhorson in seiner weitausholenden Argumentation fortfahren kann, unterbricht ihn der Clown und beweist auf eigne Hand den von Abhorson zuerst behaupteten Satz, dass jedes ehrlichen Mannes Tracht dem Diebe passe. — Viele Hgg. legen die folgenden Worte des Clown noch dem Abhorson bei. 5) Der Henker bittet den Delinquenten um Verzeihung, ehe er ihn hinrichtet. — to ask forgiveness in Bezug auf penitent ist dann = Gott um Vergebung der Sünden bitten. 6) yare = gewandt, flink. 7) starkly = starr, steif, in Bezug auf die im Schlafe, in Folge der Ermüdung, starr da liegenden Glieder. — guiltless labour = eine Anstrengung, die sich keines Args bewusst ist, die das Gewissen nicht beschwert. 8) d. h. ich komme sogleich, um die Thür zu öffnen. 9) Er meint die Isabella, begleitet von Angelo's Boten mit der Begnadigung Claudio's. 10) stroke ist synonym mit line: der Strich oder die Linie, welche seine Gerechtigkeit inne hält, entspricht auch seinem Leben. 11) to qualify = mässigen, dämpfen. 12) to meal = mischen: hätte er in seinem Wesen eine Beimischung von dem, was er bei Andern züchtigt, so wäre er tyrannisch; da sich aber dies so bei ihm verhält, wie ich gesagt, so ist er nur gerecht. 13) unsisting, wie die Fol. liest, erklärt Blackstone, indem er es vom lateinischen sistere herleitet, mit never at rest. — Andere schlagen resisting, unresisting, unshifting, unresting, unlisting und unwisting vor. Erwägenswerth scheint endlich auch die Lesart der vierten Folioausg. insisting =

Duke. Have you no countermand for Claudio yet, But he must die to-morrow?

Prov. None, Sir, none.

Duke. As near the dawning, provost, as it is, You shall hear more ere morning.

Prov. Happily¹⁴
You something know; yet, I believe, there comes
No countermand: no such example have we.
Besides, upon the very siege¹⁵ of justice,
Lord Angelo hath to the public ear
Profess'd the contrary.

Enter a Messenger.

This is his lordship's man.¹⁶

Duke. And here comes Claudio's pardon.

Mess. My lord hath sent you this note; and by me this further charge, that you swerve not from the smallest article of it, neither in time, matter, or other circumstance. Good morrow; for, as I take it, it is almost day.¹⁷

Prov. I shall obey him. [Exit Messenger.]

Duke. [Aside.] This is his pardon, purchas'd by such sin,

For which the pardoner himself is in;

Hence¹⁸ hath offence his quick celerity,

When it is borne in high authority.

When vice makes mercy, mercy's so extended,

That for the fault's love is the offender friended. —

Now, Sir, what news?

Prov. I told you: Lord Angelo, belike thinking me remiss in mine office, awakens me with this unwonted putting-on;¹⁹ methinks strangely, for he hath not used it before.

Duke. Pray you, let's hear.

Prov. [Reads.]²⁰ >Whatsoever you may hear to the contrary, let Claudio be executed by four of the clock;
and, in the afternoon, Barnardine. For my better satisfaction, let me have Claudio's head sent me by five. Let this be duly performed; with a thought, that more depends on it than we must yet deliver. Thus fail not to do your office, as you will answer it at your peril. —
What say you to this, Sir?

Duke. What is that Barnardine, who is to be executed in the afternoon?

Prov. A Bohemian born, but here nursed up and bred;
one that is a prisoner nine years old.²¹

Duke. How came it, that the absent duke had not either deliver'd him to his liberty, or executed him? I have heard, it was ever his manner to do so.

Prov. His friends still wrought reprieves for him: and, indeed, his fact,²² till now in the government of Lord
Angelo, came not to an undoubtful proof.

Duke. It is now apparent?

Prov. Most manifest, and not denied by himself.

Duke. Hath he borne himself penitently in prison?
How seems he to be touch'd?

Prov. A man that apprehends death no more dreadfully,²³ but as a drunken sleep; careless, reckless, and fearless of what's past, present, or to come: insensible of mortality, and desperately mortal.²⁴

Duke. He wants advice.

Prov. He will hear none. He hath evermore had the liberty of the prison:²⁵ give him leave to escape hence, he would not: drunk many times a day, if not many days entirely drunk. We have very oft awaked him, as if to carry him to execution, and show'd him a seeming warrant for it: it hath not moved him at all.

Duke. More of him anon. There is written in your brow, provost, honesty and constancy: if I read it not truly, my ancient skill beguiles me; but in the boldness of my cunning²⁶ I will lay myself in hazard. Claudio, whom here you have warrant to execute, is no greater forfeit to the law, than Angelo who hath sentenced him.
To make you understand this in a manifested effect, I crave but four days' respite, for the which you are to do me both a present and a dangerous courtesy.²⁷

Prov. Pray, Sir, in what?

Duke. In the delaying death.

Prov. Alack! how may I do it, having the hour limited, and an express command, under penalty, to deliver his head in the view of Angelo? I may make my case as Claudio's, to cross this in the smallest.

Duke. By the vow of mine order, I warrant you: if my instructions may be your guide, let this Barnardine be this morning executed, and his head borne to Angelo.

Prov. Angelo hath seen them both, and will discover the favour.²⁸

Duke. O! death's a great disguiser, and you may add to it.²⁹ Shave the head, and tie³⁰ the beard; and say, it was the desire of the penitent to be so bared³¹ before his death: you know, the course is common. If any thing fall to you upon this, more than thanks and good for-die hartnäckige Thür. 14) happily für haply = vielleicht. 15) siege = Stuhl, Sitz. 16) So verbesserte Pope his Lord's man der Fol. — Die Fol. theilt diese Worte irrig dem Herzog, und die folgende Rede dem Schliesser zu. — Die richtige Bezeichnung rührt von Tyrwhitt her. 17) Die Fol. theilt diese Rede in Verse ab, während es doch offenbare Prosa ist. 18) hence weist auf das folgende When it is borne etc. hin. 19) putting-on = Betreibung, Anmahnung. 20) Für Prov. (Reads.) hat die Fol. bloss The Letter als Ueberschrift. 21) Einer, der schon neun Jahre lang gefangen sitzt, ein Gefangener von neun Jahren. 22) Seine Missethat wurde erst wäh- rend der Statthalterschaft Angelo's unzweifelhaft erwiesen. 23) dreadfully = mit Schrecken, mit Grauen. 24) mortal = zum Tode bestimmt: er hat keinen Begriff von dem Tode und ist doch in verzweifelter Weise, so dass man an seinem Heile verzweifeln muss, dem Tode nahe. — Wie Steevens, weniger wahrscheinlich, erklärt, stünde desperately mortal für mortally desperate, was Hamner in den Text setzte. — Eben so unwahrscheinlich erklärt Malone mit Johnson es mit desperately mischievous. 25) Er hat immer alle Freiheit gehabt, die man im Gefängniss genießen kann. 26) In der Zuversicht auf meine Menschenkenntniss. 27) Eine Freundlich- keit, die Ihr mir sogleich erweisen müsst und die Euch gefährlich dünken mag. 28) Angelo wird in dem abge- hauenem Kopfe Barnardine's Gesichtszüge entdecken. 29) to it bezieht sich auf ein Wort wie disguise, das aus disguiser zu suppliren ist: Ihr könnt die Entstellung, die der Tod zu Wege bringt, noch verstärken. 30) to tie the beard = den Bart mit einem Bande so zusammenbinden, dass der Unterschied zwischen Claudio's und Barnardine's Bart nicht kernerkt wird. — Simpson wollte dye für tie lesen, und Theobald vermuthete tire dafür. 31) bared = kahl gemacht, blossgelegt, bezieht sich auf shave the head. So in All's well that ends well (A. 4, Sc. 1) the baring of my beard. — Für bared lesen manche Hgg. barb'd mit der vierten Folioausg. 32) Der Herzog tune, by the saint whom I profess,³² I will plead against it with my life.

Prov. Pardon me, good father: it is against my oath.

Duke. Were you sworn to the duke, or to the deputy?

Prov. To him,³³ and to his substitutes.

Duke. You will think you have made no offence, if the duke avouch the justice of your dealing.

Prov. But what likelihood is in that?

Duke. Not a resemblance,³⁴ but a certainty. Yet since I see you fearful, that neither my coat, integrity, nor my persuasion, can with ease attempt you, I will go further than I meant, to pluck all fears out of you. Look you, Sir; here is the hand and seal of the duke: you know the character, I doubt not, and the signet is not strange to you.

Prov. I know them both.

Duke. The contents of this is the return of the duke: you shall anon overread it at your pleasure, where you shall find, within these two days he will be here. This is a thing that Angelo knows not, for he this very day receives letters of strange tenour;³⁵ perchance, of the duke's death; perchance, entering into some monastery; but, by chance, nothing of what is writ.³⁶ Look, the unfolding star calls up the shepherd.³⁷ Put not yourself into amazement how these things should be: all difficulties are but easy when they are known. Call your executioner, and off with Barnardine's head: I will give him a present shrift, and advise him for a better place.³⁸ Yet you are amazed, but this shall absolutely resolve you.³⁹ Come away; it is almost clear dawn. [Exeunt.]

SCENE III.

Another Room in the Same.

Enter Clown.

Clo. I am as well acquainted here,¹ as I was in our house of profession: one would think, it were Mistress Overdone's own house, for here be many of her old customers. First, here's young Master Rash; he's in for a commodity of brown paper and old ginger, ninescore and seventeen pounds, of which he made five marks, ready money:² marry, then, ginger was not much in request, for the old women were all dead.³ Then is there here one Master Caper, at the suit of Master Three-pile the mercer, for some four suits of peach-colour'd satin, which now peaches⁴ him a beggar. Then have we here young Dizzy,⁵ and young Master Deep-vow, and Master Copper-spur, and Master Starve-lackey the rapier-and-dagger-man, and young Drop-heir that kill'd lusty Pudding, and Master Forthright the tilter, and brave⁶ Master Shoe-tie the great traveller, and wild Half-can that stabb'd Pots, and, I think, forty more; all great doers in our trade, and are now for the Lord's sake.⁷

Enter ABHORSON.

Abhor. Sirrah, bring Barnardine hither.

Clo. Master Barnardine! you must rise and be hang'd, Master Barnardine.

Abhor. What, ho, Barnardine!

Bar. [Within.] A pox o' your throats! Who makes that noise there? What are you?

Clo. Your friends,⁸ Sir; the hangman. You must be so good, Sir, to rise and be put to death.

Bar. [Within.] Away, you rogue, away! I am sleepy.

Abhor. Tell him, he must awake, and that quickly too.

Clo. Pray, Master Barnardine, awake till you are executed, and sleep afterwards.

Abhor. Go in to him, and fetch him out.

Clo. He is coming, Sir, he is coming: I hear his straw rustle.

Abhor. Is the axe upon the block, sirrah?

Clo. Very ready, Sir.

Enter BARNARDINE.

Bar. How now, Abhorson? what's the news with you?

als Mönch schwört bei dem Heiligen, dem sein Orden gewidmet ist. 33) him bezieht sich auf to the duke. 34) resemblance ist synonym mit dem vorhergehenden likelihood. 35) Von befremdendem, überraschendem Inhalt. 36) Warburton fügte here vor writ ein: nichts von dem was hier in diesem Briefe geschrieben steht. — Staunton erklärt writ als gospel, was sprichwörtlich = Wahrheit, vorkommt. — Vielleicht steht nothing elliptisch: es mag nichts an dem sein, was in den Briefen an Angelo geschrieben steht. 37) unfolding heisst der Morgenstern in Beziehung auf den Schäfer, der dann mit den Schafen aus der Hürde auf's Feld zieht. 38) Ich will ihn auf das bessere Jenseits vorbereiten. 39) Dieser Brief mit dem herzoglichen Siegel wird Euch ganz Eurer Sache gewiss machen.

1) Ich habe so viele oder so gute Bekannte hier, wie in dem Hause unseres Gewerbes, in dem Bordell. 2) Er sitzt gefangen wegen eines Vorraths von Packpapier und altem Ingwer, der ihm von dem Wucherer aufgedrungen wurde und nachher, obwohl er auf fast zweihundert Pfund taxirt war, nur für fünf Mark verwerthet werden konnte. — Bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen kommen häufige Anspielungen auf die Sitte der Wucherer vor, das Darlehn nur zum Theil in baarem Gelde zu machen, zum Theil aber in allerlei werthlosen Waaren, die dem Borger zu einer bestimmten Summe berechnet wurden. So in Greene's Pamphlet Defence of Coney-catching: If he borrow a hundred pound, he shall have forty in silver, and three score in wares; as lute-strings, hobby-horses, or brown paper. — Deshalb hiess auch ein Wucherer euphemistisch wohl merchant of brown paper. — Dennoch änderte Rowe brown pepper. 3) So in Merchant of Venice (A. 3, Sc. 1) I would she were as lying a gossip in that, as ever knapped ginger. 4) Wortspiel zwischen peach-colour'd und to peach = denunciren. 5) Die Fol. hat Dizie, was wahrscheinlich Dizzy zu verstehen ist, da alle diese Namen charakteristisch sind. — Steevens denkt auch an Dicey = dem Würfelspiel zugethan. — So emendirt weiterhin Johnson Forthright, was als Fechterausdruck vorkommt, für Forthlight der Fol.; so auch Steevens Shoe-tie für Shootie, da Schuhe mit Bandschleifen den Fremden und den gereisten Mann kennzeichneten, wie in Ben Jonson's Epigrams: That so much scarf of France, and hat, and feather, || And shoe, and tie, and garter should come hither. 6) brave = stattlich angezogen. 7) Sie sind nun auf die Mildthätigkeit der Vorübergehenden angewiesen, welche sie aus ihrem vergitterten Fenster mit dem kläglichen Anruf For the Lord's sake = Um Gottes willen, um ein Almosen anflehen. Auf diesen Gebrauch der Schuldgefangenen in London und auf das Schuldgefängniss Fleet spielt auch Abhor. Truly, Sir, I would desire you to clap into your prayers;⁹ for, look you, the warrant's come.

Bar. You rogue, I have been drinking all night: I am not fitted for 't.

Clo. O, the better, Sir; for he that drinks all night, and is hang'd betimes in the morning, may sleep the sounder all the next day.

Abhor. Look you, Sir; here comes your ghostly father. Do we jest now, think you?

Enter DUKE, disguised as before.

Duke. Sir, induced by my charity, and hearing how hastily you are to depart, I am come to advise you, comfort you, and pray with you.

Bar. Friar, not I: I have been drinking hard all night, and I will have more time to prepare me, or they shall beat out my brains with billets. I will not consent to die this day, that's certain.

Duke. O, Sir, you must; and, therefore, I beseech you, look forward on the journey you shall go.

Bar. I swear, I will not die to-day for any man's persuasion.

Duke. But hear you, —

Bar. Not a word: if you have anything to say to me, come to my ward; for thence will not I to-day. [Exit.]

Enter Provost.

Duke. Unfit to live, or die. O gravel heart! — After him, fellows: bring him to the block.¹⁰

[Exeunt ABHORSON and Clown.]

Prov. Now, Sir, how do you find the prisoner?

Duke. A creature unprepar'd, unmeet for death; And, to transport¹¹ him in the mind he is, Were damnable.

Prov. Here in the prison, father, There died this morning of a cruel fever One Ragozine, a most notorious pirate, A man of Claudio's years; his beard and head Just of his colour. What if we do omit This reprobate, till he were well inclin'd,¹² And satisfy the deputy with the visage Of Ragozine, more like to Claudio?

Duke. O, 't is an accident that heaven provides! Despatch it presently: the hour draws on Prefix'd by Angelo. See this be done,

And sent according to command, whiles I Persuade this rude wretch willingly to die.

Prov. This shall be done, good father, presently. But Barnardine must die this afternoon; And how shall we continue Claudio, To save me from the danger that might come, If he were known alive?

Duke. Let this be done, — Put them in secret holds, both Barnardine and Claudio:¹³ Ere twice the sun hath made his journal greeting To yonder¹⁴ generation, you shall find Your safety manifested.

Prov. I am your free dependant.

Duke. Quick, despatch, And send the head to Angelo. [Exit Provost.]

Now will I write letters to Angelo, (The provost, he shall bear them) whose contents Shall witness to him, I am near at home, And that, by great injunctions, I am bound To enter publicly: him I'll desire To meet me at the consecrated fount, A league below the city; and from thence, By cold gradation and well-balanc'd form,¹⁵ We shall proceed with Angelo.

Re-enter Provost.

Prov. Here is the head; I'll carry it myself.¹⁶

Duke. Convenient is it. Make a swift return, For I would commune with you of such things That want no ear but yours.

Prov. I'll make all speed. [Exit.]

Isab. [Within.] Peace, ho, be here!

Duke. The tongue of Isabel. — She's come to know, If yet her brother's pardon be come hither; But I will keep her ignorant of her good, To make her heavenly comforts of despair, When it is least expected.

Enter ISABELLA.

Isab. Ho! by your leave.

Duke. Good morning to you, fair and gracious daughter.

Isab. The better, given me by so holy a man. Hath yet the deputy sent my brother's pardon?

Duke. He hath releas'd him, Isabel, from the world. His head is off, and sent to Angelo.

Nashe's Apologie for Pierce Pennilesse an: At that time that thy joys were in the fleeting, and thus crying for the Lord's sake out at an iron window. — Auf Grund dieses Citates aus dem Pamphlet von Nashe hat ein Anonymus, wie [die Cambridge Edd. anführen, sehr plausibel] crie für are vermuthet: and cry now: „For the Lord's sake!“ 8) So die Fol. mit Recht, da der Clown für sich und für Abhorson antwortet, wie Barnardine auch throats im Plural gesagt hatte. — Die meisten Hgg. lesen mit den späteren Folioausgg. friend und verbinden es mit the hangman. 9) to clap into = sich rasch an Etwas machen, Etwas frisch anstimmen. So in As you like it (A. 5, Sc. 3) shall we clap into 't roundly, without hawking, or spitting? 10) Hanmer wollte diese Zeile dem Schliesser zuertheilen. 11) to transport him erklärt Johnson mit to remove him from one world to another. — Es ist wohl nur das Hinausschaffen aus dem Gefängniss auf den Richtplatz gemeint. 12) Wie wäre es, wenn wir den Barnardine so lange liessen, bis dass er gut gestimmt, in guter Fassung für die Hinrichtung wäre? 13) Dyce macht darauf aufmerksam, dass Sh. häufig über den fünffüssigen Blankvers hinausgeht, wo es sich um Eigennamen handelt. — Andere Hgg. theilen die Verse anders ab. 14) yond in der Fol. — Hanmer las to the under generation, was Steevens auf die Antipoden deutete, Dyce richtiger auf die unter der Sonne lebenden Menschen. — yonder generation ist hinweisend auf die Menschheit ausserhalb des Gefängnisses, wohinein die Sonne nicht dringt: the outer world, wie Staunton erklärt, der jedoch to yonder generation nicht mit dem Vorhergehenden, sondern mit dem Folgenden verbindet. 15) Der Herzog will mit Angelo verfahren nach kaltblütig und ruhig überlegtem stufenweisem Vorschreiten und nach einer wohlerrwogenen Handlungsweise. — well-balanced ist Rowe's Emendation für weal-balanced (weale-ballanc'd) der Fol., was etwa = nach dem Staatswohl erwogen, sein würde. 16) Der Schliesser will selbst das Haupt des Ragozine als das des Claudio zu Angelo hintragen, was der Herzog billigt. 17) So in A. 2, Sc. 3: O, injurious love etc. — In der Isab. Nay, but it is not so.

Duke. It is no other: show your wisdom, daughter, in your close patience.

Isab. O, I will to him, and pluck out his eyes!

Duke. You shall not be admitted to his sight.

Isab. Unhappy Claudio! Wretched Isabel!

Injurious world! ¹⁷ Most damned Angelo!

Duke. This nor hurts him, nor profits you a jot:

Forbear it therefore; give your cause to heaven.

Mark what I say, which you shall find

By every syllable a faithful verity.

The duke comes home to-morrow; — nay, dry your eyes:

One of our covent, ¹⁸ and his confessor,

Gives me this instance: already he hath carried

Notice to Escalus and Angelo,

Who do prepare to meet him at the gates,

There to give up their power. If you can, pace your wisdom

In that good path that I would wish it go;

And you shall have your bosom on this wretch, ¹⁹

Grace of the duke, revenges to your heart,

And general honour. ²⁰

Isab. I am directed by you.

Duke. This letter then to friar Peter give;

'T is that he sent me of the duke's return: ²¹

Say, by this token, I desire his company

At Mariana's house to-night. Her cause, and yours,

I'll perfect him withal, and he shall bring you

Before the duke; and to the head of Angelo

Accuse him home, and home. ²² For my poor self,

I am combined ²³ by a sacred vow,

And shall be absent. Wend ²⁴ you with this letter.

Command these fretting waters from your eyes

With a light heart: trust not my holy order,

If I pervert your course. ²⁵ — Who's here?

Enter Lucio.

Lucio. Good even. Friar, where is the provost?

Duke. Not within, Sir.

Lucio. O pretty Isabella, I am pale at mine heart, to see thine eyes so red: thou must be patient. I am fain to dine and sup with water and bran; I dare not for my head fill my belly: ²⁶ one fruitful meal would set me to 't. But, they say, the duke will be here to-morrow. By my troth, Isabel, I loved thy brother: if the old fantastical duke of dark corners ²⁷ had been at home, he had lived.

[Exit ISABELLA.]

Duke. Sir, the duke is marvellous little beholding ²⁸ to your reports; but the best is, he lives not in them. ²⁹

Lucio. Friar, thou knowest not the duke so well as I do: he's a better woodman ³⁰ than thou takest him for.

Duke. Well, you'll answer this one day. Fare ye well.

Lucio. Nay, tarry; I'll go along with thee. I can tell thee pretty tales of the duke.

Duke. You have told me too many of him already, Sir, if they be true; if not true, none were enough. ³¹

Lucio. I was once before him for getting a wench with child.

Duke. Did you such a thing?

Lucio. Yes, marry, did I; but I was fain to forswear it: they would else have married me to the rotten medlar. ³²

Duke. Sir, your company is fairer than honest. Rest you well.

Lucio. By my troth, I'll go with thee to the lane's end. If bawdy talk offend you, we'll have very little of it. Nay, friar, I am a kind of burr; I shall stick. [Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.

A Room in ANGELO's House.

Enter ANGELO and ESCALUS.

Escal. Every letter he hath writ hath disvouch'd other.

Ang. In most uneven and distracted manner. His actions show much like to madness: pray heaven, his wisdom be not tainted! and why meet him at the gates, and redeliver ¹ our authorities there?

Escal. I guess not.

Ang. And why should we proclaim it in an hour before his entering, that if any crave redress of injustice, they should exhibit their petitions in the street?

Escal. He shows his reason for that: to have a despatch of complaints and to deliver us from devices hereafter, which shall then have no power to stand against us.

Ang. Well, I beseech you, let it be proclaim'd:

Betimes i' the morn, I'll call you at your house.

Give notice to such men of sort and suit, ²

As are to meet him.

Escal. I shall, Sir: fare you well. [Exit.] folgenden Zeile liegt der Nachdruck auf him und auf you.

Die meisten Hgg. setzen das gewöhnliche covent dafür.

18) general honour = Ehre bei Jedermann, so dass Ihr vor aller Welt ehrenhaft erscheint. 20) general honour = Ehre bei Jedermann, so dass Ihr vor aller Welt ehrenhaft erscheint. 21) Es ist der Brief, in dem er mir von der Rückkehr des Herzogs Nachricht gab. — friar Peter ist derselbe, der vorher one of our covent, and his confessor hiess. 22) Und Ihr müsst dem Herzog dann Eure An-klage gegen den Angelo in seiner eigenen Gegenwart, ihm in's Gesicht, energisch vorbringen. — Ebenvorher steht withal, wie oft, für with: ich will ihn mit ihrer und Eurer Sache genau bekannt machen. 23) to combine = vertragsmässig verpflichten; wie Johnson erklärt: to bind by a pact or agreement. Deshalb hat Johnson mit

Recht confined, woran er dachte, nicht in den Text gesetzt. 24) to wend = gehen, weggehen. 25) Wenn ich

Euch ein verkehrtes Verfahren anrath, Euch auf falsche Wege führe, so traut fernerhin dem heiligen Orden nicht, dem ich angehöre. 26) Lucio fastet, um enthaltsam zu bleiben, weil die Unenthaltsamkeit ihm den Kopf kosten würde. 27) Der alte närrische Herzog, der es liebte, in dunkle Winkel zu kriechen, der seine Liebschaften gerne heimlich betrieb. 28) beholding, das Sh.'sche Wort, verändern auch hier, wie an manchen anderen Stellen, viele Hgg. in beholden. 29) Er ist nicht wirklich vorhanden in ihnen; er gleicht, wie er leibt und lebt, durchaus nicht den nachtheiligen Berichten, die Ihr von ihm entwerft. 30) woodman = Waidmann, hier im frivolen Sinne = Mädchenjäger. 31) Wenn die Geschichten nicht wahr sind, so wäre schon weniger als eine genug. 32) rotten medlar = faule Mispel, verächtlich von der angesteckten Hure, die Lucio sonst hätte heirathen müssen.

1) Die Fol. hat reliver, die zweite Folioausg. deliver. — redeliver setzte zuerst Capell. 2) Solche

Männer von Rang und Würde, wie sie den Herzog empfangen müssen. — Capell druckte zuerst diese Rede als

Verse. 3) unpregnant = unfähig zur Auffassung, gehört wie dull zu to all proceedings. 4) against it be-

Ang. Good night. —
 This deed unshapes me quite, makes me unpregnant,³
 And dull to all proceedings. A deflower'd maid,
 And by an eminent body, that enforc'd
 The law against it!⁴ — But that her tender shame
 Will not proclaim against her maiden loss,
 How might she tongue me! Yet reason dares her no:⁵
 For my authority bears a credent bulk,⁶
 That no particular scandal once can touch,
 But it confounds the breather. He should have liv'd,⁷
 Save that his riotous youth, with dangerous sense,
 Might in the times to come have ta'en revenge,
 By so receiving a dishonour'd life⁸
 With ransom of such shame. 'Would yet he had liv'd!
 Alack! when once our grace we have forgot,
 Nothing goes right: we would, and we would not. [*Exit.*⁹

SCENE V.

Fields without the Town.

Enter DUKE, in his own habit, and Friar PETER.

Duke. These letters at fit time deliver me.

[Giving letters.

The provost knows our purpose, and our plot.
 The matter being afoot, keep your instruction,
 And hold you ever to your special drift,
 Though sometimes you do blench from this to that,¹
 As cause doth minister. Go, call at Flavius' house,²
 And tell him where I stay: give the like notice
 To Valentius,³ Rowland, and to Crassus,
 And bid them bring the trumpets to the gate;
 But send me Flavius first.

Fri. Pet. It shall be speeded well. [Exit.

Enter VARRIUS.

Duke. I thank thee, Varrius; thou hast made good haste.
 Come, we will walk: there 's other of our friends
 Will greet us here anon, my gentle Varrius. [Exeunt.

SCENE VI.

Street near the City Gate.

Enter ISABELLA and MARIANA.

Isab. To speak so indirectly¹ I am loath:
 I would say the truth; but to accuse him so,
 That is your part:² yet I 'm advis'd to do it,
 He says, to 'vailful purpose.³

Mari. Be rul'd by him.

Isab. Besides, he tells me, that, if peradventure
 He speak against me on the adverse side,⁴
 I should not think it strange; for 't is a physic,
 That 's bitter to sweet end.

Mari. I would, friar Peter —

Isab. O, peace! the friar is come.

Enter Friar PETER.

Fri. Pet. Come, I have found you out a stand most fit,
 Where you may have such vantage on the duke,
 He shall not pass you. Twice have the trumpets sounded:
 The generous⁵ and gravest citizens
 Have hent⁶ the gates, and very near upon
 The duke is ent'ring: therefore hence, away. [Exeunt.

ACT V.

SCENE I.

A public Place near the City Gate.

MARIANA (veiled), ISABELLA, and PETER, at a distance
Enter DUKE, VARRIUS, Lords; ANGELO, ESCALUS, LUCIO
Provost, Officers and Citizens, at several doors.

Duke. My very worthy cousin, fairly met: —
 Our old and faithful friend, we are glad to see you.

Ang. and Escal. Happy return be to your royal grace!

Duke. Many and hearty thankings to you both.
 We have made inquiry of you; and we hear zieht sich in ungenauer Verbindung auf deflower'd maid: der das Gesetz gegen solche Vergehungen verschärfte.

 5) Angelo bedenkt zunächst die Möglichkeit, dass Isabella, ungeachtet ihres weiblichen Schamgefühls, ihn laut preisgeben könnte, fügt dann aber zu seiner Beruhigung hinzu, dass die Vernunft, die vernünftige Ueberlegung, sie einschüchtern würde, so dass sie ihn nicht anklage. — to dare = einschüchtern. — no steht für einen ganzen Satz mit not: es nicht zu thun. So in Beaumont und Fletcher's A Wife for a Month: I am sure he did not, for I charg'd him no. — Malone interpungirte Yet reason dares her? — no. — Andere fassen reason weiblich personificirt und beziehen darauf her no = ihr Nein. 6) Die Fol. hat bears of a credent bulk, welches of die späteren Folioausgg. und viele Hgg. in off verwandeln. — Theobald streicht das den Sinn und den Vers störende of: mein Ansehen trägt einen solchen Umfang von Glaubwürdigkeit, welchen keine Privatverläumdung nur einmal antasten kann, dass nicht der sie Aeussernde sogleich von diesem Ansehen vernichtet würde. — Dyce liest bears so credent bulk, und Singer For my authority here 's of a credent bulk. — credent = glaubwürdig. So in Winter's Tale (A. 1, Sc. 2) then, 't is very credent, thou may'st co-join with something. 7) Claudio hätte am Leben bleiben können, wenn nicht u. s. w. 8) dishonour'd ist mit dem Folgenden zu verbinden: Rache dafür, dass er ein Leben erhalten, das entehrt war durch eine so schmachvolle Loskaufung, wie die Preisgebung Isabella's. 9) Johnson wollte hier den vierten Act abschliessen.

1) Wenn Ihr auch bisweilen, wie die Sache dazu Veranlassung giebt, von einem Punkt auf den andern abspringt, so haltet doch immer unsere eigentliche Richtung ein. — Diese Vorschriften beziehen sich auf das mit dem Herzog verabredete Auftreten des Mönches Peter im fünften Act. 2) Die Fol. hat Flavia's house, was Rowe verbesserte. 3) Für Valentius (Valencius in der Fol.) setzen viele Hgg. mit Capell des Verses wegen Valentinus.

1) indirectly = unredlich, das Gegentheil von directly = gerade heraus. Isabella meint, dass sie, der Wahrheit zuwider, durch den Herzog veranlasst, den Angelo des mit ihr wirklich ausgeführten, nicht bloss beabsichtigten Vergehens beschuldigen solle. Vgl. A. 5, Sc. 1. 2) Euch kommt es zu, nicht mir, Angelo in dieser Weise anzuklagen. 3) Die Fol. liest to vaile full purpose, woraus Malone to veil full purpose macht. — Die Emendation im Text rührt von Theobald her, der t'availful purpose liest. Der Mönch (d. h. der Herzog) hat zu heilsamen Zwecken der Isabella gerathen, die Anklage gegen Angelo zu führen. 4) Auf Seiten Angelo's.

Such goodness of your justice, that our soul
Cannot but yield you forth to public thanks,
Forerunning more requital.¹

Ang. You make my bonds still greater.

Duke. O! your desert speaks loud; and I should wrong it,

To lock it in the wards of covert bosom,
When it deserves with characters of brass
A fortified² residence 'gainst the tooth of time
And rasure of oblivion. Give me your hand.
And let the subject³ see, to make them know
That outward courtesies would fain proclaim
Favours that keep within. — Come, Escalus;
You must walk by us on our other hand,
And good supporters are you.

*Friar PETER and ISABELLA come forward.*⁴

Fri. Pet. Now is your time. Speak loud, and kneel before him.

Isab. Justice, O royal duke! Vail your regard⁵
Upon a wrong'd, I would fain have said, a maid!
O worthy prince! dishonour not your eye
By throwing it on any other object,
Till you have heard me in my true complaint,
And given me justice, justice, justice, justice!

Duke. Relate your wrongs: in what? by whom? Be brief.

Here is Lord Angelo shall give you justice:
Reveal yourself to him.

Isab. O worthy duke!
You bid me seek redemption of the devil.
Hear me yourself; for that which I must speak
Must either punish me, not being believ'd,
Or wring redress from you. Hear me, O, hear me, here!

Ang. My lord! her wits, I fear me, are not firm:
She hath been a suitor to me for her brother,
Cut off by course of justice, —

Isab. By course of justice!

Ang. And she will speak most bitterly, and strange.

Isab. Most strange, but yet most truly, will I speak.
That Angelo's forsworn, is it not strange?
That Angelo's a murderer, is 't not strange?

That Angelo is an adulterous thief,
An hypocrite, a virgin-violator,
Is it not strange, and strange?

Duke. Nay, it is⁶ ten times strange.

Isab. It is not truer he is Angelo,
Than this is all as true as it is strange;
Nay, it is ten times true; for truth is truth
To the end of reckoning.⁷

Duke. Away with her. — Poor soul!
She speaks this in the infirmity of sense.

Isab. O prince, I conjure thee, as thou believ'st
There is another comfort than this world,
That thou neglect me not, with that opinion
That I am touch'd with madness. Make not impossible
That which but seems unlike. 'T is not impossible,
But one, the wicked'st caitiff on the ground,
May seem as shy, as grave, as just, as absolute,⁸

As Angelo; even so may Angelo,
In all his dressings, characts,⁹ titles, forms,
Be an arch-villain. Believe it, royal prince:
If he be less, he's nothing; but he's more,
Had I more name for badness.

Duke. By mine honesty,
If she be mad, as I believe no other,
Her madness hath the oddest frame of sense,
Such a dependency of thing on thing,¹⁰
As e'er I heard in madness.

Isab. O gracious duke!
Harp not on that; nor do not banish reason
For inequality; but let your reason serve
To make the truth appear, where it seems hid,
And hide the false, seems true.¹¹

Duke. Many that are not mad,
Have, sure, more lack of reason. — What would you say?

Isab. I am the sister of one Claudio,
Condemn'd upon the act of fornication
To lose his head; condemn'd by Angelo.
I, in probation of a sisterhood,¹²
Was sent to by my brother; one Lucio
As then the messenger —

Lucio. That's I, an 't like your grace.
I came to her from Claudio, and desir'd her des Angeklagten, gegen Isabella, die Klägerin. 5) generous = edel, von adeliger Herkunft. — Der Superlativ ist aus gravest auch zu generous hinzuzudenken. 6) to hend oder to hent = erreichen. So in Gascoigne's Jocasta: What hapless end thy life, alas! hath hent.

1) Diese öffentliche Danksagung, welcher der Herzog seine beiden Stellvertreter übermacht, eilt nur voran einer weiteren Belohnung, die er für sie im Sinne hat. 2) forted ist mit 'gainst the tooth etc. zu verbinden: eine bleibende Stätte, welche gegen den Zahn der Zeit und gegen die auslöschende Thätigkeit des Vergessens gesichert ist. — razure bezieht sich besonders auf characters of brass. — forted = befestigt, scheint ein von Sh. gebildetes Wort. 3) Auf das collective subject = die Unterthanen, bezieht sich das folgende them. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 4, Anm. 8. 4) Die Fol. hat hier Enter Peter and Isabella, wie sie diese beiden Personen nebst der Mariana zu Anfang der Scene unter den Auftretenden unerwähnt lässt. 5) Senkt Euren Blick auf eine gekränkte — gern hätt' ich gesagt — Jungfrau. 6) Pope streicht, des Verses wegen, it is hier. 7) Was wahr ist, das ist zugleich zehnmal wahr, denn die Wahrheit bleibt gleich gross, so viele Zahlen man auch auf einander häuft. 8) So zurückhaltend, so ehrbar, so untadelhaft, so vollkommen in seiner äussern Haltung. — Die vier Adjectiva von shy bis absolute stehen in einer Klimax. 9) dressing = Aufputz, äussere Zier. — charact eigentlich = Schriftzeichen, hier = unterscheidendes Merkmal. 10) Solch ein Zusammenhang der einzelnen Punkte der Rede unter einander: solche Logik, wie ich sie nur jemals beim Wahnsinn hörte. — Capell vermuthete, dass Sh. geschrieben As ne'er I heard in madness. — Auf diese letzten Worte des Herzogs bezieht sich Isabella in ihrer Replik, wenn sie sagt harp not on that; und als eine euphemistische Bezeichnung für madness gebraucht sie gleich darauf das Wort inequality, was M. Mason richtig mit apparent inconsistency erklärt. 11) Lasst Eure Vernunft dazu behülflich sein, die Wahrheit da an den Tag zu bringen, wo sie verdunkelt scheint, d. h. in der Isabella, und die Falschheit zu verdunkeln, zu unterdrücken, welche sich den Schein von Wahrheit anmasst, d. h. in Angelo. — Sh. gebraucht hide in weiterem Sinne, wegen des vorausgegangenen hid, wie andererseits das zweite seems = den Anschein sich giebt, prägnanter steht als das erste, das nur = scheint, zu fassen ist. — Manche Hgg. lesen mit Theobald

To try her gracious fortune with Lord Angelo,
For her poor brother's pardon.

Isab. That 's he, indeed.

Duke. You were not bid to speak.

Lucio. No, my good lord;
Nor wish'd to hold my peace.

Duke. I wish you now then:
Pray you, take note of it; and when you have
A business for yourself, pray heaven, you then
Be perfect.

Lucio. I warrant your honour.

Duke. The warrant 's for yourself: take heed to it.

Isab. This gentleman told somewhat of my tale, —

Lucio. Right.

Duke. It may be right; but you are in the wrong
To speak before your time. — Proceed.

Isab. I went
To this pernicious caitiff deputy.

Duke. That 's somewhat madly spoken.

Isab. Pardon it:
The phrase is to the matter.

Duke. Mended again: the matter; ¹³ — proceed.

Isab. In brief, — to set the needless process ¹⁴ by,
How I persuaded, how I pray'd, and kneel'd,
How he refell'd ¹⁵ me, and how I replied;
(For this was of much length) the vile conclusion
I now begin with grief and shame to utter.
He would not, but by gift of my chaste body
To his concupiscible ¹⁶ intemperate lust,
Release my brother; and, after much debatement,
My sisterly remorse ¹⁷ confutes mine honour,
And I did yield to him. But the next morn betimes,
His purpose surfeiting, ¹⁸ he sends a warrant
For my poor brother's head.

Duke. This is most likely!

Isab. O, that it were as like as it is true! ¹⁹

Duke. By heaven, fond ²⁰ wretch! thou know'st not what thou speak'st,

Or else thou art suborn'd against his honour,
In hateful practice. ²¹ First, his integrity
Stands without blemish; next, it imports no reason,
That with such vehemency he should pursue
Faults proper to himself: if he had so offended,
He would have weigh'd thy brother by himself, ²²
And not have cut him off. Some one hath set you on:
Confess the truth, and say by whose advice
Thou cam'st here to complain.

Isab. And is this all?

Then, O! you blessed ministers above,
Keep me in patience; and, with ripen'd time,
Unfold the evil which is here wrapt up
In countenance! ²³ — Heaven shield your grace from woe.
As I, thus wrong'd, hence unbeliev'd go!

Duke. I know, you 'd fain be gone. — An officer!
To prison with her. — Shall we thus permit
A blasting and a scandalous breath to fall
On him so near us? This needs must be a practice.
Who knew of your intent, and coming hither?

Isab. One that I would were here, friar Lodowick?

Duke. A ghostly father, belike. — Who knows that Lodowick?

Lucio. My lord, I know him: 't is a meddling friar;
I do not like the man: had he been lay, my lord,
For certain words he spake against your grace
In your retirement, I had swing'd him soundly.

Duke. Words against me? This' ²⁴ a good friar, belike!
And to set on this wretched woman here
Against our substitute! — Let this friar be found.

Lucio. But yesternight, my lord, she and that friar,
I saw them at the prison. A saucy friar,
A very scurvy fellow.

Fri. Pet. Blessed be your royal grace!
I have stood by, my lord, and I have heard
Your royal ear abus'd. First, hath this woman
Most wrongfully accus'd your substitute,
Who is as free from touch or soil with her,
As she from one ungot. ²⁵

Duke. We did believe no less.
Know you that friar Lodowick, that she speaks of?

Fri. Pet. I know him for a man divine and holy;
Not scurvy, nor a temporary meddler, ²⁶
As he 's reported by this gentleman;
And, on my trust, a man that never yet
Did, as he vouches, misreport your grace.

Lucio. My lord, most villanously: believe it.

Fri. Pet. Well; he in time may come to clear himself,
But at this instant he is sick, my lord,
Of a strange fever. Upon his mere request, ²⁷
Being come to knowledge that there was complaint
Intended 'gainst Lord Angelo, came I hither,
To speak, as from his mouth, what he doth know
Is true, and false; and what he with his oath,
And all probation, will make up full clear,
Whensoever he 's convented. ²⁸ First, for this woman, not hide the false, seems true. 12) In dem Noviziat eines Nonnenklosters. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 3, Anm. 17. 13) Der Herzog wiederholt zustimmend Isabella's letzte Worte, dass der harte Ausdruck der Sache entspreche. 14) needless process = der Hergang, der hier überflüssig ist, der hier nicht berichtet zu werden braucht. 15) to refel = abweisen, zurückweisen, wird in diesem Sinne auch sonst gebraucht. So in Hall's Chronik: Not one of them would take heed how to resist and refel the present jeopardy which was coming out of England. 16) Für concupiscible setzen manche Hgg. willkürlich concupiscent. 17) Mein schwesterliches Gefühl für Claudio bringt nach langem Kampfe mein Ehrgefühl zum Schweigen. 18) Da sein Zweck bis zur Uebersättigung erreicht war, da er seine Lust hinlänglich gebüsst hatte. 19) Auf die ironisch gemeinte Zwischenrede des Herzogs: Das klingt sehr wahrscheinlich! versetzt Isabella: Wäre es nur eben so wahrscheinlich, wie es wahr ist! Fänden meine Worte nur den Glauben, der ihnen gebührt! 20) fond = thöricht, verrückt. 21) practice = Anschlag, Intrigue, Nachstellung. Ebenso gleich nachher This needs must be a practice. 22) Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 2, Anm. 33. 23) countenance deutet Warburton auf den Schutz, auf die Vertretung, welche der Herzog dem Angelo angedeihen lässt; M. Mason deutet es auf die äussere Haltung, den Schein, womit Angelo sein Verbrechen verdeckt. Erstere Erklärung empfiehlt sich durch den Zusammenhang. So in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 1, Sc. 2) our noble and chaste mistress the moon, under whose countenance we steal. 24) this' scil. this is. — this' hat schon die Fol., zur Andeutung, dass is enklitisch sich dem this anschloss. — Rowe setzte this is. 25) So wenig Isabella schwanger ist, so wenig hat sich Angelo mit ihr vergangen. 26) temporary meddler = Einer, der sich in zeitliche, weltliche Dinge mischt. — temporary steht für temporal. 27) Auf sein ausdrückliches Gesuch, geradezu

To justify this worthy nobleman,
So vulgarly and personally accus'd,²⁹
Her shall you hear disproved to her eyes,
Till she herself confess it.

Duke. Good friar, let's hear it.

[ISABELLA is carried off guarded; and MARIANA comes forward.³⁰

Do you not smile at this, Lord Angelo? —
O heaven, the vanity of wretched fools! —
Give us some seats. — Come, cousin Angelo;
In this I'll be impartial:³¹ be you judge
Of your own cause. — Is this the witness, friar?

First, let her show her face,³² and after speak.

Mari. Pardon, my lord, I will not show my face,
Until my husband bid me.

Duke. What, are you married?

Mari. No, my lord.

Duke. Are you a maid?

Mari. No, my lord.

Duke. A widow then?

Mari. Neither, my lord.

Duke. Why, you
Are nothing then: neither maid, widow, nor wife?

Lucio. My lord, she may be a punk; for many of them are neither maid, widow, nor wife.

Duke. Silence that fellow: I would, he had some cause
To prattle for himself.

Lucio. Well, my lord.

Mari. My lord, I do confess I ne'er was married;

And, I confess, besides, I am no maid:

I have known my husband, yet my husband knows not
That ever he knew me.³³

Lucio. He was drunk then, my lord: it can be no better.

Duke. For the benefit of silence, 'would thou wert so too!

Lucio. Well, my lord.

Duke. This is no witness for Lord Angelo.

Mari. Now I come to't, my lord.

She that accuses him of fornication,

In self-same manner doth accuse my husband;

And charges him, my lord, with such a time,

When, I'll depose, I had him in mine arms,

With all the effect of love.

Ang. Charges she more than me?³⁴

Mari. Not that I know.

Duke. No? you say, your husband.

Mari. Why, just, my lord, and that is Angelo,

Who thinks, he knows, that he ne'er knew my body,

But knows, he thinks, that he knows Isabel's.

Ang. This is a strange abuse.³⁵ — Let's see thy face.

Mari. My husband bids me; now I will unmask.

[Unveiling.

This is that face, thou cruel Angelo,

Which once, thou swor'st, was worth the looking on:

This is the hand, which, with a vow'd contract,

Was fast belock'd in thine: this is the body

That took away the match from Isabel,

And did supply³⁶ thee at thy garden-house

In her imagin'd person.

Duke. Know you this woman?

Lucio. Carnally,³⁷ she says.

Duke. Sirrah, no more.

Lucio. Enough, my lord.

Ang. My lord, I must confess, I know this woman;

And five years since there was some speech of marriage

Betwixt myself and her, which was broke off,

Partly, for that her promised proportions³⁸

Came short of composition; but, in chief,

For that her reputation was disvalued

In levity: since which time of five years

I never spake with her, saw her, nor heard from her,

Upon my faith and honour.

Mari. Noble prince,

As there comes light from heaven, and words from breath,

As there is sense in truth, and truth in virtue,

I am affianc'd this man's wife, as strongly

As words could make up vows: and, my good lord,

But Tuesday night last gone, in his garden-house,

He knew me as a wife. As this is true,

Let me in safety raise me from my knees,

Or else for ever be confix'd here,

A marble monument.

Ang. I did but smile till now:

Now, good my lord, give me the scope of justice;

My patience here is touch'd. I do perceive,

These poor informal³⁹ women are no more

But instruments of some more mightier member,

That sets them on. Let me have way, my lord,

To find this practice out.

Duke. Ay, with my heart;

And punish them to your height of pleasure.⁴⁰ —

Thou foolish friar, and thou pernicious woman,

Compact⁴¹ with her that's gone, think'st thou, thy oaths,

Though they would swear down each particular saint,⁴²

Were testimonies against his worth and credit,

auf sein Gesuch. — Darauf bezieht sich auch das Folgende: da es zu seiner Kunde gekommen war, dass u. s. w. — Für strange fever vermuthete Sidney Walker strong fever. 28) to convent = vor Gericht citiren, zu einem anberaumten Termin vorladen. 29) vulgarly = öffentlich, vor allem Volke; personally = mit directem Angriff auf die Persönlichkeit. 30) Die Fol. hat Enter Mariana. Vgl. oben Anm. 4. 31) impartial = unbetheiligt an dem Gericht. 32) your face in der Fol.; von der zweiten Folioausg. verbessert. 33) to know = wissen, erkennen, und = erkennen in fleischlichem Sinne. Derselbe Doppelsinn wiederholt sich in Mariana's zweitfolgender Rede. 34) Klagt sie Andere ausser mir an, d. h. ihren Gatten und mich? 35) Hier muss eine auffallende Täuschung im Spiel sein. So in Macbeth (A. 3, Sc. 4) my strange and self-abuse. 36) to supply = Jemandem zu Diensten oder zu Willen sein, steht in demselben obscönen Sinne wie in Othello (A. 4, Sc. 1) as knaves be such abroad, || Who having, by their own importunate suit, || Or voluntary dotage of some mistress, || Convinced or supplied them, wo es Malone mit gratified her desires erklärt. 37) Vgl. oben Anm. 33. 38) Theils weil ihre Vermögensverhältnisse, wie sie mir versprochen waren, nachher hinter diesem Abkommen zurückblieben. — Vielleicht gebraucht Sh. proportions geradezu für portion = Mitgift. 39) informal = ausser der gehörigen Verfassung und Ordnung, verstört, verwirrt. 40) Zur Vervollständigung des Verses setzen manche Hgg. unto your height of pleasure. 41) compact, mit betonter letzter Sylbe, = verbündet. 42) Wenn Deine Schwüre auch alle Heiligen auf die Erde herabriefen als Zeugen, wenn Du auch alle Heiligen einzeln bei Namen als Zeugen anriefest. 43) Angelo's Werth und Glaubwürdigkeit, oder, da that's seal'd sich auch auf his beziehen lässt,

That 's seal'd in approbation?⁴³ — You, Lord Escalus, Sit with my cousin: lend him your kind pains To find out this abuse, whence 't is deriv'd. — There is another friar that set them on; Let him be sent for.

Fri. Pet. 'Would he were here, my lord; for he, indeed, Hath set the women on to this complaint. Your provost knows the place where he abides, And he may fetch him.

Duke. Go, do it instantly. — [Exit Provost.] And you, my noble and well-warranted cousin, Whom it concerns to hear this matter forth,⁴⁴ Do with your injuries as seems you best, In any chastisement: I for a while will leave you; But stir not you, till you have well determin'd Upon these slanderers.

Escal. My lord, we'll do it thoroughly. [Exit DUKE.] — Signior Lucio, did not you say, you knew that friar Lodowick to be a dishonest person?

Lucio. Cucullus non facit monachum:⁴⁵ honest in nothing, but in his clothes; and one that hath spoke most villanous speeches of the duke.

Escal. We shall entreat you to abide here till he come, and enforce them against him. We shall find this friar a notable fellow.

Lucio. As any in Vienna, on my word.

Escal. Call that same Isabel here once again: I would speak with her. [Exit an Attendant.] Pray you, my lord, give me leave to question; you shall see how I'll handle her.

Lucio. Not better than he, by her own report.⁴⁶

Escal. Say you?

Lucio. Marry, Sir, I think, if you handled her privately, she would sooner confess: perchance, publicly she'll be ashamed.

Escal. I will go darkly to work with her.⁴⁷

Lucio. That 's the way; for women are light at midnight.

Re-enter Officers, with ISABELLA.

Escal. [To ISAB.] Come on, mistress. Here 's a gentlewoman denies all that you have said.

Lucio. My lord, here comes the rascal I spoke of; here, with the provost.

Escal. In very good time: — speak not you to him, till we call upon you.

Lucio. Mum.

Enter DUKE, disguised as a friar, and Provost.

Escal. Come, Sir. Did you set these women on to slander Lord Angelo? they have confess'd you did.

Duke. 'T is false.

Escal. How! know you where you are?

Duke. Respect to your great place! and let the devil Be sometime honour'd for his burning throne.⁴⁸ — Where is the duke? 't is he should hear me speak.

Escal. The duke 's in us, and we will hear you speak: Look you speak justly.

Duke. Boldly, at least. — But, O, poor souls! Come you to seek the lamb here of the fox?⁴⁹ Good night to your redress. Is the duke gone? Then is your cause gone too.⁵⁰ The duke 's unjust, Thus to retort⁵¹ your manifest appeal, And put your trial in the villain's mouth, Which here you come to accuse.

Lucio. This is the rascal: this is he I spoke of.

Escal. Why, thou unreverend and unhallow'd friar! Is 't not enough, thou hast suborn'd these women To accuse this worthy man, but, in foul mouth, And in the witness of his proper ear, To call him villain? And then to glance from him to the duke himself, To tax him with injustice? — Take him hence; To the rack with him: — we'll touse you joint by joint, But we will know his⁵² purpose. — What! unjust?

Duke. Be not so hot; the duke Dare no more stretch⁵³ this finger of mine, than he Dare rack his own: his subject am I not, Nor here provincial.⁵⁴ My business in this state Made me a looker-on here in Vienna, Where I have seen corruption boil and bubble, Till it o'errun the stew:⁵⁵ laws for all faults, But faults so countenanc'd, that the strong statutes Stand like the forfeits in a barber's shop,⁵⁶ As much in mock as mark.

Escal. Slander to the state! Away with him to prison.

Ang. What can you vouch against him, Signior Lucio? Is this the man that you did tell us of?

Lucio. 'T is he, my lord. — Come hither, goodman baldpate: do you know me?

Duke. I remember you, Sir, by the sound of your voice: I met you at the prison, in the absence of the duke.

Lucio. O! did you so? And do you remember what you said of the duke?

Duke. Most notably, Sir.

Angelo selbst ist als probehaltig befunden und so gestempelt worden, hat das Siegel der Probehaltigkeit empfangen. 44) to hear forth = eine Sache bis an's Ende hören. 45) Dasselbe lateinische Sprichwort hat Sh. in Twelfth-Night (A. 1, Sc. 5). — 46) Nicht besser als Angelo sie behandelt hat, zufolge ihrer eigenen Aussage, — ist Lucio's frivole Zwischenrede, der er nachher eine andere, freilich eben so frivole Wendung giebt. 47) Ich will so mit ihr verfahren, dass sie nichts merkt, dass sie nicht merkt, wohin ich hinaus will. — Auch diese Worte deutet Lucio in frivolem Sinne und knüpft daran das überall wiederkehrende Sh.'sche Wortspiel von light = leichtfertig, und light = Licht, Tageslicht, im Gegensatz zu darkly = im Dunkel. 48) Dem hohen Range oder Amte gebührt unter allen Umständen Hochachtung, ohne Rücksicht auf die Person, wenn es auch vorkommt, dass dem Teufel selbst Ehre erwiesen wird wegen des flammenden Thrones, auf dem er sitzt. 49) Kommt Ihr in der Erwartung, dass der Fuchs Euch das geraubte Lamm wiedergeben werde, so gebt diese Hoffnung auf Ersatz nur auf. 50) Wenn der Herzog weg ist, so ist auch Eure Sache weg, verloren. 51) to retort = zurückweisen, von sich selbst weg auf Angelo zurückweisen. 52) Für his purpose änderte Hamner this purpose. Indess ist dieser rasche Wechsel der Personen, wo Escalus sich erst an den Mönch, gleich nachher an die Umstehenden wendet, in Sh.'s Manier. 53) to stretch = strecken, spannen, wie auf der Folter. 54) provincial = einer bestimmten geistlichen Provinz angehörig, ihrer geistlichen Gerichtsbarkeit unterworfen. 55) Das Bild ist von einer im Kochtopf brodelnden Masse entlehnt, welche im Kochen überläuft. 56) Man nimmt von den Gesetzen nur insofern Notiz, als man sie verspottet, wie von den mit Geldbussen verstärkten Warnungstafeln, welche in den Barbierläden hängen und den

Lucio. Do you so, Sir? And was the duke a flesh-monger, a fool, and a coward,⁵⁷ as you then reported him to be?

Duke. You must, Sir, change persons with me, ere you make that my report: you, indeed, spoke so of him; and much more, much worse.

Lucio. O thou damnable fellow! Did not I pluck thee by the nose, for thy speeches?

Duke. I protest, I love the duke as I love myself.

Ang. Hark, how the villain would close⁵⁸ now, after his treasonable abuses.

Escal. Such a fellow is not to be talk'd withal: -- away with him to prison. -- Where is the provost? -- Away with him to prison. Lay bolts enough upon him, let him speak no more. -- Away with those giglots⁵⁹ too, and with the other confederate companion.

[The Provost lays hand on the Duke.]

Duke. Stay, Sir; stay awhile.

Ang. What! resists he? Help him, Lucio.

Lucio. Come, Sir; come, Sir; come, Sir; foh! Sir. Why, you bald-pated, lying rascal! you must be hooded, must you? show your knave's visage, with a pox to you! show your sheep-biting face, and be hang'd an hour. Will 't not off?

[*Pulls off the Friar's hood, and discovers the Duke.*⁶⁰]

Duke. Thou art the first knave that e'er made⁶¹ a duke. --

First, provost, let me bail these gentle three. --

[To Lucio.] Sneak not away, Sir; for the friar and you must have a word anon. -- Lay hold on him.

Lucio. This may prove worse than hanging.

Duke. [To Escal.] What you have spoke, I pardon; sit you down.

We 'll borrow place of him.⁶² -- [To Ang.] Sir, by your leave.

Hast thou or word, or wit, or impudence, That yet can do thee office? If thou hast, Rely upon it till my tale be heard, And hold no longer out.

Ang. O my dread lord!

I should be guiltier than my guiltiness, To think I can be undiscernible, When I perceive your grace, like power divine,

Hath look'd upon my passes.⁶³ Then, good prince, No longer session hold upon my shame, But let my trial be mine own confession: Immediate sentence then, and sequent death, Is all the grace I beg.

Duke. Come hither, Mariana. --

Say, wast thou e'er contracted to this woman?

Ang. I was, my lord.

Duke. Go take her hence, and marry her instantly. --

Do you the office, friar; which consummate,⁶⁴

Return him here again. -- Go with him, provost.

[Exeunt ANGELO, MARIANA, Friar PETER, and Provost.]

Escal. My lord, I am more amaz'd at his dishonour, Than at the strangeness of it.⁶⁵

Duke. Come hither, Isabel.

Your friar is now your prince: as I was then

Advertising and holy⁶⁶ to your business.

Not changing heart with habit, I am still Attorney'd at your service.

Isab. O, give me pardon,

That I, your vassal, have employ'd and pain'd

Your unknown sovereignty!

Duke. You are pardon'd, Isabel:

And now, dear maid, be you as free to us.⁶⁷

Your brother's death, I know, sits at your heart;

And you may marvel, why I obscur'd myself,

Labouring to save his life, and would not rather

Make rash remonstrance⁶⁸ of my hidden power,

Than let him so be lost. O most kind maid!

It was the swift celerity of his death,

Which I did think with slower foot came on,

That brain'd my purpose:⁶⁹ but, peace be with him!

That life is better life, past fearing death,

Than that which lives to fear.⁷⁰ Make it your comfort,

So happy is your brother.

Isab. I do, my lord.

Re-enter ANGELO, MARIANA, Friar PETER, and Provost.

Duke. For this new-married man, approaching here,

Whose salt imagination yet hath wrong'd

Your well-defended honour, you must pardon

For Mariana's sake. But, as he adjudg'd⁷¹ your brother,

(Being criminal, in double violation

Of sacred chastity, and of promise-breach,⁷²

Henry VI. First Part (A. 4, Sc. 7) und giglot fortune in Cymbeline (A. 3, Sc. 1). 60) Diese Bühnenweisung rührt von Rowe her. -- an hour ist ein blosser Zusatz zu be hang'd, wie etwa be hang'd a-while in einem alten Liede, das Farmer citirt. 61) Die Fol. hat mad'st. 62) Der Herzog will neben Escalus als Richter den Platz einnehmen, den bisher Angelo gehabt hat. 63) my passes = meine Streiche, was ich mir zu Schulden kommen liess. 64) Nachdem das vollbracht ist, bringe ihn wieder hierher. -- consummate wird participialisch für consummated gebraucht, wie in Much Ado about Nothing (A. 3, Sc. 2) I do but stay till your marriage be consummate. 65) Dass Angelo überhaupt ein solcher Schurke sein konnte, setzt den Escalus noch mehr in Verwirrung, als die auffallende Art, wie diese Schande sich bethätigt hat. 66) advertising and holy ist nach Sh.'schem Gebrauche der Copula zu verbinden: wie ich damals als Mönch für Eure Angelegenheit ein frommer Rathgeber war, so habe ich auch jetzt mit dem Kleide nicht das Herz vertauscht, sondern stehe Euch immer noch zu Dienst. 67) Seid Ihr nun eben so rückhaltlos gegen mich, wie ich es gegen Euch bin. 68) remonstrance = bezeugende Vorstellung, entgegengesetzte Darlegung. -- Malone vermuthete demonstrance. 69) to brain = das Gehirn zerschlagen, vernichten. 70) Das Leben, welches über die Todesfurcht hinaus ist, ist ein besseres Leben, als dasjenige, welches den Tod noch zu fürchten hat. Tröstet Euch damit, dass Euer Bruder dieses Glückes theilhaft ist. 71) Zu adjudg'd ist to death oder to the death hinzuzudenken. 72) Die Construction ist ungenau, da statt promise-breach, von violation abhängig, einfach promise stehen müsste; Hammer wollte lesen in promise-breach, als ob sich double violation of sacred chastity auf Isabella und Mariana bezöge, was schwer-

Thereon dependent, for your brother's life)
 The very mercy of the law cries out
 Most audible, even from his proper tongue,⁷³
 »An Angelo for Claudio, death for death!«
 Haste still pays haste, and leisure answers leisure,
 Like doth quit like, and Measure still for Measure.⁷⁴
 Then, Angelo, thy fault⁷⁵ thus manifested, —
 Which, though thou wouldst deny, denies thee vantage, —
 We do condemn thee to the very block
 Where Claudio stoop'd to death, and with like haste. —
 Away with him.

Mari. O my most gracious lord!
 I hope you will not mock me with a husband.

Duke. It is your husband mock'd you with a husband.
 Consenting to the safeguard of your honour,⁷⁶
 I thought your marriage fit; else imputation,
 For that he knew you, might reproach your life,
 And choke your good to come. For his possessions,
 Although by confiscation⁷⁷ they are ours,
 We do instate and widow you withal,⁷⁸
 To buy you a better husband.

Mari. O my dear lord!
 I crave no other, nor no better man.

Duke. Never crave him: we are definitive.

Mari. Gentle my liege, — [Kneeling.

Duke. You do but lose your labour.
 Away with him to death. — [To Lucio.] Now, Sir, to you.

Mari. O my good lord! — Sweet Isabel, take my part:
 Lend me your knees, and all my life to come
 I'll lend you, all my life to do you service.

Duke. Against all sense you do importune her:
 Should she kneel down in mercy of this fact,⁷⁹
 Her brother's ghost his paved bed would break,
 And take her hence in horror.⁸⁰

Mari. Isabel,
 Sweet Isabel, do yet but kneel by me:
 Hold up your hands, say nothing, I'll speak all.
 They say, best men are moulded out of faults,
 And, for the most, become much more the better
 For being a little bad: so may my husband.
 O Isabel! will you not lend a knee?

Duke. He dies for Claudio's death.

Isab. Most bounteous Sir, [Kneeling.
 Look, if it please you, on this man condemn'd,
 As if my brother liv'd. I partly think,
 A due sincerity govern'd his deeds,
 Till he did look on me:⁸¹ since it is so,
 Let him not die. My brother had but justice,
 In that he did the thing for which he died:
 For Angelo,
 His act did not o'ertake his bad intent;

And must be buried but as an intent
 That perish'd by the way. Thoughts are no subjects,⁸²
 Intents but merely thoughts.

Mari. Merely, my lord.

Duke. Your suit's unprofitable: stand up, I say. —
 I have bethought me of another fault. —
 Provost, how came it Claudio was beheaded
 At an unusual hour?

Prov. It was commanded so.

Duke. Had you a special warrant for the deed?

Prov. No, my good lord: it was by private message.

Duke. For which I do discharge you of your office:
 Give up your keys.

Prov. Pardon me, noble lord:

I thought it was a fault, but knew it not,
 Yet did repent me, after more advice;
 For testimony whereof, one in the prison,
 That should by private order else have died,
 I have reserv'd alive.

Duke. What's he?

Prov. His name is Barnardine.

Duke. I would thou hadst done so by Claudio. —
 Go fetch him hither: let me look upon him.

[Exit Provost.

Escal. I am sorry, one so learned and so wise
 As you, Lord Angelo, have still appear'd,
 Should slip so grossly, both in the heat of blood,
 And lack of temper'd judgment afterward.

Ang. I am sorry that such sorrow I procure;
 And so deep sticks it in my penitent heart,
 That I crave death more willingly than mercy:
 'T is my deserving, and I do entreat it.

Re-enter Provost, BARNARDINE, CLAUDIO, muffled, and JULIET.

Duke. Which is that Barnardine?

Prov. This, my lord.

Duke. There was a friar told me of this man. —
 Sirrah, thou art said to have a stubborn soul,
 That apprehends no further than this world,
 And squar'st thy life according.⁸³ Thou'rt condemned;
 But, for those earthly faults, I quit them all,
 And pray thee, take this mercy to provide
 For better times to come. — Friar, advise him:
 I leave him to your hand. — What muffled fellow's that?

Prov. This is another prisoner that I sav'd,
 That should have died when Claudio lost his head,
 As like almost to Claudio as himself. [Unmuffles CLAUDIO.

Auch das folgende Thereon dependent, for your brother's life bezieht sich, genau genommen, nur auf promise, nicht auf promise-breach. 73) d. h. nach Angelo's eigenem Zugeständniss. 74) So hat Sh. in K. Im Folgenden ist der Gegensatz durchgeführt zwischen Claudio, der die Sünde, um die er starb, wirklich beging, und zwischen Angelo, dessen That nicht den bösen Vorsatz einholte und deshalb als ein verunglückter Vorsatz begraben werden und in Vergessenheit gerathen muss. — Es ist zweifelhaft, ob Sh. zu must be buried etc. als Subject his act oder, was natürlicher erscheint, his bad intent gefasst wissen wollte. 82) subjects = Gegenstände der Anklage oder Bestrafung. 83) Und Du richtest Dein

 By this Lord Angelo perceives he 's safe:
 Methinks, I see a quick'ning in his eye. —
 Well, Angelo, your evil quits you well:⁸⁵
 Look that you love your wife; her worth, worth yours.⁸⁶ —
 I find an apt remission in myself,
 And yet here 's one in place I cannot pardon.⁸⁷ —
 [To Lucio.] You, sirrah, that knew me for a fool, a coward,

One all of luxury,⁸⁸ an ass, a madman:
 Wherein have I so deserv'd of you,
 That you extol⁸⁹ me thus?

Lucio. 'Faith, my lord, I spoke it but according to the trick.⁹⁰ If you will hang me for it, you may; but I had rather it would please you, I might be whipp'd.

Duke. Whipp'd first, Sir, and hang'd after. —
 Proclaim it, provost, round about the city,
 If any woman 's⁹¹ wrong'd by this lewd fellow
 (As I have heard him swear himself there 's one Whom he begot with child), let her appear,
 And he shall marry her: the nuptial finish'd,
 Let him be whipp'd and hang'd.

Lucio. I beseech your highness, do not marry me to a whore! Your highness said even now, I made you a duke:⁹² good my lord, do not recompense me in making me a cuckold.

Duke. Upon mine honour, thou shalt marry her.
 Thy slanders I forgive; and therewithal
 Remit thy other forfeits.⁹³ — Take him to prison,
 And see our pleasure herein executed.

Lucio. Marrying a punk, my lord, is pressing to death, whipping, and hanging.

Duke. Slandering a prince deserves it. —
 She, Claudio, that you wrong'd, look you restore. —
 Joy to you, Mariana! — love her, Angelo:
 I have confess'd her,⁹⁴ and I know her virtue. —
 Thanks, good friend Escalus, for thy much goodness:
 There 's more behind that is more gratefull.⁹⁵

Thanks, provost, for thy care, and secrecy;
 We shall employ thee in a worthier place. —
 Forgive him, Angelo, that brought you home
 The head of Ragozine for Claudio's:
 The offence pardons itself. — Dear Isabel,
 I have a motion much imports your good;
 Whereto if you 'll a willing ear incline,
 What 's mine is yours, and what is yours is mine. —
 So, bring us to our palace; where we 'll show
 What 's yet behind, that 's meet⁹⁶ you all should know.

THE COMEDY OF ERRORS.

Einleitung.

Der älteste Druck von Shakspeare's Comedy of Errors ist in der Gesamtausgabe der Shakspeare'schen Dramen in Folio (1623) enthalten, und das Lustspiel steht daselbst unter dem Titel The Comedie of Errors als das fünfte in der Reihe der Comedies, in Acte, aber nicht in Scenen eingetheilt, und ohne ein Personenverzeichniss, das erst Rowe in seiner Ausgabe (1709) hinzugefügt hat. Der Text, aus einer vielleicht nachlässig angefertigten Handschrift abgedruckt, leidet an zahlreichen Incorrectheiten, welche theils in den späteren Folioausgaben, theils von den folgenden Herausgebern verbessert sind; doch bleibt noch Manches zweifelhaft, und ein Passus (in A. 2, Sc. 1) scheint, trotz aller Versuche der Kritiker, unheilbar corrumpt zu sein.

Die erste bestimmte Notiz von diesem Lustspiel, die sich bisher hat auffinden lassen, ist die Erwähnung desselben in Wit's Treasury (1598) von Francis Meres, der unter Shakspeare's Komödien nach »his Gentlemen of Verona« sogleich »his Errors« aufzählt. Aber wie jenes Stück muss auch dieses lange vor dem Jahre 1598 geschrieben sein, da Styl und Vers, Charakteristik und Anlage, beide hinlänglich als Shakspeare'sche Jugenddramen kennzeichnen. Besonders charakteristisch ist in dieser Beziehung die häufige Anwendung des sogenannten Doggerel-rhyme, einer Art von längeren Knittelversen, welche, der vorshakspeare'schen Bühne angehörig, von unserm Dichter in der Comedy of Errors für die grobe Komik der beiden Clowns in ziemlicher Ausdehnung benutzt ist; ebenso für den höheren Styl der Gebrauch gereimter Vierzeilen, einer ursprünglich lyrischen Form, welche Shakspeare in seinen späteren Werken nie wieder in solchem Masse angewandt hat. — Zu diesen inneren Gründen, welche für eine verhältnissmässig frühe Abfassung dieses Lustspiels sprechen, tritt noch ein äusserer, auf den zuerst Theobald hingewiesen hat, eine Zeitanspielung in dem Drama selbst, und zwar in der zweiten Scene des dritten Acts. Dort schildert Dromio seinem Herrn die Küchenmagd und vergleicht sie in ihrer Corpulenz einem Erdglobus, auf dem er verschiedene Länder zu entdecken unternimmt. Auf Antipholus' Frage, wo er Frankreich gefunden, lautet die Antwort: In her forehead; armed and reverted, making war against her hair, mit einem Wortspiel zwischen hair und heir, dessen eine Seite Johnson hervorhebt: Our author, in my opinion, only sports with an allusion, in which he takes too much delight, and means that the mistress had the French disease. By a forehead armed he means covered with incrustated eruptions: by reverted he means having the hair turned backward. Die andere Seite des Wortspiels beleuchtet Theobald mit einer historischen Thatsache: In 1589 Henry III. of France being stabbed, and dying of his wound, was succeeded by Henry IV. of Navarre, whom he appointed his successor: but whose claim the states of France resisted, on account of his being a protestant. This, I take it, is what he means, by France making war against her heir. Now, as in 1591, Queen Elizabeth sent over 4000 men under the conduct of the Earl of Essex, to the assistance of this Henry of Navarre, it seems to me very probable that during this expedition being on foot, this comedy made its appearance. — Demnach müsste Comedy of Errors etwa um das Jahr 1591 geschrieben und auf die Bühne gebracht sein, und ein Drama, das nach den Gesta Grayorum (1688) im December 1594 in Gray's Inn in London unter dem Titel Comedy of Errors von den Schauspielern aufgeführt wurde, ist aller Wahrscheinlichkeit nach das Shakspeare'sche Drama, das sich damals bereits einige Jahre lang auf der Bühne erhalten hatte und wegen seiner Popularität für die Aufführung in dem genannten Rechtscollegium ausgewählt war.

Dass Shakspeare's Comedy of Errors auf ein lateinisches Lustspiel gleichen Inhalts, auf die Menaechmi des Plautus, gegründet ist, liegt klarer zu Tage, als der Weg, auf welchem der englische Dichter zu der Bekanntschaft mit seinem römischen Vorgänger gelangt ist. Die meisten Kritiker, welche unserm Dramatiker eine hinlängliche Kenntniss des Latein abzusprechen geneigt sind, als dass er den Plautus in der Ursprache habe lesen können, weisen auf ein älteres englisches Drama hin, das am Neujahrstag 1576—77 bei Hofe in Hampton-Court aufgeführt worden ist, von dem sich aber nur der Name The Historie of Error in den Rechnungen der Hoflustbarkeiten erhalten hat. Unter diesem Namen, der im Jahre 1582, zu Historie of Ferrar entstellt, als ein zu Windsor aufgeführtes Drama in den Hofrechnungen wiederkehrt, muthmasste man eine mehr oder minder freie Bearbeitung des Plautinischen Lustspiels Menaechmi, aus welcher dann Shakspeare den Stoff zu seinem Drama geschöpft habe. Die Möglichkeit einer solchen Benutzung und Entlehnung bleibt, da die fragliche Historie of Error verloren gegangen ist, allerdings bestehen, indess nur als blosser Hypothese, welcher sich die eben so wahrscheinliche andere Hypothese gegenüberstellen lässt, dass Shakspeare die Menaechmi des Plautus selbst gelesen hat, wenn auch vielleicht nicht im lateinischen Original, doch in einer englischen Uebersetzung; so dass die bedeutenden Abweichungen der Shakspeare'schen Behandlung des Stoffs von der des Plautus ihren Grund nicht in einem engeren Anschlusse an die verlorene Historie of Error haben, die nach der Zeit ihrer Aufführung (im Jahre 1576) und nach dem damaligen Standpunkt des englischen Theaters schwerlich eine Verbesserung des Plautus gewesen sein wird; dass sie vielmehr in der Selbständigkeit Shakspeare's bei der Bearbeitung des gegebenen Stoffes ihre ausreichende Erklärung finden. Freilich ist die, wie es scheint, älteste englische Uebersetzung der Menaechmi erst im Jahre 1595 im Drucke erschienen, aber aus dem Vorwort des Druckers erhellt, dass der Uebersetzer W. W., nach wahrscheinlicher Vermuthung William Warner, dieses Lustspiel schon früher nebst anderen des Plautus in's Englische übertragen, und zwar zunächst nicht für den Druck, sondern für handschriftliche Circulation unter seinen Freunden bestimmt habe. Es heisst nämlich in dem Vorwort, das überschrieben ist The Printer to the Readers, folgendermassen: The writer hereof (loving Readers) having diverse of this Poetes Comedies Englished, for the use and delight of his private friends, who in Plautus own words are not able to understand them: I have prevailed so far with him as to let this one go farther abroad, for a publike recreation and delight to all those that affect the diverse sorts of books compiled in this kind, whereof (in my judgement) in harmlesse mirth and quicknesse of fine conceit the most of them come far short of this. — Da ist es nun sehr denkbar, dass Shakspeare auf diesem zu seiner Zeit nicht ungewöhnlichen Wege das Plautinische Drama kennen gelernt und in seinem Sinne zu einem ihm allein gehörigen Lustspiel umgearbeitet hat. Jedenfalls empfiehlt sich eine Vergleichung der beiden Stücke um so eher, als eine andere, der Comedy of Errors mit der Historie of Error, nicht mehr möglich ist.

Der Titel der im Jahre 1595 erschienenen Uebersetzung lautet: A pleasant and fine conceited Comedie, taken out of the most excellent wittie Poet Plautus: Chosen purposely from out the rest, as least harmefull and yet most delightfull. Written in English by W. W. — London, Printed by Tho. Creede etc. 1595. — Vorangeht das aus dem Lateinischen übersetzte Argument, das wir mit Gegenüberstellung des Originals, eines Akrostichon, hier folgen lassen:

*Mercator Siculus cui erant gemini filii,
Ex illis, surrepto altero, mortem appetit.
Nomen surreptitii indit illi qui domi est
Avus paternus, facit Menaechmum Sosiclem.
Et is germanum, postquam adolevit, quaeritat
Circum omnes oras. Post Epidamnum devenit.
Hic fuerat auctus ille surreptitius.
Menaechmum civem credunt omnes advenam:
Eumque appellant meretrix, uxor et socer.
Ii se cognoscunt fratres postremo invicem.*

*Two twinborne sonnes, a Sicill marchant had,
Menechmus one, and Sosicles the other;
The first his father lost a little lad,
The Grandsire namde the latter like his brother.
This (growne a man) long travell tooke to seeke
His Brother, and to Epidamnum came,
Where th' other dwelt inricht, and him so like,
That Citizens there take him for the same:
Father, wife, neighbours, each mistaking either,
Much pleasant error, ere they meete together.*

Shakspeare verlegt den Ort der Handlung von Epidamnum nach Ephesus; doch zeigt die wiederholte Erwähnung der ersteren Stadt in der Comedy of Errors, dass ihm jene andere Version wohlbekannt gewesen. Von den Personen des Dramas entlehnte er unter bedeutenden Modificationen und mit durchaus selbständig neuerschaffener Charakteristik: Antipholus von Syrakus (Menechmus the Traveller), Antipholus von Ephesus (Menechmus the Citizen), Adriana (Mulier), die Buhlerin (Erotium), Dromio von Syrakus (Messenio), Pinch (Medicus). Dagegen liess er fort: den Peniculus, einen Freund und Parasiten des Menechmus the Citizen, der in dem Plautinischen Lustspiel seine stereotype Rolle spielt, den Koch und die Magd der Erotium, und den Schwiegervater des Menechmus (Senex), von dessen Gespräch mit seiner Tochter sich jedoch einzelne Züge in den Gesprächen der Adriana mit ihrer Schwester wiederfinden. Hinzugefügt sind von Shakspeare folgende Figuren, von denen sich bei Plautus keine Spur zeigt: der Herzog von Ephesus, Aegeon, Dromio von Ephesus, Balthazar, Angelo, die beiden anderen Kaufleute, Aemilia, Luciana und Luce. Es ergiebt sich schon aus dieser Personenaufzählung, wie viel mannigfaltiger und eingreifender sich die Handlung des Stückes bei Shakspeare gestaltet. Wie viel tiefer zugleich bei ihm die Charakteristik und die Motivirung gefasst ist, wie viel lebendiger Scherz und Ernst bei ihm schattirt sind, wird am besten aus der Anführung einzelner Stellen aus dem englischen Plautus sich ergeben, die wir hier unter Verweisung auf die freilich nicht immer ganz parallelen Scenen bei Shakspeare folgen lassen.

Dem ersten Auftreten des Antipholus und Dromio von Syrakus (A. 1, Sc. 2) entspricht bei Plautus Folgendes:

Enter Menechmus Sosicles Messenio his servant, and some Saylers.

Menechmus. Surely Messenio, I thinke Sea-fairers never take so comfortable a joy in any thing as when they have been long tost and turmoyle in the wide seas, they hap at last to ken land.

Messenio. Ile be sworn, I shuld not be gladder to see a whole Country of mine owne, then I have bene at such a sight. But I pray, wherfore are we now come to Epidamnum? must we needs go to see everie Towne that we heare off?

Menechmus. Till I finde my brother, all Townes are alike to me: I must trie in all places.

Messenio. Why then let's even as long as wee live seeke your brother: six yeares now have we roamde about thus, Istria, Hispania, Massylia, Ilyria, all the upper sea, all high Greece, all Haven Towns in Italy. I think if we had sought a needle all this time, we must needs have found it, had it bene above ground. It cannot be that he is alive; and to seek a dead man thus among the living, what folly is it?

Menechmus. Yea, could I but once find any man that could certainly enforme me of his death, I were satisfied; otherwise I can never desist seeking: Little knowest thou Messenio how neare my heart it goes.

Messenio. This is washing of a Blackamore. Faith let's goe home, unlesse ye meane we should write a storie of our travaile.

Menechmus. Sirra, no more of these sawcie speeches, I perceive I must teach ye how to serve me, not to rule me.

Messenio. I, so, now it appeares what it is to be a servant. Wel I must speake my conscience. Do ye heare sir? Faith I must tell ye one thing, when I looke into the leane estate of your purse, and consider advisedly of your decaying stocke, I hold it verie needful to be drawing homeward, lest in looking your brother, we quite lose ourselves. For this assure your selfe, this Towne Epidamnum, is a place of outragious expences, exceeding in all ryot and lasciviousnesse: and (I heare) as full of Ribaulds, Parasites, Drunkards, Catchpoles, Cony-catchers, and Sycophants, as it can hold. Then for Curtizans, why here's the currantest stamp of them

Der Scene (A. 2, Sc. 2), wo Adriana den vermeintlichen Gemahl auffordert, zum Mittagsmahl in's Haus zu kommen, entspricht bei Plautus eine ähnliche, wo aber nicht die Frau des Menechmus, sondern die Buhlerin den einen Zwillingbruder mit dem andern verwechselt:

Enter Erotium.

Let the doore stand so. Away, it shall not be shut. Make haste within there ho: Maydes looke that all things be readie. Cover the boord, put fire under the perfuming pannes: let all things be very handsome. Where is hee that Cylindrus said stood without here? Oh what meane you sweet heart, that ye come not in? I trust you thinke yourselfe more welcome to this house then to your owne, and great reason why you should do so. Your dinner and all things are readie as you willed. Will ye go sit downe?

Menechmus. Whom doth this woman speake to?

Erotium. Even to you Sir: to whom else should I speake?

Menechmus. Gentlewoman, ye are a straunger to me, and I marvell at your speeches.

Erotium. Yea Sir, but such a straunger, as I acknowledge ye for my best and dearest friend, and well you have deserved it.

Menechmus. Surely Messenio, this woman is also mad or drunke, that useth all this kindnesse to me uppon so small acquaintance.

Messenio. Tush, did not I tell ye right? these be but leaves that fall upon you now, in comparison of the trees that wil tumble on your necke shortly. I told ye, here were silver tong'de hacsters. But let me talke with her a lile. Gentlewoman, what acquaintance have you with this man? where have you seene him?

Erotium. Where he sawe me, here in Epidamnum.

Messenio. In Epidamnum? who never till this day set his foote within the towne?

Erotium. Go, go, flowing Jack. Menechmus what need all this? I pray go in.

Menechmus. She also calls me by my name.

Messenio. She smels your purse.

Menechmus. Messenio, come hither: here take my purse. Ile know whether she aime at me or my purse, ere I go.

Erotium. Will ye go in to dinner, Sir?

Menechmus. A good motion, yea, and thanks with all my heart.

Erotium. Never thanke me for that which you commaunded to be provided for yourselfe.

Menechmus. That I commaunded?

Erotium. Yea for you and your Parasite.

Menechmus. My Parasite?

Erotium. Peniculus, who came with you this in the world. Ye must not thinke here to scape with as light cost as in other places. The verie name shews the nature, no man comes hither sine damno.

Menechmus. Yee say very well indeed: give mee my purse into mine owne keeping, because I will so be the safer, sine damno.

Messenio. Why Sir?

Menechmus. Because I feare you wil be busie among the Curtizans, and so be cozened of it: then should I take great paines in belabouring your shoulders. So to avoid both these harms, Ile keep it my selfe.

Menechmus. I pray do so Sir: all the better.

morning, when you brought me the cloake which you got from your wife.

Menechmus. A cloake that I brought you, which I got from my wife?

Erotium. Tush, what needeth all this jesting? Pray leave off.

Menechmus. Jest or earnest, this I tell ye for a truth. I never had wife, neither have I; nor never was in this place till this instant; for only thus farre am I come, since I brake my fast in the ship.

Erotium. What ship do ye tell me off?

Messenio. Marry Ile tell ye: an old rotten weather-beaten ship, that we have sailed up and downe in these sixe yeares. Ist not time to be going homewards thinke ye?

Erotium. Come, come, Menechmus, I pray leave this sporting and go in.

Menechmus. Well Gentlewoman, the truth is, you mistake my person; it is some other you looke for.

Erotium. Why, thinke ye I know ye not to be Menechmus, the sonne of Moschus, and have heard ye say, ye were borne at Siracusa where Agathocles did raigne; then Pythia, then Liparo, and now Hiero.

Menechmus. All this is true.

Messenio. Either shee is a witch, or else shee hath dwelt there and knew ye there.

Menechmus. Ile go in with her, Messenio, Ile see further of this matter.

Messenio. Ye are cast away then.

Menechmus. Why so? I warrant thee, I can lose nothing; something I shall gaine, perhaps a good lodging during my abode here. Ile dissemble with her an other while, Nowe when you please let us go in. I made straunge with you, because of this fellow here, least he should tell my wife of the cloake which I gave you.

Erotium. Will ye staie any longer for your Peniculus, your Parasite?

Menechmus. Not I, Ile neither staie for him, nor have him let come in, if he do come.

Erotium. All the better. But Sir, will ye doo one thing for me?

Menechmus. What is that?

Erotium. To beare that cloake which you gave me to the Diars, to have it new trimd and altred.

Menechmus. Yea that will be well, so my wife shall not know it. Let mee have it with mee after dinner. I will but speake a word or two with this fellowe, then Ile follow ye in. Ho, Messenio, come aside. Goe and provide for thyselfe and these ship boyes in some inne; then looke that after dinner you come hither for me.

Messenio. Ah maister, will yee be cony-catcht thus wilfully?

Menechmus. Peace foolish knave, seest thou not what a sot she is; I shall coozen her I warrant thee.

Der Schluss des Plautinischen Stücks, von der Scene an, die in der Comedy of Errors der Fesselung des für wahnsinnig geltenden Antipholus durch Pinch und seine Gefährten entspricht (A. 4, Sc. 4), bis zur Aufhellung und Lösung aller Wirren, lautet so:

Enter Senex, with foure Lorarii, Porters.

Senex. Before Gods and men, I charge and commaund you Sirs, to execute with great care that which I appoint you: if yee love the safetie of your own ribbes and shoulders, then goe take me up my sonne in lawe, laie all hands upon him: why stand ye stil? what do ye doubt? I saie, care not for his threatnings, nor for anie of his words. Take him up, and bring him to the Physitians house: I will go thither before. [Exit.

Menechmus. What newes? how now masters? what will ye do with me? why do ye thus beset me? whither carrie ye me? Helpe, helpe, neighbors, friends, citizens!

Messenio. O Jupiter, what do I see? my maister abused by a companie of varlets.

Menechmus. Is there no good man will helpe me?

Messenio. Helpe ye maister? yes the villaines shall have my life before they shall thus wrong ye. Tis more fit I should be kild, then you thus handled. Pull out that rascals eye that holds ye about the necke there. Ile clout these peasants; out ye rogue, let go ye varlet.

Menechmus. I have hold of this villaines eie.

Messenio. Pull it out, and let the place appear in his head. Away ye cutthroat theeves, ye murderers.

Lo. Omnes. O, O, ay.

Messenio. Away, get ye hence, ye mongrels, ye dogs. Will ye be gone? Thou rascal behind there, Ile give thee somewhat more, take that. It was time to come maister; you had bene in good case, if I had not bene heere now. I tolde you what would come of it.

Menechmus. Now as the Gods love me, my good friend I thank thee: thou hast done that for me which I shall never be able to requite.

Messenio. Ile tell ye how Sir; give me my freedome.

Menechmus. Should I give it thee?

Messenio. Seeing you cannot requite my good turne.

Menechmus. Thou art deceived, man.

Messenio. Wherein?

Menechmus. On mine honestie, I am none of thy maister; I had never yet anie servant would do so much for me.

Messenio. Why then bid me be free: will you?

Menechmus. Yea surelie: be free, for my part.

Messenio. O sweetly spoken; thanks my good maister.

Servus alius. Messenio, we are all glad of your good fortune.

Messenio. O maister, Ile call you maister still. I praie use me in anie service as ye did before. Ile

Messenio. Ay Maister.

Menechmus. Wilt thou be gone?

Messenio. See, see, she hath him safe inough now. Thus he hath escaped a hundreth Pyrates hands at sea; and now one landrover hath bourded him at first encounter. Come away fellowes.

dwell with you still; and when ye go home, Ile wait upon you.

Menechmus. Nay, nay, it shall not need.

Messenio. Ile go strait to the Inne, and deliver up my accounts, and all your stuffe. Your purse is lockt up safely sealed in the casket, as you gave it mee. I will goe fetch it to you.

Menechmus. Do, fetch it.

Messenio. I will.

Menechmus. I was never thus perplext. Some deny me to be him that I am, and shut me out of their doores. This fellow saith he is my bondman, and of me he begs his freedome: he will fetch my purse and monie. Well, if he bring it, I will receive it, and set him free. I would he would so go his way. My old father in lawe and the Doctor, saie I am mad: who ever sawe such strange demeanors. Well though Erotium be never so angrie, yet once againe Ile go see if by intreatie I can get the cloake on her to carrie to my wife. [Exit.

Enter Menechmus the Traveller, and Messenio.

Menechmus. Impudent knave, wilt thou that I ever saw thee since I sent thee away to day, and bad thee come for mee after dinner?

Messenio. Ye make me starke mad: I tooke ye away, and reskued ye from foure great bigboand villaines, that were carrying ye away even heere in this place. Heere they had ye up; you cried Helpe, helpe. I came running to you: you and I together beate them away by maine force. Then for my good turne and faithfull service, ye gave me my freedome: I tolde ye I would go fetch your casket: now in the meane time you ranne some other way to get before me, and so you denie it all againe.

Menechmus. I gave thee thy freedome?

Messenio. You did.

Menechmus. When I give thee thy freedome, Ile be a bondman my selfe; go thy wayes.

Messenio. Whewe, marry I thanke for nothing.

Enter Menechmus the Citizen.

Menechmus. Forsworne Queanes, sweare till your hearts ake, and your eyes fall out, ye shall never make me beleve that I carried hence either cloake or chaine.

Messenio. O heavens, maister, what do I see?

Menechmus Tra. What?

Messenio. Your ghoast?

Menechmus Tra. What ghoast?

Messenio. Your image, as like you as can be possible.

Menechmus Tra. Surely not much unlike me, as I thinke.

Menechmus Cit. O my good friend and helper, well met: thanks for thy late good helpe.

Messenio. Sir, may I crave to know your name?

Menechmus Cit. I were too blame if I should not tell thee anie thing; my name is Menechmus.

Menechmus Tra. Nay my friend, that is my name.

Menechmus Cit. I am of Syracusis in Sicilia.

Menechmus Tra. So am I.

Messenio. Are you a Syracusan?

Menechmus Cit. I am.

Messenio. Oho, I know ye: this is my maister: I thought hee there had bene my maister, and was proffering my service to him. Pray pardon me Sir, if I said any thing I should not.

Menechmus Tra. Why doating patch, didst thou not come with me this morning from the ship?

Messenio. My faith he saies true. This is my maister, you may go looke ye a man. God save ye maister: you Sir, farewell. This is Menechmus.

Menechmus Cit. Isay, that I am Menechmus.

Messenio. What a jest is this? Are you Menechmus?

Menechmus Cit. Even Menechmus, the sonne of Moschus.

Menechmus Tra. My father's sonne?

Menechmus Cit. Friend, I go about neither to take your father nor your country from you.

Messenio. O immortal Gods, let it fall out as I hope; and for my life these two Twinnes, all things agree so jump together. I will speake to my maister. Menechmus.

Both. What wilt thou?

Messenio. I call you not both: but which of you came with me from the ship?

Menechmus Cit. Not I.

Menechmus Tra. I did.

Messenio. Then I call you. Come hither.

Menechmus Tra. What's the matter?

Messenio. This same is either some notable cousening jugler, or else it is your brother whom we seeke. I never sawe one man so like an other: water to water, nor milke to milke, is not liker than he is to you.

Menechmus Tra. Indeed I thinke thou saiest true. Finde it that he is my brother, and I here promise thee thy freedom.

Messenio. Well, let me about it. Heare ye Sir; you say your name is Menechmus.

Menechmus Cit. I do.

Messenio. So is this man's. You are of Syracusis?

Menechmus Cit. True.

Messenio. So is he. Moschus was your father?

Menechmus Cit. He was.

Messenio. So was he his. What will you say, if I find that ye are brethren and twins?

Menechmus Cit. I would thinke it happie newes.

Messenio. Nay staie maisters both: I meane to have the honor of this exploit. Answer me: your name is Menechmus?

Menechmus Cit. Yea.

Messenio. And yours?

Menechmus Tra. And mine.

Messenio. You are of Syracusis?

Menechmus Cit. I am.

Menechmus Tra. And I.

Messenio. Well, this goeth right thus farre. What is the farthest thing that you remember there?

Menechmus Cit. How I went with my father to Tarentum, to a great mart, and there in the preasse I was stolne from him.

Menechmus Tra. O Jupiter!

Messenio. Peace, what exclaiming is this? How old were ye then?

Menechmus Cit. About seven yeare old: for even then I shedde teeth, and since that time I never heard of anie of my kindred.

Messenio. Had ye never a brother?

Menechmus Cit. Yes, as I remember, I heard them say, we were two Twinnes.

Menechmus Tra. O Fortune!

Messenio. Tush, can ye not be quiet? Were ye both of one name?

Menechmus Cit. Nay, (as I think) they called my brother, Soicles.

Menechmus Tra. It is he, what need further prooffe? O brother, brother, let me embrace thee!

Menechmus Cit. Sir, if this be true, I am wonderfully glad: but how is it that ye are called Menechmus?

Menechmus Tra. When it was tolde us that you and our father were both dead, our Graundsire (in memorie of my father's name) chaungde mine to Menechmus.

Menechmus Cit. 'Tis verie like he would do so indeed. But let me aske ye one question more: what was our mother's name?

Menechmus Tra. Theusimarche.

Menechmus Cit. Brother, the most welcome man to mee, that the world holdeth.

Menechmus Tra. I joy, and ten thousand joyes the more, having taken so long travaile and huge paines to seeke you.

Messenio. See now, how all this matter comes about. This it was that the gentlewoman had ye in to dinner, thinking it had bene he.

Menechmus Cit. True it is I willed a dinner to be provided for me heere this morning; and I also brought hither closely, a cloake of my wives, and gave it to this woman.

Menechmus Tra. Is not this the same, brother?

Menechmus Cit. How came you by this?

Menechmus Tra. This woman met me; had me in to dinner; entertained me most kindly; and gave me this cloake, and this chaine.

Menechmus Cit. Indeed she tooke ye for mee: and I believe I have bene as straungely handled by occasion of your comming.

Messenio. You shall have time inough to laugh at all these matters hereafter. Do ye remember maister, what ye promised me?

Menechmus Cit. Brother, I will intreate you to performe your promise to Messenio: he is worthie of it.

Menechmus Tra. I am content.

Messenio. Io Tryumphe.

Menechmus Tra. Brother, will ye now go with me to Syracusis?

Menechmus Cit. So soone as I can sell away such goods as I possesse here in Epidamnum, I will go with you.

Menechmus Tra. Thanks, my good brother.

Menechmus Cit. Messenio, playe thou the Crier for me, and make a proclamation.

Messenio. A fit office. Come on. O yes. What day shall your sale be?

Menechmus Cit. This day sennight.

Messenio. All men, women and children in Epidamnium, or elsewhere, that will repaire to Menechmus house this day sennight, shall there finde all maner of things to sell; serraunts, household stuffe, house, ground and all; so they bring readie money. Will ye sell your wife too Sir?

Menechmus Cit. Yea, but I think no bodie will bid money for her.

Messenio. Thus, Gentlemen, we take our leaves, and if we have pleasse, we require a Plaudite.

ACT I.

SCENE I.

A Hall in the DUKE'S Palace.

Enter DUKE, ÆGEON, Gaoler, Officers, and other Attendants.

Æge. Proceed, Solinus, to procure my fall,
 And by the doom¹ of death end woes and all.

Duke. Merchant of Syracuse, plead no more.

I am not partial, to infringe our laws:

The enmity and discord, which of late

Sprung from the rancorous outrage of your duke

To merchants, our well-dealing countrymen, —

Who, wanting gilders² to redeem their lives,

Have seal'd his rigorous statutes with their bloods, —

Excludes all pity from our threat'ning looks.

For, since the mortal and intestine³ jars

'Twixt thy seditious countrymen and us,

It hath in solemn synods been decreed,

Both by the Syracusians⁴ and ourselves,

To admit no traffic to our adverse towns:⁵

Nay, more, if any, born at Ephesus,

Be seen at Syracusan⁶ marts and fairs;

Again, if any Syracusan born

Come to the bay of Ephesus, he dies,

His goods confiscate to the duke's dispose;

Unless a thousand marks be levied,

To quit the penalty, and to ransom him.

Thy substance, valued at the highest rate,

Cannot amount unto a hundred marks;

Therefore, by law thou art condemn'd to die.

Æge. Yet this my comfort: when your words are done,

My woes end likewise with the evening sun.⁷

Duke. Well, Syracusan; say, in brief, the cause

Why thou departedst from thy native home,

And for what cause thou cam'st to Ephesus.

Æge. A heavier task could not have been impos'd

Than I to speak my griefs unspeakable;⁸

Yet, that the world may witness, that my end

Was wrought by nature,⁹ not by vile offence,

I'll utter what my sorrow gives me leave.¹⁰

In Syracuse was I born, and wed¹¹

Unto a woman, happy but for me,

And by me too,¹² had not our hap been bad.

With her I liv'd in joy: our wealth increas'd

By prosperous voyages I often made

1) Manche Hgg. lesen mit den späteren Folioausgg. by thy doom. — Die erste Fol. hat by the doom.
 2) gilder = Gulden, gebraucht Sh. hier in weiterem Sinne als eine ausländische, unenglische Münze. Es fehlte den ephesischen Kaufleuten, die sich unschuldig in Syrakus hatten betreffen lassen, an Geld, um sich loszukaufen; so mussten sie mit dem Tode büßen. 3) Da von den Streitigkeiten zwischen Ephesus und Syrakus die Rede ist, muss intestine hier in uneigentlichem Sinne stehen und nach Sh.'scher Construction mit mortal verbunden werden: Streitigkeiten, welche verderblich den Staat in seinem Innern treffen. — Eben so uneigentlich ist seditious nicht = aufrührerisch gegen das einheimische Regiment, sondern = unruhig, unverträglich gegen Fremde.
 4) Syracusians, wie die Fol. durchgängig hat und Sh. also wahrscheinlich schrieb, ändern manche Hgg. hier und weiterhin in Syracusans um. 5) Keinen Handelsverkehr zuzulassen zwischen unsern beiden Städten, die einander feindlich gegenüber liegen. 6) Die Fol. hat at any Syracusan, wo das any wahrscheinlich durch ein Versehen aus der vorhergehenden oder der folgenden Zeile in diese gerathen ist. — mart ist sowohl = Markt, Handel, als = Marktplatz. 7) Wenn der Herzog das Todesurtheil gesprochen hat, so wird dasselbe an Ægeon an demselben Tag um Sonnenuntergang vollzogen werden. 8) Als dass ich meine unaussprechlichen Leiden aussprechen sollte. — So wird das I mit dem Infinitiv verbunden in Timon of Athens (A. 4, Sc. 3) I, to bear this, || That never knew but better, is some burden. 9) Unter nature versteht Ægeon die Stimme der Natur, die ihn antrieb, in Ephesus nach dem verlorenen Sohne zu forschen, und ihn so dem Tode entgegenführte, so sein Ende bewirkte. 10) scil. gives me leave to utter. 11) wed für wedded, als Präteritum und Participium, kommt auch in Timon of Athens (A. 4, Sc. 3) vor: That makes the wappen'd widow wed again; doch ist auch bei Sh. wedded die gebräuchlichere Form. 12) Mein Weib war nur für mich glücklich und auch durch mich. — too, das

To Epidamnum: till my factor's death,
 And the ¹³ great care of goods at random left,
 Drew me from kind embracements of my spouse:
 From whom my absence was not six months old,
 Before herself (almost at fainting under
 The pleasing punishment that women bear)
 Had made provision for her following me,
 And soon, and safe, arrived where I was.
 There had she not been long, but she became
 A joyful mother of two goodly sons;
 And, which was strange, the one so like the other,
 As could not be distinguish'd but by names.
 That very hour, and in the self-same inn,
 A meaner woman ¹⁴ was delivered
 Of such a burden, male twins, both alike.
 Those, for their parents were exceeding poor,
 I bought, and brought up to attend my sons.
 My wife, not meanly proud of two such boys,
 Made daily motions for our home return:
 Unwilling I agreed; alas! too soon
 We came aboard.
 A league from Epidamnum had we sail'd,
 Before the always-wind-obeying deep
 Gave any tragic instance of our harm: ¹⁵
 But longer did we not retain much hope;
 For what obscured light the heavens did grant
 Did but convey unto our fearful minds
 A doubtful warrant of immediate death;
 Which, though myself would gladly have embrac'd,
 Yet the incessant weepings of my wife,
 Weeping before for what she saw must come,
 And piteous plainings ¹⁶ of the pretty babes,
 That mourn'd for fashion, ignorant what to fear,
 Forc'd me to seek delays for them and me.
 And this it was, — for other means was none.
 The sailors sought for safety by our boat,
 And left the ship, then sinking-ripe, to us.
 My wife, more careful for the latter-born,
 Had fasten'd him unto a small spare mast,

Such as seafaring men provide for storms:
 To him one of the other twins was bound,
 Whilst I had been like heedful of the other. ¹⁷
 The children thus dispos'd, my wife and I,
 Fixing our eyes on whom our care was fix'd,
 Fasten'd ourselves at either end the mast;
 And floating straight, obedient to the stream,
 Were ¹⁸ carried towards Corinth, as we thought.
 At length the sun, gazing upon the earth,
 Dispers'd those vapours that offended us,
 And by the benefit of his wished light
 The seas wax'd calm, and we discovered
 Two ships from far making amain to us;
 Of Corinth that, of Epidaurus this:
 But ere they came, — O, let me say no more!
 Gather the sequel by that went before.

Duke. Nay, forward, old man; do not break off so;
 For we may pity, though not pardon thee.

Æge. O, had the gods done so, ¹⁹ I had not now
 Worthily term'd them merciless to us!
 For, ere the ships could meet by twice five leagues,
 We were encounter'd by a mighty rock;
 Which being violently borne upon, ²⁰
 Our helpful ship ²¹ was splitted in the midst;
 So that in this unjust divorce of us
 Fortune had left to both of us alike
 What to delight in, what to sorrow for.
 Her part, ²² poor soul! seeming as burdened
 With lesser weight, but not with lesser woe,
 Was carried with more speed before the wind,
 And in our sight they three were taken up
 By fishermen of Corinth, as we thought.
 At length another ship had seized on us;
 And, knowing whom it was their hap to save,
 Gave healthful ²³ welcome to their shipwreck'd guests;
 And would have reft the fishers of their prey,
 Had not their bark ²⁴ been very slow of sail;
 And therefore homeward did they bend their course. —
 Thus have you heard me sever'd from my bliss, in der Fol. fehlt, ergänzt die zweite Folioausg. von 1632. — Zwischen happy und hap scheint ein Wortspiel beabsichtigt. 13) the verbesserte Theobald das he der Fol., was die späteren Folioausgg. stehen liessen und dafür mit grosser Willkür änderten And he great store of goods at random leaving. — Steevens las And he (great care of goods at random left). — Die Fol. hat für random die ältere Form randone, und in der vorhergehenden Zeile Epidamium für Epidamnum. 14) meaner für das meane der Fol. zu lesen, scheint eine natürlichere Verbesserung, als mit der zweiten Folioausg. vor mean ein poor einzuschieben, da von der Armuth der Leute erst nachher die Rede ist: for their parents were exceeding poor. — a meaner woman = eine Frau von geringerer Herkunft, im Gegensatz zu der Frau des Aegeon. — Auch die Cambridge Edd. lesen meaner, was, wie sie bemerken, schon Sidney Walker's Conjectur war. 15) Wir waren eine Meile von Epidamnum weit gesegelt, ehe die stets dem Winde gehorchende Tiefe uns irgend ein unheilvolles Zeichen unseres Schadens gegeben. — In dem Vorhergehenden verbindet die Interpunction der Fol., welche Capell mit Recht beibehält, too soon mit we came aboard. Andere setzen ein Punctum hinter soon. 16) plaining = Wehklage, Gewimmer. — to plain für to lament ist als transitives und als neutrales Verbum zu Sh.'s Zeit sehr gebräuchlich. — Die Kinder, die nicht wussten, was zu befürchten stand, klagten nur gleichsam des Herkommens, der Mode wegen mit, klagten nur, weil es so gebräuchlich schien. 17) Unter other ist der andere Sohn nebst dem zweiten Sklavenzwilling verstanden. 18) were verbesserte Rowe das was der Fol. 19) Wenn die Götter sich damals erbarmt hätten, so würde ich sie jetzt nicht mit Fug als unbarmherzig gegen uns bezeichnet haben. 20) Die Fol. hat borne up, die zweite Folioausg. von 1632 borne up upon. — Malone strich das up mit Recht. 21) Für our helpful ship liest Rowe our helpless ship. 22) her part ist der Theil, welcher seiner Frau an der bis dahin gemeinschaftlich besessenen Freude und Sorge blieb, das eine Ende des Mastes, an dem sie selbst mit dem einen Zwillingssohne und dem einen Sklavenzwilling festgebunden war: they three, wie sie gleich nachher heissen. 23) Für healthful welcome, das sich auf to their guests bezieht, = ein Willkomm, der den Schiffbrüchigen Heil brachte, gedeihlich war, las Malone ohne Grund helpful welcome mit der zweiten Folioausg. — helpful stand passender kurz vorher bei helpful ship. — Das Subject another ship wird im Verlaufe des Satzes, wie das their shipwreck'd guests und das folgende And would have etc. sowie and therefore homeward zeigt, von der Mannschaft des Schiffes, nicht eigentlich vom Schiffe selbst verstanden. 24) Die Fol. hat back für bark, verbessert in der zweiten Folioausg. 25) have befall'n

That by misfortunes was my life prolong'd,
To tell sad stories of my own mishaps.

Duke. And, for the sake of them thou sorrowest for,
Do me the favour to dilate at full
What hath befall'n of them, and thee, ²⁵ till now.

Æge. My youngest boy, ²⁶ and yet my eldest care,
At eighteen years became inquisitive
After his brother; and importun'd ²⁷ me,
That his attendant (so his case was like, ²⁸
Reft of his brother, but retain'd his name)
Might bear him company in the quest of him;
Whom whilst I labour'd of a love to see,
I hazarded the loss of whom I lov'd. ²⁹
Five summers have I spent in farthest Greece,
Roaming clean ³⁰ through the bounds of Asia,
And, coasting homeward, came to Ephesus,
Hopeless to find, yet loath to leave unsought
Or that, ³¹ or any place that harbours men.
But there must end the story of my life;
And happy were I in my timely death,
Could all my travels warrant me they live.

Duke. Hapless Ægeon, whom the fates have mark'd
To bear the extremity of dire mishap!
Now, trust me, were it not against our laws,
Against my crown, my oath, my dignity,
Which princes, would they, may not disannul,
My soul should sue as advocate for thee.
But though thou art adjudged to the death,
And passed sentence may not be recall'd
But to our honour's great disparagement,
Yet will I favour thee in what I can:
Therefore, merchant, I'll limit ³² thee this day,
To seek thy help by beneficial help: ³³
Try all the friends thou hast in Ephesus;
Beg thou, or borrow, to make up the sum,
And live; if no, ³⁴ then thou art doom'd to die. —
Gaoler, take him to thy custody.

Gaol. I will, my lord.

Æge. Hopeless, and helpless, doth Ægeon wend, ³⁵
But to procrastinate his lifeless end. ³⁶ [Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

A public Place.

Enter ANTIPHOLUS and DROMIO of Syracuse, and a Merchant. ¹

Mer. Therefore, give out you are of Epidamnus,
Lest that your goods too soon be confiscate.
This very day, a Syracusian merchant
Is apprehended for arrival here;
And, not being able to buy out his life
According to the statute of the town,
Dies ere the weary sun set in the west. ²
There is your money that I had to keep.

Ant. S. Go bear it to the Centaur, where we host,
And stay there, Dromio, till I come to thee.
Within this hour it will be dinner-time:
Till that, I'll view the manners of the town,
Peruse the traders, gaze upon the buildings,
And then return and sleep within mine inn;
For with long travel I am stiff and weary.
Get thee away.

Dro. S. Many a man would take you at your word,
And go indeed, having so good a mean. ³ [Exit.]

Ant. S. A trusty villain, ⁴ Sir, that very oft,
When I am dull with care and melancholy,
Lightens my humour with his merry jests.
What, will you walk with me about the town,
And then go to my inn, and dine with me?

Mer. I am invited, Sir, to certain merchants,
Of whom I hope to make much benefit;
I crave your pardon. Soon at five o'clock, ⁵
Please you, I'll meet with you upon the mart,
And afterwards consort ⁶ you till bed-time:
My present business calls me from you now.

und and they in der Fol. — Die zweite Folioausg. hat das Richtige. 26) Sh. beachtete hier nicht, dass vorher der bei der Mutter gebliebene Sohn als der jüngere bezeichnet war: My wife, more careful for the latter-born. 27) to importune betont Sh. auf der zweiten Sylbe. 28) so ist mit like zu verbinden: so gleich war seine Lage der seines Herrn, indem er seines Bruders beraubt war, aber dessen Namen beibehalten hatte. 29) Während Ægeon an der liebevollen Sehnsucht (love) leidet, den verlorenen Sohn zu sehen, riskierte er den Verlust des ihm gebliebenen Sohnes, den er liebte, indem er ihn aussandte, den andern zu suchen. — love to see ist wohl der Antithese wegen zu whom I lov'd gesetzt. 30) clean = durchaus, ganz und gar, gehört zu dem folgenden through the bounds = durch alle Bezirke. 31) that scil. place bezieht sich auf Ephesus: Ægeon, wenn er auch die Hoffnung, die Söhne zu finden, aufgegeben hatte, mochte doch weder Ephesus noch irgend einen andern Platz undurchforscht lassen. 32) to limit = als Frist setzen. 33) Die Wiederholung des help in derselben Zeile, welche Malone für eigenthümlich Sh.'sch hält, mag eben so leicht aus einer Unachtsamkeit des Setzers herrühren. So wollte Pope thy life, Collier aber thy hope lesen, weil nachher Ægeon hopeless und helpless zusammenstellt. 34) no gebraucht Sh. auch sonst für das absolut stehende not. So in Measure for Measure (A. 3, Sc. 2) Canst thou tell, if Claudio die to-morrow, or no? 35) to wend = sich wenden, gehen. Das veraltete Wort kommt auch vor in Midsommer Night's Dream (A. 3, Sc. 2) And back to Athens shall the lovers wend. 36) lifeless, in der Fol. liveless, gehört dem Sinne nach mehr zu his als zu end: Ægeon will seinen Tod um einen Tag aufschieben, obwohl er eigentlich schon jetzt nicht mehr lebte. — Sh. dachte an his lifeless life, oder an the end of his lifeless life.

1) Die Fol. hat Enter Antipholus Erotas, a Marchant, and Dromio. — Antipholus und Antipholus schreibt die Fol. wechselweise, und Erotas, wofür die Fol. weiterhin einmal Errotis hat, ist wahrscheinlich verstümmelt aus dem lateinischen Erraticus, wie Sereptus, womit der andere Antipholus in der folgenden Scene bezeichnet wird, aus Surreptus, — zwei Prädicate, womit vielleicht die alte, verloren gegangene Komödie History of Error die beiden Zwillinge unterschied. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 159. 2) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 7. — So in K. Richard III. (A. 5, Sc. 3) The weary sun hath made a golden set. 3) so good a mean ist das Geld, das ihm Antipholus in Verwahr giebt und das ein gutes Reisegeld abgeben würde. 4) villain gebraucht Sh. hier = ein bäuerischer Mensch, ein Mensch von niederer Herkunft und geringer Bildung, nicht geradezu = bondman or slave, wie Malone erklärt. 5) soon ist mit at five o'clock zu verbinden = wenn es bald fünf Uhr ist, ungefähr um fünf Uhr, wie soon at night = gegen Abend. 6) to consort als transitives Verbum mit dem Accusativ

Ant. S. Farewell till then. I will go lose myself,
And wander up and down to view the city.

Mer. Sir, I commend you to your own content. [Exit.]

Ant. S. He that commends me to mine own content, Commends me to the thing I cannot get.
I to the world⁷ am like a drop of water,
That in the ocean seeks another drop;
Who, falling there to find his fellow forth,
Unseen, inquisitive, confounds himself:⁸
So I, to find⁹ a mother, and a brother,
In quest of them, unhappy, lose myself.

Enter DROMIO of Ephesus.

Here comes the almanac of my true date.¹⁰
What now? How chance thou art return'd so soon?

Dro. E. Return'd so soon! rather approach'd too late.
The capon burns, the pig falls from the spit,
The clock hath stricken twelve upon the bell;
My mistress made it one¹¹ upon my cheek:
She is so hot, because the meat is cold;
The meat is cold, because you come not home;
You come not home, because you have no stomach;
You have no stomach, having broke your fast;
But we, that know what 't is to fast and pray,
Are penitent¹² for your default to-day.

Ant. S. Stop in your wind, Sir. Tell me this, I pray:
Where have you left the money that I gave you?

Dro. E. O! sixpence, that I had o' Wednesday last,
To pay the saddler for my mistress' crupper;¹³
The saddler had it,¹⁴ Sir; I kept it not.

Ant. S. I am not in a sportive humour now.
Tell me, and dally not, where is the money?
We being strangers here, how dar'st thou trust
So great a charge from thine own custody?

Dro. E. I pray you, jest, Sir, as you sit at dinner.
I from my mistress come to you in post;
If I return, I shall be post indeed,¹⁵
For she will score your fault upon my pate.
Methinks, your maw, like mine, should be your clock,¹⁶
And strike you home without a messenger.

Ant. S. Come, Dromio, come; these jests are out of season:

Reserve them till a merrier hour than this.

Where is the gold I gave in charge to thee?

Dro. E. To me, Sir? why, you gave no gold to me.

Ant. S. Come on, sir knave; have done your foolishness,

And tell me how thou hast dispos'd thy charge.¹⁷

Dro. E. My charge was but to fetch you from the mart
Home to your house, the Phoenix,¹⁸ Sir, to dinner.
My mistress, and her sister, stay for you.

Ant. S. Now, as I am a Christian, answer me,
In what safe place you have bestow'd¹⁹ my money;
Or I shall break that merry sconce²⁰ of yours,
That stands on tricks when I am undispos'd.
Where is the thousand marks thou hadst of me?

Dro. E. I have some marks of yours upon my pate;
Some of my mistress' marks upon my shoulders,
But not a thousand marks²¹ between you both.
If I should pay your worship those again,
Perchance, you will not bear them patiently.

Ant. S. Thy mistress' marks! what mistress, slave, hast thou?

Dro. E. Your worship's wife, my mistress at the Phoenix;

She that doth fast till you come home to dinner,
And prays²² that you will hie you home to dinner.

Ant. S. What, wilt thou flout me thus unto my face,
Being forbid?²³ There, take you that, sir knave.

[Strikes him.]

Dro. E. What mean you, Sir? for God's sake, hold your hands.

Nay, an you will not, Sir, I'll take my heels. [Exit.]

Ant. S. Upon my life, by some device or other
The villain is o'erraught²⁴ of all my money.
They say, this town is full of cozenage;²⁵
As, nimble jugglers that deceive the eye,
Dark-working²⁶ sorcerers that change the mind,
Soul-killing witches that deform the body,
Disguised cheaters, prating mountebanks, der Person = Jemandem Gesellschaft leisten, ihn begleiten. So in Romeo and Juliet (A. 3, Sc. 1) Thou, wretched boy, that didst consort him here. — Malone wollte ohne Grund consort with you ändern. 7) to the world = im Verhältniss zur Welt oder zu den Menschen, der Welt gegenüber. 8) to confound one's self ist zugleich = sich vermengen mit den übrigen Tropfen des Weltmeers, und = sich vernichten, untergehen. — unseen, inquisitive ist nach Sh.'scher Construction zu verbinden: indem er, selber ungesehen, Nachforschungen anstellt. — Staunton interpungirt unseen inquisitive! und fasst inquisitive geradezu als inquisitor. 9) to find = ausfindig machen, ist Gegensatz zu lose myself. 10) Der mit ihm in derselben Stunde geborene Dromio ist der Kalender, in welchem er das wahre Datum seiner Geburt finden kann. 11) scil. made it strike one. — Er spielt auf die Ohrfeige an, die er von der Adriana wegen seiner vermeintlichen Saumseligkeit erhielt. 12) Wir, die wir fasten und beten, müssen büssen für das, was ihr verschuldet. 13) my mistress' crupper ist der hintere Theil des Damensattels seiner Herrin. So in Taming of the Shrew (A. 3, Sc. 2) a woman's crupper of velure. 14) Der Sattler empfing das Geld von mir. 15) Wortspiel zwischen post = Eile, Eilbote, und = Pfosten, auf den die Zeche oder Schuldrechnung eingekerbt oder mit Kreide verzeichnet zu werden pflegte, wie Adriana, was Antipholus sich zu Schulden kommen lässt, auf den Schädel Dromio's einkerbt. — Für score schreibt die Fol. scoure. 16) clock ist Pope's, durch das folgende strike gerechtfertigte, Emendation für cook in der Fol. 17) thy charge ist in Antipholus' Sinn = das Dir anvertraute Geld, in Dromio's Sinn = Dein Auftrag. 18) Das Haus des Antipholus von Ephesus hiess so nach einem Bilde des Phönix, das ihm als Abzeichen diente. 19) to bestow = unterbringen, bergen. So in Hamlet (A. 3, Sc. 1) we will bestow ourselves. 20) sconce = Schädel, wie sonst to break one's pate oder one's head steht, = Einem den Kopf wund schlagen. — merry = spasshaft, bezieht sich eigentlich auf Dromio; ebenso der relative Satz That stands etc. 21) Ihr habt mir Alle Beide noch keine tausend Mark zu verdienen gegeben. — Das Wortspiel ist zwischen mark = eine Münze, und = Abzeichen, hier am Körper von den erhaltenen Schlägen. 22) fast und pray = fasten und beten oder bitten, wird hier so scherzhaft zusammengestellt, wie vorher. Vgl. oben Anm. 12. 23) Da es Dir verboten wurde, mich zu verhöhnen. 24) o'erraught, die alte Participialform von to overreach = prellen, übervorthellen, schreibt die Fol. irrthümlich orewrought. 25) Eine ähnliche Schilderung, wie sie hier Sh. von Ephesus entwirft, hat Plautus an der entspre-

And many such like liberties of sin:²⁷
 If it prove so, I will be gone the sooner.
 I'll to the Centaur, to go seek this slave:
 I greatly fear, my money is not safe.

ACT II.

SCENE I.

A public Place.

Enter ADRIANA and LUCIANA.¹

Adr. Neither my husband, nor the slave return'd,
 That in such haste I sent to seek his master!
 Sure, Luciana, it is two o'clock.

Luc. Perhaps, some merchant hath invited him,
 And from the mart he's somewhere gone to dinner.
 Good sister, let us dine, and never fret:

A man is master of his liberty:
 Time is their master; and, when they see time,
 They'll go, or come: if so, be patient, sister.

Adr. Why should their liberty than ours be more?²

Luc. Because their business still lies out o' door.

Adr. Look, when I serve him so, he takes it ill.³

Luc. O! know he is the bridle of your will.

Adr. There's none but asses will be bridled so.

Luc. Why, headstrong liberty is lash'd with woe.⁴

There's nothing situate under heaven's eye
 But hath his bound, in earth,⁵ in sea, in sky:
 The beasts, the fishes, and the winged fowls,
 Are their males' subjects, and at their controls.
 Men, more divine, the masters of all these,
 Lords of the wide world,⁶ and wild wat'ry seas,
 Indued with intellectual sense and souls,
 Of more pre-eminence than fish and fowls,

Are masters to their females, and their lords:
 Then, let your will attend on their accords.

Adr. This servitude makes you to keep unwed.

Luc. Not this, but troubles of the marriage-bed.

Adr. But, were you wedded, you would bear some sway.

Luc. Ere I learn love, I'll practise to obey.

Adr. How if your husband start some other where?⁷

Luc. Till he come home again, I would forbear.

Adr. Patience unmov'd, no marvel though she pause;⁸
 They can be meek that have no other cause.⁹

A wretched soul, bruised with adversity,

We bid be quiet, when we hear it cry;

But were we burden'd with like weight of pain,

As much, or more, we should ourselves complain;¹⁰

So thou, that hast no unkind mate to grieve thee,

With urging helpless patience¹¹ wouldst relieve me:

But if thou live to see like right bereft,

This fool-begg'd¹² patience in thee will be left.

Luc. Well, I will marry one day, but to try. —

Here comes your man: now is your husband nigh.

Enter DROMIO of Ephesus.

Adr. Say, is your tardy master now at hand?

Dro. E. Nay, he is at two hands with me, and that my two ears can witness.

Adr. Say, didst thou speak with him? Know'st thou his mind?

Dro. E. Ay, ay; he told his mind upon mine ear.

Beshrew his hand, I scarce could understand it.

Luc. Spake he so doubtfully, thou couldst not feel his meaning?

Dro. E. Nay, he struck so plainly, I could too well feel his blows; and withal so doubtfully, that I could scarce understand them.¹³

 26) dark-working = im Finstern arbeitend. — soul-killing = die Seelen ihrer Opfer verderbend, die Seele verwirrend, indem sie zugleich den Leib entstellen. 27) such like liberties of sin = solche Gewerbe, wie die obengenannten, die gleichsam ein Privilegium zur Sünde, zu sündhafter Betreibung, haben. — Hanmer wollte libertines of sin lesen.

 1632 für thus der Fol. 4) Das Leid oder Wehgefühl ist gleichsam die Peitsche, die Züchtigung, mit welcher eigensinniger Freiheitsdrang bestraft wird. 5) in earth etc. gehört zu there's nothing. — in sky = in der Luft, geht auf die winged fowls. 6) men, masters, lords setzte zuerst Hanmer in Uebereinstimmung mit dem folgenden Are masters etc. für man, master, lord der Fol. Vielleicht begann Sh. den Satz mit dem Singular und ging nachher in den Plural über; ein Constructionswechsel, der bei ihm nicht selten ist, so oft Zwischensätze, wie hier, zwischen das Subject und das Prädicat treten. 7) Wie aber, wenn Euer Gatte irgendwo sonsthin abspringt, Euch untreu wird. — some other where = somewhere else. — Steevens fasst ohne Grund where als Substantiv und to start als transitives Verbum. — Johnson vermuthet hate für where, wie in As you like it (A. 4, Sc. 3)
Her love is not the hare that I do hunt. 8) to pause = still halten, ruhig bleiben: kein Wunder, dass eine Geduld, die nicht gereizt wird, ruhig bleibt. 9) Die keine Ursache zu Anderem haben, keine Ursache, anders zu sein. — other ist eben so kühn mit cause verbunden, wie vorher lifeless mit end. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 36.
 10) Die Construction ist we ourselves should complain. — to complain one's self ist hier wohl eben so wenig anzunehmen, wie in K. Richard II. (A. 1, Sc. 2) Where then, alas! may I complain myself? wo die Hgg. my- self als reflexives Pronomen und Object zu complain fassen. 11) Indem Du mir eine Geduld anempfehlst, die nichts frommt, oder die sich nicht zu helfen weiss. 12) fool-begg'd, eigentlich = als ein Narr erbeten, dann = närrisch, blödsinnig überhaupt, ein Epitheton, gebildet aus der sprichwörtlich gebrauchten Phrase to beg somebody for a fool = sich die Vormundschaft über Jemanden ausbitten, weil er verrückt ist und sein Vermögen nicht selbst verwalten kann. So in Dekker's Honest Whore: If I fret not his guts, beg me for a fool. — Der Sinn des ganzen Satzes ist: wenn Du es erlebst, dass Dir ein gleiches Recht geraubt wird, so wird diese blödsinnige, einer Vormundschaft bedürftige, Geduld in Dir schon aufhören, im Stiche gelassen werden. 13) Das Wortspiel zwischen to understand = verstehen, und = unter Etwas stehen, Etwas aushalten, für to stand under, kommt ähnlich in Two Gentlemen of Verona (A. 2, Sc. 5) vor: my staff understands me. — Demgemäss ist auch doubtfully

Adr. But say, I pr'ythee, is he coming home?

It seems, he hath great care to please his wife.

Dro. E. Why, mistress, sure my master is horn-mad.

Adr. Horn-mad, ¹⁴ thou villain!

Dro. E. I mean not cuckold-mad; but, sure, he is stark mad.

When I desir'd him to come home to dinner,

He ask'd me for a thousand ¹⁵ marks in gold:

»'T is dinner-time,« quoth I; »my gold!« quoth he:

»Your meat doth burn,« quoth I; »my gold!« quoth he:

»Will you come home?« ¹⁶ quoth I; »my gold!« quoth he:

»Where is the thousand marks I gave thee, villain?«

»The pig,« quoth I, »is burn'd;« ¹⁷ »my gold!« quoth he:

»My mistress, Sir,« quoth I; »hang up thy mistress!

I know not thy mistress: out on thy mistress!«

Luc. Quoth who?

Dro. E. Quoth my master:

»I know,« quoth he, »no house, no wife, no mistress.«

So that my errand, due unto my tongue,

I thank him, I bear home upon my shoulders; ¹⁸

For, in conclusion, he did beat me there.

Adr. Go back again, thou slave, and fetch him home.

Dro. E. Go back again, and be new beaten home?

For God's sake, send some other messenger.

Adr. Back, slave, or I will break thy pate across.

Dro. E. And he will bless that cross ¹⁹ with other beating.

Between you I shall have a holy head.

Adr. Hence, prating peasant! fetch thy master home.

Dro. E. Am I so round with you, as you with me, ²⁰

That like a football you do spurn me thus?

You spurn me hence, and he will spurn me hither:

If I last in this service, you must case me in leather.

[Exit.]

Luc. Fie, how impatience lowereth in your face!

Adr. His company must do his minions grace.

Whilst I at home starve for a merry look. ²¹

Hath homely age the alluring beauty took

From my poor cheek? then he ²² hath wasted it:

Are my discourses dull? barren my wit?

If voluble and sharp discourse be marr'd,

Unkindness blunts it, more than marble hard.

Do their ²³ gay vestments his affections bait?

That's not my fault; he's master of my state.

What ruins are in me, that can be found

By him not ruin'd? then is he the ground

Of my defeatures. ²⁴ My decayed fair ²⁵

A sunny look of his would soon repair;

But, too unruly deer, he breaks the pale,

And feeds from home: ²⁶ poor I am but his stale. ²⁷

Luc. Self-harming jealousy! — fie! beat it hence.

Adr. Unfeeling fools can with such wrongs dispense.

I know his eye doth homage elsewhere,

Or else, what lets it but he would be here? ²⁸

Sister, you know, he promis'd me a chain:

'Would that alone alone ²⁹ he would detain,

So he would keep fair quarter with his bed!

I see, the jewel best enamelled

Will lose his beauty: and though gold 'bides still,

That others touch, yet often touching will

Wear gold; and no man, that hath a name,

But falsehood and corruption doth it shame. ³⁰

doppelsinnig = zweideutig, von der Rede, und = gefährlich, furchtbar, von den Schlägen. 14) horn-mad, zunächst von wildgewordenen Rindern = so toll, dass sie mit den Hörnern stossen, gebraucht Sh. auch sonst mit der Anspielung auf das Horn des Hahnrei = hahnreitoll; so in Much Ado about Nothing (A. 1, Sc. 1) If this should ever happen, thou wouldst be horn-mad. 15) a hundred marks in der Fol. — Das Richtige hat schon die zweite Folioausg. 16) Das Wort home, das zufällig in der Fol. hinter dem ähnlichen come ausgefallen war, ergänzte zuerst Hammer, in Uebereinstimmung mit Dromio's Worten in der vorigen Scene. 17) Genauer hatte Dromio in der vorigen Scene gesagt The capon burns, the pig falls from the spit. 18) Die Botschaft, die ich eigentlich auf meiner Zunge haben sollte, die ich mündlich abstaten sollte, die bringe ich in den mir ertheilten Schlägen auf meinem Rücken mit nach Haus. 19) Wortspiel zwischen across = quer durch, und cross = Zeichen des Kreuzes. 20) round = gerade heraus, dreist gegen Jemanden, und = rund, wie ein Ball, eine Kugel, die man mit den Füßen fortrollt. — Auf einen solchen mit Leder überzogenen Ball bezieht sich auch das folgende case me in leather. 21) to starve for = nach Etwas schmachten. So in Sh.'s Sonnets (75) Sometime all full with feasting on your sight, || And by and by clean starved for a look. 22) Auf he liegt der Nachdruck. 23) their bezieht sich auf das freilich ziemlich weit vorhergegangene his minions. 24) defeature = entstellte Gesichtszüge, Entstellung, gebraucht Sh. auch in Venus and Adonis: To mingle beauty with infirmity, || And pure perfection with impure defeature. 25) fair = Schönheit, auch im abstracten Sinne, ist bei Sh. und seinen Zeitgenossen häufig. 26) Das Bild ist von einem Rehe gebraucht, welches aus dem ihm zugewiesenen Bezirk, etwa in einem Parke, entweicht und sich auswärts sein Futter sucht. 27) stale ist alles zur Schau Ausgestellte, sei es um damit anzulocken oder um sich desselben als Vorwand und Deckmantel zu bedienen. So hat Antipholus die Adriana zur Frau, um desto besser unter der Maske des Ehemanns seinen Lüsten zu fröhnen. — stale könnte, wie Staunton meint, hier auch im Sinne des adjectivischen stale stehen = out of date, insipid. Er citirt dazu aus Cymbeline (A. 3, Sc. 4) die Parallelstelle Poor I am stale, a garment out of fashion. 28) to let = verhindern: was steht im Wege, dass er nicht hier sein sollte? 29) So verbessert die zweite Folioausg. das alone, a love (love gedruckt) der ersten Fol. — Diese emphatische Wiederholung des Wortes findet sich in Sh.'s Lucrece: But I alone alone must sit and pine. Der Sinn ist: ich wollte, dass Antipholus die Kette allein, nur die Kette mir vorenthalte, wenn er dafür nur meinem Bette treu bliebe. 30) Diese offenbar corrupte und von den Hggn. nur sehr unsicher emendirte Stelle lautet in der Fol. nach deren Orthographie und Interpunction so: I see the Jewell best enamaled || Will loose his beautie: yet the gold bides still || That others touch, and often touching will || Where gold and no man that hath a name, || By falshood and corruption doth it shame: || — Adriana vergleicht mit dem Golde, das freilich die Probe besteht, aber von zu wiederholter Erprobung oder Berührung doch afficirt wird, den guten Namen eines Menschen, der auch auf die Dauer durch Falschheit und Schlechtigkeit afficirt wird. — Die von der Fol. abweichenden Lesarten des Textes rühren grösstentheils von Theobald her. 31) scil. I'll weep away what is left of my beauty.

Since that my beauty cannot please his eye,
I'll weep what's left away,¹ and weeping die.

Luc. How many fond fools serve mad jealousy!

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

The Same.

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse.

Ant. S. The gold I gave to Dromio is laid up
Safe at the Centaur; and the heedful slave
Is wander'd forth, in care to seek me out.
By computation, and mine host's report,
I could not speak with Dromio, since at first
I sent him from the mart.¹ See, here he comes.

Enter DROMIO of Syracuse.

How now, Sir? is your merry humour alter'd?
As you love strokes, so jest with me again.
You know no Centaur?² You receiv'd no gold?
Your mistress sent to have me home to dinner?
My house was at the Phoenix? Wast thou mad,
That thus so madly thou didst answer me?

Dro. S. What answer, Sir? when spake I such a word?

Ant. S. Even now, even here, not half an hour since.

Dro. S. I did not see you since you sent me hence,
Home to the Centaur, with the gold you gave me.

Ant. S. Villain, thou didst deny the gold's receipt,
And toldst me of a mistress, and a dinner;
For which, I hope, thou feltst I was displeas'd.

Dro. S. I am glad to see you in this merry vein.
What means this jest? I pray you, master, tell me.

Ant. S. Yea, dost thou jeer, and flout me in the teeth?
Think'st thou, I jest? Hold, take thou that, and that.

[Beating him.]

Dro. S. Hold, Sir, for God's sake! now your jest is earnest:

Upon what bargain do you give it me?³

Ant. S. Because that I familiarly sometimes
Do use you for my fool, and chat with you,
Your sauciness will jet⁴ upon my love,
And make a common of my serious hours.
When the sun shines, let foolish gnats make sport,
But creep in crannies, when he hides his beams.
If you will jest with me, know my aspect,⁵

And fashion your demeanour to my looks,
Or I will beat this method in your scone.

Dro. S. Scone,⁶ call you it? so you would leave battering, I had rather have it a head: an you use these blows long, I must get a scone for my head, and ensconce it too; or else I shall seek my wit in my shoulders.⁷ But, I pray, Sir, why am I beaten?

Ant. S. Dost thou not know?

Dro. S. Nothing, Sir, but that I am beaten.

Ant. S. Shall I tell you why?

Dro. S. Ay, Sir, and wherefore; for, they say, every why hath a wherefore.

Ant. S. Why, first, — for flouting me; and then, wherefore, —

For urging it the second time to me.

Dro. S. Was there ever any man thus beaten out of season, When, in the why, and the wherefore, is neither rhyme nor reason? —

Well, Sir, I thank you.

Ant. S. Thank me, Sir? for what?

Dro. S. Marry, Sir, for this something, that you gave me for nothing.

Ant. S. I'll make you amends next,⁸ to give you nothing for something. But say, Sir, is it dinner-time?

Dro. S. No, Sir: I think, the meat wants that I have.

Ant. S. In good time, Sir; what's that?

Dro. S. Basting.⁹

Ant. S. Well, Sir, then 't will be dry.

Dro. S. If it be, Sir, I pray you eat none of it.

Ant. S. Your reason?

Dro. S. Lest it make you cholerick,¹⁰ and purchase me another dry basting.

Ant. S. Well, Sir, learn to jest in good time: there's a time for all things.

Dro. S. I durst have denied that, before you were so cholerick.

Ant. S. By what rule, Sir?

Dro. S. Marry, Sir, by a rule as plain as the plain bald pate of father Time himself.

Ant. S. Let's hear it.

Dro. S. There's no time for a man to recover his hair that grows bald by nature.

Ant. S. May he not do it by fine and recovery?¹¹

Dro. S. Yes, to pay a fine for a periwig, and recover the lost hair of another man.

1) Nach der Berechnung der inzwischen verstrichenen Zeit und nach der Aussage des Wirths im Centauren hätte das Gespräch, welches Antipholus von Syrakus mit seinem vermeintlichen Diener, eigentlich aber mit dem Dromio von Ephesus (A. 1, Sc. 2) gehabt hat, gar nicht stattfinden können. — Antipholus wird hier bei seinem Auftreten als Antipholus Erotis bezeichnet. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 2, Anm. 1. 2) In der vorhergehenden Unterredung, auf welche Antipholus sich hier bezieht, war von dem Wirthshause zum Centauren nicht die Rede gewesen. 3) Wortspiel zwischen earnest = Ernst, und = Handgeld. 4) jet ist Dyce's glückliche Emendation für jest der Fol. und der bisherigen Hgg. — to jet = übergreifen, sich Uebergriffe erlauben, kommt auch in K. Richard III. (A. 2, Sc. 4) vor: Insulting tyranny begins to jet || Upon the innocent and awless throne, und passt auch zu dem Folgenden: Deine Zudringlichkeit missbraucht meine Freundlichkeit und macht auch meine ernstern Nachdenken gewidmeten, nicht zum Spass bestimmten Stunden gleichsam zu einem Gemeindegut, auf dem Jeder sich herumtreiben kann. So in Love's Labour's Lost (A. 2, Sc. 1) My lips are no common, though several they be. 5) aspect betont Sh. auf der zweiten Sylbe: erforsche erst mein Ansehn, ob ich zum Scherz aufgelegt bin. 6) Wortspiel zwischen sconce = Schädel, und = Schanze, Bollwerk. — to ensconce = verschanzen, schirmen, decken, kommt bei Sh. und seinen Zeitgenossen öfter vor. 7) Weil Dromio's Verstand in den Schultern oder im Rücken sicherer steckt, als in dem von Antipholus' Schlägen bedrohten Kopfe. 8) next = nächstens. 9) Wortspiel zwischen to baste = prügeln, und, vom Fleische gebraucht, = an fetten, mit Butter oder Fett beträufeln, während es gebraten wird. In dem Sinne hatte Dromio gesagt: dem Fleische fehlt noch, was ich schon habe. 10) So heisst es in Taming of the Shrew (A. 4, Sc. 1) von ausgedörrtem, zu stark gebratenem Fleische it engenders choler, planteth anger. 11) Dromio fasst to recover im gewöhnlichen Sinne, Antipholus recovery im juristischen Sinne = Erlangung eines Schadenersatzes, und stellt es mit fine = Schadenersatz, zusammen, wie in

Ant. S. Why is Time such a niggard of hair, being, as it is, so plentiful an excrement? ¹²

Dro. S. Because it is a blessing that he bestows on beasts: and what he hath scantd men ¹³ in hair, he hath given them in wit.

Ant. S. Why, but there's many a man hath more hair than wit. ¹⁴

Dro. S. Not a man of those, but he hath the wit to lose his hair.

Ant. S. Why, thou didst conclude hairy men plain dealers without wit.

Dro. S. The plainer dealer, the sooner lost: yet he loseth it in a kind of jollity.

Ant. S. For what reason?

Dro. S. For two; and sound ones too.

Ant. S. Nay, not sound, ¹⁵ I pray you.

Dro. S. Sure ones then.

Ant. S. Nay, not sure, in a thing falsing. ¹⁶

Dro. S. Certain ones then.

Ant. S. Name them.

Dro. S. The one, to save the money that he spends in tiring; ¹⁷ the other, that at dinner they should not drop in his porridge.

Ant. S. You would all this time have proved, there is no time for all things.

Dro. S. Marry, and did, Sir; namely, no time ¹⁸ to recover hair lost by nature.

Ant. S. But your reason was not substantial, why there is no time to recover.

Dro. S. Thus I mend it: Time himself is bald, and therefore, to the world's end, will have bald followers.

Ant. S. I knew, 't would be a bald conclusion. But soft! who wafts ¹⁹ us yonder?

Enter ADRIANA and LUCIANA.

Adr. Ay, ay, Antipholus, look strange, and frown: Some other mistress hath thy sweet aspects,

I am not Adriana, nor thy wife.

The time was once, when thou unurg'd wouldst vow

That never words were music to thine ear,

That never object pleasing in thine eye,

That never touch well-welcome to thy hand,

That never meat sweet-savour'd in thy taste,

Unless I spake, or look'd, or touch'd, or carv'd to thee.

How comes it now, my husband, O! how comes it,

That thou art then estranged from thyself?

Thyself I call it, being strange to me,

That, undividable, incorporate,

Am better than thy dear self's better part.

Ah, do not tear away thyself from me;

For know, my love, as easy may'st thou fall ²⁰

A drop of water in the breaking gulf,

And take unmingled thence that drop again,

Without addition or diminishing,

As take from me thyself, and not me too.

How dearly ²¹ would it touch thee to the quick,

Shouldst thou but hear I were licentious,

And that this body, consecrate to thee,

By ruffian lust should be contaminate! ²²

Wouldst thou not spit at me, and spurn at me,

And hurl the name of husband in my face, ²³

And tear the stain'd skin off ²⁴ my harlot-brow,

And from my false hand cut the wedding-ring,

And break it with a deep-divorcing ²⁵ vow?

I know thou canst; and therefore, see thou do it.

I am possess'd with an adulterate blot; ²⁶

My blood is mingled with the crime ²⁷ of lust:

For, if we two be one, and thou play false,

I do digest the poison of thy flesh,

Being strumpeted ²⁸ by thy contagion.

Keep then fair league and truce with thy true bed;

I live distain'd, thou undishonoured. ²⁹

Ant. S. Plead you to me, fair dame? I know you not. In Ephesus I am but two hours old, Merry Wives of Windsor (A. 4, Sc. 2) with fine and recovery. 12) excrement = Auswuchs, steht bei Sh. und seinen Zeitgenossen geradezu = Haar; so in Soliman and Perseda: not an hair, not an excrement. 13) men emendirt The obald das them der Fol., das sich widersinnig nur auf beasts beziehen liesse. 14) Dasselbe Sprichwort in Two Gentlemen of Verona (A. 3, Sc. 1) she hath more hair than wit. — Solch ein Mann, fährt Dromio fort, der mehr Haar als Verstand hat, verliert dann durch seinen Mangel an Verstand auch noch das Haar, indem er sich mit liederlichen Weibsbildern einlässt und von ihnen angesteckt wird. So in Dekker's Roaring Girl: your women are so hot, I must lose my hair in their company, I see. 15) Dromio fasst sound = stichhaltig, in Bezug auf reason; Antipholus = gesund, in Bezug auf die besprochene Art, wie die Männer ihr Haar verlieren. 16) to false = falsch sein, fälschen, ein von Sh.'s Zeitgenossen oft gebrauchtes Verbum. So in Lodge's Novelle Rosalynd: before I false my faith to thee. — Heath las falling für falsing. 17) tiring, in alter Orthographie tyring, Pope's Emendation für trying der Fol., erscheint plausibler als trimming, wie schon Rowe las. — to tire = frisiren. 18) Die Fol. hat in no time, woraus Malone e'en no time machte. Richtiger streicht die zweite Folioausg. einfach das in. 19) to waft = mit der Hand winken. 20) to fall = fallen lassen, als transitives Verbum. 21) dearly = tief eingehend, nahe betreffend. 22) contaminate für contaminated, wie Sh. die Participia auf -ate häufig bildet. 23) Antipholus würde nicht länger Adriana's Gatte heissen wollen, er würde ihr diesen Namen, den er nicht behalten wollte, in's Gesicht schleudern. 24) off setzte Hanmer für das of der Fol., um so plausibler, da die alte Orthographie zwischen beiden Wörtern nicht immer streng unterscheidet. — Staunton findet hier eine Anspielung auf die Sitte, auch Weiber wegen notorisch liederlichen Lebenswandels auf die Stirn zu brandmarken. 25) deep-divorcing = tief oder gründlich scheidend. Vielleicht wäre aber deep, divorcing vow zu lesen, und deep mit vow zu verbinden, wie deep oath bei Sh. vorkommt (Love's Labour's Lost A. 1, Sc. 1 und Sonnets 152), und in Measure for Measure (A. 4, Sc. 3) ein Eigenname Deep-vow fingirt wird. 26) adulterate blot = Makel, der einer Ehebrecherin anhaftet. 27) Für crime wollte Warburton grime = Schmutz, lesen. Der Sinn ist indess wohl nur: verbrecherische Wollust hat sich meinem Blute beigemischt. 28) to strumpet = zur Metze machen. So in Heywood's Royal King and Loyal Subject: to have strumpeted the fairest of your blood. — Sh. hat das Wort nur an dieser Stelle. 29) Die meisten Hgg. schreiben für das distain'd der Fol., welches nur = befleckt, sein kann, dis-stain'd und geben diesem neugebildeten Worte die entgegengesetzte Bedeutung = fleckenlos. Besser liest Hanmer unstain'd. Indess ist der Sinn des Satzes, der sich in resümirender Weise auf die ganze vorhergehende Rede, nicht auf den

As strange unto your town, as to your talk;
Who, every word by all my wit being scann'd,
Want³⁰ wit in all one word to understand.

Luc. Fie, brother: how the world is chang'd with you!

When were you wont to use my sister thus?
She sent for you by Dromio home to dinner.

Ant. S. By Dromio?

Dro. S. By me?

Adr. By thee; and this thou didst return from him, —

That he did buffet thee, and, in his blows,
Denied my house for his, me for his wife.³¹

Ant. S. Did you converse, Sir, with this gentleman?

What is the course and drift of your compact?³²

Dro. S. I, Sir? I never saw her till this time.

Ant. S. Villain, thou liest; for even her very words
Didst thou deliver to me on the mart.

Dro. S. I never spake with her in all my life.

Ant. S. How can she thus then call us by our names,
Unless it be by inspiration?

Adr. How ill agrees it with your gravity,
To counterfeit thus grossly with your slave,
Abetting him to thwart me in my mood!

Be it my wrong, you are from me exempt,³³
But wrong not that wrong with a more contempt.

Come, I will fasten on this sleeve of thine;

Thou art an elm, my husband, I a vine,

Whose weakness, married to thy stronger³⁴ state,
Makes me with thy strength to communicate:

If aught possess thee from me,³⁵ it is dross,
Usurping ivy, brier, or idle moss;

Who, all for want of pruning, with intrusion
Infect thy sap, and live on thy confusion.

Ant. S. To me she speaks; she moves me for her theme!

What, was I married to her in my dream,

Or sleep I now, and think I hear all this?

What error drives our eyes and ears amiss?

Until I know this sure uncertainty,

I'll entertain the offer'd fallacy.³⁶

Luc. Dromio, go bid the servants spread for dinner.

Dro. S. O, for my beads! I cross me for a sinner.

This is the fairy land: O, spite of spites!

We talk with goblins, owls, and elvish sprites.³⁷

If we obey them not, this will ensue,

They'll suck our breath, or pinch us black and blue.

Luc. Why prat'st thou to thyself, and answer'st not?
Dromio, thou drone,³⁸ thou snail, thou slug, thou sot!

Dro. S. I am transformed, master, am I not?

Ant. S. I think thou art, in mind, and so am I.

Dro. S. Nay, master, both in mind and in my shape.

Ant. S. Thou hast thine own form.

Dro. S. No, I am an ape.

Luc. If thou art chang'd to aught, 't is to an ass.

Dro. S. 'T is true; she rides me, and I long for grass.
'T is so, I am an ass; else it could never be,

But I should know her, as well as she knows me.

Adr. Come, come; no longer will I be a fool,

To put the finger in the eye and weep,

Whilst man and master laugh my woes to scorn.

Come, Sir, to dinner. — Dromio, keep the gate. —

Husband, I'll dine above with you to-day,

And shrive you³⁹ of a thousand idle pranks. —

Sirrah, if any ask you for your master,

Say, he dines forth, and let no creature enter. —

Come, sister. — Dromio, play the porter well.

Ant. S. Am I in earth, in heaven, or in hell?

Sleeping or waking? mad, or well-advis'd?

Known unto these, and to myself disguis'd?

I'll say as they say, and persevere⁴⁰ so,

And in this mist at all adventures go.

Dro. S. Master, shall I be porter at the gate?

Adr. Ay; and let none enter, lest I break your pate.

Luc. Come, come, Antipholus; we dine too late.

[Exeunt.]

ACT III.

SCENE I.

The Same.

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus, DROMIO of Ephesus,
ANGELO, and BALTHAZAR.

Ant. E. Good Signior Angelo, you must excuse us all;
My wife is shrewish, when I keep not hours.

Say, that I linger'd with you at your shop

To see the making of her carcanet,¹

And that to-morrow you will bring it home.

But here's a villain, that would face me down letzten Vers bezieht, vielleicht der: so lange Du so fortfährst, fällt auf mich als Frau die Schmach Deines Benehmens, während Du selbst als Mann an Deiner Ehre keinen Abbruch erleidest. — distain'd bildet also zu undishonoured eben solchen Gegensatz, wie I zu thou. 30) wants in der Fol. — who want bezieht sich auf I, scil. I want wit to understand one word in all your words. 31) Und indem er Dich prügelte, leugnete er, dass mein Haus das seine, dass ich seine Frau sei. 32) compact betont Sh. auf der zweiten Sylbe. 33) exempt = dienstfrei, los und ledig von Jemandem: Wenn ich es mir auch gefallen lassen muss, dass Du unabhängig von mir bist, Dich nicht um mich zu kümmern hast, so verstärke diese Kränkung doch nicht durch eine hinzutretende weitere Gering-schätzung. — to wrong a wrong ist mit Sh.'scher Kühnheit gesagt = eine Kränkung steigern, wie in K. Lear (A. 1, Sc. 1) to want a want = einen Mangel haben. — more adjektivisch = grösser, gebraucht Sh. häufig. 34) stranger in der Fol., verbessert in der vierten Folioausg. 35) Wenn irgend Etwas Dich umfängt und von mir trennt. — Das Bild von dem Ulmbaum, um den sich nur die Rebe schlingen sollte, und den statt ihrer Epheu und andere wuchernde Pflanzen umranken, wird noch fortgesetzt. — idle moss = nichtsnutziges Moos. 36) Die Fol. hat the free'd fallacy, wofür Pope favour'd fallacy las. Die plausible Emendation offer'd rührt von Capell her. 37) elvish fehlt in der Fol. und ist aus Elves in der zweiten Folioausg. gebildet. — Die Eulen werden als Begleiter oder als Verkörperungen böser Geister aufgefasst. 38) drone, was mit Dromio einen Gleichklang bildet, ist Theobald's Emendation. Die Fol. hat dafür zweimal Dromio, thou Dromio. — Weniger evident erscheint Theobald's Umstellung in der folgenden Zeile am not I für das am I not der Fol. 39) to shrive of = in die Beichte nehmen über Etwas, Jemanden Etwas beichten lassen. 40) to persevere, auf der zweiten Sylbe betont, ist das Sh.'sche Wort.

He met me on the mart, and that I beat him,
And charg'd him with a thousand marks in gold;
And that I did deny my wife and house. —
Thou drunkard, thou, what didst thou mean by this?

Dro. E. Say what you will, Sir, but I know what I know.

That you beat me at the mart, I have your hand² to show:

If the skin were parchment, and the blows you gave were ink,

Your own handwriting would tell you what I think.

Ant. E. I think, thou art an ass.

Dro. E. Marry, so it doth appear,
By the wrongs I suffer, and the blows I bear.

I should kick, being kick'd,³ and being at that pass,
You would keep from my heels, and beware of an ass.

Ant. E. You are sad, Signior Balthazar: 'pray God, our cheer

May answer my good will, and your good welcome here.

Bal. I hold your dainties cheap, Sir, and your welcome dear.

Ant. E. O Signior Balthazar, either at flesh or fish,
A table-full of welcome makes scarce one dainty fish.

Bal. Good meat, Sir, is common; that every churl affords.

Ant. E. And welcome more common, for that's nothing but words.

Bal. Small cheer and great welcome makes a merry feast.

Ant. E. Ay, to a niggardly host, and more sparing guest:

But though my cates be mean, take them in good part;
Better cheer may you have, but not with better heart.

But soft! my door is lock'd. Go bid them let us in.

Dro. E. Maud, Bridget, Marian, Cicely, Gillian, Jin!⁴

Dro. S. [Within.] Mome,⁵ malt-horse, capon, coxcomb, idiot, patch!⁶

Either get thee from the door, or sit down at the hatch.
Dost thou conjure for wenches, that thou call'st for such store,

When one is one too many? Go get thee from the door.

Dro. E. What patch is made our porter? — My master stays in the street.

Dro. S. [Within.] Let him walk from whence he came, lest he catch cold on 's feet.

Ant. E. Who talks within there? ho! open the door.

Dro. S. [Within.] Right, Sir: I'll tell you when, an⁷ you'll tell me wherefore.

Ant. E. Wherefore? for my dinner: I have not din'd to-day.

Dro. S. [Within.] Nor to-day here you must not; come again when you may.

Ant. E. What art thou that keep'st me out from the house I owe?⁸

Dro. S. [Within.] The porter for this time, Sir, and my name is Dromio.

Dro. E. O villain! thou hast stolen both mine office and my name:

The one ne'er got me credit, the other mickle⁹ blame.

If thou hadst been Dromio to-day in my place,

Thou wouldst have chang'd thy face for a name, or thy name for an ass.

Luce. [Within.]¹⁰ What a coil is there! Dromio, who are those at the gate?

Dro. E. Let my master in, Luce.

Luce. [Within.] Faith no; he comes too late; And so tell your master.

Dro. E. O Lord! I must laugh. — Have at you with a proverb:¹¹ — Shall I set in my staff?

Luce. [Within.] Have at you with another: that's, — When? can you tell?

Dro. S. [Within.] If thy name be called Luce, Luce, thou hast answer'd him well.

Ant. E. Do you hear, you minion? you'll let us in, I hope?¹²

Luce. [Within.] I thought to have ask'd you.

Dro. S. [Within.] And you said, no.

Dro. E. So; come, help:¹³ well struck! there was blow for blow.

Ant. E. Thou baggage, let me in.

Luce. [Within.] Can you tell for whose sake?

Dro. E. Master, knock the door hard.

Luce. [Within.] Let him knock till it ache.

Ant. E. You'll cry for this, minion, if I beat the door down.

Luce. [Within.] What needs all that, and a pair of stocks in the town?

1) carcanet = Halsband, Halskette, namentlich mit Perlen und Edelsteinen besetzt. 2) Wortspiel zwischen hand = Hand, und = Handschrift, eigenhändige Unterschrift. 3) d. h. wenn ich wirklich ein Esel wäre, so würde ich hinten ausschlagen. Ich erscheine aber als ein Esel nur darin, dass ich mir Alles gefallen lasse. 4) Dromio ruft die Mägde des Hauses der Reihe nach bei ihren Namen. — Jin, wofür die Fol. Ginn, die meisten Hgg. Jen setzen, ist abgekürzt aus Jane oder Jenny. 5) mome = Einfaltspinsel. So wird in Heywood's Rape of Lucrece der verstellte blödsinnige Brutus bezeichnet: Important are the affairs we have in hand; || Hence with that mome. 6) patch = Narr, Lump. — So fragt Dromio von Ephesus gleich darauf: Welchen Narren oder Lump hat man zu unserm Pförtner gemacht? 7) Das and der Fol. ist hier offenbar als an = wenn, zu verstehen und zu schreiben, nicht als and = und, wie viele Hgg. setzen. 8) to owe = besitzen, sein eigen nennen. 9) mickle = gross, viel; ein veraltetes Wort, das sich vorzugsweise in Sh.'s Jugenddramen, manchmal mit komischem Nebensinn, findet. — the other geht auf my name. — Wenn Du heute Morgen Dromio gewesen wärest, sagt der andere Dromio in lebhafter Erinnerung an die Schläge, die er von seinem Herrn erhalten, so würdest Du gern Dein Gesicht hergegeben haben, um anders zu heissen, d. h. um nicht Dromio zu sein, oder Du hättest lieber Esel als Dromio geheissen. 10) Die Fol. hat Enter Luce, wie bald nachher Enter Adriana, obwohl diese Beiden den auf der Bühne Befindlichen nicht sichtbar werden. Vielleicht erschienen sie, gleichsam am Fenster, auf dem Balkon im Hintergrunde der Bühne. 11) Die sprichwörtliche Redensart, mit welcher Dromio die Magd angreift, ist eben Shall I set etc.; diejenige, mit der sie ihm Bescheid giebt, ist When? can you tell? eine schnöde Abfertigung zudringlicher Fragen. 12) Da dieser Vers reimlos unter lauter gereimten Versen steht, so vermuthet Malone, es sei hinter demselben ein Vers ausgefallen, der auf rope ausgegangen, und in welchem Antipholus die Luce mit einem Stricke als Züchtigung bedroht habe. — Theobald wollte für I hope lieber I throw lesen, um einen Reim zu den folgenden no und blow zu gewinnen. 13) Dromio ruft scherzhaft nach Hülfe in diesem Wortgefecht mit Luce.

Adr. [Within.] Who is that at the door, that keeps all this noise?

Dro. S. [Within.] By my troth, your town is troubled with unruly boys.¹⁴

Ant. E. Are you there, wife? you might have come before.

Adr. [Within.] Your wife, sir knave? go get you from the door.

Dro. E. If you went in pain, master, this knave would go sore.¹⁵

Ang. Here is neither cheer, Sir, nor welcome: we would fain have either.

Bal. In debating which was best, we shall part¹⁶ with neither.

Dro. E. They stand at the door, master: bid them welcome hither.

Ant. E. There is something in the wind, that we cannot get in.

Dro. E. You would say so, master, if your garments were thin.

Your cake there is warm within; you stand here in the cold:

It would make a man mad as a buck to be so bought and sold.¹⁷

Ant. E. Go fetch me something: I'll break ope the gate.

Dro. S. [Within.] Break any breaking¹⁸ here, and I'll break your knave's pate.

Dro. E. A man may break a word with you, Sir, and words are but wind;

Ay, and break it in your face, so he break it not behind.¹⁹

Dro. S. [Within.] It seems, thou wantest breaking. Out upon thee, hind!

Dro. E. Here's too much out²⁰ upon thee! I pray thee, let me in.

Dro. S. [Within.] Ay, when fowls have no feathers, and fish have no fin.

Ant. E. Well, I'll break in. Go borrow me a crow.

Dro. E. A crow²¹ without feather? master, mean you so?

For a fish without a fin, there's a fowl without a feather. If a crow help us in, sirrah, we'll pluck a crow together.

Ant. E. Go get thee gone: fetch me an iron crow.

Bal. Have patience, Sir; O! let it not be so.

Herein you war against your reputation.

And draw within the compass of suspect

The unviolated honour of your wife.

Once²² this, — your long experience of her wisdom,

Her sober virtue, years, and modesty,

Plead on her part²³ some cause to you unknown,

And doubt not, Sir, but she will well excuse

Why at this time the doors are made against you.²⁴

Be rul'd by me: depart in patience,

And let us to the Tiger²⁵ all to dinner;

And about evening come yourself alone,

To know the reason of this strange restraint.

If by strong hand you offer to break in,

Now in the stirring passage of the day,²⁶

A vulgar comment will be made of it;

And that supposed²⁷ by the common rout

Against your yet ungalled estimation,

That may with foul intrusion enter in,

And dwell upon your grave when you are dead:

For slander lives upon succession;

For ever housed, where it gets possession.²⁸

Ant. E. You have prevail'd. I will depart in quiet,

And, in despite of mirth,²⁹ mean to be merry.

I know a wench of excellent discourse, —

Pretty and witty, wild and yet, too, gentle, —

There will we dine: this woman that I mean,

My wife (but, I protest, without desert)

Hath oftentimes upbraided me withal:³⁰

To her will we to dinner. — Get you home,

And fetch the chain;³¹ by this, I know, 't is made;

Bring it, I pray you, to the Porpentine;³²

For there's the house: that chain will I bestow

(Be it for nothing but to spite my wife)

14) Dromio's Worte sind an die hinzutretende Adriana gerichtet. 15) Wenn Ihr Schmerzen hättet, Herr, so würde dieser Spitzbube, wie Eure Frau Euch titulirt, sie zugleich mitempfunden. — Eine versteckte Hinweisung auf die Identität seines Herrn mit einem Spitzbuben, zugleich ein Wortspiel zwischen knave = Spitzbube, und = Diener. 16) to part erklärt Tyrwhitt = Theil haben an Etwas, M. Mason richtiger mit = weggehen, scheiden: wir werden weggehen ohne Kost und ohne Willkommen. — in debating which was best bezieht sich auf ihr früheres Disput über cheer und welcome. 17) bought and sold = verrathen und verkauft. 18) to break any breaking für to break anything ist eine emphatische Wiederholung, wie in der vorigen Scene to wrong a wrong. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 2, Anm. 33. 19) scil. break his wind = seinen Wind fahren lassen. — Wegen dieses unanständigen Wortwitzes sagt der andere Dromio, indem er das Wortspiel mit to break fortsetzt: Es scheint, Du hast Erziehung, Zähmung nöthig. 20) out upon thee = pfui über Dich, meint Dromio von Syrakus, und der andere Dromio fasst out = draussen: Es ist zu viel draussen an Dir, lass mich lieber hinein. 21) Wortspiel zwischen crow = Brecheisen, und = Krähe; dazu kommt nachher noch to pluck a crow = mit Jemandem ein Hühnchen pflücken. 22) once = kurz und gut, ein für alle Mal. So in Much Ado about Nothing (A. 1, Sc. 1) Look, what will serve is fit: 't is once, thou lovest. — Staunton fasst once im Sinne von for the nonce, for the time being, und belegt diese Bedeutung des Wortes aus verschiedenen Stellen älterer Schriftsteller; so in Peele's David and Bethsabe: Live, Absalom, my son, once in peace. 23) her wisdom und her part verbesserte Rowe das your wisdom und your part der Fol. 24) to make the door = die Thüre verschliessen. So in As you like it (A. 4, Sc. 1) make the doors upon a woman's wit. 25) Ein Speisehaus in Ephesus, mit dem Abzeichen eines Tigers. 26) Jetzt bei dem regen Verkehr, den der Tag vor Eurem Hause vorbeiführt. 27) to suppose = für wahr annehmen, als gültig ansehen. 28) So die Fol., nur dass sie hous'd schreibt. Manche Hgg. lesen mit der zweiten Folioausg. von 1632: For ever hous'd when it once gets possession. 29) Trotzdem, dass eine heitere Stimmung auch nicht von selbst kommt. 30) Die Construction ist: my wife hath often upbraided me with this woman that I mean. 31) chain ist dasselbe, was vorher carcanet hiess. Vgl. Anm. 1 dieser Scene. 32) Porpentine ist das Sh.'sche Wort, das die meisten Hgg. schon von Rowe an stillschweigend in das gewöhnlichere Porcupine umändern. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 2, Anm. 18. 33) they scil. the doors elsewhere oder other doors. — Aehnlich steht an der entsprechenden Stelle der Menächmen des Plautus: If she shut me out, I know who will shut me in.

Upon mine hostess there. Good Sir, make haste.
 Since mine own doors refuse to entertain me,
 I'll knock elsewhere, to see if they'll³³ disdain me.
Ang. I'll meet you at that place, some hour hence.
Ant. E. Do so. This jest shall cost me some expence.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

The Same.

Enter LUCIANA,¹ and ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse.

Luc. And may it be that you have quite forgot
 A husband's office? Shall, Antipholus,
 Even in the spring of love, thy love-springs rot?²
 Shall love, in building, grow so ruinous?³
 If you did wed my sister for her wealth,
 Then for her wealth's sake use her with more kindness:
 Or, if you like elsewhere, do it by stealth;
 Muffle your false love with some show of blindness;⁴
 Let not my sister read it in your eye;
 Be not thy tongue thy own shame's orator;
 Look sweet, speak fair, become disloyalty;⁵
 Apparel vice like virtue's harbinger;
 Bear a fair presence, though your heart be tainted;
 Teach sin the carriage of a holy saint;
 Be secret-false: what need she be acquainted?
 What simple thief brags of his own attain?⁶
 'T is double wrong, to truant with⁷ your bed,
 And let her read it in thy looks at board:
 Shame hath a bastard fame, well managed;
 Ill deeds are doubled with an evil word.
 Alas, poor women! make us but believe,
 Being compact of credit,⁸ that you love us;
 Though others have the arm, show us the sleeve;
 We in your motion turn, and you may move us.
 Then, gentle brother, get you in again:

Comfort my sister, cheer her, call her wife.
 'T is holy sport to be a little vain,⁹
 When the sweet breath of flattery conquers strife.
Ant. S. Sweet mistress (what your name is else, I know not,
 Nor by what wonder you do hit of¹⁰ mine),
 Less in your knowledge, and your grace, you show not,
 Than our earth's wonder; more than earth divine.
 Teach me, dear creature, how to think and speak:
 Lay open to my earthy-gross conceit,
 Smother'd in errors, feeble, shallow, weak,
 The folded meaning of your words' deceit.
 Against my soul's pure truth, why labour you
 To make it wander in an unknown field?
 Are you a god? would you create me new?
 Transform me then, and to your power I'll yield.
 But if that I am I, then well I know,
 Your weeping sister is no wife of mine,
 Nor to her bed no homage do I owe:
 Far more, far more, to you do I decline.¹¹
 O, train me not, sweet mermaid, with thy note,
 To drown me in thy sister's flood¹² of tears.
 Sing, siren, for thyself, and I will dote:
 Spread o'er the silver waves thy golden hairs,
 And as a bed I'll take thee,¹³ and there lie;
 And, in that glorious supposition, think,
 He gains by death, that hath such means to die:
 Let Love, being light, be drowned if she sink!¹⁴
Luc. What! are you mad, that you do reason so?
Ant. S. Not mad, but mated;¹⁵ how, I do not know.
Luc. It is a fault that springeth from your eye.
Ant. S. For gazing on your beams, fair sun, being by.¹⁶
Luc. Gaze where you should, and that will clear your sight.
Ant. S. As good to wink, sweet love, as look on night.
Luc. Why call you me love? call my sister so.

1) Die Fol. setzt hier irrig Juliana und demgemäss auch vor die erste Rede das abgekürzte Julia.; weiterhin hat sie jedoch richtig Luciana, und abgekürzt Luc. — Der Fehler ist schon in der zweiten Folioausg. verbessert.
 2) Gegensatz zwischen spring of love = Liebesfrühling, und love-springs = Liebesschösslinge, Liebesknospen. So in Venus and Adonis: This canker that eats up love's tender spring. 3) Dieser Vers lautet in der Fol. Shall love in buildings grow so ruinate? — Für buildings verbesserte Theobald richtig building, und fügte, um den entsprechenden Reim zu gewinnen, der hier nicht fehlen darf, in der zweitvorhergehenden Zeile hinter Antipholus noch ein hate hinzu, als Subject zu dem Verbum rot und dem Object thy love-springs. — Plausibler und weniger gewaltsam scheint Capell's Aenderung ruinous für ruinate: Soll die Liebe, während sie noch im Bau begriffen ist, schon so in Verfall gerathen? — So in Two Gentlemen of Verona (A. 5, Sc. 4) Leave not the mansion so long tenantless, || Lest, growing ruinous, the building fall. 4) blindness ist hier nicht = Blindheit, sondern = Blendung: hülle Deine falsche Liebe, Deine Untreue so ein, dass man sie nicht sieht. 5) Gieb mit freundlichen Blicken und Worten Deiner Untreue einen guten Schein. — look, speak, become und apparel sind Imperative. 6) attaint verbesserte Rowe das attain der Fol. — Welcher Dieb ist so einfältig, dass er mit seiner Schande prahlt? 7) to truant with = einer Sache entlaufen, Etwas vernachlässigen. — bed und board = Tisch und Bett, werden als sonst zusammengehörige Begriffe hier einander gegenübergestellt. 8) being compact of credit = da wir Weiber ganz aus Glauben zusammengesetzt sind. — So in Midsummer-Night's Dream (A. 5, Sc. 1) of imagination all compact. — In der vorhergehenden Zeile setzte Theobald but für das not der Fol. 9) vain = leicht mit Worten, äusserlich. 10) of und on werden bei Sh. vielfach verwechselt. 11) to decline erklärt Malone mit to fall off or decline from her to you. Indess liegt die erstere Bezeichnung nicht in dem Worte, das vielmehr einfach = sich Jemandem zuneigen. So in Greene's Penelope's Web: That the love of a father, as it was royal, so it ought to be impartial, neither declining to the one nor to the other, but as deeds do merit. 12) sister's flood corrigirt die zweite Folioausg. das sister flood der ersten Fol. 13) Die Fol. hat bed, die zweite Folioausg. bed. — Für thee wollte Edwards them lesen; indess denkt sich Antipholus die Sirene selbst mit ihren über das Meer ausgebreiteten Haaren als das Lager, auf dem er sterben, d. h. im Meere ertrinken möchte. — Dyce's Conjectur bride für bed passt wenig in den Zusammenhang. 14) she bezieht sich auf das weiblich personificirte Love. 15) to mate = verwirren. — M. Mason vermuthet hier zugleich ein Wortspiel mit der andern Bedeutung von to mate = paaren, verheirathen, in Bezug auf die Ansprüche, welche Adriana an den Antipholus als ihren Gatten machte. So in Taming of the Shrew (A. 3, Sc. 2) That, being mad herself, she's madly mated. 16) Da Ihr, schöne Sonne, zugegen waret. 17) So hatte Adriana vorher (A. 2, Sc. 2) von sich

Ant. S. Thy sister's sister.

Luc. That's my sister.

Ant. S. No;

It is thyself, mine own self's better part;¹⁷

Mine eye's clear eye, my dear heart's dearer heart;

My food, my fortune, and my sweet hope's aim,

My sole earth's heaven, and my heaven's claim.¹⁸

Luc. All this my sister is, or else should be.

Ant. S. Call thyself sister, sweet, for I aim thee.¹⁹

Thee will I love, and with thee lead my life:

Thou hast no husband yet, nor I no wife.

Give me thy hand.

Luc. O, soft, Sir! hold you still:

I'll fetch my sister, to get her good will. [Exit.]

Enter DROMIO of Syracuse hastily.

Ant. S. Why, how now, Dromio? where runn'st thou so fast?

Dro. S. Do you know me, Sir? am I Dromio? am I your man? am I myself?

Ant. S. Thou art Dromio, thou art my man, thou art thyself.

Dro. S. I am an ass, I am a woman's man, and besides myself.

Ant. S. What woman's man? and how besides thyself?

Dro. S. Marry, Sir, besides myself, I am due to a woman; one that claims me, one that haunts me, one that will have me.

Ant. S. What claim lays she to thee?

Dro. S. Marry, Sir, such claim as you would lay to your horse; and she would have me as a beast: not that, I being a beast, she would have me; but that she, being a very beastly creature, lays claim to me.

Ant. S. What is she?

Dro. S. A very reverend body; ay, such a one as a man may not speak of, without he say, sir-reverence.²⁰ I have but lean luck in the match, and yet she is a wondrous fat marriage.

Ant. S. How dost thou mean a fat marriage?

Dro. S. Marry, Sir, she's the kitchen-wench, and all grease; and I know not what use to put her to, but to make a lamp of her, and run from her by her own light.

I warrant, her rags, and the tallow in them, will burn a Poland winter:²¹ if she lives till doomsday, she'll burn a week longer than the whole world.

Ant. S. What complexion is she of?

Dro. S. Swart,²² like my shoe, but her face nothing like so clean kept: for why²³ she sweats; a man may go over shoes in the grime of it.

Ant. S. That's a fault that water will mend.

Dro. S. No, Sir; 't is in grain:²⁴ Noah's flood could not do it.

Ant. S. What's her name?

Dro. S. Nell, Sir; but her name and²⁵ three quarters, that is, an ell and three quarters, will not measure her from hip to hip.

Ant. S. Then she bears some breadth?

Dro. S. No longer from head to foot, than from hip to hip: she is spherical, like a globe; I could find out countries in her.

Ant. S. In what part of her body stands Ireland?

Dro. S. Marry, Sir, in her buttocks: I found it out by the bogs.

Ant. S. Where Scotland?

Dro. S. I found it by the barrenness, hard in the palm of the hand.

Ant. S. Where France?

Dro. S. In her forehead; armed and reverted, making war against her hair.²⁶

Ant. S. Where England?

Dro. S. I look'd for the chalky cliffs,²⁷ but I could find no whiteness in them: but I guess, it stood in her chin, by the salt rheum that ran between France and it.

Ant. S. Where Spain?

Dro. S. Faith, I saw it not; but I felt it hot²⁸ in her breath.

Ant. S. Where America, the Indies?

Dro. S. O! Sir, upon her nose, all o'er embellished with rubies, carbuncles, sapphires, declining their rich aspect to the hot breath of Spain, who sent whole armadoes of caracks to be ballast at her nose.²⁹

Ant. S. Where stood Belgia, the Netherlands?

Dro. S. O! Sir, I did not look so low. To conclude, this drudge, or diviner,³⁰ laid claim to me; call'd me Dromio; swore, I was assured³¹ to her; told me what gesagt Am better than thy dear self's better part. 18) Du bist der einzige Himmel für mich auf Erden, und das Einzige zugleich, was ich vom Himmel verlange oder beanspruche. 19) Ich meine Dich, ich ziele auf Dich in dem was ich sage. — aim verbesserte Capell das am der Fol. 20) sir-reverence, entstellt aus save reverence = mit Erlaubniss zu sagen, wenn man Dinge anführt, die in guter Gesellschaft nicht genannt werden dürfen. 21) Poland ist für irgend ein Land im Norden gesetzt, wo der Winter sehr lange dauert. 22) swart = schwärzlich, dunkelfarbig. 23) for why = because. So in dem älteren K. John: I will absolve thee here from all thy sins, || For why thy deed is meritorious. — Die meisten Hgg. folgen der Interpunction der Fol. for why? she sweats etc. 24) Der Schmutz in ihrem Gesicht ist so tief in der Haut, gleichsam in der Wolle gefärbt, dass kein Wasser, selbst die Sündfluth nicht, ihn wegwaschen könnte. — So sagt Olivia von der Farbe ihres Gesichts in Twelfth-Night (A. 1, Sc. 5) 'T is in grain, Sir; 't will endure wind and weather. 25) and verbesserte Theobald das is der Fol. — Wortspiel zwischen Nell = Lenchen, und an ell = eine Elle. 26) hair liest die zweite Folioausg., die erste heire. Ueber das hier beabsichtigte Wortspiel zwischen hair und heir vgl. Einleitung pag. 159. 27) Die Kreidefelsen der südlichen, Frankreich zugekehrten, Küste von England erwähnt Sh. als charakteristisch auch in K. Henry VI. Second Part (A. 3, Sc. 2) As far as I could ken thy chalky cliffs. — Mit dem Meerarme, der Frankreich und England scheidet, vergleicht Dromio dann die salzige Flüssigkeit aus der Nase der Küchenmagd. — Vielleicht wäre zu lesen no whiteness in her. 28) Die Anspielung geht auf das heisse Klima Spaniens. 29) Die in allen Farben schimmernde, mit Aussatz bedeckte Nase, die sich dem Munde zuneigt, der seinen heissen Athem ihr zusendet, wird mit den edelsteinreichen spanischen Colonien verglichen, deren Schätze das Mutterland in ganzen Handelsflotten abholen lässt. — ballast ist das Particip des alten Verbums to ballass oder ballace, das bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen häufig vorkommt; so in Webster's Dutchess of Malfi: as if he were ballasted with quicksilver, und in Heywood's Fair Maid of the Exchange: to ballace their knowledge with judgment. 30) diviner, eigentlich = Wahrsagerin, hier = Hexe. 31) assured = verlobt. So in K. John privy marks I had about me, as the mark of my shoulder, the mole in my neck, the great wart on my left arm, that I, amazed, ran from her as a witch.

And, I think, if my breast had not been made of faith,³² and my heart of steel.

She had transform'd me to a curtail-dog, and made me turn i' the wheel.

Ant. S. Go hie thee presently post to the road: —

An if the wind blow any way from shore,

I will not harbour in this town to-night: —

If any bark put forth, come to the mart,

Where I will walk till thou return to me.

If every one knows us, and we know none,

'T is time, I think, to trudge, pack, and be gone.

Dro. S. As from a bear a man would run for life,

So fly I from her that would be my wife. [Exit.]

Ant. S. There 's none but witches do inhabit here,

And therefore 't is high time that I were hence.

She that doth call me husband, even my soul

Doth for a wife abhor; but her fair sister,

Possess'd with such a gentle sovereign grace,

Of such enchanting presence and discourse,

Hath almost made me traitor to myself:

But, lest myself be guilty to self-wrong,³³

I 'll stop mine ears against the mermaid's song.

Enter ANGELO.

Ang. Master Antipholus?

Ant. S. Ay, that 's my name.

Ang. I know it well, Sir. Lo, here is the chain.

I thought to have ta'en you at the Porpentine;

The chain unfinish'd made me stay thus long.

Ant. S. What is your will that I shall do with this?

Ang. What please yourself, Sir: I have made it for you.

Ant. S. Made it for me, Sir? I bespoke it not.

Ang. Not once, nor twice, but twenty times you have.

Go home with it, and please your wife withal;

And soon at supper-time I 'll visit you,

And then receive my money for the chain.

Ant. S. I pray you, Sir, receive the money now,

For fear you ne'er see chain, nor money, more.

Ang. You are a merry man, Sir. Fare you well. [Exit.]

Ant. S. What I should think of this, I cannot tell;

But this I think, there 's no man is so vain,

That would refuse so fair an offer'd chain.³⁴

I see, a man here needs not live by shifts,

When in the streets he meets such golden gifts.

I 'll to the mart, and there for Dromio stay:

If any ship put out, then straight away. [Exit.]

ACT IV.

SCENE I.

The Same.

Enter a Merchant, ANGELO, and an Officer.

Mer. You know, since Pentecost the sum is due,

And since I have not much importun'd you;

Nor now I had not, but that I am bound

To Persia, and want gilders¹ for my voyage:

Therefore make present satisfaction,

Or I 'll attach you by this officer.

Ang. Even just the sum, that I do owe to you,

Is growing² to me by Antipholus;

And, in the instant that I met with you,

He had of me a chain: at five o'clock

I shall receive the money for the same.

Pleaseth you walk with me down to his house,

I will discharge my bond, and thank you too.

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus, and DROMIO of Ephesus.³

Off. That labour may you save: see where he comes.

Ant. E. While I go to the goldsmith's house, go thou

And buy a rope's end, that will I bestow

Among my wife and her⁴ confederates,

For locking me out of my doors by day. —

But soft, I see the goldsmith. — Get thee gone;

Buy thou a rope, and bring it home to me.

Dro. E. I buy a thousand pound a year: I buy a rope!⁵ [Exit.]

Ant. E. A man is well help up that trusts to you:

I promised your presence, and the chain;⁶

But neither chain, nor goldsmith, came to me.

Belike, you thought our love would last too long,

If it were chain'd together, and therefore came not.

Ang. Saving your merry humour, here 's the note

How much your chain weighs to the utmost caract,⁷

The fineness of the gold, and chargeful fashion,⁸

Which doth amount to three odd ducats more

Than I stand debted to this gentleman:

I pray you, see him presently discharg'd,

For he is bound to sea, and stays but for it.

(A. 2, Sc. 2) when I was first assur'd. 32) Wenn meine Brust nicht voll guten Glaubens gewesen wäre, nicht ganz aus Glauben bestanden hätte. — Bei einem so festen christlichen Sinne konnte die Hexe ihm nichts anhaben, ihn nicht, wie es sonst Hexen vermögen, in ein Thier verwandeln, in einen Hund verwandeln, der den Bratspiess in der Küche zu drehen hat, indem er im Kreise läuft und das Rad in Bewegung setzt. — Die Knittelverse am Schluss dieser Rede druckte zuerst Knight als solche, da sie bisher, wie in der Fol., als Prosa standen. 33) guilty to ist eine zu Sh.'s Zeit geläufige Construction, welche Pope willkürlich in guilty of veränderte. So in Winter's Tale (A. 4, Sc. 3) But as the unthought-on accident is guilty || To what we wildly do. 34) fair ist mit offer'd zu verbinden: eine Kette, die auf eine so gute Manier dargeboten wird. — So in Tempest (A. 4, Sc. 1) so rare a wonder'd father.

1) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 2. 2) to be growing to = Einem als Ertrag oder Gewinn gedeihen, zuwachsen. 3) from the Courtezan's fügt die Fol. hinzu. Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 1, am Ende. 4) her verbesserte Rowe das their der Fol. — her confederates ist die Dienerschaft, die im Einverständniss mit seiner Frau dem Antipholus den Eintritt in sein eigenes Haus verwehrt hatte. 5) Der Strick, mit welchem Adriana und die Dienerschaft gezüchtigt werden sollen, ist dem rachesüchtigen Dromio so viel werth, wie ein jährliches Einkommen von tausend Pfund Sterling. 6) Antipholus hatte der Buhlerin, bei der er zu Mittag gespeist, versprochen, dass Angelo erscheinen und die Kette mitbringen würde. — Mit chain und to chain together = zusammenketten, macht er dann scherzhaft einen Wortwitz. — our love ist die Freundschaft, die zwischen Antipholus und Angelo besteht. 7) Manche Hgg. schreiben carat dafür. Die Fol. hat charect. 8) chargeful fashion = die kostbare Façon, die Arbeit der

Ant. E. I am not furnish'd with the present money;⁹ Besides, I have some business in the town. Good Signior, take the stranger to my house, And with you take the chain, and bid my wife Disburse the sum on the receipt thereof: Perchance, I will be there¹⁰ as soon as you.

Ang. Then you will bring the chain to her yourself?

Ant. E. No; bear it with you, lest I come not time enough.

Ang. Well, Sir, I will. Have you the chain about you?

Ant. E. An if I have not, Sir, I hope you have, Or else you may return without your money.

Ang. Nay, come, I pray you, Sir, give me the chain: Both wind and tide stay for this gentleman,¹¹ And I, to blame, have held him here too long.

Ant. E. Good Lord! you use this dalliance, to excuse Your breach of¹² promise to the Porpentine.

I should have chid you for not bringing it, But, like a shrew, you first begin to brawl.

Mer. The hour steals on: I pray you, Sir, despatch.

Ang. You hear, how he importunes me: the chain —

Ant. E. Why, give it to my wife, and fetch your money.

Ang. Come, come; you know, I gave it you even now. Either send the chain, or send me by some token.¹³

Ant. E. Fie! now you run this humour out of breath.¹⁴ Come, where's the chain? I pray you, let me see it.

Mer. My business cannot brook this dalliance.

Good Sir, say, whe'r¹⁵ you'll answer me, or no:

If not, I'll leave him to the officer.

Ant. E. I answer you! what should I answer you?

Ang. The money that you owe me for the chain.

Ant. E. I owe you none, till I receive the chain.

Ang. You know, I gave it you half an hour since.

Ant. E. You gave me none: you wrong me much to say so.

Ang. You wrong me more, Sir, in denying it: Consider how it stands upon my credit.¹⁶

Mer. Well, officer, arrest him at my suit.

Off. I do,

And charge you in the duke's name to obey me.

Ang. This touches me in reputation. —

Either consent to pay this sum for me,

Or I attach you by this officer.

Ant. E. Consent to pay thee that I never had?

Arrest me, foolish fellow, if thou dar'st.

Ang. Here is thy fee: arrest him, officer. —

I would not spare my brother in this case,

If he should scorn me so apparently.

Off. I do arrest you, Sir. You hear the suit.

Ant. E. I do obey thee, till I give thee bail. —

But, sirrah, you shall buy this sport as dear As all the metal in your shop will answer.

Ang. Sir, Sir, I shall have law in Ephesus, To your notorious shame, I doubt it not.

*Enter DROMIO of Syracuse.*¹⁷

Dro. S. Master, there is a bark of Epidamnum, That stays but till her owner comes aboard, And¹⁸ then, Sir, she bears away. Our fraughtage, Sir, I have convey'd aboard, and I have bought The oil, the balsamum, and aqua-vitæ.

The ship is in her trim: the merry wind Blows fair from land; they stay for nought at all, But for their owner, master, and yourself.

Ant. E. How now? a madman! Why, thou peevish sheep,¹⁹

What ship of Epidamnum stays for me?

Dro. S. A ship you sent me to, to hire²⁰ waftage.

Ant. E. Thou drunken slave, I sent thee for a rope; And told thee to what purpose, and what end.

Dro. S. You sent me for a rope's end²¹ as soon. You sent me to the bay, Sir, for a bark.

Ant. E. I will debate this matter at more leisure, And teach your ears to list me with more heed.

To Adriana, villain, hie thee straight;

Give her this key, and tell her, in the desk

That's cover'd o'er with Turkish tapestry,

There is a purse of ducats: let her send it.

Tell her, I am arrested in the street,

And that shall bail me. Hie thee, slave, be gone.

On, officer, to prison till it come.

[Exeunt Merchant, ANGELO, Officer, and ANTIPH. E.]

Dro. S. To Adriana? that is where we din'd, Where Dowsabel²² did claim me for her husband:

She is too big, I hope, for me to compass.

Thither I must, although against my will,

For servants must their masters' minds fulfil. [Exit.]

SCENE II.

The Same.

Enter ADRIANA and LUCIANA.

Adr. Ah! Luciana, did he tempt thee so? Mightst thou perceive austerely¹ in his eye

Kette. 9) Ich bin nicht augenblicklich, auf der Stelle, mit dem Gelde versehen. 10) I will be there statt I shall be there erklärt Douce für schottisch, Reed für irisch, Malone endlich für altenglisch. 11) Wind und Fluth sind der Abfahrt günstig und warten darauf, dass dieser Herr sie für seine Reise benutze. 12) Dass Ihr Euer Versprechen, in das Haus zum Stachelschwein zu kommen, nicht gehalten habt. 13) Entweder schickt die Kette an Eure Frau, oder schickt mich mit irgend einer Beglaubigung an sie, durch die ich von ihr mein Geld erhalten kann. — Malone bespricht den ihm mitgetheilten Vorschlag, send by me some token zu lesen, und verwirft denselben mit Recht. — either ist einsylbig zu lesen. 14) Ihr hetzt diesen Einfall zu Tode, Ihr treibt ihn zu weit. — Der Ausdruck war sprichwörtlich, und es existirte ein Lustspiel von John Day, betitelt Humour out of breath (1608). 15) whe'r für whether. 16) Wie es sich dabei um mein gutes Ansehn, um meinen Credit handelt, dass Ihr mir mein Geld nicht ableugnet. 17) Die Fol. fügt hinzu from the Boy. — Dromio kommt vom Hafen zurück, wohin sein Herr ihn geschickt hatte. 18) Die zweite Folioausg. lässt zur Verbesserung des Verses and aus. Eher wäre Sir hinter then zu streichen. 19) Das Wortspiel zwischen ship und sheep hat Sh. auch in Two Gentlemen of Verona (A. 1, Sc. 1). — peevish = der nicht weiss, was er will. 20) hire ist, wie oft fire und hour bei Sh., hier zweisylbig zu lesen. Die Fol. schreibt deshalb hier. 21) rope's end = Stück von einem Tau, bezieht sich scherzhaft auf to what end = zu welchem Zwecke, in Antipholus' letzter Rede. — Dasselbe Wortspiel kehrt nachher noch einmal wieder. 22) Dowsabel heisst die Küchenmagd, von der Dromio vorher (A. 3, Sc. 2) eine Schilderung geliefert hatte. Der Name kommt auch in Drayton's Pastorals (1593) vor: He had, as antique stories tell, || A daughter cleped Dowsabel.

That he did plead in earnest? yea or no?
 Look'd he or red or pale? or sad or merrily?
 What observation mad'st thou, in this case,
 Of² his heart's meteors tilting in his face?

Luc. First he denied you had in him no right.³

Adr. He meant, he did me none: the more my spite.

Luc. Then swore he, that he was a stranger here.

Adr. And true he swore, though yet forsworn he were.

Luc. Then pleaded I for you.

Adr. And what said he?

Luc. That love I begg'd for you, he begg'd of me.

Adr. With what persuasion did he tempt thy love?

Luc. With words that in an honest suit might move.
 First, he did praise my beauty; then, my speech.

Adr. Didst speak him fair?

Luc. Have patience, I beseech.

Adr. I cannot, nor I will not hold me still:

My tongue, though not my heart, shall have his will.

He is deformed, crooked, old, and sere,⁴

Ill-fac'd, worse bodied, shapeless everywhere;⁵

Vicious, ungentle, foolish, blunt, unkind,

Stigmatical in making,⁶ worse in mind.

Luc. Who would be jealous then of such a one?

No evil lost is wail'd when it is gone.

Adr. Ah! but I think him better than I say,

And yet would herein others' eyes were worse.

Far from her nest the lapwing cries away:⁷

My heart prays for him, though my tongue do curse.

Enter DROMIO of Syracuse.

Dro. S. Here, go: the desk! the purse! sweet now,⁸ make haste.

Luc. How hast thou lost thy breath?

Dro. S. By running fast.

Adr. Where is thy master, Dromio? is he well?

Dro. S. No, he 's in Tartar limbo,⁹ worse than hell:
 A devil in an everlasting garment¹⁰ hath him,
 One whose hard heart is button'd up with steel;
 A fiend, a fairy,¹¹ pitiless and rough;
 A wolf, nay, worse, a fellow all in buff;
 A back-friend, a shoulder-clapper,¹² one that countermands

The passages of alleys, creeks, and narrow lands:¹³

A hound that runs counter, and yet draws dry-foot well;¹⁴

One that, before the judgment, carries poor souls to hell.¹⁵

Adr. Why, man, what is the matter?

Dro. S. I do not know the matter: he is 'rested on the case.¹⁶

Adr. What, is he arrested? tell me at whose suit.

Dro. S. I know not at whose suit he is arrested well;¹⁷
 But is in a suit of buff which 'rested him,¹⁸ that can I tell.
 Will you send him, mistress, redemption, the money in his desk?

Adr. Go fetch it, sister. [Exit LUCIANA.] — This I wonder at,

That¹⁹ he, unknown to me, should be in debt: —

Tell me, was he arrested on a band?²⁰

Dro. S. Not on a band, but on a stronger thing;

A chain, a chain. Do you not hear it ring?

Adr. What, the chain?

Dro. S. No, no, the bell. 'T is time that I were gone:
 It was two ere I left him, and now the clock strikes one.

Adr. The hours come back! that did I never hear.

1) austerely = ernstlich, gewissenhaft. 2) Die Fol. setzt hinter case ein Fragezeichen und liest dann Oh, his hearts etc. — Die zweite Folioausg. hat das Richtige. — Die widerstrebenden Gefühle seines Herzens erscheinen auf seinem Antlitz wie Meteore am Himmel, die mit einander kämpfen. 3) to deny und no right verbindet Sh., wie er anderswo zwei Negationen zusammenfügt, um die eine zu verstärken. So in K. Richard III. (A. 1, Sc. 3) You may deny, that you were not the mean || Of my lord Hastings late imprisonment. 4) sere = ausgetrocknet, dürr, welk. 5) Ungestalt in allen seinen Gliedern. 6) stigmatical = von der Natur gebrandmarkt, entstellt. So heisst der verwachsene Richard Gloster in K. Henry VI. Second Part (A. 5, Sc. 1) foul stigmatic. — making = körperliche Bildung, ist dem mind = geistige Bildung, gegenübergestellt. 7) away ist mit far zu verbinden, nicht mit cries. — Auf die Eigenthümlichkeit des Kibitzes, seine Stimme fern von seinem Neste erschallen zu lassen, um dieses vor der Entdeckung sicher zu stellen, spielen Sh.'s Zeitgenossen häufig an. In Ray's Sprichwörterammlung steht The lapwing cries tongue from heart und The lapwing cries most, furthest from her nest. 8) sweet now, wie good now, ist eine freundliche oder schmeichelnde Aufforderung, nicht eigentlich eine Anrede an die betreffenden Personen, = wohlan! bitte! 9) Tartar = der Tartarus, die Unterwelt, verstärkt hier das limbo = Vorhölle, Hölle, wie auch in K. Henry VIII. (A. 5, Sc. 3) limbo-patrum scherzhaft = Gefängniss steht, hier = Schuldgefängniss. 10) everlasting garment ist das Wamms von Büffelleder, das zu Sh.'s Zeit die Gerichtsdienner trugen. Deshalb sagt Dromio bald nachher a fellow all in buff. 11) fairy = Gnome, boshafter oder neckischer Geist. — Pope setzte fury dafür. 12) back-friend, eigentlich = ein Freund, der von hinten kommt, ein verstellter Freund, bezeichnet ebenso wie shoulder-clapper Jemanden, der uns vertraulich auf die Schulter klopft, einen Häscher. So doppelsinnig in As you like it (A. 4, Sc. 1) Cupid hath clapped him o' the shoulder. 13) narrow lands, wofür Grey im Widerspruch mit dem Reim lanes lesen wollte, bezeichnet die schmalen Uferstreifen zwischen den Häusern und dem Wasser, auf denen sich leicht allerlei Vagabunden umhertreiben konnten. — Den Zugang oder Durchgang (passages) zu diesen und ähnlichen engen Gängen verwehrt der davor postirte Häscher. — Die Cambridge Edd. bemerken, dass in einigen Exemplaren der Fol. die Lesart lans für lands sich finde. 14) Zwei Jagdausdrücke vom Hunde gebraucht: to run counter = auf falscher Fährte sein, in entgegengesetzter Richtung vom Wilde laufen, zugleich hier mit der Anspielung auf das Counter genannte Schuldgefängniss in London. So in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 1, Sc. 2) you hunt-counter. — To draw dry-foot = die Spur des Wildes an der Witterung seines Fusses verfolgen. 15) Wortspiel zwischen judgment = gerichtliche Verurtheilung, und = das jüngste Gericht, sowie zwischen hell = Schuldgefängniss (vgl. Anm. 9), und = Hölle. 16) Malone vermuthet hier ein Wortspiel zwischen case = bestimmter Fall, und case = Hülle, Gehäuse, also die Kleidung des Antipholus, an welche der Häscher Hand angelegt hatte. Zugleich besteht ein Gegensatz zwischen matter = Stoff, das Innere einer Sache, und case = Aussenseite, sowie ein Wortspiel zwischen to 'rest = verhaften, und to rest = stehen bleiben bei Etwas. 17) well gehört zu I know not. — Wortspiel zwischen suit = Einleitung einer Klage, und = Tracht, Kleidung. 18) scil. he that arrested

Dro. S. O yes; if any hour meet a sergeant, a' turns back for very fear.

Adr. As if Time were in debt! how fondly dost thou reason!

Dro. S. Time is a very bankrout, and owes more than he's worth, to season.²¹

Nay, he's a thief too: have you not heard men say, That Time comes stealing on by night and day?

If Time be²² in debt and theft, and a sergeant in the way, Hath he not reason to turn back an hour in a day?

Re-enter LUCIANA.

Adr. Go, Dromio: there's the money, bear it straight, And bring thy master home immediately. — Come, sister; I am press'd down with conceit; Conceit, my comfort, and my injury. [Exeunt.]

SCENE III.

The Same.

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse.

Ant. S. There's not a man I meet but doth salute me, As if I were their¹ well-acquainted friend; And every one doth call me by my name. Some tender money to me, some invite me; Some other give me thanks for kindnesses; Some offer me commodities to buy: Even now a tailor call'd me in his shop, And show'd me silks that he had bought for me, And, therewithal, took measure of my body. Sure, these are but imaginary wiles,² And Lapland sorcerers³ inhabit here.

Enter DROMIO of Syracuse.

Dro. S. Master, here's the gold you sent me for. —

What have you got the picture of old Adam new-apparell'd?⁴

Ant. S. What gold is this? What Adam dost thou mean?

Dro. S. Not that Adam that kept the paradise, but that Adam that keeps the prison: he that goes in the calf's skin that was kill'd⁵ for the Prodigal: he that came behind you, Sir, like an evil angel, and bid you forsake your liberty.

Ant. S. I understand thee not.

Dro. S. No? why, 't is a plain case: he that went, like a bass-viol, in a case of leather; the man, Sir, that, when gentlemen are tired, gives them a fob,⁶ and 'rests them; he, Sir, that takes pity on decayed men, and gives them suits of durance;⁷ he that sets up his rest to do more exploits with his mace, than a morris-pike.

Ant. S. What, thou mean'st an officer?

Dro. S. Ay, Sir, the sergeant of the band; he that brings any man to answer it, that breaks his band;⁸ one that thinks a man always going to bed, and says, »God give you good rest!«

Ant. S. Well, Sir, there rest in your foolery. Is there any ship puts forth to-night? may we be gone?

Dro. S. Why, Sir, I brought you word an hour since, that the bark Expedition put forth to-night; and then were you hindered by the sergeant to tarry for the hoy Delay.⁹ Here are the angels¹⁰ that you sent for to deliver you.

Ant. S. The fellow is distract, and so am I, And here we wander in illusions. Some blessed power deliver us from hence!

Enter a Courtezan.¹¹

Cour. Well met, well met, Master Antipholus. I see, Sir, you have found the goldsmith now: Is that the chain you promis'd me to-day?

him, is in a suit of buff. — Die Auslassung des he vor is gehört der familiären Redeweise an. 19) Die Fol. hat thus, von der zweiten Folioausg. verbessert. 20) Adriana versteht band synonym mit bond = Schuldverschreibung, Dromio versteht es = Binde. 21) to season gehört zu owes more: die Zeit, im Allgemeinen und abstract gefasst, schuldet dem bestimmten Augenblick, dem einzelnen jedesmaligen Zeitpunkt, mehr als sie Vermögen hat, als sie selbst besitzt. 22) So verbesserte Rowe das if I be der Fol. — Wie Dyce vermuthet, stand für Time abgekürzt T in der Handschrift. — Malone las if he be.

1) their bezieht sich auf den pluralischen Begriff, der in there's not a man steckt: alle Leute, die ich antreffe, grüssen mich. 2) imaginary wiles = Blendwerk, das die Einbildungskraft täuscht. 3) Lapland als Sitz der Zauberkünste kommt auch vor in Beaumont und Fletcher's Drama The Chances: Sure, his devil || Comes out of Lapland, where they sell men winds || For dead drinks and old doublets. 4) the picture of old Adam new-apparell'd = das Abbild des alten Adam in neuem Costüm, ist der Gerichtsdiener, in Leder gekleidet, wie Adam nach dem Sündenfall in Thierfelle gekleidet war. — what have you got = was habt Ihr aus dem gemacht, wo habt Ihr den gelassen? fragt nach Collier's plausibler Deutung Dromio, da er den andern Antipholus in Gesellschaft des Häschers verlassen hatte. — Viele Hgg. lesen mit Theobald: What, have you got rid of the picture etc., indem sie annehmen, dass rid ausgefallen sei. — Singer, der ebenfalls what als Ausruf fasst, erklärt: Was! habt Ihr dem Bilde des alten Adam, d. h. dem Häscher, ein neues Costüm verschafft? 5) that was kill'd etc. bezieht sich nur auf calf, nicht auf calf's skin, eine Constructionslicenz, die bei Sh. nicht selten ist. — Prodigal = der verlorene Sohn in der Parabel des Evangeliums, bei dessen Rückkehr ein Kalb geschlachtet wurde, spielt zugleich auf die Verschwendung an, welche in Schulden stürzt und dann in's Schuldgefängniss führt. 6) fob verbessert Rowe das sob der Fol., in deren Druck die beiden betreffenden Buchstaben nicht immer genau zu unterscheiden sind. Dyce vermuthet sop dafür. — Ueber to 'rest und to rest vgl. A. 4, Sc. 2, Anm. 18. Das Wortspiel mit rest wird noch fortgeführt in to set up his rest = die Karten, die man beim Spiel in der Hand hat, wagen, dann auch = Alles an Etwas setzen, und = die Pike zum Angriff bereit halten. Der Häscher weiss seinen Stab, das Abzeichen seines Amtes, so zu handhaben, dass er mehr damit ausrichtet, als mit einer Mohrenpike, einer Waffe, die damals sehr im Gebrauch war. — morris-pike für Moorish pike = maurische Lanze. 7) suit of durance = Kleidung aus dauerhaftem Stoffe, zugleich mit der Anspielung auf durance = Haft, Gefängniss. So in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 1, Sc. 2) is not a buff jerkin a most sweet robe of durance? 8) Wortspiel zwischen band = Compagnie eines Sergeanten, und = Schuldverschreibung. Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 2, Anm. 20. 9) Dromio fingirt hier scherzhaft zwei Schiffe und deren Namen. 10) angel = Schutzengel, und = eine Münze, zehn

Ant. S. Satan, avoid! I charge thee, tempt me not!

Dro. S. Master, is this Mistress Satan?

Ant. S. It is the devil.

Dro. S. Nay, she is worse, she is the devil's dam,¹² and here she comes in the habit of a light wench: and thereof comes that the wenches say, »God damn me,« that's as much as to say, »God make me a light wench.« It is written, they appear to men like angels of light: light is an effect of fire, and fire will burn; ergo, light wenches will burn.¹³ Come not near her.

Cour. Your man and you are marvellous merry, Sir. Will you go with me? we'll mend our dinner here.¹⁴

Dro. S. Master, if you do, expect spoon-meat, or bespeak a long spoon.¹⁵

Ant. S. Why, Dromio?

Dro. S. Marry, he must have a long spoon that must eat with the devil.¹⁶

Ant. S. Avoid, thou fiend!¹⁷ what tell'st thou me of supping?

Thou art, as you are all, a sorceress:

I conjure thee to leave me, and be gone.

Cour. Give me the ring of mine you had at dinner, Or for my diamond the chain you promis'd, And I'll be gone, Sir, and not trouble you.

Dro. S. Some devils ask but the parings of one's nail, A rush, a hair, a drop of blood, a pin, A nut, a cherry-stone;

But she, more covetous, would have a chain.

Master, be wise: an if you give it her, The devil will shake her chain, and fright us with it.

Cour. I pray you, Sir, my ring, or else the chain. I hope you do not mean to cheat me so.

Ant. S. Avaunt, thou witch! Come, Dromio, let us go.

Dro. S. »Fly pride,« says the peacock:¹⁸ mistress, that you know. [Exeunt ANT. S. and DRO. S.]

Cour. Now, out of doubt, Antipholus is mad, Else would he never so demean himself.¹⁹

A ring he hath of mine worth forty ducats,

And for the same he promis'd me a chain:

Both one and other he denies me now.

The reason that I gather he is mad,

Besides this present instance²⁰ of his rage,

Is a mad tale he told to-day at dinner,

Of his own doors being shut against his entrance.

Belike, his wife, acquainted with his fits,

On purpose shut the doors against his way. My way is now, to hie home to his house, And tell his wife, that, being lunatic, He rush'd into my house, and took perforce My ring away. This course I fittest choose, For forty ducats is too much to lose. [Exit.]

SCENE IV.

The Same.

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus, and the Officer.¹

Ant. E. Fear me not,² man; I will not break away: I'll give thee, ere I leave thee, so much money, To warrant thee, as I am 'rested for.

My wife is in a wayward mood to-day, And will not lightly trust the messenger.³

That I should be attach'd in Ephesus, I tell you, 't will sound harshly in her ears.

Enter DROMIO of Ephesus with a rope's end.

Here comes my man: I think he brings the money. — How now, Sir? have you that I sent you for?

Dro. E. Here's that, I warrant you, will pay⁴ them all.

Ant. E. But where's the money?

Dro. E. Why, Sir, I gave the money for the rope.

Ant. E. Five hundred ducats, villain, for a rope?

Dro. E. I'll serve you, Sir, five hundred at the rate

Ant. E. To what end did I bid thee hie thee home?

Dro. E. To a rope's end, Sir; and to that end⁵ am I return'd.

Ant. E. And to that end, Sir, I will welcome you.

[Beating him.]

Off. Good Sir, be patient.

Dro. E. Nay, 't is for me to be patient; I am in adversity.

Off. Good now,⁶ hold thy tongue.

Dro. E. Nay, rather persuade him to hold his hands.

Ant. E. Thou whoreson, senseless villain!

Dro. E. I would I were senseless, Sir, that I might not feel your blows.

Ant. E. Thou art sensible⁷ in nothing but blows, and so is an ass.

Dro. E. I am an ass, indeed; you may prove it by my long ears.⁸ I have serv'd him from the hour of my nati-

Schillinge an Werth. — Sh. hat dasselbe Wortspiel auch anderswo; so in Merry Wives of Windsor (A. 1, Sc. 3) she hath a legion of angels. 11) Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 1, Anm. 3 und 6. 12) Wortspiel zwischen devil's dam = des Teufels Grossmutter, und God damn me = Gott verdamme mich! — Die Fol. hat That's as much to say. 13) Anspielung auf die Lustseuche (the burning). — Das Wortspiel zwischen light = Licht, und = leichtfertig, ist bei Sh. sehr gewöhnlich. 14) Nachdem wir mit einander zu Mittag gespeist haben, wollen wir jetzt noch einmal zusammen essen, d. h. zu Abend. 15) In der Fol. ist you hinter if ausgelassen und hinter do kein Comma gesetzt. Rowe las deshalb if you do expect spoon-meat, bespeak a long spoon. — Dyce setzt so für or. — Theobald vermuthet, dass vor or einige Worte, wie etwa either stay away ausgefallen seien. 16) Auf dieses Sprichwort wird auch hingedeutet in Tempest (A. 2, Sc. 2) This is a devil, and no monster: I will leave him; I have no long spoon. 17) So verbessert die vierte Folioausg. das avoid then, fiend der Fol. 18) Vom Pfau kann man lernen, nicht eitel zu sein, nicht zu prunken, sagt Dromio in Beziehung auf das Begehren der Buhlerin nach der goldenen Kette. 19) Da to demean one's self sowohl = sich benehmen, als = sich herabwürdigen, bedeutet, so ist es zweifelhaft, in welchem Sinne Sh. das Wort hier gebraucht. 20) instance = Probe, Beweisprobe.

1) with a Jailer in der Fol., die jedoch nachher ihn als Officer bezeichnet. Es ist dieselbe Person, welche A. 4, Sc. 1 auftrat. 2) Seid meiner wegen unbesorgt. — to fear mit dem Accusativ = für Jemanden oder wegen Jemandes fürchten. 3) Manche Hgg. verbinden diesen Vers mit dem folgenden, der jedoch natürlicher mit dem zweitfolgenden in Verbindung gesetzt wird: mein Weib wird dem Boten nicht leicht trauen, ihm das Geld zu meiner Auslösung nicht leicht mitgeben. 4) to pay = bezahlen. und = Jemandem seinen gebührenden Lohn, seine Strafe, geben. 5) Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 1, Anm. 21. 6) Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 2, Anm. 8. 7) senseless = sinnlos, und = ohne Gefühl; ebenso sensible = mit Gefühl begabt, und = vernünftig. 8) Antipholus vity to this instant, and have nothing at his hands for my service but blows. When I am cold, he heats me with beating; when I am warm, he cools me with beating: I am wak'd with it, when I sleep; rais'd with it, when I sit; driven out of doors with it, when I go from home; welcomed home with it, when I return: nay, I bear it on my shoulders, as a beggar wont her brat,⁹ and, I think, when he hath lamed me, I shall beg with it from door to door.

Ant. E. Come, go along: my wife is coming yonder.

*Enter ADRIANA, LUCIANA, the Courtezan, and PINCH.*¹⁰

Dro. E. Mistress, respice finem, respect your end; or rather the prophecy, like the parrot, »Beware the rope's end.«¹¹

Ant. E. Wilt thou still talk? [Beats him.]

Cour. How say you now? ² is not your husband mad?

Adr. His incivility confirms no less. —

Good doctor Pinch, you are a conjurer;

Establish him in his true sense again,

And I will please you what you will demand.

Luc. Alas, how fiery and how sharp he looks!

Cour. Mark, how he trembles in his ecstasy!¹²

Pinch. Give me your hand, and let me feel your pulse.

Ant. E. There is my hand, and let it feel your ear.¹³

Pinch. I charge thee, Satan, hous'd within this man,
To yield possession to my holy prayers,
And to thy state of darkness hie thee straight:
I conjure thee by all the saints in heaven.

Ant. E. Peace, doting wizard, peace! I am not mad.

Adr. O, that thou wert not, poor distressed soul!

Ant. E. You minion, you, are these your customers?¹⁵
Did this companion with the saffron face
Revel and feast it at my house to-day,
Whilst upon me the guilty doors¹⁶ were shut,
And I denied to enter in my house?

Adr. O husband, God doth know, you din'd at home;
Where 'would you had remain'd until this time,
Free from these slanders, and this open shame!

Ant. E. Dined¹⁷ at home! Thou, villain, what say'st thou?

Dro. E. Sir, sooth to say, you did not dine at home.

Ant. E. Were not my doors lock'd up, and I shut out?

Dro. E. Perdy,¹⁸ your doors were lock'd, and you shut out.

Ant. E. And did not she herself revile me there?

Dro. E. Sans fable,¹⁹ she herself revil'd you there.

Ant. E. Did not her kitchen-maid rail, taunt, and scorn me?

Dro. E. Certes,²⁰ she did; the kitchen-vestal scorn'd you.

Ant. E. And did not I in rage depart from thence?

Dro. E. In verity, you did: — my bones bear witness, That since have felt the vigour of his rage.

Adr. Is 't good to soothe him in these contraries?

Pinch. It is no shame: the fellow finds his vein,²¹ And, yielding to him, humours well his frenzy.

Ant. E. Thou hast suborn'd the goldsmith to arrest me.

Adr. Alas, I sent you money to redeem you,
By Dromio here, who came in haste for it.

Dro. E. Money by me? heart and good will you might,
But, surely, master, not a rag of money.

Ant. E. Wentst not thou to her for a purse of ducats?

Adr. He came to me, and I deliver'd it.

Luc. And I am witness with her that she did.

Dro. E. God and the rope-maker bear me witness,
That I was sent for nothing but a rope!

Pinch. Mistress, both man and master is possess'd:
I know it by their pale and deadly looks.

They must be bound, and laid in some dark room.²²

Ant. E. Say, wherefore didst thou lock me forth to-day?

And why dost thou deny the bag of gold?

Adr. I did not, gentle husband, lock thee forth.

Dro. E. And, gentle master, I receiv'd no gold;
But I confess, Sir, that we were lock'd out.

Adr. Dissembling villain! thou speak'st false in both.

Ant. E. Dissembling harlot! thou art false in all,
And art confederate with a damned pack,
To make a loathsome abject scorn of me;
But with these nails I'll pluck out these false eyes,
That would behold in me this shameful sport.

Adr. O, bind him, bind him! let him not come near me.

Pinch. More company! — the fiend is strong within him.

Luc. Ah me! poor man, how pale and wan he looks!

*Enter Three or Four, and bind ANTIPHOLUS and DROMIO of Ephesus.*²³

Ant. E. What, will you murder me? Thou gaoler, thou, I am thy prisoner: wilt thou suffer them
To make a rescue?

Off. Masters, let him go:

He is my prisoner, and you shall not have him.

Adr. What wilt thou do, thou peevish²⁴ officer?
 Hast thou delight to see a wretched man
 Do outrage and displeasure to himself?
Off. He is my prisoner: if I let him go,
 The debt he owes will be requir'd of me.
Adr. I will discharge thee, ere I go from thee.
 Bear me forthwith unto his creditor,
 And, knowing how the debt grows,²⁵ I will pay it.
 Good master doctor, see him safe convey'd
 Home to my house. — O most unhappy day!
Ant. E. O most unhappy²⁶ strumpet!
Dro. E. Master, I am here enter'd in bond²⁷ for you.
Ant. E. Out on thee, villain! wherefore dost thou mad me?
Dro. E. Will you be bound for nothing? be mad, good master;
 Cry, the devil!
Luc. God help, poor souls! how idly do they talk!
Adr. Go bear him hence. — Sister, go you with me. — [Exeunt PINCH and Assistants with ANT. E.
 and DRO. E.
 Say now, whose suit is he arrested at?
Off. One Angelo, a goldsmith; do you know him?
Adr. I know the man. What is the sum he owes?
Off. Two hundred ducats.
Adr. Say, how grows it due?
Off. Due for a chain your husband had of him.
Adr. He did bespeak a chain for me, but had it not.
Cour. Whenas²⁸ your husband, all in rage, to-day
 Came to my house, and took away my ring
 (The ring I saw upon his finger now),
 Straight after did I meet him with a chain.
Adr. It may be so, but I did never see it. —
 Come, gaoler, bring me where the goldsmith is:
 I long to know the truth hereof at large.
 Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse, with his rapier drawn, and DROMIO of Syracuse.²⁹
Luc. God, for thy mercy! they are loose again.
Adr. And come with naked swords. Let's call more help,
 To have them bound again.
Off. Away! they 'll kill us.
 [Exeunt ADRIANA, LUCIANA, and Officer.³⁰
Ant. S. I see, these witches are afraid of swords,

Dro. S. She that would be your wife now ran from you.
Ant. S. Come to the Centaur; fetch our stuff³¹ from thence:
 I long, that we were safe and sound aboard.
Dro. S. Faith, stay here this night, they will surely do us no harm; you saw they speak us fair, give us gold.³² Methinks they are such a gentle nation, that but for the mountain of mad flesh that claims marriage of me, I could find in my heart to stay here still, and turn witch.³³
Ant. S. I will not stay to-night for all the town;
 Therefore away, to get our stuff aboard. [Exeunt.

ACT V.

SCENE I.

The Same. Before an Abbey.

Enter Merchant and ANGELO.

Ang. I am sorry, Sir, that I have hinder'd you;¹
 But, I protest, he had the chain of me,
 Though most dishonestly he doth deny it.
Mer. How is the man esteem'd here in the city?
Ang. Of very reverend reputation, Sir,
 Of credit infinite, highly belov'd,
 Second to none that lives here in the city:
 His word might bear my wealth at any time.²
Mer. Speak softly: yonder, as I think, he walks.
 Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse and DROMIO of Syracuse.
Ang. 'T is so; and that self³ chain about his neck,
 Which he forswore most monstrously to have.
 Good Sir, draw near to me,⁴ I 'll speak to him. —
 Signior Antipholus, I wonder much
 That you would put me to this shame and trouble;
 And not without some scandal to yourself,
 With circumstance and oaths, so to deny⁵
 This chain, which now you wear so openly:
 Beside the charge, the shame, imprisonment,
 You have done wrong to this my honest friend;
 Who, but for staying on our controversy,
 Had hoisted sail, and put to sea to-day.
 This chain you had of me: can you deny it?
Ant. S. I think, I had: I never did deny it.

more company! die anderen Helfershelfer herbeikommen. 24) Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 1, Anm. 19. 25) Wenn ich erfahren habe, wie die Schuld erwachsen ist. Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 1, Anm. 2. Ebenso bald nachher how grows it due? 26) unhappy gebraucht Adriana = unglücklich, Antipholus = ungerathen, böseartig. 27) Doppelsinnig: ich bin hier um Euretwillen gefesselt, und: ich habe eine Schuldverschreibung für Euch übernommen, habe mich für Euch in Geldsachen verbürgt. 28) Sh. gebraucht whenas für when, wie whereas für where. 29) So die Fol. Nach Adriana's folgenden Worten And come with naked swords scheint auch Dromio mit gezücktem Schwert aufzutreten. 30) Die Fol. hat schon hinter bound again die Bühnenweisung Run all out als eine vorläufige Weisung an die Schauspieler, sich bereit zu halten (vgl. oben Anm. 23), und hier eine zweite Bühnenweisung Exeunt omnes, as fast as may be, frightened. 31) stuff = Reisegepäck. So in Greene's Pandosto and Fawnia: they left Porus to keep the stuff. 32) Für speak und give wollte Roberts spake und gave lesen. Indess bezeichnet das Präsens hier in Dromio's Sinne eine fortdauernde Eigenthümlichkeit oder Sitte der Bewohner von Ephesus: Ihr seht, wie gütig die Leute sind, wie sie uns freundlich zusprechen und uns Gold geben. 33) witch wird auch sonst von Männern gebraucht, also = Hexenmeister. So in Cymbeline (A. 1, Sc. 7) such a holy witch, || That he enchants societies unto him.

1) d. h. dass ich Euch gehindert abzureisen, dass ich Euch aufgehalten habe. 2) Er bekommt auf sein blosses Wort so viel, wie ich in meinem ganzen Vermögen habe. 3) self steht häufig für same: ebendieselbe Kette. 4) Tretet mir zur Seite, wenn ich mit ihm spreche, damit Ihr mir als Zeuge dienen könnt. 5) Sh. setzt oft vor einem von will oder would abhängigen Infinitiv, wenn ein Satz dazwischen getreten ist, to, wie hier vor deny, das von dem vorhergehenden would abhängt. Vielleicht ist jedoch so to deny als Folgesatz zu fassen: dass

Mer. Yes, that you did, Sir, and forswore it too.

Ant. S. Who heard me to deny it, or forswear it?

Mer. These ears of mine, thou know'st, did hear thee.⁶

Fie on thee, wretch! 't is pity that thou liv'st

To walk where any honest men resort.

Ant. S. Thou art a villain to impeach me thus.

I'll prove mine honour and mine honesty

Against thee presently, if thou dar'st stand.

Mer. I dare, and do defy thee for a villain.

[They draw.]

Enter ADRIANA, LUCIANA, Courtezan, and Others.

Adr. Hold! hurt him not, for God's sake! he is mad. —

Some get within him,⁷ take his sword away.

Bind Dromio too, and bear them to my house.

Dro. S. Run, master, run; for God's sake take a house!⁸

This is some priory: — in, or we are spoil'd.

[Exeunt ANT. S. and DRO. S. to the Abbey.]

Enter the Abbess.⁹

Abb. Be quiet, people. Wherefore throng you hither?

Adr. To fetch my poor distracted husband hence.

Let us come in, that we may bind him fast,

And bear him home for his recovery.

Ang. I knew, he was not in his perfect wits.

Mer. I am sorry now, that I did draw on him.

Abb. How long hath this possession¹⁰ held the man?

Adr. This week he hath been heavy, sour,¹¹ sad,

And much different from the man he was;

But, till this afternoon, his passion

Ne'er brake into extremity of rage.

Abb. Hath he not lost much wealth by wrack of sea?

Buried some dear friend? Hath not else his eye

Stray'd his affection in unlawful love?

A sin prevailing much in youthful men,

Who give their eyes the liberty of gazing.

Which of these sorrows is he subject to?

Adr. To none of these, except it be the last;

Namely, some love, that drew him oft from home.

Abb. You should for that have reprehended him.

Adr. Why, so I did.

Abb. Ay, but not rough enough.

Adr. As roughly as my modesty would let me.

Abb. Haply, in private.

Adr. And in assemblies too.

Abb. Ay, but not enough.

Adr. It was the copy¹² of our conference.

In bed, he slept not for my urging it;

At board, he fed not for my urging it;

Alone, it was the subject of my theme;¹³

In company, I often glanced it:

Still did I tell him it was vile and bad.

Abb. And thereof came it that the man was mad:

The venom clamours of a jealous woman

Poison more deadly than a mad dog's tooth.

It seems, his sleeps¹⁴ were hinder'd by thy railing,

And thereof comes it that his head is light.¹⁵

Thou say'st, his meat was sauc'd with thy upbraidings:

Unquiet meals make ill digestions;

Thereof the raging fire of fever bred:

And what's a fever but a fit of madness?

Thou say'st, his sports were hinder'd by thy brawls:

Sweet recreation barr'd, what doth ensue

But moody and dull melancholy,

Kinsman to grim and comfortless despair,

And at their heels¹⁶ a huge infectious troop

Of pale distemperatures, and foes to life?

In food, in sport, and life-preserving rest

To be disturb'd, would mad or man or beast.¹⁷

The consequence is then, thy jealous fits

Have scar'd thy husband from the use of wits.

Luc. She never reprehended him but mildly,

When he demean'd himself rough, rude, and wildly. —

Why bear you these rebukes, and answer not?

Adr. She did betray me to my own reproof. —

Good people, enter, and lay hold on him.

Abb. No; not a creature enters in my house.

Adr. Then, let your servants bring my husband forth

Abb. Neither: he took this place for sanctuary,

And it shall privilege him from your hands,

Till I have brought him to his wits again,

Or lose my labour in assaying it.

Adr. I will attend my husband, be his nurse,

Diet his sickness, for it is my office,

And will have no attorney but myself,

And therefore let me have him home with me.

Abb. Be patient; for I will not let him stir,

Till I have us'd the approved means I have,

With wholesome syrups, drugs, and holy prayers.

To make of him a formal man¹⁸ again.

So in Antony and Cleopatra (A. 2, Sc. 5) Thou shouldst come like a Fury crown'd with snakes, || Not like a formal man. 19) Der Weggang der Aebtissin ist in der Fol. nicht verzeichnet. 20) death für depth der Fol. findet sich schon in der dritten Folioausg. und ist nicht erst von Rowe verbessert. — sorry = traurig, melancholisch. wird im älteren Englisch für dismal, sorrowful gebraucht. 21) important = dringlich, nachdrücklich, von

It is a branch and parcel of mine oath,
A charitable duty of my order;

Therefore depart, and leave him here with me.

Adr. I will not hence, and leave my husband here;
And ill it doth beseem your holiness
To separate the husband and the wife.

Abb. Be quiet, and depart: thou shalt not have him.

[*Exit.*¹⁹

Luc. Complain unto the duke of this indignity.

Adr. Come, go: I will fall prostrate at his feet,
And never rise, until my tears and prayers
Have won his grace to come in person hither,
And take perforce my husband from the abbess.

Mer. By this, I think, the dial points at five:
Anon, I'm sure, the duke himself in person
Comes this way to the melancholy vale,
The place of death and sorry execution,²⁰
Behind the ditches of the abbey here.

Ang. Upon what cause?

Mer. To see a reverend Syracusan merchant,
Who put unluckily into this bay
Against the laws and statutes of this town,
Beheaded publicly for his offence.

Ang. See, where they come: we will behold his death.

Luc. Kneel to the duke before he pass the abbey.

Enter DUKE, attended; AEGEON bare-headed; with the Headsmen and other Officers.

Duke. Yet once again proclaim it publicly,
If any friend will pay the sum for him,
He shall not die, so much we tender him.

Adr. Justice, most sacred duke, against the abbess!

Duke. She is a virtuous and a reverend lady:
It cannot be that she hath done thee wrong.

Adr. May it please your grace, Antipholus, my husband, —

Whom I made lord of me, and all I had,
At your important²¹ letters, — this ill day
A most outrageous fit of madness took him,
That desperately he hurried through the street,
(With him his bondman, all as mad as he)
Doing displeasure to the citizens
By rushing in their houses, bearing thence Rings, jewels, anything his rage did like.
Once did I get him bound, and sent him home,
Whilst to take order for the wrongs I went,
That here and there his fury had committed.²²
Anon, I wot not by what strong escape,²³

He broke from those that had the guard of him,
And with his mad attendant and himself,²⁴
Each one with ireful passion, with drawn swords,
Met us again, and, madly bent on us,²⁵
Chas'd us away; till, raising of more aid,
We came again to bind them. Then they fled
Into this abbey, whither we pursued them;
And here the abbess shuts the gates on us,
And will not suffer us to fetch him out,
Nor send him forth, that we may bear him hence.
Therefore, most gracious duke, with thy command,
Let him be brought forth, and borne hence for help.

Duke. Long since thy husband serv'd me in my wars,
And I to thee engag'd a prince's word,
When thou didst make him master of thy bed,
To do him all the grace and good I could. —
Go, some of you, knock at the abbey-gate,
And bid the lady abbess come to me.
I will determine this, before I stir.²⁶

*Enter a Servant.*²⁷

Serv. O mistress, mistress! shift and save yourself.
My master and his man are both broke loose,
Beaten the maids a-row,²⁸ and bound the doctor,
Whose beard they have sing'd off with brands of fire;
And ever as it blazed they threw on him
Great pails of puddled mire to quench the hair.
My master preaches patience to him, and the while
His man with scissors nicks him like a fool;²⁹
And, sure, unless you send some present help,
Between them they will kill the conjurer.

Adr. Peace, fool! thy master and his man are here,³⁰
And that is false thou dost report to us.

Serv. Mistress, upon my life, I tell you true;
I have not breath'd almost, since I did see it.
He cries for you, and vows, if he can take you,
To scorch³¹ your face, and to disfigure you. [Cry within.
Hark, hark, I hear him, mistress: fly, be gone.

Duke. Come, stand by me; fear nothing. Guard with halberds!

Adr. Ah me, it is my husband! Witness you,
That he is borne about invisible:
Even now we hous'd him in the abbey here,
And now he's there, past thought of human reason.

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus and DROMIO of Ephesus.

Ant. E. Justice, most gracious duke! O! grant me justice,

Bitten und Vorstellungen. So in K. Lear (A. 4, Sc. 4) my mourning and important tears. — Es scheint, dass Adriana als reiche Erbin den Antipholus auf die dringende Verwendung des Herzogs, der vielleicht ihr Vormund war, geheirathet hatte. — Die zweite Folioausg. hat impotent, die dritte und vierte impotent, woraus Rowe all-potent machte. 22) to take order for = Anstalt treffen wegen einer Sache: während ich ging, um das Unheil wieder gut zu machen, das er hier und dort in seiner Wuth angestiftet. 23) Malone vermuthete einmal strange escape, beruhigte sich jedoch bei der alten Lesart, welche Steevens richtig erklärt: an escape effected by strength or violence. 24) Der Sinn dieser nachlässigen Ausdrucksweise ist einfach: er selbst in Begleitung seines tollen Dieners. 25) Zu madly bent on us ist aus dem Vorigen swords hinzuzudenken: sie begegneten uns wieder mit gezogenen Schwertern, und, indem sie sie toll gegen uns richteten, jagten sie uns von dannen. 26) Ich will diese Sache zur Entscheidung bringen, ehe ich mich von der Stelle rühre. 27) Die Fol. hat Enter a Messenger. 28) a-row = der Reihe nach. — Vor beaten fehlt das Hilfsverbum have, als ob vorher have broke statt are broke stände. Solche Ungenauigkeiten sind bei Sh. nicht selten. 29) Dromio schneidet dem Pinch die Haare glatt vom Kopfe ab, wie man sie Narren, d. h. Verrückten, schneidet. So in The Choice of Change, containing the Triplicities of Divinitie, Philosophie and Poetrie (1598) Three things used by monks, which provoke other men to laugh at their follies: First they are shaven and notched on the head like fools. 30) here sagt Adriana, indem sie auf die Abtei hindeutet. 31) Antipholus wollte der Adriana das Gesicht versengen mit dem Feuerbrande, den er noch in Händen hatte. — Vgl. oben Whose beard they have sing'd off with

Even for the service that long since I did thee,
When I bestrid thee³² in the wars, and took Deep scars to save thy life; even for the blood
That then I lost for thee, now grant me justice.

Ege. Unless the fear of death doth make me dote,
I see my son Antipholus, and Dromio!

Ant. E. Justice, sweet prince, against that woman
there!

She whom thou gav'st to me to be my wife,
That hath abused and dishonour'd me,
Even in the strength and height of injury.³³
Beyond imagination is the wrong

That she this day hath shameless thrown on me.

Duke. Discover how, and thou shalt find me just.

Ant. E. This day, great duke, she shut the doors upon me,

While she with harlots³⁴ feasted in my house.

Duke. A grievous fault. Say, woman, didst thou so?

Adr. No, my good lord: myself, he, and my sister,
To-day did dine together. So befall my soul,
As this is false he burdens me withal.

Luc. Ne'er may I look on day, nor sleep on night,
But she tells to your highness simple truth.

Ang. O perjur'd woman! They are both forsworn:
In this the madman justly chargeth them.

Ant. E. My liege, I am advised what I say:

Neither disturbed³⁵ with the effect of wine,

Nor heady-rash provok'd with raging ire,

Albeit my wrongs might make one wiser mad.

This woman lock'd me out this day from dinner:

That goldsmith there, were he not pack'd with her,³⁶

Could witness it, for he was with me then;

Who parted with me to go fetch a chain,

Promising to bring it to the Porpentine,

Where Balthazar and I did dine together.

Our dinner done, and he not coming thither,

I went to seek him: in the street I met him,

And in his company that gentleman.

There did this perjur'd goldsmith swear me down,

That I this day of him receiv'd the chain,

Which, God he³⁷ knows, I saw not; for the which

He did arrest me with an officer.

I did obey, and sent my peasant³⁸ home

For certain ducats: he with none return'd.

Then fairly I bespoke³⁹ the officer,

To go in person with me to my house.

By the way we met

My wife, her sister, and a rabble more

Of vile confederates: along with them

They brought one Pinch, a hungry lean-fac'd villain,

A mere anatomy, a mountebank,

A thread-bare juggler, and a fortune-teller,

A needy, hollow-ey'd, sharp-looking⁴⁰ wretch,

A living dead man. This pernicious slave,

Forsooth, took on him as a conjurer,

And gazing in mine eyes, feeling my pulse,

And with no face,⁴¹ as 't were, outfacing me,

Cries out, I was possess'd. Then, altogether

They fell upon me, bound me, bore me thence,

And in a dark and dankish vault at home

There⁴² left me and my man, both bound together;

Till, gnawing with my teeth my bonds in sunder,

I gain'd my freedom, and immediately

Ran hither to your grace, whom I beseech

To give me ample satisfaction

For these deep shames, and great indignities.

Ang. My lord, in truth, thus far I witness with him,

That he din'd not at home, but was lock'd out.

Duke. But had he such a chain of thee, or no?

Ang. He had, my lord; and when he ran in here,

These people saw the chain about his neck.

Mer. Besides, I will be sworn, these ears of mine

Heard you confess you had the chain of him,

After you first forswore it on the mart,

And, thereupon, I drew my sword on you;

And then you fled into this abbey here,

From whence, I think, you are come by miracle.

Ant. E. I never came within these abbey-walls,

Nor ever didst thou draw thy sword on me.

I never saw the chain. So help me heaven,

As⁴³ this is false you burden me withal.

Duke. Why, what an intricate impeach⁴⁴ is this!

I think, you all have drunk of Circe's cup.⁴⁵

If here you hous'd him, here he would have been;

If he were mad, he would not plead so coldly; —

You say, he din'd at home; the goldsmith here

Denies that saying. — Sirrah, what say you?

Dro. E. Sir, he din'd with her there,⁴⁶ at the Porpentine.

Cour. He did, and from my finger snatch'd that ring.

Ant. E. 'T is true, my liege; this ring I had of her.

Duke. Saw'st thou him enter at the abbey here?

Cour. As sure, my liege, as I do see your grace.

Duke. Why, this is strange. — Go call the abbess hither. —

I think you are all mated,⁴⁷ or stark mad.

[Exit an Attendant.]

Æge. Most mighty duke, vouchsafe me speak a word.
Haply, I see a friend will save my life,
And pay the sum that may deliver me.

Duke. Speak freely, Syracusian, what thou wilt.

Æge. Is not your name, Sir, call'd Antipholus,
And is not that your bondman Dromio?

Dro. E. Within this hour I was his bondman,⁴⁸ Sir;
But he, I thank him, gnaw'd in two my cords:
Now am I Dromio, and his man unbound.

Æge. I am sure you both of you remember me.

Dro. E. Ourselves we do remember, Sir, by you;
For lately we were bound, as you are now.
You are not Pinch's patient, are you, Sir?

Æge. Why look you strange on me? you know me well.

Ant. E. I never saw you in my life, till now.

Æge. O! grief hath chang'd me, since you saw me last;
And careful hours,⁴⁹ with Time's deformed hand,⁵⁰
Have written strange defeatures⁵¹ in my face:
But tell me yet, dost thou not know my voice?

Ant. E. Neither.

Æge. Dromio, nor thou?

Dro. E. No, trust me, Sir, nor I.

Æge. I am sure thou dost.

Dro. E. Ay, Sir, but I am sure I do not; and whatsoever a man denies, you are now bound⁵² to believe him.

Æge. Not know my voice! O, time's extremity,
Hast thou so crack'd and splitted my poor tongue
In seven short years, that here my only son
Knows not my feeble key of untun'd cares?⁵³
Though now this grained face⁵⁴ of mine be hid
In sap-consuming winter's drizzled snow,
And all the conduits of my blood froze up,
Yet hath my night of life some memory,
My wasting lamps some fading glimmer left,
My dull deaf ears a little use to hear:
All these old witnesses⁵⁵ (I cannot err)
Tell me thou art my son Antipholus.

Ant. E. I never saw my father in my life.

Æge. But seven years since, in Syracuse, boy,
Thou know'st we parted. But, perhaps, my son,
Thou sham'st to acknowledge me in misery.

Ant. E. The duke, and all that know me in the city,
Can witness with me that it is not so.
I ne'er saw Syracuse in my life.

Duke. I tell thee, Syracusian, twenty years
Have I been patron to Antipholus,
During which time he ne'er saw Syracuse.
I see, thy age and dangers⁵⁶ make thee dote.

Enter Abbess, with ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse and DROMIO of Syracuse.

Abb. Most mighty duke, behold a man much wrong'd.
[All gather to see them.⁵⁷

Adr. I see two husbands, or mine eyes deceive me.

Duke. One of these men is Genius⁵⁸ to the other;
And so of these:⁵⁹ which is the natural man,
And which the spirit? who deciphers them?

Dro. S. I, Sir, am Dromio: command him away.

Dro. E. I, Sir, am Dromio: pray, let me stay.

Ant. S. Ægeon art thou not? or else his ghost?

Dro. S. O, my old master! who hath bound him here?

Abb. Whoever bound him, I will loose his bonds,
And gain a husband by his liberty. —

Speak, old Ægeon, if thou be'st the man
That hadst a wife once call'd Æmilia,
That bore thee at a burden two fair sons.

O! if thou be'st the same Ægeon, speak,
And speak unto the same Æmilia!⁶⁰

Æge. If I dream not, thou art Æmilia.

If thou art she, tell me, where is that son
That floated with thee on the fatal raft?

Abb. By men of Epidamnum, he, and I,
And the twin Dromio, all were taken up:

But, by and by, rude fishermen of Corinth
By force took Dromio and my son from them,
And me they left with those of Epidamnum.

What then became of them, I cannot tell;

I⁶¹ to this fortune that you see me in.

Duke. Why, here begins his morning story⁶² right.

These two Antipholus', these two so like,

And these two Dromios, one in semblance,⁶³ —

Besides her urging of her wrack at sea; —

These are the parents to these children,⁶⁴

Which accidentally are met together.

Antipholus, thou cam'st from Corinth first?

Ant. S. No, Sir, not I: I came from Syracuse.

Duke. Stay, stand apart: I know not which is which.

Ant. E. I came from Corinth, my most gracious lord.

Dro. E. And I with him.

Ant. E. Brought to this town by that most famous warrior,

Duke Menaphon, your most renowned uncle.

Adr. Which of you two did dine with me to-day?

Ant. S. I, gentle mistress.

Adr. And are not you my husband?

Ant. E. No; I say nay to that.

Ant. S. And so do I; yet did she call me so;

And this fair gentlewoman, her sister here,

Did call me brother. — What I told you then,

I hope, I shall have leisure to make good,

If this be not a dream I see and hear.

Ang. That is the chain, Sir, which you had of me.

Ant. S. I think it be, Sir: I deny it not.

Ant. E. And you, Sir, for this chain arrested me.

Ang. I think I did, Sir: I deny it not.

Adr. I sent you money, Sir, to be your bail,
By Dromio; but I think, he brought it not.

Dro. E. No, none by me.

Ant. S. This purse of ducats I receiv'd from you,
And Dromio, my man, did bring them me.

I see, we still did meet each other's man,

And I was ta'en for him and he for me,

And thereupon these errors are arose.⁶⁵

Ant. E. These ducats pawn I for my father here.

Duke. It shall not need: thy father hath his life.

Cour. Sir, I must have that diamond from you.

Ant. E. There, take it; and much thanks for my good cheer.⁶⁶

Abb. Renowned duke, vouchsafe to take the pains
To go with us into the abbey here,
And hear at large discoursed all our fortunes;
And all that are assembled in this place,

That by this sympathized one day's error⁶⁷

Have suffer'd wrong, go keep us company,

And we shall make full satisfaction.

Thirty-three years⁶⁸ have I but gone in travail

Of you, my sons; and till this present hour

My heavy burden ne'er delivered. —

The duke, my husband, and my children both,

And you the calendars of their nativity,⁶⁹

Go to a gossips' feast, and joy with me:

After so long grief such festivity!⁷⁰

Duke. With all my heart: I'll gossip at this feast.

[*Exeunt Duke, Abbess, ÆGEON, Courtezan,
Merchant, ANGELO, and Attendants.*]

Dro. S. Master, shall I fetch your stuff from ship-board?

Ant. E. Dromio, what stuff of mine hast thou embark'd?

Dro. S. Your goods, that lay at host, Sir, in the Centaur.

Ant. S. He speaks to me. — I am your master, Dromio:
Come, go with us; we'll look to that anon.

Embrace thy brother there; rejoice with him.

[Exeunt ANT. S., ANT. E., ADR., and LUC.]

Dro. S. There is a fat friend at your master's house,
That kitchen'd⁷¹ me for you to-day at dinner:
She now shall be my sister, not my wife.

Dro. E. Methinks, you are my glass, and not my brother:

I see by you I am a sweet-faced youth.

Will you walk in to see their gossiping?

Dro. S. Not I, Sir; you are my elder.

Dro. E. That's a question: how shall we try it?

Dro. S. We'll draw cuts for the senior: till then, lead thou first.

Dro. E. Nay, then thus:⁷²

We came into the world like brother and brother;

And now let's go hand in hand, not one before another.

[Exeunt.]

concur to prove, ausgefallen sei, erscheint unbegründet, da These are etc. eben so hinweisend, mit einer Handgeberde begleitet, zu verstehen ist, wie these two Antipholus' und these two Dromios: Diese, die hier stehen, sind die Eltern jener Kinder, die da stehen. — children ist dreisylbig (childeren) zu lesen. 65) Rowe las these errors all arose. — Sh. gebraucht arose als Particip, wie er wrote von to write so gebraucht in Cymbeline (A. 3, Sc. 5) my emperor hath wrote und Lucius hath wrote already. — Staunton liest And thereupon these Errors rare arose. 66) Für die gute Bewirthing, die ich heute Mittag bei Euch hatte. 67) sympathized, als Particip, ist mit error zu verbinden: Ihr Alle, die ihr durch diese gemeinschaftlich bestandenen Irrungen, die nur einen Tag gedauert haben, gelitten habt. 68) Die Fol. liest Thirty-three years have I but gone in travail || Of you, my sons, and till this present hour || My heavy burthen are delivered. — Theobald änderte twenty-five years, indem er zwei vorhergehende Zeitangaben des Ægeon zusammenstellt: (A. 1, Sc. 1) My youngest boy, and yet my eldest care, || At eighteen years became inquisitive || After his brother, und in dieser Scene But seven years since, in Syracuse, boy, || Thou know'st we parted. — Wahrscheinlich rührt aber die Zahl der Fol. von einem Versehen Sh.'s selber her. — ne'er delivered ist Dyce's Emendation; Malone las not delivered, und Collier undelivered; Theobald: nor till this present time || My heavy burdens are delivered. 69) Sie bezeichnet die beiden Dromio, wie vorher Antipholus den einen bezeichnet hatte. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 2, Anm. 10. 70) joy ist Heath's plausible Conjectur für go, das die Fol. in müßiger Wiederholung hat, und festivity setzt Johnson für das eben so unpassend wiederholte nativity der Fol. 71) to kitchen = in die Küche holen, für die Küche verwenden, scherzhaft gebildet nach Analogie von to house u. A. 72) Bei diesen Worten fasst der eine Dromio den andern bei der Hand, oder nimmt ihn unter den Arm.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

Einleitung.

Shakspeare's Much Ado about Nothing erschien im Jahre 1600 in einer Einzelausgabe mit folgendem Titel: Much adoe about Nothing. As it hath been sundrie times publikely acted by the right honourable, the Lord Chamberlaine his seruants. Written by William Shakespeare. — London Printed by V. S. for Andrew Wise and William Apsley. 1600. — Der Text dieser Ausgabe in Quarto ist im Ganzen ziemlich correct und weicht auch nicht erheblich ab von dem daraus abgedruckten Text der Folioausgabe von 1623, in welcher das Drama als das sechste in der Reihe der Comedies abgedruckt steht, hier zuerst in Acte, wenn auch nicht in Scenen eingetheilt, und ohne ein Personenverzeichniss, welches Rowe seiner Ausgabe (1709) beifügte. — In demselben Jahre, in welchem die Quarto erschien, und zwar unter dem 23. August 1600, wurde Much Ado about Nothing zugleich mit King Henry IV. Second Part in die Register der Buchhändlergilde eingetragen, nachdem kurz vorher, laut eines Vermerks vom 4. August, in denselben Registern die Veröffentlichung des Stückes durch einen andern Verleger gehindert worden war. Eine frühere Notiz als diese hat sich bisher nicht nachweisen lassen, und das Stillschweigen, mit welchem Francis Meres in seinem Buche Palladis Tamia 1598 unter den Dramen Shakspeare's dieses Drama übergeht, macht es neben den inneren Merkmalen des Styls und des Verses wahrscheinlich, dass es in der Zwischenzeit, 1598—1600, geschrieben und aufgeführt worden ist.

Der ernstere Theil des Stoffes, der Claudio's Täuschung und Hero's Ehrenkränkung enthält, war zu Shakspeare's Zeit in England in verschiedenen Bearbeitungen bekannt: zunächst in der Episode von Ariodant und Genevra aus Ariosto's Orlando Furioso, welche bereits in zwei englischen Uebersetzungen, von Beverley und von Turberville, existirte, ehe 1591 Harington das ganze Gedicht Ariost's in englischen Versen erscheinen liess. Auch ein jetzt verloren gegangenes Drama desselben Inhalts war im Jahre 1582—1583 vorhanden und damals vor der Königin Elisabeth durch die Schüler der Londoner Stiftsschule der Merchant Tailors' Company aufgeführt worden, wie aus folgender Notiz der von Cunningham edirten Accounts of the Revels at Court erhellt: A Historie of Ariodante and Genevora shewed before her Matie on Shrovetuesdaie at night enacted by Mr. Mulcasters children. — Dieselbe Geschichte, nur mit veränderten Namen, hat auch Edmund Spenser in seine Faerie Queene eingeflochten. — Am nächsten der Shakspeare'schen Behandlung, jedoch mit Entlehnung einiger Züge aus den andern Quellen, sei es Ariost und Spenser, oder vielleicht das vorerwähnte ältere Drama, kommt eine Novelle des Bandello, deren Ueberschrift im Original lautet: Come il Signore Timbreo di Cardona, essendo col Re Piero d'Arragona in Messina, s'innamora di Felicia Lionata: e i varii fortunevoli accidenti, che avvennero prima che per moglie la prendesse. — In welcher Weise Shakspeare aus dieser Novelle, die er jedenfalls nur in ihren allgemeinsten Umrisen benutzt hat, schöpfte, ist jetzt nicht mehr nachzuweisen. Wir begnügen uns deshalb mit der kurzen Analyse, welche Skottowe von dieser Erzählung giebt:

Fenicia, the daughter of Lionato, a gentleman of Messina, is betrothed to Timbreo di Cardona. Girondo, a disappointed lover of the young lady, resolves, if possible, to prevent the marriage. He insinuates to Timbreo that his mistress is disloyal, and offers to show him a stranger scaling her chamber-window. Timbreo accepts the invitation, and witnesses the hired servant of Girondo, in the dress of a gentleman, ascending a ladder and entering the house of Lionato. Stung with rage and jealousy, Timbreo the next morning accuses his innocent mistress to her father, and rejects the alliance. Fenicia sinks into a swoon; a dangerous illness succeeds; and to stifle all reports injurious to her fame, Lionato proclaims that she is dead. Her funeral rites are performed in Messina, while in truth she lies concealed in the obscurity of a country residence.

The thought of having occasioned the death of an innocent and lovely female strikes Girondo with horror; in the agony of remorse he confesses his villany to Timbreo, and they both throw themselves on the mercy, and ask forgiveness, of the insulted family of Fenicia. On Timbreo is imposed only the penance of espousing a lady whose face he should not see previous to his marriage: instead of a new bride, whom he expected, he is presented, at the nuptial altar, with his injured and beloved Fenicia.

Ein Bruchstück der betreffenden Erzählung aus Spenser's Faerie Queene (Book II, Canto IV) möge hier folgen. Die Erzählung ist dem getäuschten Liebhaber, der dem Shakspeare'schen Claudio entspricht, in den Mund gelegt:

It was my fortune, commune to that age,
To love a lady fayre of great degree,
The which was borne of noble parentage,
And set in highest seat of dignitee,
Yet seemd no lesse to love then lord to bee:
Long I her serv'd, and found her faithfull still,
Ne ever thing could cause us disagree:
Love, that two hartes makes one, makes eke one will:
Each strove to please, and others pleasures to fulfill.

My friend, hight Philemon, I did partake
Of all my love and all my privitie;
Who gently ioyous seemed for my sake,
And gracious to that lady, as to mee;
Ne ever wight, that mote so welcome bee
As he to her, withouten blott or blame;
Ne ever thing, that she could think or see,
But unto him she would impart the same:
O wretched man, that would abuse so gentle dame!

At last such grace I found, and meanes I wrought,
That I that lady to my spouse had wonne,
Accord of friendes, consent of parents sought;
Affyaunce made, my happinesse begonne,
There wanted nought but few rites to be donne,
Which mariage make: that day too farre did seeme!
Most ioyous man, on whome the shining sunne
Did shew his face, myself I did esteeme,
And that my falser friend did no lesse ioyous deeme.

But, ere that wished day his beame disclosd,
He, either envying my toward good,
Or of himselfe to treason ill disposd,
One day unto me came in friendly mood,
And told, for secret, how he understood
That lady, whom I had to me assynd,
Had both distaind her honorable blood,
And eke the faith which she to me did bynd;
And therefore wisht me stay, till I my truth should fynd.

The gnawing anguish, and sharp gelosy,
Which his sad speach infixed in my brest,
Ranckled so sore, and festred inwardly,
That my engreeved mind could find no rest,
Till that the truth thereof I did out wrest;
And him besought, by that same sacred band
Betwixt us both, to counsell me the best:
He then with solemne oath and plighted hand
Assurd, ere long the truth to let me understand.

Ere long with like againe he boorded mee,
Saying, he now had boulded all the floure,
And that it was a groome of base degree,
Which of my love was partner paramoure:
Who used in a darksome inner bowre

Die humoristischen und komischen Partien von Much A do about Nothing und die diesen Kreisen angehörenden Personen scheinen ganz und gar Erfindung unseres Dichters zu sein; wenigstens haben sich bisher noch keine von ihm etwa benutzten Quellen dazu nachweisen lassen.

Die alte Erzählung, welche Benedick im Sinne hat, wenn er A. 1, Sc. 1 sagt: Like the old tale, my lord: it is not so, nor't was not so; but, indeed, God forbid it should be so, wird von Blake way aus seiner Erinnerung folgendermassen berichtet:

Once upon a time there was a young lady (called Lady Mary in the story), who had two brothers. One summer they all three went to a country-seat of theirs, which they had not before visited. Among the other gentry in the neighbourhood who came to see them was a Mr. Fox, a bachelor, with whom they, particularly the young lady, were much pleased. He used often to dine with them, and frequently invited Lady Mary to come and see his house. One day that her brothers were absent elsewhere, and she had nothing better to do, she determined to go thither, and accordingly set out unattended. When she arrived

Her oft to meete: which better to approve,
He promised to bring me at that howre,
When I should see that would me nearer move,
And drive me to withdraw my blind abused love.

This gracelesse man, for furtherance of his guile,
Did court the handmayd of my lady deare,
Who, glad t' embosome his affection vile,
Did all she might more pleasing to appeare.
One day, to worke her to his will more neare,
He woo'd her thus: „Pryené,“ (so she hight)
„What great despight does fortune to thee beare,
Thus lowly to abase thy beautie bright,
That it should not deface all others lesser light?

But if she had her least helpe to thee lent,
T' adorne thy forme according thy desart,
Their blazing pride thou wouldest soone have blent,
And staynd their prayses with thy least good part;
Ne should faire Claribell with all her art,
Tho' she thy lady be, approach thee neare;
For prooffe thereof, this evening, as thou art,
Aray thyselfe in her most gorgeous geare,
That I may more delight in thy embracement deare.“

The mayden proud through praise and mad through love,

Him hearkned to, and soone herselfe arayd;
The whiles to me the treachour did remove
His craftie engin: and, as he had sayd
Me leading, in a secret corner layd,
The sad spectatour of my tragedie:
Where left, he went, and his owne false part playd,
Disguised like that groome of base degree,
Whom he had feignd th' abuser of my love to bee.

Eftsoones he came unto th' appointed place,
And with him brought Pryené, rich arayd,
In Claribellaes clothes: her proper face
I not discerned in that darkesome shade,
But weend it was my love with whom he playd.
Ah God! what horroure and tormenting grieve
My hart, my handes, mine eies, and all assayd!
Me liefer were ten thousand deathes priefe
Then wounde of gealous worme, and shame of such repriefe.

I home retourning, fraught with fowle despight,
And chawing vengeance all the way I went,
Soone as my loathed love appeared in sight,
With wrathfull hand I slew her innocent;
That after soone I dearly did lament:
For, when the cause of that outrageous deede
Demaunded I made plaine and evident,
Her faultie handmayd, which that bale did breede, Confest how Philemon her wrought to chaunge her weede.

at the house and knocked at the door, no one answered. At length she opened it and went in. Over the portal of the hall was written, „Be bold, be bold, but not too bold.“ She advanced: over the staircase, the same inscription. She went up: over the entrance of a gallery, the same. She proceeded: over the door of a chamber, — „Be bold, be bold, but not too bold, lest that your heart's-blood should run cold.“ She opened it—it was full of skeletons, tubs full of blood, &c. She retreated in haste. Coming down stairs she saw, out of a window, Mr. Fox advancing towards the house, with a drawn sword in one hand, while with the other he dragged along a young lady by her hair. Lady Mary had just time to slip down and hide herself under the stairs before Mr. Fox and his victim arrived at the foot of them. As he pulled the young lady up stairs she caught hold of one of the banisters with her hand, on which was a rich bracelet. Mr. Fox cut it off with his sword: the hand and bracelet fell into Lady Mary's lap, who then contrived to escape unobserved, and got home safe to her brothers' house.

After a few days Mr. Fox came to dine with them as usual (whether by invitation or of his own accord this deponent saith not). After dinner, when the guests began to amuse each other with extraordinary anecdotes, Lady Mary at length said she would relate to them a remarkable dream she had lately had. „I dreamt,“ said she, „that as you, Mr. Fox, had often invited me to your house, I would go there one morning. When I came to the house, I knocked, &c., but no one answered. When I opened the door, over the hall was written, „Be bold, be bold, but not too bold.“ But,“ said she, turning to Mr. Fox, and smiling, „It is not so, nor it was not so,“ then she pursues the rest of the story, concluding at every turn with „It is not so, nor it was not so,“ till she comes to the room full of dead bodies, when Mr. Fox took up the burden of the tale, and said, „It is not so, nor it was not so, and God forbid it should be so:“ which he continues to repeat at every subsequent turn of the dreadful story, till she came to the circumstance of his cutting off the young lady's hand, when, upon his saying as usual, „It is not so, nor it was not so, and God forbid it should be so,“ Lady Mary retorts, „But it is so, and it was so, and here the hand I have to show,“ at the same time producing the hand and bracelet from her lap: whereupon the guests drew their swords, and instantly cut Mr. Fox into a thousand pieces.

SCENE I.

Before LEONATO'S House.

*Enter LEONATO, HERO, BEATRICE, and Others, with a Messenger.*¹

Leon. I learn in this letter, that Don Pedro² of Arragon comes this night to Messina.

Mess. He is very near by this: he was not three leagues off when I left him.

Leon. How many gentlemen have you lost in this action?

Mess. But few of any sort, and none of name.³

Leon. A victory is twice itself, when the achiever brings home full numbers. I find here, that Don Pedro hath bestowed much honour on a young Florentine, called Claudio.

Mess. Much deserved on his part, and equally⁴ remembered by Don Pedro. He hath borne himself beyond the promise of his age,⁵ doing in the figure of a lamb the feats of a lion: he hath, indeed, better bettered expectation than you must expect of me to tell you how.

Leon. He hath an uncle here in Messina will be very much glad of it.

Mess. I have already delivered him letters, and there appears much joy in him; even so much, that joy could not show itself modest enough without a badge of bitterness.⁶

Leon. Did he break out into tears?

Mess. In great measure.

Leon. A kind overflow of kindness. There are no faces truer than those that are so washed: how much better is it to weep at joy, than to joy at weeping!

Beat. I pray you, is Signior Montanto⁷ returned from the wars, or no?

Mess. I know none of that name, lady: there was none such in the army of any sort.⁸

Leon. What is he that you ask for, niece?

Hero. My cousin means Signior Benedick of Padua.

Mess. O, he is returned, and as pleasant⁹ as ever he was.

Beat. He set up his bills¹⁰ here in Messina, and challenged Cupid at the flight; and my uncle's fool, reading the challenge, subscribed for Cupid, and challenged him at the bird-bolt. — I pray you, how many hath he killed and eaten in these wars? But how many hath he killed? for, indeed, I promised to eat all of his killing.

1) Q. und Fol. haben Enter Leonato, governor of Messina, Innogen his wife, Hero his daughter, and Beatrice his niece, with a messenger. — Die Frau des Leonato strich zuerst Theobald, hier und in einer folgenden Scene, mit Recht, da sie weder selbst redet, noch angeredet wird, noch überhaupt von ihrer Existenz im Verlaufe des Dramas eine Spur sich findet. 2) Don Peter in Q. und Fol. hier und in einer folgenden Rede Leonato's. Aber der Bote nennt ihn Don Pedro, wie der Fürst von Arragon auch bei seinem Auftreten bezeichnet wird. 3) sort = Rang, hier in der militärischen Hierarchie. Unter den in der Schlacht gefallenen Herren sind nur wenige, die im Heere eine bestimmte Charge hatten, und kein einziger namhafter. 4) equally = dem grossen Verdienst gemäss oder entsprechend, bezieht sich auf much deserved. 5) Er hat sich besser gehalten, mehr geleistet, als seine Jugend versprach. 6) Die Freude, damit sie nicht in ein Uebermass verfiere, musste, um ihre Zurückhaltung und Masshaltung zu zeigen, der Thränen, die sonst nur ein Abzeichen bitterer Empfindungen sind, sich bedienen. 7) montanto, ein technischer Fechteraussdruck, = das Vorrücken, das Auslegen beim Fechten, wird hier von Beatrice scherzhaft als ein Eigennamen gefasst, mit welchem sie den rauflustigen Benedick bezeichnet. 8) Vgl. oben Anm. 3. 9) pleasant = munter, scherzhaft. 10) to set up bills = einen öffentlichen Anschlag machen, Zettel anschlagen, wird auch bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen gebraucht von Preisfechtern, die in solcher Proclamation beliebige Gegner aufforderten, sich mit ihnen zu messen. — So hatte der eitle Benedick es mit Cupido selbst aufnehmen wollen, wer am besten mit dem Pfeil nach einem weiblichen Herzen schiessen könnte, aber statt des Cupido und in Cupido's Namen hatte nur Leonato's Hausnarr die Herausforderung angenommen, jedoch nicht auf den langen und scharfen Pfeil, mit dem man geradeswegs auf ein entferntes Ziel schießt (flight), sondern spöttisch nur auf den stumpfen und ungefährlichen Bolzen, mit dem man Vögel trifft, ohne sie zu verwunden (bird-bolt).

Leon. Faith, niece, you tax Signior Benedick too much; but he'll be meet with you,¹¹ I doubt it not.

Mess. He hath done good service, lady, in these wars.

Beat. You had musty victual, and he hath help to eat it: he is a very valiant trencher-man; he hath an excellent stomach.

Mess. And a good soldier too, lady.

Beat. And a good soldier to a lady; but what is he to a lord?

Mess. A lord to a lord, a man to a man; stuffed with all honourable virtues.

Beat. It is so, indeed: he is no less than a stuffed man;¹² but for the stuffing, — well, we are all mortal.

Leon. You must not, Sir, mistake my niece. There is a kind of merry war betwixt Signior Benedick and her: they never meet, but there's a skirmish of wit between them.

Beat. Alas! he gets nothing by that. In our last conflict four of his five wits¹³ went halting off, and now is the whole man governed with one; so that if he have wit enough to keep himself warm,¹⁴ let him bear it for a difference between himself and his horse; for it is all the wealth that he hath left to be known a reasonable creature. — Who is his companion now? He hath every month a new sworn brother.¹⁵

Mess. Is't possible?

Beat. Very easily possible: he wears his faith but as the fashion of his hat; it ever changes with the next block.

Mess. I see, lady, the gentleman is not in your books.¹⁶

Beat. No; an he were, I would burn my study. But, I pray you, who is his companion? Is there no young squarer¹⁷ now, that will make a voyage with him to the devil?

Mess. He is most in the company of the right noble Claudio.

Beat. O Lord! he will hang upon him like a disease:

he is sooner caught than the pestilence, and the taker runs presently mad. God help the noble Claudio! if he have caught the Benedick,¹⁸ it will cost him a thousand pound ere he be cured.

Mess. I will hold friends with you, lady.

Beat. Do, good friend.

Leon. You will never run mad, niece.

Beat. No, not till a hot January.

Mess. Don Pedro is approached.

Enter Don Pedro, John,¹⁹ Claudio, Benedick, Balthazar, and Others.

D. Pedro. Good Signior Leonato, you are come²⁰ to meet your trouble: the fashion of the world is to avoid cost, and you encounter it.

Leon. Never came trouble to my house in the likeness of your grace; for trouble being gone, comfort should remain, but when you depart from me, sorrow abides, and happiness takes his leave.

D. Pedro. You embrace your charge²¹ too willingly. I think, this is your daughter.

Leon. Her mother hath many times told me so.

Bene. Were you in doubt, Sir, that you asked her?

Leon. Signior Benedick, no; for then were you a child.

D. Pedro. You have it full, Benedick: we may guess by this what you are, being a man. — Truly, the lady fathers herself.²² — Be happy, lady, for you are like an honourable father.

Bene. If Signior Leonato be her father, she would not have his head on her shoulders for all Messina, as like him as she is.

Beat. I wonder that you will still be talking, Signior Benedick: nobody marks you.

Bene. What, my dear Lady Disdain! are you yet living?

Beat. Is it possible disdain should die, while she hath such meet food to feed it, as Signior Benedick? Courtesy itself must convert to disdain, if you come in her presence.²³

Letztere Waffe kommt auch sonst als charakteristisch für den Narren vor; so auf dem Titelblatt eines alten Pamphlets, das Farmer citirt: A new post — a mark exceeding necessary for all men's arrows: whether the great man's flight, the gallant's rover, the wise man's prick-shaft, the poor man's but-shaft, or the fool's bird-bolt. 11) Er wird quitt mit Euch werden, in Euren bösen Nachreden über ihn. 12) Der Bote fasst stuffed = ausstaffirt, voll von Etwas, in uneigentlichem Sinne; Beatrice fasst es in eigentlichem Sinne = wattirt, ausgestopft, gleichsam um stattlicher zu erscheinen, als er ist. — Farmer erinnert daran, dass stuffed man auch = Hahnrei, stehe; indess ist der Witz auch ohne diese Beziehung verständlich genug. 13) five wits = die fünf geistigen Kräfte, entsprechend den fünf Sinnen: als solche wurden gerechnet common wit, imagination, fancy, estimation, memory. So in Sh.'s Sonnets (141) But my five wits nor my five senses can || Dissuade one foolish heart from serving thee. — An dieser Stelle scheinen jedoch five wits die fünf Sinne zu bedeuten — eine Verwechslung, die öfter vorkommt. So in Chaucer's The Persones Tale: Certes delites been after the appetites of the five wittis, as sight, hereing, smelling, savouring, and touching. 14) wit enough to keep himself warm ist sprichwörtlich für ein höchst bescheidenes, aber doch genügendes Mass von Witz. Diesen Witz soll Benedick als ein Abzeichen tragen, um sich von seinem Pferde zu unterscheiden, das sonst eben so klug ist wie er. 15) Er hat in jedem Monat einen Andern, dem er Bruderschaft zuschwört. — Diese zugeschworene Treue heisst gleich nachher his faith, und er wechselt damit so oft, wie mit dem Hut, dessen nächste oder folgende Façon (block) die Mode gerade aufbringt. 16) to be in one's books = bei Jemandem gut angeschrieben sein, ein Ausdruck, der verschieden gedeutet wird: vom Testamente, von den Büchern des Wappenamts, von den Musterrollen der Soldaten oder Lehnleute, von den Notizbüchern, in die man eintrug, was man nicht vergessen wollte. — Hier versteht Beatrice unter books die Bücher, in denen man studirt. 17) squarer = Zänker, Handelsucher. 18) Der Artikel steht vor Benedick, als wäre es eine ansteckende Krankheit, welche den Claudio befallen habe. 19) John the bastard ist die Bezeichnung in Q. und Fol. — Rowe setzte zuerst Don John, ein Titel, welchen Sh. nur dem Fürsten selbst zuerkennt, und der nur hier und da aus Höflichkeit, wenn es nicht ein Versehen des Dichters ist, ausnahmsweise dem Bastard beigelegt wird. 20) So die Fol.; die Q. are you come als Fragesatz. 21) your charge = die Last, die Ihr Euch aufladet. — Weniger plausibel als diese Erklärung Johnson's ist die von Douce: the person committed to your care. 22) Das Fräulein giebt sich selbst einen Vater, verräth durch ihre Aehnlichkeit hinlänglich, Bene. Then is courtesy a turncoat. But it is certain, I am loved of all ladies, only you excepted; and I would I could find in my heart that I had not a hard heart; for, truly, I love none.

Beat. A dear happiness to women: they would else have been troubled with a pernicious suitor. I thank God, and my cold blood, I am of your humour for that: I had rather hear my dog bark at a crow, than a man swear he loves me.

Bene. God keep your ladyship still in that mind; so some gentleman or other shall scape a predestinate scratched face.

Beat. Scratching could not make it worse, an 't were such a face as yours were.

Bene. Well, you are a rare parrot-teacher.

Beat. A bird of my tongue is better than a beast of yours.

Bene. I would, my horse had the speed of your tongue, and so good a continuer.²⁴ But keep your way o' God's name, I have done.

Beat. You always end with a jade's trick:²⁵ I know you of old.

D. Pedro. This is the sum of all:²⁶ Leonato, — Signior Claudio, and Signior Benedick, — my dear friend Leonato hath invited you all. I tell him we shall stay here at the least a month, and he heartily prays some occasion may detain us longer: I dare swear he is no hypocrite, but prays from his heart.

Leon. If you swear, my lord, you shall not be forsworn. — Let me bid you welcome, my lord: being reconciled to the prince your brother, I owe you all duty.

John. I thank you: I am not of many words, but I thank you.

Leon. Please it your grace lead on?

D. Pedro. Your hand, Leonato: we will go together.

[Exeunt all but BENEDICK and CLAUDIO.]

Claud. Benedick, didst thou note the daughter of Signior Leonato?

Bene. I noted her not; but I looked on her.

Claud. Is she not a modest young lady?

Bene. Do you question me, as an honest man should do, for my simple true judgment; or would you have me speak after my custom, as being a professed tyrant to their sex?²⁷

Claud. No; I pray thee, speak in sober judgment.

Bene. Why, i' faith, methinks she 's too low for a high praise, too brown for a fair²⁸ praise, and too little for a great praise: only this commendation I can afford her, that were she other than she is, she were unhandsome, and being no other but as she is, I do not like her.

Claud. Thou thinkest, I am in sport: I pray thee, tell me truly how thou lik'st her.

Bene. Would you buy her, that you inquire after her?

Claud. Can the world buy such a jewel?

Bene. Yea, and a case to put it into. But speak you this with a sad brow, or do you play the flouting Jack,²⁹ to tell us Cupid is a good hare-finder, and Vulcan a rare carpenter? Come, in what key shall a man take you, to go in the song?³⁰

Claud. In mine eye she is the sweetest lady that ever I looked on.

Bene. I can see yet without spectacles, and I see no such matter: there 's her cousin, an she were not possessed with a fury, exceeds her as much in beauty, as the first of May doth the last of December. But I hope, you have no intent to turn husband, have you?

Claud. I would scarce trust myself, though I had sworn the contrary, if Hero would be my wife.

Bene. Is 't come to this, i' faith? Hath not the world one man, but he will wear his cap with suspicion?³¹ Shall I never see a bachelor of threescore again? Go to, i' faith; an thou wilt needs thrust thy neck into a yoke, wear the print³² of it, and sigh away Sundays. Look, Don Pedro is returned to seek you.

*Re-enter Don PEDRO.*³³

D. Pedro. What secret hath held you here, that you followed not to Leonato's?

Bene. I would your grace would constrain me to tell.

D. Pedro. I charge thee on thy allegiance.

Bene. You hear, count Claudio: I can be secret as a dumb man, I would have you think so; but on my allegiance, — mark you this, on my allegiance: — he is in love. With who? — now that is your grace's part.³⁴ — Mark, how short his answer is: — with Hero, Leonato's short daughter.

Claud. If this were so, so were it uttered.³⁵ wer ihr Vater ist, nämlich Leonato. 23) courtesy, das zuerst sächlich gefasst war in itself, wird dann nachträglich personificirt in her presence, nach Massgabe von disdain, das schon vorher weiblich personificirt und mit Beatrice identificirt war. 24) scil. and were so good a continuer = und hielte es so lange im Laufen aus, wie Eure Zunge. 25) jade's trick = schlechter Witz, zugleich in Beziehung auf das Gleichniss vom Pferde, das Benedick gebraucht hatte. Dasselbe Wortspiel hat Sh. in All's well that ends well (A. 4, Sc. 5). 26) Mit diesen Worten theilt Don Pedro den Inhalt des Gesprächs, das er unterdess leise mit Leonato fortgesetzt hatte, seinen beiden Freunden mit. — this, was auf das Folgende hinweist, hat die Fol., die Q. that. 27) Als ein erklärter Wütherich gegen das weibliche Geschlecht, als ein erklärter Weiberfeind. 28) fair = schön, billig, und = blond, hell von Farbe, im Gegensatz zu brown = dunkelfarbig, brünett. 29) a flouting Jack = ein spottender Hans, Einer, der die Andern in seinen Reden zum Besten hat, indem er z. B. widersinnig behauptet, dass der blinde Cupido leicht Hasen attrapire, oder dass der nur als Gott der Schmiede bekannte Vulcan ein ausgezeichnete Zimmermann sei. — a sad brow = ein ernstes Aussehen, eine ernste Miene. 30) key = Musikschlüssel: welche Tonart muss man wählen, um in Euren Gesang mit einzustimmen? muss man ernsthaft oder scherzhaft mit Euch reden? 31) Soll es auf der Welt keinen Mann mehr geben, dessen Mütze nicht den Verdacht erregt, dass die Hörner des Hahnrei darunter stecken? — Diese Erklärung belegt Henderson mit einem Citat aus Painter's Palace of Pleasure: All they that wear horns be pardoned to wear their caps upon their heads. — Malone denkt bei cap an die Nachtmütze des Ehemanns, die gelegentlich ein Anderer aufsetzt, und citirt dazu Othello (A. 2, Sc. 1) For I fear Cassio with my night-cap too. 32) print = die Spur, die der Druck des Joches dem Nacken, der es trägt, einprägt. 33) Die alten Ausgg. lassen mit Don Pedro zugleich John the bastard auftreten. 34) Das ist jetzt Eurer Hoheit Rolle, zu fragen, in wen Claudio verliebt sei. — Benedick thut diese Frage im Namen Pedro's. 35) Wenn es sich so verhielte, wenn ich wirklich die Hero liebte, so wäre die Sache hiermit, mit Benedick's Erklärung, Bene. Like the old tale, my lord: it is not so, nor 't was not so; but, indeed, God forbid it should be so.

Claud. If my passion change not shortly, God forbid it should be otherwise.

D. Pedro. Amen, if you love her; for the lady is very well worthy.

Claud. You speak this to fetch me in, my lord.

D. Pedro. By my troth, I speak my thought.

Claud. And in faith, my lord, I spoke mine.

Bene. And by my two faiths and troths, my lord, I spoke³⁶ mine.

Claud. That I love her, I feel.

D. Pedro. That she is worthy, I know.

Bene. That I neither feel how she should be loved, nor know how she should be worthy, is the opinion that fire cannot melt out of me: I will die in it at the stake.

D. Pedro. Thou wast ever an obstinate heretic³⁷ in the despite of beauty.

Claud. And never could maintain his part, but in the force of his will.

Bene. That a woman conceived me, I thank her; that she brought me up, I likewise give her most humble thanks: but that I will have a recheat winded in my forehead,³⁸ or hang my bugle in an invisible baldrick, all women shall pardon me.³⁹ Because I will not do them the wrong to mistrust any, I will do myself the right to trust none; and the fine is (for the which I may go the finer),⁴⁰ I will live a bachelor.

D. Pedro. I shall see thee, ere I die, look pale with love.

Bene. With anger, with sickness, or with hunger, my lord; not with love: prove, that ever I lose more blood with love, than I will get again with drinking, pick out mine eyes with a ballad-maker's pen,⁴¹ and hang me up at the door of a brothel-house for the sign of blind Cupid.

D. Pedro. Well, if ever thou dost fall from this faith, thou wilt prove a notable argument.⁴²

Bene. If I do, hang me in a bottle like a cat, and shoot at me; and he that hits me, let him be clapped on the shoulder, and called Adam.⁴³

D. Pedro. Well, as time shall try:

»In time the savage bull doth bear the yoke.«⁴⁴

Bene. The savage bull may; but if ever the sensible Benedick bear it, pluck off the bull's horns, and set them in my forehead;⁴⁵ and let me be vilely painted, and in such great letters as they write, »Here is good horse to hire,« let them signify under my sign, — »Here you may see Benedick the married man.«

Claud. If this should ever happen, thou wouldst be horn-mad.

D. Pedro. Nay, if Cupid have not spent all his quiver in Venice,⁴⁶ thou wilt quake for this shortly.

Bene. I look for an earthquake⁴⁷ too then.

D. Pedro. Well, you will temporize with the hours.⁴⁸ In the meantime, good Signior Benedick, repair to Leonato's: commend me to him, and tell him, I will not fail him at supper; for, indeed, he hath made great preparation.

Bene. I have almost matter enough in me for such an embassy; and so I commit you —

Claud. To the tuition of God: from my house, if I had it, —

D. Pedro. The sixth of July: your loving friend, Benedick.⁴⁹

Bene. Nay, mock not, mock not. The body of your discourse is sometime guarded with fragments,⁵⁰ and the guards are but slightly basted on neither: ere you flout old ends any further, examine your conscience, and so I leave you. [Exit.]

Claud. My liege, your highness now may do me good.

an den Tag gekommen. — Das if this were so greift Benedick dann in seinen folgenden Worten auf und spielt damit auf ein altes Märchen an, das lange in Vergessenheit gerathen war und erst von Blake way wieder nachgewiesen ist. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 192 u. 193. 36) spoke in der Q.; speak in der Fol. 37) heretic bezieht sich auf das vorhergehende at the stake, auf den Feuertod des Ketzers. — Diese Ketzerei in der Verachtung weiblicher Schönheit konnte, wie Claudio meint, Benedick nur durchführen, indem er seinem Willen oder Triebe Gewalt anthat. 38) Das Horn des Hahnrei dient als Jagdhorn, auf dem man bläst, um die Hunde auf der Jagd zurückzurufen (to wind a recheat). — Ebenso hängt dieses Hifthorn (bugle) an einem unsichtbaren Riemen, indem das Horn des Hahnrei nicht festgehängt zu werden braucht. 39) Alle Weiber sollen es mir erlassen, dass ich das thue. 40) Wortspiel zwischen fine = Schluss, Ende, und the finer = um so hübscher in der Tracht und im Aussehen, d. h. unentstellt durch ein Hahnreihorn. 41) Wenn Du mir beweisest, dass ich jemals in der Liebe mehr Blut verliere, als ich im Trinken ersetzen kann, so sollst Du mir die Augen mit der Feder eines Balladendichters ausstechen, so dass ich an einem Bordell als Hausschild in Gestalt eines blinden Cupido's dienen kann. — ballad-maker spielt auf den Inhalt solcher Balladen an, in denen der Tod oder das Unglück der Liebespaare eine grosse Rolle spielte. 42) a notable argument: so wirst Du einen hervorstechenden Stoff zur Unterhaltung abgeben. 43) Eine alte Volksbelustigung in England war es, eine Katze in eine Flasche gesteckt an einem Seile aufzuhängen und danach zu schießen. Als solches Ziel will auch Benedick dienen, und wer ihn trifft, den soll man belobend auf die Schulter klopfen und als Adam begrüßen nach dem Namen des in englischen Balladen gefeierten Schützen Adam Bell. 44) Der Vers ist aus Kyd's Spanish Tragedy und lautet eigentlich In time the savage bull sustains the yoke. — Kyd selbst hat die ganze Stelle entlehnt aus Watson's Passionate Centurie of Love (1582), wo die Zeile heisst In time the bull is brought to bear the yoke. 45) Abermals eine Anspielung auf das Horn des Hahnrei, die noch fortgeführt wird in dem folgenden horn-mad, doppelsinnig = toll mit den Hörnern, wie ein wilder Stier, und = horntoll, rasend eifersüchtig, von dem betrogenen Ehemanne. Dasselbe Wortspiel in Comedy of Errors (A. 2, Sc. 1). 46) Venedig wird hier genannt als eine Stadt, die wegen ihrer vielen Gelegenheiten zu Liebesintrigen in England berühmt war. 47) earthquake bezieht sich auf das vorhergehende quake. Es lässt sich eben so gut ein Erdbeben erwarten, als dass Benedick bald vor Liebe schwachen und seinen jetzigen Uebermuth bereuen müsste. 48) to temporize with the hours = sich nach den Stunden richten, sich der Zeit anbequemen, mit der Zeit anderes Sinnes werden. 49) Claudio und Pedro citiren hier scherzhaft den herkömmlichen Schluss eines Briefes, den Benedick an seine künftige Geliebte schreibt. 50) guarded with fragments = mit Lappen verbrämt. Solche Lappen, die anderswoher entlehnt sind (s. oben Anm. 44 und diesen fingierten Schluss eines Briefes) und noch dazu nicht recht passen, nur leicht angenäht sind, nennt Benedick gleich nachher old ends = alte, abgerissene Stücke

D. Pedro. My love is thine to teach: teach it but how,
And thou shalt see how apt it is to learn
Any hard lesson that may do thee good.

Claud. Hath Leonato any son, my lord?

D. Pedro. No child but Hero, she 's his only heir.
Dost thou affect her, Claudio?

Claud. O! my lord,
When you went onward on this ended action,
I look'd upon her with a soldier's eye,
That lik'd, but had a rougher task in hand,
Than to drive liking to the name of love;
But now I am return'd, and that war-thoughts
Have left their places vacant, in their rooms
Come thronging soft and delicate desires,
All prompting me how fair young Hero is,
Saying, I lik'd her ere I went to wars.

D. Pedro. Thou wilt be like a lover presently,
And tire the hearer with a book of words.
If thou dost love fair Hero, cherish it,
And I will break with her, and with her father,
And thou shalt have her. Was 't not to this end,⁵¹
That thou beganst to twist so fine a story?

Claud. How sweetly do you minister to love,
That know love's grief by his complexion!⁵²
But lest my liking might too sudden seem,
I would have salv'd it with a longer treatise.

D. Pedro. What need the bridge much broader than the flood?

The fairest grant is the necessity.⁵³
Look, what will serve is fit: 't is once,⁵⁴ thou lovest,
And I will fit thee with the remedy.
I know we shall have revelling to-night:
I will assume thy part in some disguise,
And tell fair Hero I am Claudio;
And in her bosom I 'll unclasp my heart,
And take her hearing prisoner with the force
And strong encounter of my amorous tale:
Then, after, to her father will I break;
And, the conclusion is, she shall be thine.
In practice let us put it presently. [Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

A Room in LEONATO's House.

Enter LEONATO and ANTONIO.¹

Leon. How now, brother? Where is my cousin, your son? Hath he provided this music?

Ant. He is very busy about it. But, brother, I can tell you strange² news that you yet dreamt not of.

Leon. Are they good?

Ant. As the event stamps them; but they have a good cover; they show well outward. The prince and count Claudio, walking in a thick-pleached³ alley in my orchard, were thus much overheard by a man of mine: the prince discovered to Claudio that he loved my niece your daughter, and meant to acknowledge it this night in a dance; and, if he found her accordant, he meant to take the present time by the top, and instantly break with you of it.

Leon. Hath the fellow any wit, that told you this?

Ant. A good sharp fellow: I will send for him, and question him yourself.

Leon. No, no: we will hold it as a dream, till it appear itself;⁴ but I will acquaint my daughter withal, that she may be the better prepared for an answer, if peradventure this be true. Go you, and tell her of it. [Several persons cross the stage.]⁵ Cousins, you know what you have to do. — O, I cry you mercy, friend; go you with me, and I will use your skill. — Good cousin, have a care this busy time. [Exeunt.]

SCENE III.

Another Room in LEONATO's House.

Enter JOHN and CONRADE.

Con. What the good-year,¹ my lord! why are you thus out of measure sad?

John. There is no measure in the occasion that breeds;² therefore the sadness is without limit.

Con. You should hear reason.

John. And when I have heard it, what blessing brings it?

Con. If not a present remedy, yet³ a patient sufferance.

oder Enden. So in K. Richard III. (A. 1, Sc. 3) With old odd ends stol'n forth of holy writ. 51) Die Fol. hat statt dieser beiden Verse der Q. nur einen: And I will break with her: was 't not to this end. 52) Ihr kennt den Liebes Schmerz gleich an seinem blossen Aussehen, ohne dass man ihn Euch auseinanderzusetzen braucht, und wendet demnach das rechte Heilmittel an. 53) Die beste Gewährung ist das Bedürfniss, das Nothwendige. Als solches erscheint dem Prinzen sein Beistand in Claudio's Werbung um Hero, und diesen Beistand sagt er ihm zu. — Hayley wollte lesen The fairest grant is to necessity. 54) 't is once steht wie in Coriolanus (A. 2, Sc. 3) once = ein für alle Mal, kurz und gut.

1) Q. und Fol. bezeichnen den Antonio hier als an old man, brother to Leonato. 2) strange fehlt in der Fol. 3) thick-pleached = mit dichtverschlungenem Laube. Das Epitheton erklärt, wie der Diener die Beiden belauschen konnte, ohne dass sie ihn gewahr wurden. — Die Fol. lässt much vor overheard aus. 4) Bis es als sein Selbst, als Wirklichkeit erscheint. — itself ist Gegensatz zu a dream. 5) Diese Bühnenweisung ist erst von den spätern Hgg. hinzugefügt: sie bezieht sich auf abhängige Verwandte des Leonato (cousins), denen er seine Aufträge in Bezug auf das Abendfest in seinem Hause ertheilt, zu dem auch Antonio's Sohn die Musik besorgen sollte (vgl. Anfang der Scene). — Demgemäss liest Steevens, vielleicht richtig, Good cousins, have a care etc. Doch kann Leonato diese letztern Worte auch an einen einzelnen dieser Vettern richten.

1) Steevens wollte goujere für good-year lesen, wie sich in Merry Wives of Windsor (A. 1, Sc. 4) findet what, the good-ger! (entstellt aus goujere) und in K. Lear (A. 5, Sc. 3) als Verwünschung vorkommt The goujeres shall devour them, flesh and fell. — Indess citirt Blakeway denselben Ausruf, welcher allerdings aus goujere verfeinert und dann missverständlich aufgefasst sein mag, so wie hier aus Roper's Life of Moore: What the good yeare, Mr. Moore, I marvell that you will now so play the fool. 2) Manche Hgg. fügen ein it zu breeds hinzu. 3) yet in der Fol.; at least in der Q. 4) Da Conrad unter dem Einflusse des Saturngestirnes geboren wurde, sollte er selbst melancholisch gestimmt sein und die Melancholie des John begreifen, ohne sie heilen zu wollen mit unwirksamen Mitteln. So steht, mit derselben Hindeutung auf planetarische Einflüsse, in Titus Andronicus (A. 2, Sc. 3) Madam, though Venus govern your desires, || Saturn is dominator over mine.

John. I wonder, that thou, being (as thou say'st thou art) born under Saturn,⁴ goest about to apply a moral medicine to a mortifying mischief. I cannot hide what I am: I must be sad when I have cause, and smile at no man's jests; eat when I have stomach, and wait for no man's leisure; sleep when I am drowsy, and tend on no man's business; laugh when I am merry, and claw⁵ no man in his humour.

Con. Yea; but you must not make the full show of this, till you may do it without controlment. You have of late stood out against your brother, and he hath ta'en you newly into his grace; where it is impossible you should take true⁶ root, but by the fair weather that you make yourself: it is needful that you frame the season for your own harvest.

John. I had rather be a canker in a hedge, than a rose in his grace;⁷ and it better fits my blood⁸ to be disdained of all, than to fashion a carriage to rob love from any: in this, though I cannot be said to be a flattering honest man, it must not be denied but⁹ I am a plain-dealing villain. I am trusted with a muzzle, and enfranchised with a clog; therefore I have decreed not to sing in my cage. If I had my mouth,¹⁰ I would bite; if I had my liberty, I would do my liking: in the meantime, let me be that I am, and seek not to alter me.

Con. Can you make no use of your discontent?

John. I make all use of it, for I use it only.¹¹ Who comes here? What news, Borachio?

Enter BORACHIO.

Bora. I came yonder from a great supper: the prince, your brother, is royally entertained by Leonato, and I can give you intelligence of an intended marriage.

John. Will it serve for any model¹² to build mischief on? What is he for a fool that betroths himself to unquietness?

Bora. Marry, it is your brother's right hand.

John. Who? the most exquisite Claudio?¹³

Bora. Even he.

John. A proper squire!¹⁴ And who, and who? which way looks he?

Bora. Marry, on¹⁵ Hero, the daughter and heir of Leonato.

John. A very forward March-chick! How came you to this?

Bora. Being entertained for a perfumer, as I was smoking a musty room,¹⁶ comes me the prince and Claudio, hand in hand, in sad conference:¹⁷ I whipt me¹⁸ behind the arras, and there heard it agreed upon, that the prince should woo Hero for himself, and having obtained her, give her to count Claudio.

John. Come, come; let us thither: this may prove food to my displeasure. That young start-up hath all the glory of my overthrow: if I can, cross him any way, I bless myself every way. You are both sure,¹⁹ and will assist me?

Con. To the death, my lord.

John. Let us to the great supper: their cheer is the greater, that I am subdued. 'Would the cook were of my mind! — Shall we go prove what's to be done?

Bora. We'll wait upon your lordship. [Exeunt.]

ACT II.

SCENE I.

A Hall in LEONATO'S House.

Enter LEONATO, ANTONIO, HERO, BEATRICE, and Others.¹

Leon. Was not count John here at supper?

Ant. I saw him not.

Beat. How tartly that gentleman looks: I never can see him, but I am heart-burned an hour after.²

Hero. He is of a very melancholy disposition.

Beat. He were an excellent man that were made just in the midway between him and Benedick: the one is too like an image, and says nothing; and the other too like my lady's eldest son,³ evermore tattling.

Leon. Then, half Signior Benedick's tongue in count John's mouth, and half count John's melancholy in Signior Benedick's face, —

Beat. With a good leg, and a good foot, uncle, and money enough in his purse, such a man would win any woman in the world, — if he could get her good will.

Leon. By my troth, niece, thou wilt never get thee a husband, if thou be so shrewd of thy tongue.

5) to claw = streicheln, schmeicheln: ich verstehe nicht, Jemandem in seiner Laune oder augenblicklichen Stimmung zu schmeicheln. 6) true fehlt in der Fol. — to take true root = ordentlich, wirklich festwurzeln. 7) canker = die wilde Hagerose, die ohne Cultur frei wächst, ist entgegengesetzt der schöneren cultivirten Rose, die im Garten gedeiht. 8) blood = die angeborene Stimmung, die aus dem Geblüte stammt. 9) Für but der Q. und Fol. setzen manche Hgg. willkürlich that. 10) my mouth in Beziehung auf das vorhergehende muzzle: wenn ich den freien Gebrauch meines Maules hätte, wenn ich keinen Maulkorb trüge. 11) Indem ich nur meinem Missvergnügen mich hingebe, mache ich allen Gebrauch davon, der sich davon machen lässt. — Die Fol. hat I will make. 12) model = der Plan oder Grundriss, nach dem sich ein Gebäude aufführen lässt. — what is he for a fool = was für ein Narr ist Der, wer ist der Narr, der u. s. w. — Von dieser jetzt veralteten Construction citirt Staunton verschiedene Beispiele: Peele's Edward I.: What's he for a man? — Ben Jonson's Every Man out of his Humour: What is he for a creature? — Ram Alley: What is he for a man? — Nothing for a man, but much for a beast. 13) Ebenso steht in Twelfth-Night (A. 4, Sc. 2) My most exquisite Sir Topas. 14) proper squire = hübscher Junker. 15) Die Q. hat one für on der Fol. 16) Es war das Amt Borachio's, die dumpfigen Zimmer auszuräuchern, ehe sie benutzt wurden. — Anspielungen auf diese Sitte kommen bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen vor; so in Barton's Anatomy of Melancholy: the smoke of juniper is in great request with us at Oxford, to sweeten our chambers. 17) In ernster Unterhandlung. 18) Die Fol. lässt me aus. 19) Ich kann mich auf Euch Beide verlassen; Ihr seid Beide zuverlässig oder verschwiegen?

1) Auch hier lassen Q. und Fol. die Frau des Leonato auftreten: Enter Leonato, his brother, his wife; ebenso and a kinsman, wofür die späteren Hgg. and Others setzen. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 1. 2) John sieht so sauer aus, dass sein Anblick noch eine Stunde nachher bei Beatrice ein Sodbrennen verursacht, wie solches sonst von Magensäure herrührt. 3) Wie der Erstgeborene einer gnädigen Frau, der von seiner Mutter gehätschelt wird und Ant. In faith: she 's too curst.

Beat. Too curst is more than curst: I shall lessen God's sending that way, for it is said, »God sends a curst cow short horns;« but to a cow too curst he sends none.

Leon. So, by being too curst, God will send you no horns?

Beat. Just, if he send me no husband; for the which blessing, I am at him upon my knees every morning and evening. Lord! I could not endure a husband with a beard on his face: I had rather lie in the woollen.⁴

Leon. You may light on a husband that hath no beard.

Beat. What should I do with him? dress him in my apparel, and make him my waiting-gentlewoman? He that hath a beard is more than a youth, and he that hath no beard is less than a man; and he that is more than a youth is not for me; and he that is less than a man, I am not for him: therefore I will even take sixpence in earnest of the bear-ward,⁵ and lead his apes into hell.

Leon. Well then, go you into hell?

Beat. No; but to the gate; and there will the devil meet me, like an old cuckold, with horns on his head, and say, »Get you to heaven, Beatrice, get you to heaven; here 's no place for you maids:« so deliver I up my apes, and away to Saint Peter: for the heavens,⁶ he shows me where the bachelors sit, and there live we as merry as the day is long.

Ant. [To HERO.] Well, niece, I trust, you will be ruled by your father.⁷

Beat. Yes, faith; it is my cousin's duty to make courtesy, and say, »Father, as it please you:« but yet for all that, cousin, let him be a handsome fellow, or else make another courtesy, and say, »Father, as it please me.«

Leon. Well, niece, I hope to see you one day fitted with a husband.

Beat. Not till God make men of some other metal than earth. Would it not grieve a woman to be overmastered with a piece of valiant dust? to make an account of her life to a clod of wayward marl? No, uncle, I 'll none:

Adam's sons are my brethren; and, truly, I hold it a sin to match in my kindred.

Leon. Daughter, remember what I told you: if the prince do solicit you in that kind, you know your answer.

Beat. The fault will be in the music, cousin, if you be not woo'd in good time: ⁸ if the prince be too important, ⁹ tell him, there is measure in every thing, and so dance out the answer. For hear me, Hero: wooing, wedding, and repenting, is as a Scotch jig, a measure, and a cinque-pace: the first suit is hot and hasty, like a Scotch jig, and full as fantastical; ¹⁰ the wedding, mannerly modest, as a measure, full of state and ancientry; and then comes repentance, and with his bad legs falls into the cinque-pace faster and faster, till he sink into his grave.

Leon. Cousin, you apprehend passing shrewdly.

Beat. I have a good eye, uncle: I can see a church by day-light.

Leon. The revellers are entering, brother. Make good room!

Enter Don PEDRO, CLAUDIO, BENEDICK, BALTHAZAR, JOHN, ¹¹
BORACHIO, MARGARET, URSULA, and Others, masked.

D. Pedro. Lady, will you walk about with your friend? ¹²

Hero. So you walk softly, and look sweetly, and say nothing, I am yours for the walk; and especially, when I walk away.

D. Pedro. With me in your company?

Hero. I may say so, when I please.

D. Pedro. And when please you to say so?

Hero. When I like your favour; for God defend, the lute should be like the case! ¹³

D. Pedro. My visor is Philemon's roof; within the house is Jove. ¹⁴

Hero. Why, then your visor should be thatch'd. ¹⁵

D. Pedro. Speak low, if you speak love.
[Takes her aside.]

ungestört immerfort schwatzen darf, ohne zur Ruhe verwiesen zu werden. 4) Der Bart eines Mannes würde Beatricens Haut noch unangenehmer afficiren, als wenn sie in wollenen Decken ohne Linnen schlafen müsste. 5) Q. und Fol. haben die alte Orthographie berrord, woraus die späteren Folioausgg. bearherd machten. — Beatrice will in die Dienste des Bärenführers, der zugleich Affen bei sich hat, treten, sich von ihm ein Handgeld geben lassen und seine Affen in die Hölle geleiten. — to lead his apes into hell ist modificirt aus dem gewöhnlicheren to lead apes in hell, scherzhaft = als alte Jungfer sterben. So in dem Pseudo-Sh.'schen London Prodigal: women dying maids lead apes in hell. 6) for the heavens ist eine Betheuerung, die vielleicht richtiger fore the heavens geschrieben wird. — Manche Hgg. verwischen diesen Sinn der Phrase und interpungiren, im Widerspruch mit Q. und Fol.: away to Saint Peter for the heavens; he shows me etc. 7) d. h. in der Wahl Eures Gatten. — In der folgenden Rede lässt die Fol. father vor as it please you aus. 8) in good time = zu guter Stunde, und = in richtigem Zeitmass, letzteres in Bezug auf die Musik, die zu dem bevorstehenden Maskenfest spielt. — Ein ähnliches Wortspiel ist gleich nachher measure = Mass, und = Menuet, zugleich = die Melodie zum Tanze. 9) important = angelegentlich, dringlich in Bitten und Werbungen. 10) Der schottische Hopser in seiner wilden Hitze und närrischen Ausgelassenheit (fantastical) wird mit dem leidenschaftlichen Benehmen eines verliebten Freiers verglichen; die Menuet in ihrer altväterischen, vornehmen Haltung mit der Hochzeit, bei der es sittig und ehrbar hergeht; endlich die Gaillarde, welche immer schneller getanzt wird, mit der Reue über die Vermählung, die mit immer schnelleren Schritten in's Grab stolpert. — Zwischen cinque-pace (gleichsam sink-a-pace) und sink into his grave beabsichtigte Sh. ein Wortspiel, das Collier's alter Corrector noch stärker hervorhebt, indem er ändert till he sink a pace into his grave. 11) Q. und Fol. haben and Balthazar, or dumb John. — Dieses dumb hält Malone für verdruckt aus Don, obgleich sonst nur ausnahmsweise Don John vorkommt. Nach Reed's Ansicht sollte die charakteristische Schweigsamkeit John's damit bezeichnet werden. Wahrscheinlicher ist es, dass ein Comma hinter dumb fehlt und die Bühnenweisung also sagen will, dass statt des Balthasar auch eine stumme Person auftreten könne. Damit wäre auch das sonst unbegreifliche or gerettet. — Die Fol. fügt noch hinzu Maskers with a drum. 12) friend = Liebhaber, Verehrer. 13) favour = Miene, Gesichtszüge. — Das Gesicht unter der Maske wird verglichen mit einer Laute in einem Futteral; Hero hofft also, dass Pedro's Gesicht schöner sei als die Maske, die er trägt. — God defend = Gott verhüte. 14) Jove in der Q.; love in der Fol. 15) Eine Anspie-Balth. Well, I would you did like me.

Marg. So would not I, for your own sake; for I have many ill qualities.

Balth. Which is one?

Marg. I say my prayers aloud.

Balth. I love you the better: the hearers may cry amen.

Marg. God match me with a good dancer!

Balth. Amen.

Marg. And God keep him out of my sight, when the dance is done! — Answer, clerk.¹⁶

Balth. No more words: the clerk is answered.

Urs. I know you well enough: you are Signior Antonio.

Ant. At a word, I am not.

Urs. I know you by the waggling of your head.

Ant. To tell you true, I counterfeit him.

Urs. You could never do him so ill-well, unless you were the very man. Here 's his dry hand¹⁷ up and down: you are he, you are he.

Ant. At a word, I am not.

Urs. Come, come: do you think I do not know you by your excellent wit? Can virtue hide itself? Go to, mum, you are he: graces will appear, and there 's an end.

Beat. Will you not tell me who told you so?¹⁸

Bene. No, you shall pardon me.

Beat. Nor will you not tell me who you are?

Bene. Not now.

Beat. That I was disdainful, and that I had my good wit out of the »Hundred Merry Tales«.¹⁹ — Well, this was Signior Benedick that said so.

Bene. What 's he?

Beat. I am sure, you know him well enough.

Bene. Not I, believe me.

Beat. Did he never make you laugh?

Bene. I pray you, what is he?

Beat. Why, he is the prince's jester: a very dull fool, only his gift is in devising impossible slanders:²⁰ none but libertines delight in him; and the commendation is not in his wit, but in his villany, for he both pleases men, and angers them, and then they laugh at him and beat him. I am sure, he is in the fleet: I would he had boarded me!²¹

Bene. When I know the gentleman, I 'll tell him what you say.

Beat. Do, do: he 'll but break a comparison or two on me; which, peradventure, not marked, or not laughed at, strikes him into melancholy; and then there 's a partridge wing saved, for the fool will eat no supper that night. [Music within.] We must follow the leaders.

Bene. In every good thing.

Beat. Nay, if they lead to any ill, I will leave them at the next turning.

[Dance. Then exeunt all but JOHN, BORACHIO, and CLAUDIO.]

John. Sure, my brother is amorous on²² Hero, and hath withdrawn her father to break with him about it. The ladies follow her, and but one visor remains.

Bora. And that is Claudio: I know him by his bearing.²³

John. Are not you Signior Benedick?

Claud. You know me well: I am he.

John. Signior, you are very near my brother in his love: he is enamoured on Hero. I pray you, dissuade him from her; she is no equal for his birth: you may do the part of an honest man in it.

Claud. How know you he loves her?

John. I heard him swear his affection.

Bora. So did I too; and he swore he would marry her to-night.

John. Come, let us to the banquet.

[Exeunt JOHN and BORACHIO.]

Claud. Thus answer I in name of Benedick.

But hear these ill news with the ears of Claudio.

'T is certain so: — the prince wooes for himself.

Friendship is constant in all other things,

Save in the office and affairs of love:

Therefore, all hearts in love use²⁴ their own tongues;

Let every eye negotiate for itself,

And trust no agent; for beauty is a witch,

Against whose charms faith melteth into blood.²⁵

lung auf das Strohdach des ländlich bescheidenen Hauses des Philemon, bei dem Jupiter in herablassender Weise Gast war. — So in As you like it (A. 3, Sc. 3) O knowledge ill-inhabited, worse than Jove in a thatched house! — Blakeway bemerkte richtig, dass Sh. hier zwei vierzehnsylbige Verse eingeflochten hat, welche der Reim Jove—love verknüpft. — In diesem Versmass war Golding's englische Uebersetzung des Ovid abgefasst, aus welcher Sh. wahrscheinlich die Sage von Philemon und Baucis kannte. Dort heisst es von dem Hause dieses alten Paares: The roof thereof was thatched all with straw and fennish reed. 16) Sie redet ihn scherzhaft als Küster an, der zu dem Gebete des Pfarrers Amen zu sagen hat. — So in K. Richard II. (A. 4, Sc. 1) God save the king! — Will no man say amen? || Am I both priest and clerk? — Q. und Fol. theilen nur die folgende Rede und das vorhergehende Amen dem Balthasar zu; die drei früheren aber dem Benedick, als ob Balthasar sich in dessen Gespräch mit Margarethe einmische. Der bessern Uebereinstimmung wegen, und da Benedick gleich nachher mit der Beatrice beschäftigt ist, theilte Dyce nach Tieck's Vorgange auch die drei früheren Reden: Well, I would — Which is one? — I love you the better — dem Balthasar zu. 17) Wie eine feuchte Hand auf ein lebhaftes, leidenschaftliches Temperament hindeutet, so eine trockne Hand auf das Gegentheil. 18) Der maskirte Benedick hat der Beatrice erzählt, Jemand habe nachtheilig von ihr gesprochen und sie für disdainful erklärt. Beatrice will den Namen dieses Jemandes wissen. 19) So hiess eine allbekannte Anekdotensammlung, von der sich, so verbreitet sie auch zu Sh.'s Zeit sein mochte, nur ein Bruchstück erhalten hat. — Aus dieser Sammlung soll Beatrice den Witz schöpfen, den sie in ihrer Unterhaltung zeigt. — Die A Hundred Mery Talys, lückenhaft wie das einzige erhaltene Exemplar diese Sammlung darbietet, sind jetzt von Hazlitt herausgegeben in Shakespeare Jest-Books — London 1864. 20) impossible slanders = unsinnige Verläumdungen, deren Unwahrheit zu Tage lag: Benedick sagte den Leuten Dinge nach, die unmöglich oder undenkbar waren. 21) Sie vergleicht die gegenwärtige Ballgesellschaft einem Flottengeschwader, wo ein Schiff das andere entert. So wünscht sie, dass der auf diesem Maskenball anwesende Benedick sie anreden möchte, und Benedick erwiedert ihr, wenn er den betreffenden Herrn unter seiner Maske erkenne, so wolle er ihn benachrichtigen. 22) Die Construction ist dieselbe wie gleich nachher enamoured on Hero. 23) An seiner Haltung, an der Art, wie er sich trägt. 24) use ist

This is an accident of hourly proof,
Which I mistrusted not. Farewell, therefore, Hero!

Re-enter BENEDICK.

Bene. Count Claudio?

Claud. Yea, the same.

Bene. Come, will you go with me?

Claud. Whither?

Bene. Even to the next willow, about your own business, count.²⁶ What fashion will you wear the garland of? About your neck, like an usurer's chain,²⁷ or under your arm, like a lieutenant's scarf? You must wear it one way, for the prince hath got your Hero.

Claud. I wish him joy of her.

Bene. Why, that's spoken like an honest drover: so they sell bullocks.²⁸ But did you think, the prince would have served you thus?

Claud. I pray you, leave me.

Bene. Ho! now you strike like the blind man: 't was the boy that stole your meat, and you'll beat the post.

Claud. If it will not be, I'll leave you.²⁹ [Exit.]

Bene. Alas, poor hurt fowl! Now will he creep into sedges. — But, that my lady Beatrice should know me, and not know me! The prince's fool! — Ha! it may be, I go under that title, because I am merry. — Yea; but so I am apt to do myself wrong: I am not so reputed: it is the base, though bitter disposition³⁰ of Beatrice, that puts the world into her person, and so gives me out.³¹ Well, I'll be revenged as I may.

Re-enter Don PEDRO.

D. Pedro. Now, Signior, where's the count? Did you see him?

Bene. Troth, my lord, I have played the part of Lady Fame. I found him here as melancholy as a lodge in a warren.³² I told him, and, I think, I told him true, that your grace had got the good will of this young lady;³³ and I offered him my company to a willow-tree, either to make him a garland, as being forsaken, or to bind him up a rod, as being worthy to be whipped.

D. Pedro. To be whipped! What's his fault?

Bene. The flat transgression of a school-boy; who, being overjoy'd with finding a birds' nest, shows it his companion, and he steals it.

D. Pedro. Wilt thou make a trust a transgression? The transgression is in the stealer.

Bene. Yet it had not been amiss, the rod had been made, and the garland too; for the garland he might have worn himself, and the rod he might have bestow'd on you, who, as I take it, have stolen his birds' nest.

D. Pedro. I will but teach them³⁴ to sing, and restore them to the owner.

Bene. If their singing answer your saying, by my faith, you say honestly.

D. Pedro. The lady Beatrice hath a quarrel to you: the gentleman, that danced with her, told her she is much wronged by you.

Bene. O! she misused me past the endurance of a block: an oak, but with one green leaf on it, would have answered her: my very visor began to assume life, and scold with her. She told me, not thinking I had been myself, that I was the prince's jester; that I was duller than a great thaw; huddling jest upon jest, with such impossible conveyance,³⁵ upon me, that I stood like a man at a mark, with a whole army shooting at me. She speaks poniards, and every word stabs: if her breath were as terrible as her terminations, there were no living near her; she would infect to the north star. I would not marry her, though she were endowed with all that Adam had left him before he transgressed:³⁶ she would have made Hercules have turned spit, yea, and have cleft his club to make the fire too. Come, talk not of her; you shall find her the infernal Até³⁷ in good apparel. I would to God, some scholar would conjure her,³⁸ for, certainly, while she is here, a man may live as quiet in hell, as in a sanctuary; and people sin upon purpose, because they would go thither; so, indeed, all disquiet, horror, and perturbation follow her.

Enter CLAUDIO, BEATRICE, HERO, and LEONATO.

D. Pedro. Look, here she comes.

Bene. Will your grace command me any service to the world's end? I will go on the slightest errand now to the Antipodes, that you can devise to send me on: I will fetch you a toothpicker³⁹ now from the farthest inch of Asia;

So in K. Henry VI. Third Part (A. 3, Sc. 3) I'll wear the willow garland for his sake. 27) Eine schwere goldene Kette, wie reiche Londoner Bürger, die durch Wucher reich geworden waren, sie um den Hals zu tragen pflegten. 28) So sagt ein ehrlicher Viehhändler, wenn er einen Handel abgeschlossen und Dem, der ihm Ochsen abgekauft, Glück zu seinem Kaufe wünscht. 29) Wenn es nicht geschieht, wie ich Euch aufgefordert, d. h. wenn Ihr mich nicht verlassen wollt, so verlasse ich Euch. 30) Johnson's Aenderung the base, the bitter disposition ist überflüssig: Benedick räumt die Bitterkeit, die zum Ziele treffende Schärfe von Beatricens Wesen ein, erklärt jedoch dieses Wesen für niedrig und gemein. — Q. und Fol. schliessen though bitter in Parenthese ein. 31) Was sie selbst sich ausdenkt, dass ich des Prinzen Spassmacher sei, das, sagt sie, erkläre die Welt von mir. 32) Die einsame Lage eines verfallenen Wächterhäuschens in einem Gehege macht einen so melancholischen Eindruck, wie der verliebte Claudio, da er der Einsamkeit nachhängt. 33) this young lady = die bewusste junge Dame, das Fräulein, das wir im Sinne haben. — An eine Anwesenheit der Hero auf der Bühne ist bei this nicht zu denken. — Die Fol. hat will für good-will der Q. und lässt weiterhin up vor a rod aus. 34) them bezieht sich auf birds in birds' nest. 35) Mit solcher unglaublichen, undenkbaren Behendigkeit; impossible = was kaum möglich erscheint. Vgl. oben Anm. 20. — So in Twelfth-Night (A. 3, Sc. 2) there is no Christian can ever believe such impossible passages of grossness. — Warburton las impassable und Johnson importable. 36) Mit Allem, was Adam vor dem Sündenfall als Erbtheil besass. 37) Die aus der Hölle stammende Göttin der Rache und Zwietracht hat Sh. auch in Julius Caesar (A. 3, Sc. 1) With Até by his side, come hot from hell. Ihr gleicht die Beatrice, nur dass sie besser costümiert ist. 38) Ein Gelehrter, der als solcher der Geisterbeschwörungen kundig ist, sollte die Beatrice zurückbannen in die Hölle, wohin sie gehört. 39) Der Zahnstocher kommt auch sonst als eine unenglische Mode bring you the length of prester John's foot;⁴⁰ fetch you a hair of the Great Cham's beard; do you any embassy to the Pigmies, rather than hold three words' conference with this harpy. You have no employment for me?

D. Pedro. None, but to desire your good company.

Bene. O God, Sir, here's a dish I love not: I cannot endure my Lady Tongue.⁴¹ [Exit.]

D. Pedro. Come, lady, come; you have lost the heart of Signior Benedick.

Beat. Indeed, my lord, he lent it me awhile; and I gave him use⁴² for it, a double heart for his single one: marry, once before he won it of me with false dice, therefore your grace may well say I have lost it.

D. Pedro. You have put him down, lady; you have put him down.⁴³

Beat. So I would not he should do me, my lord, lest I should prove the mother of fools. I have brought count Claudio, whom you sent me to seek.

D. Pedro. Why, how now, count? wherefore are you sad?

Claud. Not sad, my lord.

D. Pedro. How then? sick?

Claud. Neither, my lord.

Beat. The count is neither sad, nor sick, nor merry, nor well; but civil, count, civil as an orange, and something of that jealous complexion.⁴⁴

D. Pedro. I' faith, lady, I think your blazon to be true;⁴⁵ though, I'll be sworn, if he be so, his conceit is false. Here, Claudio, I have wooed in thy name, and fair Hero is won; I have broke with her father, and his good will obtained; name the day of marriage, and God give thee joy!

Leon. Count, take of me my daughter, and with her my fortunes: his grace hath made the match, and all grace say amen to it!

Beat. Speak, count, 't is your cue.

Claud. Silence is the perfectest herald of joy: I were but little happy, if I could say how much. — Lady, as you are mine, I am yours: I give away myself for you, and dote upon the exchange.

Beat. Speak, cousin; or, if you cannot, stop his mouth with a kiss, and let him not speak neither.

D. Pedro. In faith, lady, you have a merry heart.

Beat. Yea, my lord; I thank it, poor fool,⁴⁶ it keeps on the windy side of care. — My cousin tells him in his ear, that he is in her heart.

Claud. And so she doth, cousin.

Beat. Good Lord, for alliance!⁴⁷ — Thus goes every one to the world but I, and I am sun-burnt.⁴⁸ I may sit in a corner, and cry heigh-ho for a husband!

D. Pedro. Lady Beatrice, I will get you one.

Beat. I would rather have one of your father's getting.⁴⁹ Hath your grace ne'er a brother like you? Your father got excellent husbands, if a maid could come by them.

D. Pedro. Will you have me, lady?

Beat. No, my lord, unless I might have another for working-days: your grace is too costly to wear every day. — But, I beseech your grace, pardon me; I was born to speak all mirth, and no matter.

D. Pedro. Your silence most offends me, and to be merry best becomes you; for, out of question, you were born in a merry hour.

Beat. No, sure, my lord, my mother cried; but then there was a star danced, and under that was I born.⁵⁰ — Cousins,⁵¹ God give you joy!

Leon. Niece, will you look to those things I told you of?

Beat. I cry you mercy, uncle. — By your grace's pardon. [Exit.]

D. Pedro. By my troth, a pleasant-spirited lady.

Leon. There's little of the melancholy element in her, my lord: she is never sad, but when she sleeps; and not ever sad then, for I have heard my daughter say, she hath often dreamed of unhappiness,⁵² and waked herself with laughing.

D. Pedro. She cannot endure to hear tell of a husband.

Leon. O! by no means, she mocks all her wooers out of suit.

D. Pedro. She were an excellent wife for Benedick.

Leon. O Lord! my lord, if they were but a week married, they would talk themselves mad.

D. Pedro. Count Claudio, when mean you to go to church?

Claud. To-morrow, my lord. Time goes on crutches, till love have all his rites.

Leon. Not till Monday, my dear son, which is hence a just sevennight; and a time too brief too, to have all things answer my mind.⁵³

D. Pedro. Come, you shake the head at so long a breathing;⁵⁴ but, I warrant thee, Claudio, the time shall not go dully by us. I will, in the interim, undertake vor, die die Reisenden vom Auslande mit heimbrachten. 40) Priester Johann, der fabelhafte Beherrscher eines Reiches im Orient, dem sich Niemand nahen durfte. Um so kühner war Benedick's Unternehmen, das Mass von dessen Fuss zu nehmen oder dem Grosskhan der Tartarei ein Barthaar auszuraufen. 41) So die Q.; die Fol. this lady Tongue. 42) use = Zinsen. — In derselben Zeile hat die Fol. for a single one. 43) to put down = niederstrecken, zu Boden strecken, gebraucht Pedro in uneigentlichem Sinne, Beatrice aber in eigentlichem, mit frivolem Nebensinn. 44) civil = ehrbar, erinnert an Sevil orange = die Sevilla-Pomeranze. — Das Wortspiel scheint sprichwörtlich gewesen zu sein und kommt schon in einem Pamphlet von Nashe (1592) vor: For the order of my life, it is as civil as an orange. — of that jealous complexion = das Gelb als Farbe der Eifersucht und der Orange. — So die Q.; die Fol. hat of a jealous complexion. — Staunton und die Cambridge Edd. streichen das Comma zwischen civil und count. 45) Beatrice deutet die Miene und Farbe Claudio's so richtig, als handelte es sich um ein Wappen und dessen Deutung. 46) So heisst das Herz auch scherzhaft in Love's Labour's Lost (A. 2, Sc. 1) Is the fool sick? 47) Ein komischer Stossseufzer, den Beatrice zum Himmel sendet, als ob sie nach einer ehelichen Verbindung schmachte. 48) to go to the world eigentlich = sich der Welt widmen, im Gegensatz zu dem beschaulichen Klosterleben, dann = heirathen. — Mit sun-burnt = von der Sonne verbrannt, bezeichnet Beatrice scherzhaft ihren dunkeln Teint, ihre Hässlichkeit, welche die Freier abschrecke. So in Troilus and Cressida (A. 1, Sc. 3) The Grecian dames are sun-burnt, and not worth || The splinter of a lance. 49) Pedro fasst to get = besorgen, verschaffen; Beatrice missversteht es geflissentlich = erzeugen. 50) So erwiedert in All's well that ends well (A. 1, Sc. 1) Helena auf Parolles' Versprechen, ihrer gedenken zu wollen: Monsieur Parolles, you were born under a charitable star. 51) Als cousins redet sie Claudio und Hero an. 52) unhappiness = böse Dinge, Schelmerei. 53) Die Zeit ist auch zu kurz, um Alles für die Hochzeit one of Hercules' labours, which is, to bring Signior Benedick and the lady Beatrice into a mountain of affection,⁵⁵ the one with the other. I would fain have it a match; and I doubt not but to fashion it, if you three will but minister such assistance as I shall give you direction.

Leon. My lord, I am for you, though it cost me ten nights' watchings.

Claud. And I, my lord.

D. Pedro. And you too, gentle Hero?

Hero. I will do any modest office, my lord, to help my cousin to a good husband.

D. Pedro. And Benedick is not the unhopefullest husband that I know. Thus far can I praise him: he is of a noble strain,⁵⁶ of approved valour, and confirmed honesty. I will teach you how to humour your cousin, that she shall fall in love with Benedick; — and I, with your two helps, will so practise on Benedick, that, in despite of his quick wit and his queasy stomach,⁵⁷ he shall fall in love with Beatrice. If we can do this, Cupid is no longer an archer: his glory shall be ours, for we are the only love-gods. Go in with me, and I will tell you my drift.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

Another Room in LEONATO'S House.

Enter JOHN and BORACHIO.

John. It is so: the count Claudio shall marry the daughter of Leonato.

Bora. Yea, my lord; but I can cross it.

John. Any bar, any cross, any impediment will be medicinal to me: I am sick in displeasure to him, and whatsoever comes athwart his affection ranges evenly with mine. How canst thou cross this marriage?

Bora. Not honestly, my lord; but so covertly that no dishonesty shall appear in me.

John. Show me briefly how.

Bora. I think, I told your lordship, a year since, how much I am in the favour of Margaret, the waiting-gentlewoman to Hero.

John. I remember.

Bora. I can, at any unseasonable instant of the night, appoint her to look out at her lady's chamber-window.

John. What life is in that, to be the death of this marriage?

Bora. The poison of that lies in you to temper. Go you to the prince your brother: spare not to tell him, that he hath wronged his honour in marrying the renowned Claudio (whose estimation do you mightily hold up) to a contaminated stale,¹ such a one as Hero.

John. What proof shall I make of that?

Bora. Proof enough to misuse² the prince, to vex Claudio, to undo Hero, and kill Leonato. Look you for any other issue?

John. Only to despise them, I will endeavour anything.

Bora. Go then; find me a meet hour to draw Don Pedro and the count Claudio alone: tell them, that you know that Hero loves me; intend³ a kind of zeal both to the prince and Claudio (as in love of your brother's honour, who hath made this match, and his friend's reputation, who is thus like to be cozened with the semblance of a maid), that you have discovered thus. They will scarcely believe this without trial: offer them instances, which shall bear no less likelihood than to see me at her chamber-window, hear me call Margaret Hero; hear Margaret term me Claudio;⁴ and bring them to see this the very night before the intended wedding: for in the meantime I will so fashion the matter, that Hero shall be absent, and there shall appear such seeming truth⁵ of Hero's disloyalty, that jealousy shall be call'd assurance, and all the preparation overthrown.⁶

John. Grow this to what adverse issue it can, I will put it in practice. Be cunning in the working this, and thy fee is a thousand ducats.

Bora. Be you constant in the accusation, and my cunning shall not shame me.

John. I will presently go learn their day of marriage.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE III.

LEONATO'S Garden.

Enter BENEDICK.

Bene. Boy!

Enter a Boy.

Boy. Signior.

Bene. In my chamber-window lies a book; bring it hither to me in the orchard.

Boy. I am here already, Sir.

Bene. I know that; but I would have thee hence, and here again. [Exit Boy.] I do much wonder, that one man, seeing how much another man is a fool when he dedicates his behaviours to love, will, after he hath laughed at such shallow follies in others, become the argument of his own scorn by falling in love: and such a man is Claudio. I have known, when there was no music with him but the drum and the fife; and now had he rather hear the tabor and the pipe:¹ I have known, when he would have walked ten mile afoot to see a good armour; so in Ordnung zu haben, wie es meinen Wünschen entspricht. 54) breathing = Pause. 55) a mountain of affection scherzhaft = ein Haufen von Zuneigung, ungeheurer viel Liebe. So in Comedy of Errors (A. 4, Sc. 4) the mountain of mad flesh. 56) strain = Stamm, Stammesart. 57) queasy stomach = ein Magen, der nicht leicht Etwas verträgt, bezeichnet hier Benedick's schwer zu befriedigenden Geschmack überhaupt.

1) stale = Köder, eine gemeine Weibsperson, die Jeden anlockt. 2) to misuse = täuschen, zum Besten haben. 3) to intend = vorgeben, als Zweck angeben. — Zwei Zeilen vorher hat die Fol. on für Don der Q. 4) Theobald wollte für Claudio, das in Q. und Fol. steht, Borachio lesen, weil Borachio und nicht Claudio den geheimen Liebhaber der angeblichen Hero vorstellen sollte. Malone meint, dass Hero nach einer geheimen Verabredung den Borachio als Claudio anreden solle, um etwaige Lauscher über die Person zu täuschen. — Sollte jedoch Theobald Recht haben, so rührte die Verwechslung der beiden Namen jedenfalls von Sh. selbst her und Claudio stand schon so in der Handschrift. 5) truth in der Q.; truths in der Fol. 6) Der blosser Argwohn, in Bezug auf Hero's Untreue, wird schon für eine Gewissheit gelten, und alle Vorbereitungen zur Hochzeit werden vereitelt werden.

and now will he lie ten nights awake, carving the fashion of a new doublet.² He was wont to speak plain, and to the purpose, like an honest man, and a soldier; and now is he turn'd orthographer:³ his words are a very fantastical banquet, just so many strange dishes. May I be so converted, and see with these eyes? I cannot tell; I think not: I will not be sworn, but love may transform me to an oyster; but I'll take my oath on it, till he have made an oyster of me, he shall never make me such a fool. One woman is fair, yet I am well; another is wise, yet I am well; another virtuous, yet I am well; but till all graces be in one woman, one woman shall not come in my grace. Rich she shall be, that's certain; wise, or I'll none; virtuous, or I'll never cheapen her; fair, or I'll never look on her; mild, or come not near me; noble, or not I for an angel;⁴ of good discourse, an excellent musician, and her hair shall be of what colour it please God.⁵ Ha! the prince and Monsieur Love!⁶ I will hide me in the arbour. [Withdraws.]

*Enter Don PEDRO, LEONATO, and CLAUDIO, followed by BALTHAZAR and Musicians.*⁷

D. Pedro. Come, shall we hear this music?

Claud. Yea, my good lord. How still the evening is, As hush'd on purpose to grace harmony!

D. Pedro. See you where Benedick hath hid himself?

Claud. O, very well, my lord: the music ended, We'll fit the kid-fox⁸ with a penny-worth.

D. Pedro. Come, Balthazar, we'll hear that song again.

Balth. O! good my lord, tax⁹ not so bad a voice To slander music any more than once.

D. Pedro. It is the witness still of excellency, To put a strange face on his own perfection.¹⁰ — I pray thee, sing, and let me woo no more.

Balth. Because you talk of wooing, I will sing; Since many a wooer doth commence his suit To her he thinks not worthy; yet he woos, Yet will he swear he loves.

D. Pedro. Nay, pray thee, come: Or, if thou wilt hold longer argument, Do it in notes.

Balth. Note this before my notes: There's not a note of mine that's worth the noting.

D. Pedro. Why, these are very crotchets that he speaks;

Note, notes, forsooth, and noting!¹¹ [Music.]

Bene. [Aside.] Now, divine air! now is his soul ravish'd! — Is it not strange, that sheeps' guts should hale souls out of men's bodies? — Well, a horn for my money, when all's done.¹²

Balth. [Sings.]

Sigh no more, ladies, sigh no more,

Men were deceivers ever;

One foot in sea, and one on shore;

To one thing constant never.

Then sigh not so,

But let them go,

And be you blithe and bonny,

Converting all your sounds of woe

Into, Hey nonny, nonny.¹³

Sing no more ditties, sing no mo

Of dumps so dull and heavy;

The fraud of men was ever so,

Since summer first was leavy.

Then sigh not so, &c.

D. Pedro. By my troth, a good song.

Balth. And an ill singer, my lord.

D. Pedro. Ha? no, no; faith, thou singest well enough for a shift.

Bene. [Aside.] An he had been a dog that should have howled thus, they would have hang'd him; and I pray God, his bad voice bode no mischief! I had as lief have heard the night-raven,¹⁴ come what plague could have come after it.

D. Pedro. Yea, marry; dost thou hear, Balthazar? I pray thee, get us some excellent music, for to-morrow

1) drum und fife, kriegerrische Instrumente, stehen im Gegensatz zu tabor und pipe, Instrumente, die zum Tanze oder zu Serenaden ertönen. 2) Er denkt, indem er schlaflos im Bette liegt, über den Schnitt nach, den er seinem neuen Wammse geben will, um darin seiner Geliebten zu gefallen. 3) orthographer, wie Rowe das orthography der Q. und Fol. emendirt, bezieht sich hier mehr auf die peinliche Sorgfalt in der Wahl gesuchter Ausdrücke im Reden, als auf deren Rechtschreibung. Von der richtigen Aussprache und nicht von der Schreibung wird orthography auch in Love's Labour's Lost (A. 5, Sc. 1) gebraucht: such rackers of orthography, as to speak dout, fine, when he should say doubt. 4) Wortspiele mit noble = edel, und = Rosenobel, eine Münze, und angel = Engel, und = eine englische Goldmünze, kommen auch sonst bei Sh. vor. 5) Die Commentatoren finden hier eine Anspielung auf die damalige Damenmode, das Haar zu färben oder falsches Haar zu tragen. Vielleicht ist aber der Sinn nur: wenn meine künftige Geliebte alle diese erwähnten Vorzüge besitzt, so soll mir die Farbe ihres Haares gleichgültig sein. 6) So heisst der verliebte Orlando in As you like it (A. 3, Sc. 2) good Signior Love, und nennt dafür den melancholischen Jaques: good Monsieur Melancholy. 7) Die Q. hat Enter Prince, Leonato, Claudio, musick, und dann nach Claudio's zweiter Rede noch einmal Enter Balthazar with musick. — Die Fol. hat nur die eine Bühnenweisung Enter Prince, Leonato, Claudio, and Jack Wilson, d. h. Wilson, ein auch sonst als Sänger erwähnter Schauspieler, spielte auf dem Sh.'schen Theater die Rolle des Balthasar. — Die richtige Bühnenweisung rührt von Dyce her; die meisten Hgg. lassen Balthazar mit den Musikanten erst später auftreten. 8) Für kid-fox = junger Fuchs, las Warburton hid fox. 9) to tax = Jemandem Etwas auflegen, ihm zumuthen. — Sh. verwechselt to tax und to task auch sonst. 10) Es ist stets ein Zeichen oder Zeugniß des Ausgezeichneten, dass es seinen eigenen Vorzügen ein sprödes, zurückhaltendes Aussehen giebt, dass es zögert, damit hervorzutreten. 11) noting, in Beziehung auf das von Balthazar gebrauchte Wort, emendirt Theobald das nothing der Q. und Fol. — Dasselbe Wortspiel in Romeo and Juliet (A. 4, Sc. 5) Do you note me? — An you re us, and fa us, you note us. Ebendasselbst auch das Wortspiel mit crotchet = Viertelnote, und = Grille: I will carry no crotchets. 12) Benedick will für sein Geld lieber ein Horn blasen hören, als solchen sentimentalischen Gesang. 13) Ein sinnloser Refrain zu verschiedenen Liedern, der auch in Hamlet (A. 4, Sc. 5) und in K. Lear (A. 3, Sc. 4) vorkommt. Hier bezeichnet es eine lustige Melodie. — In der folgenden Strophe liest die Fol. The fraud of men were ever so. 14) Das Geschrei des Raben kündigt ein kommendes Unheil an; so auch night we would have it at the lady Hero's chamber-window.

Balth. The best I can, my lord.

D. Pedro. Do so: farewell. [Exeunt BALTHAZAR and Musicians.] Come hither, Leonato: what was it you told me of to-day? that your niece Beatrice was in love with Signior Benedick?

Claud. O, ay. — [Aside to PEDRO.] Stalk on, stalk on; ¹⁵ the fowl sits. — I did never think that lady would have loved any man.

Leon. No, nor I neither; but most wonderful, that she should so dote on Signior Benedick, whom she hath in all outward behaviours seemed ever to abhor.

Bene. [Aside.] Is 't possible? Sits the wind in that corner?

Leon. By my troth, my lord, I cannot tell what to think of it, but that she loves him with an enraged affection: it is past the infinite of thought. ¹⁶

D. Pedro. May be, she doth but counterfeit.

Claud. 'Faith, like enough.

Leon. O God! counterfeit! There was never counterfeit of passion came so near the life of passion, as she discovers it.

D. Pedro. Why, what effects of passion shows she?

Claud. [Aside.] Bait the hook well: this fish will bite.

Leon. What effects, my lord? She will sit you, — you heard my daughter tell you how.

Claud. She did, indeed.

D. Pedro. How, how, I pray you? You amaze me: I would have thought her spirit had been invincible against all assaults of affection.

Leon. I would have sworn it had, my lord; especially against Benedick.

Bene. [Aside.] I should think this a gull, but that the white-bearded fellow speaks it: knavery cannot, sure, hide himself ¹⁷ in such reverence.

Claud. [Aside.] He hath ta'en the infection: hold it up.

D. Pedro. Hath she made her affection known to Benedick?

Leon. No, and swears she never will: that 's her torment.

Claud. 'T is true, indeed; so your daughter says: »Shall I,« says she, »that have so oft encountered him with scorn, write to him that I love him?«

Leon. This says she, now, when she is beginning to write to him; for she 'll be up twenty times a night, and there will she sit in her smock, till she have writ a sheet of paper. — My daughter tells us all.

Claud. Now you talk of a sheet of paper, I remember a pretty jest your daughter told us of.

Leon. O! — when she had writ it, and was reading it over, she found Benedick and Beatrice between the sheet? ¹⁸ —

Claud. That.

Leon. O! she tore the letter into a thousand half-pence; ¹⁹ railed at herself, that she should be so immodest to write to one that she knew would flout her: — »I measure him,« says she, »by my own spirit; for I should flout him, if he writ to me; yea, though I love him, I should.«

Claud. Then down upon her knees she falls, weeps, sobs, beats her heart, tears her hair, prays, curses; ²⁰ — »O sweet Benedick! God give me patience!«

Leon. She doth indeed: my daughter says so; and the ecstasy hath so much overborne her, that my daughter is sometimes afraid she will do a desperate outrage to herself. It is very true.

D. Pedro. It were good, that Benedick knew of it by some other, if she will not discover it.

Claud. To what end? He would but make a sport of it, and torment the poor lady worse.

D. Pedro. An he should, it were an alms to hang him. ²¹ She 's an excellent sweet lady, and, out of all suspicion, she is virtuous.

Claud. And she is exceeding wise.

D. Pedro. In every thing, but in loving Benedick.

Leon. O! my lord, wisdom and blood ²² combating in so tender a body, we have ten proofs to one, that blood hath the victory. I am sorry for her, as I have just cause, being her uncle and her guardian.

D. Pedro. I would, she had bestowed this dotage on me; I would have daff'd ²³ all other respects, and made her half myself. I pray you, tell Benedick of it, and hear what a ' will say.

Leon. Were it good, think you?

Claud. Hero thinks surely, she will die; for she says, she will die if he love her not, and she will die ere she make her love known, and she will die if he woo her, rather than she will bate one breath of her accustomed crossness.

D. Pedro. She doth well: if she should make tender of her love, 't is very possible he 'll scorn it; for the man, as you know all, hath a contemptible ²⁴ spirit.

Claud. He is a very proper ²⁵ man.

D. Pedro. He hath, indeed, a good outward happiness. ²⁶

Claud. Before God, and in my mind, very wise.

D. Pedro. He doth, indeed, show some sparks that are like wit.

Leon. And I take him to be valiant.

D. Pedro. As Hector, I assure you: and in the managing of quarrels you may say he is wise; for either he avoids them with great discretion, or undertakes them with a most Christian-like fear.

Leon. If he do fear God, he must necessarily keep peace: if he break the peace, he ought to enter into a quarrel with fear and trembling.

Balthasar's Gesang. 15) to stalk on = leise vorwärts schreiten, um einen Vogel, der sich niedergelassen hat, zu belauern. — Unter dem Vogel ist hier der lauschende Benedick verstanden. 16) infinite of thought = Unendlichkeit der Gedanken, Grenzenlosigkeit der Gedanken. — So steht das substantivische infinite in Two Gentlemen of Verona (A. 2, Sc. 7) instances of infinite of love. 17) knavery ist männlich personificirt gefasst, was manche Hgg. verkannten und itself für himself setzten. 18) sheet = Bogen Papier, und = Bettlaken. 19) In tausend Stücke, jedes so gross wie ein Halbpennig. 20) In ihrer leidenschaftlichen Aufregung wechselt sie mit Gebeten und Verwünschungen ab. — Die folgenden Worte beziehen sich dann nur auf prays, nicht auf curses. 21) Ihn aufzuhängen, wäre ein so verdienstliches Werk wie Almosenspende. 22) Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 25. 23) to daff für to doff, oder do off = abthun, beseitigen. 24) contemptible = zur Verachtung geneigt, auf Andere verächtlich herabsehend. — So in Drayton's Polyolbion: The mad tumultuous world contemptibly forsook || And to his quiet cell by Crowland him betook. 25) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 3, Anm. 14. 26) happiness =

D. Pedro. And so will he do; for the man doth fear God, howsoever it seems not in him by some large²⁷ jests he will make. Well, I am sorry for your niece. Shall we go seek²⁸ Benedick, and tell him of her love?

Claud. Never tell him, my lord: let her wear it out with good counsel.

Leon. Nay, that's impossible: she may wear her heart out first.

D. Pedro. Well, we will hear further of it by your daughter: let it cool the while. I love Benedick well, and I could wish he would modestly examine himself, to see how much he is unworthy to have so good a lady.²⁹

Leon. My lord, will you walk? dinner is ready.

Claud. [Aside.] If he do not dote on her upon this, I will never trust my expectation.

D. Pedro. [Aside.] Let there be the same net spread for her; and that must your daughter and her gentlewoman³⁰ carry. The sport will be, when they hold one an opinion of another's dotage, and no such matter: that's the scene that I would see, which will be merely a dumb-show.³¹ Let us send her to call him in to dinner.

[Exeunt Don PEDRO, CLAUDIO, and LEONATO.]

Bene. [Advancing from the arbour.] This can be no trick: the conference was sadly borne.³² — They have the truth of this from Hero. They seem to pity the lady: it seems, her affections have their full bent.³³ Love me! why, it must be requited. I hear how I am censured:³⁴ they say, I will bear myself proudly, if I perceive the love come from her; they say, too, that she will rather die than give any sign of affection. — I did never think to marry. — I must not seem proud. — Happy are they that hear their detractions, and can put them to mending. They say, the lady is fair: 't is a truth, I can bear them witness; and virtuous: 't is so, I cannot reprove it; and wise, but for loving me. By my troth, it is no addition to her wit, nor no great argument of her folly, for I will be horribly in love with her. I may chance have some odd quirks and remnants of wit broken on me, because I have railed so long against marriage; but doth not the appetite alter? A man loves the meat in his youth, that he cannot endure in his age. Shall quips, and sentences, and these paper bullets of the brain, awe a man from the career of his humour? No; the world must be peopled. When I said I would die a bachelor, I did not think I should live till I were married. — Here comes Beatrice. By this day, she's a fair lady: I do spy some marks of love in her.

Enter BEATRICE.

Beat. Against my will I am sent to bid you come in to dinner.

Bene. Fair Beatrice, I thank you for your pains.

Beat. I took no more pains for those thanks, than you take pains to thank me: if it had been painful, I would not have come.

Bene. You take pleasure then in the message?

Beat. Yea, just so much as you may take upon a knife's point, and choke a daw withal. — You have no stomach, Signior: fare you well. [Exit.]

Bene. Ha! »Against my will I am sent to bid you come in to dinner;« — there's a double meaning in that. »I took no more pains for those thanks, than you took pains to thank me;« — that's as much as to say, any pains that I take for you is as easy as thanks. — If I do not take pity of her, I am a villain; if I do not love her, I am a Jew. I will go get her picture. [Exit.]

ACT III.

SCENE I.

LEONATO'S Garden.

Enter HERO, MARGARET, and URSULA.

Hero. Good Margaret, run thee to the parlour; There shalt thou find my cousin Beatrice Proposing¹ with the prince and Claudio: Whisper her ear, and tell her, I and Ursula² Walk in the orchard, and our whole discourse Is all of her; say, that thou overheardst us, And bid her steal into the pleached³ bower, Where honey-suckles, ripen'd by the sun, Forbid the sun to enter; like favourites, Made proud by princes, that advance their pride Against that power that bred it. — There will she hide her,

To listen our propose.⁴ This is thy office; Bear thee well in it, and leave us alone.

Marg. I'll make her come, I warrant you, presently. [Exit.]

Hero. Now, Ursula, when Beatrice doth come, As we do trace this alley up and down, Our talk must only be of Benedick: When I do name him, let it be thy part To praise him more than ever man did merit. My talk to thee must be, how Benedick Is sick in love with Beatrice: of this matter Is little Cupid's crafty arrow⁵ made, That only wounds by hearsay.

Enter BEATRICE, behind.

Now begin;

For look where Beatrice, like a lapwing, runs Close by the ground, to hear our conference.

Urs. The pleasant'st angling is to see the fish Cut with her golden oars the silver stream, And greedily devour the treacherous bait: So angle we for Beatrice; who even now Is couched in the woodbine coverture. Fear you not my part of the dialogue.⁶

glückliche Begabung, hier von dem Aeussern Benedick's. 27) large = weitgehend, frei im Reden. 28) seek in der Q.; see in der Fol. 29) So die Fol.; in der Q. fehlt to have. 30) So die Fol.; die Q. hat gentlewomen im Plural. 31) Das wird recht eigentlich eine Pantomime sein. — dumb-show, insofern die beiden Schauspieler sich nicht gegenseitig aussprechen und also nur ein stummes Spiel entwickeln. 32) Das Gespräch wurde ernsthaft geführt. 33) bent = Spannung, zunächst von der Bogensehne. — Die Fol. hat the full bent. 34) to censure = beurtheilen: ich höre, was man von mir denkt und voraussetzt, in Bezug auf mein Benehmen gegen Beatrice.

1) to propose = ein Gespräch führen. Ebenso ist weiterhin das substantivische propose = Gespräch, Gesprächsthema. So kommt in Hamlet (A. 2, Sc. 2) proposer = der Vortragende, Redner, vor. 2) Die Q. hat hier und in der vorhergehenden Bühnenweisung Ursley, die Fol. Ursula. 3) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 2, Anm. 3. 4) So die Q.; die Fol. liest purpose. 5) Der Pfeil, den der kleine Cupido schlaue verfertigt hat, verwundet schon allein (only)

Hero. Then go we near her, that her ear lose nothing
Of the false sweet bait that we lay for it. —
No, truly, Ursula, she is too disdainful;
I know, her spirits are as coy and wild
As haggards of the rock.⁷

Urs. But are you sure
That Benedick loves Beatrice so entirely?

Hero. So says the prince, and my new-trothed lord.

Urs. And did they bid you tell her of it, Madam?

Hero. They did entreat me to acquaint her of it;
But I persuaded them, if they lov'd Benedick,
To wish him⁸ wrestle with affection,
And never to let Beatrice know of it.

Urs. Why did you so? Doth not the gentleman
Deserve as full⁹ as fortunate a bed,
As ever Beatrice shall couch upon?

Hero. O god of love! I know, he doth deserve
As much as may be yielded to a man;
But nature never fram'd a woman's heart
Of prouder stuff than that of Beatrice:
Disdain and scorn ride sparkling in her eyes,
Misprising¹⁰ what they look on; and her wit
Values itself so highly, that to her
All matter else seems weak.¹¹ She cannot love,
Nor take no shape nor project of affection,
She is so self-endear'd.

Urs. Sure, I think so;
And therefore, certainly, it were not good
She knew his love, lest she make sport at it.

Hero. Why, you speak truth. I never yet saw man,
How wise, how noble, young, how rarely featur'd,
But she would spell him backward:¹² if fair-fac'd,
She would swear the gentleman should be her sister;¹³
If black, why, nature, drawing of an antick,
Made a foul blot;¹⁴ if tall, a lance ill-headed;
If low, an agate very vilely cut;¹⁵
If speaking, why, a vane blown with all winds;
If silent, why, a block moved with none.
So turns she every man the wrong side out,
And never gives to truth and virtue that
Which simpleness and merit purchaseth.

Urs. Sure, sure, such carping is not commendable.

Hero. No; not¹⁶ to be so odd, and from all fashions.
As Beatrice is, cannot be commendable.

But who dare tell her so? If I should speak,
She would mock me into air: O! she would laugh me
Out of myself, press me to death with wit.¹⁷

Therefore let Benedick, like cover'd fire,
Consume away in sighs, waste inwardly:

It were a better death than die¹⁸ with mocks,
Which is as bad as die with tickling.¹⁹

Urs. Yet tell her of it: hear what she will say.

Hero. No; rather I will go to Benedick,
And counsel him to fight against his passion.
And, truly, I'll devise some honest slanders²⁰
To stain my cousin with. One doth not know,
How much an ill word may empoison liking.

Urs. O! do not do your cousin such a wrong.
She cannot be so much without true judgment
(Having so swift and excellent a wit,
As she is priz'd to have), as to refuse
So rare a gentleman as Signior Benedick.

Hero. He is the only²¹ man of Italy,
Always excepted my dear Claudio.

Urs. I pray you, be not angry with me, Madam,
Speaking my fancy: Signior Benedick,
For shape, for bearing, argument,²² and valour,
Goes foremost in report through Italy.

Hero. Indeed, he hath an excellent good name.

Urs. His excellence did earn it, ere he had it. —
When are you married, Madam?

Hero. Why, every day; — to-morrow. Come, go in:
I'll show thee some attires, and have thy counsel,
Which is the best to furnish me to-morrow.²³

Urs. [Aside.] She's lim'd,²⁴ I warrant you: we have caught her, Madam.

Hero. [Aside.] If it prove so, then loving goes by haps:

Some Cupid kills with arrows, some with traps.

[Exeunt HERO and URSULA.]

Beat. [Advancing.] What fire is in mine ears?²⁵
Can this be true?

durch das Gerede, das man hört, ohne dass es zu einer wirklichen Wunde käme. 6) Seid unbesorgt wegen meines Antheils an dem verabredeten Zwiegespräch. 7) haggard of the rock = der weibliche wilde Falke, der für sich allein auf Felsen nistet. In Latham's Book of Falconry heisst es von ihm: she keeps in subjection the most part of all the fowl that fly, insomuch that the tassel gentle, her natural and chiefest companion, dares not come near that coast where she uses, nor sit by the place where she standeth. Such is the greatness of her spirit, she will not admit of any society, until such time as nature worketh. 8) to wish = Jemandem Etwas anempfehlen, Jemandem Etwas als Wunsch ausdrücken. 9) full ist dem Sinne nach mit fortunate zu verbinden: ein so reichbeglücktes Ehebett, wie nur je Beatrice es haben wird. — So full-fortun'd Caesar in Antony and Cleopatra (A. 4, Sc. 13). 10) to misprise = geringschätzen, verkehrt schätzen. 11) Dass alles Andere geistig schwach erscheint im Verhältniss zu ihr und ihrem Geiste. 12) to spell backward eigentlich = ein Wort von rückwärts buchstabiren, dann = das Gegentheil von dem, was er ist, aus Jemandem herausdeuten. 13) Insofern ein so feiner, weisser Teint unmännlich ist und eher für ein Weib geeignet erscheint. 14) Ein dunkelfarbiger Mann, im Gegensatz zu dem vorhergehenden fair-fac'd, wird von Beatrice in komischer Hyperbel umgedeutet zu einem Dintenfleck, den die Natur aus Versehen machte, da sie das Bild eines Narren zeichnen wollte. 15) Ein Mann von kleiner Statur heisst ein schlecht aus einem Agatstein geschnitztes Figürchen. So sagt in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 1, Sc. 2) Falstaff von seinem zwerghaften Pagen: I was never manned with an agate till now. 16) M. Mason wollte lesen not to be odd. — Das not steht pleonastisch neben dem folgenden cannot. — from all fashions = fern von, oder abweichend von aller Haltung und Manier. 17) Malone findet hier eine Anspielung auf eine alte englische Tortur, wobei den hartnäckig schweigenden Angeklagten ein so schweres Gewicht auf den Magen gelegt wurde, dass sie erlagen. 18) Die Fol. hat to die für than die der Q. 19) tickling ist dreisylbig (tickeling) zu lesen. 20) honest slanders = Verläumdungen, die in redlicher Absicht verbreitet werden. 21) only = einzig, unvergleichlich. 22) argument = Raisonnement, Redegabe. 23) Ebenso sagt Juliet in Romeo and Juliet (A. 4, Sc. 2) von ihrem Hochzeitsstaat: such needful ornaments, As you think fit to furnish me to-morrow. 24) So die Q. Das Bild ist von einem Vogel, der an der für ihn gestellten Leimstange festklebt. —

Stand I condemn'd for pride and scorn so much?
Contempt, farewell! and maiden pride, adieu!
No glory lives behind the back of such.²⁵
And, Benedick, love on: I will requite thee,
Taming my wild heart to thy loving hand.²⁷
If thou dost love, my kindness shall incite thee
To bind our loves up in a holy band;
For others say thou dost deserve, and I
Believe it better than reportingly. [Exit.]

SCENE II.

A Room in LEONATO'S HOUSE.

Enter Don PEDRO, CLAUDIO, BENEDICK, and LEONATO.

D. Pedro. I do but stay till your marriage be consummate, and then go I¹ toward Arragon.

Claud. I'll bring you thither, my lord, if you'll vouchsafe me.

D. Pedro. Nay; that would be as great a soil in the new gloss of your marriage, as to show a child his new coat, and forbid him to wear it. I will only be bold with Benedick for his company; for, from the crown of his head to the sole of his foot, he is all mirth: he hath twice or thrice cut Cupid's bowstring, and the little hangman² dare not shoot at him. He hath a heart as sound as a bell, and his tongue is the clapper; for what his heart thinks, his tongue speaks.³

Bene. Gallants, I am not as I have been.

Leon. So say I: methinks, you are sadder.

Claud. I hope he be in love.

D. Pedro. Hang him, truant! there's no true drop of blood in him, to be truly touch'd with love. If he be sad, he wants money.

Bene. I have the tooth-ache.

D. Pedro. Draw it.

Bene. Hang it!

Claud. You must hang it first, and draw it afterwards.⁴

D. Pedro. What! sigh for the tooth-ache?

Leon. Where is but a humour, or a worm?⁵

Bene. Well, every one can⁶ master a grief, but he that has it.

Claud. Yet say I, he is in love.

D. Pedro. There is no appearance of fancy in him, unless it be a fancy⁷ that he hath to strange disguises; as, to be a Dutchman to-day, a Frenchman to-morrow,⁸ or in the shape of two countries at once, as a German from the waist downward, all slops, and a Spaniard from the hip upward, no doublet. Unless he have a fancy to this foolery, as it appears he hath, he is no fool for fancy,⁹ as you would have it appear he is.

Claud. If he be not in love with some woman, there is no believing old signs. He brushes his hat o' mornings; what should that bode?

D. Pedro. Hath any man seen him at the barber's?

Claud. No, but the barber's man hath been seen with him, and the old ornament of his cheek hath already stuffed tennis-balls.¹⁰

Leon. Indeed, he looks younger than he did, by the loss of a beard.

D. Pedro. Nay, he rubs himself with civet: can you smell¹¹ him out by that?

Claud. That's as much as to say, the sweet youth's in love.

D. Pedro. The greatest note of it is his melancholy.

Claud. And when was he wont to wash his face?

D. Pedro. Yea, or to paint himself? for the which, I hear what they say of him.

Claud. Nay, but his jesting spirit, which is now crept into a lutestring, and now governed by stops.¹²

D. Pedro. Indeed, that tells a heavy tale for him. Conclude, conclude, he is in love.

Claud. Nay, but I know who loves him.

Die Fol. liest she's ta'en. 25) Reed citirt dazu aus Holland's Uebersetzung des Plinius, die Sh. kannte, Folgendes: Moreover is not this an opinion generally received, that when our ears do glow and tingle, some there be that in our absence do talk of us? 26) such bezieht sich auf contempt und maiden pride: Hohn und jungfräulicher Stolz haben keinen Ruhm hinter sich oder in ihrem Gefolge. 27) Es ist an einen wilden Falken zu denken, der so zahm wird, dass er auf die Hand des Falkoniers niedersteigt. Vgl. oben Anm. 7.

1) So Q. und Fol. — Manche Hgg. setzen mit den späteren Folioausgg. dafür I go. 2) hangman, das zu Sh.'s Zeit von jeder Art von Hinrichtung und Tödtung, nicht bloss vom Hängen gebraucht wird, heisst Cupido, der mit seinen Pfeilen die Herzen trifft, auch in Sidney's Arcadia: Millions of years this old drivel Cupid lives — Till now at length that Jove him office gives — In this our world our hangman for to be || Of all those fools that will have all they see. — Indess steht hangman auch sonst als Schimpfwort = Schurke, und so vielleicht auch hier. 3) Steevens citirt dazu das Sprichwort As the fool thinketh, || So the bell clinketh. 4) Auf Benedick's Hang it! das er als Verwünschung ausstösst, sagt Claudio, der das Wort im eigentlichen Sinne fasst, er müsse den Zahn erst hängen, d. h. einen Faden um ihn schlingen, und dann erst herausziehen. — Zugleich liegt darin eine Anspielung auf die Stufenfolge der Execution, wie in K. John (A. 2, Sc. 2) hang'd, and drawn, and quarter'd. — it bezieht sich auf tooth in tooth-ache. 5) Das Zahnweh rührt doch nur von einem Flusse her oder von einem Wurme, der in dem kranken Zahne sitzt. 6) can ist Pope's Emendation für cannot der alten Ausgg. 7) fancy = Liebe, und = grillenhafte Neigung zu Etwas, wie Benedick sie zu ausländischen Trachten, in die er sich verkleidet, haben soll. 8) Die folgenden Worte bis no doublet fehlen in der Fol. — slops = weitbauschige Beinkleider, kommen sonst in Romeo and Juliet (A. 2, Sc. 4) als französische Mode vor. — Die spanische Mode, ohne Wamms, nur mit enganliegendem Obergewande einherzugehen, wird bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen oft erwähnt unter dem spanischen Namen in cuerpo. 9) fool for fancy = Narr aus Liebe, ist Gegensatz zu fancy to this foolery. 10) Um sich ein schmachthafes oder jugendliches Ansehn zu geben, lässt Benedick sich sein Bart haar abrasiren, und dieses dient bereits zur Füllung von Federbällen. So in einem Pamphlet von Nashe (1591): they may sell their hair by the pound to stuff tennis-balls. 11) to smell out doppelsinnig = Jemanden riechen, der sich mit Bisam eingerieben hat, und = wittern, merken, wie es um ihn steht, dass er nämlich verliebt ist. — Eben so doppelsinnig ist in Claudio's Antwort sweet = wohlriechend, und = süß, hold. 12) Statt dass er früher über Alles scherzte und witzelte, singt er jetzt Liebeslieder zur Laute und achtet auf die Griffe, mit denen dieses Saiteninstrument regiert wird. — In Pedro's nächster Rede hat die Fol. nur einmal conclude. 13) Seine schlechten

D. Pedro. That would I know too: I warrant, one that knows him not.

Claud. Yes, and his ill conditions; ¹³ and, in despite of all, dies for him.

D. Pedro. She shall be buried with her face upwards. ¹⁴

Bene. Yet is this no charm for the tooth-ache.* — Old Signior, walk aside with me: I have studied eight or nine wise words to speak to you, which these hobby-horses ¹⁵ must not hear. [Exeunt BENEDICK and LEONATO.]

D. Pedro. For my life, to break with him about Beatrice.

Claud. 'T is even so. Hero and Margaret have by this played their parts with Beatrice, and then the two bears will not bite one another when they meet.

Enter JOHN.

John. My lord and brother, God save you.

D. Pedro. Good den, ¹⁶ brother.

John. If your leisure served, I would speak with you.

D. Pedro. In private?

John. If it please you; yet count Claudio may hear, for what I would speak of concerns him.

D. Pedro. What 's the matter?

John. [To CLAUD.] Means your lordship to be married to-morrow?

D. Pedro. You know, he does.

John. I know not that, when he knows what I know.

Claud. If there be any impediment, I pray you, discover it.

John. You may think, I love you not: let that appear hereafter, and aim better at me by that I now will manifest. For my brother, I think, he holds you well, and in dearness of heart hath help to effect your ensuing marriage; surely, suit ill spent, and labour ill bestowed!

D. Pedro. Why, what 's the matter?

John. I came hither to tell you; and circumstances shortened (for she has been too long a talking of), ¹⁷ the lady is disloyal.

Claud. Who? Hero?

John. Even she: Leonato's Hero, your Hero, every man's Hero. ¹⁸

Claud. Disloyal?

John. The word is too good to paint out her wickedness; I could say, she were worse: think you of a worse title, and I will fit her to it. ¹⁹ Wonder not till further warrant: go but with me to-night, you shall see her chamber-window entered, even the night before her wedding-day: if you love her then, to-morrow wed her; but it would better fit your honour to change your mind.

Claud. May this be so?

D. Pedro. I will not think it.

John. If you dare not trust that you see, confess not that you know. If you will follow me, I will show you enough; and when you have seen more, and heard more, proceed accordingly.

Claud. If I see anything to-night why I should not marry her to-morrow: in the congregation, ²⁰ where I should wed, there will I shame her.

D. Pedro. And, as I wooed for thee to obtain her, I will join with thee to disgrace her.

John. I will disparage her no further, till you are my witnesses: bear it coldly but till midnight, ²¹ and let the issue show itself.

D. Pedro. O day untowardly turned!

Claud. O mischief strangely thwarting!

John. O plague right well prevented! So will you say, when you have seen the sequel. [Exeunt.]

SCENE III.

A Street.

Enter DOGBERRY and VERGES, ¹ with the Watch.

Dogb. Are you good men and true? ²

Verg. Yea, or else it were pity but they should suffer salvation, ³ body and soul.

Dogb. Nay, that were a punishment too good for them, if they should have any allegiance in them, being chosen for the prince's watch.

Verg. Well, give them their charge, ⁴ neighbour Dogberry.

Dogb. First, who think you the most desertless ⁵ man to be constable?

1. Watch. Hugh Oatcake, Sir, or George Seacoal, for they can write and read.

Dogb. Come hither, neighbour Seacoal. God hath blessed you with a good name: to be a well-favoured man is the gift of fortune, but to write and read comes by nature.

2. Watch. Both which, master constable, —

Dogb. You have: I knew it would be your answer. Well, for your favour, ⁶ Sir, why, give God thanks, and make no boast of it; and for your writing and reading, let that appear when there is no need of such vanity. You are thought here to be the most senseless and fit man for the constable of the watch; therefore bear you the lantern. This is your charge. You shall comprehend Eigenschaften oder Beschaffenheiten. 14) Der Prinz fasst das dies, das Claudio im uneigentlichen Sinn gebraucht = sie ist sterblich in ihn verliebt, wörtlich und fügt deshalb scherzhaft und zweideutig hinzu: Sie soll begraben werden mit ihrem Gesichte aufwärts, oder, wie Steevens erklärt: She shall be buried in her lover's arms. 15) hobby-horse eigentlich = Steckenpferd, dann = der noch ein Steckenpferd gebraucht, also Narren oder Kinder. 16) good den = guten Abend, aus good e'en für good even. 17) Je länger man schon von Hero und ihrer Untreue gesprochen hat, um so eher kann ich die Details derselben kurz fassen. 18) Hero gehört nicht Euch allein, sondern Jedem an. 19) Besinnt Euch auf eine schlimmere Bezeichnung für Hero, als disloyal, und ich will sie ihr beilegen. 20) congregation = die in der Kirche versammelte Gemeinde. 21) midnight in der Q.; night in der Fol.

1) Q. und Fol. haben Enter Dogberry and his Compartment. 2) good men and true = respectable und ehrbare Leute, die statutengemässe Bezeichnung Derer, die zu bürgerlichen Aemtern, wie hier zu Constablern, sich qualificirten. 3) Nach Art der englischen Clowns gebrauchen Dogberry und Verges Ausdrücke, die ihnen nicht geläufig sind, in verkehrtem Sinne; so hier salvation für damnation, und gleich darauf allegiance für das Gegentheil. 4) charge = Bestallung, in ihrem Constableramt. 5) Er will desertful sagen, wie er bald nachher senseless für sensible sagt. 6) favour = Aussehen, Miene, in Bezug auf das vorhergehende well-favoured = von guter Miene, gut aussehend. 7) comprehend für apprehend, und vagrom für vagrant. 8) tolerable für into- all vagrom⁷ men: you are to bid any man stand, in the prince's name.

2. Watch. How, if a' will not stand?

Dogb. Why, then take no note of him, but let him go; and presently call the rest of the watch together, and thank God you are rid of a knave.

Verg. If he will not stand when he is bidden, he is none of the prince's subjects.

Dogb. True, and they are to meddle with none but the prince's subjects. — You shall also make no noise in the streets; for, for the watch to babble and talk is most tolerable,⁸ and not to be endured.

2. Watch. We will rather sleep than talk: we know what belongs to a watch.

Dogb. Why, you speak like an ancient and most quiet watchman, for I cannot see how sleeping should offend; only, have a care that your bills⁹ be not stolen. Well, you are to call at all the ale-houses, and bid those¹⁰ that are drunk get them to bed.

2. Watch. How, if they will not?

Dogb. Why, then let them alone till they are sober: if they make you not then the better answer, you may say, they are not the men you took them for.

2. Watch. Well, Sir.

Dogb. If you meet a thief, you may suspect him, by virtue of your office, to be no true man;¹¹ and, for such kind of men, the less you meddle or make with them, why, the more is for your honesty.

2. Watch. If we know him to be a thief, shall we not lay hands on him?

Dogb. Truly, by your office you may; but, I think, they that touch pitch will be defiled. The most peaceable way for you, if you do take a thief, is, to let him show himself what he is, and steal¹² out of your company.

Verg. You have been always called a merciful man, partner.

Dogb. Truly, I would not hang a dog by my will; much more a man who hath any honesty in him.

Verg. If you hear a child cry in the night, you must call to the nurse, and bid her still it.

2. Watch. How, if the nurse be asleep, and will not hear us?

Dogb. Why, then depart in peace, and let the child wake her with crying; for the ewe that will not hear her lamb when it baes, will never answer a calf when he¹³ bleats.

Verg. 'T is very true.

Dogb. This is the end of the charge. You, constable, are to present the prince's own person: if you meet the prince in the night, you may stay him.

Verg. Nay, by 'r lady, that, I think, a' cannot.

Dogb. Five shillings to one on 't, with any man that knows the statutes,¹⁴ he may stay him: marry, not without the prince be willing; for, indeed, the watch ought to offend no man, and it is an offence to stay a man against his will.

Verg. By 'r lady, I think, it be so.

Dogb. Ha, ha, ha! Well, masters, good night: an there be any matter of weight chances, call up me. Keep your fellows' counsels and your own,¹⁵ and good night. Come, neighbour.

2. Watch. Well, masters, we hear our charge: let us go sit here upon the church-bench till two, and then all to bed.

Dogb. One word more, honest neighbours. I pray you, watch about Signior Leonato's door; for the wedding being there to-morrow, there is a great coil to-night. Adieu, be vigilant,¹⁶ I beseech you.

[Exeunt DOGBERRY and VERGES.]

Enter BORACHIO and CONRADE.

Bora. What! Conrade!

Watch. [Aside.] Peace! stir not.

Bora. Conrade, I say!

Con. Here, man, I am at thy elbow.

Bora. Mass, and my elbow itched; I thought, there would a scab follow.

Con. I will owe thee an answer for that; and now forward with thy tale.

Bora. Stand thee close then under this penthouse, for it drizzles rain, and I will, like a true drunkard,¹⁷ utter all to thee.

Watch. [Aside.] Some treason, masters; yet stand close.

Bora. Therefore know, I have earned of Don John a thousand ducats.

Con. Is it possible that any villany should be so dear?

Bora. Thou shouldst rather ask, if it were possible any villany¹⁸ should be so rich; for when rich villains have need of poor ones, poor ones may make what price they will.

Con. I wonder at it.

Bora. That shows thou art unconfirmed.¹⁹ Thou knowest, that the fashion of a doublet, or a hat, or a cloak, is nothing to a man.

Con. Yes, it is apparel.

Bora. I mean, the fashion.

Con. Yes, the fashion is the fashion.

Bora. Tush! I may as well say, the fool's the fool. But seest thou not what a deformed thief²⁰ this fashion is?

lerable. 9) Die Nachtwache war mit Hellebarden bewaffnet. 10) those in der Q.; them in der Fol. 11) true man = ehrlicher Mann, der gewöhnliche Gegensatz zu thief = Dieb. 12) Wortspiele mit to steal = stehlen, und = sich wegschleichen, sind bei Sh. häufig. 13) Für he der Q. und Fol. setzen die spätern Folioausgg. it. 14) statutes in der Fol. für statutes, was Dogberry im Sinne hat und was die Q. mit Verwischung dieses scherzhaften Missverständnisses liest. — Wie Steevens vermuthet, soll hier und im Vorhergehenden eine Londoner Polizeiverordnung, betitelt The Statutes of the Streets (1595), persiflirt werden. 15) Diese Worte kommen in dem Eide vor, den ein Geschwornener der grossen Jury zu leisten hat. 16) vigilant für vigilant in Q. und Fol. — Die Folioausg. von 1632 hat vigilant, was die frühern Hgg. beibehielten. 17) Wie ein Trunkenbold im Rausch die Wahrheit sagt und nichts verschweigt. — Steevens vermuthet in diesen Worten eine Anspielung auf die Bedeutung des spanischen borracho = trunken. 18) villany, in Verbindung mit rich, ist die Schurkerei des John, während vorher villany, in Verbindung mit dear, die Schurkerei des Borachio ist, die derselbe sich so theuer bezahlen lässt. 19) unconfirmed = unbefestigt, noch nicht fest und sicher in solchen Angelegenheiten. 20) deformed thief ist in Borachio's Sinn eigentlich ein Dieb, der hässlich und entstellt ist, insofern er Andere entstellt, indem die wechselnde Mode ihren Verehrern immer neue, seltsame und geschmacklose Kleidung aufnöthigt. So in Comedy of Errors (A. 5, Sc. 1) Time's deformed hand. — Der lauschende Wächter hält das ihm unbekannte Wort für Watch. [Aside.] I know that Deformed; a' has been a vile thief this seven year; a' goes up and down like a gentleman. I remember his name.

Bora. Didst thou not hear somebody?

Con. No: 't was the vane on the house.

Bora. Seest thou not, I say, what a deformed thief this fashion is? how giddily a' turns about all the hot bloods between fourteen and five-and-thirty? sometime, fashioning them like Pharaoh's soldiers in the reechy painting;²¹ sometime, like god Bel's priests in the old church-window; sometime, like the shaven Hercules²² in the smirched worm-eaten tapestry, where his codpiece seems as massy as his club?

Con. All this I see, and I see that the fashion wears out more apparel than the man. But art not thou thyself giddy with the fashion too, that thou hast shifted out of thy tale into telling me of the fashion?

Bora. Not so neither; but know, that I have to-night wooed Margaret, the lady Hero's gentlewoman, by the name of Hero: she leans me out at her mistress' chamber-window, bids me a thousand times good night, — I tell this tale vilely: — I should first tell thee, how the prince, Claudio, and my master, planted, and placed, and possessed²³ by my master Don John, saw afar off in the orchard this amiable encounter.²⁴

Con. And thought they Margaret was Hero?

Bora. Two of them did, the prince and Claudio; but the devil, my master, knew she was Margaret; and partly by his oaths, which first possessed them, partly by the dark night, which did deceive them, but chiefly by my villany, which did confirm any slander that Don John had made, away went Claudio enraged; swore he would meet her, as he was appointed, next morning at the temple, and there, before the whole congregation, shame her with what he saw over night, and send her home again without a husband.

1. Watch. We charge you in the prince's name, stand.

2. Watch. Call up the right master constable. We have here recovered the most dangerous piece of lechery,²⁵ that ever was known in the commonwealth.

1. Watch. And one Deformed is one of them: I know him, a' wears a lock.²⁶

Con. Masters, masters!

2. Watch. You'll be made bring Deformed forth, I warrant you.

Con. Masters,²⁷ —

1. Watch. Never speak: we charge you, let us obey²⁸ you to go with us.

Bora. We are like to prove a goodly commodity, being taken up of these men's bills.²⁹

Con. A commodity in question,³⁰ I warrant you. Come, we'll obey you. [Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.

A Room in LEONATO'S House.

Enter HERO, MARGARET, and URSULA.

Hero. Good Ursula, wake my cousin Beatrice, and desire her to rise.

Urs. I will, lady.

Hero. And bid her come hither.

Urs. Well. [Exit.]

Marg. Troth, I think, your other rebato¹ were better.

Hero. No, pray thee, good Meg, I'll wear this.

Marg. By my troth 's not so good; and I warrant, your cousin will say so.

Hero. My cousin 's a fool, and thou art another. I'll wear none but this.

Marg. I like the new tire within² excellently, if the hair were a thought browner; and your gown 's a most rare fashion, i' faith. I saw the duchess of Milan's gown, that they praise so.

Hero. O, that exceeds, they say.

Marg. By my troth 's but a night-gown in respect of yours: cloth o' gold, and cuts, and laced with silver, set with pearls down sleeves, side sleeves,³ and skirts round, underborne with a bluish tinsel; but for a fine, quaint, graceful, and excellent fashion, yours is worth ten on 't.

Hero. God give me joy to wear it, for my heart is exceeding heavy!

Marg. 'T will be heavier soon by the weight of a man.

Hero. Fie upon thee! art not ashamed?

Marg. Of what, lady? of speaking honourably? Is not marriage honourable in a beggar? Is not your lord honourable⁴ without marriage? I think, you would have den Eigennamen eines ihm von Ansehn bekannten und längst verdächtigen Menschen. 21) reechy painting = ein von Rauch schmutzig gewordenes Bild. — Er denkt an ein altes Kirchenbild, das den Zug der Kinder Israel's durch's rothe Meer und der Pharaonischen Krieger hinterdrein darstellt. — Ebenso gleich darauf an ein Glasgemälde, das die biblische Geschichte vom Bel zu Babel darstellt. 22) the shaven Hercules ist, nach Steevens' Deutung, Hercules im Dienst der Omphale. — Anspielungen auf Wandtapeten, die mit mythologischen oder biblischen Bildern bemalt waren, kommen öfter bei Sh. vor. 23) possessed doppelsinnig = von einer Sache benachrichtigt oder überzeugt, und = besessen, wie von einem Teufel. In letzterer Beziehung sagt Borachio gleich nachher the devil, my master. 24) amiable encounter = zärtliches, verliebtes Rendez-vous. 25) Für lechery will er treachery sagen. 26) d. h. a love-lock = eine Haarlocke, die, mit einer Bandschleife verziert, hinterm Ohre lang herabhängt, eine Mode, über die auch Sh.'s Zeitgenossen sich lustig machen. 27) Q. und Fol. verbinden die folgenden Worte des Wächters noch mit Masters und legen Alles dem Conrad in den Mund. — Die richtige Abtheilung rührt von Theobald her. 28) obey sagt er missverständlich für das Gegentheil charge oder command. 29) to take up = auf Credit eine Waare (commodity) aufnehmen, und = verhaften, einstecken; bill = Schuldschein, Rechnung, und = Hellebarde, die Waffe dieser Nachtwächter. 30) question = gerichtliche Untersuchung, Verhör.

1) rebato = gesteifter Halskragen. Für rebato, wie Q. und Fol. nach der herkömmlichen Orthographie der Zeit schreiben, setzen die Hgg. meistens rabato. 2) Der neue Kopfputz da drinnen, in Eurem Zimmer, würde Euch noch besser stehen, wenn Euer Haar, in Uebereinstimmung damit, um eine Schattirung, um einen Gedanken dunkler wäre. — Steevens deutet the hair auf das falsche Haar, aus dem der Kopfputz bestehe. 3) Steevens streicht das von manchen Hggn. nach pearls gesetzte Comma, wodurch side sleeves = lange herabhängende Aermel, als Apposition und nähere Bestimmung zu dem vorhergehenden sleeves erscheint: das Kleid war die Aermel herunter mit Perlen besetzt, und diese Aermel hingen lang herab. 4) honourable = ehrenvoll, und = Titel eines vornehmen Mannes, wie Claudio. — Eben so doppelsinnig stehen, wie oft bei Sh., die Adjectiva heavy = schwer von me say, saving your reverence, — a husband: an bad thinking do not wrest true speaking, I'll offend nobody. Is there any harm in — the heavier for a husband? None, I think, an it be the right husband, and the right wife; otherwise 't is light, and not heavy: ask my lady Beatrice else; here she comes.

Enter BEATRICE.

Hero. Good morrow, coz.

Beat. Good morrow, sweet Hero.

Hero. Why, how now? do you speak in the sick tune?

Beat. I am out of all other tune, methinks.

Marg. Clap us into »Light o' love«; ⁵ that goes without a burden: do you sing it, and I'll dance it.

Beat. Yea, »Light o' love,« with your heels! — then, if your husband have stables enough, you'll see he shall lack no barns. ⁶

Marg. O illegitimate construction! I scorn that with my heels. ⁷

Beat. 'T is almost five o'clock, cousin: 't is time you were ready. By my troth, I am exceeding ill. — Heigh-ho!

Marg. For a hawk, a horse, or a husband? ⁸

Beat. For the letter that begins them all, H.

Marg. Well, an you be not turned Turk, ⁹ there's no more sailing by the star.

Beat. What means the fool, trow? ¹⁰

Marg. Nothing I; but God send every one their heart's desire!

Hero. These gloves the count sent me, they are an excellent perfume. ¹¹

Beat. I am stuffed, cousin, I cannot smell.

Marg. A maid, and stuffed! ¹² there's goodly catching of cold.

Beat. O, God help me! God help me! how long have you profess'd apprehension? ¹³

Marg. Ever since you left it. Doth not my wit become me rarely?

Beat. It is not seen enough, you should wear it in your cap. — By my troth, I am sick.

Marg. Get you some of this distilled Carduus Benedictus, and lay it to your heart: it is the only thing for a qualm.

Hero. There thou prick'st her with a thistle. ¹⁴

Beat. Benedictus! why Benedictus? you have some moral ¹⁵ in this Benedictus.

Marg. Moral? no, by my troth, I have no moral meaning; I meant, plain holy-thistle. You may think, perchance, that I think you are in love: nay, by 'r lady, I am not such a fool to think what I list; nor I list not to think what I can; nor indeed, I cannot think, if I would think my heart out of thinking, that you are in love, or that you will be in love, or that you can be in love. Yet Benedick was such another, and now is he become a man: ¹⁶ he swore he would never marry; and yet now, in despite of his heart, he eats his meat without grudging: and how you may be converted, I know not, but, methinks, you look with your eyes as other women do.

Beat. What pace is this that thy tongue keeps?

Marg. Not a false gallop.

Re-enter URSULA.

Urs. Madam, withdraw: ¹⁷ the prince, the count, Signior Benedick, Don John, and all the gallants of the town, are come to fetch you to church.

Hero. Help to dress me, good coz, good Meg, good Ursula. [Exeunt.]

SCENE V.

Another Room in LEONATO'S House.

Enter LEONATO, with DOGBERRY and VERGES. ¹

Leon. What would you with me, honest neighbour?

Dogb. Marry, Sir, I would have some confidence with you, that decerns ² you nearly.

Gewicht, und = schwermüthig, so wie light = leicht von Gewicht, und = leichtfertig. 5) Eine muntere Tanzmelodie, die als etwas leichtfertig auch in Two Gentlemen of Verona (A. 1, Sc. 2) erwähnt wird. Ebenso fasst Beatrice in ihrer Antwort den Sinn von Light o' love auf. 6) Wortspiel zwischen barn = Scheune, und = Kind. 7) to scorn with the heels = Etwas mit den Fersen verächtlich von sich weisen. So in Merchant of Venice (A. 2, Sc. 2) scorn running with thy heels. Hier zugleich anknüpfend an das vorhergehende with your heels in Bezug auf Light o' love. 8) Margarethe fasst exceeding ill = sich krankhaft nach Etwas sehnd, wie sick for in diesem Sinne häufig vorkommt, und nennt scherzhaft dreierlei Dinge, nach denen Beatrice sich möglicherweise sehne. Alle diese drei fangen mit dem Buchstaben h an, der, ache ausgesprochen, so klingt, wie ache = Schmerz, in Sh.'s Zeit ausgesprochen wurde. 9) to turn Turk = von seinem Glauben abfallen, wie Beatrice ihren Männerhass bisher gleichsam als einen Glaubensartikel hegte und jetzt ihm abgesagt hat. Wenn diese Beobachtung täuscht, so kann der Schiffer sich auch nicht mehr auf den Stand des Sterns verlassen, nach dessen Richtschnur er segelt. 10) trow = traun! 11) Parfümirte Handschuhe kommen als ein Modeartikel öfter vor, so in Winter's Tale (A. 4, Sc. 3) Gloves, as sweet as damask roses. 12) stuffed = verstopft in der Nase, verschnupft, und = vollgemacht, schwanger. 13) apprehension = Witz, schnelle Auffassungsgabe, wie Margarethe sie an den Tag legt, da sie Beatrice's Worte aufgreift und deutet. 14) Carduus Benedictus = heilsame Distel. Damit prickelt Margarethe die Beatrice, insofern der Name dieses Heilmittels zugleich an eine Distel und an Benedick erinnert. — Ugan in seinem Haven of Health (1589) sagt von diesem Heilmittel: This herb may worthily be call'd Benedictus, or Omnimorbia, that is, a salve for every sore, not known to physicians of old time, but lately revealed by the special providence of Almighty God. 15) moral = Nutzenwendung, die sich aus einer Fabel oder Geschichte ergibt, zugleich = der tiefere, allegorische Sinn, der in einem Worte liegt. 16) Jetzt ist er ein Mensch, wie die Andern auch, d. h. für Liebe empfänglich. In demselben Sinne zur Bezeichnung dieses gewöhnlichen, natürlichen Zustandes sind auch die folgenden Worte he eats his meat without grudging zu fassen, und, in Bezug auf Beatrice dann, you look with your eyes etc. = Ihr habt vor andern Frauen nichts voraus, seht ebenso aus den Augen, wie die andern. 17) d. h. zieht Euch in Eure Kammer zurück, um Euch zur Hochzeit anzukleiden.

1) Enter Leonato, and the Constable, and the Headborough in Q. und Fol. 2) Er sagt confidence für conference, und decerns für concerns. 3) off the matter = was nicht zur Sache gehört, was vom Gegen-

Leon. Brief, I pray you; for, you see, it is a busy time with me.

Dogb. Marry, this it is, Sir.

Verg. Yes, in truth it is, Sir.

Leon. What is it, my good friends?

Dogb. Goodman Verges, Sir, speaks a little off the matter:³ an old man, Sir, and his wits are not so blunt,⁴ as, God help, I would desire they were; but, in faith, honest as the skin between his brows.⁵

Verg. Yes, I thank God, I am as honest as any man living, that is an old man, and no honestier than I.

Dogb. Comparisons are odorous: palabras, neighbour Verges.⁶

Leon. Neighbours, you are tedious.

Dogb. It pleases your worship to say so, but we are the poor duke's officers;⁷ but, truly, for mine own part, if I were as tedious as a king, I could find in my heart to bestow it all of your worship.

Leon. All thy tediousness on me? ha!

Dogb. Yea, an't were a thousand pound⁸ more than 't is; for I hear as good exclamation on your worship, as of any man in the city, and though I be but a poor man, I am glad to hear it.

Verg. And so am I.

Leon. I would fain know what you have to say.

Verg. Marry, Sir, our watch to-night, excepting your worship's presence, have ta'en a couple of as arrant knaves as any in Messina.

Dogb. A good old man, Sir; he will be talking: as they say, when the age is in, the wit is out. God help us! it is a world to see!⁹ — Well said, i' faith, neighbour Verges: — well, God's a good man: an two men ride of a horse, one must ride behind.¹⁰ — An honest soul, i' faith, Sir: by my troth he is, as ever broke bread; but, God is to be worshipped: all men are not alike; alas, good neighbour!

Leon. Indeed, neighbour, he comes too short of you.

Dogb. Gifts that God gives.

Leon. I must leave you.

Dogb. One word, Sir. Our watch, Sir, have, indeed, comprehended two aspicious¹¹ persons, and we would have them this morning examined before your worship.

Leon. Take their examination yourself, and bring it me: I am now in great haste, as may appear unto you.¹²

Dogb. It shall be suffigance.¹³

Leon. Drink some wine ere you go. Fare you well.

Enter a Messenger.

Mess. My lord, they stay for you to give your daughter to her husband.

Leon. I'll wait upon them: I am ready.

[Exeunt LEONATO and Messenger.]

Dogb. Go, good partner, go; get you to Francis Seacoal;¹⁴ bid him bring his pen and inkhorn to the gaol: we are now to examination these men.¹⁵

Verg. And we must do it wisely.

Dogb. We will spare for no wit, I warrant you; here's that¹⁶ shall drive some of them to a non-com:¹⁷ only get the learned writer to set down our excommunication,¹⁸ and meet me at the gaol. [Exeunt.]

ACT IV.

SCENE I.

The Inside of a Church.

Enter Don PEDRO, JOHN, LEONATO, Friar FRANCIS, CLAUDIO, BENEDICK, HERO, BEATRICE, etc.

Leon. Come, friar Francis, be brief: only to the plain form of marriage, and you shall recount their particular duties afterwards.

Fri. You come hither, my lord, to marry this lady?

Claud. No.

Leon. To be married to her; friar, you come to marry her.¹

Fri. Lady, you come hither to be married to this count?

Hero. I do.

Fri. If either of you know any inward impediment, why you should not be conjoined,² I charge you on your souls to utter it.

Claud. Know you any, Hero?

Hero. None, my lord.

Fri. Know you any, count?

Leon. I dare make his answer; none.

Claud. O, what men dare do! what men may do! what men daily do, not knowing what they do!³

stande fern liegt. — Q. und Fol. haben of the matter, was auch Rowe noch beibehielt. 4) blunt für das Gegentheil, etwa sharp. 5) Dieser sprichwörtliche Ausdruck kommt schon vor Sh. vor. 6) odorous für odious, und palabras für spanisch pocas palabras = wenig Worte, fasst Euch kurz, eine Redensart, deren man sich damals in England mehrfach bedient zu haben scheint, und die auch in Taming of the Shrew (Induction Sc. 1) sich entstellt findet: paucas pallabris. 7) Er will sagen the duke's poor officers, wie in Measure for Measure (A. 2, Sc. 1) if it please your honour, I am the poor duke's constable. — Dogberry fasst tedious im Sinne von gracious. 8) pound in der Q.; times in der Fol. 9) it is a world to see, eine häufig wiederkehrende Phrase, die Holt White richtiger mit it is worth seeing, als Steevens mit it is wonderful to see erklärt. So steht in Barret's Alvearie it is a world to hear für das lateinische Audire est operae pretium. — Auch das folgende God's a good man ist sprichwörtlich von einer genügsamen, zufriedenen Lebensanschauung. 10) Unter demjenigen der beiden Reiter auf demselben Pferde, der hinten sitzt, versteht Dogberry seinen Amtsgenossen; er selbst sitzt vorn auf dem Pferde. 11) comprehended für apprehended, und aspicious für suspicious. 12) So die Fol.; die Q. hat as it may appear unto you. 13) suffigance für sufficient. 14) In A. 3, Sc. 3 wurde George Seacoal unter den bestellten Constablern erwähnt. — Nach den Cambridge Edd. sind zwei verschiedene Persönlichkeiten darunter verstanden, da der Stadtschreiber und Küster nicht wohl den untergeordneten Posten eines Constablers versehen konnte. 15) So mit charakteristischem Sprachfehler die Q.; die Fol. hat to examine those men. 16) Manche Hgg. fügen zur Erklärung die Bühnenweisung ein: touching his forehead. 17) non-com, herkömmlich abgekürzt aus dem lateinischen non compos mentis = von Sinnen, sagt Dogberry für non-plus: to drive to a non-plus = Jemanden in die Enge treiben. 18) Er meint examination.

1) Leonato kann sich Claudio's No nur so erklären, dass Claudio das Wort to marry = verheirathen, der Mönch aber es = heirathen, fasst. 2) Diese Worte sind aus dem zu Sh.'s Zeit gebräuchlichen englischen Traungs-

Bene. How now! Interjections? Why then, some be of laughing, as, ah! ha! he!⁴

Claud. Stand thee by, friar.⁵ — Father, by your leave:

Will you with free and unconstrained soul Give me this maid, your daughter?

Leon. As freely, son, as God did give her me.

Claud. And what have I to give you back, whose worth May counterpoise this rich and precious gift?

D. Pedro. Nothing, unless you render her again.

Claud. Sweet prince, you learn me noble thankfulness. —

There, Leonato, take her back again:

Give not this rotten orange to your friend;

She 's but the sign and semblance of her honour. —

Behold, how like a maid she blushes here:

O, what authority and show of truth

Can cunning sin cover itself withal!

Comes not that blood,⁶ as modest evidence,

To witness simple virtue? Would you not swear,

All you that see her, that she were a maid,

By these exterior shows? But she is none:

She knows the heat of a luxurious⁷ bed;

Her blush is guiltiness, not modesty.

Leon. What do you mean, my lord?

Claud. Not to be married,⁸

Not to knit my soul to an approved wanton.

Leon. Dear my lord, if you, in your own proof,⁹

Have vanquish'd the resistance of her youth,

And made defeat of her virginity, —

Claud. I know what you would say: if I have known her,¹⁰

You 'll say, she did embrace me as a husband,

And so extenuate the 'forehand sin:

No, Leonato,

I never tempted her with word too large;¹¹

But, as a brother to his sister, showed

Bashful sincerity, and comely love.

Hero. And seem'd I ever otherwise to you?

Claud. Out on thee, seeming!¹² I will write against it:

You seem to me as Dian in her orb,

As chaste as is the bud ere it be blown;

But you are more intemperate in your blood

Than Venus, or those pamp'ring animals

That rage in savage sensuality.

Hero. Is my lord well, that he doth speak so wide?¹³

Claud. Sweet prince, why speak not you?

D. Pedro.

What should I speak?

I stand dishonour'd, that have gone about

To link my dear friend to a common stale.

Leon. Are these things spoken,¹⁴ or do I but dream?

John. Sir, they are spoken, and these things are true.

Bene. This looks not like a nuptial.¹⁵

Hero.

True!¹⁶ O God!

Claud. Leonato, stand I here?

Is this the prince? Is this the prince's brother?

Is this face Hero's? Are our eyes our own?

Leon. All this is so; but what of this, my lord?

Claud. Let me but move one question to your daughter, And, by that fatherly and kindly¹⁷ power

That you have in her, bid her answer truly.

Leon. I charge thee do so,¹⁸ as thou art my child.

Hero. O God, defend me! how am I beset! —

What kind of catechising call you this?

Claud. To make you answer truly to your name.

Hero. Is it not Hero?¹⁹ Who can blot that name

With any just reproach?

Claud. Marry, that can Hero:

Hero itself can blot out Hero's virtue.

What man was he talk'd with you yesternight

Out at your window, betwixt twelve and one?

Now, if you are a maid, answer to this.

Hero. I talk'd with no man at that hour, my lord.

D. Pedro. Why, then are you no maiden. — Leonato,

I am sorry you must hear: upon mine honour,

Myself, my brother, and this grieved count,

Did see her, hear her, at that hour last night,

Talk with a ruffian at her chamber-window;

Who hath, indeed, most like a liberal²⁰ villain,

Confess'd the vile encounters they have had

A thousand times in secret.

John. Fie, fie: they are not to be nam'd, my lord,

Not to be spoke of;

There is not chastity enough in language,

Without offence to utter them. Thus, pretty lady,

I am sorry for thy much misgovernment.²¹

Claud. O Hero! what a Hero hadst thou been,

If half thy outward graces had been placed

About thy thoughts, and counsels of thy heart!

But, fare thee well, most foul, most fair! farewell, formular. 3) not knowing what they do fehlt in der Fol. 4) Ein Citat aus der kleinen englischen Schulgrammatik, wie vor Sh. Lyly es in seinem Endymion scherzhaft gebraucht hatte: An interjection, whereof some are of mourning, as eho! vah! 5) Tritt bei Seite, Mönch. 6) that blood ist hinweisend = das Blut, das jetzt in Hero's Wange steigt und ein Schamerröthen bedeuten soll. 7) luxurious = wollüstig, geil. 8) Claudio fasst to mean, das Leonato = was wollt Ihr damit sagen? gebraucht, vielmehr = beabsichtigen: I mean not to be married. 9) proof bezieht sich auf das vorhergehende approved = bewährt, erprobt: wenn Ihr in der Erprobung, die Ihr selbst mit Hero angestellt habt, u. s. w. 10) to know = erkennen, in geschlechtlichem Sinn. 11) Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 3, Anm. 27. 12) So Q. und Fol. — seeming ist die in Hero personifizierte Heuchelei, welche Claudio anredet, wie in Winter's Tale (A. 4, Sc. 3) die Perdita als enchantment, und in K. John (A. 3, Sc. 4) die Constanze als fair affliction angeredet wird. — Die meisten Hgg. ändern mit Pope Out on thy seeming, und Knight Out on the seeming! 13) wide = weit vom Ziel, in der Irre, verkehrt. So in Troilus and Cressida (A. 3, Sc. 1) No, no; no such matter, you are wide. — Die folgende Rede theilen die Hgg. mit Q. und Fol. dem Leonato zu; Dyce, nach Tieck's Vorschlag, giebt sie passender dem Claudio. 14) Wird das wirklich gesprochen, was ich da zu hören glaube, oder ist es nur ein Traum? 15) nuptial gebraucht Sh. gewöhnlich im Singular. 16) Hero's Ausruf bezieht sich auf John's Worte these things are true. 17) kindly = natürlich, auf die Bande der Blutsverwandtschaft begründet. 18) Die Fol. lässt so aus. 19) scil. Is not my name Hero? So antwortet sie auf Claudio's Worte, dass dieses Verhör sie dazu bringen sollte, ihrem wahren Namen gemäss zu antworten. 20) liberal = frech in Reden, ohne Zurückhaltung. 21) Es thut mir leid um Dein sehr schlechtes Verhalten. — much steht vor misgovernment, als ob das Wort aus einem Adjectiv und Substantiv zusammengesetzt sei, wie ill government oder bad government. 22) Aeusserlich rein und innerlich ruchlos. Vgl. oben Anm. 12. 23) Auf Claudio's Auge soll

Thou pure impiety, and impious purity!²²
For thee I'll lock up all the gates of love,
And on my eyelids shall conjecture²³ hang,
To turn all beauty into thoughts of harm,
And never shall it more be gracious.²⁴

Leon. Hath no man's dagger here a point for me?

[HERO swoons.]

Beat. Why, how now, cousin! wherefore sink you down?

John. Come, let us go. These things, come thus to light,
Smother her spirits up.

[Exeunt DON PEDRO, JOHN, and CLAUDIO.]

Bene. How doth the lady?

Beat. Dead, I think: — help, uncle! —

Hero! why, Hero! — Uncle! — Signior Benedick! — Friar!

Leon. O fate! take not away thy heavy hand:
Death is the fairest cover for her shame,
That may be wish'd for.

Beat. How now, cousin Hero?

Fri. Have comfort, lady.

Leon. Dost thou look up?

Fri. Yea; wherefore should she not?

Leon. Wherefore? Why, doth not every earthly thing
Cry shame upon her? Could she here deny
The story that is printed in her blood? —
Do not live, Hero; do not ope thine eyes;
For did I think thou wouldst not quickly die,
Thought I thy spirits were stronger than thy shames,
Myself would, on the rearward²⁵ of reproaches,
Strike at thy life. Grieved I, I had but one?
Chid I for that at frugal nature's frame?²⁶
O, one too much by thee! Why had I one?
Why ever wast thou lovely in my eyes?
Why had I not with charitable hand
Took up a beggar's issue at my gates;
Who smirched²⁷ thus, and mir'd with infamy,
I might have said, 'No part of it is mine,
This shame derives itself from unknown loins.'²⁸
But mine, and mine I lov'd, and mine I prais'd,²⁹
And mine that I was proud on; mine so much,

That I myself was to myself not mine,
Valuing of her; why, she — O! she is fallen
Into a pit of ink,²⁹ that the wide sea
Hath drops too few to wash her clean again,
And salt too little, which may season give
To her foul-tainted flesh!

Bene. Sir, Sir, be patient.

For my part, I am so attir'd in wonder,
I know not what to say.

Beat. O, on my soul, my cousin is belied!

Bene. Lady, were you her bedfellow last night?

Beat. No, truly, not; although, until last night,

I have this twelvemonth been her bedfellow.

Leon. Confirm'd, confirm'd! O, that is stronger made,
Which was before barr'd up with ribs of iron!

Would the two princes lie? and Claudio lie,
Who lov'd her so, that, speaking of her foulness,
Wash'd it with tears?³⁰ Hence from her, let her die.

Fri. Hear me a little;

For I have only been silent so long,

And given way unto this course of fortune,

By noting of the lady: I have mark'd

A thousand blushing apparitions

To start³¹ into her face; a thousand innocent shames

In angel whiteness beat³² away those blushes;

And in her eye there hath appear'd a fire,

To burn the errors³³ that these princes hold

Against her maiden truth. — Call me a fool;

Trust not my reading, nor my observation,³⁴

Which with experimental seal doth warrant

The tenour of my book; trust not my age,

My reverence, calling, nor divinity,

If this sweet lady lie not guiltless here

Under some biting error.³⁵

Leon. Friar, it cannot be.

Thou seest, that all the grace that she hath left,

Is, that she will not add to her damnation

A sin of perjury: she not denies it.

Why seek'st thou then to cover with excuse

That which appears in proper nakedness?

Fri. Lady, what man is he you are accus'd of?

Hero. They know that do accuse me, I know none.

fernerhin der Argwohn thronen, dass er bei jeder Schönheit, die er zu Gesicht bekommt, böse Gedanken hegt, ihr Böses zutraut. — conjecture = argwöhnische Vermuthung, gebraucht Sh. auch so in Winter's Tale (A. 2, Sc. 1) their familiarity, || Which was as gross as ever touch'd conjecture. 24) Die Schönheit soll dem Claudio fortan niemals wieder als lieblich oder als mit guten Gaben ausgestattet erscheinen. 25) Das rearward der Q. entstellt die Fol. durch einen Druckfehler zu reward: hinter den Vorwürfen her, mit denen ich Dich jetzt überhäufe, würde ich Dich umbringen. — on the rearward steht in demselben übertragenen Sinne, wie vorher behind the back (vgl. A. 3, Sc. 1, Anm. 26). 26) Klagte ich jemals, dass ich nur ein Kind hätte, und schalt deshalb auf die sparsame Ordnung oder Fügung der Natur, die mir nur das eine Kind gab? — So heisst es in K. Richard III. (A. 1, Sc. 2) von dem jungen Prinzen Eduard: Fram'd in the prodigality of nature. 27) smirched in der Q.; smeared in der Fol.: wenn dieses Bettlerkind dann so mit Schande befleckt und in den Koth gezogen wäre, so hätte ich sagen können: Es ist kein Theil von mir. 28) scil. mine that I lov'd, mine that I prais'd, wie gleich darauf mine that I was proud on. 29) ink wird zu Sh.'s Zeit auch in edlen Gleichnissen gebraucht; es bezeichnet hier die schwarze Befleckung, mit der Hero sich verunstaltet hat. Diese Befleckung ist so gross, dass das Meer nicht Tropfen genug hat, um die Hero wieder rein zu waschen, und nicht Salz genug, um ihr arg beflecktes Fleisch vor Fäulniss zu bewahren. — Mit foul-tainted vergleicht Dyce foul-defiled blood in Sh.'s Lucrece. 30) Claudio, als er von Hero's sittlichem Schmutz oder Flecken sprach, suchte diesen gleichsam durch seine Thränen abzuwaschen. 31) So Q. und Fol. — Die meisten Hgg. streichen to und setzen start in die vorhergehende Zeile. 32) Für beat der Q. lesen viele Hgg. mit der Fol. bear. 33) Dasselbe Bild von dem Feuer, in welchem die Ketzer ihre Irrthümer verbrannt sehen, findet sich in Romeo and Juliet (A. 1, Sc. 2) ebenfalls auf das Auge angewendet: Transparent heretics, be burnt for liars. 34) observation setzte Dyce mit Recht für observations der Q. und Fol., da sich der folgende Relativsatz auf dieses Wort bezieht: meine Beobachtung verbürgt mit dem Siegel der Erfahrung den Inhalt dessen, was ich aus meinen Büchern gelernt habe. — book ist dasselbe, was eben vorher reading hiess. 35) some biting error ist der Schlangenbiss einer irrigen Verläumdung, von dem getroffen die Hero schuldlos daliegt.

If I know more of any man alive,
Than that which maiden modesty doth warrant,
Let all my sins lack mercy! — O my father!
Prove you that any man with me convers'd
At hours unmeet, or that I yesternight
Maintain'd the change of words with any creature,
Refuse me, hate me, torture me to death.

Fri. There is some strange misprision in the princes.

Bene. Two of them have the very bent of honour;³⁶
And if their wisdoms be misled in this,
The practice³⁷ of it lives in John the bastard,
Whose spirits toil in frame of villanies.³⁸

Leon. I know not. If they speak but truth of her,
These hands shall tear her; if they wrong her honour,
The proudest of them shall well hear of it.
Time hath not yet so dried this blood of mine,
Nor age so eat up my invention,³⁹
Nor fortune made such havoc of my means,
Nor my bad life⁴⁰ reft me so much of friends,
But they shall find, awak'd in such a kind,
Both strength of limb, and policy of mind,
Ability in means, and choice of friends,
To quit me of them thoroughly.

Fri. Pause awhile,
And let my counsel sway you in this case.
Your daughter here the princes left for dead;⁴¹
Let her awhile be secretly kept in,
And publish it, that she is dead indeed:
Maintain a mourning ostentation;⁴²
And on your family's old monument
Hang mournful epitaphs, and do all rites
That appertain unto a burial.

Leon. What shall become of this? what will this do?

Fri. Marry, this, well carried, shall on her behalf
Change slander to remorse; that is some good:
But not for that dream I on this strange course,
But on this travail look for greater birth.⁴³
She dying, as it must be so maintain'd,
Upon the instant that she was accus'd,
Shall be lamented, pitied and excus'd
Of every hearer; for it so falls out,
That what we have we prize not to the worth,
Whiles we enjoy it, but being lack'd and lost,
Why, then we rack⁴⁴ the value; then we find
The virtue, that possession would not show us,
Whiles it was ours. — So will it fare with Claudio:
When he shall hear she died upon his words,⁴⁵

The idea of her life shall sweetly creep
Into his study of imagination,⁴⁶
And every lovely organ of her life
Shall come apparell'd in more precious habit,
More moving, delicate, and full of life,
Into the eye and prospect of his soul,
Than when she liv'd indeed: — then shall he mourn,
(If ever love had interest in his liver)⁴⁷
And wish he had not so accused her;
No, though he thought his accusation true.
Let this be so, and doubt not but success
Will fashion the event in better shape
Than I can lay it down in likelihood.⁴⁸
But if all aim but this⁴⁹ be levell'd false,
The supposition of the lady's death
Will quench the wonder of her infamy:
And, if it sort not well, you may conceal her,
As best befits her wounded reputation,
In some reclusive and religious life,
Out of all eyes, tongues, minds, and injuries.

Bene. Signior Leonato, let the friar advise you:
And though, you know, my inwardness⁵⁰ and love
Is very much unto the prince and Claudio,
Yet, by mine honour, I will deal in this
As secretly and justly, as your soul
Should with your body.

Leon. Being that I flow in grief,
The smallest twine may lead me.⁵¹

Fri. 'T is well consented: presently away,
For to strange sores strangely they strain the cure.⁵² —
Come, lady, die to live: this wedding-day,
Perhaps, is but prolong'd: have patience, and endure.

[Exeunt Friar, HERO, and LEONATO.]

Bene. Lady Beatrice, have you wept all this while?
Beat. Yea, and I will weep a while longer.
Bene. I will not desire that.
Beat. You have no reason; I do it freely.
Bene. Surely, I do believe your fair cousin is wronged.
Beat. Ah, how much might the man deserve of me that would right her!

Bene. Is there any way to show such friendship?
Beat. A very even way, but no such friend.
Bene. May a man do it?
Beat. It is a man's office, but not yours.
Bene. I do love nothing in the world so well as you.
Is not that strange?
Beat. As strange as the thing I know not. It were as

A. 2, Sc. 3, Anm. 33. 37) practice = hinterlistiger Anschlag. 38) in frame of villanies = darin, dass er Schurkenstreiche sich ausdenkt und ausführt. 39) invention = das Vermögen, Pläne zu entwerfen oder Auskunftsmittel zu ersinnen, entspricht dem folgenden policy of mind. 40) bad life = ein unglückliches Leben, ein Leben voll Missgeschick. 41) Q. und Fol. lesen diese Zeile missverständlich Your daughter here the princess (left for dead). — Theobald setzte das Richtige. 42) a mourning ostentation = eine Darlegung von äusserlicher Trauer. 43) Ich erwarte von diesen Geburtswehen eine bedeutendere Geburt, einen grösseren Erfolg, als bloss die Verwandlung der Verläumdung in Reue und Mitleid (remorse). 44) to rack = anspannen, ausdehnen: wenn ein Gut verloren ist und vermisst wird, dann schätzen wir dessen Werth in seiner vollen Ausdehnung. 45) In Folge seiner Worte, unmittelbar nachdem er so geredet hatte. 46) So wird Hero's Bild, wie sie lebendig war, sich hold in die Phantasie schleichen, mit der er sich beschäftigt, der er nachhängt. 47) Die Leber ist bei Sh. der Sitz der Leidenschaft, also hier: wenn er jemals leidenschaftlicher Liebe fähig war. 48) in likelihood = in Schlüssen oder Voraussetzungen der Wahrscheinlichkeit. 49) but this weist auf das Folgende hin: wenn auch jede andere Berechnung falsch sein sollte, ausser dieser einen, so wird doch jedenfalls die Annahme von dem Tode des Fräuleins die erstaunliche Kunde von ihrer Schmach ersticken. 50) inwardness = Vertraulichkeit, Intimität. — So in Measure for Measure (A. 3, Sc. 2) Sir, I was an inward of his. 51) In der Fluth des Jammers, in welcher Leonato treibt, ergreift er begierig auch den dünnsten Rettungsfaden, der ihm zugeworfen wird. 52) Zwischen strange, strangely und strain ist ein Gleichklang beabsichtigt. possible for me to say, I loved nothing so well as you; but believe me not, and yet I lie not: I confess nothing, nor I deny nothing. — I am sorry for my cousin.

Bene. By my sword, Beatrice, thou lovest me.

Beat. Do not swear by it,⁵³ and eat it.

Bene. I will swear by it, that you love me; and I will make him eat it, that says I love not you.

Beat. Will you not eat your word?

Bene. With no sauce that can be devised to it. I protest, I love thee.

Beat. Why then, God forgive me!

Bene. What offence, sweet Beatrice?

Beat. You have stayed me in a happy hour: I was about to protest, I loved you.

Bene. And do it with all thy heart.

Beat. I love you with so much of my heart, that none is left to protest.

Bene. Come, bid me do anything for thee.

Beat. Kill Claudio.

Bene. Ha! not for the wide world.

Beat. You kill me to deny it.⁵⁴ Farewell.

Bene. Tarry, sweet Beatrice.

Beat. I am gone, though I am here.⁵⁵ — There is no love in you. — Nay, I pray you, let me go.

Bene. Beatrice, —

Beat. In faith, I will go.

Bene. We'll be friends first.

Beat. You dare easier be friends with me, than fight with mine enemy.

Bene. Is Claudio thine enemy?

Beat. Is he not approved in the height a villain,⁵⁶ that hath slandered, scorned, dishonoured my kinswoman? — O, that I were a man! — What! bear her in hand until they come to take hands,⁵⁷ and then with public accusation, uncovered slander, unmitigated rancour, — O God, that I were a man! I would eat his heart in the marketplace.

Bene. Hear me, Beatrice, —

Beat. Talk with a man out at a window! — a proper saying.

Bene. Nay, but, Beatrice, —

Beat. Sweet Hero! — she is wronged, she is slandered, she is undone.

Bene. Beat —⁵⁸

Beat. Princes, and counties! Surely, a princely testimony, a goodly count, count-confect;⁵⁹ a sweet gallant, surely! O, that I were a man for his sake! or that I had any friend would be a man for my sake! But manhood is melted into courtesies,⁶⁰ valour into compliment, and men are only turned into tongue, and trim ones too:⁶¹ he is now as valiant as Hercules, that only tells a lie, and swears it. — I cannot be a man with wishing, therefore I will die a woman with grieving.

Bene. Tarry, good Beatrice. By this hand, I love thee.

Beat. Use it for my love some other way than swearing by it.

Bene. Think you in your soul the count Claudio hath wronged Hero?

Beat. Yea, as sure as I have a thought, or a soul.

Bene. Enough! I am engaged, I will challenge him. I will kiss your hand, and so I leave you. By this hand, Claudio shall render me a dear account. As you hear of me, so think of me. Go, comfort your cousin: I must say she is dead; and so, farewell. [Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

A Prison.

*Enter DOGBERRY, VERGES, and Sexton, in gowns; and the Watch, with CONRADE and BORACHIO.*¹

Dogb. Is our whole dissembly² appeared?

Verg. O! a stool and a cushion for the sexton.

Sexton. Which be the malefactors?

Dogb. Marry, that am I and my partner.³

Verg. Nay, that's certain: we have the exhibition to examine.⁴

Sexton. But which are the offenders that are to be examined? let them come before master constable.

Dogb. Yea, marry, let them come before me. — What is your name, friend?

Bora. Borachio.

fallender Weise gewaltsame Heilmittel an. 53) by it fehlt in der Q. — eat it bezieht Beatrice darauf, dass Benedick den Eid, den er geleistet, dann gleich widerrufen werde; wie to eat one's words = seine Worte zurücknehmen. — Benedick versteht to eat von seinem Schwerte, das er Dem zu kosten geben will, der seine Liebe zur Beatrice bezweifelt. 54) Der Nachdruck liegt auf me: Ihr tödtet mich, wenn Ihr es mir abschlagt, den Claudio zu tödten. — it fehlt in der Fol. 55) Ich bin dahin, bin für Euch verloren, wenn ich auch körperlich noch hier bin. 56) in the height gehört zu a villain = ein Schurke in höchstem Grade. So in K. Henry VIII. (A. 1, Sc. 2) He's traitor to the height. — to approve = erweisen. 57) Wortspiel zwischen to bear in hand = hinhalten, täuschen, und to take hands = sich die Hände reichen zur Vermählung. 58) Beatrice will er sagen, und wird mitten in dem Worte unterbrochen. — Q. und Fol. lesen Beat? woraus die spätern Folioausgg. But machten. 59) count-confect = Graf aus Zuckerzeug, nennt sie ironisch, wie gleich nachher sweet gallant, den Claudio. — So die Q.; die Fol. liest a goodly count-confect. 60) Die Männlichkeit ist zu lauter Verbeugungen und Höflichkeitsdemonstrationen geworden. 61) Steevens bezieht trim ones auf men, Malone auf tongue, wofür Heath tongues setzen wollte. — Steevens' Erklärung scheint die natürlichere: selbst schmucke Männer sind ganz zur Zunge geworden, können nur schwatzen, oder auch: sie erscheinen der Welt als schmucke Männer, nachdem sie ganz Zunge geworden sind.

1) In Q. und Fol. Enter the Constables, Borachio, and the town-clerk in gowns. — Vor den Reden steht jedoch richtig Sexton statt des town-clerk. Dogberry's Reden werden in der Scene mit Kemp, einmal verdruckt als Keeper, bezeichnet, ebenso Verges' Reden mit Cowley. Beides sind Namen von Mitgliedern der Sh.'schen Schauspielergesellschaft, welche diese Rollen spielten. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 3, Anm. 7. — Das in gowns bezeichnet den richterlichen Charakter, in dem die Genannten zu fungiren haben. 2) Er meint assembly. 3) Dogberry fasst malefactors = Untersuchungsrichter oder Ankläger. — Diese Rede Dogberry's wird in Q. und Fol. einem Andrew zugetheilt. Andrew war eine scherzhafte Benennung des Schauspielers Kemp. Vgl. Anm. 1 dieser Scene. 4) d. h. to exhibit the examination. 5) I am a gentleman versetzt Conrad auf die Anrede sirrah, mit der man einen Niedrigergestellten anredet. 6) Das Folgende bis before such villains fehlt in der Fol., da es von der Theatercensur als

Dogb. Pray, write down Borachio. — Yours, sirrah?

Con. I am a gentleman,⁵ Sir, and my name is Conrade.

Dogb. Write down master gentleman Conrade. — Masters, do you serve God?⁶

Con., Bora. Yea, Sir, we hope.

Dogb. Write down, that they hope they serve God: — and write God first; for God defend but God should go before such villains! — Masters, it is proved already that you are little better than false knaves, and it will go near to be thought so shortly. How answer you for yourselves?

Con. Marry, Sir, we say we are none.

Dogb. A marvellous witty fellow, I assure you; but I will go about with him. — Come you hither, sirrah; a word in your ear, Sir: I say to you, it is thought you are false knaves.

Bora. Sir, I say to you, we are none.

Dogb. Well, stand aside. — 'Fore God, they are both in a tale.⁷ Have you writ down, that they are none?

Sexton. Master constable, you go not the way to examine: you must call forth the watch that are their accusers.

Dogb. Yea, marry, that 's the effest⁸ way. — Let the watch come forth. — Masters, I charge you, in the prince's name, accuse these men.

1. Watch. This man said, Sir, that Don John, the prince's brother, was a villain.

Dogb. Write down — prince John a villain. — Why, this is flat perjury,⁹ to call a prince's brother villain.

Bora. Master constable, —

Dogb. Pray thee, fellow, peace: I do not like thy look, I promise thee.

Sexton. What heard you him say else?

2. Watch. Marry, that he had received a thousand ducats of Don John, for accusing the lady Hero wrongfully.

Dogb. Flat burglary as ever was committed.

Verg. Yea, by the mass, that it is.

Sexton. What else, fellow?

1. Watch. And that count Claudio did mean, upon his words, to disgrace Hero before the whole assembly, and not marry her.

Dogb. O villain! thou wilt be condemned into everlasting redemption¹⁰ for this.

Sexton. What else?

2. Watch. This is all.

Sexton. And this is more, masters, than you can deny. Prince John is this morning secretly stolen away: Hero was in this manner accused, in this very manner refused, and, upon the grief of this, suddenly died. Master constable, let these men be bound, and brought to Leonato's: I will go before, and show him their examination.

[Exit.

Dogb. Come, let them be opinioned.¹¹

Verg. Let them be in the hands —

Con. Off, coxcomb!

Dogb. God 's my life! where 's the sexton? let him write down the prince's officer, coxcomb. — Come, bind them. — Thou naughty varlet!

Con. Away! you are an ass; you are an ass.

Dogb. Dost thou not suspect¹² my place? Dost thou not suspect my years? — O, that he were here to write me down an ass! — but, masters, remember, that I am an ass; though it be not written down, yet forget not that I am an ass. — No, thou villain, thou art full of piety, as shall be proved upon thee by good witness. I am a wise fellow; and, which is more, an officer; and, which is more, a householder; and, which is more, as pretty a piece of flesh as any¹³ in Messina; and one that knows the law, go to; and a rich fellow enough, go to; and a fellow that hath had losses; and one that hath two gowns, and every thing handsome about him. Bring him away. O, that I had been writ down an ass! [Exeunt.

ACT V.

SCENE I.

Before LEONATO'S House.

Enter LEONATO and ANTONIO.

Ant. If you go on thus, you will kill yourself; And 't is not wisdom thus to second grief Against yourself.

Leon. I pray thee, cease thy counsel, Which falls into mine ears as profitless As water in a sieve. Give not me counsel; Nor let no comforter¹ delight mine ear. But such a one whose wrongs do suit with mine: Bring me a father that so lov'd his child, Whose joy of her² is overwhelm'd like mine, And bid him speak of patience: Measure his woe the length and breadth of mine, And let it answer every strain for strain;³ As thus for thus, and such a grief for such, In every lineament, branch, shape, and form: If such a one will smile, and stroke his beard, And — sorrow, wag!⁴ — cry hem, when he should groan; blasphemisch gestrichen war. — In Dogberry's folgender Rede müsste dem Sinne nach proved und thought umgestellt werden. 7) Sie sagen Beide dasselbe aus. 8) effest leitet Boswell von dem veralteten eft = soon her und erklärt es mit quickest. Da sich solch eine Superlativform aber sonst nirgendwo findet, so ist Steevens' Vermuthung plausibler, dass Dogberry effest aus deftest entstellt. — deft = passend, geschickt. 9) Er meint treason für perjury, wie bald nachher burglary für conspiracy steht. 10) redemption für damnation. 11) Er meint pinioned. — Die folgenden beiden Reden, in eine so zusammengezogen: Let them be in the hands of Coxcomb, theilte die Q. dem Verges (Cowley), die Fol. dem Sexton zu. — Die meisten Hgg. vertheilen mit Warburton die Reden so: Verg. Let them be in the hands —. Con. Off, coxcomb, während Theobald die ganze Rede Let — coxcomb dem Conrad zutheilte. — Staunton setzt, nach einer Conjectur Malone's: Verg. Let them be in the hands of —. Con. Coxcomb! — Collier's alter Corrector setzt: Sex. Let them be bound. — Bor. Hands off, coxcomb. 12) suspect für respect, wie bald nachher piety für impiety. — Die vorige Rede theilen Q. und Fol. irrthümlich dem Verges zu, indem sie Cowley davor setzen. 13) So die Fol.; die Q. as any is in Messina.

1) So die Q.; die Fol. comfort, dem die spätern Folioausgg. else hinzufügten, um den Vers zu vervollständigen. 2) her bezieht sich auf child, da damit nur eine Tochter gemeint sein kann: ein Vater, der sein Kind so liebte, wie ich meine Tochter. 3) Und lasse sein Weh dem meinigen Zug für Zug entsprechen. 4) Der Vers lautet

Patch grief with proverbs; ⁵ make misfortune drunk
With candle-wasters: ⁶ bring him yet to me,
And I of him will gather patience.
But there is no such man; for, brother, men
Can counsel, and speak comfort to that grief
Which they themselves not feel; but, tasting it,
Their counsel turns to passion, which before
Would give preceptual medicine to rage, ⁷
Fetter strong madness in a silken thread,
Charm ache with air, and agony with words.
No, no; 't is all men's office to speak patience
To those that wring under the load of sorrow,
But no man's virtue, nor sufficiency,
To be so moral, ⁸ when he shall endure
The like himself. Therefore give me no counsel:
My griefs cry louder than advertisement. ⁹

Ant. Therein do men from children nothing differ.

Leon. I pray thee, peace! I will be flesh and blood;
For there was never yet philosopher,
That could endure the tooth-ache patiently,
However they have writ the style of gods, ¹⁰
And made a push at chance and sufferance.

Ant. Yet bend not all the harm upon yourself;
Make those that do offend you suffer too.

Leon. There thou speak'st reason: nay, I will do so.
My soul doth tell me Hero is belied;
And that shall Claudio know; so shall the prince,
And all of them, that thus dishonour her.

Enter Don PEDRO and CLAUDIO.

Ant. Here comes the prince and Claudio hastily.

D. Pedro. Good den, good den.

Claud. Good day to both of you.

Leon. Hear you, my lords, —

D. Pedro. We have some haste, Leonato.

Leon. Some haste, my lord! — well, fare you well, my lord: —

Are you so hasty now? — well, all is one.

D. Pedro. Nay, do not quarrel with us, good old man.

Ant. If he could right himself with quarrelling, ¹¹
Some of us would lie low.

Claud. Who wrongs him?

Leon. Marry, thou dost wrong me; thou, dissembler
thou. —

Nay, never lay thy hand upon thy sword;
I fear thee not.

Claud. Marry, beshrew my hand,
If it should give your age such cause of fear.
In faith, my hand meant nothing to my sword. ¹²

Leon. Tush, tush, man! never fleer and jest at me:
I speak not like a dotard, nor a fool,
As, under privilege of age, to brag
What I have done being young, or what would do,
Were I not old. Know, Claudio, to thy head, ¹³
Thou hast so wrong'd mine innocent child and me,
That I am forc'd to lay my reverence by,
And with grey hairs, and bruise of many days, ¹⁴
Do challenge thee to trial of a man.

I say, thou hast belied mine innocent child:
Thy slander hath gone through and through her heart,
And she lies buried with her ancestors,
O! in a tomb where never scandal slept,
Save this of hers, fram'd by thy villany.

Claud. My villany?

Leon. Thine, Claudio; thine, I say.

D. Pedro. You say not right, old man.

Leon. My lord, my lord,
I'll prove it on his body, if he dare,
Despite his nice fence, ¹⁵ and his active practice,
His May of youth, and bloom of lustihood.

Claud. Away! I will not have to do with you.

Leon. Canst thou so daff ¹⁶ me? Thou hast kill'd my child:

If thou kill'st me, boy, thou shalt kill a man.

Ant. He shall kill two of us, and men indeed:

But that 's no matter; let him kill one first; —

Win me and wear me; ¹⁷ — let him answer me. —

Come, follow me, boy! come, sir boy, come, follow me.

in Q. und Fol. And sorrow, wagge, crie (cry) hem, when he should grone. — Nachdem die Hgg. sich vergeblich in einer ganzen Reihe von Aenderungen versucht haben, von denen die plausibelsten die von Johnson Cry — sorrow, wag! and hem when he should groan, und die von Heath And sorrowing cry hem, when he etc. sein mögen, erscheint es am sichersten, den alten Text beizubehalten, mit der Interpunction von Dyce, welche sorrow, wag! = Schmerz, trolle Dich! packe Dich! als Parenthese fasst, und cry hem = Hm! sagen, verbindet. So in As you like it (A. 1, Sc. 3) Rosalind. — these burs are in my heart. — Celia. Hem them away. — Rosalind. I would try, if I could cry hem, and have him. — Mit diesem hem erleichtert man sich das Herz. — Staunton und die Cambridge Edd. adoptiren Capell's Lesart Bid sorrow wag, cry hem, etc. 5) Der sein Leid flickt oder nothdürftig curirt, indem er Gemeinplätze und Sprichwörter dagegen anführt. 6) candle-wasters erklärt Steevens mit those who sit up all night to drink; Whalley erklärt es für synonym mit book-worm, wie Ben Jonson das Wort in Cynthia's Revels gebraucht, also: sein Unglück betäuben durch die Unterhaltung mit Buchgelehrten. Steevens' Deutung, welche drunk im eigentlichen Sinne fasst: sein Leid mit Zechgenossen vertrinken, scheint die natürlichere. 7) Aber wenn sie das Leid selber kosten, so verkehrt sich in eignen Schmerz ihr guter Rath, der vorher der masslosen Leidenschaft des Grams eine vorschriftsmässige Arznei geben, ihr eine Arznei regelrecht vorschreiben wollte. 8) to be moral = Moral predigen, Sittenlehren ertheilen. 9) advertisement = Mahnung, Lehre. 10) Die Philosophen zeigten sich in ihren Werken so erhaben über alles Erdenleid, als ob sie Götter wären, und fertigten das ihnen zustossende Leiden verächtlich mit einem Pfui! ab. — push, eine andere Form für die jetzige Interjection pish! steht hier substantivisch. — Pope änderte ohne Noth pish für push. — chance and sufferance ist das Leid, welches der Wechsel des Geschicks dem Menschen zu tragen auferlegt. 11) Pedro fasst to quarrel = zanken, hadern mit Worten; Antonio fasst es = Handel suchen, sich duelliren. 12) Ich hatte mit meiner Hand nichts vor, als ich sie an's Schwert legte. 13) Lass es Dir auf den Kopf zu sagen, lass es Dir gerade in's Gesicht sagen. 14) Wie sehr auch ein langes Leben mich mitgenommen, meine Kräfte gebrochen haben mag. 15) nice fence = auserlesene, feine Fechtkunst. — active practice = gewandte Uebung im Fechten. 16) Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 3, Anm. 23. 17) Sprichwörtlich in dem Sinn, dass man erst nach dem Siege sich des Sieges rühmen darf, dass man die Beute dem Feind erst abgewinnen und dann sie tragen muss. 18) foining fence = Stossfechten. — Aus solchen Fechterkünsten, auf die Claudio sich Etwas zu Gute thun mag, will Antonio

Sir boy, I'll whip you from your foining fence;¹⁸

Nay, as I am a gentleman, I will.

Leon. Brother, —

Ant. Content yourself. God knows, I lov'd my niece;
And she is dead; slander'd to death by villains,
That dare as well answer a man, indeed,
As I dare take a serpent by the tongue.¹⁹

Boys, apes, braggarts, Jacks, milksops! —

Leon.

Brother Antony, —

Ant. Hold you content. What, man! I know them, yea,
And what they weigh, even to the utmost scruple:
Scambling,²⁰ outfacing, fashion-mong'ring²¹ boys,
That lie, and cog, and flout, deprave and slander,
Go antickly, and show outward hideousness,²²
And speak off half a dozen dangerous words,
How they might hurt their enemies, if they durst;
And this is all!

Leon. But, brother Antony, —

Ant. Come, 't is no matter:

Do not you meddle, let me deal in this.

D. Pedro. Gentlemen both, we will not wake your patience.²³

My heart is sorry for your daughter's death;
But, on my honour, she was charg'd with nothing
But what was true, and very full of proof.

Leon. My lord, my lord! —

D. Pedro. I will not hear you.

Leon. No?

Come, brother, away. — I will be heard. —

Ant. And shall, or some of us will smart for it.

[Exeunt LEONATO and ANTONIO.]

Enter BENEDICK.

D. Pedro. See, see: here comes the man we went to seek.

Claud. Now, Signior, what news?

Bene. Good day, my lord.

D. Pedro. Welcome, Signior: you are almost come to part almost a fray.²⁴

Claud. We had like to have had our two noses snapped off with two old men without teeth.

D. Pedro. Leonato and his brother. What think'st thou? Had we fought, I doubt we should have been too young for them.

Bene. In a false quarrel there is no true valour. I came to seek you both.

Claud. We have been up and down to seek thee; for we are high-proof melancholy,²⁵ and would fain have it beaten away. Wilt thou use thy wit?

Bene. It is in my scabbard; shall I draw it?

D. Pedro. Dost thou wear thy wit by thy side?

Claud. Never any did so, though very many have been beside their wit.²⁶ — I will bid thee draw, as we do the minstrels; draw to pleasure us.

D. Pedro. As I am an honest man, he looks pale. — Art thou sick, or angry?

Claud. What! courage, man! What though care killed a cat,²⁷ thou hast mettle enough in thee to kill care.

Bene. Sir, I shall meet your wit in the career,²⁸ and you charge it against me. — I pray you, choose another subject.

Claud. Nay, then give him another staff: this last was broke cross.

D. Pedro. By this light, he changes more and more. I think he be angry indeed.

Claud. If he be, he knows how to turn his girdle.²⁹

Bene. Shall I speak a word in your ear?

Claud. God bless me from a challenge!

Bene. You are a villain. — I jest not. — I will make it good how you dare, with what you dare, and when you dare. — Do me right,³⁰ or I will protest your cowardice. You have killed a sweet lady, and her death shall fall heavy on you. Let me hear from you.

Claud. Well, I will meet you, so I may have good cheer.

D. Pedro. What, a feast? a feast?

Claud. I' faith, I thank him; he hath bid me to a calf's-head and a capon, the which if I do not carve most curiously,³¹ say my knife's naught. — Shall I not find a woodcock too?

Bene. Sir, your wit ambles well: it goes easily.

D. Pedro. I'll tell thee how Beatrice praised thy wit the other day. I said, thou hadst a fine wit. »True,« said she, »a fine little one.« »No,« said I, »a great wit.« »Right,« says she, »a great gross one.« »Nay,« said I, »a good wit.« »Just,« said she, »it hurts nobody.« »Nay,« said I, »the gentleman is wise.« »Certain,« said she, »a wise gentleman.«³² »Nay,« said I, »he hath the verächtlich ihn herauspeitschen. 19) Schurken, die so wenig einem tüchtigen Manne Rede zu stehen wagen, wie ich eine Schlange bei ihrer giftigen Zunge packen mag. 20) scambling = wirr, unstät in seinem Thun und Treiben. 21) fashion-mong'ring = geckenhaft, modesüchtig, ändern schon die spätern Folioausgg. das fashion-monging der Q. und Fol. — So in Romeo and Juliet (A. 2, Sc. 4) these strange flies, these fashion-mongers. 22) Sie tragen sich närrisch und zeigen äusserlich ein abschreckendes Wesen, um sich Respect zu verschaffen. 23) Wir wollen Euch nicht aufreizen oder aufstören aus der Geduld, in der Ihr bis jetzt verharret. 24) Steevens wollte das zweite almost streichen, das sich auf a fray bezieht, wie das erste almost auf come: es ist nicht völlig zu einem Handgemenge gekommen, wie Benedick nicht völlig zu rechter Zeit erschienen ist. 25) high-proof melancholy = in hohem Grade melancholisch. — Das adjectivische melancholy ist als Substantiv zu dem folgenden have it beaten away zu suppliren. 26) Wortspiel zwischen by thy side und beside. — Doppelsinnig steht dann to draw = den Degen ziehen, und = den Violinbogen führen, wie die Musikanten zum Tanze. 27) Ein Sprichwort, das auch in Ben Jonson's Every Man in his Humour erwähnt wird: care'll kill a cat. 28) Benedick gebraucht das Bild von einem Turnier und Lanzenreiten, das Claudio im Folgenden fortsetzt, wenn er Benedick's verfehlte Replik mit einem quer zerbrochenen Lanzenschaft vergleicht. 29) to turn the girdle = den Gürtel so drehen, dass die Schnalle, die gewöhnlich vorn sitzt, hinten zu sitzen kommt, ist so viel wie sich zum Streit rüsten, sich zu einem Ringkampf fertig machen. 30) Leistet meiner Herausforderung Genüge, steht mir im Zweikampfe. 31) Claudio versteckt vor dem Prinzen Benedick's Herausforderung hinter einer Einladung zum Essen, die er von ihm erhalten, und führt anzüglich als die Hauptgerichte einen Kalbskopf und einen Kapaunen an. Mit dem kunstvollen Zerlegen eines Kapaunen deutet er hin auf die Geschicklichkeit, mit der er den Herausforderer im Duell zurichten wird. Figürlich wird derselbe Ausdruck auch sonst von Sh. gebraucht; so in Love's Labour's Lost (A. 4, Sc. 1) von dem Oeffnen eines Briefes: you can carve; break up this capon. — Mit derselben Anzüglichkeit spricht er tongues.³³ »That I believe,« said she, »for he swore a thing to me on Monday night, which he forswore on Tuesday morning: there's a double tongue; there's two tongues.« Thus did she, an hour together, transshape thy particular virtues; yet at last she concluded with a sigh, thou wast the properest man in Italy.

Claud. For the which she wept heartily, and said she cared not.

D. Pedro. Yea, that she did; but yet, for all that, an if she did not hate him deadly, she would love him dearly. The old man's daughter told us all.

Claud. All, all; and moreover, God saw him when he was hid in the garden.³⁴

D. Pedro. But when shall we set the savage bull's horns on the sensible Benedick's head?³⁵

Claud. Yea, and text underneath, »Here dwells Benedick the married man!«

Bene. Fare you well, boy: you know my mind. I will leave you now to your gossip-like humour: you break jests as braggarts do their blades,³⁶ which, God be thanked, hurt not. — My lord, for your many courtesies I thank you: I must discontinue your company. Your brother, the bastard, is fled from Messina: you have, among you, killed a sweet and innocent lady. For my lord Lack-beard³⁷ there, he and I shall meet; and till then, peace be with him. [Exit.]

D. Pedro. He is in earnest.

Claud. In most profound earnest; and, I'll warrant you, for the love of Beatrice.

D. Pedro. And hath challenged thee?

Claud. Most sincerely.

D. Pedro. What a pretty thing man is, when he goes in his doublet and hose,³⁸ and leaves off his wit!

Claud. He is then a giant to an ape; but then is an ape a doctor to such a man.³⁹

D. Pedro. But, soft you; let me be:⁴⁰ pluck up, my heart, and be sad! Did he not say, my brother was fled?

Enter DOGBERRY, VERGES, and the Watch, with CONRADE and BORACHIO.

Dogb. Come you, Sir: if justice cannot tame you, she shall ne'er weigh more reasons⁴¹ in her balance. Nay, an you be a cursing hypocrite⁴² once, you must be looked to.

D. Pedro. How now! two of my brother's men bound? Borachio one?

Claud. Hearken after their offence, my lord!

D. Pedro. Officers, what offence have these men done?

Dogb. Marry, Sir, they have committed false report; moreover, they have spoken untruths; secondarily, they are slanders;⁴³ sixth and lastly, they have belied a lady; thirdly, they have verified unjust things; and, to conclude, they are lying knaves.

D. Pedro. First, I ask thee what they have done; thirdly, I ask thee what's their offence; sixth and lastly, why they are committed; and, to conclude, what you lay to their charge.

Claud. Rightly reasoned, and in his own division; and, by my troth, there's one meaning well suited.⁴⁴

D. Pedro. Who have you offended, masters, that you are thus bound to your answer?⁴⁵ this learned constable is too cunning to be understood. What's your offence?

Bora. Sweet prince, let me go no further to mine answer:⁴⁶ do you hear me, and let this count kill me. I have deceived even your very eyes: what your wisdoms could not discover, these shallow fools have brought to light; who, in the night, overheard me confessing to this man, how Don John your brother incensed me to slander the lady Hero; how you were brought into the orchard, and saw me court Margaret in Hero's garments; how you disgraced her, when you should marry⁴⁷ her. My gleich nachher von woodcock = Schnepfe, und = Einfaltspinsel. 32) Johnson vermuthet, dass a wise gentleman ironisch so viel wie silly fellow bedeutet habe, oder dass zu schreiben sei a wise gentle man = ein Mann, der wohlweislich sanft ist, der sich viel bieten lässt. 33) to have the tongues = die gangbaren fremden Sprachen verstehen, wie in Two Gentlemen of Verona (A. 4, Sc. 1) Have you the tongues? bildet hier ein Wortspiel mit double tongue = Doppelzüngigkeit. 34) Hindeutung auf die Scene, wo Benedick das Gespräch des Prinzen und Claudio's über Beatrice's Liebe zu ihm belauscht hat; zugleich eine Anspielung auf die biblische Erzählung von Adam's Verstecken nach dem Sündenfall. 35) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 44 u. 45. — In derselben Rede hatte Benedick auch die Unterschrift für sein Bild angegeben: Here you may see Benedick the married man. 36) For blades ist genau genommen nicht dasselbe Verbum to break zu suppliren, da dieses nur zu *jest*s passt, sondern ein anderes = handhaben, schwingen. 37) Lack-beard = Ohnebart. *So hat Sh. ebenfalls substantivisch und persönlich lack-love in Midsummer-Night's Dream (A. 2, Sc. 3) und lack-brain in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 2, Sc. 3). 38) Dass ein Mann nur in Wamms und Hose ohne den zum Ausgange erforderlichen Mantel einhergeht, soll nach Warburton ihn lächerlich, als Verliebten, erscheinen lassen; nach Malone soll es die Bereitschaft zu dem Duell andeuten, das sich nur in Wamms und Hose ausfechten liess. — Plausibler als diese gesuchten Erklärungen scheint die von Steevens: Welch ein Narr ist der Mensch, wenn er sich ankleidet, aber nicht auch zugleich seinen Verstand anlegt, sondern dieses Stück zu Hause lässt. 39) Ein solcher händellustiger, thörichter Mann erscheint dann so gross, wie ein Riese im Verhältniss zu einem kleinen Affen erscheint; dafür ist aber der Affe ihm an Verstand so überlegen, dass der Affe im Verhältniss zu ihm als ein Gelehrter erscheint. 40) let me be = lass mich gewähren, sagt Pedro, indem er das Gespräch abbricht, da er die Leute kommen sieht, die ihn als Richter in Anspruch nehmen wollen. In demselben Sinne ermahnt er sich zum Ernste mit den folgenden Worten. — let me be verändern die spätern Folioausgg. in let me see. — Malone vermuthete let me pluck up my heart, las aber mit Capell let be; pluck up, my heart etc. 41) Ritson vermuthet hier ein Wortspiel zwischen reasons und raisins, zwei Wörter, die damals ähnlicher gelautet haben müssen, als jetzt. So in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 2, Sc. 4) if reasons were as plenty as blackberries, I would give no man a reason upon compulsion. 42) Dogberry scheint cursing für cursed, und hypocrite = Verläumder, zu gebrauchen. 43) secondarily für secondly, und slanders für slanderers. 44) Ein einziger Sinn schön mit Kleidern ausstaffirt, geht auf die Art, wie der Prinz, nach Dogberry's Vorgange, denselben Gedanken abwechselnd in verschiedene Worte kleidet. 45) Dass man Euch so zu Eurer Verantwortung vor Gericht gebunden hat. 46) Zieht mich hier auf der Stelle zur Verantwortung. 47) Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 1, Anm. 1. — So ist auch hier to marry = verheirathen, wenn die ganze Rede, wie villany they have upon record, which I had rather seal with my death, than repeat over to my shame. The lady is dead upon mine and my master's false accusation; and, briefly, I desire nothing but the reward of a villain.

D. Pedro. Runs not this speech like iron through your blood?

Claud. I have drunk poison whiles he utter'd it.

D. Pedro. But did my brother set thee on to this?

Bora. Yea; and paid me richly for the practice of it.

D. Pedro. He is compos'd and fram'd of treachery. — And fled he is upon this villany.

Claud. Sweet Hero! now thy image doth appear In the rare semblance that I loved it first.

Dogb. Come, bring away the plaintiffs: by this time our sexton hath reformed⁴⁸ Signior Leonato of the matter. And, masters, do not forget to specify, when time and place shall serve, that I am an ass.⁴⁹

Verg. Here, here comes master Signior Leonato, and the sexton too.

Re-enter LEONATO, ANTONIO, and the Sexton.

Leon. Which is the villain? Let me see his eyes, That when I note another man like him, I may avoid him. Which of these is he?

Bora. If you would know your wronger, look on me.

Leon. Art thou⁵⁰ the slave, that with thy breath hast kill'd Mine innocent child?

Bora. Yea, even I alone.

Leon. No, not so, villain; thou beliest thyself: Here stand a pair of honourable men, A third is fled, that had a hand in it. —

I thank you, princes, for my daughter's death:

Record it with your high and worthy deeds.

'T was bravely done, if you bethink you of it.

Claud. I know not how to pray your patience, Yet I must speak. Choose your revenge yourself; Impose⁵¹ me to what penance your invention Can lay upon my sin: yet sinn'd I not, But in mistaking.

D. Pedro. By my soul, nor I; And yet, to satisfy this good old man, I would bend under any heavy weight That he 'll enjoin me to.

Leon. I cannot bid you bid my daughter live; That were impossible: but, I pray you both, Possess⁵² the people in Messina here, How innocent she died; and, if your love Can labour aught in sad invention,⁵³ Hang her an epitaph upon her tomb, And sing it to her bones: sing it to-night. — To-morrow morning come you to my house,

And since you could not be my son-in-law, Be yet my nephew. My brother hath a daughter, Almost the copy of my child that 's dead, And she alone is heir to both of us:

Give her the right you should have given her cousin, And so dies my revenge.

Claud. O noble Sir, Your over-kindness doth wring tears from me.

I do embrace your offer; and dispose For henceforth of poor Claudio.

Leon. To-morrow then I will expect your coming; To-night I take my leave. — This naughty man Shall face to face be brought to Margaret, Who, I believe, was pack'd⁵⁴ in all this wrong, Hir'd to it by your brother.

Bora. No, by my soul, she was not; Nor knew not what she did, when she spoke to me; But always hath been just and virtuous, In anything that I do know by her.

Dogb. Moreover, Sir, which, indeed, is not under white and black,⁵⁵ this plaintiff here, the offender, did call me ass: I beseech you, let it be remembered in his punishment. And also, the watch heard them talk of one Deformed: they say, he wears a key in his ear, and a lock⁵⁶ hanging by it, and borrows money in God's name; the which he hath used so long, and never paid, that now men grow hard-hearted, and will lend nothing for God's sake.⁵⁷ Pray you, examine him upon that point.

Leon. I thank thee for thy care and honest pains.

Dogb. Your worship speaks like a most thankful and reverend youth, and I praise God for you.

Leon. There 's for thy pains.

Dogb. God save the foundation!⁵⁸

Leon. Go, I discharge thee of thy prisoner, and I thank thee.

Dogb. I leave an arrant knave with your worship; which I beseech your worship to correct yourself for the example of others. God keep your worship; I wish your worship well: God restore you to health. I humbly give you leave to depart, and if a merry meeting may be wished, God prohibit⁵⁹ it! — Come, neighbour.

[Exeunt DOGBERRY, VERGES, and Watch.]

Leon. Until to-morrow morning, lords, farewell.

Ant. Farewell, my lords: we look for you to-morrow.

D. Pedro. We will not fail.

Claud. To-night I 'll mourn with Hero.

[Exeunt Don PEDRO and CLAUDIO.]

Leon. Bring you these fellows on. We 'll talk with Margaret, How her acquaintance grew with this lewd⁶⁰ fellow.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

LEONATO'S Garden.

Enter BENEDICK and MARGARET, meeting.

Bene. Pray thee, sweet Mistress Margaret, deserve well at my hands by helping me to the speech of Beatrice.

Marg. Will you then write me a sonnet in praise of my beauty?

Bene. In so high a style,¹ Margaret, that no man living shall come over it; for, in most comely truth, thou deservest it.

Marg. To have no man come over me? why, shall I always keep below stairs?²

Bene. Thy wit is as quick as the greyhound's mouth; it catches.

Marg. And yours as blunt as the fencer's foils, which hit, but hurt not.

Bene. A most manly wit, Margaret; it will not hurt a woman: and so, I pray thee, call Beatrice. I give thee the bucklers.³

Marg. Give us the swords, we have bucklers of our own.

Bene. If you use them,⁴ Margaret, you must put in the pikes with a vice; and they are dangerous weapons for maids.

Marg. Well, I will call Beatrice to you, who, I think, hath legs.

Bene. And therefore will come. [Exit MARG.]

(Singing.) The god of love,
That sits above,
And knows me, and knows me,
How pitiful I deserve,⁵ —

I mean, in singing; but in loving, Leander the good swimmer, Troilus the first employer of panders, and a whole book full of these quondam carpet-mongers,⁶ whose names yet run smoothly in the even road of a blank verse, why, they were never so truly turned over and over as my poor self in love. Marry, I cannot show it in rhyme; I have tried: I can find out no rhyme to »lady« but »baby«, an innocent rhyme; for »scorn«, »horn«, a hard rhyme; for »school«, »fool«, a babbling⁷ rhyme, — very ominous endings. No, I was not born under a rhyming planet, nor I cannot woo in festival terms.⁸ —

Enter BEATRICE.

Sweet Beatrice, wouldst thou come when I called thee?

Beat. Yea, Signior; and depart when you bid me.

Bene. O, stay but till then!

Beat. »Then« is spoken; fare you well now: — and yet, ere I go, let me go with that I came;⁹ which is, with knowing what hath passed between you and Claudio.

Bene. Only foul words; and thereupon I will kiss thee.

Beat. Foul words is but foul wind, and foul wind is but foul breath, and foul breath is noisome; therefore I will depart unknissed.

Bene. Thou hast frightened the word out of his right sense, so forcible is thy wit. But, I must tell thee plainly, Claudio undergoes my challenge,¹⁰ and either I must shortly hear from him, or I will subscribe him a coward. And, I pray thee now, tell me, for which of my bad parts didst thou first fall in love with me?

Beat. For them all together; which maintained so politic a state of evil, that they will not admit any good part to intermingle with them. But for which of my good parts did you first suffer love for me?

Bene. Suffer love! a good epithet. I do suffer love, indeed, for I love thee against my will.

Beat. In spite of your heart, I think. Alas, poor heart! If you spite it for my sake, I will spite it for yours; for I will never love that which my friend hates.

Bene. Thou and I are too wise to woo peaceably.

Beat. It appears not in this confession: there's not one wise man among twenty that will praise himself.

Bene. An old, an old instance,¹¹ Beatrice, that lived in the time of good neighbours. If a man do not erect, in this age, his own tomb ere he dies, he shall live no longer in monument, than the bell rings, and the widow weeps.

Beat. And how long is that, think you?

Bene. Question:¹² — why, an hour in clamour, and a quarter in rheum: therefore is it most expedient for the wise (if Don Worm,¹³ his conscience, find no impediment to the contrary), to be the trumpet of his own virtues, as hier meint Dogberry das Gegenteil: Gott führe es herbei. mit wicked. Vielleicht ist es = gemein, roh.

60) lewd erklärt Steevens mit ignorant, Collier

1) Wortspiel zwischen style und stile = Steige, Steg. — Eben so zweideutig steht to come over it = es übertreffen, und = darüber kommen, in frivolem Sinne. 2) Steevens vermuthete keep men below stairs. — Vielleicht beabsichtigte Sh. aber einen Gegensatz zwischen man und stairs. 3) to give the bucklers = den Zweikampf aufgeben, sich ergeben, indem man den Schild dem Sieger übergibt. — Margarethe verlangt dann in frivolem Sinne die Angriffswaffe, nicht die Vertheidigungswaffe, von dem Sieger. 4) them bezieht sich auf bucklers, in deren Mitte der hervorstehende spitze Knopf des Schildes mit einer Schraube festgemacht werden muss. — Der Nebensinn ist ebenfalls frivol, wie in der vorhergehenden Rede. 5) Der Anfang eines verloren gegangenen alten Liedes von W. Elderton, nach Steevens' Angabe. 6) carpet-monger = der sich auf Teppichen in Damen-zimmern herumtreibt, Damenheld. Der gewöhnlichere Ausdruck bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen ist carpet-knight, das Cotgrave in seinem Wörterbuch erklärt: one that ever loves to be in women's chambers. 7) babbling = faselnd, dummes Zeug schwatzend, bezieht sich auf fool, wie innocent auf baby, und hard auf horn: das Hahnreihorn, das die Stirn hart macht, wie in Winter's Tale (A. 1, Sc. 2) hardening of my brows in diesem Sinne vorkommt. 8) festival terms = erlesene Phrasen, wie man sie für Festtage gebraucht, da sie für die Wochentage zu fein sind. — Die Fol. hat for für nor der Q. 9) Die Pope'sche Ergänzung came for ist überflüssig, wenn man annimmt, dass eigentlich with zu suppliren wäre, was nach Sh.'scher Construction wegfallen durfte, da with schon vorangegangen war: let me go with that I came. 10) Claudio lässt meine Herausforderung über sich ergehen, fällt ihr anheim. 11) Der Spruch Beatricens, dass kein weiser Mensch sich selbst lobe, mochte in der guten alten Zeit gegolten haben, wo die Nachbarn ihn lobten, er das Selbstlob also sparen konnte. Jetzt aber muss Jeder schon bei Lebzeiten für seinen Nachruhm und seine Verewigung durch ein Grabmal sorgen. 12) Das ist die Frage, auf welche die Antwort so lautet: die Wittwe weint eine Stunde mit lautem Klagegeschrei, und dann noch eine Viertelstunde still für sich. 13) worm = Wurm im Gewissen, der nagende Gewissensbiss, ist hier scherzhaft männlich

I am to myself. So much for praising myself, who, I myself will bear witness, is praiseworthy. And now tell me, how doth your cousin?

Beat. Very ill.

Bene. And how do you?

Beat. Very ill too.

Bene. Serve God, love me, and mend. There will I leave you too, for here comes one in haste.

Enter URSULA.

Urs. Madam, you must come to your uncle. Yonder 's old coil¹⁴ at home: it is proved, my lady Hero hath been falsely accused, the prince and Claudio mightily abused; and Don John is the author of all, who is fled and gone. Will you come presently?

Beat. Will you go hear this news, Signior?

Bene. I will live in thy heart, die in thy lap, and be buried in thy eyes; and, moreover, I will go with thee to thy uncle's. [Exeunt.]

SCENE III.

The Inside of a Church.

Enter Don PEDRO, CLAUDIO, and Attendants, with music and tapers.

Claud. Is this the monument of Leonato?

Atten. It is, my lord.

Claud. *[Reads from a scroll.]*¹

*Done to death*² by slanderous tongues

Was the Hero that here lies:

*Death, in guerdon*³ of her wrongs,

Gives her fame which never dies.

So the life, that died with shame,

Lives in death with glorious fame.

Hang thou there upon the tomb,

Praising her when I am dumb.⁴ —

Now, music, sound, and sing your solemn hymn.

SONG.

Pardon, goddess of the night,

Those that slew thy virgin knight;⁵

For the which, with songs of woe,

Round about her tomb they go.

Midnight, assist our moan;

Help us to sigh and groan,

Heavily, heavily:

Graves, yawn, and yield your dead,
Till death be uttered,⁶

Heavily, heavily.

Claud. Now, unto thy bones good night!

Yearly will I do this rite.⁷

D. Pedro. Good morrow, masters: put your torches out.

The wolves have prey'd; and look, the gentle day,

Before the wheels of Phœbus, round about

Dapples the drowsy east with spots of grey.

Thanks to you all, and leave us: fare you well.

Claud. Good morrow, masters: each his several way.

D. Pedro. Come, let us hence, and put on other weeds;

And then to Leonato's we will go.

Claud. And Hymen now with luckier issue speed 's,⁸

Than this, for whom we render'd up this woe! [Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.

A Room in LEONATO'S House.

Enter LEONATO, ANTONIO, BENEDICK, MARGARET,¹

BEATRICE, URSULA, Friar FRANCIS, and HERO.

Fri. Did I not tell you she was innocent?

Leon. So are the prince and Claudio, who accus'd her

Upon the error that you heard debated:

But Margaret was in some fault for this,

Although against her will, as it appears

In the true course of all the question.

Ant. Well, I am glad that all things sort so well.

Bene. And so am I, being else by faith² enforc'd

To call young Claudio to a reckoning for it.

Leon. Well, daughter, and you gentlewomen all,

Withdraw into a chamber by yourselves,

And, when I send for you, come hither mask'd:

The prince and Claudio promis'd by this hour

To visit me. [Exeunt Ladies.] — You know your office,

brother:

You must be father to your brother's daughter,

And give³ her to young Claudio.

Ant. Which I will do with confirm'd countenance.

Bene. Friar, I must entreat your pains, I think.

Fri. To do what, Signior?

Bene. To bind me, or undo⁴ me; one of them. —

Signior Leonato, truth it is, good Signior,

Your niece regards me with an eye of favour.

personificirt und demgemäss titulirt, wie in Hamlet (A. 5, Sc. 1) der wirkliche Wurm weiblich: my lady Worm. 14) old coil = reichlich viel Wirrwarr, mehr als genug Tumult. — Dyce citirt aus Cotgrave's Wörterbuch to keep an old coile or horrible stirre.

1) Q. und Fol. setzen dafür Epitaph und ignoriren, dass Claudio die folgenden Verse liest, ehe er sie an dem Grabe aufhängt. 2) to do to death = tödten. 3) guerdon = Vergeltung. 4) dumb in der Fol., dead in der Q. — Diese beiden Zeilen werden meistens cursiv gedruckt, als ob sie zu der Grabschrift gehörten, während es doch die Worte sind, die Claudio spricht, während er das Geschriebene am Grabe aufhängt. 5) knight wird auch sonst von Frauen gesagt, die sich dem Dienste einer Gottheit, namentlich der Diana, gewidmet haben, und dem Orden derselben angehören; so in All 's well that ends well (A. 1, Sc. 3) Diana no queen of virgins, that would suffer her poor knight surprised, without rescue. 6) Boswell erklärt: till death be spoken of, und Knight fasst to utter = to expel. — Vielleicht ist death nicht Nominativ, sondern mit der Präposition till zu verbinden: bis zum Tode werde es laut, d. h. der Refrain der Klage, Heavily, heavily. — Die Fol. hat Heavenly, heavenly, aber vorher wie die Q. heavily. 7) Q. und Fol. ertheilen diese Worte einem Lord zu, demselben, den sie auch vorher It is, my lord antworten lassen. Das Richtige sah Rowe. — Für rite setzen die alten Ausgg. right, was auch Rowe noch beibehielt. 8) speed 's d. h. speed us, im Coniunctiv als Wunsch, liest Thirlby für das indicativische speeds, das hier wenig passen will.

1) Manche Hgg. lassen die Margaret fort, obwohl Q. und Fol. sie ausdrücklich unter den auftretenden Personen nennen. 2) Durch das der Beatrice geleistete Gelübde. 3) to give für to give away = die Braut dem Bräutigam übergeben, was nach der englischen Trauungssitte Sache des nächsten männlichen Blutsverwandten ist. 4) to undo doppelsinnig = lösen, im Gegensatze zu to bind = ehelich verbinden, und = vernichten, unglücklich

Leon. That eye my daughter lent her: 't is most true.

Bene. And I do with an eye of love requite her.

Leon. The sight whereof, ⁵ I think, you had from me, From Claudio, and the prince. But what's your will?

Bene. Your answer, Sir, is enigmatical:

But, for my will, my will is, your good will
May stand with ours, this day to be conjoin'd
In the state ⁶ of honourable marriage: —

In which, good friar, I shall desire your help.

Leon. My heart is with your liking.

Fri. And my help.

Here come the prince and Claudio. ⁷

Enter Don PEDRO and CLAUDIO, with Attendants.

D. Pedro. Good morrow to this fair assembly. ⁸

Leon. Good morrow, prince; good morrow, Claudio:
We here attend you. Are you yet determin'd
To-day to marry with my brother's daughter?

Claud. I'll hold my mind, were she an Ethiop. ⁹

Leon. Call her forth, brother: here's the friar ready.

[Exit ANTONIO.]

D. Pedro. Good morrow, Benedick. Why, what's the matter,

That you have such a February face,
So full of frost, of storm, and cloudiness?

Claud. I think, he thinks upon the savage bull. ¹⁰ —
Tush! fear not, man, we'll tip thy horns with gold,
And all Europa shall rejoice at thee,
As once Europa did at lusty Jove,
When he would play the noble beast in love.

Bene. Bull Jove, Sir, had an amiable low:
And some such strange bull leap'd your father's cow,
And got a calf in that same noble feat,
Much like to you, for you have just his bleat.

Re-enter ANTONIO, with the Ladies masked.

Claud. For this I owe you, here come other reckonings. ¹¹

Which is the lady I must seize upon?

Ant. This same is she, and I do give you her. ¹²

Claud. Why, then she's mine. — Sweet, let me see your face.

Leon. No, that you shall not, till you take her hand
Before this friar, and swear to marry her.

Claud. Give me your hand before this holy friar:
I am your husband, if you like of me,

Hero. And when I liv'd, I was your other wife: ¹³

[Unmasking.]

And when you lov'd, you were my other husband.

Claud. Another Hero?

Hero. Nothing certainer.

One Hero died defil'd; ¹⁴ but I do live,
And, surely as I live, I am a maid.

D. Pedro. The former Hero! Hero that is dead!

Leon. She died, my lord, but whiles her slander liv'd. ¹⁵

Fri. All this amazement can I qualify:

When after that the holy rites are ended,

I'll tell you largely of fair Hero's death:

Meantime, let wonder seem familiar, ¹⁶

And to the chapel let us presently.

Bene. Soft and fair, friar. — Which is Beatrice?

Beat. I answer to that name. [Unmasking.] What is your will?

Bene. Do not you love me?

Beat. Why, no; no more than reason.

Bene. Why, then, your uncle, and the prince, and Claudio, have been deceived: they swore you did. ¹⁷

Beat. Do not you love me?

Bene. Troth, no; no more than reason.

Beat. Why, then my cousin, Margaret, and Ursula, Are much deceiv'd; for they did swear you did.

Bene. They swore that you were almost sick for me.

Beat. They swore that you were well-nigh dead for me.

Bene. 'T is no such ¹⁸ matter. — Then, you do not love me?

Beat. No, truly, but in friendly recompense.

Leon. Come, cousin, I am sure you love the gentleman.

Claud. And I'll be sworn upon 't, that he loves her;
For here's a paper, written in his hand,
A halting sonnet of his own pure brain, ¹⁹
Fashion'd to Beatrice.

Hero. And here's another,

Writ in my cousin's hand, stol'n from her pocket,
Containing her affection unto Benedick.

Bene. A miracle! here's our own hands ²⁰ against our hearts. — Come, I will have thee; but, by this light, I take thee for pity.

Beat. I would not deny you; ²¹ — but, by this good day, I yield upon great persuasion, and, partly, to save your life, for I was told you were in a consumption.

Bene. Peace! I will stop your mouth. ²²

D. Pedro. How dost thou, Benedick, the married man? ²³ machen. 5) Den Blick, mit dem Euer Auge sie liebevoll ansieht, erhieltet Ihr durch mein, Claudio's und des Prinzen Zuthun. — Auf diese ihm unverständlichen Worte bezieht sich Benedick's Antwort Your answer, Sir, is enigmatical. 6) So Q. und Fol., wo also in the als eine Sylbe und marriage dreisylbig zu lesen ist. Manche Hgg. verkennen das und setzen estate für state. 7) Diese Zeile fehlt in der Fol. 8) assembly ist viersylbig (assembly) zu lesen. 9) Ethiop = Mohrin, eine gewöhnliche Bezeichnung weiblicher Hässlichkeit bei Sh. 10) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 44 und A. 5, Sc. 1, Anm. 35. — Anspielungen auf den Mythos von dem aus Liebe zur Europa in einen Stier verwandelten Zeus kehren bei Sh. öfter wieder, hier mit dem Wortspiel zwischen Europa = als Welttheil, und Europa = die Geliebte des Zeus, die Tochter Agenor's. 11) Für diesen Spott will ich Euch die Antwort schuldig bleiben, will ich Euch später bezahlen, denn hier kommen noch andere Rechnungen, die ich abzumachen habe. 12) Diesen Vers, den Q. und Fol. dem Leonato beilegen, gab Theobald dem Antonio, in Uebereinstimmung mit dem, was vorher verabredet war. Vgl. oben Anm. 3. 13) your other wife = Eure frühere, erste Frau. — In demselben Sinne steht my other husband = mein erster Gatte. 14) defil'd, das zufällig in der Fol. ausgefallen, steht im Gegensatze zu a maid, wie I do live zu died. 15) Sie war nur so lange todt, als die üble Nachrede von ihr lebte: als diese Verläumdung verschwunden war, lebte sie wieder. 16) Nehmt das, was Euch als ein Wunder erscheint, vorläufig bis auf weitere Erklärung als etwas Gewöhnliches, Altbekanntes hin. 17) Die Q. druckt diese Rede Benedick's als Prosa, wie er auch sonst in Prosa redet. — Die meisten Hgg. machen Verse daraus, indem sie mit Hammer setzen for they swore you did. 18) such fehlt in der Fol. 19) Ein lahmes, schlecht gebautes Sonett, das lediglich aus seinem eigenen Gehirn stammt. 20) hand = Handschrift, und = Hand. 21) Ich möchte Euch keinen Korb geben, aber ich gebe nur nach, weil man mir so stark zugeredet hat, Euch zu nehmen. 22) Diese Bene. I'll tell thee what, prince; a college of wit-crackers cannot flout me out of my humour. Dost thou think, I care for a satire, or an epigram? No: if a man will be beaten with brains, a' shall wear nothing handsome about him. In brief, since I do purpose to marry, I will think nothing to any purpose that the world can say against it; and therefore never flout at me for what²⁴ I have said against it, for man is a giddy thing, and this is my conclusion. — For thy part, Claudio, I did think to have beaten thee; but, in that²⁵ thou art like to be my kinsman, live unbruised, and love my cousin.

Claud. I had well hoped, thou wouldst have denied Beatrice, that I might have cudgelled thee out of thy single²⁶ life, to make thee a double-dealer; which, out of question, thou wilt be, if my cousin do not look exceeding narrowly to thee.

Bene. Come, come, we are friends. — Let's have a dance ere we are married, that we may lighten our own hearts, and our wives' heels.

Leon. We'll have dancing afterward.

Bene. First, of my word; therefore play, music! — Prince, thou art sad; get thee a wife, get thee a wife: there is no staff more reverend than one tipped with horn.²⁷

Enter a Messenger.

Mess. My lord, your brother John is ta'en in flight, And brought with armed men back to Messina.

Bene. Think not on him till to-morrow: I'll devise thee brave punishments for him. — Strike up, pipers.

[Dance. Exeunt.]

Worte, welche Q. und Fol. dem Leonato zuschreiben, gab zuerst Theobald dem Benedick und fügte zur Erklärung die Bühnenweisung Kissing her hinzu. 23) Er bezieht sich auf das, was Benedick früher gesagt (A. 1, Sc. 1) let them signify under my sign: „Here you may see Benedick the married man.“ 24) what fehlt in der Fol. 25) in that = insofern als. 26) single life = einzelnes Leben, und = Junggesellenstand, im Gegensatze zu double-dealer = zweideutiger Mensch, und = der doppelt verführt. 27) Ein Stab, dessen Griff aus Horn besteht, wie ihn alte Leute trugen. So heisst es in Chaucer's Canterbury Tales von einem Mönch: His felaw had a staf tipped with horn. Zugleich ist hier staff das Abzeichen der Würde des Fürsten, und in horn liegt die überall wiederkehrende Anspielung auf das Horn des Hahnrei.

LOVE'S LABOUR'S LOST.

Einleitung.

Die erste Ausgabe, welche wir von diesem Lustspiel besitzen, erschien im Jahre 1598 mit folgendem Titelblatt: A Pleasant Conceited Comedie called, Lones labors lost. As it was presented before her Highnes this last Christmas. Newly corrected and augmented By W. Shakespere. Imprinted at London by W. W. for Cuthbert Burby. 1598. — Der Verleger Burby übertrug, nach einer Notiz in den Registern der Buchhändlergilde, sein Verlagsrecht im Jahr 1606 auf einen andern Buchhändler, Ling, der eine neue Ausgabe wenigstens beabsichtigt haben muss, ohne dass sich jedoch eine solche bisher hat entdecken lassen. Aus der erwähnten Ausgabe in Quarto (Q.) ist der Text in die Gesamtausgabe der Shakspeare'schen Dramen in Folio vom Jahre 1623 (Fol.) übergegangen, mit allen, ziemlich zahlreichen, Druckfehlern und mit manchen, verhältnissmässig geringfügigen Abweichungen, die sich theils als bessere, theils als schlechtere Lesarten des Originaltextes herausstellen. In der Folioausgabe steht das Drama *Lones Labour's lost) als das siebente in der Reihe der Comedies, in Acte, aber nicht in Scenen eingetheilt, und ohne ein Personenverzeichniss, welches zuerst Rowe seiner Ausgabe im Jahre 1709 beigab.

Bestimmte chronologische Notizen über dieses Lustspiel reichen, so weit sie auf uns gekommen sind, nicht über das Jahr 1598, in welchem die Quartausgabe erschien, zurück, denn selbst das auf dem Titelblatt derselben angegebene this last Christmas, wo das Stück vor der Königin Elisabeth zur Aufführung gelangt sein sollte, ist, nach Collier's Berechnung, Weihnachten 1598, da das Jahr damals erst mit dem 25. März endete. In demselben Jahre erwähnt auch Francis Meres in seiner Palladis Tamia unter den damals bekannten Lustspielen unseres Dichters auch his Love Labours lost; und ein Gedicht, das ebenfalls 1598 erschien, Alba, the Months Minde of a Melancholy Lover by R. T. Gentleman (wie Collier vermuthet, Robert Tofte) enthält folgende Strophen, die sich auf unser Drama beziehen:

*Love's Labour Lost I once did see, a play
Y-cleped so, so called to my paine;
Which I to heare to my small joy did stay,
Giving attendance to my froward dame:
My misgiving mind presaging to me ill,
Yet I was drawn to see it 'gainst my will.*

*Each actor plaid in cunning wise his part,
But chiefly those entrapt in Cupid's snare;
Yet all was fained, 't was not from the hart,
They seeme to grieve, but yet they felt no care:
'T was I that grieffe indeed did beare in brest,
The others did but make a show in jest.*

Das I once did see in dem ersten Verse lässt sich nicht wohl so auffassen, als sei Love's Labour's Lost erst kurz vorher zum ersten Mal dargestellt worden; und in der That weisen, in Ermangelung bestimmter Daten, alle innern Gründe des Styls und des Verses, das Vorwalten der Knittelverse und der gereimten Vierzeilen, die leichte Schürzung der Intrigue und die skizzenhafte Charakteristik, deutlich genug auf eine Jugendarbeit Shakspeare's hin, deren Abfassung nicht weit von Two Gentlemen of Verona und von Comedy of Errors abliegen kann, wenn auch diese beiden Lustspiele dem Love's Labour's Lost, dem sie in formeller Virtuosität nachstehen, vorangegangen sein mögen. — Der Eindruck einer Jugendarbeit, den das Ganze macht, wird auch nicht verwischt durch die etwaigen Verbesserungen und Zuthaten, welche der Dichter, nach der Angabe des Titelblattes der Quarto, seinem Drama später zugewandt haben soll; wie Collier vermuthet, eben zum Behuf jener Aufführung bei Hofe, deren das Titelblatt zugleich Erwähnung thut. Es kämen dann auf Rechnung dieser Aenderungen einige Discrepanzen, die sich in dem Text gegen den Schluss des Dramas in den Reden Biron's und der Rosaline, nach der Meinung einiger Kritiker auch in einer frühern Rede Biron's gegen den Schluss des vierten Actes bemerklich machen, und die sich daraus erklären liessen, dass aus Versehen zwei Bearbeitungen derselben Stelle, eine frühere und eine spätere, neben einander abgedruckt sind. So viel sich sehen lässt, scheinen im Ganzen und Grossen diese Aenderungen, auf welche sich das Newly corrected and augmented des Titelblattes der Quartausgabe bezieht, nicht sehr tiefgreifend gewesen zu sein. Vielleicht mag es sich mit dieser Titelangabe auch verhalten, wie bei den spätern Quartoeditionen von Shakspeare's King Richard III., welche sich sämmtlich auf dem Titel für Newly augmented ausgeben, obwohl die Zusätze von der Hand des Dichters sich nicht in ihnen finden, sondern erst in der nachfolgenden Folioausgabe von 1623. — Dass sich das Lustspiel längere Zeit auf der Shakspeare'schen Bühne erhielt und populär blieb, dafür spricht das Titelblatt einer späteren, aus der Folioausgabe abgedruckten Quarto von 1631, welches so lautet: Lones Labours lost. A wittie and pleasant comedie, As it was acted by his Maiesties Seruants at the Blacke-Friers and the Globe. Written by William Shakespeare. London by W. S. for John Smethwicke. 1631.

*) Nach M. Mason's Meinung sollte der Titel lauten Love's Labours Lost; indess spricht die Orthographie der Fol. für die herkömmliche Schreibart, wo Labour's als Labour is, nicht als das plural'sche Labours zu verstehen ist.

Eine Novelle oder ein Drama, aus welchem Shakspeare den Stoff zu seinem Love's Labour's Lost hätte schöpfen können, ist bisher nicht nachgewiesen worden, und es hat den Anschein, als ob unserm Dichter selbst die Erfindung eines Lustspiels angehöre, bei welchem es ihm offenbar mehr auf Charakteristik und Witz, als auf eine fein angelegte und durchgeführte Intrigue ankommen konnte. Zur Ausstattung der Charaktere mochte er immerhin manche Details aus den Seltsamkeiten und Thorheiten individueller wirklicher Figuren entlehnen, obgleich er auch da eher ganze Kategorien als einzelne Persönlichkeiten im Auge gehabt haben mag. Dass er aber, wie manche Commentatoren annehmen, bestimmte Zeitgenossen, z. B. den italienischen Sprachmeister John Florio unter der Maske des Holofernes, förmlich habe portraitiert und persiflirt wollen, entspricht so wenig der sonstigen Art unseres Dichters, wie den überlieferten Thatfachen. Shakspeare wollte, wie er den Holofernes auch wiederholt in dem Drama als the Pedant schlechthin bezeichnet, und den Armado ebenso als the Braggart, ein Bild von einem Pedanten im Allgemeinen und ebenso von einem Grossprahler in seiner Eigenthümlichkeit aufstellen, ohne dass er dabei zwei bestimmte Figuren aus dem Kreise seiner Bekanntschaft in sein Drama hinüberzunehmen nöthig hatte. Eher lassen sich manche Zeitanspielungen auf gewisse Personen und Dinge ausserhalb der Charakteristik seiner auftretenden Figuren in dem Drama nachweisen.

Die Ballade King Cophetua and the Beggar-maid, welche Shakspeare wiederholt in Love's Labour's Lost erwähnt, findet sich in Richard Johnson's Crown Garland of Golden Roses (1612) und lautet nach dem Abdruck derselben in Percy's Reliques of Ancient English Poetry folgendermassen:

*I read that once in Affrica
A princely wight did raine,
Who had to name Cophetua,
As poets they did faine:*

*From natures lawes he did decline,
For sure he was not of my mind,
He cared not for women-kinde,
But did them all disdaine.*

*But, marke, what hapned on a day,
As he out of his window lay,
He saw a beggar all in gray;
The which did cause his paine.*

*The blinded boy, that shootes so trim,
From heaven downe did he;
He drew a dart and shot at him,
In place where he did lye:
Which soone did pierse him to the quicke,
And when he felt the arrow pricke,
Which in his tender heart did sticke,
He looketh as he would dye.
What sudden chance is this, quoth he,
That I to love must subject be,
Which never thereto would agree,
But still did it defie?*

*Then from the window he did come,
And laïd him on his bed,
A thousand heapes of care did runne
Within his troubled head:
For now he meanes to crave her love,
And now he seekes which way to proove
How he his fancie might remoove,
And not this beggar wed.
But Cupid had him so in snare,
That this poor beggar must prepare
A salve to cure him of his care,
Or els he would be dead.*

*And, as he musing thus did lye,
He thought for to devise
How he might have her companye,
That so did 'maze his eyes.
In thee, quoth he, doth rest my life;
For surely thou shalt be my wife,
Or else this hand with bloody knife
The Gods shall sure suffice.*

*Then from his bed he soon arose,
And to his pallace gate he goes;
Full little then this beggar knowes
When she the king espies.*

*The Gods preserve your majesty,
The beggers all gan cry:
Vouchsafe to give your charity
Our childrens food to buy.*

*The king to them his pursse did cast,
And they to part it made great haste;
This silly woman was the last
That after them did hye.*

*The king he cal'd her back againe,
And unto her he gave his chaine;
And said, With us you shal remaine
Till such time as we dye:*

*For thou, quoth he, shalt be my wife,
And honoured for my queene;
With thee I meane to lead my life,
As shortly shall be seene:
Our wedding shall appointed be,
And every thing in its degree:
Come on, quoth he, and follow me,
Thou shalt go shift thee cleane.
What is thy name, faire maid? quoth he.
Penelophon, O king, quoth she:
With that she made a lowe courtsey;
A trim one as I weene.*

*Thus hand in hand along they walke
Unto the king's pallace:
The king with courteous comly talke
This begger doth imbrace:*

*The begger blusheth scarlet red,
And straight againe as pale as lead,
But not a word at all she said,
She was in such amaze.*

*At last she spake with trembling voyce,
And said, O king, I doe rejoyce
That you wil take me for your choyce,
And my degree's so base.*

*And when the wedding day was come,
The king commanded strait
The noblemen both all and some Upon the queene to wait.*

*And she behaved herself that day,
As if she had never walkt the way:
She had forgot her gown of gray,
Which she did weare of late.*

*The proverbe old is come to passe,
The priest, when he begins his masse,
Forgets that ever clerke he was;
He knowth not his estate.*

*Here you may read, Cophetua,
Though long time fancie-fed,
Compelled by the blinded boy
The begger for to wed:
He that did lovers lookes disdain,
To do the same was glad and faine,
Or else he would himselfe have slaine,
In storie, as we read.
Disdain no whit, O lady deere,
But pittie now thy servant heere,
Least that it hap to thee this yeare,
As to that king it did.*

*And thus they led a quiet life
During their princely raigne;
And in a tombe were buried both,
As writers sheweth plaine.
The lords they tooke it grievously,
The ladies tooke it heavily,
The commons cryed pitiously,
Their death to them was paine,
Their fame did sound so passingly
That it did pierce the starry sky,
And throughout all the world did flye
To every princes realme.*

Auf den phantastischen Narren, den man Monarcho nannte, und den Shakspeare in A. 4, Sc. 1 namhaft macht, findet sich in einer Sammlung poetischer Grabschriften von Thomas Churchyard (1580) folgende charakteristische:

The Phantastical Monarch's Epitaph.

*Though Dant be dead, and Maro lies in grave,
And Petrarch's sprite be mounted past our view,
Yet do some live, that poets' humours have,
To keep old course with veins of verses new:
Whose pens are prest to paint our people plain,
That else asleep in silence should remain:
Come, poor old man that bare the Monarch's name,
Thine Epitaph shall here set forth thy fame.
Thy climbing mind aspir'd beyond the stars;
Thy lofty style no earthly title bore;
Thy wits would seem to see through peace and wars,
Thy taunting tongue was pleasant, sharp and sore,
And though thy pride and pomp was somewhat vain,
The Monarch had a deep-discoursing brain:
Alone with friend he could of wonders treat,
In public place pronounce his sentence great.
No match for fools, if wisemen were in place,
No mate at meal to sit with common sort:
Both grave of looks and father-like of face,
Of judgment quick, of comely form and port;*

*Most bent to words on high and solemn days,
Of diet fine, and dainty divers ways:
And well dispos'd, if Prince did pleasure take
At any mirth that he, poor man, could make.
On gallant robes his greatest glory stood,
Yet garments bare could never daunt his mind;
He fear'd no state, nor car'd for worldly good,
Held each thing light as feathers in the wind.
And still he said: the strong thrusts weak to wall;
When sword bore sway, the Monarch should have all;
The man of might at length shall Monarch be,
And greatest strength shall make the feeble flee.
When strangers came in presence anywhere,
Strange was the talk the Monarch utter'd then;
He had a voice could thunder through the ear,
And speak much like a merry Christmas man,
But, sure, small mirth his matter harped on.
His form of life who lists to look upon,
Did shew some wit, though folly fed his will:
The man is dead, yet Monarchs liveth still.*

Die Anekdote, aus welcher Shakspeare nach Stevens' irriger Ansicht in A. 3, Sc. 1 den Witz Costard's über guerdon und remuneration geschöpft haben soll, lautet in dem 1598 zuerst gedruckten Pamphlet A Health to the gentlemanly Profession of Serving-men by J. M. folgendermassen: There was, sayth he, a man (but of what estate, degree or calling, I will not name, least thereby I might incur displeasure of any), that comming to his friend's house, who was a gentleman of good reckoning, and being there kindly enter-tayned and well used, as well of his friend, the gentleman, as of his servants; one of the said servants, doing him some extraordinary pleasure during his abode there, at his departure he comes unto the said servant, and saith unto him: Hold thee, here is a remuneration for thy pains, which the servant receiving gave him utterly for it, besides his pains, thanks, for it was but a three-farthings-piece; and I hold thanks for the same a small price, howsoever the market goes. Now, another coming to the said gentleman's house, it was the fore-said servant's good hap to be near him at his going away, who, calling the servant unto him, said: Hold thee, here is a guerdon for thy deserts. Now the servant paid no dearer for the guerdon than for the remuneration, though the guerdon was XI. d. farthing better, for it was a shilling, and the other but a three-farthings.

Ueber das dancing horse, von dem in A. 1, Sc. 2 Moth spricht, mögen hier noch einige zeitgenössische Notizen und Citate zusammengestellt werden. In einer Epigrammensammlung von Thomas Bastard (1598) findet sich u. A. folgendes, betitelt Of Bankes's Horse:

*Bankes hath a horse of wondrous qualitie,
For he can fight, and pisse, and dance, and lie,
And finde your purse and tell what coyne ye have:
But Bankes who taught your horse to smell a knave.*

Bischof Morton erzählt: Which bringeth me into my remembrance a storie which Banks told me at Frankeford, from his own experience in France among the Capuchins by whom he was brought into suspicion of magicke, because of the strange feats which his horse Morocco plaied (as I take it) at Orleance; where he to redeem his credit, promised to manifest to the world that his horse was nothing lesse than a divell. To this end he commanded his horse to seek out one in the preasse of the people, who had a crucifixe on his hat; which done, he bad him kneele down unto it; and not this only, but also to rise up againe and to kisse it. And now, gentlemen, quoth he, I think my horse hath acquitted both me and himself; and so his adversaries rested satisfied: conceiving as it might seeme that the divell had no power to come to the crosse. — Ferner in Sir Walter Raleigh's History of the World: If Banks had lived in older times, he would have shamed all the inchanters in the world; for whosoever was most famous among them, could never master, or instruct any beast as he did his horse. — Auf die Sage, dass Banks sammt seinem Pferde am Ende in Rom als Zauberer verbrannt worden sei, deutet Ben Jonson in seinem Epigramm On the famous voyage hin:

*But 'mongst the Tiberts, who do you think there was?
Old Banks, the juggler, our Pythagoras,
Grave tutor to the learned horse, both which,
Being, beyond sea, both burned for one witch,
Their spirits transmigrated to a cat.*

ACT I.

SCENE I.

Navarre. A Park, with a Palace in it.

Enter the KING, BIRON, LONGAVILLE, and DUMAINE.

King. Let fame, that all hunt after in their lives,
 Live register'd upon our brazen tombs,
 And then ² grace us in the disgrace of death,
 When, spite of cormorant devouring ³ time,
 The endeavour of this present breath may buy
 That honour, which shall bate his scythe's keen edge,
 And make us heirs of all eternity. ⁴
 Therefore, brave conquerors! — for so you are,
 That war against your own affections,
 And the huge army of the world's desires, —
 Our late edict ⁵ shall strongly stand in force:
 Navarre shall be the wonder of the world;
 Our court shall be a little academe, ⁶
 Still and contemplative in living art.
 You three, Biron, Dumaine, and Longaville,
 Have sworn for three years' term to live with me,
 My fellow-scholars, and to keep those statutes

That are recorded in this schedule here:

Your oaths are pass'd, and now subscribe your names,
 That his own hand may strike his honour down,
 That violates the smallest branch herein. ⁷
 If you are arm'd to do, as sworn to do,
 Subscribe to your deep oaths, ⁸ and keep it too.

Long. I am resolv'd: 't is but a three years' fast.
 The mind shall banquet, though the body pine:
 Fat paunches have lean pates; and dainty bits
 Make rich the ribs, but bankrupt ⁹ the wits.

Dum. My loving lord, Dumaine is mortified. ¹⁰
 The grosser manner of these world's delights ¹¹
 He throws upon the gross world's baser slaves:
 To love, to wealth, to pomp, I pine and die,
 With all these living ¹² in philosophy.

Biron. I can but say their protestation over;
 So much, dear liege, I have already sworn,
 That is, to live and study here three years.
 But there are other strict observances;
 As, not to see a woman in that term,
 Which, I hope well, is not enrolled there: ¹³
 And, one day in a week to touch no food,
 And but one meal on every day beside;

1) So steht zuerst in der zweiten Folioausg. der Name, der in Q. und Fol. Berowne und Beroune lautet und in A. 4, Sc. 3 einen Reim auf moon bildet. 2) then bezieht sich auf das nachfolgende when. 3) Vielleicht ist cormorant-devouring als Compositum zu fassen: schlingend wie ein Rabe. 4) Und uns die Unsterblichkeit sichern, uns verewigen wird. 5) edict betont Sh. bald auf der ersten, bald auf der zweiten Sylbe. 6) academe, wofür manche Hgg. mit den spätern Folioausgg. academy setzen, kommt noch zweimal in diesem Drama und häufig bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen vor. — In Q. und Fol. steht Achademe. 7) Wer den geringsten Theil dieser beschworenen Statuten verletzt, der schlägt mit eigener Hand, mit der er seinen Namen darunter gesetzt hat, gleichsam seine Ehre zu Boden. 8) oaths im Plural, weil von den Eidschwüren Mehrerer die Rede ist, wollte Steevens in oath umändern, um es mit dem folgenden it in Einklang zu bringen. — it bezieht sich auf den ganzen vorhergehenden Satz: haltet es, wenn ihr unterschrieben habt. — Die späteren Folioausgg. setzen keep them too. 9) So die Fol., die bankerout dreisylbig liest. Die Q. hat bancrout quite. — Staunton citirt aus Clark's Proverbs English and Latin (1630) dieses Verspaar so: Fat paunches make lean pates, and grosser bits || Enrich the ribs, but bankrupt quite the wits. Demnach wäre bankrupt als Verbum, nicht als Adjectiv, zu fassen. 10) mortified = kasteiet, der Welt abgestorben, erhält seine nähere Erklärung in den folgenden Versen. 11) world's delights wird als ein Wort betrachtet und hat daher these vor sich, obgleich dem Sinne nach the delights of this world zu verstehen ist. 12) living ist dem die entgegengesetzt, und with all these bezieht sich auf love, wealth, pomp: in der Philosophie habe ich die Liebe, den Reichtum und Prunk, denen ich in der Wirklichkeit abgestorben bin. 13) Nicht verzeichnet in den Statuten, die sie unterschreiben sollen. 14) Ich pflegte bisher die ganze Nacht über

The which, I hope, is not enrolled there:
And then, to sleep but three hours in the night,
And not be seen to wink of all the day,
(When I was wont to think no harm all night,¹⁴
And make a dark night too of half the day) —
Which, I hope well, is not enrolled there.
O! these are barren tasks, too hard to keep,
Not to see ladies, study, fast, not sleep.¹⁵

King. Your oath is pass'd to pass away from these.

Biron. Let me say no, my liege, an if you please.
I only swore to study with your grace,
And stay here in your court for three years' space.

Long. You swore to that, Biron, and to the rest.

Biron. By yea and nay, Sir, then I swore in jest. —
What is the end of study? let me know.

King. Why, that to know which else we should not know.

Biron. Things hid and barr'd, you mean, from common sense?

King. Ay, that is study's god-like recompense.

Biron. Come on then, I will swear to study so,
To know the thing I am forbid to know;
As thus, — to study where I well may dine,
When I to feast¹⁶ expressly am forbid;
Or study where to meet some mistress fine,
When mistresses from common sense are hid;
Or, having sworn too hard-a-keeping oath,¹⁷
Study to break it, and not break my troth.
If study's gain be thus,¹⁸ and this be so,
Study knows that which yet it doth not know.
Swear me to this, and I will ne'er say no.

King. These be the stops that hinder study quite,
And train our intellects to vain delight.

Biron. Why, all delights are vain; but that most vain,
Which, with pain purchas'd, doth inherit pain:
As, painfully to pore upon a book,
To seek the light of truth; while truth the while Doth falsely blind the eyesight of his look.¹⁹
Light, seeking light, doth light of light beguile:
So, ere you find where light in darkness lies,
Your light grows dark by losing of your eyes.
Study me²⁰ how to please the eye indeed,
By fixing it upon a fairer eye;

Who²¹ dazzling so, that eye shall be his heed,
And give him light that it was blinded by.
Study is like the heaven's glorious sun,
That will not be deep-search'd with saucy looks:
Small have continual plodders ever won,
Save base authority²² from others' books.
These earthly godfathers of heaven's lights,
That give a name to every fixed star,
Have no more profit of their shining nights,
Than those that walk, and wot not what they are.
Too much to know is to know nought but fame;
And every godfather can give a name.²³

King. How well he's read, to reason against reading!

Dum. Proceeded well, to stop all good proceeding!²⁴

Long. He weeds the corn, and still lets grow the weeding.

Biron. The spring is near, when green geese are a breeding.

Dum. How follows that?

Biron. Fit in his place and time.

Dum. In reason nothing.

Biron. Something then in rhyme.²⁵

King. Biron is like an envious sneaping²⁶ frost,
That bites the first-born infants of the spring.

Biron. Well, say I am: why should proud summer boast,

Before the birds have any cause to sing?

Why should I joy in an²⁷ abortive birth?

At Christmas I no more desire a rose,

Than wish a snow in May's new-fangled shows;²⁸

But like of each thing²⁹ that in season grows.

So you, to study now it is too late,

Climb o'er the house to unlock the little gate.³⁰

King. Well, sit³¹ you out: go home, Biron: adieu!

Biron. No, my good lord; I have sworn to stay with you:

And, though I have for barbarism spoke more,

Than for that angel knowledge you can say,

Yet confident I'll keep what I have sworn,³²

And bide the penance of each three years' day.

Give me the paper: let me read the same;

And to the strict'st decrees I'll write my name.

nichts Böses zu denken, d. h. ich pflegte ruhig zu schlafen die ganze Nacht und dachte nichts Arges dabei. 15) scil. these tasks, not to see ladies, to study, to fast, not to sleep. 16) feast ist Theobald's Emendation für fast der Q. und Fol. 17) Ein Eid, der zu schwer zu halten ist. 18) Für thus las Pope this. 19) his bezieht sich, genau genommen, auf kein bestimmtes Wort: das Auge Dessen, der über einem Buche brütet. — truth steht im Gegensatz zu falsely = trügerisch. 20) me ist ein ethischer Dativ, der nur zur Verstärkung des Imperativs study dient. 21) to dazzle = geblendet sein. — who bezieht sich auf the eye und auf it: wenn Euer Auge geblendet ist, indem Ihr es auf ein schöneres Auge richtet, so soll jenes schönere Auge ihm als Hüter oder Leiter (his heed) dienen und Eurem Auge das Licht geben, von dem es, Euer Auge, zuvor geblendet war. 22) base authority = werthlose Citate aus fremden Büchern, die man zur eigenen Rechtfertigung anführt. 23) Wer zu viel weiss, der weiss nur das, was auf leerem Wortschall, leerem Gerede beruht, wie jeder Gevatter Namen ertheilen kann. 24) Er hat einen guten Weg eingeschlagen, um Andere zu verhindern, weiter zu kommen. 25) rhyme und reason stehen häufig zusammengestellt oder als Gegensätze. 26) Ein tückischer, beissender Frost. — Diese Rede theilen manche Hgg. ohne Grund dem Longaville zu, im Widerspruch mit Q. und Fol. 27) So emendirt Pope das any der alten Ausgg., das wahrscheinlich aus der vorhergehenden Zeile in diese gerathen war. 28) May's new-fangled shows ist der neumodische Putz und Aufzug, in welchem der Mai erscheint; Alles, was er Buntes und Neues wachsen lässt. — Steevens deutet das Wort, ziemlich unwahrscheinlich, auf die May-games, die althergebrachten Lustbarkeiten und Spiele, mit denen das Volk den Anfang des Mai begrüsst. — Für shows wollte Theobald earth lesen, um einen Reim auf abortive birth zu gewinnen. Sidney Walker vermuthete mirth dafür. 29) Ich bin mit jedem Dinge zufrieden, das zu seiner Zeit wächst. — to like of = an Etwas Gefallen finden. 30) So die Q. — Die Fol. hat That were to climb o'er the house to unlock the gate. — So Ihr, wenn Ihr jetzt, da es zu spät ist, studirt, klettert über das Haus u. s. w. 31) to sit out, vom Kartenspiel = eine Partie nicht mitspielen, sondern nur zusehen, wie die Andern spielen: bleibe Du weg von unserm Spiel, unserer Genossenschaft. — Für das sit der Q. hat die Fol. fit. 32) swore, was der Reim verlangt, haben schon die spätern Folioausgg. für sworn der Q. und Fol.

King. How well this yielding rescues thee from shame!

Biron. [Reads.] Item, »That no woman shall come within a mile of my court.« — Hath this been proclaimed?

Long. Four days ago.

Biron. Let's see the penalty. [Reads.] »On pain of losing her tongue.« — Who devis'd this penalty?

Long. Marry, that did I.

Biron. Sweet lord, and why?

Long. To fright them hence with that dread penalty.

Biron. A dangerous law against gentility!³³ [Reads.] Item, »If any man be seen to talk with a woman within the term of three years, he shall endure such public shame as the rest of the court can³⁴ possibly devise.« —

This article, my liege, yourself must break; For, well you know, here comes in embassy The French king's daughter with yourself to speak, — A maid of grace, and complete majesty, — About surrender-up³⁵ of Aquitaine To her decrepit, sick, and bed-ridden father: Therefore, this article is made in vain, Or vainly comes the admired princess hither.

King. What say you, lords? why, this was quite forgot.

Biron. So study evermore is overshot:³⁶ While it doth study to have what it would, It doth forget to do the thing it should; And when it hath the thing it hunteth most, 'T is won, as towns with fire; so won, so lost.

King. We must of force dispense with this decree: She must lie here on mere necessity.³⁷

Biron. Necessity will make us all forsworn Three thousand times within this three years' space; For every man with his affects is born,

Not by might master'd,³⁸ but by special grace.

If I break faith, this word shall speak³⁹ for me,

I am forsworn on mere necessity. —

So to the laws at large I write my name; [Subscribes.

And he that breaks them in the least degree,

Stands in attainder of eternal shame.

Suggestions are to others as to me;⁴⁰

But, I believe, although I seem so loath,

I am the last that will last⁴¹ keep his oath.

But is there no quick recreation⁴² granted?

King. Ay, that there is. Our court, you know, is haunted

With a refined traveller of Spain;

A man in all the world's new fashion planted,

That hath a mint of phrases in his brain;

One, whom⁴³ the music of his own vain tongue

Doth ravish like enchanting harmony;

A man of complements,⁴⁴ whom right and wrong

Have chose as umpire of their mutiny:

This child of fancy, that Armado hight,⁴⁵

For interim to our studies, shall relate

In high-born words the worth of many a knight

From tawny Spain, lost in the world's debate.⁴⁶

How you delight,⁴⁷ my lords. I know not, I;

But, I protest, I love to hear him lie, —

And I will use him for my minstrelsy.

Biron. Armado is a most illustrious wight,

A man of fire-new⁴⁸ words, fashion's own knight.

Long. Costard, the swain, and he shall be our sport;

And so to study, three years is but short.

Enter DULL,⁴⁹ with a letter, and COSTARD.

Dull. Which is the duke's own person?

Biron. This, fellow. What wouldst?

Dull. I myself reprehend his own person, for I am his

33) gentility = Freundlichkeit, Artigkeit, ist die Lesart der Fol.; die Q. hat gentletie, eine Art scherzhaften Reims auf penalty. — Diese Rede theilte zuerst Theobald mit Recht dem Biron zu. Die alten Ausgg. verbinden sie mit Longaville's vorhergehenden Worten und lassen Biron erst von This article, my liege etc. an reden. — dangerous ist nicht so sehr = gefährlich, als = rechtlich wirksam, wie danger häufig = Bereich des Gesetzes, Wirkungskreis des Gesetzes, ist. 34) So die Q.; die Fol. shall. 35) Das substantivische surrender-up statt des gewöhnlichen surrender ist nach Analogie des verbalen to surrender up gebildet. 36) So schießt das Studium immer über sein Ziel hinaus. — to be overshot für to overshoot one's self. 37) Die Prinzessin muss aus reiner Nothwendigkeit hier logiren, muss nothgedrungen hier beherbergt werden. 38) master'd by might ist Apposition zu affects = Regungen, Leidenschaften, die man nicht mit Gewalt bemeistert, sondern durch besondere Gnade oder höhere Begünstigung. 39) Die Fol. hat break für das speak der Q. 40) Ich bin denselben Verführungen, den Eid zu brechen, ausgesetzt, wie die Uebrigen. 41) Das eine last verstärkt das andere, wie bei Sh. eine Negation die andere: ich werde den Eid bis zu allerletzt, von Allen am längsten, halten. 42) quick recreation = muntere, oder improvisirte Ergötzlichkeit, um uns zu erholen von unsern Studien. 43) Die alten Ausgg. haben who. 44) complements sind die Fertigkeiten oder Eigenschaften, die zu einem gebildeten Mann, einem feinen Cavalier gehören und die ihn deshalb berechtigen, in allen Fragen, welche feine Lebensart betreffen, als Schiedsrichter aufzutreten und zu entscheiden, wer Recht und wer Unrecht hat. — mutiny = Streit im Staat, innerlicher Streit. 45) child of fancy heisst Armado, weil er ganz phantastischer Art ist. — hight, das Präteritum und Participium von to hight = heissen, genannt werden, ein veraltetes Verbum, das Sh. nur in komisch affectirtem Sinne gebraucht; so in Midsummer-Night's Dream (A. 5, Sc. 1) This grisly beast, which Lion hight by name. 46) lost in the world's debate bezieht Warburton auf die Kreuzzüge, in denen die spanischen Ritter, die fabelhaften Helden der alten Ritterbücher, umkamen; Johnson deutet es allgemein von dem Treiben der Welt, in welchem diese Ritter oder die Kunde von ihnen verloren gingen. Die erstere Erklärung, wenn auch vielleicht von Warburton zu speciell gefasst, scheint plausibler als die zweite. 47) delight ist mit dem Folgenden zu verbinden: Inwiefern es Euch ergötzt, ihn lügen zu hören, weiss ich nicht, aber ich bekenne, ich höre ihn gerne lügen und will mich seiner statt meiner Hofmusik bedienen, ich will ihm lieber zuhören als meiner Capelle. — Anders erklärt Douce, aber wenig wahrscheinlich: I will make a minstrel of him. 48) fire-new, von einer Münze, die eben aus der Ofen-gluth kommt, eben geprägt ist. So in Twelfth-Night (A. 3, Sc. 2) some excellent jests, fire-new from the mint. 49) In Q. und Fol. Enter a Constable. Ebenso wird Costard nachher vor seinen Reden als Clown bezeichnet. — Als duke = Fürst, bezeichnet auch nachher (A. 2, Sc. 1) die Prinzessin den König von Navarra: this virtuous duke, wie hier Dull: Which is the duke's own person? 50) tharborough in der Fol., farborough in der Q., grace's tharborough:⁵⁰ but I would see his own person in flesh and blood.

Biron. This is he.

Dull. Signior Arm — Arm — commends you.⁵¹ There's villany abroad: this letter will tell you more.

Cost. Sir, the contempts⁵² thereof are as touching me.

King. A letter from the magnificent Armado.

Biron. How low soever the matter, I hope in God for high words.

Long. A high hope for a low heaven:⁵³ God grant us patience!

Biron. To hear, or forbear laughing?⁵⁴

Long. To hear meekly, Sir, and to laugh moderately; or to forbear both.

Biron. Well, Sir, be it as the style⁵⁵ shall give us cause to climb in the merriness.

Cost. The matter is to me, Sir, as concerning Jaquenetta. The manner of it is, I was taken with the manner.⁵⁶

Biron. In what manner?

Cost. In manner and form following, Sir; all those three: I was seen with her in the manor-house, sitting with her upon the form, and taken following her into the park; which, put together, is in manner and form following. Now, Sir, for the manner, — it is the manner of a man to speak to a woman; for the form, — in some form.

Biron. For the following, Sir?

Cost. As it shall follow in my correction; and God defend the right!

King. Will you hear this letter with attention?

Biron. As we would hear an oracle.

Cost. Such is the simplicity⁵⁷ of man to hearken after the flesh.

King. [Reads.] »Great deputy, the welkin's vicerent, and sole dominator of Navarre, my soul's earth's God, and body's fostering patron,« —

Cost. Not a word of Costard yet.

King. »So it is,« —

Cost. It may be so; but if he say it is so, he is, in telling true, but so,⁵⁸ —

King. Peace!

Cost. — be⁵⁹ to me, and every man that dares not fight.

King. No words!

Cost. — of other men's secrets, I beseech you.

King. »So it is, besieged with sable-coloured melancholy, I did commend the black-oppressing humour to the most wholesome physic of thy health-giving air; and, as I am a gentleman, betook myself to walk. The time when? About the sixth hour; when beasts most graze, birds best peck, and men sit down to that nourishment which is called supper. So much for the time when. Now for the ground which; which, I mean, I walked upon: it is ycleped⁶⁰ thy park. Then for the place where; where, I mean, I did encounter that obscene and most preposterous event, that draweth from my snow-white pen the ebon-coloured ink, which here thou viewest, beholdest, surveyest, or seest. But to the place where; — it standeth north-north-east and by east from the west corner of thy curious-knotted⁶¹ garden: there did I see that low-spirited swain, that base minnow of thy mirth,«⁶² —

Cost. Me.

King. — »that unletter'd small-knowing soul,« —

Cost. Me.

King. — »that shallow vassal,« —

Cost. Still me.

King. — »which, as I remember, hight⁶³ Costard,« —

Cost. O! me.

King. — »sorted and consorted, contrary to thy established proclaimed edict and continent canon, with⁶⁴ — with — O! with — but with this I passion to say where-with,« —

Cost. With a wench.

King. — »with a child of our grandmother Eve, a female; or, for thy more sweet understanding, a woman. Him I (as my ever-esteemed duty pricks me on) have sent to thee, to receive the meed of punishment,⁶⁵ by thy sweet grace's officer, Antony Dull, a man of good repute, carriage, bearing, and estimation.«

Dull. Me, an 't shall please you: I am Antony Dull.

King. »For Jaquenetta (so is the weaker vessel called), which I apprehended with the aforesaid swain, I keep her as a vessel of thy law's fury;⁶⁶ and shall, at the least of thy sweet notice, bring her to trial. Thine, in all complements of devoted and heart-burning heat of duty,

DON ADRIANO DE ARMADO.«

Biron. This is not so well as I looked for, but the best that ever I heard.

King. Ay, the best for the worst. — But, sirrah, what say you to this?

Cost. Sir, I confess the wench.

entstellt aus thirdborough = Constabler. — Für reprehend will er represent sagen. 51) scil. commends him oder himself to you. — Er bringt den Namen Armado nur verstümmelt heraus. 52) scil. the contents. 53) Die Hoffnung auf erhabene Worte in Armado's Briefe, oder eigentlich die gehofften Worte selbst sind so hochfliegend, dass sie an den Himmel, der für sie zu niedrig ist, anstossen. — Die meisten Hgg. setzen für das heaven der Q. und Fol. mit Theobald having: eine hohe Hoffnung auf ein niedriges Besitzthum. — Steevens erklärt heaven mit Bezug auf die verschiedenen Himmel, also eine hohe Hoffnung auf einen Himmel niedern Ranges. 54) laughing ist Capell's, durch Longaville's Antwort gerechtfertigte Emendation für hearing der alten Ausgg. 55) Wortspiel zwischen style = Styl, und stile = Steige in der Hecke, um von einem eingehegten Felde in das andere zu kommen. 56) Wortspiel zwischen manner = Art und Weise, und to be taken with the manner = auf der That ertappt werden, eigentlich mit dem gestohlenen Gut in der Hand. Daran schliesst sich noch ein Wortspiel mehr mit manor-house = Herrenhaus; ebenso mit form = Form, und = Bank. 57) Für simplicity will er duplicity sagen = Lust an Zweideutigkeiten. 58) Manche Hgg. setzen mit Hanmer but so, so = nur so leidlich. 59) scil. peace be to me = Friede sei mit mir. 60) ycleped, das veraltete, hier affectirt gebrauchte Particip von to clepe = to call. 61) curious-knotted = mit sinnreich verschlungenen Gartenanlagen versehen. — knots sind die einzelnen Gartenpartien, mit ihren symmetrischen Wegen und Pflanzungen. 62) Jener niedrige Knirps, mit dem Du Deinen Spass treibst. — minnow, eigentlich = Elritze, bezeichnet verächtlich die Kleinheit, wie in Coriolanus (A. 3, Sc. 1) der Tribun Sicinius Triton of the minnows heisst. 63) Vgl. oben Anm. 45. 64) Theobald setzte with für das which der Q. und Fol. 65) meed of punishment = die gebührende Strafe. 66) Eine Anspielung auf das biblische the vessel of wrath. 67) Gegensatz zwischen to hear = Etwas hören, und to mark = sich

King. Did you hear the proclamation?
Cost. I do confess much of the hearing it, but little of the marking of it.⁶⁷
King. It was proclaimed a year's imprisonment, to be taken with a wench.
Cost. I was taken with none, Sir: I was taken with a damosel.⁶⁸
King. Well, it was proclaimed damosel.
Cost. This was no damosel neither, Sir: she was a virgin.
King. It is so varied too, for it was proclaimed virgin.
Cost. If it were, I deny her virginity: I was taken with a maid.
King. This maid will not serve your turn, Sir.
Cost. This maid will serve my turn, Sir.
King. Sir, I will pronounce your sentence: you shall fast a week with bran and water.
Cost. I had rather pray a month with mutton and porridge.
King. And Don Armado shall be your keeper. — My lord Biron, see him deliver'd o'er: And go we, lords, to put in practice that which each to other hath so strongly sworn.
[Exeunt KING, LONGVILLE, and DUMAINE.]
Biron. I'll lay my head to any good man's hat,⁶⁹ These oaths and laws will prove an idle scorn. — Sirrah, come on.
Cost. I suffer for the truth, Sir: for true it is, I was taken with Jaquenetta, and Jaquenetta is a true girl; and therefore, welcome the sour cup of prosperity!⁷⁰ Affliction may one day smile again, and till then, sit thee down,⁷¹ sorrow!

SCENE II.

ARMADO'S House in the Park.

*Enter ARMADO and Moth.*¹

Arm. Boy, what sign is it, when a man of great spirit grows melancholy?
Moth. A great sign, Sir, that he will look sad.
Arm. Why, sadness is one and the self-same thing, dear imp.²
Moth. No, no; O Lord! Sir, no.
Arm. How canst thou part sadness and melancholy, my tender juvenal?³
Moth. By a familiar demonstration of the working,⁴ my tough senior.

Arm. Why tough senior? why tough senior?
Moth. Why tender juvenal? why tender juvenal?
Arm. I spoke it, tender juvenal, as a congruent epitheton appertaining to thy young days, which we may nominate tender.
Moth. And I, tough senior, as an appertinent title to your old time, which we may name tough.
Arm. Pretty, and apt.
Moth. How mean you, Sir? I pretty, and my saying apt? or I apt, and my saying pretty?
Arm. Thou pretty, because little.
Moth. Little pretty, because little. Wherefore apt?
Arm. And therefore apt, because quick.
Moth. Speak you this in my praise, master?
Arm. In thy condign praise.
Moth. I will praise an eel with the same praise.
Arm. What, that an eel is ingenious?⁵
Moth. That an eel is quick.
Arm. I do say, thou art quick in answers. Thou heatest my blood.
Moth. I am answered, Sir.
Arm. I love not to be crossed.
Moth. [Aside.] He speaks the mere contrary: crosses⁶ love not him.
Arm. I have promised to study three years with the duke.⁷
Moth. You may do it in an hour, Sir.
Arm. Impossible.
Moth. How many is one thrice told?
Arm. I am ill at reckoning: it fitteth the spirit of a tapster.⁸
Moth. You are a gentleman, and a gamester, Sir.
Arm. I confess both: they are both the varnish of a complete man.
Moth. Then, I am sure, you know how much the gross sum of deuce-ace amounts to.
Arm. It doth amount to one more than two.
Moth. Which the base vulgar do call three.
Arm. True.
Moth. Why, Sir, is this such a piece of study? Now, here is three studied, ere you'll thrice wink; and how easy it is to put years to the word three, and study three years in two words, the dancing horse will tell you.⁹
Arm. A most fine figure!
Moth. [Aside.] To prove you a cypher.¹⁰
Arm. I will hereupon confess I am in love; and, as it is base for a soldier to love, so am I in love with a base Etwas merken. 68) So die Fol. Die Q. hat das gewöhnlichere damsel, hier und im Folgenden. 69) Ich will meinen Kopf verwetten gegen den Hut irgend eines Ehrenmannes, dass diese Eide u. s. w. 70) Für prosperity meint er adversity, und ebenso für affliction das Gegentheil, etwa benediction. 71) So die Q.; die Fol. and until then, sit down.

1) In den alten Ausgg. steht vor Armado's Reden meistens Brag. (d. h. Braggart) und vor Moth's Reden Boy. 2) imp = Schössling, Sprössling, dann affectirt = Sohn, Knabe. 3) juvenal in gesuchter Redeweise = junger Mensch. So in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 1, Sc. 2) the juvenal, the prince your master, whose chin is not yet fledged. 4) the working bezieht sich auf sadness und melancholy = die Wirkung beider. — Wie die Orthographie der alten Ausgg. senior und signior beständig verwechselt, so steht auch hier signeur in der Fol., signeor in der Q. 5) So die Q.; die Fol. ingenuous, wie sie meistens für ingenious schreibt. 6) Wortspiel zwischen cross = eine Münze, mit einem Kreuz als Gepräge, und to cross = Jemandem in den Weg treten. So ähnlich in As you like it (A. 2, Sc. 4) yet I should bear no cross, if I did bear you; for I think you have no money in your purse. 7) d. h. mit dem König von Navarra. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 49. 8) So in Troilus and Cressida (A. 1, Sc. 2) a tapster's arithmetic may soon bring his particulars therein to a total. 9) Eine Anspielung auf das Pferd eines gewissen Bankes, das in jener Zeit unter dem Namen Marocco wegen seiner Geschicklichkeit im Tanzen, Rechnen und andern Künsten viel Aufsehen erregte. Sir Kenelm Digby erzählt u. A. davon: that his horse would restore a glove to the due owner, after the master had whispered the man's name in his ear, would tell the just number of pence in any piece of silver coin, newly showed him by his master.

wench. If drawing my sword against the humour of affection would deliver me from the reprobate thought of it, I would take desire¹¹ prisoner, and ransom him to any French courtier for a new-devised courtesy. I think scorn to sigh: methinks, I should outswear Cupid.¹² Comfort me, boy. What great men have been in love?

Moth. Hercules, master.

Arm. Most sweet Hercules! — More authority, dear boy, name more; and, sweet my child, let them be men of good repute and carriage.

Moth. Samson, master: he was a man of good carriage, great carriage,¹³ for he carried the town-gates on his back, like a porter, and he was in love.

Arm. O well-knit Samson! strong-jointed Samson! I do excel thee in my rapier, as much as thou didst me in carrying gates. I am in love too. Who was Samson's love, my dear Moth?

Moth. A woman, master.

Arm. Of what complexion?

Moth. Of all the four, or the three, or the two, or one of the four.

Arm. Tell me precisely of what complexion.

Moth. Of the sea-water green, Sir.

Arm. Is that one of the four complexions?

Moth. As I have read, Sir; and the best of them too.

Arm. Green, indeed, is the colour of lovers;¹⁴ but to have a love of that colour, methinks, Samson had small reason for it. He, surely, affected her for her wit.

Moth. It was so, Sir, for she had a green wit.

Arm. My love is most immaculate white and red.

Moth. Most maculate¹⁵ thoughts, master, are masked under such colours.

Arm. Define, define, well-educated infant.

Moth. My father's wit, and my mother's tongue, assist me!

Arm. Sweet invocation of a child; most pretty, and pathetic!

Moth. If she be made of white and red,
Her faults will ne'er be known;
For blushing¹⁶ cheeks by faults are bred,
And fears by pale-white shown:
Then, if she fear, or be to blame,
By this you shall not know;
For still her cheeks possess the same,
Which native she doth owe.¹⁷

A dangerous rhyme, master; against the reason of white and red.

Arm. Is there not a ballad, boy, of the King and the Beggar?¹⁸

Moth. The world was very guilty of such a ballad some three ages since; but I think, now 't is not to be found; or, if it were, it would neither serve for the writing, nor the tune.

Arm. I will have that subject newly writ o'er, that I may example my digression¹⁹ by some mighty precedent. Boy, I do love that country girl, that I took in the park with the rational hind²⁰ Costard: she deserves well.

Moth. [Aside.] To be whipped; and yet a better love than my master.

Arm. Sing, boy: my spirit grows heavy in love.

Moth. And that 's great marvel, loving a light wench.

Arm. I say, sing.

Moth. Forbear till this company be past.

*Enter DULL, COSTARD, and JAQUENETTA.*²¹

Dull. Sir, the duke's pleasure is, that you keep Costard safe: and you must let him take no delight, nor no penance,²² but a' must fast three days a week. For this damsel, I must keep her at the park; she is allowed for the day-woman.²³ Fare you well.

Arm. I do betray myself with blushing. — Maid.²⁴

Jaqu. Man.

Arm. I will visit thee at the lodge.

Jaqu. That 's hereby.²⁵

Arm. I know where it is situate.

Jaqu. Lord, how wise you are!

Arm. I will tell thee wonders.

Jaqu. With that face?²⁶

Arm. I love thee.

Jaqu. So I heard you say.

Arm. And so farewell.

Jaqu. Fair weather after you!

Dull. Come, Jaquenetta, away.²⁷

[Ereunt DULL and JAQUENETTA.]

Arm. Villain, thou shalt fast for thy offences, ere thou be pardoned.

Cost. Well, Sir, I hope, when I do it, I shall do it on a full stomach.

Arm. Thou shalt be heavily punished.

Vgl. Einleitung pag. 231 u. 232. 10) Armado fasst figure = Redefigur, Moth fasst es = Zahl, im Gegensatz zu cypher = Null. 11) desire wird hier männlich personificirt, daher ransom him. 12) Ich sollte, statt sentimental vor Liebe zu seufzen, so grimmig fluchen und schwören, dass Cupido davor die Flucht ergriffe. 13) carriage = Benehmen, Haltung, und = Tragkraft. Dasselbe Wortspiel in Romeo and Juliet (A. 1, Sc. 4) Making them women of good carriage. — Auch in porter steckt vielleicht ein Wortspiel = Thürhüter, und = Träger. 14) Grün ist die Lieblingstracht der Verliebten. 15) So die Q.; die Fol. immaculate. 16) blushing verbessert die zweite Folioausg. von 1632 das blush-in der Q. und der Fol. 17) Dieselben Farben herrschen auf ihrer Wange, welche sie als angeboren von Natur besitzt. — the same scil. white and red als Plural ist Subject, her cheeks Object. 18) Armado meint die altenglische Ballade von dem afrikanischen Könige Cophetua, der die Bettlerin Penelophon oder, wie Sh. sie nennt, Zenelophon heirathete. — Andere Anspielungen auf diese Ballade hat Sh. A. 4, Sc. 1, in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 5, Sc. 3), und in Romeo and Juliet (A. 2, Sc. 1). Vgl. Einleitung pag. 230 u. 231. 19) digression = Abschweifung, Abweichung von dem rechten Wege. So in Sh.'s Lucrece: Then my digression is so vile, so base, || That it will live engraven in my face. 20) Tyrwhitt vermuthete irrational hind. — Indess verbindet Armado in seiner affectirten Sprache das Epitheton rational = vernunftbegabt, statt mit der Bezeichnung eines Thieres, wie es stehen sollte, mit hind = Bauerlummel, dem er als solchem eigentlich die Vernunft abspricht. 21) Die Fol. Enter Clown, Constable, and Wench. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 49. 22) Er sagt penance für pleasure oder ein ähnliches Wort. 23) Sie ist zum Milchmädchen bestimmt. — So ist noch in Schottland a dairy-maid = a day. 24) Die folgenden Reden Jaquenetta's bezeichnet die Fol. auch mit Maid. 25) Jaquenetta versteht hereby = je nachdem, Armado = nahebei. 26) So die Q.; die Fol. With what face? — Es ist in Jaquenetta's Munde eine blosse impertinente Antwort, wie ihre Reden vorher und nachher, ohne eine be-

Cost. I am more bound to you than your fellows; for they are but lightly rewarded.

Arm. Take away this villain: shut him up.

Moth. Come, you transgressing slave: away!

Cost. Let me not be pent up, Sir: I will fast, being loose.

Moth. No, Sir; that were fast and loose:²⁸ thou shalt to prison.

Cost. Well, if ever I do see the merry days of desolation²⁹ that I have seen, some shall see —

Moth. What shall some see?

Cost. Nay, nothing, Master Moth, but what they look upon. It is not for prisoners to be too silent³⁰ in their words; and therefore I will say nothing: I thank God I have as little patience as another man, and therefore I can be quiet. [Exeunt Moth and Costard.]

Arm. I do affect³¹ the very ground, which is base, where her shoe, which is baser, guided by her foot, which is basest, doth tread. I shall be forsworn (which is a great argument of falsehood), if I love. And how can that be true love, which is falsely attempted? Love is a familiar;³² Love is a devil: there is no evil angel but Love. Yet was Samson so tempted, and he had an excellent strength: yet was Solomon so seduced, and he had a very good wit. Cupid's butt-shaft is too hard for Hercules' club, and therefore too much odds for a Spaniard's rapier.³³ The first and second cause³⁴ will not serve my turn; the passado he respects not, the duello he regards not: his disgrace is to be called boy, but his glory is to subdue men. Adieu, valour! rust, rapier! be still, drum! for your manager³⁵ is in love; yea, he loveth. Assist me some extemporal³⁶ god of rhyme, for, I am sure, I shall turn sonneteer.³⁷ Devise, wit; write, pen; for I am for whole volumes in folio. [Exit.]

ACT II.

SCENE I.

Another Part of the Park. A Pavilion and Tents at a distance.

Enter the PRINCESS of France, ROSALINE, MARIA, KATHARINE, BOYET, Lords, and other Attendants.

Boyet. Now, Madam, summon up your dearest¹ spirits: Consider whom the king your father sends, To whom he sends, and what 's his embassy: Yourself, held precious in the world's esteem, To parley with the sole inheritor Of all perfections that a man may owe, Matchless Navarre;² the plea of no less weight Than Aquitain, a dowry for a queen. Be now as prodigal of all dear grace, As nature was in making graces dear.³ When she did starve the general world beside, And prodigally gave them all to you.

Prin. Good Lord Boyet, my beauty, though but mean, Needs not the painted flourish of your praise: Beauty is bought by judgment of the eye, Not utter'd by base sale of chapmen's tongues.⁴ I am less proud to hear you tell my worth, Than you much willing to be counted wise In spending your wit in the praise of mine.⁵ But now to task the tasker. — Good Boyet, You are not ignorant, all-telling fame Doth noise abroad, Navarre hath made a vow, Till painful study shall outwear three years, No woman may approach his silent court: Therefore to us seemeth it⁶ a needful course, Before we enter his forbidden gates, To know his pleasure; and in that behalf, stimmte nachweisliche Beziehung. 27) Diese Rede theilen die alten Ausgg. irrig dem Clown zu; Theobald machte die Aenderung. 28) fast and loose = veränderlich, unzuverlässig. Zugleich ein Wortspiel zwischen to fast = fasten, und fast = fest, eingesperrt. 29) Für desolation meint er ein Wort wie exultation oder jubilation. 30) too fehlt in der Fol. — Auch statt silent meint Costard das Gegentheil: zu laut, zu wortreich. — Für das folgende patience will er impatience sagen. 31) to affect = Etwas in Affection nehmen, lieben. 32) familiar = Hausgeist, ein Spiritus familiaris. 33) Wenn selbst die Keule des Hercules nichts gegen Cupido's Pfeil vermag, so ist der Kampf noch viel ungleicher für die spanische Klinge des Armado. 34) Die erste und zweite Ursache, derentwegen ein Duell stattfinden kann, nach den Regeln, welche für solche Ehrenhändel in Büchern der Zeit aufgestellt waren. Diese Modethorheit, mit Citation derselben ausländischen Kunstausrücke, persiflirt Sh. auch in Romeo and Juliet (A. 2, Sc. 4) a duellist; a gentleman of the very first house, of the first and second cause. Ah, the immortal passado! — So ist auch duello hier = die schriftlich dargelegte Lehre vom Duell, wie in Twelfth-Night (A. 3, Sc. 4) he cannot by the duello avoid it. 35) your manager bezieht sich auf rapier und drum = Derjenige, der Euch sonst zu handhaben pflegte. 36) extemporal = aus dem Stegreif dichtend, improvisirend. 37) sonneteer = Sonettendichter, verbessert Capell das sonnet der alten Ausgg., wofür die meisten Hgg. mit Hanmer das moderne sonneteer setzen. Grant White liest turn sonnets. — Mit solchen Liebesgedichten will Armado ganze Foliobände anfüllen.

1) dearest spirits = sind die innigsten, kostbarsten Lebensgeister. 2) Navarre = der König von Navarra. 3) scil. as nature was prodigal in making graces dear: die Natur vertheuerte allen Liebreiz, indem sie ihn Euch allein verlieh und der übrigen Welt vorenthielt. 4) Die Schönheit wird gekauft oder taxirt nach dem Urtheil des Auges Desjenigen der sie erwerben will, wird aber nicht losgeschlagen, 'zum Verkauf ausgebaut nach der gemeinen Ausbietung der Zunge der Händler. — Johnson fasst hier chapman = seller; es ist aber = Käufer und Verkäufer, in der ältern Sprache. 5) scil. in the praise of my wit. 6) Viele Hgg. lesen mit unstatthafter Verkürzung seem'th einsylbig; Q. und Fol. haben to 's, anstatt to us, das allerdings sich eher zu einer Sylbe verschmelzen lässt. 7) Indem wir auf Eure Tüchtigkeit vertrauen, indem Euer Werth uns zuversichtlich macht. 8) craving gehört zu business. 9) So die Fol.; die Q. humble visage. — Malone änderte ohne Noth humbly-visag'd. 10) loving = freundlich gesinnt, anhänglich, eine Anrede, die an Untergebene gerichtet wird. So in K. John (A. 2, Sc. 1) my loving subjects. — Zwei Zeilen weiter haben die alten Ausgg. Longaville ohne Lord, das die Cambridge Edd. mit Capell davor einfügen. 11) heir gebraucht Sh. öfter für heiress. 12) solemnized ist hier ausnahmsweise auf der zweiten Sylbe betont. So auch in Gascoigne's Jocasta: And sithence did solemnize eke the same. 13) Ein Mann von hervorragenden Gaben, von ausgezeichneten Eigenschaften, — Für parts der

Bold of your worthiness, ⁷ we single you
As our best-moving fair solicitor.
Tell him, the daughter of the king of France,
On serious business, craving ⁸ quick despatch,
Importunes personal conference with his grace.
Haste, signify so much; while we attend,
Like humble-visag'd ⁹ suitors, his high will.

Boyet. Proud of employment, willingly I go.

Prin. All pride is willing pride, and yours is so. —

[Exit BOYET.]

Who are the votaries, my loving ¹⁰ lords,
That are vow-fellows with this virtuous duke?

1. Lord. Longaville is one.

Prin. Know you the man?

Mar. I know him, Madam: at a marriage-feast,
Between Lord Perigort and the beauteous heir ¹¹
Of Jaques Falconbridge, solemnized ¹²
In Normandy, saw I this Longaville.
A man of sovereign parts ¹³ he is esteem'd;
Well fitted in the arts, ¹⁴ glorious in arms:
Nothing becomes him ill, that he would well.

The only soil of his fair virtue's gloss,
If virtue's gloss will stain with any soil,
Is a sharp wit match'd with too blunt a will: ¹⁵
Whose edge hath power to cut, whose will still wills
It should none spare that come within his power.

Prin. Some merry mocking lord, belike; is 't so?

Mar. They say so most that most his humours know.

Prin. Such short-liv'd wits do wither as they grow.

Who are the rest?

Kath. The young Dumaine, a well-accomplish'd youth,
Of all that virtue love for virtue lov'd:
Most power to do most harm, least knowing ill,
For he hath wit to make an ill shape good,
And shape to win grace though he ¹⁶ had no wit.
I saw him at the duke Alençon's once;
And much too little of that good I saw
Is my report to his great worthiness. ¹⁷

Ros. Another of these students at that time
Was there with him: if ¹⁸ I have heard a truth,
Biron they call him; but a merrier man,
Within the limit of becoming mirth,
I never spent an hour's talk withal.
His eye begets occasion for his wit;
For every object that the one doth catch,
The other turns to a mirth-moving jest,
Which his fair tongue (conceit's expositor)

Delivers in such apt and gracious words,
That aged ears play truant at his tales, ¹⁹
And younger hearings are quite ravished;
So sweet and voluble is his discourse.

Prin. God bless my ladies! are they all in love,
That every one her own ²⁰ hath garnished
With such bedecking ornaments of praise?

Lord. Here comes Boyet.

Re-enter BOYET.

Prin. Now, what admittance, lord?

Boyet. Navarre had notice of your fair approach;
And he and his competitors in oath ²¹

Were all address'd ²² to meet you, gentle lady,
Before I came. Marry, thus much I have learnt,
He rather means to lodge you in the field,
Like one that comes here to besiege his court,
Than seek a dispensation for his oath,
To let you enter his unpeopled ²³ house.

Here comes Navarre. [The Ladies mask.]

Enter KING, LONGAVILLE, DUMAINE, BIRON, and Attendants.

King. Fair princess, welcome to the court of Navarre.

Prin. Fair, I give you back again; and welcome I have not yet: the roof of this court ²⁴ is too high to be yours, and welcome to the wide fields ²⁵ too base to be mine.

King. You shall be welcome, Madam, to my court.

Prin. I will be welcome then. Conduct me thither.

King. Hear me, dear lady: I have sworn an oath.

Prin. Our Lady ²⁶ help my lord! he 'll be forsworn.

King. Not for the world, fair Madam, by my will.

Prin. Why, will shall break it; will, and nothing else.

King. Your ladyship is ignorant what it is. ²⁷

Prin. Were my lord so, his ignorance were wise,
Where ²⁸ now his knowledge must prove ignorance.

I hear, your grace hath sworn out house-keeping:

'T is deadly sin to keep that oath, my lord,

And sin to break it. ²⁹

But pardon me, I am too sudden-bold:

To teach a teacher ³⁰ ill beseemeth me.

Vouchsafe to read the purpose of my coming,
And suddenly resolve me in my suit. [Gives a paper.]

King. Madam, I will, if suddenly I may.

Prin. You will the sooner that I were away,

For you 'll prove perjurd, if you make me stay.

Biron. Did not I dance with you in Brabant once?

Ros. Did not I dance with you in Brabant once? ³¹

Fol. hat die Q. peerelse, vielleicht aus peerless verdruckt. 14) the vor arts fügte erst die zweite Folioausg. ein: wohlausgestattet in den freien Künsten und Wissenschaften. — the arts sind die artes liberales, wie in Twelfth-Night (A. 1, Sc. 3) O, had I but followed the arts! 15) sharp wit = scharfer Witz, steht im Gegensatz zu blunt will = grober, rücksichtsloser Wille oder Trieb, zugleich steht sharp = spitz, dem blunt = stumpf, gegenüber. — to match with = mit Etwas paaren. 16) So die Q.; die Fol. she. 17) Mein Bericht von dem Guten, was ich an ihm sah, ist viel zu gering im Verhältniss zu seinem grossen Werth. 18) So die Q.; die Fol. hat as für if. 19) Selbst alte Leute, die sonst nur erhabene und ernste Dinge hören mögen, werden zu jugendlichem Muthwillen gestimmt und lauschen den Erzählungen Biron's. 20) scil. her own love. 21) competitor = Genosse, Verbündeter. — competitors in oath ist als ein Wort zu fassen und synonym mit dem vorhergehenden vow-fellows = Eidgenossen. 22) addressed = gerüstet, bereit. 23) So die Fol.; die Q. unpeeled. 24) Sie versteht darunter den Himmel, der sich über ihnen wölbt. 25) So Q. und Fol. Manche Hgg. lesen willkürlich wild fields. 26) Mit Our Lady = Unsere liebe Frau, erwiedert die Prinzessin scherzhaft die Anrede dear lady und fügt eben so scherzhaft antithetisch my lord hinzu. 27) what it is bezieht sich auf I have sworn an oath. 28) where für whereas. 29) Wenn Ihr verschworen habt, Haus zu halten, den gastfreien Wirth zu spielen, so ist es nach meiner Ansicht eine eben so schlimme Sünde, diesen Eid zu halten, wie es nach Eurer Ansicht eine ist, ihn zu brechen. 30) to teach a teacher = Jemanden zu belehren, der eher mich belehren könnte. So sagte die Prinzessin vorher zu Boyet to task a tasker. 31) Die Q. theilt diese Rede und die folgenden der Katharine zu, die Fol. passender der Rosaline. 32) Dass ich so rasch mit der Antwort bei der Hand bin, rührt von Euch her. —

Biron. I know you did.

Ros. How needless was it then
To ask the question!

Biron. You must not be so quick.

Ros. 'T is 'long of you,³² that spur me with such questions.

Biron. Your wit's too hot, it speeds too fast, 't will tire.

Ros. Not till it leave the rider in the mire.

Biron. What time o' day?

Ros. The hour that fools should ask.

Biron. Now fair befall your mask!³³

Ros. Fair fall the face it covers!

Biron. And send you many lovers!

Ros. Amen, so you be none.

Biron. Nay, then will I be gone.

King. Madam, your father here doth intimate

The payment of a hundred thousand crowns;

Being but the one half of an entire sum,

Disbursed by my father in his wars.

But say, that he, or we, (as neither have)

Receiv'd that sum, yet there remains unpaid

A hundred thousand more; in surety of the which,

One part of Aquitain is bound to us,

Although not valued to the money's worth.

If then the king your father will restore

But that one half which is unsatisfied,

We will give up our right in Aquitain,

And hold fair friendship with his majesty.

But that, it seems, he little purposeth,

For here he doth demand to have repaid

A hundred thousand crowns; and not demands,

On payment³⁴ of a hundred thousand crowns,

To have his title live in Aquitain;

Which we much rather had depart withal,³⁵

And have the money by our father lent,

Than Aquitain, so gelded³⁶ as it is.

Dear princess, were not his requests so far

From reason's yielding, your fair self should make

A yielding, 'gainst some reason, in my breast,³⁷
And go well satisfied to France again.

Prin. You do the king my father too much wrong,
And wrong the reputation of your name,
In so unseeming³⁸ to confess receipt
Of that which hath so faithfully been paid.

King. I do protest, I never heard of it;
And if³⁹ you prove it, I'll repay it back,
Or yield up Aquitain.

Prin. We arrest your word.
Boyet, you can produce acquittances
For such a sum, from special officers
Of Charles his father.

King. Satisfy me so.

Boyet. So please your grace, the packet is not come,
Where that and other specialities are bound:
To-morrow you shall have a sight of them.

King. It shall suffice me: at which interview,
All liberal reason I will yield unto.⁴⁰

Meantime, receive such welcome at my hand,

As honour, without breach of honour, may

Make tender of to thy true worthiness.

You may not come, fair princess, in⁴¹ my gates;

But here without you shall be so receiv'd,

As you shall deem yourself lodg'd in my heart,

Though so denied fair⁴² harbour in my house.

Your own good thoughts excuse me, and farewell:

To-morrow shall we⁴³ visit you again.

Prin. Sweet health and fair desires consort your grace!

King. Thy own wish wish I thee in every place!

[Exeunt King and his Train.]

Biron. Lady, I will commend you to mine own heart.

Ros. 'Pray you, do my commendations;⁴⁴ I would be glad to see it.

Biron. I would you heard it groan.

Ros. Is the fool⁴⁵ sick?

Biron. Sick at the heart.

Ros. Alack! let it blood.

Biron. Would that do it good?

quick ist = rasch, und = schnippisch. 33) Da Rosaline wie die übrigen Damen maskirt ist, kann Biron nur ihrer Maske, nicht ihrem Angesicht, das er nicht sieht, alles Schöne wünschen. 34) on payment verbesserte Theobald das one payment der Q. und Fol. Der König von Frankreich verlangt von Navarra die Zahlung von hunderttausend Kronen, verlangt aber nicht, womit Navarra eher zufrieden wäre, vermittelt der Zahlung einer gleichen Summe, sein Anrecht auf Aquitanien zu behaupten. — Hunter wies in Monstrelet's französischer Chronik eine hierher gehörige historische Notiz nach, welche Sh. oder vielmehr der Verfasser der von Sh. muthmasslich benutzten, verloren gegangenen Novelle gekannt haben muss. Die Stelle lautet in der Uebersetzung von Johnes so: Charles King of Navarre came to Paris to wait on the King. He negotiated so successfully with the King and Privy Counsel that he obtained a gift of the castle of Nemours with some of its dependent castle-wicks, which territory was made a duchy. He instantly did homage for it, and at the same time surrendered to the King the castle of Cherburgh, the county of Evreux, and all other lordships he possessed within the kingdom of France, renouncing all claims or profits in them to the King and to his successors, on condition that with the duchy of Nemours the King of France engaged to pay him two hundred thousand golden crowns of the coin of the King our Lord. — Hunter bemerkt dazu, dass der König von Navarra, dem der französische König 200,000 Goldkronen zu zahlen gelobte, im Jahre 1425 starb. 35) to depart with = Etwas fahren lassen. 36) to geld, eigentlich = verschneiden, gebraucht Sh. auch sonst wie hier = verstümmeln, schmälern in seinem Umfange, von einem Landstrich; so in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 3. Sc. 1) Gelding the opposed continent as much || As on the other side it takes from you. 37) make a yielding ist mit in my breast zu verbinden. 38) to unseem = durch den Anschein oder das Ansehen leugnen, nach Analogie von to unspeak, to unsweat u. a. gebildet: indem Ihr Euch das Ansehen gebet, als bekennet Ihr Euch nicht zu dem Empfange dessen, was so gewissenhaft Euch ausgezahlt wurde. 39) and if ist vielleicht auch hier = an if zu lesen. 40) So die Q.; die Fol. would I yield unto. 41) So die Fol.; die Q. within. 42) So die Q.; die Fol. farther. 43) So die Q.; die Fol. we shall. 44) Rosaline spielt mit dem Worte commend = empfehlen, das Biron gebraucht hatte: Richtet meine Empfehlungen an Euer Herz aus und sagt ihm, dass ich es gern einmal sähe. 45) fool = Nörren, ein scherzhafter Liebkosungsausdruck, hier auf des Biron's Herz angewandt. — Die Fol. hat soul für fool der Q. 46) my physie = meine Arzneikunde, so viel ich von der Arznei verstehe. — Das ay bildet

- Ros. My physic⁴⁶ says, ay.
 Biron. Will you prick 't with your eye?
 Ros. No point,⁴⁷ with my knife.
 Biron. Now, God save thy life!
 Ros. And yours from long living!
 Biron. I cannot stay thanksgiving. [Retiring.
 Dum. Sir, I pray you, a word. What lady is that same?
 Boyet. The heir of Alençon, Rosaline her name.
 Dum. A gallant lady. Monsieur, fare you well. [Exit.
 Long. I beseech you a word. What is she in the white?
 Boyet. A woman sometimes, an you saw her in the light.
 Long. Perchance, light in the light.⁴⁸ I desire her name.
 Boyet. She hath but one for herself; to desire that, were a shame.
 Long. Pray you, Sir, whose daughter?
 Boyet. Her mother's, I have heard.
 Long. God's blessing on your beard!
 Boyet. Good Sir, be not offended.
 She is an heir of Falconbridge.
 Long. Nay, my choler is ended.
 She is a most sweet lady.
 Boyet. Not unlike, Sir; that may be.⁴⁹ [Exit Long.
 Biron. What's her name in the cap?
 Boyet. Katharine, by good hap.
 Biron. Is she wedded, or no?
 Boyet. To her will,⁵⁰ Sir, or so.
 Biron. O! you are welcome, Sir. Adieu.
 Boyet. Farewell to me, Sir, and welcome to you.
 [Exit BIRON. — Ladies unmask.
 Mar. That last is Biron, the merry mad-cap lord:
 Not a word with him but a jest.
 Boyet. And every jest but a word.
 Prin. It was well done of you to take him at his word.
 Boyet. I was as willing to grapple, as he was to board.
 Mar. Two hot sheeps, marry!
 Boyet. And wherefore not ships?⁵¹
 No sheep, sweet lamb, unless we feed on your lips.
 Mar. You sheep, and I pasture: shall that finish the jest?
- Boyet. So you grant pasture for me.
 [Offering to kiss her.
 Mar. Not so, gentle beast.
 My lips are no common, though several they be.⁵²
 Boyet. Belonging to whom?
 Mar. To my fortunes and me.
 Prin. Good wits will be jangling; but, gentles, agree.
 This civil war of wits were much better used
 On Navarre and his book-men, for here 't is abused.
 Boyet. If my observation (which very seldom lies),
 By the heart's still rhetoric, disclosed with eyes,⁵³
 Deceive me not now, Navarre is infected.
 Prin. With what?
 Boyet. With that which we lovers entitle, affected.⁵⁴
 Prin. Your reason?
 Boyet. Why, all his behaviours⁵⁵ did make their retire
 To the court of his eye, peeping thorough desire:
 His heart, like an agate,⁵⁶ with your print impressed,
 Proud with his form, in his eye pride expressed:
 His tongue, all impatient to speak and not see,⁵⁷
 Did stumble with haste in his eyesight to be;
 All senses to that sense⁵⁸ did make their repair,
 To feel only looking on fairest of fair.
 Methought, all his senses were lock'd in his eye,
 As jewels in crystal for some prince to buy;
 Who, tend'ring their own worth, from where⁵⁹ they were glass'd,
 Did point you to buy them, along as you pass'd.
 His face's own margent did cote such amazes,⁶⁰
 That all eyes saw his eyes enchanted with gazes.
 I'll give you Aquitain, and all that is his,
 An you give him for my sake but one loving kiss.
 Prin. Come to our pavilion: Boyet is dispos'd.⁶¹
 Boyet. But to speak that in words, which his eye hath disclos'd.
 I only have made a mouth of his eye,
 By adding a tongue, which I know will not lie.
 Ros. Thou art an old love-monger,⁶² and speak'st skilfully.
 Mar. He is Cupid's grandfather, and learns news of him.
 Ros. Then was Venus like her mother, for her father is but grim.

dann ein Wortspiel mit eye. 47) Wortspiel zwischen no point, einem modischen, halb aus dem Französischen entlehnten Verneinungsausdruck = durchaus nicht, und point = Spitze. 48) Vielleicht leichtfertig, wenn sie bei Licht, genau betrachtet wird. — Wortspiele mit light in seinen verschiedenen Bedeutungen sind die gewöhnlichsten bei Sh. 49) may be bildet einen ungenauen Reim auf lady. — In Boyet's folgender Rede liest Dyce Rosaline, by good hap, und demgemäss oben The heir of Alençon, Katharine her name. Indess war dieses Fehlgreifen der beiden Frager, welche durch die Masken irregeleitet wurden, vielleicht Absicht des Dichters. 50) wedded to her will = eigensinnig. 51) sheep und ship bilden auch in Two Gentlemen of Verona (A. 1, Sc. 1) und in Comedy of Errors (A. 4, Sc. 1) ein Wortspiel, das die damalige Aussprache deutlicher gemacht haben muss, als die jetzige. 52) Wortspiel zwischen several = getrennt, aus verschiedenen Theilen bestehend, wie Ober- und Unterlippe, und several = eingezäuntes Land, Privatbesitz, im Gegensatz zu common = Gemeindeland. Maria wehrt sich gegen Boyet's Küsse und sagt, abgesehen von dem Wortspiel: Meine Lippen darf nicht Jeder küssen, wenn auch vielleicht ein gewisser Einzelner. Auf den letzten Theil des Satzes bezieht sich Boyet's nächste Frage. — several in der angeführten Bedeutung findet sich in Sir John Oldcastle: Of late he's broke into a several || Which doth belong to me, and there he spoils || Both corn and pasture. 53) Die stumme Beredsamkeit des Herzens, in den Augen enthüllt, welche sich dem Boyet an dem Benehmen des Königs von Navarra verrathen hat. 54) Angesteckt von dem, was wir Kenner der Liebe verliebt nennen. — Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 2, Anm. 31. 55) behaviour = Geberde, Bewegung. — Die Fol. hat do für did der Q. 56) Sh. dachte an Agatsteine, in Ringe gefasst, auf denen eine menschliche Figur eingegraben ist. 57) Die Zunge war ungeduldig oder verdriesslich darüber, dass sie nur sprechen konnte, nicht auch sehen, wie das Auge. 58) that sense bezieht sich auf eyesight. — Alle andern Sinne zogen sich in den Gesichtssinn zurück und empfanden nur, äusserten ihre Thätigkeit nur, indem sie auf die Schönste der Schönen blickten. 59) So die Q.; die Fol. from whence. — In der folgenden Zeile hat die Fol. point out für point you. 60) Das Bild ist entlehnt von den Randbemerkungen der Bücher, welche zur Erklärung des Textes dienen. — Für to cote = notiren, in der Fol. coate, setzen die Hgg. meistens quote. 61) Die Prinzessin fasst disposed = sinnlich aufgeregt, aufgelegt

Boyet. Do you hear, my mad wenches?
 Mar. No.
 Boyet. What then, do you see?
 Ros. Ay, our way to be gone.
 Boyet. You are too hard for me. [Exeunt.]

ACT III.

SCENE I.

Another Part of the Same.

Enter ARMADO and Moth.¹

Arm. Warble, child: make passionate my sense of hearing.

Moth. [Singing.] Concolinel —

Arm. Sweet air! — Go, tenderness of years: take this key, give enlargement to the swain, bring him festinate-ly² hither; I must employ him in a letter to my love.

Moth. Master, will you win your love with a French brawl?³

Arm. How meanest thou? brawling in French?

Moth. No, my complete master; but to jig off⁴ a tune at the tongue's end, canary to it with your feet,⁵ humour it with turning up your eyelids,⁶ sigh a note, and sing a note; sometime through the throat, as if you swallowed love with singing love; sometime through the nose, as if you snuffed up love by smelling love; with your hat, penthouse-like, o'er the shop of your eyes; with your arms crossed on your thin belly-doublet,⁷ like a rabbit on a spit; or your hands in your pocket, like a man after the old painting;⁸ and keep not too long in one tune, but a snip and away. These are complements, these are humours,⁹ these betray nice wenches, that would be betrayed without these, and make them men of note, (do you note me?)¹⁰ that most are affected to these.

Arm. How hast thou purchased this experience?

Moth. By my penny¹¹ of observation.

Arm. But O, — but O, —

Moth. — the hobby-horse is forgot.¹²

Arm. Callest thou my love hobby-horse?

Moth. No, master; the hobby-horse is but a colt, and your love, perhaps, a hackney.¹³ But have you forgot your love?

Arm. Almost I had.

Moth. Negligent student! learn her by heart.

Arm. By heart, and in heart, boy.

Moth. And out of heart, master: all those three I will prove.

Arm. What wilt thou prove?

Moth. A man, if I live; and this, by, in, and without, upon the instant: by heart you love her, because your heart cannot come by her; in heart you love her, because your heart is in love with her; and out of heart you love her, being out of heart that you cannot enjoy her.

Arm. I am all these three.

Moth. And three times as much more, and yet nothing at all.

Arm. Fetch hither the swain: he must carry me a letter.

Moth. A message well sympathized:¹⁴ a horse to be ambassador for an ass.

Arm. Ha, ha! what sayest thou?

Moth. Marry, Sir, you must send the ass upon the horse, for he is very slow-gaited. But I go.

Arm. The way is but short. Away!

zur Kurzweil, in welchem Sinne disposed für sich allein stehend häufig bei Beaumont und Fletcher vorkommt. Boyet aber fasst disposed in gewöhnlichem Sinne und ergänzt es mit to speak in words. — Die meisten Hgg. setzen hinter dispos'd einen Gedankenstrich. 62) love-monger = Kuppler.

1) Die Fol. hat Enter Braggart and Boy und gleich darunter Song. — Aber Moth singt erst auf Armado's Aufforderung irgend ein in das Belieben der Schauspieler gestelltes Lied, das im Text ausgelassen und durch das sinnlose Concolinel bezeichnet wird. 2) festinately = schleunig, eilig. Sh. hat das affectirte Wort auch in K. Lear (A. 3, Sc. 7) advise the duke, where you are going, to a most festinate preparation. 3) French brawl = ein lebhafter Ringtanz, der mit seiner Ausgelassenheit den Puritanern vielen Anstoss gab. Den Namen erklärt Massinger's The Picture: 'Tis a French brawl, an apish imitation || Of what you really perform in battle. — Armado versteht dafür = Händel anfangen auf Französisch. — Die Fol. lässt master zu Anfang der Rede aus. 4) to jig off = leicht hinwerfen, in hüpfender Sangweise, hier von der Melodie gebraucht. 5) to canary = leicht tanzen, ein Verbum gebildet von dem substantivischen canary = ein munterer, leichtfüssiger Tanz, der von den Kanarischen Inseln eingeführt sein soll, und der auch in All's well that ends well (A. 2, Sc. 1) erwähnt wird: and make you dance canary with spritely fire and motion. — your feet in der Q., the feet in der Fol. 6) So die Q.; die Fol. eye. 7) So die Fol.; die Q. thin belly's doublet. — thin bezieht sich auf das abgetragene Wamms des Spaniers. — Staunton bezieht, in Uebereinstimmung mit dem folgenden like a rabbit on a spit, das Adjectiv thin auf belly, nicht auf doublet, und schreibt daher on your thin-belly doublet, wie schon Capell schrieb. 8) Sh. muss irgend ein altes Portrait im Sinne gehabt haben, das einen Mann mit den Händen in der Tasche darstellte. 9) Zu complements vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 44. — humours ist ein Modeausdruck der Zeit, der das Streben nach Originalität und Sonderbarkeit in Erscheinung und Haltung bezeichnet. 10) Und macht Die zu Leuten, von denen man Notiz nimmt, die am meisten damit sich zu schaffen machen. — Der Page spielt mit dem Worte note. — do you note me? ist Capell's plausible Emendation für das do you note, men? der alten Ausgg. 11) So verbesserte Hammer das penne der Q. und Fol., woraus die spätern Folioausgg. pen gemacht haben. — penny wurde, in Verbindung mit dem Possessiv genommen, sprichwörtlich geradezu für money gebraucht, wie Staunton nachweist. — penne, die Lesart der Q. und Fol., findet sich, demselben Kritiker zufolge, häufig für penny geschrieben. 12) Moth ergänzt die Seufzer Armado's mit dem Refrain eines Liedes, der das Verschwinden der stereotypen Figur des Steckenpferdes aus den festlichen Aufzügen des ersten Maitags beklagt. Der Vers kommt sprichwörtlich bei vielen alten Schriftstellern vor, und auch in Hamlet (A. 3, Sc. 2) For, O! for, O! the hobby-horse is forgot. 13) Gegensatz zwischen colt = ein Füllen, ein junges, unzugerittenes Pferd, und hackney = ein abgerittener Miethsgaul, zugleich = gemeines Weibsbild. 14) Eine Sendung, die in schöner Uebereinstimmung ist mit dem Sender. — Armado versteht Moth's Rede nur halb, und dieser deutet sie deshalb nachher willkürlich um, als wenn er unter dem ass nicht seinen Herrn, sondern den

Moth. As swift as lead, Sir.
Arm. Thy meaning, pretty ingenious?
 Is not lead a metal heavy, dull, and slow?
Moth. Minime, honest master; or rather, master, no.
Arm. I say, lead is slow.
Moth. You are too swift,¹⁵ Sir, to say so:
 Is that lead slow which is fir'd from a gun?
Arm. Sweet smoke of rhetoric!
 He reputes me a cannon; and the bullet, that's he: —
 I shoot thee at the swain.
Moth. Thump then, and I flee. [Exit.]
Arm. A most acute juvenal; voluble and free of grace!
 By thy favour, sweet welkin;¹⁶ I must sigh in thy face:
 Most rude melancholy, valour gives thee place.
 My herald is return'd.

Re-enter MOTH with COSTARD.

Moth. A wonder, master! here's a Costard broken in a shin.¹⁷
Arm. Some enigma, some riddle: come, — thy l'envoy;
 — begin.
Cost. No egma, no riddle, no l'envoy! no salve in the mail,¹⁸ Sir. O, Sir, plantain, a plain plantain! no l'en- voy, no l'envoy: no salve, Sir, but a plantain.
Arm. By virtue, thou enforcest laughter; thy silly thought, my spleen; the heaving of my lungs provokes me to ridiculous smiling: O, pardon me, my stars! Doth the inconsiderate take salve for l'envoy, and the word l'envoy for a salve?
Moth. Do the wise think them other? is not l'envoy a salve?¹⁹
Arm. No, page: it is an epilogue, or discourse, to make plain
 Some obscure precedence that hath tofore been sain.²⁰
 I will example it:

The fox, the ape, and the humble-bee,
 Were still at odds, being but three.
 There's the moral. Now the l'envoy.
Moth. I will add the l'envoy. Say the moral again.
Arm. The fox, the ape, and the humble-bee,
 Were still at odds, being but three.

Moth. Until the goose came out of door,
 And stay'd the odds by adding four.
 Now will I begin your moral, and do you follow with my l'envoy.

The fox, the ape, and the humble-bee,
 Were still at odds, being but three.
Arm. Until the goose came out of door,
 Staying the odds by adding four.
Moth. A good l'envoy, ending in the goose. Would you desire more?

Cost. The boy hath sold him a bargain, a goose, that's flat. —

Sir, your penny-worth is good, an your goose be fat. —
 To sell a bargain well, is as cunning as fast and loose:²¹
 Let me see, a fat l'envoy; ay, that's a fat goose.

Arm. Come hither. come hither. How did this argument begin?

Moth. By saying that a Costard was broken in a shin.
 Then call'd you for the l'envoy.

Cost. True, and I for a plantain: thus came your argument in;

Then the boy's fat l'envoy, the goose that you bought,
 And he ended the market.²²

Arm. But tell me; how was there a Costard broken in a shin?

Moth. I will tell you sensibly.

Cost. Thou hast no feeling²³ of it, Moth: I will speak that l'envoy.

I, Costard, running out, that was safely within,
 Fell over the threshold, and broke my shin.

Arm. We will talk no more of this matter.

Cost. Till there be more matter²⁴ in the shin.

Arm. Sirrah Costard, I will enfranchise thee.

Cost. O! marry me to one Frances?²⁵ — I smell some l'envoy, some goose in this.

Arm. By my sweet soul, I mean, setting thee at liberty, enfreedoming thy person: thou wert immured, restrained, captivated, bound.

Cost. True, true, and now you will be my purgation, and let me loose.

Arm. I give thee thy liberty, set thee from durance;

Clown verstanden hätte. 15) swift = voreilig im Reden, schnell mit der Antwort bei der Hand, zugleich als Gegensatz von slow. 16) welkin = Firmament, Himmel. — Dass Seufzer zu Nebel werden und so die Luft trüben, kommt öfter bei Sh. vor. — In der vorigen Zeile behalten die Cambridge Edd. die Lesart der Q. volable für voluble der Fol. 17) Wortspiel zwischen Costard, dem Namen des Clown, der sich am Schienbein verletzt hat und jetzt hinkend auftritt, und costard = Schädel. — Dass ein Schädel sich das Schienbein zerstoßen kann, ist für Armado ein Räthsel, dessen Auflösung er begehrt. — l'envoy ist der altfranzösische Kunstausdruck für den Schluss eines Gedichts, der die Dedication oder Sendung an irgend Jemanden enthielt, und wurde schon früh in die englische Terminologie eingeführt. 18) Q. und Fol. haben in thee male. — male ist mail = Beutel, Sack. — Costard hält enigma und l'envoy für zwei Arzneien, nach denen Armado rufe, um sie bei Costard's Wunde anzuwenden, und verbittet sich diese wie überhaupt jede Salbe, die im Beutel, etwa eines Quacksalbers oder Barbiers, stecke. — Tyrwhitt las in them all. 19) Armado versteht salve = Salbe, Moth das lateinische salve = sei gegrüßt, das in dem l'envoy ausgedrückt wird. 20) Alte Participialform von to say, hier affectirt und als Reim gebraucht. — Die folgenden neun Zeilen bis by adding four finden sich nur in der Q. — by adding four ist ungenau: indem sie eins hinzufügt, so dass es vier werden. 21) fast and loose, ein Taschenspielerkunststück, wobei dem Einen das, was er fest in der Hand zu halten glaubt, von dem Andern wegescamotirt wird. — Sh. spielt darauf an in Antony and Cleopatra (A. 4, Sc. 10) Like a right gipsy, hath, at fast and loose, || Beguil'd me. 22) Steevens citirt dazu aus Ray's Sprichwörtersammlung Three women and a goose make a market. 23) Moth fasst sensibly = verständlich, Costard = empfindlich, in Bezug auf den Schmerz seiner Wunde, den Moth nicht fühlen kann. 24) Das Wortspiel zwischen matter = Stoff, Gegenstand, und = Materie, Eiter, findet sich auch in Troilus and Cressida (A. 2, Sc. 1) then would come some matter from him. 25) Costard versteht für enfranchise gleichsam one Frances und giebt diesem Worte die Deutung marry to Frances. — Zugleich erinnert ihn der Name an malady of France = die venerische Krankheit, die in familiärer Sprache auch the goose hiess. — Ein zweites Wortspiel bringt Knight hier herein, indem er liest: Marry, Costard, I will enfranchise thee für Sirrah Costard etc. 26) significant = Zeichen, Andeutung, hier affectirt = Brief.

and, in lieu thereof, impose on thee nothing but this: bear this significant²⁶ to the country maid Jaquenetta. There is remuneration; for the best ward of mine honour is rewarding my dependents. Moth, follow. [Exit.]

Moth. Like the sequel,²⁷ I. — Signior Costard, adieu.

Cost. My sweet ounce of man's flesh! my incony Jew!²⁸ — [Exit Moth.]

Now will I look to his remuneration. Remuneration! O! that's the Latin word for three farthings: three farthings, remuneration. — What's the price of this inkle? a penny: — No, I'll give you a remuneration: why, it carries it. — Remuneration! — why, it is a fairer name than French crown. I will never buy and sell out of this word.

Enter BIRON.

Biron. O, my good knave Costard! exceedingly well met.

Cost. Pray you, Sir, how much carnation ribbon may a man buy for a remuneration?

Biron. What is a remuneration?

Cost. Marry, Sir, half-penny farthing.²⁹

Biron. O! why then, three-farthing-worth of silk.

Cost. I thank your worship. God be wi' you.

Biron. O, stay, slave! I must employ thee: As thou wilt win my favour, good my knave, Do one thing for me that I shall entreat.

Cost. When would you have it done, Sir?

Biron. O! this afternoon.

Cost. Well, I will do it, Sir. Fare you well.

Biron. O! thou knowest not what it is.

Cost. I shall know, Sir, when I have done it.

Biron. Why, villain, thou must know first.

Cost. I will come to your worship to-morrow morning.

Biron. It must be done this afternoon. Hark, slave, it is but this: —

The princess comes to hunt here in the park,

And in her train there is a gentle lady;

When tongues speak sweetly, then they name her name,

And Rosaline they call her: ask for her,

And to her white hand see thou do commend

This seal'd-up counsel.³⁰ There's thy guerdon: go.

[Gives him money.]

Cost. Gardon. — O! sweet gardon!³¹ better than remuneration; eleven-pence farthing better. Most sweet gardon! — I will do it, Sir, in print.³² — Gardon remuneration! [Exit.]

Biron. O! — And I, forsooth, in love! I, that have been love's whip;

A very beadle to a humorous sigh;

A critic, nay, a night-watch constable;

A domineering pedant o'er the boy,³³

Than whom no mortal so magnificent!

This wimpled,³⁴ whining, purblind, wayward boy;

This senior-junior,³⁵ giant-dwarf, Dan Cupid,

Regent of love-rhymes, lord of folded arms,

The anointed sovereign of sighs and groans,

Liege of all loiterers and malecontents,

Dread prince of plackets, king of codpieces,³⁶

Sole imperator, and great general

Of trotting paritors:³⁷ (O my little heart!)³⁸

And I to be a corporal of his field,

And wear his colours like a tumbler's hoop!³⁹

What! I love! I sue! I seek a wife!⁴⁰

A woman, that is like a German clock,⁴¹

Still a repairing, ever out of frame,

And never going aright, being a watch,⁴²

27) Anspielung auf den Verfolg einer Erzählung in mehreren Abtheilungen, der in alten Geschichtsbüchern so bezeichnet wurde: Here followeth the sequel of such a story, or adventure.

28) incony = fein, artig, ein Epitheton, das bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen häufig ist; so in Marlowe's Jew of Malta: While I in thy incony lap do tumble. — Für Jew, das der Reim hier sichert, will Costard eigentlich jewel sagen, wie dieselbe spasshafte Verwechselung in Midsummer-Night's Dream (A. 3, Sc. 1) steht: Most briskly juvenal, and eke most lovely Jew.

29) farthing ist der vierte Theil eines Penny, also ist half-penny farthing = three farthing. — silk = Seidenband, das Allgemeine für carnation ribbon = hochrothes Band.

30) Dieses versiegelte Geheimniss, d. h. der Liebesbrief Biron's an Rosaline. 31) guerdon = Lohn. — Costard, der dieses affectirte Wort nicht versteht und gardon ausspricht, hält das für die Bezeichnung der Summe, die Biron ihm gegeben hat, wie remuneration für die Bezeichnung der geringeren Summe, welche er von Armado erhielt. — Nach Steevens' Angabe sollte Sh. diesen Witz entlehnt haben aus einem Pamphlet von J. M., betitelt A Health to the gentlemanly Profession of Serving-men, das 1578 erschienen sein sollte. Aber die Schrift erschien erst, wie Collier nachweist, 1598. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 231.

32) in print = buchstäblich, genau. So in Two Gentlemen of Verona (A. 2, Sc. 1) All this I speak in print, for in print I found it.

33) Biron hat den Knaben Cupido bisher so tyrannisirt, wie ein Schulmeister, der hochtrabender auftritt, als irgend ein anderer Sterblicher, seine Schulknaben.

34) wimpled = mit einem Schleier oder einer Binde versehen, geht auf Cupido's verbundene Augen. 35) Das Widerspruchsvolle in dem Wesen der Liebe wird in der widerspruchsvollen Charakteristik Cupido's hier angedeutet.

— senior-junior = zugleich ein alter Mann und ein junger; giant-dwarf = zugleich ein Riese und ein Zwerg. — senior-junior ist eine zuerst von Theobald erwähnte glückliche Emendation; Q. und Fol. lesen this signior Junios giant dwarf. — Dan = Master, ein ehrwürdiger Titel, der dem knabenhaften Cupido eigentlich nicht zukommt, also ein neuer Widerspruch.

36) plackets und codpieces werden hier als die unterscheidenden Kleidungsstücke der Frauen und der Männer erwähnt und deuten zugleich auf die Theile, welche speciell der Herrschaft Cupido's unterworfen sind.

37) paritor oder apparitor = ein geistlicher Gerichtsdiener, dessen Amt es war, Diejenigen zur gerichtlichen Verantwortung zu laden, welche sich ein von Cupido eingegebenes Vergehen hatten zu Schulden kommen lassen.

38) Biron bejammert seine Schwäche und Kleinmüthigkeit, die ihn so hat sinken lassen, dass er jetzt Cupido's Adjutant (corporal of the field) geworden ist.

39) like a tumbler's hoop ist mit his colours zu verbinden: Biron, der Cupido's bunte Farben als Zeichen seines Dienstes trägt, nimmt sich darin aus wie der Reif eines Gauklers, der auch mit bunten Bändern umwickelt ist, damit man gleich erkenne, wem er angehöre.

40) Viele Hgg. lesen zur Verbesserung des Verses mit Hammer what? I! I love. 41) Die Uhren, welche in jener Zeit meistens aus Deutschland eingeführt wurden, werden wegen ihres complicirten, stets der Reparatur bedürftigen Mechanismus auch bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen erwähnt; so in Webster's Drama Westward Hoe: No German clock, no mathematical engine whatsoever requires so much reparation.

But being watch'd that it may still go right!
 Nay, to be perjurd, which is worst of all;
 And, among three, to love the worst of all;
 A whitely wanton with a velvet brow,⁴³
 With two pitch-balls stuck in her face for eyes;
 Ay, and, by heaven, one that will do the deed,⁴⁴
 Though Argus were her eunuch and her guard;
 And I to sigh for her! to watch for her!
 To pray for her! Go to; it is a plague
 That Cupid will impose for my neglect
 Of his almighty dreadful little might.
 Well, I will love, write, sigh, pray, sue, and groan:⁴⁵
 Some men must love my lady, and some Joan.⁴⁶ [Exit.]

ACT IV.

SCENE I.

Another Part of the Same.

Enter the PRINCESS, ROSALINE, MARIA, KATHARINE, BOYET, Lords, Attendants, and a Forester.

Prin. Was that the king, that spurr'd his horse so hard
 Against the steep uprising of the hill?

Boyet. I know not; but I think, it was not he.

Prin. Whoe'er he was, he show'd a mounting mind.

Well, lords, to-day we shall have our despatch;

On Saturday we will return to France. —

Then, forester, my friend, where is the bush,

That we must stand and play the murderer in?¹

For. Hereby, upon the edge of yonder coppice;
 A stand where you may make the fairest shoot.

Prin. I thank my beauty, I am fair that shoot,
 And thereupon thou speak'st the fairest shoot.

For. Pardon me, Madam, for I meant not so.

Prin. What, what? first praise me, and again say, no?
 O short-liv'd pride! Not fair? alack for woe!

For. Yes, Madam, fair.

Prin. Nay, never paint me now:²
 Where fair is not, praise cannot mend the brow.

Here, good my glass, take this for telling true.

[Giving him money.]

Fair payment for foul words is more than due.

For. Nothing but fair is that which you inherit.

Prin. See, see! my beauty will be sav'd by merit.

O heresy in fair,³ fit for these days!
 A giving hand, though foul, shall have fair praise. —
 But come, the bow: — now mercy goes to kill,
 And shooting well is then accounted ill.
 Thus will I save my credit in the shoot:
 Not wounding, pity would not let me do 't;⁴
 If wounding, then it was to show my skill,
 That more for praise than purpose meant to kill.
 And, out of question, so it is sometimes:
 Glory grows guilty of detested crimes,
 When, for fame's sake, for praise, an outward part,
 We bend to that the working of the heart;
 As I for praise alone now seek to spill
 The poor deer's blood, that my heart means no ill.⁵

Boyet. Do not curst wives hold that self-sovereignty⁶
 Only for praise' sake, when they strive to be Lords o'er their lords?

Prin. Only for praise; and praise we may afford
 To any lady that subdues a lord.

Enter COSTARD.

Prin. Here comes a member of the commonwealth.⁷

Cost. God dig-you-den⁸ all. Pray you, which is the head lady?

Prin. Thou shalt know her, fellow, by the rest that have no heads.

Cost. Which is the greatest lady, the highest?

Prin. The thickest, and the tallest.

Cost. The thickest, and the tallest? it is so; truth is truth.

An your waist, mistress, were as slender as my wit,
 One o' these maids' girdles for your waist should be fit.

Are not you the chief woman? you are the thickest here.

Prin. What's your will, Sir? what's your will?

Cost. I have a letter from Monsieur Biron to one Lady
 Rosaline.

Prin. O, thy letter, thy letter! he's a good friend of mine.

Stand aside, good bearer. — Boyet, you can carve;
 Break up this capon.⁹

Boyet. I am bound to serve. —

This letter is mistook; it importeth none here:

It is writ to Jaquenetta.

Prin. We will read it, I swear.

Break the neck of the wax,¹⁰ and every one give ear.

watch = Uhr, und to watch = auf Etwas achten. 43) whitely = die blasse Gesichtsfarbe, und velvet brow = die sammetweiche Stirn, soll das Verzärtelte und Verwöhnte der Rosaline andeuten, wodurch ihr Sieg über Biron für ihn um so schmälicher wird. — Die Q. und Fol. haben whitley, und die Cambridge Edd. setzen wightly dafür, das sie mit nimble erklären. 44) to do the deed im obscönen Sinn = es thun. — Dass Biron seufzen muss um Eine, die sonst nicht eben spröde ist, beklagt er noch besonders. 45) and, das in Q. und Fol. fehlt, fügt die zweite Folioausg. hinzu. 46) my lady = die vornehme Dame, und Joan = irgend ein gewöhnliches Mädchen, das diesen familiären Namen hat, stehen im Gegensatz.

1) Das Gebüsch, in welchem die Prinzessin dem Wilde auflauern soll. 2) Wenn der Förster die Prinzessin jetzt wider sein besseres Wissen schön nennen wollte, so wäre das gleichsam eine falsche Schminke, deren er sich nicht bedienen soll. — Wegen seiner Wahrheitsliebe nennt sie dann den Förster good my glass = ihren Spiegel, der ihr Gesicht zeigt, wie es wirklich ist. 3) fair = Schönheit, concret und abstract gefasst. Der Förster begeht eine Ketzerei, indem er die Prinzessin wider seine Ueberzeugung für schön erklärt, bloss weil sie ihm Geld giebt. 4) Wenn ich das Wild nicht treffe, will ich sagen, ich hätte es aus Mitleid nicht getroffen. 5) scil. to which my heart means no ill. 6) self-sovereignty = Selbstherrschaft, Herrschaft aus eigener Machtvollkommenheit. — Vielleicht ist aber self = same und demgemäss von sovereignty zu trennen, wie in K. Richard II. (A. 1, Sc. 2) that self mould that fashion'd thee. 7) Unter commonwealth versteht die Prinzessin ironisch den besondern Staat, den der König mit seinen Genossen auf seine strengen Statuten begründet hat, und dessen Mitglieder auch Armado und der Clown sein sollten. 8) Corruptirt aus God give you good even. — Costard versteht unter head lady = chief lady, die Prinzessin; die Prinzessin versteht darunter scherzhaft = die Dame mit einem Kopfe. 9) to carve und namentlich to carve a capon galt für eine wesentliche Eigenschaft eines feinen Cavaliers Boyet. [Reads.] »By heaven, that thou art fair, is most infallible; true, that thou art beauteous; truth itself, that thou art lovely. More fairer than fair, beautiful¹¹ than beauteous, truer than truth itself, have commiseration on thy heroical vassal! The magnanimous and most illustre¹² king Cophetua set eye upon the pernicious and indubitate beggar Zenelophon,¹³ and he it was that might rightly say, veni, vidi, vici; which to anatomize in the vulgar¹⁴ (O base and obscure vulgar!), videlicet, he came, saw, and overcame: he came, one; saw,¹⁵ two; overcame, three. Who came? the king; why did he come? to see; why did he see? to overcome. To whom came he? to the beggar; what saw he? the beggar; who overcame he? the beggar. The conclusion is victory: on whose side? the king's. The captive is enriched: on whose side? the beggar's. The catastrophe is a nuptial:¹⁶ on whose side? the king's? — no, on both in one, or one in both. I am the king, for so stands the comparison; thou the beggar, for so witnesseth thy lowliness. Shall I command thy love? I may. Shall I enforce thy love? I could. Shall I entreat thy love? I will. What shalt thou exchange for rags? robes; for titles? titles; for thyself? me. Thus, expecting thy reply, I profane my lips on thy foot, my eyes on thy picture, and my heart on thy every part.

Thine, in the dearest design of industry,

DON ADRIANO DE ARMADO.^c

Thus dost thou hear the Nemean lion roar
'Gainst thee, thou lamb, that standest as his prey;
Submissive fall¹⁷ his princely feet before,
And he from forage will incline to play.
But if thou strive, poor soul, what art thou then?
Food for his rage, repasture for his den.

Prin. What plume of feathers is he that indited this letter?
What vane? what weathercock? did you ever hear better?

Boyet. I am much deceiv'd, but I remember the style.

Prin. Else your memory is bad, going o'er it ere-while.¹⁸

Boyet. This Armado is a Spaniard, that keeps here in court;

A phantasm, a Monarcho,¹⁹ and one that makes sport To the prince, and his book-mates.

Prin. Thou, fellow, a word.

Who gave thee this letter?

Cost. I told you; my lord.

Prin. To whom shouldst thou give it?

Cost. From my lord to my lady.

Prin. From which lord to which lady?

Cost. From my lord Biron, a good master of mine, To a lady of France, that he call'd Rosaline.

Prin. Thou hast mistaken his letter. — Come, lords, away. —

Here, sweet, put up this: 't will be thine another day.²⁰

[Exeunt PRINCESS and Train.

Boyet. Who is the suitor? who is the suitor?²¹

Ros. Shall I teach you to know?

Boyet. Ay, my continent of beauty.

Ros. Why, she that bears the bow.

Finely put off!

Boyet. My lady goes to kill horns;²² but if thou marry, Hang me by the neck, if horns that year miscarry.

Finely put on!

Ros. Well then, I am the shooter.

Boyet. And who is your deer?²³

Ros. If we choose by the horns, yourself: come not near. Finely put on, indeed! —

Mar. You still wrangle with her, Boyet, and she strikes at the brow.

Boyet. But she herself is hit lower. Have I hit her now?

Ros. Shall I come upon thee with an old saying, that was a man when king Pepin of France²⁴ was a little boy, as touching the hit it?

Boyet. So I may answer thee with one as old, that was a woman when queen Guinever of Britain was a little wench, as touching the hit it.

Ros. Thou canst not hit it, hit it, hit it,

Thou canst not hit it, my good man.

Boyet. An I cannot, cannot, cannot,

An I cannot, another can.

[Exeunt ROS. and KATH.

Cost. By my troth, most pleasant: how both did fit it!

wie Boyet. — to break up = aufschneiden, und = aufbrechen. — Unter capon versteht die Prinzessin hier Biron's Liebesbrief, statt dessen der Clown den andern von Armado an Jaquenetta hergiebt. 10) to break the neck of the wax = dem Siegel den Hals brechen, scherzhaft = das Siegel erbrechen. 11) Das more, das vor fairer pleonastisch steht, ist zu beautiful zu ergänzen. 12) illustrate = erlaucht, wahrscheinlich für illustrated, hier in affectirtem Sinne gebraucht. 13) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 2, Anm. 18. 14) Um das in der Vulgärsprache, d. h. auf Englisch, zu zerlegen, zu erklären. Q. und Fol. haben annothanize für anatomize. 15) Q. und Fol. haben für saw beide Male see. Das erste see corrigirten schon die späteren Folioausgg., das zweite Rowe. 16) nuptial gebraucht Sh. häufig als Singular. 17) fall ist Imperativ: fall submissively before his princely feet. — Diese sechs Verse, welche manche Hgg. als eine Nachschrift zu Armado's Briefe betrachten, scheinen eher eine poetische Persiflage, welche Boyet über das Verhältniss des Armado zur Jaquenetta anstellt. 18) Boyet meint, er habe schon früher Etwas in demselben Styl gelesen; die Prinzessin versteht ihn scherzhaft, er erinnere sich dessen, was er eben erst gelesen habe. — Zugleich kehrt, wie to go o'er = Etwas übersehen, und = Etwas durchlesen, zeigt, das Wortspiel zwischen style und stile hier wieder (vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 55). — erewhile = kürzlich, eben erst. 19) Anspielung auf einen öffentlichen Charakter der Zeit, einen phantastischen, prahlerischen Engländer, der den Italiener spielte und den man Monarcho oder Monarch nannte, weil er sich einbildete, Herr der ganzen Welt zu sein. Weitere Notizen von ihm, die zu seiner Charakteristik beitragen, vgl. Einleitung pag. 231. — phantasm (phantasime in Q. und Fol.) = ein Wesen, das ganz aus Einbildung besteht, scheint Sh. hier für fantastic zu gebrauchen. 20) Rosaline soll vorläufig sich mit Armado's Brief begnügen; der rechte, von Biron, wird ihr ein andermal zu Theil werden. 21) Q. und Fol. setzen shooter, dessen Aussprache zu Sh.'s Zeit der von suitor sehr ähnlich gelautet haben muss, da ein Wortspiel zwischen beiden hier beabsichtigt ist. 22) Wortspiel zwischen horns = gehörnte Thiere, Rehe u. s. w., und horns = Hörner des Hahnrei, die in dem Jahr, wo Rosaline sich verheirathet, nicht missrathen, vielmehr reichlich wachsen werden. — Zugleich ist ein Gegensatz zwischen put off = abgefer-tigt, und put on = angeheftet. 23) deer = Reh, in Bezug auf shooter; deer = Liebster, in Bezug auf suitor.

Mar. A mark marvellous well shot, for they both did hit it.²⁵

Boyet. A mark! O! mark but that mark: a mark, says my lady.

Let the mark have a prick in 't²⁶ to mete at, if it may be.

Mar. Wide o' the bow-hand:²⁷ i' faith, your hand is out.

Cost. Indeed, a' must shoot nearer, or he 'll ne'er hit the clout.

Boyet. An if my hand be out, then belike your hand is in.

Cost. Then will she get the upshot by cleaving the pin.²⁸

Mar. Come, come, you talk greasily;²⁹ your lips grow foul.

Cost. She 's too hard for you at pricks, Sir: challenge her to bowl.

Boyet. I fear too much rubbing.³⁰ Good night, my good owl. [Exeunt BOYET and MARIA.]

Cost. By my soul, a swain! a most simple clown!

Lord, Lord! how the ladies and I have put him down!

O' my truth, most sweet jests! most incony vulgar wit!

When it comes so smoothly off, so obscenely,³¹ as it were, so fit.

Armado o' the one side,³² — O, a most dainty man!

To see him walk before a lady, and to bear her fan!

To see him kiss his hand! and how most sweetly a' will swear!³³ —

And his page o' t' other side, that handful of wit!

Ah, heavens, it is a most pathological nit!

Sola, sola!

[Shouting within.]

[Exit COSTARD.]

SCENE II.

The Same.

Enter HOLOFERNES, Sir NATHANIEL, and DULL.

Nath. Very reverend sport, truly: and done in the testimony of a good conscience.

Hol. The deer was, as you know, sanguis, — in blood; ¹ ripe as the pomewater,² who now hangeth like a jewel in the ear of coelo, — the sky, the welkin, the heaven; and anon falleth like a crab, on the face of terra, — the soil, the land, the earth.

Nath. Truly, Master Holofernes, the epithets are sweetly varied, like a scholar at the least: but, Sir, I assure ye, it was a buck of the first head.³

Hol. Sir Nathaniel, haud credo.

Dull. 'T was not a haud credo, 't was a pricket.

Hol. Most barbarous intimation! yet a kind of insinuation, as it were, in via, in way of explication; facere, as it were, replication, or, rather, ostentare, to show, as it were, his inclination, — after his undressed, unpolished, uneducated, unpruned, untrained, or rather unlettered, or, ratherest,⁴ unconfirmed fashion, — to insert again my haud credo for a deer.

Dull. I said, the deer was not a haud credo: 't was a pricket.

Hol. Twice-sod simplicity, bis coctus! —

O, thou monster ignorance, how deformed dost thou look!

Nath. Sir, he hath never fed of the dainties that are bred in a book;

he hath not eat paper, as it were; he hath not drunk ink: his intellect is not replenished; he is only an animal, only sensible in the duller parts;

And such barren plants are set before us, that we thankful should be

(Which we of taste and feeling are)⁵ for those parts that do fructify in us more than he;⁶

For as it would ill become me to be vain, indiscreet, or a fool,

So,⁷ were there a patch set on learning, to see him in a school:

But, omne bene, say I; being of an old father's mind,

Many can brook the weather, that love not the wind.

Dull. You two are book-men: can you tell by your wit,

24) Diesen alten Frankenkönig erwähnt Sh. auch sonst, um etwas Längstvergangenes, Längstbegrabenes zu bezeichnen. So in All's well that ends well (A. 2, Sc. 1) whose simple touch is powerful to arise king Pepin; und in K. Henry VIII. (A. 1, Sc. 3) Their very noses had been counsellors || To Pepin or Chlotarius. — Diese Hinweisung überbietet Boyet dann mit der Citation der fabelhaften Königin Genevra von Britannien, Gemahlin des Königs Arthur. 25) it, das der Reim und Sinn fordert, fehlt in Q. und Fol. — Canst thou hit it? wird öfter als Bezeichnung einer bekannten Tanzmelodie bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen erwähnt. 26) prick = der Pflock in der Schiessscheibe, woran man misst, wie nahe der Schuss dem weissen Mittelpunkt der Scheibe (clout) gekommen. Zugleich mit einer frivolen Nebenbedeutung. 27) bow-hand = die den Bogen spannende Hand, daher wide o' the bow-hand = weit nach links. 28) the pin verbessert die zweite Folioausg. den Druckfehler der Q. und Fol. the is in, eine Wiederholung des Schlusses der vorigen Zeile. — to cleave the pin = den Pflock spalten, der das Weiss in der Mitte der Zielscheibe festhielt, also mitten in's Weiss treffen. Wieder mit obscönem Nebensinn. 29) greasily = schmutzig. 30) to rub, vom Kegelspiel, wenn die Kugel irgendwo anstösst und nicht das Ziel erreicht. 31) Mit vulgar und obscenely will Costard gerade das Gegentheil sagen. 32) Die Q. hat Armato ath toothen side, die Fol. Armathor ath to the side. — Vielleicht wollte Sh. den Clown o' th' other side sagen lassen. — Staunton vermuthet, dass die Verse von O, my truth, most sweet jests etc. bis zu pathetical nit nur durch ein Versehen an diese Stelle gerathen seien, und eigentlich zu Costard's Lobrede auf den Pagen (A. 3, Sc. 1) My sweet ounce of man's flesh! my incony Jew! gehören. 33) Dyce vermuthet, dass eine Zeile hier ausgefallen sei, die auf swear gereimt habe.

1) in blood = muthig, aufgeregt. Derselbe Jagdausdruck steht in K. Henry VI. First Part (A. 4, Sc. 2) If we be English deer, be then in blood. — Manche Hgg. stellen willkürlich um in sanguis, — blood. 2) pomewater = Königsapfel. 3) Diese und die folgenden technischen Benennungen für Wild in verschiedenen Altersstufen finden ihre Erklärung in dem Drama The Return from Parnassus (1606): Now, Sir, a buck is the first year a fawn; the second year, a pricket; the third year, a sorrell; the fourth year, a soar; the fifth year, a buck of the first head; the sixth year, a complete buck. 4) ratherest ist eine von Holofernes auf eigene Hand gebildete Superlativform; die alte, zu Sh.'s Zeit schon veraltete, lautet rathest. 5) which bezieht sich auf thankful: wie wir, Leute von Geschmack und Empfindung, dankbar sind. — of fügte Tyrwhitt vor taste ein. 6) scil. than in him. — he, hier des Reims wegen gesetzt, steht jedoch auch anderswo als absolutes Pronomen

What was a month old at Cain's birth, that 's not five weeks old as yet?

Hol. Dictynna,⁸ Goodman Dull; Dictynna, Goodman Dull.

Dull. What is Dictynna?

Nath. A title to Phoebe, to Luna, to the moon.

Hol. The moon was a month old when Adam was no more;

And raught⁹ not to five weeks, when he came to five-score. The allusion holds in the exchange.¹⁰

Dull. 'T is true indeed: the collusion holds in the exchange.

Hol. God comfort thy capacity! I say, the allusion holds in the exchange.

Dull. And I say, the pellusion holds in the exchange, for the moon is never but a month old; and I say beside, that 't was a pricket that the princess kill'd.

Hol. Sir Nathaniel, will you hear an extemporal epitaph on the death of the deer? and, to humour the ignorant, I have¹¹ call'd the deer the princess kill'd, a pricket.

Nath. Perge, good Master Holofernes, perge; so it shall please you to abrogate scurrility.

Hol. I will something affect the letter;¹² for it argues facility.

The preyful¹³ princess pierc'd and prick'd a pretty pleasing pricket;

Some say, a sore; but not a sore, till now made sore¹⁴ with shooting.

The dogs did yell; put L to sore, then sorel jumps from thicket;

Or pricket sore, or else sorel; the people fall a hooting.

If sore be sore, then L to sore makes fifty sores; O sore L!

Of one sore I an hundred make, by adding but one more L.

Nath. A rare talent!

Dull. If a talent be a claw, look how he claws him with a talent.¹⁵

Hol. This is a gift that I have, simple, simple; a foolish extravagant spirit, full of forms, figures, shapes, objects, ideas, apprehensions, motions, revolutions: these are begot in the ventricle of memory, nourished in the womb of pia mater,¹⁶ and delivered upon the mellowing of occasion. But the gift is good in those in¹⁷ whom it is acute, and I am thankful for it.

Nath. Sir, I praise the Lord for you, and so may my parishioners; for their sons are well tutored by you, and their daughters profit very greatly under you: you are a good member of the commonwealth.

Hol. Mehercle! if their sons be ingenious, they shall want no instruction; if their daughters be capable, I will put it to them.¹⁸ But, vir sapit qui pauca loquitur. A soul feminine saluteth us.

Enter JAQUENETTA and COSTARD.

Jaqu. God give you good morrow, master person.

Hol. Master person, — quasi pers-on.¹⁹ An if one should be pierced, which is the one?

Cost. Marry, master schoolmaster, he that is likeliest to a hogshead.²⁰

Hol. Of piercing a hogshead! a good lustre of conceit in a turf of earth; fire enough for a flint, pearl enough for a swine: 't is pretty; it is well.

Jaqu. Good master person, be so good as read me this letter. It was given me by Costard, and sent me from Don Armado: I beseech you, read it.

Hol. Fauste, precor gelidâ quando pecus omne sub umbrâ Ruminat,²¹ and so forth. Ah, good old Mantuan! I may speak of thee as the traveller doth of Venice:

— Venetia, Venetia,

Chi non ti vede, non ti pretia.²²

Old Mantuan! old Mantuan! who understandeth thee not, loves thee not. — Ut, re, sol, la, mi, fa.²³ — Under für him. 7) scil. so would it ill become a patch, to see him in a school, if he were set on learning. — In dem vorigen Verse liegt der Nachdruck auf me. — In dem folgenden Verse ist mit an old father ein alter Kirchenvater gemeint. 8) Die alten Ausgg. haben hier Dictisima und in der folgenden Rede Dictima. Vielleicht sollte Dull das Wort wirklich verkehrt aussprechen. 9) raught, ein von Sh. auch sonst gebrauchtes Präteritum und Participium von to reach. 10) Die Anspielung verliert nichts dadurch, dass ich Adam für Cain setze. 11) I have, das in Q. und Fol. fehlt, fügte zuerst Rowe hinzu. 12) to affect the letter = den Buchstaben in Obacht nehmen, auf die Wiederholung desselben Buchstabens zu Anfang des Worts Gewicht legen. — Solche Alliteration soll Holofernes' Leichtigkeit im Versemachen darthun. 13) Für preyful = beutereich, beutevoll, ein von Holofernes gebildetes affectirtes Wort, das in Q. und Fol. sich findet, setzen die meisten Hgg. mit der Folioausg. von 1632 praiseful. 14) Wortspiel zwischen sore = vierjähriger Rehbock (vgl. oben Anm. 3), und = wund. Aus sore wird dann sorel = dreijähriger Rehbock, durch das in yell steckende ell (l) und durch Hinzufügung des L, der römischen Ziffer für 50, oder zweier LL = 100, in Uebereinstimmung mit der alten Orthographie sorell. — Zur Verdeutlichung des Wortspiels setzte Warburton am Ende des fünften Verses O sore l für O sorell der alten Ausgg. 15) Wortspiel zwischen talent = Talent, und talon = Klaue, Krallen, das zu Sh.'s Zeit häufig auch talent geschrieben wurde. So in Twelfth-Night (A. 1, Sc. 5) those that are fools, let them use their talents. — Zugleich besteht ein Wortspiel mit to claw = sich kauen, sich schmeicheln. 16) pia mater = feine Hirnhaut, wird als Sitz des Ingeniums auch erwähnt in Twelfth-Night (A. 1, Sc. 5) und in Troilus and Cressida (A. 2, Sc. 1). Die Fol. hat primater. 17) in fehlt in der Q. 18) capable = leicht auffassend, empfänglich, und to put it to = Einem Etwas beibringen, Beides mit obscönem Nebensinn. 19) person, alt für parson, hier als Wortspiel mit pierce one, das in älterer Aussprache dem perce on näher kam. 20) hogshead = Oxhoft, und hog's head = Schweinskopf. 21) Der Anfang der lateinischen Eklogen des Dichters Baptista Spagnolus aus Mantua aus dem 15. Jahrhundert — damals ein in Schulen vielgelesenes Buch, das nach diesem Anfangsverse citirt wurde. — Diese Rede, welche in Q. und Fol. der Pfarrer spricht, theilte zuerst Theobald mit Recht dem Holofernes zu. Auch die zunächst folgenden Reden sind in den alten Ausgg. verkehrt vertheilt. 22) Ein italienisches Sprichwort, das Sh. vielleicht aus Florio's Second Fruits (1591) kannte, woselbst es in obiger Fassung und Orthographie steht. — Die Q. und Fol. haben ganz entstellt: Venchie, vencha, que non te vnde, que non te perreche. — In der zweitfolgenden Zeile lässt die Fol. loves thee not aus. 23) Holofernes, der, während der Pfarrer mit der Lectüre des Briefes beschäftigt ist, erst seine Sprachkenntnisse in lateinischen und italienischen Citaten gezeigt hat, beweist pardon, Sir, what are the contents? or, rather, as Horace says in his — What, my soul, verses?

Nath. Ay, Sir, and very learned.

Hol. Let me hear a staff, a stanza, a verse: *lege, domine.*²⁴

Nath. If love make me forsworn, how shall I swear to love?

Ah, never faith could hold, if not to beauty vowed! Though to myself forsworn, to thee I'll faithful prove;

Those thoughts to me were oaks, to thee like osiers bowed.

Study his bias leaves, and makes his book thine eyes, Where all those pleasures live, that art would comprehend:

If knowledge be the mark, to know thee shall suffice.

Well learned is that tongue, that well can thee commend;

All ignorant that soul, that sees thee without wonder;

Which is to me some praise, that I thy parts admire.

Thy eye Jove's lightning bears, thy voice his dreadful thunder,

*Which, not to anger bent, is music, and sweet fire. Celestial as thou art, O! pardon love this wrong,*²⁵

That sings heaven's praise with such an earthly tongue!

Hol. You find not the apostrophes,²⁶ and so miss the accent: let me supervise the canzonet. Here are only numbers ratified; but, for the elegancy, facility, and golden cadence of poesy, caret. Ovidius Naso was the man: and why, indeed, Naso, but for smelling out the odoriferous flowers of fancy, the jerks of invention? Imitari is nothing, so doth the hound his master, the ape his keeper, the tired horse his rider.²⁷ But, damosella, virgin, was this directed to you?

Jaqu. Ay, Sir, from one Monsieur Biron, one of the strange queen's lords.²⁸

Hol. I will overglance the superscript. »To the snow-white hand of the most beauteous lady Rosaline.« I will look again on the intellect of the letter, for the nomination of the party writing²⁹ to the person written unto:

»Your ladyship's in all desired employment, Biron.« Sir Nathaniel, this Biron is one of the votaries with the king; and here he hath framed a letter to a sequent³⁰ of the stranger queen's, which, accidentally, or by the way of progression, hath miscarried. — Trip and go, my sweet; deliver this paper into the royal hand of the king; it may concern much. Stay not thy compliment,³¹ I forgive thy duty; adieu.

Jaqu. Good Costard, go with me. — Sir, God save your life!

Cost. Have with thee, my girl.

[Exeunt Cost. and Jaqu.]

Nath. Sir, you have done this in the fear of God, very religiously; and, as a certain father³² saith, —

Hol. Sir, tell not me of the father; I do fear colourable colours. But, to return to the verses: did they please you, Sir Nathaniel?

Nath. Marvellous well for the pen.

Hol. I do dine to-day at the father's of a certain pupil of mine; where if before repast³³ it shall please you to gratify the table with a grace, I will, on my privilege I have with the parents of the foresaid child or pupil, undertake your ben venuto; where I will prove those verses to be very unlearned, neither savouring of poetry, wit, nor invention. I beseech your society.

Nath. And thank you too; for society (saith the text) is the happiness of life.

Hol. And, certes, the text most infallibly concludes it. — [To Dull.] Sir, I do invite you too: you shall not say me nay: pauca verba. Away! the gentles are at their game, and we will to our recreation. [Exeunt.]

SCENE III.

Another Part of the Same.

Enter BIRON, with a paper.

Biron. The king he is hunting the deer; I am coursing myself: they have pitch'd a toil; I am toiling in a pitch, — pitch that defiles.¹ Defile! a foul word. Well, sit thee down, sorrow!² for so, they say, the fool said, and so say I, and I the fool. Well proved, wit! By the Lord, jetzt sein Gesangstalent, indem er die Tonleiter singt. 24) Das folgende Gedicht findet sich mit einigen Abweichungen in der von Jaggard (1599) unter Sh.'s Namen herausgegebenen Gedichtsammlung The Passionate Pilgrim. 25) Verzeihe der Liebe das Unrecht, das sie begeht, da sie den Preis des Himmels mit solcher irdischen Zunge singt. — Die meisten Hgg. fassen love als Vocativ. Im Passionate Pilgrim lauten die Schlussverse: Celestial as thou art, O! do not love that wrong, || To sing the heavens' praise with such an earthly tongue. 26) Die Fol. hat apostrophas, vielleicht der pedantischen Redeweise des Holofernes gemäss, und in der nächsten Zeile cangenet. 27) Die Hgg. verstehen tired horse = aufgeputztes Pferd, und finden darin eine Anspielung auf Bankes' dressirtes Kunstpferd (vgl. A. 1, Sc. 2, Anm. 9). — Vielleicht ist ohne solche Anspielung tired = abgemattet, durch Dressur so abgearbeitet, dass das Pferd thut, was der Reiter will. — Das Vorhergehende lautet in Q. und Fol. ganz sinnlos the ierkes of inuention imitarie is nothing. Theobald stellte den Sinn wieder her. 28) Sh. übersah hier, dass Jaquenetta den Brief Biron's an Rosaline für einen Brief Armado's an sie selber hielt. Eben so seltsam ist die Bezeichnung Biron's als eines der Hofherren der Prinzessin von Frankreich, die hier ungenau als Königin bezeichnet wird. — Dass Biron der Schreiber ist, scheint Holofernes auch erst aus der Ueberschrift als etwas ganz Neues zu entdecken. 29) writing setzte Rowe für das written der Q. und Fol., das Holofernes vielleicht in seinem eigenthümlichen Style für having written gebraucht. 30) sequent = follower, ein affectirtes Wort des pedantischen Holofernes. 31) Halte Dich hier nicht mit Abschiedscomplimenten auf; sie sind eine Pflicht, die ich Dir erlasse. 32) Der Pfarrer will wieder einen Kirchenvater citiren (vgl. oben Anm. 7). — Mit solchen Citaten will der Pfarrer, wie Holofernes argwöhnt, nur den verdächtigen Handel, dem sie eben auf die Spur gekommen sind, beschönigen. 33) So die Q.; die Fol. being repast.

1) Wortspiel zwischen to pitch = aufstellen, und pitch = Pech, so wie zwischen toil = Jagdnetz, und to toil = sich abarbeiten. Bei pitch denkt Biron zugleich an die Augen der Rosaline, die er (A. 3, Sc. 1) bezeichnet hatte With two pitch-balls stuck in her face for eyes. — Das Sprichwort Pitch defiles hat Sh. auch in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 2, Sc. 4). 2) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 71. — Die alten Ausgg. haben hier set für sit.

this love is as mad as Ajax:³ it kills sheep; it kills me, I a sheep. Well proved again o' my side! I will not love; if I do, hang me: i' faith, I will not. O! but her eye, — by this light, but for her eye, I would not love her! yes, for her two eyes. Well, I do nothing in the world but lie, and lie in my throat. By heaven, I do love, and it hath taught me to rhyme, and to be melancholy; and here is part of my rhyme, and here my melancholy. Well, she hath one o' my sonnets already: the clown bore it, the fool sent it, and the lady hath it: sweet clown, sweeter fool, sweetest lady! By the world, I would not care a pin if the other three were in.⁴ Here comes one with a paper: God give him grace to groan!⁵

[Gets up into a tree.]

Enter the KING, with a paper.

King. Ay me!

Biron. [Aside.] Shot, by heaven! — Proceed, sweet Cupid: thou hast thump'd him with thy bird-bolt under the left pap. — In faith, secrets! —

King. [Reads.] So sweet a kiss the golden sun gives not

*To those fresh morning drops upon the rose,
As thy eyebeams, when their fresh rays have smote*

*The night of dew⁶ that on my cheeks down flows:
Nor shines the silver moon one half so bright*

*Through the transparent bosom of the deep,
As doth thy face through tears of mine give light;*

Thou shin'st in every tear that I do weep:

No drop but as a coach doth carry thee,

So ridest thou triumphing in my woe.

Do but behold the tears that swell in me,

And they thy glory through my grief will show:

But do not love thyself; then thou wilt keep

My tears for glasses, and still make me weep.

O queen of queens, how far dost thou excel,

No thought can think, nor tongue of mortal tell.

How shall she know my griefs? I'll drop the paper.

Sweet leaves, shade folly. Who is he comes here?

[Steps aside.]

Enter LONGAVILLE, with a paper.

[Aside.] What, Longaville! and reading! listen, ear.

Biron. [Aside.] Now, in thy likeness, one more fool appear!⁷

Long. Ay me! I am forsworn.

Biron. [Aside.] Why, he comes in like a perjure, wearing papers.⁸

King. [Aside.] In love, I hope: sweet fellowship in shame!

Biron. [Aside.] One drunkard loves another of the name.

Long. Am I the first that have been perjur'd so?

Biron. [Aside.] I could put thee in comfort: not by two that I know.⁹

Thou mak'st the triumvir, the corner-cap of society,¹⁰
The shape of love's Tyburn, that hangs up simplicity.

Long. I fear these stubborn lines lack power to move.
O sweet Maria, empress of my love!

These numbers will I tear, and write in prose.

Biron. [Aside.] O! rhymes are guards on wanton Cupid's hose:

Disfigure not his slop.¹¹

Long. This same shall go. —

[He reads the sonnet.¹²

Did not the heavenly rhetoric of thine eye,

'Gainst whom the world cannot hold argument,

Persuade my heart to this false perjury?

Vows for thee broke deserve not punishment.

A woman I forswore; but I will prove,

Thou being a goddess, I forswore not thee:

My vow was earthly, thou a heavenly love;

Thy grace, being gain'd, cures all disgrace in me.

Vows are but breath, and breath a vapour is:

Then thou, fair sun, which on my earth dost shine,

Exhal'st this vapour-vow; in thee it is:

If broken, then it is no fault of mine,

If by me broke. What fool is not so wise,

To lose an oath, to win a paradise?

Biron. [Aside.] This is the liver-vein,¹³ which makes flesh a deity;

3) Auf den Mythos von Ajax spielt Sh. an in K. Henry VI. Second Part (A. 5, Sc. 1) And now, like Ajax Telamonius, || On sheep or oxen could I spend my fury. 4) Wenn der König, Dumaine und Longaville auch verliebt wären, damit wir alle vier unser Gelübde brächen. 5) Gebe Gott ihm die Gnade, dass er auch verliebt sei, auch Liebessenfzer ausstosse. — Für die folgende moderne Bühnenweisung haben die alten Ausgg. nur He stands aside. 6) Dyce ändert dafür the dew of night. Aber nach der poetischen Auffassung sind die Thränen, welche der König Nachts vergiesst, selbst eine thauerfüllte Nacht, die vor den Sonnenstrahlen, den Augen der Prinzessin, Morgens entweicht. Der Relativsatz bezieht sich dann auf dew allein, das in night of dew steckt. — Ebenso stellt Dyce in den Schlussversen dost thou in thou dost um, da eine Verbindung mit dem letzten Verse auch sehr wohl bei der alten Wortstellung statthaft ist. — Die meisten Hgg. setzen hinter excel ein Ausrufungszeichen. 7) Biron ahmt scherzhaft den Ton der Geisterbeschwörer nach, die einem Geist vorschreiben, in welcher Gestalt er zu erscheinen habe. So in Romeo and Juliet (A. 2, Sc. 1) That in thy likeness thou appear to us. — So soll Longaville, als ein Narr mehr zu den vorhandenen zwei Narren, in seiner eigenen Gestalt erscheinen. 8) perjure, eine ältere Form für perjurer. Die Strafe des Meineids bestand darin, dass der Meineidige Papiere vor der Brust tragen musste, welche das Bekenntniss seines Verbrechens enthielten. So in Leicester's Commonwealth: the gentlemen were all taken and cast into prison, and afterwards were set down to Ludlow there to wear papers of perjury. — Den folgenden Vers theilte zuerst Pope richtig dem König zu; in Q. und Fol. spricht ihn Longaville. 9) scil. thou art not the first by two etc.: es sind ausser Dir schon zwei Meineidige da. 10) Biron denkt dabei zuerst an das römische Triumvirat, das die höchste Spitze der damaligen Gesellschaft bildete, und dann an den aus drei Querhölzern bestehenden Galgen. — An solchem Galgen Amor's wollen die Drei die Unschuld, die sie durch ihren Meineid verloren haben, aufhängen. — triumvir setzt zuerst Rowe für triumphery der Q. und Fol. 11) slop = weite Hose, Pumphose, ist Theobald's Emendation für das shop der alten Ausgg. — guards = Besatz, Galonirung. — Für shop der alten Ausgg. liest Staunton nach einer handschriftlichen Verbesserung in einem Exemplar der Fol. shape. 12) Diese Bühnenweisung ist aus Q. und Fol. — Das folgende Sonett ist ebenfalls mit geringen Abweichungen in Jaggard's Passionate Pilgrim abgedruckt (vgl. A. 4, Sc. 2, Anm. 24). 13) liver-vein = verliebte, dichterische Ader, insofern die Leber als Sitz der verliebten Leidenschaften galt.

A green goose,¹⁴ a goddess: pure, pure idolatry.
God amend us, God amend! we are much out o' the way.

Enter DUMAINE, with a paper.

Long. By whom shall I send this? — Company! stay.
[Steps aside.]

Biron. [Aside.] All hid, all hid; an old infant play.¹⁵
Like a demi-god here sit I in the sky,¹⁶
And wretched fools' secrets heedfully o'er-eye.

More sacks to the mill! O heavens! I have my wish:
Dumaine transform'd: four woodcocks in a dish!¹⁷

Dum. O most divine Kate!

Biron. [Aside.] O most profane¹⁸ coxcomb!

Dum. By heaven, the wonder of a mortal eye!

Biron. [Aside.] By earth, she is but corporal;¹⁹ there you lie.

Dum. Her amber hairs for foul have amber coted.²⁰

Biron. [Aside.] An amber-colour'd raven was well noted.

Dum. As upright as the cedar.

Biron. [Aside.] Stoop, I say:

Her shoulder is with child.²¹

Dum. As fair as day.

Biron. [Aside.] Ay, as some days; but then no sun must shine.

Dum. O, that I had my wish!

Long. [Aside.] And I had mine!

King. [Aside.] And I²² mine too, good Lord!

Biron. [Aside.] Amen, so I had mine. Is not that a good word?

Dum. I would forget her; but a fever she Reigns in my blood,²³ and will remember'd be.

Biron. [Aside.] A fever in your blood? why, then incision

Would let her out in saucers: sweet misprision!

Dum. Once more I'll read the ode that I have writ.

Biron. [Aside.] Once more I'll mark how love can vary wit.

Dum. On a day, alack the day!

Love, whose month is ever May,

Spied a blossom, passing fair,

Playing in the wanton air:

Through the velvet leaves the wind,

All unseen, 'gan²⁴ passage find;

That the lover, sick to death,

Wish'd himself the heaven's breath.

Air, quoth he, thy cheeks may blow;

Air, 'would I might triumph so!

But alack! my hand is sworn,

Ne'er to pluck thee from thy thorn:²⁵

Vow, alack! for youth unmeet,

Youth so apt to pluck a sweet.

Do not call it sin in me,

That I am forsworn for thee;

Thou for whom Jove would swear²⁶

Juno but an Ethiop²⁷ were;

And deny himself for Jove,

Turning mortal for thy love.

This will I send, and something else more plain,
That shall express my true love's fasting pain.²⁸

O, 'would the king, Biron, and Longaville,

Were lovers too! Ill, to example ill,

Would from my forehead wipe a perjurd note;²⁹

For none offend, where all alike do dote.

Long. [Advancing.] Dumaine, thy love is far from charity.

That in love's grief desir'st society:

You may look pale, but I should blush, I know,

To be o'erheard, and taken napping so.

King. [Advancing.] Come, Sir, you blush;³⁰ as his your case is such;

You chide at him, offending twice as much:

You do not love Maria; Longaville

Did never sonnet for her sake compile.

Nor never lay his wreathed arms athwart

His loving bosom, to keep down his heart.

I have been closely shrouded in this bush,

And mark'd you both, and for you both did blush.

I heard your guilty rhymes, observ'd your fashion,

Saw sighs reek from you, noted well your passion:

Ay me! says one; O Jove! the other cries;

One, her hairs³¹ were gold, crystal the other's eyes:

[To Long.] You would for paradise break faith and troth;

14) Ein unreifes, einfältiges Mädchen. 15) Das Kinderspiel, wo Alle sich verstecken und Einer sie sucht. — Auf ein anderes Kinderspiel deutet Biron nachher hin: More sacks to the mill! 16) in the sky ist mit like a demi-god zu verbinden. Biron denkt an irgend eine griechische Gottheit, welche so in eine Wolke gehüllt die Sterblichen in ihrem Thun und Treiben belauscht. 17) woodcock, ein Vogel, der sich leicht fangen lässt, wird häufig übertragen von einem Thoren gesagt, der sich hat betreffen lassen, wie hier gleichsam vier Schnepfen in einer Schüssel liegen: d. h. der König und seine drei Eidgenossen. 18) profane = lästerlich in Reden, weil Dumaine, der die Katharine als divine bezeichnet, damit eine Gotteslästerung begeht. 19) but ist Theobald's Emendation für not der alten Ausgg., welche die beiden Wörter manchmal verwechseln. Capell wollte not beibehalten und corporal als Vocativ für eine scherzhafte Anrede an Dumaine betrachten. — corporal ist Sh.'s Wort für corporeal. 20) Ihr ambrabriges Haar ist so vollkommen, dass es den Ambra selber neben sich als schmutzig und hässlich bezeichnet oder erscheinen lässt. — Ueber coted, wofür die meisten Hgg. quoted lesen, vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 60. 21) Die eine Schulter ist höher als die andere und so dick ausgewachsen, als ob sie schwanger wäre. 22) I fehlt in Q. und Fol. 23) So in Hamlet (A. 4, Sc. 3) For like the hectic in my blood he rages. 24) 'gan, Theobald's Emendation für can der Q. und der Fol., wird bestätigt durch den Abdruck des Gedichts in Jaggard's Passionate Pilgrim und in England's Helicon (1600), woselbst auch richtiger zwei Zeilen weiter wish'd für das wish von Q. und Fol. steht. 25) thorn verbesserte Rowe das throne der alten Ausgg., in Uebereinstimmung mit dem Abdruck in England's Helicon. 26) Manche Hgg. fügen zur Vervollständigung des Verses even vor Jove ein; doch steht der Vers ebenso in Passionate Pilgrim und in England's Helicon. 27) an Ethiop = eine Mohrin, eine gewöhnliche Bezeichnung weiblicher Hässlichkeit bei Sh. 28) fasting pain = der Schmerz der Entbehrung, der Enthaltung vom Genusse. — Capell las lasting für fasting. 29) Den Makel eines Eidbrüchigen. 30) you blush ist gesagt in Bezug auf das vorhergehende I should blush. Die weitere Construction ist your case is such as his case. 31) Malone erklärt: the hairs of one of the ladies were of the colour of gold, and the eyes of the other as crystal. Vielleicht aber ist zu one aus dem Vorhergehenden says oder cries

[To DUMAINE.] And Jove for your love would infringe an oath.

What will Biron say, when that he shall hear
Faith³² infringed, which such zeal did swear?
How will he scorn! how will he spend his wit!
How will he triumph, leap, and laugh at it!
For all the wealth that ever I did see,
I would not have him know so much by me.³³

Biron. Now step I forth to whip hypocrisy. —
[Descends from the tree.³⁴

Ah, good my liege, I pray thee, pardon me:
Good heart! what grace hast thou, thus to reprove
These worms for loving, that art most in love?
Your eyes do make no coaches;³⁵ in your tears
There is no certain princess that appears:
You 'll not be perjur'd, 't is a hateful thing:
Tush! none but minstrels like of sonneting.³⁶
But are you not asham'd? nay, are you not,
All three of you, to be thus much o'ershot?³⁷
You found his moth; the king your moth³⁸ did see;
But I a beam do find in each of three.
O! what a scene of foolery have I seen,
Of sighs, of groans, of sorrow, and of teen!³⁹
O me! with what strict patience have I sat,
To see a king transformed to a gnat!⁴⁰
To see great Hercules whipping a gig,
And profound Solomon tuning⁴¹ a jig,
And Nestor play at push-pin with the boys,
And critic⁴² Timon laugh at idle toys!
Where lies thy grief? O! tell me, good Dumaine:
And, gentle Longaville, where lies thy pain?
And where my liege's? all about the breast; —
A candle,⁴³ ho!

King. Too bitter is thy jest.
Are we betray'd thus to thy over-view?

Biron. Not you to me, but I betray'd by you:⁴⁴
I, that am honest; I, that hold it sin
To break the vow I am engaged in;

I am betray'd, by keeping company
With men like you, men of inconstancy.⁴⁵
When shall you see me write a thing in rhyme?
Or groan for Joan?⁴⁶ or spend a minute's time
In pruning me?⁴⁷ When shall you hear that I
Will praise a hand, a foot, a face, an eye,
A gait, a state, a brow, a breast, a waist,
A leg, a limb? —

King. Soft! Whither away so fast?⁴⁸
A true man, or a thief, that gallops so?

Biron. I post from love; good lover, let me go.

Enter JAQUENETTA and COSTARD.

Jaq. God bless the king!

King. What present⁴⁹ hast thou there?

Cost. Some certain treason.

King. What makes treason here?

Cost. Nay, it makes nothing, Sir.

King. If it mar nothing neither,
The treason and you go in peace away together.

Jaq. I beseech your grace, let this letter be read:
Our person misdoubts it; it was treason, he said.

King. Biron, read it over. [BIRON reads the letter.
Where hadst thou it?

Jaq. Of Costard.

King. Where hadst thou it?

Cost. Of Dun Adramadio, Dun Adramadio.

King. How now! what is in you? why dost thou tear it?

Biron. A toy, my liege, a toy: your grace needs not fear it.

Long. It did move him to passion, and therefore let's hear it.

Dum. [Picking up the pieces.] It is Biron's writing, and here is his name.

Biron. [To COSTARD.] Ah, you whoreson loggerhead!
you were born to do me shame. —

Guilty, my lord, guilty! I confess, I confess.

King. What?

zu suppliren: der Eine sagt, ihr Haar sei Gold, und die Augen der Andern, von denen der Andere spricht, waren Krystall. 32) Manche Hgg. lesen mit der zweiten Folioausg. a faith. — Vielleicht wäre faiths zu schreiben und zweisylbig (faithes) auszusprechen, wie in K. Henry VI. Third Part (A. 2, Sc. 5) months einmal monthes zu sprechen ist. 33) by me = in Bezug auf mich. 34) Diese Bühnenweisung ist modern. Vgl. oben Anm. 5. 35) Biron spielt an auf einen Vers in dem Sonett des Königs No drop but as a coach doth carry thee. — coaches verbesserte Rowe das couches der alten Ausgg. 36) Liebesgedichte machen ist eine Arbeit, an der nur Bänkelsänger oder Dichter von Profession für Geld ihr Gefallen finden können. 37) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 36. 38) moth = Atom, Splitter im Auge, im Gegensatz zu beam = Balken, ist hier wie anderswo Sh.'s Wort, an dessen Stelle die Hgg. das moderne mote setzen. 39) teen = Schmerz, Leid. 40) Diese Vergleichung bezieht sich wohl nicht auf die winzige Gestalt des Thieres, im Gegensatz zu der Grösse und Majestät des Königs, welche durch dessen Verliebtheit verdunkelt wird, als vielmehr auf das beständige Gesumme der Mücke, mit welcher die eben so nichtsagenden gereimten Liebesklagen des Königs verglichen werden. — Staunton vermuthet quat = verächtlicher Mensch, Lump. 41) So die Fol.; die Q., der die meisten Hgg. folgen, liest to tune. 42) critic = Tadler, Schmäh-süchtiger. 43) So die Q.; die Fol. candle, ein Druckfehler, den sogar Rowe noch beibehielt. 44) Die meisten Hgg. haben mit den alten Ausgg. by me und to you. Die Umstellung, auf deren Nothwendigkeit schon M. Mason hinwies, nahm zuerst Dyce vor. 45) Dieser Vers lautet in Q. und Fol., offenbar verstümmelt: With men like men, of inconstancy. — Die zweite Folioausg. fügte vor inconstancy, wie es scheint, auf's Gerathewohl, ein triviales strange ein. — Die meisten Hgg. lesen mit M. Mason With moon-like men, of strange inconstancy. — Der obige Text ist der von Dyce nach einer sinnreichen und plausiblen Conjectur von Sidney Walker adoptirte. 46) groan und Joan bilden geflissentlich einen Reim. Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 1, Anm. 46. — Die Cambridge Edd. lesen groan for love, nach einem Exemplar der Q., im Besitze des Herzogs von Devonshire. Sonst hat die Q. Ione, und die Fol. Ioane. 47) to prune one's self = sich putzen, wie ein Vogel mit dem Schnabel sein Gefieder putzt. 48) Biron unterbricht sich mitten in seiner Strafrede und eilt davon, da er Costard kommen sieht, in dem er, als in dem Ueberbringer seines Briefes an die Rosaline, den Verräther seiner Liebe wittert. — true man = ehrlicher Mann, ist der gewöhnliche Gegensatz zu thief. 49) Unter present versteht der König scherzhaft die Jaquenetta, Costard in seiner Antwort den Brief, den er mit dem ihm unverständlichen Worte des Pfarrers als treason bezeichnet. Gleich darauf versteht Costard to make in dem Sinne von = betragen, kosten, und der König gebraucht dann den Biron. That you three fools lack'd me, fool, to make up the mess;⁵⁰

He, he, and you, and you, my liege, and I,⁵¹
Are pick-purses in love, and we deserve to die.
O! dismiss this audience, and I shall tell you more.

Dum. Now the number is even.

Biron. True, true; we are four. —
Will these turtles be gone?

King. Hence, Sirs; away!

Cost. Walk aside the true folk,⁵² and let the traitors stay. [Exeunt COSTARD and JAQUENETTA.]

Biron. Sweet lords, sweet lovers, O! let us embrace.
As true we are, as flesh and blood can be:
The sea will ebb and flow, heaven show his face;
Young blood doth not obey an old decree:⁵³
We cannot cross the cause why we are⁵⁴ born;
Therefore, of all hands must we be forsworn.

King. What, did these rent lines show some love of thine?

Biron. Did they? quoth you. Who sees the heavenly
Rosaline,

That, like a rude and savage man of Inde,
At the first opening of the gorgeous east,
Bows not his vassal head, and, stricken blind,
Kisses the base ground with obedient breast?⁵⁵
What peremptory, eagle-sighted eye
Dares look upon the heaven of her brow,
That is not blinded by her majesty?

King. What zeal, what fury hath inspir'd thee now?
My love, her mistress, is a gracious moon,
She an attending star, scarce seen a light.

Biron. My eyes are then no eyes, nor I Biron.
O! but for my love, day would turn to night.⁵⁶
Of all complexions the cull'd sovereignty
Do meet, as at a fair,⁵⁷ in her fair cheek;
Where several worthies make one dignity,
Where nothing wants that want itself doth seek.
Lend me the flourish of all gentle tongues, —
Fie, painted rhetoric! O! she needs it not:
To things of sale a seller's praise belongs;⁵⁸
She passes praise; then praise too short doth blot.
A wither'd hermit, five-score winters worn,⁵⁹

Might shake off fifty, looking in her eye:
Beauty doth varnish age, as if new-born,
And gives the crutch the cradle's infancy.
O! 't is the sun, that maketh all things shine!

King. By heaven, thy love is black as ebony.

Biron. Is ebony like her? O wood⁶⁰ divine!
A wife of such wood were felicity.

O! who can give an oath? where is a book?⁶¹

That I may swear beauty doth beauty lack,
If that she learn not of her eye to look:

No face is fair, that is not full so black.

King. O paradox! Black is the badge of hell,
The hue of dungeons, and the scowl of night;⁶²
And beauty's crest becomes the heavens well.

Biron. Devils soonest tempt, resembling spirits of light.

O! if in black my lady's brows be deck'd,
It mourns, that painting, and usurping hair,
Should ravish doters with a false aspect;⁶³

And therefore is she born to make black fair.

Her favour turns the fashion of the days;

For native blood is counted painting now,

And therefore red, that would avoid dispraise,
Paints itself black, to imitate her brow.

Dum. To look like her are chimney-sweepers black.

Long. And since her time are colliers counted bright.

King. And Ethiops of their sweet complexion crack.

Dum. Dark needs no candles now, for dark is light.

Biron. Your mistresses dare never come in rain,
For fear their colours should be wash'd away.

King. 'T were good, yours did; for, Sir, to tell you
plain,

I'll find a fairer face not wash'd to-day.

Biron. I'll prove her fair, or talk till doomsday here.

King. No devil will fright thee then⁶⁴ so much as she.

Dum. I never knew man hold vile stuff so dear.

Long. [Showing his shoe.] Look, here 's thy love:
my foot and her face see.

Biron. O! if the streets were paved with thine eyes,
Her feet were much too dainty for such tread.

Dum. O vile! then, as she goes, what upward lies
The street should see, as she walk'd overhead.⁶⁵

King. But what of this? Are we not all in love?

Gegensatz, der bei Sh. sehr oft sich wiederholt, von to make und to mar. 50) mess = ein Speisevorrath für vorzugsweise vier Tischgenossen, daher eine Gesellschaft oder Sippschaft von Mehreren, namentlich von vier Personen. 51) So Q. und Fol. Manche Hgg. lassen das erste and you, das Biron an einen der drei Höflinge richtet, weg. 52) Als the true folk redet Costard, der die eben vorhergehenden Bekenntnisse Biron's wörtlich genommen hatte, sich selbst und Jaquenetta an. — Zu traitors scil. treason vgl. Anm. 49 oben. 53) old decree = eine Satzung, die vom Alter herrührt oder die für das Alter berechnet ist. — In der vorigen Zeile liest die Fol. heaven will show. 54) So die Fol.; die Q. were. 55) Eine Anspielung auf die Sonnenanbeter unter den Wilden, welche beim Aufgang der Sonne ihre Andacht verrichten. Eine gleiche Verehrung nimmt auch Rosaline für sich in Anspruch, da ihr Anblick die Anbeter ebenso blendet, wie die Sonne. 56) Der Nachdruck liegt auf my: Wenn meine Geliebte nicht wäre und nicht wie eine Sonne am Himmel leuchtete, so würde der Tag zur Nacht werden. 57) Wortspiel zwischen fair = Jahrmarkt, Verkehrsplatz, und fair = schön. — Der Plural do meet steht wegen des Plurals of all complexions. 58) So in Sh.'s Sonnets (21) I will not praise, that purpose not to sell. 59) Ein Klausner, der hundert Jahre lang abgenutzt, verschlissen wurde. 60) wood verbesserte Theobald das word der Q. und Fol. 61) Biron sieht sich nach Jemandem um, der qualificirt ist, ihm einen Eid abzunehmen, und nach einer Bibel, auf die er solchen Eid leisten kann. — So in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 2, Sc. 4) I'll be sworn upon all the books in England. 62) scowl ist Warburton's Conjectur für school der Q. und Fol. Andere lesen stole of night, was Theobald vorschlug. — Dyce dachte an soil (in alter Orthographie soyle). — Im Gegensatz zu solchem Schwarz, das die Farbe der Hölle ist, steht dann beauty's crest = der Gipfel oder der Helmschmuck der Schönheit, die höchste Schönheit, welche hell glänzen muss wie der Himmel. 63) Anspielung auf die Sitte, dass Damen ihrem dunkeln Teint eine helle Schminke gaben und falsches blondes Haar trugen. Ueber solchen Betrug trauert gleichsam in der Farbe der Trauer, in Schwarz, die brünette Rosaline. — Q. und Fol. lassen hinter painting das and weg, das die vierte Folioausg. supplirt. — Die zweite Folioausg. hat an usurping hair. 64) then geht auf doomsday = am Tage des jüngsten Gerichts, wo Rosaline schwärzer aussehen wird, als Biron. O! nothing so sure; and thereby all forsworn.

King. Then leave this chat: and, good Biron, now prove Our loving lawful, and our faith not torn.

Dum. Ay, marry, there; some flattery for this evil.

Long. O! some authority how to proceed;
Some tricks, some quilllets,⁶⁶ how to cheat the devil.

Dum. Some salve for perjury.

Biron. O! 't is more than need. —

Have at you then, affection's men-at-arms:⁶⁷

Consider, what you first did swear unto, —

To fast, — to study, — and to see no woman:

Flat treason 'gainst the kingly state of youth.

Say, can you fast? your stomachs are too young,

And abstinence engenders maladies.

And where that you have vow'd to study, lords,

In that each of you have⁶⁸ forsworn his book.

Can you still dream, and pore, and thereon look?⁶⁹

For when would you, my lord, or you, or you,

Have found the ground of study's excellence,

Without the beauty of a woman's face?

From women's eyes this doctrine I derive:

They are the ground, the books, the academes,⁷⁰

From whence doth spring the true Promethean fire.

Why, universal plodding prisons up⁷¹

The nimble spirits in the arteries,

As motion, and long-during action, tires

The sinewy vigour of the traveller.

Now, for not looking on a woman's face,⁷²

You have in that forsworn the use of eyes,

And study too, the causer of your vow;⁷³

For where is any author in the world,

Teaches such beauty as a woman's eye?

Learning is but an adjunct to ourself,

And where we are, our learning likewise is:

Then, when ourselves we see in ladies' eyes,⁷⁴

Do we not likewise see our learning there?

O! we have made a vow to study, lords,

And in that vow we have forsworn our books:

For when would you, my liege, or you, or you,

In leaden contemplation have found out

Such fiery numbers,⁷⁵ as the prompting eyes

Of beauty's tutors have enrich'd you with?

Other slow arts entirely keep the brain,⁷⁶

And therefore, finding barren practisers,

Scarce show a harvest of their heavy toil;

But love, first learned in a lady's eyes,

Lives not alone immured in the brain,

But, with the motion of all elements,

Courses as swift as thought in every power,⁷⁷

And gives to every power a double power,

Above their functions and their offices.

It adds a precious seeing to the eye;

A lover's eyes will gaze an eagle blind;

A lover's ear will hear the lowest sound,

When the suspicious head of theft is stopp'd:⁷⁸

Love's feeling is more soft, and sensible,

Than are the tender horns of cockled snails:

Love's tongue proves dainty Bacchus gross in taste.

For valour, is not Love a Hercules,

Still climbing trees in the Hesperides?⁷⁹

Subtle as Sphinx; as sweet, and musical,

As bright Apollo's lute, strung with his hair;

And, when Love speaks, the voice of all the gods

Make⁸⁰ heaven drowsy with the harmony.

Never durst poet touch a pen to write,

Until his ink were temper'd with love's sighs;

O! then his lines would ravish savage ears,

And plant in tyrants mild humility.⁸¹

From women's eyes this doctrine I derive:

They sparkle still the right Promethean fire;

They are the books, the arts, the academes,

That show, contain, and nourish all the world;

alle Teufel, welche die Verdammten in die Hölle schleppen. 65) Wenn die Pflastersteine auf der Strasse aus lauter Augen beständen, so würde die Strasse indiscreter Weise die höher gelegenen Reize der Rosaline, welche der Anstand verhüllt, von unten anschauen. 66) quilllets = Advokatenkniffe, um den Teufel zu prellen, dessen Beute sie sonst wegen ihres Wortbruches werden. 67) Passt denn auf, Ihr bewaffneten Krieger der Liebe. 68) So Q. und Fol. mit Sh.'scher Construction, welche have auf den Plural of you, das folgende his wieder auf den Singular each bezieht. 69) Dyce streicht nach Capell's Vorgange die folgenden sechs Verse bis inclusive Promethean fire, weil theilweise dieselben Gedanken nachher, ähnlich ausgedrückt, noch einmal wiederkehren. Biron resümiert emphatisch die Punkte, die er in seinem Vortrag beweisen wollte, nachdem er sie bewiesen hat. — Vgl. Einleitung pag. 229. — Staunton äussert sich über diesen Punkt folgendermassen: In the present speech as in that of Rosaline (vgl. A. 5, Sc. 2, Anm. 171) we appear to have got both the first sketch and the completed form of the poet's intention, which makes it extremely probable that the 4to 1598 was composed from his own Ms. There can be little doubt that the passage beginning as above (For when would you, my lord, or you, or you), and the one lower down commencing For where is any author in the world, are a portion of the original draught of Biron's address, and were meant by the author to be erased after he corrected and enlarged the play. 70) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 6. 71) prisons verbessert Theobald das poisons der Q. und Fol. — Warburton bemerkt dazu: In the old system of physic they gave the same office to the arteries as is now given to the nerves. 72) Was nun das betrifft, dass Ihr nicht das Angesicht eines Weibes sehen wollt, so habt Ihr darin u. s. w. 73) Capell und Dyce lassen die folgenden acht Zeilen bis inclusive our books wiederum aus. Vgl. Anm. 69. 74) Q. und Fol. lassen auf diesen Vers eine unmetrische und für den Sinn überflüssige Halbzeile With ourselves folgen, die offenbar aus Versehen hier in den Text gekommen ist. 75) such fiery numbers sind die verliebten Verse, welche sie vorher, Einer vom Andern belauscht, vorgelesen hatten. 76) Andere leidenschaftlose Künste und Wissenschaften behaupten das Gehirn als ihren Sitz, den sie nicht verlassen. 77) power ist in dieser Zeile jedes körperliche Organ, und in der folgenden dessen Vermögen oder Thätigkeit. 78) Die Commentatoren streiten darüber, ob das argwöhnische Ohr des Diebes gemeint sei oder das Ohr Desjenigen, der den Diebstahl argwöhnt. Die erstere Erklärung, welche thief personificirt = thief fasst, scheint die natürlichere zu sein. 79) Hesperides soll Sh., nach der Meinung der Ausleger, für den Namen der Hesperidengärten gehalten haben. Wahrscheinlich verstand er die Insel der Hesperiden selbst darunter. So in Pericles (A. 1, Sc. 1) Before thee stands this fair Hesperides. 80) So Q. und Fol., weil der Plural gods eben vorherging. Vgl. oben Anm. 68. — Wenn Amor spricht, so fallen alle Götter in seinen Gesang ein und wiegen damit den Himmel in süsse Träume.

Else none at all in aught proves excellent.
 Then, fools you were these women to forswear,
 Or, keeping what is sworn, you will prove fools.
 For wisdom's sake, a word that all men love,
 Or for love's sake, a word that loves all men,⁸²
 Or for men's sake, the authors⁸³ of these women,
 Or women's sake, by whom we men are men,
 Let us once lose our oaths, to find ourselves,
 Or else we lose ourselves, to keep our oaths.
 It is religion to be thus forsworn;
 For charity itself fulfils the law;
 And who can sever love from charity?

King. Saint Cupid,⁸⁴ then! and, soldiers, to the field!

Biron. Advance your standards, and upon them,⁸⁵ lords!

Pell-mell, down with them! but be first advis'd,
 In conflict that you get the sun of them.⁸⁶

Long. Now to plain-dealing: lay these glozes by.
 Shall we resolve to woo these girls of France?

King. And win them too: therefore, let us devise
 Some entertainment for them in their tents.

Biron. First, from the park let us conduct them
 thither;

Then, homeward, every man attach the hand
 Of his fair mistress. In the afternoon
 We will with some strange pastime solace them,
 Such as the shortness of the time can shape;
 For revels, dances, masks, and merry hours,
 Forerun fair Love, strewing her way⁸⁷ with flowers.

King. Away, away! no time shall be omitted,
 That will be time, and may by us be fitted.

Biron. Allons! Allons! — Sow'd cockle reap'd no corn;
 And justice always whirls in equal measure:
 Light wenches may prove plagues to men forsworn;
 If so, our copper buys no better treasure.⁸⁸ [Exeunt.]

ACT V.

SCENE I.

Another Part of the Same.

Enter HOLOFERNES, Sir NATHANIEL, and DULL.

Hol. *Satis quod sufficit.*¹

Nath. I praise God for you, Sir: your reasons² at dinner have been sharp and sententious; pleasant without scurrility, witty without affection,³ audacious without impudency, learned without opinion, and strange without heresy. I did converse this quondam day with a companion of the king's, who is intituled, nominated, or called, Don Adriano de Armado.

Hol. Novi hominem tanquam te: his humour is lofty, his discourse peremptory, his tongue filed,⁴ his eye ambitious, his gait majestical, and his general behaviour vain, ridiculous, and thrasonical.⁵ He is too picked,⁶ too spruce, too affected, too odd, as it were, too peregrinate,⁷ as I may call it.

Nath. A most singular and choice epithet.

[Draws out his table-book.]

Hol. He draweth out the thread of his verbosity finer than the staple of his argument. I abhor such fanatical phantasms,⁸ such insociable and point-device⁹ companions; such rackers of orthography, as to speak dout, fine, when he should say doubt;¹⁰ det, when he should pronounce debt, — d, e, b, t, not d, e, t; he clepeth a calf, caulf; half, haulf; neighbour vocatur nebour; neigh abbreviated ne. This is abominable (which he would call abominable), it insinuateth me of insanie:¹¹ ne intelligis, domine? to make frantic, lunatic.

Nath. Laus Deo, bone intelligo.

Hol. Bone? — bone for bene: Priscian a little scratch'd;¹² 't will serve.

81) Warburton strich die folgenden fünf Verse. Vgl. oben Anm. 69 und 73. 82) that is pleasing to all men erklärt Malone mit Recht. 83) authors verbesserte Johnson das author der alten Ausgg. 84) Saint Cupid ist das vom Könige gegebene Schlachtgeschrei für den beginnenden Liebeskrieg, scherzhaft gebildet nach Saint George, dem Schlachtgeschrei der Engländer, und Saint Denis, dem Schlachtruf der Franzosen. 85) upon them = auf die Feinde los, drauf! obgleich kein Substantiv vorhergeht, auf das sich them beziehen liesse. 86) Das Bild von der Schlacht wird fortgesetzt: sie sollen sorgen, dass ihnen im Kampf mit den Damen nicht die Sonne in's Gesicht scheine und sie blende. Zugleich liegt, wie Longaville's nächste Rede zeigt, ein frivoles Wortspiel zwischen sun und son vor, wie auch upon them, down with them als Zweideutigkeiten zu fassen sind. 87) Love personifiziert Sh. auch hier weiblich = Liebesgöttin. 88) Wie wer Unkraut säet, nur Unkraut erntet und kein Korn, so werden wir mit unserm Meineid auch keine guten Früchte ernten, sondern leichtfertige Mädchen, die uns eine Strafe werden. — Für werthlose Münze (copper), wie wir sie zahlen, für unsere eigene Werthlosigkeit, lässt sich eben nichts Besseres kaufen.

1) Holofernes citirt diesen Spruch in Beziehung auf das so eben bei einem Freunde eingenommene Mittagessen. — Holofernes heisst in dieser Scene in Q. und Fol. einfach the Pedant, Nathaniel ebenso the Curate. 2) reason = Gespräch, Unterhaltung. 3) affection = Affectation. — audacious = voll Selbstvertrauen, in gutem Sinn unbefangen. — opinion = Dünkel, vorgefasste Meinung. 4) tongue filed erklärt Douce richtig mit polished language. 5) thrasonical = grosssprecherisch. Dasselbe Epitheton in As you like it (A. 5, Sc. 2) Cæsar's thrasonical brag of — "I came, saw, and overcame." 6) picked = gesucht, geziert. So in K. John (A. 1, Sc. 1) my picked man of countries. 7) peregrinate = ausländisch, in der Fremde verkehrend; ein affectirtes Wort, das als solches den Beifall des Nathaniel findet und als willkommener Fund von ihm begierig in sein Notizenbuch eingezeichnet wird. 8) Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 1, Anm. 19. 9) point-device = pedantisch, raffinirt in Benehmen und Haltung. So in As you like it (A. 3, Sc. 2) you are rather point-device in your accoutrements. 10) d. h. er spricht aus Affectation das Wort doubt aus, als sei kein b darin, das Holofernes mit hören lässt. So will Holofernes auch das l in calf, das gh in neighbour mit ausgesprochen wissen, sowie das h in abominable, wie das Wort zu Sh.'s Zeit gewöhnlich, einer falschen Etymologie gemäss, geschrieben wurde. 11) insanie emendirt Theobald das infamie der alten Ausgg. — Dieses Wort erklärt Holofernes dann mit to make frantic, lunatic. — Dyce vermuthet für insanie das lateinische Verbum insanire, und demgemäss für to make frantic auch to wax frantic. 12) Der lateinische Grammatiker Priscian erhält eine kleine Schramme, wenn man bone für bene sagt. — Die Stelle, welche Theobald wieder hergestellt hat, lautet in den alten Ausgg. ganz sinnlos

Enter ARMADO, MOTH, and COSTARD.

Nath. Videsne quis venit?

Hol. Video, et gaudeo.

Arm. [To Moth.] Chirrah!

Hol. Quare chirrah, not sirrah?

Arm. Men of peace, well encounter'd.

Hol. Most military Sir, salutation.

Moth. They have been at a great feast of languages, and stolen the scraps.

Cost. O! they have lived long on the alms-basket of words.¹³ I marvel thy master hath not eaten thee for a word; for thou art not so long by the head as honorificabilitudinitatibus:¹⁴ thou art easier swallowed than a flap-dragon.¹⁵

Moth. Peace! the peal begins.

Arm. [To Hol.] Monsieur, are you not letter'd?

Moth. Yes, yes, he teaches boys the horn-book.¹⁶ — What is a, b, spelt backward with the horn on his head?

Hol. Ba, pueritia, with a horn added.

Moth. Ba! most silly sheep, with a horn. — You hear his learning.

Hol. Quis, quis, thou consonant?¹⁷

Moth. The third of the five vowels, if you repeat them; or the fifth, if I.

Hol. I will repeat them; — a, e, i.

Moth. The sheep: the other two concludes it; — o, u.

Arm. Now, by the salt wave of the Mediterranean, a sweet touch, a quick venew¹⁸ of wit! snip, snap, quick and home: it rejoiceth my intellect; true wit!

Moth. Offer'd by a child to an old man; which is wit-old.¹⁹

Hol. What is the figure? what is the figure?

Moth. Horns.

Hol. Thou disputest like an infant: go, whip thy gig.

Moth. Lend me your horn to make one, and I will whip about your infamy²⁰ circum circa. A gig of a cuckold's horn!

Cost. An I had but one penny in the world, thou shouldst have it to buy gingerbread. Hold, there is the very remuneration I had of thy master,²¹ thou half-penny purse of wit, thou pigeon-egg of discretion. O! an the heavens were so pleased, that thou wert but my bastard, what a joyful father wouldst thou make me! Go to; thou hast it ad dunghill, at the fingers' ends, as they say.

Hol. O! I smell false Latin; dunghill for unguem.

Arm. Arts-man, præambula: we will be singled from the barbarous. Do you not educate youth at the charge-house²² on the top of the mountain?

Hol. Or mons, the hill.

Arm. At your sweet pleasure, for the mountain.

Hol. I do, sans question.²³

Arm. Sir, it is the king's most sweet pleasure and affection, to congratulate the princess at her pavilion in the posteriors of this day, which the rude multitude call the afternoon.

Hol. The posterior of the day, most generous Sir, is liable, congruent, and measurable for the afternoon: the word is well cull'd, chose;²⁴ sweet and apt, I do assure you, Sir; I do assure.

Arm. Sir, the king is a noble gentleman, and my familiar, I do assure you, very good friend. — For what is inward²⁵ between us, let it pass; — I do beseech thee, remember thy courtesy,²⁶ — I beseech thee, apparel thy head; — and among other importunate²⁷ and most serious designs, — and of great import indeed, too, — but let that pass; — for I must tell thee, it will please his grace (by the world) sometime to lean upon my poor shoulder, and with his royal finger, thus, dally with my excrement,²⁸ with my mustachio: but, sweet heart, let that pass. By the world, I recount no fable: some certain special honours it pleaseth his greatness to impart to Armado, a soldier, a man of travel, that hath seen the world: but let that pass. — The very all of all is, — but, sweet heart, I do implore secrecy, — that the king would have me present the princess, sweet chuck, with some delightful ostentation, or show, or pageant, or antick, or fire-work. Now, understanding that the curate

Bone boon for boon prescian, a little scratcht, 't wil serue. 13) Den Gebrauch der vielen Fremd.wörter bei Holofernes, Nathaniel und Armado erklärt sich Moth aus einem kürzlich gegebenen Festmahl, wo statt der Gerichte verschiedene Sprachen servirt wurden, davon sie die Brocken stahlen; Costard aber meint, sie hätten schon lange von dem Almosenkorbe gelebt, in welchen man den Abfall der Speisen für die Armen that, nur dass dieser Abhub hier in blossen ausgesuchten Wörtern bestand. 14) Dieses lateinische Wort wird auch bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen als das längste scherzhaft erwähnt. 15) flap-dragon = irgend ein brennbarer und brennender Stoff, den man mit dem Wein zugleich verschluckte, ein Kunststück, auf das oft angespielt wird. So sagt Falstaff von Poins in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 2, Sc. 4) he drinks off candles' ends for flap-dragons; und in Winter's Tale ist (A. 3, Sc. 3) ein daraus gebildetes Verbum: to see how the sea flap-dragoned it. 16) Armado fasst letter'd = wissenschaftlich gebildet; Moth fasst es = in den Buchstaben bewandert, und verbindet es mit horn-book = A-B-C-Buch, Fibel, an das er dann das Wortspiel mit horn und ba! with a horn = Schaf, knüpft. 17) Holofernes fragt seinerseits, was Moth für ein Wort meine, da er die Umschreibung nicht erräth, und Moth erwiedert darauf, dass Holofernes selbst das Schaf sei; ein Wortspiel zwischen i, dem dritten Vocal, und I = ich, sowie zwischen u, dem fünften Vocal, und you = Ihr. — the third of the vowels emendirte Theobald das the last of the vowels der Q. und Fol. 18) venew = Fechterstoss. 19) Wortspiel mit wittol, in alter Orthographie auch wittold = Hahnrei. 20) your infamy = Eure Schmach als Hahnrei. — circum circa setzte Theobald für das sinnlose unum cita der alten Ausgg. 21) Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 1, Anm. 31. 22) charg-house in Q. und Fol. — Was Armado darunter versteht, lässt sich kaum errathen, vielleicht = ein ihm vom Staat anvertrautes Haus. 23) sans question, affectirt = ohne Frage, gewiss. 24) Mit chose erklärt Holofernes das cull'd. — Die zweite Folioausg. ändert ohne Noth choice für chose. 25) inward = intim, vertraulich. So in Kyd's Spanish Tragedy: since I grew inward with revenge. 26) remember thy courtesy = behalte Deine Höflichkeit im Sinne, zeige sie mir nicht thatsächlich, indem Du mit unbedecktem Haupte vor mir stehst, ist eine höfliche affectirte Ermahnung an Holofernes, nicht länger barhaupt vor ihm zu stehen. So in Ben Jonson's Every Man in his Humour: Pray you, remember your court'sy; nay, pray you, be cover'd. — Malone schlug vor remember not thy courtesy zu lesen. — Der ganze Satz von I do beseech bis thy head ist parenthetisch. 27) So die Fol.; die Q. important. Beide Ausdrücke sind synonym, = dringlich. 28) excrement gebraucht Sh. auch in weniger affectirter Sprache als hier = Bart, and your sweet self are good at such eruptions,²⁹ and sudden breaking out of mirth, as it were, I have acquainted you withal, to the end to crave your assistance.

Hol. Sir, you shall present before her the nine Worthies.³⁰ — Sir Nathaniel,³¹ as concerning some entertainment of time, some show in the posterior of this day, to be rendered by our assistance, — at³² the king's command, and this most gallant, illustrate, and learned gentleman, — before the princess, I say, none so fit as to present the nine Worthies.

Nath. Where will you find men worthy enough to present them?

Hol. Joshua, yourself; myself, or³³ this gallant gentleman, Judas Maccabæus; this swain (because of his great limb or joint) shall pass Pompey the Great;³⁴ the page, Hercules.

Arm. Pardon, Sir; error: he is not quantity enough for that Worthy's thumb: he is not so big as the end of his club.

Hol. Shall I have audience? he shall present Hercules in minority: his enter and exit shall be strangling a snake;³⁵ and I will have an apology for that purpose.

Moth. An excellent device! so, if any of the audience hiss, you may cry, »Well done, Hercules! now thou crushest the snake!« that is the way to make an offence gracious,³⁶ though few have the grace to do it.

Arm. For the rest of the Worthies? —

Hol. I will play three myself.

Moth. Thrice-worthy gentleman!

Arm. Shall I tell you a thing?

Hol. We attend.

Arm. We will have, if this fadge³⁷ not, an antick. I beseech you, follow.

Hol. *Via!*³⁸ — Goodman Dull, thou hast spoken no word all this while.

Dull. Nor understood none neither, Sir.

Hol. Allons! we will employ thee.

Dull. I'll make one in a dance, or so; or I will play On the tabor to the Worthies, and let them dance the hay.³⁹

Hol. Most dull, honest Dull. To our sport, away!

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

Another Part of the Same. Before the PRINCESS'S Pavilion.

Enter the PRINCESS, KATHARINE, ROSALINE, and MARIA.

Prin. Sweet hearts, we shall be rich ere we depart, If fairings come thus plentifully in:

A lady wall'd about with diamonds!¹ —

Look you, what I have from the loving king.

Ros. Madam, came nothing else along with that?

Prin. Nothing but this? yes; as much love in rhyme, As would be cramm'd up in a sheet of paper, Writ on both sides the leaf, margin and all, That he was fain to seal on Cupid's name.²

Ros. That was the way to make his godhead wax;³ For he hath been five thousand years a boy.

Kath. Ay, and a shrewd unhappy gallows too.⁴

Ros. You'll ne'er be friends with him: he kill'd your sister.

Kath. He made her melancholy, sad, and heavy;

And so she died: had she been light, like you,

Of such a merry, nimble, stirring spirit,

She might have been a grandam ere she died;

And so may you, for a light heart lives long.

Ros. What's your dark meaning, mouse, of this light word?

Kath. A light condition in a beauty dark.⁵

Ros. We need more light to find your meaning out.

Kath. You'll mar the light by taking it in snuff;

Therefore, I'll darkly end the argument.

Ros. Look, what you do, you do it still i' the dark.

Kath. So do not you, for you are a light wench.

Ros. Indeed, I weigh not you, and therefore light.

Kath. You weigh me not? — O! that's you care not for me.

Ros. Great reason; for, past cure is still past care.⁶

Prin. Well bandied both; a set⁷ of wit well play'd.

But, Rosaline, you have a favour too:

Who sent it? and what is it?

Ros. I would you knew:

An if my face were but as fair as yours,

Haar, eigentlich = Auswuchs. 29) eruptions, das mit sudden breaking out erklärt wird, sind Improvisationen. 30) the nine Worthies = die neun Recken oder Würdenträger, welche in städtischen Festaufzügen zu figuriren pflegten und aus drei christlichen, drei jüdischen und drei heidnischen Helden bestanden. 31) Q. und Fol. haben Sir Holofernes. 32) at fügte erst die zweite Folioausg. hinzu. 33) or setzte Steevens für and der Q. und Fol. — Vielleicht ist aber hinter myself der Name irgend eines Recken, den Holofernes darstellen will, ausgefallen oder myself selbst zu streichen, da Holofernes erst nachher sagt, dass er drei Recken darstellen will. 34) Dieser Bauer soll als Pompejus einherschreiten. — Steevens vermuthete, dass pass for Pompey zu lesen sei. 35) Anspielung auf die Schlangen, die Hercules schon in der Wiege erwürgte. 36) Wortspiel zwischen gracious = angenehm, beliebt, von dem Anstoss, den das Publicum an der Kleinheit des Hercules nehmen könnte, und grace = Gabe, Grazie. 37) to fadge = sich fügen, sich passen. 38) via! = wohlan! frisch daran! — Manche Hgg. verbinden diesen Ausruf, der an alle Anwesende gerichtet ist, mit dem folgenden goodman Dull. 39) hay = ein Rundtanz, aus Frankreich eingeführt. — Den dreifachen Reim play — hay — away ignoriren die meisten Hgg.

1) Unter a lady etc. versteht die Prinzessin sich selbst und den Diamantenschmuck, den ihr der König gesandt hat. 2) Der König hatte das Papier mit seinen Versen so ganz vollgeschrieben, dass er das Siegel auf keine leere Stelle, sondern auf den Namen Cupido's, der in dem Gedichte vorkam, drücken musste. 3) Wortspiel zwischen wax = Siegelwachs, und to wax = wachsen. — his godhead ist der scherzhafte Ehrentitel Amor's, nach Analogie von his majesty etc. 4) unhappy = ungerathen, böseartig. — gallows = Galgenschwengel. 5) An das Wortspiel zwischen light in seinen verschiedenen Bedeutungen, = Licht, = leicht, und = leichtfertig, das bei Sh. überall wiederkehrt, knüpft sich hier ein anderes mit dark = dunkel, und = dunkelfarbig vom Teint, sowie ein drittes mit snuff = Lichtschnuppe, und = Verstimmung. — to take in snuff = Etwas übel aufnehmen. 6) Q. und Fol. haben past care is still past cure, was Theobald, dem auch sonst vorkommenden Sprichwort gemäss, umänderte. 7) a set = ein einmaliges Ballspiel. So in K. Henry V. (A. 1, Sc. 2) play a set, || Shall strike his father's crown into the hazard. 8) numbering = Zählung, ein Wortspiel mit numbers true = richtig

My favour were as great: be witness this.
 Nay, I have verses too, I thank Biron.
 The numbers true; and, were the numbering⁸ too,
 I were the fairest goddess on the ground:
 I am compar'd to twenty thousand fairs.
 O! he hath drawn my picture in his letter.

Prin. Anything like?

Ros. Much in the letters,⁹ nothing in the praise.

Prin. Beauteous as ink: a good conclusion.

Kath. Fair¹⁰ as a text B in a copy-book.

Ros. 'Ware pencils! ho!¹¹ let me not die your debtor,
 My red dominical, my golden letter:

O, that your face were not so full of O's!¹²

Prin. A pox of that jest! and I beshrew all shrows!

But, Katharine, what was sent to you from fair Du-maine?¹³

Kath. Madam, this glove.

Prin. Did he not send you twain?

Kath. Yes, Madam; and, moreover,
 Some thousand verses of a faithful lover:

A huge translation of hypocrisy,

Vilely compil'd, profound simplicity.¹⁴

Mar. This, and these pearls to me sent Longaville:
 The letter is too long by half a mile.

Prin. I think no less. Dost thou not wish in heart,
 The chain were longer, and the letter short?

Mar. Ay, or I would these hands might never part.

Prin. We are wise girls to mock our lovers so.

Ros. They are worse fools to purchase mocking so.
 That same Biron I'll torture ere I go.

O! that I knew he were but in by the week!¹⁵

How I would make him fawn, and beg, and seek,

And wait the season, and observe the times,

And spend his prodigal wits in bootless rhymes,

And shape his service wholly to my hests,¹⁶

And make him proud to make me proud that jests!¹⁷

So portent-like¹⁸ would I o'ersway his state,

That he should be my fool, and I his fate.

Prin. None are so surely caught, when they are catch'd,

As wit turn'd fool: folly, in wisdom hatch'd,
 Hath wisdom's warrant, and the help of school,

And wit's own grace to grace a learned fool.

Ros. The blood of youth burns not with such excess,
 As gravity's revolt to wantonness.¹⁹

Mar. Folly in fools bears not so strong a note,

As foolery in the wise, when wit doth dote;

Since all the power thereof it doth apply,

To prove, by wit, worth in simplicity.

Enter BOYET.

Prin. Here comes Boyet, and mirth is²⁰ in his face.

Boyet. O! I am stabb'd with laughter. Where's her grace?

Prin. Thy news, Boyet?

Boyet. Prepare, Madam, prepare!

Arm, wenches, arm! encounters mounted are

Against your peace. Love doth approach disguis'd,

Armed in arguments: you'll be surpris'd.

Master your wits; stand in your own defence;

Or hide your heads like cowards, and fly hence.

Prin. Saint Denis to Saint Cupid!²¹ What are they,

That charge their breath against us? say, scout, say.

Boyet. Under the cool shade of a sycamore,

I thought to close mine eyes some half an hour,

When, lo! to interrupt my purpos'd rest,

Toward that shade I might behold address²²

The king and his companions: warily

I stole into a neighbour thicket by,

And overheard what you shall overhear;

That by and by disguis'd they will be here.

Their herald is a pretty knavish page,

That well by heart hath conn'd his embassy:

Action, and accent, did they teach him there;

»Thus must thou speak, and thus thy body bear:«

And ever and anon they made a doubt,

Presence majestical would put him out;²³

»For,« quoth the king, »an angel shalt thou see;

Yet fear not thou, but speak audaciously.«

The boy replied, »An angel is not evil;

I should have fear'd her, had she been a devil.«

With that all laugh'd, and clapp'd him on the shoulder,

Making the bold wag by their praises bolder.

One rubb'd his elbow, thus,²⁴ and fleer'd, and swore, gemessene Verse, findet seine Erklärung in dem folgenden twenty thousand fairs. 9) Rosalinen Bild ist ähnlich in den Buchstaben des Gedichts, d. h. sie ist so schwarz, wie die Buchstaben, aber unähnlich in dem Lobe, das sie nicht verdient. 10) fair = blond, hellfarbig, schön, steht hier ironisch, da das B in dem Vorschriftenbuch so schwarz ist, wie die übrigen Buchstaben. 11) Q. und Fol. haben Ware pensals. How? — Rosaline warnt die Katharine vor den Pinseln, mit denen man zur Vergeltung ihr Bild malen könnte, und vergleicht dann ihr blondes, helles Gesicht mit den rothen oder goldenen Buchstaben, mit welchen die Sonntage im Kalender bezeichnet sind. 12) O eigentlich = ein kreisförmiger Fleck, hier eine Anspielung auf die Pockennarben, die Katharine im Gesicht hat. Darauf bezieht sich a pox, ein gewöhnliches Verwünschungswort. — not so fehlt in der Fol. 13) Von diesen beiden Zeilen ertheilen die meisten Hgg. nach Theobald's Vorgange die erste der Katharine zu. 14) profound simplicity = eine Einfalt, die sich das Ansehen von Tiefsinn giebt. 15) Wüsste ich nur, dass ich ihn auf acht Tage in Dienst und Lohn hätte! — to be in by the week kommt in diesem figürlichen Sinne = für eine Zeit gefesselt, dienstbar sein, auch sonst vor. 16) Q. und Fol. haben unmetrisch und reimlos wholly to my device, wofür die zweite Folioausg. setzte all to my behests. — hests für behests ist Dyce's Emendation. 17) Ich würde ihn darauf stolz machen, dass er mich stolz und spröde macht, da ich nur spotte über ihn. — Die zweite Folioausg. hat with jests für that jests. 18) portent-like emendirt Hanmer das peritaunt like der Q. und pertaunt like der Fol. 19) Das jugendliche Blut lodert nicht so unmässig, wie die Ehrbarkeit, wenn sie einmal zur Ausgelassenheit abfällt. — wantonness emendirt die zweite Folioausg. das wantons be der Q. und Fol. 20) is fehlt in der Fol. 21) Saint Denis = St. Dionys, der Schutzheilige Frankreichs, ist das Schlachtgeschrei der französischen Damen gegen Saint Cupid. Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 3, Anm. 84. — Das Geschütz der angreifenden Feinde betrachtet die Prinzessin als blossen Hauch, blosser Worte (breath). 22) address toward that shade = in der Richtung auf dieses schattige Plätzchen hin, darauf zugehend. 23) Sie befürchteten immer wieder, dass die Erscheinung der Majestät, d. h. der Prinzessin, ihn aus der Fassung, aus dem Concept bringen würde. 24) to rub the elbow = sich den Ellbogen reiben, als ein Zeichen von innerlichem Behagen; so in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 5, Sc. 1) poor discontents, || Which gape,

A better speech was never spoke before;
Another, with his finger and his thumb,
Cry'd »Via! we will do 't, come what will come;«
The third he caper'd, and cried, »All goes well;«
The fourth turn'd on the toe, and down he fell.
With that, they all did tumble on the ground,
With such a zealous laughter, so profound,
That in this spleen ridiculous²⁵ appears,
To check their folly, passion's solemn tears.

Prin. But what, but what, come they to visit us?

Boyet. They do, they do; and are apparell'd thus, —
Like Muscovites, or Russians:²⁶ as I guess,
Their purpose is, to parle, to court, and dance;
And every one his love-feat²⁷ will advance
Unto his several mistress; which they 'll know
By favours several which they did bestow.

Prin. And will they so? the gallants shall be task'd;
For, ladies, we will every one be mask'd,
And not a man of them shall have the grace,
Despite of suit, to see a lady's face. —
Hold, Rosaline, this favour thou shalt wear,
And then the king will court thee for his dear:
Hold, take thou this, my sweet, and give me thine,
So shall Biron take me for Rosaline. —
And change you favours,²⁸ too; so shall your loves
Woo contrary, deceiv'd by these removes.

Ros. Come on then: wear the favours most in sight.

Kath. But in this changing what is your intent?

Prin. The effect of my intent is, to cross theirs:
They do it but in mocking merriment;²⁹
And mock for mock is only my intent.

Their several counsels they unbosom shall
To loves mistook; and so be mock'd withal,
Upon the next occasion that we meet,
With visages display'd, to talk and greet.

Ros. But shall we dance, if they desire us to 't?

Prin. No; to the death, we will not move a foot:
Nor to their penn'd speech render we no grace;
But, while 't is spoke, each turn away her face.³⁰

Boyet. Why, that contempt will kill the speaker's³¹ heart,

And quite divorce his memory from his part.

Prin. Therefore I do it; and, I make no doubt,
The rest will ne'er come in, if he be out.³²
There 's no such sport, as sport by sport o'erthrown;
To make theirs ours, and ours none but our own:
So shall we stay, mocking intended game,
And they, well mock'd, depart away with shame.

[Trumpets sound within.

Boyet. The trumpet sounds: be mask'd, the maskers come. [The Ladies mask.

*Enter the KING, BIRON, LONGAVILLE, and DUMAINE, in Russian habits, and masked; MOTH, Musicians, and Attendants.*³³

Moth. »All hail, the richest beauties on the earth!«

Boyet. Beauties no richer than rich taffata.³⁴

Moth. »A holy parcel of the fairest dames,

[The Ladies turn their backs to him.³⁵

That ever turn'd their — backs — to mortal views!«

Biron. »Their eyes,« villain, »their eyes.«

Moth. »That ever turn'd their eyes to mortal views!

Out« —

Boyet. True; »out,«³⁶ indeed.

Moth. »Out of your favours, heavenly spirits, vouchsafe
Not to behold« —

Biron. »Once to behold,« rogue.

Moth. »Once to behold with your sun-beamed eyes,
— with your sun-beamed eyes« —

Boyet. They will not answer to that epithet;³⁷
You were best call it daughter-beamed eyes.

Moth. They do not mark me, and that brings me out.

Biron. Is this your perfectness? be gone, you rogue.

Ros. What would these strangers? know their minds,

Boyet.

If they do speak our language, 't is our will
That some plain man recount their purposes.
Know what they would.

and rub the elbow, at the news || Of hurlyburly innovation. 25) ridiculous spleen = Ausbruch einer lächerlichen Stimmung, Lachkrampf, ist dem passion's solemn tears = schwermüthige Thränen eines tiefen Affects, entgegengesetzt. — appears ist das von tears abhängige Verbum, das im Singular steht, weil das Subject im Plural erst später folgt. — Beachtenswerth ist Staunton's Conjectur folly's passion, solemn tears. 26) Ritson citirt aus Hall's Chronik ein Beispiel solcher Verkleidung, die einmal am Hofe Heinrich's VIII. stattfand: At a banquet made for the foreign ambassadors in the parliament-chamber at Westminster came the lord Henry, Earl of Wiltshire, and the lord Fitzwater, in two long gowns of yellow satin traversed with white satin, and in every bend of white was a bend of crimosine satin after the fashion of Russia or Russland, with furred hats of grey on their heads, either of them having an hatchet in their hands, and boots with pikes turned up. — Staunton und Dyce verbinden as I guess mit dem Vorhergehenden. Sidney Walker vermuthet, dass hinter apparell'd thus eine Zeile ausgefallen sei. 27) love-feat = Heldenthat in der Liebe, in Uebereinstimmung mit dem schon vorher durchgeführten Bilde, das die Galanterie des Königs und der Höflinge mit einem kriegerischen Angriffe vergleicht. — love-suit, eine Conjectur Sidney Walker's, ist wahrscheinlich entlehnt aus dem bald folgenden despite of suit. 28) Katharine und Maria sollen auch mit den Liebeszeichen wechseln, die sie von ihren Verehrern erhalten haben. — Die Fol. hat your favours. — your loves = Eure Liebhaber. 29) So die Fol.; die Q. in mockery, merriment. 30) her face verbessert die zweite Folioausg. das his face der Q. und Fol. 31) speaker's in der Q.; die Fol. hat keeper's. Es ist Moth gemeint, der für die Maskerade den einstudirten Prolog zu sprechen hat, wie bei solchen improvisirten Maskenzügen auch sonst ein solcher Prolog zur Empfehlung und Erklärung erschien. So in Timon of Athens (A. 1, Sc. 2). 32) to be out = aus der Rolle fallen, zugleich im Gegensatz von out = draussen, und in = drinnen. — ne'er setzte die zweite Folioausg. für e'er (ere) der alten Ausgg. Vielleicht schrieb aber Sh. selbst e'er, da er bei negativen Begriffen wie no doubt leicht in der Construction sich verwirrt. 33) Die Bühnenweisung ist modern; die alte lautet Enter Blackmoors with music, the Boy with a speech, and the rest of the Lords disguised. 34) Anspielung auf die Masken von Taffet, das Einzige, was man von der Schönheit der Damen sehen kann. — Theobald theilte mit Recht diese Rede dem Boyet zu, welche in Q. und Fol. Biron spricht. 35) Die Bühnenweisung ist schon in den alten Ausgg. 36) out = aus dem Concept, in Boyet's Sinn. 37) Boyet versteht son für sun, ein bei Sh. stets wiederkehrendes Wortspiel. Vgl.

Boyet. What would you with the princess?
Biron. Nothing but peace, and gentle visitation.
Ros. What would they, say they?
Boyet. Nothing but peace, and gentle visitation.
Ros. Why, that they have; and bid them so be gone.
Boyet. She says, you have it, and you may be gone.
King. Say to her, we have measur'd many miles,
 To tread a measure with her on this grass.³⁸
Boyet. They say, that they have measur'd many a mile,
 To tread a measure with you on this grass.
Ros. It is not so. Ask them how many inches
 Is in one mile: if they have measur'd many,
 The measure then of one is easily told.
Boyet. If, to come hither, you have measur'd miles,
 And many miles, the princess bids you tell,
 How many inches do fill up one mile.
Biron. Tell her, we measure them by weary steps.
Boyet. She hears herself.
Ros. How many weary steps,
 Of many weary miles you have o'ergone,
 Are number'd in the travel of one mile?
Biron. We number nothing that we spend for you:
 Our duty is so rich, so infinite,
 That we may do it still without accompt.
 Vouchsafe to show the sunshine of your face,
 That we, like savages, may worship it.³⁹
Ros. My face is but a moon, and clouded too.
King. Blessed are clouds, to do as such clouds do!
 Vouchsafe, bright moon, and these thy stars, to shine
 (Those clouds removed) upon our watery eyne.⁴⁰
Ros. O vain petitioner! beg a greater matter;
 Thou now request'st⁴¹ but moonshine in the water.
King. Then, in our measure vouchsafe but one change.⁴²
 Thou bidd'st me beg; this begging is not strange.
Ros. Play, music, then! nay, you must do it soon.
 [Music plays.]
 Not yet; — no dance: — thus change I like the moon.
King. Will you not dance? How come you thus estranged?⁴³
Ros. You took the moon at full, but now she's changed.
King. Yet still she is the moon, and I the man.⁴⁴
 Yet music plays: vouchsafe some motion to it.
Ros. Our ears vouchsafe it.
King. But your legs should do it.
Ros. Since you are strangers, and come here by chance,
 We'll not be nice: take hands: — we will not dance.

King. Why take we hands then?
Ros. Only to part friends. —
 Court'sy,⁴⁵ sweet hearts; and so the measure ends.
King. More measure of this measure: be not nice.⁴⁶
Ros. We can afford no more at such a price.
King. Prize you yourselves? What buys your company?
Ros. Your absence only.
King. That can never be.
Ros. Then cannot we be bought; and so adieu.
 Twice to your visor, and half once to you!
King. If you deny to dance, let's hold more chat.
Ros. In private then.⁴⁷
King. I am best pleas'd with that.
 [They converse apart.]
Biron. White-handed mistress, one sweet word with thee.
Prin. Honey, and milk, and sugar: there are three.
Biron. Nay then, two treys,⁴⁸ (an if you grow so nice)
 Metheglin, wort, and malmsey. — Well run, dice!
 There's half a dozen sweets.
Prin. Seventh sweet, adieu.
 Since you can cog, I'll play no more with you.
Biron. One word in secret.
Prin. Let it not be sweet.
Biron. Thou griev'st my gall.
Prin. Gall? bitter.
Biron. Therefore meet.
 [They converse apart.]
Dum. Will you vouchsafe with me to change a word?
Mar. Name it.
Dum. Fair lady, —
Mar. Say you so? Fair lord, —
 Take that for your fair lady.
Dum. Please it you,
 As much in private, and I'll bid adieu.
 [They converse apart.]
Kath. What, was your visor made without a tongue?
Long. I know the reason, lady, why you ask.
Kath. O, for your reason! quickly, Sir; I long.
Long. You have a double tongue within your mask,
 And would afford my speechless visor half.⁴⁹
Kath. Veal,⁵⁰ quoth the Dutchman. — Is not veal a calf?
Long. A calf, fair lady?
Kath. No, a fair lord calf.

A. 4, Sc. 3, Anm. 86. 38) to measure = durchmessen, zurücklegen, und measure = ein feierlicher Hoftanz, Menuet, sowie = Mass. Dasselbe Wortspiel kommt nachher noch einmal vor. 39) Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 3, Anm. 55. 40) eyne, die alte Pluralform von eye, gebraucht Sh. auch sonst des Reimes wegen. — Die Augen der verliebten Herren richten sich so nach dem Antlitz der Prinzessin und ihrer Damen, wie das Wasser des Meers sich nach dem Monde, der von Sternen umgeben ist, richtet; deshalb watery eyne. — Unter stars sind die übrigen Damen, unter clouds ihre Masken verstanden. 41) Q. und Fol. requests, wie Sh. auch sonst wohl in der zweiten Person des Singular s für st setzt, um eine consonantische Härte zu vermeiden. 42) one change = eine Tanztour in der Menuet, die wir vorhatten. — Die alten Ausgg. lesen do but vouchsafe. 43) Wie werdet Ihr plötzlich so spröde, so zurückhaltend? 44) Anspielung auf den Mann im Monde. So in Midsummer-Night's Dream (A. 5, Sc. 1) This lantern doth the horned moon present; || Myself the man in the moon do seem to be. — Die folgende Zeile ertheilen die alten Ausgg. irrig der Rosaline zu. 45) court'sy = verneigt Euch, sagt Rosaline, welche die Prinzessin vorstellt, zu ihren Gefährtinnen, weil solche Verneigung zum Schluss des Tanzes erfolgte. 46) nice = übertrieben gewissenhaft, peinlich, zimperlich. 47) d. h. Rosaline will allein und vertraulich mit ihrem Cavalier reden, nicht Alle zusammen, wie bisher. 48) trey = Drei im Würfelspiel, von dem das Bild entlehnt ist. Biron will gegen die Drei, welche die Prinzessin geworfen, Drei werfen und macht seinerseits drei süsse Wörter namhaft. — wort = Gerstensaft, junges Bier. — Solch ein Würfelspiel mit Worten bezeichnet die Prinzessin dann als ein Falschspielen mit den Würfeln (cog). 49) scil. one tongue. — to have a double tongue = doppelzüngig sein, und = zwei Zungen haben. 50) Wortspiel zwischen veal = well in der Aussprache der Fremden, namentlich der Hol-

Long. Let's part the word.

Kath. No, I'll not be your half:
Take all, and wean it:⁵¹ it may prove an ox.

Long. Look, how you butt yourself in these sharp mocks.

Will you give horns, chaste lady? do not so.

Kath. Then die a calf, before your horns do grow.

Long. One word in private with you, ere I die.

Kath. Bleat softly then: the butcher hears you cry.

[They converse apart.]

Boyet. The tongues of mocking wenches are as keen
As is the razor's edge invisible,
Cutting a smaller hair than may be seen;
Above the sense of sense, so sensible
Seemeth their conference;⁵² their conceits have wings
Fleeter than arrows, bullets, wind, thought, swifter things.

Ros. Not one word more, my maids: break off, break off.

Biron. By heaven, all dry-beaten with pure scoff!

King. Farewell, mad wenches: you have simple wits.

[Exeunt KING, Lords, Moth, Music, and Attendants.]

Prin. Twenty adieus, my frozen Muscovites.⁵³ —
Are these the breed of wits so wonder'd at?

Boyet. Tapers they are, with your sweet breaths puff'd out.

Ros. Well-liking⁵⁴ wits they have; gross, gross; fat, fat.

Prin. O poverty in wit, kingly-poor flout!⁵⁵
Will they not, think you, hang themselves to-night,
Or ever, but in visors, show their faces?
This pert Biron was out of countenance quite.

Ros. O! they were all in lamentable cases!⁵⁶
The king was weeping-ripe for a good word.⁵⁷

Prin. Biron did swear himself out of all suit.

Mar. Dumaine was at my service, and his sword:
No point,⁵⁸ quoth I: my servant straight was mute.

Kath. Lord Longaville said, I came o'er his heart;
And trow you, what he call'd me?

Prin. Qualm, perhaps.

Kath. Yes, in good faith.

Prin. Go, sickness as thou art!

Ros. Well, better wits have worn plain statute-caps.⁵⁹
But will you hear? the king is my love sworn.

Prin. And quick Biron hath plighted faith to me.

Kath. And Longaville was for my service born.

Mar. Dumaine is mine, as sure as bark on tree.

Boyet. Madam, and pretty mistresses, give ear.

Immediately they will again be here

In their own shapes; for it can never be,

They will digest this harsh indignity.

Prin. Will they return?

Boyet. They will, they will, God knows;

And leap for joy, though they are lame with blows:

Therefore, change favours; and, when they repair,

Blow like sweet roses in this summer air.

Prin. How blow? how blow? speak to be understood.

Boyet. Fair ladies, mask'd, are roses in their bud:

Dismask'd, their damask sweet commixture shown,

Are angels vailing clouds, or roses blown.⁶⁰

Prin. Avaunt, perplexity!⁶¹ What shall we do,

If they return in their own shapes to woo?

Ros. Good Madam, if by me you'll be advis'd,

Let's mock them still, as well known, as disguis'd.

Let us complain to them what fools were here,

Disguis'd like Muscovites, in shapeless gear;⁶²

And wonder, what they were, and to what end

Their shallow shows, and prologue vilely penn'd,

And their rough carriage so ridiculous,

Should be presented at our tent to us.

Boyet. Ladies, withdraw; the gallants are at hand.

Prin. Whip to our tents, as roes run over land.

[Exeunt PRIN., ROS., KATH. and MAR.]

*Enter the KING, BIRON, LONGAVILLE, and DUMAINE,
in their proper habits.*

King. Fair Sir, God save you! Where is the princess?

Boyet. Gone to her tent. Please it your majesty,

Command me any service to her thither?⁶³

King. That she vouchsafe me audience for one word.

Boyet. I will; and so will she, I know, my lord. [Exit.]

Biron. This fellow pecks up wit, as pigeons peas,

And utters it again when God doth please.⁶⁴

He is wit's pedlar, and retails his wares

At wakes, and wassails,⁶⁵ meetings, markets, fairs;

And we that sell by gross, the Lord doth know,

Have not the grace to grace it⁶⁶ with such show.

This gallant pins the wenches on his sleeve:

Had he been Adam, he had tempted Eve.

He can carve⁶⁷ too, and lisp; why, this is he,

That kiss'd away his hand⁶⁸ in courtesy;

This is the ape of form, monsieur the nice, länder, und veal = Kalb. 51) Entwöhnt das Kalb von der Kuh und zieht es gross zum Ochsen. Daran schliesst sich dann das Wortspiel mit den Hörnern des Ochsen und des Hahnrei. 52) sensible = scharfsinnig, und = empfindlich. Die Unterhaltung der Damen ist so scharf, dass jeder Sinn dahinter zurückbleibt. 53) Q. und Fol. setzen hier Muscovits, als Reim auf wits. 54) well-liking = von gutem, gedeihlichem Aussehen, wohlgenährt. 55) Ein Witz, der ärmlich genug war, wenn er auch von einem König ausging. — kingly-poor hält Staunton durch eine Buchstabenversetzung entstanden aus poor-lyking oder poor-liking = von ärmlichem Ansehen. Rosaline hatte eben vorher von well-liking wits gesprochen. 56) O! fügte die zweite Folioausg. hinzu. 57) Der König war dem Weinen nahe, weil ihm kein gutes Wort, kein Bonmot einfiel. — In diesem Sinn kommt for = for want of öfter bei Sh. vor. 58) Dasselbe Wortspiel wie vorher. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 47. 59) statute-caps = wollene Mützen, welche nach einem Edict (statute) der Königin Elisabeth die Londoner Bürger an Sonn- und Festtagen tragen sollten. Der Sinn ist also: Selbst simple Bürgersleute haben mehr Witz als unsere adligen Bewerber. 60) Die Damen ohne Maske, wenn ihre holde rosige Farbenmischung auf ihren Wangen sich zeigt, sind Engel, welche das Gewölke, das sie verhüllt hatte, niedersenken, oder sie sind entfaltete Rosen. 61) Als personifizierte perplexity redet die Prinzessin den Boyet an, weil er mit seinen Reden sie in Verlegenheit bringt oder sie nicht daraus zu befreien weiss. 62) shapeless gear = ungefügtes Costüm, ist die moskowitzische Tracht, in der sie erschienen. 63) thither fehlt in der Fol. 64) Steevens citirt dazu als sprichwörtlich: Children pick up words, as pigeons peas, || And utter them again as God shall please. — Für pecks der Q., die ältere Form, hat die Fol. picks, und für God der Q. die Fol. Jove. 65) wassail = festliches Gelage, Zechgelage. 66) So vorher in dieser Scene And wit's own grace to grace a learned fool. 67) Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 1, Anm. 9. 68) So die Fol.; die Q. stellt

That, when he plays at tables, chides the dice
In honourable terms: nay, he can sing
A mean most meanly,⁶⁹ and, in ushering,
Mend him who can:⁷⁰ the ladies call him, sweet;
The stairs, as he treads on them, kiss his feet.
This is the flower that smiles on every one,
To show his teeth as white as whales-bone;⁷¹
And consciences, that will not die in debt,
Pay him the due⁷² of honey-tongued Boyet.

King. A blister on his sweet tongue, with my heart,
That put Armado's page out of his part!

Enter the PRINCESS, ushered by BOYET; ROSALINE, MARIA, KATHARINE, and Attendants.

Biron. See where it comes! — Behaviour, what wert
thou,

Till this man⁷³ show'd thee? and what art thou now?

King. All hail, sweet Madam, and fair time of day!

Prin. Fair, in all hail,⁷⁴ is foul, as I conceive.

King. Construe my speeches better, if you may.

Prin. Then wish me better: I will give you leave.

King. We came to visit you, and purpose now
To lead you to our court: vouchsafe it then.

Prin. This field shall hold me, and so hold your vow:
Nor God, nor I, delights⁷⁵ in perjur'd men.

King. Rebuke me not for that which you provoke;
The virtue of your eye must break my oath.

Prin. You nickname virtue; vice you should have spoke;

For virtue's⁷⁶ office never breaks men's troth.

Now, by my maiden honour, yet as pure

As the unsullied lily, I protest,

A world of torments though I should endure,

I would not yield to be your house's guest;

So much I hate a breaking cause to be

Of heavenly oaths,⁷⁷ vow'd with integrity.

King. O! you have liv'd in desolation here,

Unseen, unvisited, much to our shame.

Prin. Not so, my lord; it is not so, I swear:

We have had pastimes here, and pleasant game.

A mess⁷⁸ of Russians left us but of late.

King. How, Madam? Russians?

Prin. Ay, in truth, my lord;

Trim gallants, full of courtship, and of state.

Ros. Madam, speak true. — It is not so, my lord:

My lady (to the manner of the days)⁷⁹

In courtesy gives undeserving praise.

We four, indeed, confronted were with four

In Russian habit: here they stay'd an hour,

And talk'd apace; and in that hour, my lord,

They did not bless us with one happy word.⁸⁰

I dare not call them fools; but this I think,

When they are thirsty, fools would fain have drink.

Biron. This jest is dry to me. — Fair,⁸¹ gentle sweet,

Your wit makes wise things foolish: when we greet,

With eyes best seeing, heaven's fiery eye,

By light we lose light: your capacity

Is of that nature, that to your huge store⁸²

Wise things seem foolish, and rich things but poor.

Ros. This proves you wise and rich, for in my eye, —

Biron. I am a fool, and full of poverty.

Ros. But that you take what doth to you belong,⁸³

It were a fault to snatch words from my tongue.

Biron. O! I am yours, and all that I possess.

Ros. All the fool mine?

Biron. I cannot give you less.

Ros. Which of the visors was it that you wore?

Biron. Where? when? what visor? why demand you this?

Ros. There, then, that visor; that superfluous case,

That hid the worse, and show'd the better face.

King. We are descried: they'll mock us now downright.

Dum. Let us confess, and turn it to a jest.

Prin. Amaz'd, my lord? Why looks your highness sad?

Ros. Help! hold his brows! he'll swoond.⁸⁴ Why loo!
you pale? —

Sea-sick, I think, coming from Muscovy.⁸⁵

Biron. Thus pour the stars down plagues for perjury.

Can any face of brass hold longer out? —

Here stand I, lady; dart thy skill at me;

Bruise me with scorn, confound me with a flout;

Thrust thy sharp wit quite through my ignorance;

Cut me to pieces with thy keen conceit;

And I will wish thee never more to dance,

Nor never more in Russian habit wait.⁸⁶

O! never will I trust to speeches penn'd,

Nor to the motion of a school-boy's tongue;

Nor never come in visor to my friend;⁸⁷

Nor woo in rhyme, like a blind harper's song;

Taffata phrases, silken terms precise,

Three-pil'd hyperboles, spruce affectation,⁸⁸

away und his hand um. 69) Wortspiel zwischen mean = Tenorstimme, und meanly. 70) In der Art, wie er den Ceremonienmeister spielt, kann es Niemand besser machen. 71) whales-bone entweder = Elfenbein, das man fälschlich für ein Product des Wallfisches hielt, oder = Knochen, d. h. Zahn, vom Wallross, dient auch bei Sb.'s Zeitgenossen als Vergleichung der Weisse, und zwar wird es wie hier dreisylbig gelesen. So bei Surrey: I might perceive a wolf, as white as whales bone; und in Spenser's Faerie Queene: Whose face did seem as clear as chrystal stone, || And eke, through fear, as white as whales bone. — Tarberville schreibt dafür whale his bone. 72) So die Q.; die Fol. duty. 73) Die alten Ausgg. haben this madman. 74) Wortspiel zwischen hail = Heil, als Gruss, und = Hagelwetter. 75) So die alten Ausgg. nach Sh.'scher Construction. — Die Hgg. emendiren delight dafür. 76) Der König fasst virtue = Kraft, die Prinzessin fasst es = Tugend. 77) scil. to be a cause for the breaking of heavenly oaths: Eide, die man dem Himmel gelobt hat. 78) Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 3, Anm. 50. 79) Nach der Art der jetzigen Zeit, wie es die heutige Weltsitte mit sich bringt. 80) happy word = ein glücklich gewähltes, treffendes Wort. 81) fair fügte die zweite Folioausg. ein. — Malone las dafür my gentle sweet. 82) Im Verhältniss zu der grossen Fülle Eurer geistigen Fähigkeiten und Gaben. 83) Biron hat, indem er Rosalins Satz unterbrach und in ihrem Sinne fortsetzte, nur das sich angeeignet, was ihm gebührt, nämlich das Bekenntniss I am a fool etc. 84) In der Schreibart der alten Ausgg. swoond und sound. 85) Rosaline erklärt Biron's Blässe von der Seekrankheit, die er auf der Reise von Moskau her zu Schiff ausgestanden. 86) scil. wait upon thee = Dir aufwarten. 87) friend = Freundin, Geliebte. 88) three-pil'd = von Sammet, passt zu den Epithetis taffata, und silken, welche alle das Kostbare, Modische der Phrasen und Ausdrücke bezeichnen, mit denen bisher Biron bei den Damen sein Glück machen wollte. Diesen gesuchten Phrasen stellt er dann gegen-

Figures pedantical: these summer-flies
Have blown me full of maggot ostentation.
I do forswear them; and I here protest,
By this white glove, (how white the hand, God knows)
Henceforth my wooing mind shall be express'd
In russet yeas, and honest kersey noes:
And, to begin, — wench, so God help me, la!
My love to thee is sound, sans crack or flaw.

Ros. Sans sans, ⁸⁹ I pray you.

Biron. Yet I have a trick
Of the old rage: — bear with me, I am sick;
I'll leave it by degrees. Soft! let us see: —
Write »Lord have mercy on us« ⁹⁰ on those three;
They are infected, in their hearts it lies;
They have the plague, and caught it of your eyes:
These lords are visited; you are not free,
For the Lord's tokens on you do I see.

Prin. No, they are free that gave these tokens to us. ⁹¹

Biron. Our states are forfeit: seek not to undo us.

Ros. It is not so. For how can this be true,
That you stand forfeit, being those that sue? ⁹²

Biron. Peace! for I will not have to do with you.

Ros. Nor shall not, if I do as I intend.

Biron. Speak for yourselves: my wit is at an end.

King. Teach us, sweet Madam, for our rude transgression
Some fair excuse.

Prin. The fairest is confession.

Were you not here, but even now, disguis'd?

King. Madam, I was.

Prin. And were you well advis'd? ⁹³

King. I was, fair Madam.

Prin. When you then were here,
What did you whisper in your lady's ear?

King. That more than all the world I did respect her.

Prin. When she shall challenge this, you will reject her.

King. Upon mine honour, no.

Prin. Peace! peace! forbear:
Your oath once broke, you force ⁹⁴ not to forswear.

King. Despise me, when I break this oath of mine.

Prin. I will; and therefore keep it. ⁹⁵ — Rosaline,
What did the Russian whisper in your ear?

Ros. Madam, he swore, that he did hold me dear
As precious eyesight, and did value me
Above this world; adding thereto, moreover,
That he would wed me, or else die my lover.

Prin. God give thee joy of him! the noble lord
Most honourably doth uphold his word.

King. What mean you, Madam? by my life, my troth,
I never swore this lady such an oath.

Ros. By heaven, you did; and to confirm it plain,
You gave me this: but take it, Sir, again.

King. My faith, and this, the princess I did give:
I knew her by this jewel on her sleeve.

Prin. Pardon me, Sir, this jewel did she wear;
And Lord Biron, I thank him, is my dear. —

What! will you have me, or your pearl again?

Biron. Neither of either; I remit both twain. —

I see the trick on 't: — here was a consent, ⁹⁶
Knowing aforehand of our merriment,
To dash it like a Christmas comedy.

Some carry-tale, some please-man, some slight zany, ⁹⁷

Some mumble-news, some trencher-knight, some Dick,

That smiles his cheek in years, ⁹⁸ and knows the trick

To make my lady laugh when she 's dispos'd,

Told our intents before; which once disclos'd,

The ladies did change favours, and then we,

Following the signs, woo'd but the sign of she. ⁹⁹

Now, to our perjury to add more terror,

We are again forsworn, — in will, and error. ¹⁰⁰

Much upon this it is; — [to Boyet] and might not
you

Forestall our sport, to make us thus untrue?

Do not you know my lady's foot by the squire, ¹⁰¹

And laugh upon the apple of her eye?

And stand between her back, Sir, and the fire,

Holding a trencher, jesting merrily?

You put our page out: go, you are allow'd; ¹⁰²

Die when you will, a smock shall be your shroud.

You leer upon me, do you? there 's an eye,

Wounds like a leaden sword.

über, als seine künftige Rede, ein grobes Ja und ein derbes Nein. — russet und kersey sind ordinäre Stoffe, in welche sich die Bauern kleiden. — Für affectation, das der Reim fordert, haben die alten Ausgg. affection, das Sh. in demselben Sinne gebraucht. Vgl. A. 5, Sc. 1, Anm. 3. — In Merry Wives of Windsor (A. 1, Sc. 1) it is affectations. ⁸⁹) Rosaline verbittet sich das affectirte Wort sans, das Biron als Reminiscenz noch gebraucht, obwohl er so eben alles Manierirte verschworen hatte. Sonst steht sans bei Sh. für without auch häufig ohne den Nebensinn des Affectirten oder Lächerlichen. ⁹⁰) Diese Worte wurden an die Thüren der Häuser, in denen die Pest herrschte, zu Sh.'s Zeit in London geschrieben. Mit those three deutet Biron auf seine drei Gefährten. ⁹¹) Wortspiele zwischen free = frei von Ansteckung, und = freigebig, sowie zwischen the Lord's tokens = die Pestflecken, mit denen der Herr die Kranken zeichnet, und the lords' tokens = die Andenken, Liebesgeschenke der Cavaliere, welche die Damen an sich trage. ⁹²) to sue = werben, freien, und = vor Gericht klagen, im Gegensatz zu forfeit = von dem Gericht verurtheilt. ⁹³) Wusstet Ihr, was Ihr thatet? Waret Ihr Eurer Sinne mächtig? ⁹⁴) I force not, eigentlich = ich lege kein Gewicht darauf, wird auch in weiterm Sinne geradezu = I care not gebraucht. ⁹⁵) scil. keep your oath = brecht Euren Eid nicht. ⁹⁶) consent = Verabredung, Uebereinkunft. — Die Damen hatten sich verabredet, da sie im Voraus von unserem Spasse wussten, ihn durchfallen zu lassen, wie ein neues Lustspiel, das zuerst zu Weihnachten aufgeführt wurde, bisweilen Fiasco macht. ⁹⁷) zany = Hanswurst, eine um so verächtlichere Bezeichnung, da der zany nur eine subalterne Rolle neben dem eigentlichen Lustigmacher spielt. — mumble-news = der den Damen Neuigkeiten in's Ohr flüstert. — trencher-knight = ein Ritter, der statt des Degens den Präsentirteller trägt. So bald nachher holding a trencher. — Dick, vertraulich für Richard, dann, wie Jack, für irgend einen unbedeutenden Menschen. So in Coriolanus (A. 2, Sc. 3) To beg of Hob and Dick, that do appear, || Their needless vouches. ⁹⁸) Der durch sein Lächeln seine Wange so runzlicht macht, als ob sie viele Jahre aufwiese, sehr alt wäre. — in für into ist Sh.'sch. — Für years lesen viele Hgg. mit Theobald jeers. ⁹⁹) Das Abzeichen, äussere Kennzeichen jeder einzelnen Dame. ¹⁰⁰) Wir waren zuerst meineidig mit unserm Willen, nachher in unserm Irrthum. ¹⁰¹) squire = Winkelmass. Wisst Ihr nicht ganz genau, wie lang und breit der Fuss Eurer Dame ist? ¹⁰²) Euch nimmt man, als einem privilegierten Spassmacher, nichts übel.

Boyet. Full merrily
Hath this brave manage,¹⁰³ this career, been run.
Biron. Lo, he is tilting straight! Peace! I have done.

Enter COSTARD.

Welcome, pure wit! thou partest a fair fray.

Cost. O Lord, Sir, they would know,
Whether the three Worthies shall come in, or no.

Biron. What, are there but three?

Cost. No, Sir; but it is vara fine,
For every one pursents three.¹⁰⁴

Biron. And three times thrice is nine.

Cost. Not so, Sir; under correction, Sir, I hope, it is not so.

You cannot beg us,¹⁰⁵ Sir, I can assure you, Sir; we know what we know:

I hope, Sir, three times thrice, Sir, —

Biron. Is not nine.

Cost. Under correction, Sir, we know whereuntil it doth amount.

Biron. By Jove, I always took three threes for nine.

Cost. O Lord! Sir, it were pity you should get your living by reckoning, Sir.

Biron. How much is it?

Cost. O Lord! Sir, the parties themselves, the actors,
Sir, will show whereuntil it doth amount: for mine own part, I am, as they say, but to perfect one man in one poor man,¹⁰⁶ — Pompion the Great, Sir.

Biron. Art thou one of the Worthies?

Cost. It pleased them to think me worthy of Pompion¹⁰⁷ the Great: for mine own part, I know not the degree of the Worthy, but I am to stand for him.

Biron. Go, bid them prepare.

Cost. We will turn it finely off, Sir: we will take some care. [Exit.]

King. Biron, they will shame us; let them not approach.

Biron. We are shame-proof, my lord; and 't is some policy

To have one show worse than the king's and his company.

King. I say, they shall not come.

Prin. Nay, my good lord, let me o'er-rule you now.
That sport best pleases, that doth least¹⁰⁸ know how:
Where zeal strives to content, and the contents¹⁰⁹

Die in the zeal of them which it presents,
Their form confounded makes most form in mirth;
When great things labouring¹¹⁰ perish in their birth.

Biron. A right description of our sport, my lord.

Enter ARMADO.

Arm. Anointed, I implore so much expence of thy royal sweet breath, as will utter a brace of words.

[ARMADO converses with the KING, and delivers a paper to him.]

Prin. Doth this man serve God?

Biron. Why ask you?

Prin. He speaks not like a man of God's making.¹¹¹

Arm. That's all one, my fair, sweet, honey monarch; for, I protest, the schoolmaster is exceeding fantastical;
too, too vain; too, too vain: but we will put it, as they say, to fortuna della guerra.¹¹² I wish you the peace of mind, most royal complement!¹¹³ [Exit.]

King. Here is like to be a good presence of Worthies.
He presents Hector of Troy; the swain, Pompey the Great;
the parish curate, Alexander; Armado's page, Hercules;
the pedant, Judas Maccabæus.

And if these four Worthies in their first show thrive,
These four will change habits, and present the other five.

Biron. There is five in the first show.

King. You are deceived, 't is not so.

Biron. The pedant, the braggart, the hedge-priest, the fool, and the boy: —

Abate throw at novum,¹¹⁴ and the whole world again
Cannot pick out five such, take each one in his vein.

King. The ship is under sail, and here she comes amain.

Enter COSTARD armed, for Pompey.

Cost. »I Pompey am,« —

Boyet. You lie, you are not he.

Cost. »I Pompey am,« —

Boyet. With libbard's head on knee.¹¹⁵

103) So verbesserte Theobald das nuage der Q. und das manager der Fol. — manage ist die einzelne Reittour beim Turnier. — Darauf bezieht sich die Antwort Biron's. 104) vara und pursents bäuerisch für very und presents. 105) Eine Anspielung auf die Sitte, dass man sich die Vormundschaft über einen Narren und die Verwaltung von dessen Vermögen als ein einträgliches Amt erbat; also sprichwörtlich = wir sind keine Narren, wir sind nicht blödsinnig. — So in Comedy of Errors (A. 2, Sc. 1) this fool-begg'd patience. 106) Was mich betrifft, so soll ich nur einen Mann in einer armen Person, d. h. in meiner Person, darstellen, während die Uebrigen mehrere Rollen übernehmen. — perfect für perform. — Malone änderte ohne Noth perfect one man, — e'en one poor man. Costard würde aber schwerlich Pompejus den Grossen so bezeichnet haben. 107) Die alten Ausgg. haben hier Pompey, eben vorher Pompion. 108) So die Fol.; die Q. best. 109) to content = zufriedenstellen, und contents = der Inhalt oder Stoff des Dargestellten, stehen im Gegensatz: Wo der Eifer der Darsteller sich bemüht zu gefallen, und das dargestellte Stück misslingt gerade in dem Eifer Derer, die es darstellen, da gewinnt die Formlosigkeit (form confounded) dieser Schauspieler gerade die beste Form, das beste Ansehen in dem Spass, den es hervorbringt. — Die alten Ausgg. haben dies für die, und of that für of them. Ersteres wäre eher beizubehalten als letzteres, da presents für das grammatisch richtigere present (which present it) ganz Sh.'sch ist. — Staunton vermuthet Where zeal strives to content, and discontent || Lies in the zeal of them which it present. Er citirt dazu aus Taming of the Shrew (A. 1, Sc. 1) Sister, content you in my discontent. 110) labouring = im Kreissen begriffen. 111) So die Fol.; die Q. God his making, eine Umschreibung des Genitivs, die Sh. sonst nur aus, hier nicht vorliegenden, euphonischen Gründen anwendet. 112) In den alten Ausgg. fortuna delaguar. 113) royal couplement = königliches Paar. — So in Spenser's Faerie Queene: to their steeds they went || And forth together rode, a goodly couplement. 114) Anspielung auf ein Würfelspiel, novum oder eigentlich novem genannt, das mit zwei Würfeln gespielt wurde, und als höchste Würfe neun und fünf hatte: Abgerechnet einen solchen Glückswurf, kann die ganze Welt nicht solche Fünf, Jeden in seiner besondern Eigenthümlichkeit genommen, auslesen. — Malone fügte a vor throw ein. 115) Das Kniestück der Rüstung des Pompejus bestand aus einem gegossenen oder geschmiedeten Leopardenkopf. — libbard für leopard, gewöhnliche ältere Form.

Biron. Well said, old mocker: I must needs be friends with thee.

Cost. »I Pompey am, Pompey surnam'd the Big,« —

Dum. The Great.

Cost. It is »Great«, Sir; — »Pompey surnam'd the Great; That oft in field, with targe and shield, did make my foe to sweat:

And travelling along this coast, I here am come by chance, And lay my arms before the legs of this sweet lass of France.«

If your ladyship would say, »Thanks, Pompey,« I had done.

Prin. Great thanks, great Pompey.

Cost. 'T is not so much worth; but I hope, I was perfect. I made a little fault in »Great«.

Biron. My hat to a halfpenny, Pompey proves the best Worthy.

Enter Sir NATHANIEL armed, for Alexander.

Nath. »When in the world I liv'd, I was the world's commander; By east, west, north, and south, I spread my conquering might:

My scutcheon plain declares, that I am Alisander.«

Boyet. Your nose says, no, you are not; for it stands too right.¹¹⁶

Biron. Your nose smells, no, in this, most tender-smelling knight.

Prin. The conqueror is dismay'd. Proceed, good Alexander.

Nath. »When in the world I liv'd, I was the world's commander;« —

Boyet. Most true; 't is right: you were so, Alisander.

Biron. Pompey the Great, —

Cost. Your servant, and Costard.

Biron. Take away the conqueror, take away Alisander.

Cost. [To NATH.] O! Sir, you have overthrown Alisander the conqueror. You will be scraped out of the painted cloth for this: your lion, that holds his poll-axe sitting on a close-stool, will be given to Ajax:¹¹⁷ he will be the ninth Worthy. A conqueror, and afraid to speak? run away for shame, Alisander. [NATH. retires.] There, an 't shall please you: a foolish mild man; an honest man, look you, and soon dash'd!¹¹⁸ He is a marvellous neighbour, faith, and a very good bowler; but, for Alisander, alas! you see, how 't is; — a little o'erparted.¹¹⁹

— But there are Worthies a coming will speak their mind in some other sort.

Prin. Stand aside, good Pompey.

Enter HOLOFERNES armed, for Judas, and Moth armed, for Hercules.

Hol. »Great Hercules is presented by this imp, Whose club kill'd Cerberus, that three-headed canus; And, when he was a babe, a child, a shrimp, Thus did he strangle serpents in his manus.

Quoniam he seemeth in minority,¹²⁰

Ergo I come with this apology.«

Keep some state in thy exit, and vanish.¹²¹ —

»Judas I am,« —

Dum. A Judas!

Hol. Not Iscariot, Sir. —

»Judas I am, ycleped¹²² Maccabæus.«

Dum. Judas Maccabæus clipt, is plain Judas.

Biron. A kissing traitor. — How art thou prov'd Judas?

Hol. »Judas I am,« —

Dum. The more shame for you, Judas.

Hol. What mean you, Sir?

Boyet. To make Judas hang himself.

Hol. Begin, Sir: you are my elder.

Biron. Well follow'd: Judas was hang'd on an elder.¹²³

Hol. I will not be put out of countenance.

Biron. Because thou hast no face.¹²⁴

Hol. What is this?

Boyet. A cittern-head.¹²⁵

Dum. The head of a bodkin.

Biron. A death's face in a ring.¹²⁶

Long. The face of an old Roman coin, scarce seen.

Boyet. The pummel of Caesar's falchion.

Dum. The carv'd-bone face on a flask.¹²⁷

Biron. Saint George's half-cheek in a brooch.¹²⁸

Dum. Ay, and in a brooch of lead.

Biron. Ay, and worn in the cap of a tooth-drawer.

And now, forward; for we have put thee in countenance.

Hol. You have put me out of countenance.

Biron. False: we have given thee faces.

Hol. But you have outfaced them all.

Biron. An thou wert a lion, we would do so.

Boyet. Therefore, as he is an ass, let him go.

And so adieu, sweet Jude! nay, why dost thou stay?

Dum. For the latter end of his name.

116) Steevens erinnert daran, dass der Kopf Alexander's des Grossen etwas schief auf den Schultern gesessen habe. 117) Auf den gemalten Tapeten der Zeit figurirte unter den neun Recken auch Alexander der Grosse mit seinem Wappenschild, den das alte Buch der Nine Worthies so beschreibt: Alexander the which did bear gules, a lion or scyant in a chair, holding a battle-axe argent. — Das scyant in a chair giebt Costard gröber sitting on a close-stool. — Das durch close-stool veranlasste Wortspiel zwischen Ajax und a jakes = Abtritt, gehört nicht Sh. allein an, sondern kommt bei seinen Zeitgenossen öfter vor. 118) soon dashed = leicht aus dem Concept gebracht, leicht blamirt als Schauspieler. Vgl. oben Anm. 96. 119) Man hat ihm mit dem Alexander eine etwas zu grosse Rolle gegeben. 120) Da Hercules noch als ein Unmündiger erscheint, so komme ich mit dieser Empfehlung für ihn. 121) Die meisten Hgg. setzen hier Exit Moth, obgleich Moth nach wie vor auf der Bühne bleibt. Das Exit Boy der alten Ausgg. an dieser Stelle bezeichnet hier dessen Weggang von der kleinern Bühne im Hintergrunde des Sh.'schen Theaters, auf welcher die neun Recken ihre Vorstellung gaben. 122) Wortspiel zwischen to clepe, wovon ycleped das veraltete Particip ist, = nennen, und to clip = beschneiden, verstümmeln. 123) Wortspiel zwischen my elder = älter als ich, und elder = Hollunderbaum. 124) Biron fasst countenance, das Holofernes = Fassung, versteht, als synonym mit face. — Bei der folgenden Frage What is this? deutet Holofernes auf seinen Kopf, um zu beweisen, dass er allerdings ein Gesicht habe. 125) cittern-head = ein Menschenkopf von Holz, als Zierrath oben an einer Zither angebracht. 126) Ein Tottenkopf, in den Stein eines Siegelrings eingeschnitten. 127) flask = Pulverhorn, das der Soldat an der Seite trug und dessen Pfropf aus einem geschnitzten Kopf bestand. 128) Ein Bild im Profil des heil. Georg, das man in einer Agraffe trug. — Den folgenden Wortwitz, aus Jude und ass zu Judas zusammengefügt, weist Staunton schon in Heywood's Poems (1566) nach; das

Biron. For the ass to the Jude? give it him: — Jud-as, away.

Hol. This is not generous, not gentle, not humble.

Boyet. A light for Monsieur Judas! it grows dark, he may stumble.

Prin. Alas, poor Maccabæus, how hath he been baited!

Enter ARMADO armed, for Hector.

Biron. Hide thy head, Achilles: here comes Hector in arms.

Dum. Though my mocks come home by me, I will now be merry.

King. Hector was but a Trojan¹²⁹ in respect of this.

Boyet. But is this Hector?

King. I think Hector was not so clean-timber'd.¹³⁰

Long. His leg is too big for Hector's.

Dum. More calf, certain.¹³¹

Boyet. No; he is best indued in the small.

Biron. This cannot be Hector.

Dum. He's a god or a painter; for he makes faces.

Arm. »The armipotent Mars, of lances¹³² the almighty, Gave Hector a gift,« —

Dum. A gilt nutmeg.

Biron. A lemon.

Long. Stuck with cloves.¹³³

Dum. No, cloven.

Arm. Peace!¹³⁴

»The armipotent Mars, of lances the almighty,
Gave Hector a gift, the heir of Ilion;
A man so breath'd, that certain he would fight ye,¹³⁵
From morn till night, out of his pavilion.
I am that flower,« —

Dum. That mint.

Long. That columbine.

Arm. Sweet Lord Longaville, rein thy tongue.

Long. I must rather give it the rein, for it runs against Hector.

Dum. Ay, and Hector's a greyhound.

Arm. The sweet war-man is dead and rotten: sweet chucks, beat not the bones of the buried: when he breathed, he was a man.¹³⁶ — But I will forward with my device. Sweet royalty, bestow on me the sense of hearing.

[BIRON whispers COSTARD.¹³⁷

Prin. Speak, brave Hector: we are much delighted.

Arm. I do adore thy sweet grace's slipper.

Boyet. Loves her by the foot.¹³⁸

Dum. He may not by the yard.

Arm. »This Hector far surmounted Hannibal,« —

Cost. The party is gone:¹³⁹ fellow Hector, she is gone; she is two months on her way.

Arm. What meanest thou?

Cost. Faith, unless you play the honest Trojan,¹⁴⁰ the poor wench is cast away: she's quick; the child brags¹⁴¹ in her belly already: 't is yours.

Arm. Dost thou infamonize¹⁴² me among potentates? Thou shalt die.

Cost. Then shall Hector be whipp'd for Jaquenetta that is quick¹⁴³ by him, and hang'd for Pompey that is dead by him.

Dum. Most rare Pompey!

Boyet. Renowned Pompey!

Biron. Greater than great, great, great, great Pompey! Pompey the Huge!

Dum. Hector trembles.

Biron. Pompey is moved. — More Atés, more Atés!¹⁴⁴ stir them on! stir them on!

Dum. Hector will challenge him.

Biron. Ay, if he have no more man's blood in 's belly than will sup a flea.

Arm. By the north pole, I do challenge thee.

Cost. I will not fight with a pole, like a northern man:¹⁴⁵ I'll slash; I'll do it by the sword. — I pray you, let me borrow my arms again.¹⁴⁶

Dum. Room for the incensed Worthies!

Cost. I'll do it in my shirt.

Dum. Most resolute Pompey!

Moth. Master, let me take you a button-hole lower. Do you not see, Pompey is uncasing for the combat? What mean you? you will lose your reputation.

Arm. Gentlemen, and soldiers, pardon me; I will not combat in my shirt.

Dum. You may not deny it: Pompey hath made the challenge.

Arm. Sweet bloods, I both may and will.

Biron. What reason have you for 't?

Arm. The naked truth of it is, I have no shirt. I go woolward for penance.¹⁴⁷

Boyet. True, and it was enjoin'd¹⁴⁸ him in Rome for want of linen; since when, I'll be sworn, he wore none but a dishclout of Jaquenetta's, and that he wears next his heart for a favour.

Gedicht hat die Ueberschrift On an ill Governour called Jude. 129) Trojan = Trojaner, und = Landstreicher, Gauner. So in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 2, Sc. 1) Tut! there are other Trojans that thou dreamest not of. 130) clean-timbered = ebenmässig gebaut, wohlgefügt. 131) Wortspiel zwischen calf = Kalb, und = Wade. Als Gegensatz zu letzterer spricht Boyet dann von the small = dem dünnen Theil des Beines unter der Wade. 132) lances = Lanzenträger. 133) Eine vergoldete Muskatnuss und eine Orange, mit Gewürznelken durchsteckt, waren gewöhnliche Neujahrsgeschenke zu Sh.'s Zeit. — Die Q. hat A gift nutmeg für gilt der Fol. — cloves und cloven = gespalten, bilden ein Wortspiel. 134) Peace! findet sich nur in der Q. 135) fight ye ist Theobald's Emendation für fight, yea der Q. und Fol. — ye ist der ethische Dativ, familiär für you. 136) when he breathed, he was a man fehlt in der Fol. 137) Diese Bühnenweisung ist modern und dient zur Verdeutlichung des folgenden Auftretens Costard's. Die alten Ausgg. haben Berowne steppes forth. 138) foot doppelsinnig = Fuss, und = Mass von einem Fuss, im Gegensatz zu yard = Elle. 139) Q. und Fol. geben diese Worte bis gone noch als ein Stück von Armado's Rede. 140) Vgl. oben Anm. 129. 141) Anspielung auf den als Braggart bezeichneten Armado, dessen charakteristische Eigenschaften sein Kind also schon im Mutterleibe verräth. 142) to infamonize für to make infamous, ein von Armado selbst gebildetes Wort. 143) quick = schwanger, und = lebendig. 144) Até = Göttin der Zwietracht. So in K. John (A. 2, Sc. 1) An Até, stirring him to blood and strife. 145) Costard versteht north pole = ein Stecken, wie man ihn im Norden von England in Übungskämpfen gebraucht. 146) Die Waffen, die er als Pompejus vorher getragen hatte. 147) to go woolward = ohne Hemd gehen, so dass die Wolle des Rockes unmittelbar die Haut reibt, wird zu Sh.'s Zeit und früher häufig erwähnt, zunächst als eine kirchliche Busse, die den Pilgern auferlegt wurde, dann aber auch, wie Boyet es hier erklärt, als eine Ausrede für Leute, die kein Hemd haben. 148) to enjoin = als Busse auferlegen. — Malone wollte diese Rede, Enter Monsieur MERCADE, a Messenger.

Mer. God save you, Madam.

Prin. Welcome, Mercade,
But that thou interrupt'st our merriment.

Mer. I am sorry, Madam; for the news I bring
Is heavy in my tongue. — The king your father —

Prin. Dead, for my life!

Mer. Even so: my tale is told.

Biron. Worthies, away! The scene begins to cloud.

Arm. For mine own part, I breathe free breath. I have seen the day of wrong through the little hole of discretion,¹⁴⁹ and I will right myself like a soldier.

[Exeunt Worthies.]

King. How fares your majesty?

Prin. Boyet, prepare: I will away to-night.

King. Madam, not so; I do beseech you, stay.

Prin. Prepare, I say. — I thank you, gracious lords,
For all your fair endeavours; and entreat,
Out of a new-sad soul, that you vouchsafe
In your rich wisdom to excuse, or hide,
The liberal¹⁵⁰ opposition of our spirits:
If over-boldly we have borne ourselves
In the converse of breath,¹⁵¹ your gentleness
Was guilty of it. Farewell, worthy lord!
A heavy heart bears not a humble tongue.¹⁵²
Excuse me so, coming so short of thanks
For my great suit so easily obtain'd.

King. The extreme part of time extremely forms¹⁵³
All causes to the purpose of his speed;
And often, at his very loose,¹⁵⁴ decides
That which long process could not arbitrate:
And though the mourning brow of progeny
Forbid the smiling courtesy of love
The holy suit which fain it would convince;¹⁵⁵
Yet, since love's argument was first on foot,
Let not the cloud of sorrow justle it
From what it purpos'd; since, to wail friends lost,

Is not by much so wholesome, profitable,
As to rejoice at friends but newly found.

Prin. I understand you not: my griefs are dull.¹⁵⁶

Biron. Honest plain words best pierce the ear of grief;
And by these badges understand the king.

For your fair sakes have we neglected time,
Play'd foul play with our oaths. Your beauty, ladies,
Hath much deform'd us, fashioning our humours
Even to the opposed end of our intents;

And what in us hath seem'd ridiculous, —

As love is full of unbefitting strains;

All wanton as a child, skipping, and vain;

Form'd by the eye, and, therefore, like the eye,

Full of strange¹⁵⁷ shapes, of habits, and of forms,

Varying in subjects, as the eye doth roll

To every varied object in his glance:

Which party-coated presence of loose love¹⁵⁸

Put on by us, if, in your heavenly eyes,

Have misbecom'd our oaths and gravities,

Those heavenly eyes, that look into these faults,

Suggested us to make. Therefore, ladies,

Our love being yours, the error that love makes

Is likewise yours: we to ourselves prove false,

By being once false, for ever to be true

To those that make us both, — fair ladies, you:

And even that falsehood, in itself a sin,

Thus purifies itself, and turns to grace.

Prin. We have receiv'd your letters full of love;

Your favours, the ambassadors of love;

And, in our maiden council, rated them

At courtship, pleasant jest, and courtesy,

As bombast,¹⁵⁹ and as lining to the time.

But more devout than this, in our respects,¹⁶⁰

Have we not been; and therefore met your loves

In their own fashion, like a merriment.

Dum. Our letters, Madam, show'd much more than jest.

Long. So did our looks.

Ros. We did not cote them so.¹⁶¹ die in den alten Ausgg. mit Boy. bezeichnet ist, nicht dem Boyet, sondern dem Moth zuertheilen. 149) In Ray's Sprichwörterammlung findet sich auch folgendes Sprichwort: One may see a day at a little hole. — Armado's eigentlicher Sinn ist: ich habe erkannt, so beschränkt ich auch sein mag, dass mir Unrecht geschehen ist. 150) liberal = dreist, ausgelassen. Die Prinzessin spricht von der ziemlich freien Manier, mit der sie und ihre Damen den Cavalieren entgegengetreten sind. 151) converse of breath = mündlicher Verkehr. 152) humble erklärt Stevens mit obsequiously thankful, und Malone: A heavy heart does not admit of that verbal obeisance which is paid by the humble to those whom they address. — Theobald las a nimble tongue. — In der folgenden Zeile hat die Q. too short. 153) Die alten Ausgg. haben parts und forms, wofür die meisten Hgg. parts und form setzen. Es ist = der Drang der Zeit im letzten entscheidenden Momente. — Für parts vermuthet Theobald past, Singer haste, und Staunton dart. Letztere Lesart gewinnt eine Stütze in dem folgenden at his very loose = das Abschiessen des Pfeils vom Bogen. Indess erklärt der König das extreme part of time selbst nachher deutlicher mit the latest minute of the hour. 154) at his very loose = im Augenblicke, wo die Zeit, oder ihr letzter Theil, sich löst, scheidet. 155) Wenn auch das trauernde Antlitz der Nachkommenschaft, das Antlitz der Tochter, die um den Vater trauert, der lächelnden Huldigung der Liebe die Werbung untersagt, welche sie gern erobern, gewinnen möchte. — to convince, eigentlich = besiegen, ist hier = durch Sieg erwerben. 156) dull liest Dyce mit Collier's altem Corrector für double der Q. und Fol., wofür Capell deaf lesen wollte. 157) Q. und Fol. haben straying, wofür Malone strange und Coleridge stray lesen wollte. 158) Ihre muthwillige Liebe hat sich in die bunte Tracht des Narren gesteckt, und wenn sie damit in den Augen der Damen den beschworenen Gelübden geschadet hat, so haben eben diese Augen die Cavaliere verführt, so zu thun. — Für misbecomed, wie Sh. auch sonst becomed für become hat, setzen manche Hgg. misbecome. — to suggest = verführen, zu Etwas anstiften. — Zu to make ist aus these faults ein them zu suppliren. 159) bombast erhält seine nähere Erklärung durch lining und ist wie dieses mit to the time zu verbinden: als Etwas, das den Augenblick nur ausstaffiren, ihm ein Ansehen geben sollte. — bombast = ein weicher, nachgiebiger Stoff, der als Watte dient, um den Kleidern ein bauschiges Ansehen zu geben. 160) So verbesserte Hammer die Lesart der Q. than this, our respects, wofür die Fol. liest than these are our respects: aber hingebender, gläubiger als dies sind wir, in unserer Berücksichtigung Eurer Huldigungen, nicht gewesen. 161) Wir notirten sie nicht so, fassten sie nicht so auf. — Ueber to cote, das die Hgg. auch hier quote schreiben, vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 60. 162) world-without-end = auf eine King. Now, at the latest minute of the hour,

Grant us your loves.

Prin. A time, methinks, too short
To make a world-without-end¹⁶² bargain in.
No, no, my lord, your grace is perjur'd much,
Full of dear guiltiness;¹⁶³ and therefore this. —
If for my love (as there is no such cause)
You will do aught, this shall you do for me:
Your oath I will not trust; but go with speed
To some forlorn and naked hermitage,
Remote from all the pleasures of the world;
There stay, until the twelve celestial signs
Have brought about their annual reckoning.
If this austere insociable life
Change not your offer made in heat of blood;
If frosts, and fasts, hard lodging, and thin weeds,¹⁶⁴
Nip not the gaudy blossoms of your love,
But that it bear¹⁶⁵ this trial, and last love;
Then, at the expiration of the year,
Come challenge me,¹⁶⁶ challenge me by these deserts,
And by this virgin palm,¹⁶⁷ now kissing thine,
I will be thine; and, till that instant,¹⁶⁸ shut
My woful self up in a mourning house,
Raining the tears of lamentation
For the remembrance of my father's death.
If this thou do deny, let our hands part;
Neither intitled in the other's heart.¹⁶⁹

King. If this, or more than this, I would deny,
To flatter up these powers of mine with rest,¹⁷⁰
The sudden hand of death close up mine eye.
Hence ever then my heart is in thy breast.

[Biron. And what to me, my love? and what to me?

Ros. You must be purged too, your sins are rank:¹⁷¹
You are attaint with faults and perjury;
Therefore, if you my favour mean to get,
A twelvemonth shall you spend, and never rest,
But seek the weary beds of people sick.]

Dum. But what to me, my love? but what to me?

Kath. A wife! — A beard, fair health, and honesty;
With three-fold love I wish you all these three.

Dum. O! shall I say, I thank you, gentle wife?

Kath. Not so, my lord. A twelvemonth and a day
I'll mark no words that smooth-fac'd wooers say:
Come when the king doth to my lady come;
Then, if I have much love, I'll give you some.

Dum. I'll serve thee true and faithfully till then.

Kath. Yet swear not, lest you be forsworn again.

Long. What says Maria?

Mar. At the twelvemonth's end,
I'll change my black gown for a faithful friend.

Long. I'll stay with patience; but the time is long.

Mar. The liker you;¹⁷² few taller are so young.

Biron. Studies my lady? mistress, look on me.
Behold the window of my heart, mine eye,
What humble suit attends thy answer there;
Impose some service on me for thy love.¹⁷³

Ros. Oft have I heard of you, my lord Biron,
Before I saw you, and the world's large tongue
Proclaims you for a man replete with mocks;
Full of comparisons and wounding flouts,
Which you on all estates will execute,
That lie within the mercy of your wit:
To weed this wormwood from your fruitful brain,
And, therewithal, to win me, if you please,
Without the which I am not to be won,
You shall this twelvemonth term, from day to day,
Visit the speechless sick, and still converse
With groaning wretches; and your task shall be,
With all the fierce¹⁷⁴ endeavour of your wit,
To enforce the pained impotent to smile.

Biron. To move wild laughter in the throat of death?
It cannot be; it is impossible:
Mirth cannot move a soul in agony.

Ros. Why, that's the way to choke a gibing spirit,
Whose influence is begot of that loose grace
Which shallow laughing hearers give to fools.

A jest's prosperity lies in the ear
Of him that hears it, never in the tongue
Of him that makes it: then, if sickly ears,
Deaf'd with the clamours of their own dear groans,¹⁷⁵
Will hear your idle scorns, continue then,¹⁷⁶
And I will have you, and that fault withal;
But, if they will not, throw away that spirit,
And I shall find you empty of that fault,
Right joyful of your reformation.

Biron. A twelvemonth? well, befall what will befall,
I'll jest a twelvemonth in an hospital.

Prin. [To the King.] Ay, sweet my lord; and so I take my leave.

King. No, Madam; we will bring you on your way.

Biron. Our wooing doth not end like an old play;
Jack hath not Jill:¹⁷⁷ these ladies' courtesy
Might well have made our sport a comedy.

King. Come, Sir, it wants a twelvemonth and a day,
And then 't will end.

Biron. That's too long for a play.

Welt ohne Ende, ewig. Sh. hat dasselbe Epitheton in seinen Sonnets (57) Nor dare I hide the world-without-end hour. 163) dear guiltiness = schwere, tiefe Verschuldung. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 1. 164) thin weeds = dünne Kleider, die wenig gegen die rauhe Jahreszeit schützen. 165) it bezieht sich auf your love: wenn sie diese Prüfung besteht und dabei Liebe bleibt, als Liebe ausdauert. — last ist Conjunctiv von to last. 166) So Q. und Fol. — Manche Hgg. lassen mit Hammer dieses me aus. 167) Die Prinzessin schwört bei ihrer jungfräulichen Hand, mit der sie in diesem Augenblick die Hand des Königs fasst. — In Coriolanus (A. 5, Sc. 2) kommt the virginal palms of your daughters vor. 168) instant in der Fol.; die Q. hat instance. 169) So dass Keiner von uns Beiden ein Anrecht auf das Herz des Andern hat. 170) Wenn ich dies verweigere oder mehr als dies, um meine geistige Thätigkeit oder Begabung in Ruhe einzulullen. 171) rank verbessert Rowe das rack'd der alten Ausgg. — Biron's Frage und Rosalins Antwort von And what to me bis people sick sind wahrscheinlich aus dem ersten Entwurfe des Dramas in der Handschrift stehen geblieben und aus Versehen in den Druck übergegangen, da der Inhalt derselben nachher in erweiterter Gestalt nochmals wiederkehrt. — Zu Dumaine's folgender Rede zieht Dyce noch den Anfang von Katharins Worten und liest also But what to me, my love? but what to me? || A wife? 172) Wenn die Zeit bis dahin so lang ist, so gleicht sie um so mehr Euch, der Ihr selber langgewachsen seid. 173) Einen Dienst, womit ich mir Deine Liebe gewinnen kann. — Die Fol. hat for my love. 174) fierce = rücksichtslos, dreinschlagend. 175) Vgl. oben Anm. 163. 176) Fahrt dann fort so zu sein, wie Ihr seid, d. h. zu spotten und Witze zu machen. — Für then wollte Dyce mit dem alten Corrector Collier's them lesen. 177) Das

Enter ARMADO.

Arm. Sweet majesty, vouchsafe me, —

Prin. Was not that Hector?

Dum. The worthy knight of Troy.

Arm. I will kiss thy royal finger, and take leave. I am a votary: I have vowed to Jaquenetta to hold the plough for her sweet love three years. But, most esteemed greatness, will you hear the dialogue that the two learned men have compiled in praise of the owl and the cuckoo? it should have followed in the end of our show.

King. Call them forth quickly; we will do so.

Arm. Holla! approach.

Enter HOLOFERNES, NATHANIEL, MOTH, COSTARD, and Others. ¹⁷⁸

This side is Hiems, Winter, this Ver, the Spring; the one maintained by the owl, the other by the cuckoo. Ver, begin.

Song.

Spring.

I.

*When daisies pied, and violets blue,

A MIDSUMMER-NIGHT'S DREAM.

Einleitung.

Shakspeare's Midsummer-Night's Dream erschien im Jahre 1600 in zwei Ausgaben in Quarto, von denen die erste und correcteste (Q. A.) folgendes Titelblatt hat: A Midsommer nights dreame. As it hath beene sundry times publickely acted, by the Right honourable, the Lord Chamberlaine his seruants. Written by William Shakespeare. Imprinted at London, for Thomas Fisher, and are to be sould at his shoppe, at the Signe of the White Hart, in Fleete streete, 1600. — Der Verleger Fisher hatte das Drama unterm 8. October desselben Jahres in die Register der Buchhändler als seinen Verlagsartikel eintragen lassen. — Auch die andere, vermuthlich unrechtmässige, Quartausgabe (Q. B.), von James Roberts gedruckt, macht, wie Q. A., auf dem Titelblatte die Shakspeare'sche Schauspielergesellschaft und den Verfasser des Lustspiels namhaft, und aus dieser Ausgabe, obwohl ihr Text an Werth dem von Q. A. nachsteht, ist das Drama, mit einigen Aenderungen, die nur zum Theil für Verbesserungen gelten können, in die Gesamtausgabe der Shakspeare'schen Dramen in Folio übergegangen, wo es als das achte in der Reihe der Comedies steht, daselbst zuerst in Acte eingetheilt. Eine Eintheilung in Scenen und ein Personenverzeichniss, welches Rowe in seiner Ausgabe von 1709 beifügte, fehlen auch in der Folioausgabe. Wie die Abweichungen zwischen den beiden Quartausgaben (Qs.) und der Fol. nirgendwo von tiefeingreifender Bedeutung sind, so bietet auch der Text im Ganzen nur geringe Schwierigkeiten.

Zuerst erwähnt wird Midsummer-Night's Dream in dem mehrfach citirten Verzeichniss Shakspeare'scher Dramen, das Francis Meres in seinem Buche Palladis Tamia (1598) giebt. — Darüber hinaus bleibt zur chronologischen Bestimmung des Dramas nur die nicht unwahrscheinliche Vermuthung, dass der Dichter mit der Schilderung eines Missjahres (in A. 2, Sc. 1) auf den stürmischen, regnerischen und an Verheerungen aller Art reichen Sommer 1594 in England habe anspielen wollen. Da solche Anspielungen beim Publicum nur wirksam und treffend sein konnten, so lange die Ereignisse, auf welche hingedeutet wurde, noch frisch in der Erinnerung haften, so muss Shakspeare sein Drama nicht lange nachher, vielleicht noch im Jahre 1594 selbst, geschrieben haben. Es ist sogar denkbar, dass der Volksglaube, der die Missernten, Seuchen, Ueberschwemmungen und was sonst an Unglücksfällen das genannte Jahr auszeichnete, dem Einflusse und der Zwietracht der Elementargeister zuschreiben mochte, unserm Dichter die erste Idee zu seinem Drama darbot, so weit es sich nämlich darin um den Streit Oberon's und Titania's und deren glückliche Versöhnung handelte. Auf den Volksglauben an das bunte und mannigfache Treiben der Elfen fusste Shakspeare auch in den einzelnen Zügen, die er der in Prosa und Vers, in der höheren und populären Literatur seiner Zeit vielfach behandelten Feenmythologie entlehnte, um seine dramatischen Gestalten damit auszustatten. — Von der Feenkönigin fand Shakspeare unter Anderm schon einen Bericht in Chaucer's Canterbury Tales zu Anfang von The Wif of Bathes Tale:

*In olde dayes of the king Artour,
Of which that Bretons speken gret honour,
All was this lond fulfilled of faerie;
The Elf-quene, with hire joly compaignie,
Danced ful oft in many a grene mede.
This was the old opinion as I rede;
I speke of many hundred yeres ago;
But now can no man see non elves no,
For now the grete charitee and prayeres
Of limitoures and other holy freres,
That serchen every land and every streme,
As thikke as motes in the sonne-beme,
Blissing halles, chambres, kichenes, and boures,*

*Citees and burghes, castles hygh and toures,
Thropes and bernes, shepenes and dairies,
This maketh that ther ben no faeries:
For ther as wont to walken was an elf,
Ther walketh now the limitour himself,
In undermeles and in morweninges,
And sayth his Matines and his holy thinges,
And he goth in his limitatioun.
Women may now go safely up and down,
In every bush, and under every tree,
Ther is non other incubus but he,
And he ne will don hem no dishonour.*

Titania, als Name der Feenkönigin, scheint sich vor dem Midsummer-Night's Dream nicht zu finden; noch in Romeo and Juliet nennt Shakspeare die Feenkönigin mit ihrem herkömmlichen Namen Queen Mab. — Der Name des Elfenkönigs Oberon dagegen kommt schon vor Shakspeare in verschiedenen Mährchen und Balladen*) vor, am frühesten vielleicht in der englischen Uebersetzung des französischen Romans von Huon de Bourdeaux, welche Lord Berners im Jahre 1579 lieferte. — Von den Streichen seines Dieners Puck ist am ausführlichsten die Rede in einem Pamphlete, betitelt Robin Good-fellow: his Mad Pranks and Merry Jests, das sich zwar nur in einer Ausgabe von 1628 erhalten hat, aber nach Collier's Meinung schon vierzig Jahre früher einmal gedruckt und unserm Dichter bekannt war. Einige Abschnitte aus diesem kleinen Volksbuch mögen hier folgen:

What hapned to Robin Good-fellow after he went from the taylor.

After Robin had travailed a good dayes journey from his masters house hee sate downe, and beeing weary hee fell a sleepe. No sooner had slumber tooke full possession of him, and closed his long opened eye-lids, but hee thought he saw many goodly proper personages in anticks measures tripping about him, and withall hee heard such musicke, as he thought that Orpheus, that famous Greeke fidler (had hee beene alive), compared to one of these had beene as infamous as a Welchharper that playes for cheese and onions. As delights commonly last not long, so did those end sooner then hee would willingly they should have done; and for very grieffe he awaked, and found by him lying a scroule, wherein was written these lines following in golden letters.

Robin my only sonne and heire,
How to live take thou no care:
By nature thou hast cunning shifts,
Which Ile increase with other gifts.
Wish what thou wilt, thou shalt it have;
And for to vex both foole and knave,
Thou hast the power to change thy shape,
To horse, to hog, to dog, to ape.
Transformed thus, by any meanes
See none thou harm'st but knaves and queanes;

But love thou those that honest be,
And helpe them in necessity.
Doe thus, and all the world shall know
The pranks of Robin Good-fellow;
For by that name thou cald shalt be
To ages last posterity.
If thou observe my just command,
One day thou shalt see Fayry Land!
This more I give: who tels thy pranks
From those that heare them shall have thanks.

Robin, having read this, was very joyfull, yet longed he to know whether he had this power or not, and to try it hee wished for some meate: presently it was before him. Then wished hee for beere and wine: he straightway had it. This liked him well, and because he was weary, he wished himselfe a horse: no sooner was his wish ended, but he was transformed, and seemed a horse of twenty pound price, and leaped and curveted as nimble as if he had beene in stable at racke and manger a full moneth. Then wished he himselfe a dog, and was so, then a tree, and was so: so from one thing to another, till hee was certaine and well assured that hee could change himselfe to any thing whatsoever.

How Robin Good-fellow served a clownish fellow.

Robin Good-fellow going over a field met with a clownish fellow, to whom he spake in this manner: „Friend,“ quoth he, „what is a clocke?“ „A thing,“ answered the clowne, „that shewes the time of the day.“ „Why then,“ sayd Robin Good-fellow, „bee thou a clocke, and tell me what time of the day it is.“ „I owe thee not so much service,“ answered hee againe, „but because thou shalt thinke thyselfe beholding to mee, know that it is the same time of the day, as it was yesterday at this time.“

These crosse answers vext Robin Good-fellow, so that in himselfe hee vowed to be revenged of him, which he did in this manner.

Robin Good-fellow turned himselfe into a bird, and followed this fellow, who was going into a field a little from that place to catch a horse that was at grasse. The horse being wilde ran over dike and hedge, and the fellow after, but to little purpose, for the horse was too swift for him. Robin was glad of this occasion, for now or never was the time to put his revenge in action.

Presently Robin shaped himselfe like to the horse that the fellow followed, and so stood before the fellow: presently the fellow tooke hold of him and got on his backe, but long had he not rid, but with a stumble he hurld this churlish clowne to the ground, that he almost broke his necke; yet tooke he not this for a sufficient revenge for the crosse answers he had received, but stood still and let the fellow mount him once more.

In the way the fellow was to ride was a great plash of water of a good depth; thorow this must he of necessity ride. No sooner was hee in the midst of it, but Robin Good-fellow left him with nothing but a pack-saddle betwixt his leggs, and in the shape of a fish swomme to the shore, and ran away laughing, ho, ho, hoh! leaving the poore fellow almost drowned.

Fast alle Streiche, die der Volksglaube dem neckischen Kobold zuschreibt, sind zusammengestellt in folgender Ballade, angeblich von Ben Jonson:

From Oberon, in fairy-land,
The king of ghosts and shadows there,
Mad Robin I, at his command,
Am sent to view the night-sports here;
What revel-rout
Is kept about
In every corner where I go,
I will o'ersee,
And merry be,
And make good sport, with ho, ho, ho!
More swift than lightning do I fly
About this airy welkin soon,
And, in a minute's space, descry
What things are done beneath the moon:
There's not a hag

Nor ghost shall wag,
Nor cry, ware Goblin! where I go;
But Robin I
His feats will spy,
And send him home, with ho, ho, ho!
If any wanderers I meet,
That from their night-sport do trudge home,
With counterfeited voice I greet,
And call them on with me to roam:
Through woods, through lakes,
Through bogs, through brakes,
O'er bush and brier with them I go;
I call upon
Them to come on,
And slide out laughing, ho, ho, ho!

Sometimes I meet them like a man,
 Sometimes an ox, sometimes a hound;
 And to a horse I turn me can,
 To trip and trot about them round;
 But if, to ride,
 My back they stride,
 More swift than wind away I go;
 O'er hedge, o'er lands,
 Through pools, through ponds,
 I hurry laughing, ho, ho, ho!
 When lads and lasses merry be,
 With possets, and with junkets fine,
 Unseen of all the company,
 I eat their cakes, and sip their wine;
 And to make sport,
 I puff and snort,
 And out the candles I do blow;
 The maids I kiss;
 They shriek — Who's this?
 I answer nought, but ho, ho, ho!
 Yet, now and then, the maids to please,
 I card, at midnight, up their wool;
 And, while they sleep, and take their ease,
 With wheel to thread their flax I pull;
 I grind at mill
 Their malt up still,
 I dress their hemp, I spin their tow;
 If any wake,
 And would me take,
 I wend me laughing, ho, ho, ho!
 When house or hearth doth sluttish lie,
 I pinch the maidens black and blue;
 The bed-clothes from the bed pull I,
 And lay them naked all to view;
 'Twixt sleep and wake,
 I do them take,
 And on the key-cold floor them throw;
 If out they cry,
 Then forth I fly,
 And loudly laugh I, ho, ho, ho!
 Whenas my fellow elves and I
 In circled ring do trip a round;
 If that our sports by any eye
 Do happen to be seen or found;
 If that they
 No words do say,
 But mum continue as they go,
 Each night I do
 Put groat in shoe,
 And wind out laughing, ho, ho, ho!

Die Figuren des Theseus und der Hippolyta, ihren Krieg und ihre Vermählung fand Shakspeare ebenfalls in Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, wo The Knightes Tale folgendermassen anfängt:

Whilom, as olde stories tellen us,
 Ther was a duk that highte Theseus.
 Of Athenes he was lord and governour,
 And in his time swiche a conquerour,
 That greter was ther non under the sonne.
 Ful many a riche contree had he wonne.
 What with his wisdom and his chevalrie,
 He conquerd all the regne of Feminie,
 That whilom was ycleped Scythia;
 And wedded the fresshe quene Ipolita,
 And brought hire home with him to his contree
 With mochel glorie and gret solempnitee,
 And eke hire yonge suster Emelie.

When any need to borrow ought,
 We lend them what they do require;
 And for the use demand we nought;
 Our own is all we do desire:
 If to repay
 They make delay,
 Abroad amongst them then I go;
 And night by night
 I them affright
 With pinches, dreams, and ho, ho, ho!
 When lazy queans have nought to do,
 But study how to cog and lie,
 To make debate, and mischief too,
 'Twixt one another secretly,
 I mark their glose,
 And it disclose
 To them that they have wronged so;
 When I have done,
 I get me gone,
 And leave them scolding, ho, ho, ho!
 When men do traps and engines set
 In loop-holes, where the vermin creep,
 Who from their folds and houses fet
 Their ducks and geese, and lambs and sheep,
 I spy the gin,
 And enter in,
 And seem a vermin taken so;
 But, when they there
 Approach me near,
 I leap out laughing, ho, ho, ho!
 By wells, and rills, in meadows green,
 We nightly dance our hey-day guise;
 And, to our fairy king and queen,
 We chant our moonlight minstrelsies:
 When larks 'gin sing,
 Away we fling,
 And babes new-born steal as we go;
 An elf instead
 We leave in bed,
 And wind out laughing, ho, ho, ho!
 Since hag-bred Merlin's time have I
 Thus nightly revell'd to and fro;
 And for my pranks men call me by
 The name of Robin Good-fellow:
 Fiends, ghosts and sprites,
 That haunt the nights,
 The hags and goblins do me know;
 And beldams old
 My feats have told;
 So vale, vale! ho, ho, ho!

And thus with victorie and with melodie
 Let I this worthy duk to Athenes ride,
 And all his host, in armes him beside.
 And certes, if it n'ere to long to here,
 I wolde have told you fully the manere,
 How wonnen was the regne of Feminie,
 By Theseus, and by his chevalrie;
 And of the grete bataille for the nones
 Betwix Athenes and the Amasones;
 And how asseged was Ipolita
 The faire hardy quene of Scythia;
 And of the feste, that was at hire wedding,
 And of the temple at hire home coming.

Ebenda schöpfte der Dichter den Gedanken zu einer Jagd des Theseus und der Hippolyta:

*This mene I now by mighty Theseus,
That for to hunt is so desirous,
And namely at the grete hart in May,
That in his bed ther daweth him no day,
That he n' is clad and redy for to ride
With hunt and horne, and houndes him beside.
For in his hunting hath he swiche delite
That it is all his joye and appetite
To ben himself the grete hartes bane,
For after Mars he serveth now Diane.
Clere was the day, as I have told or this,
And Theseus with alle joye and blis,*

*With his Ipolita, the fayre quene,
And Emelie, yclothed all in grene,
On hunting ben they ridden really,
And to the grove, that stood ther faste by,
In which ther was an hart as men him told,
Duk Theseus the streite way hath hold.
And to the launde he rideth him ful right,
Ther was the hart ywont to have his flight,
And over a brooke, and so forth on his way.
This duk wol have a cours at him or twey,
With houndes swiche as him lust to commaund.*

Chaucer lieferte unserm Dichter auch den Stoff zu dem eingelegten Possenspiele von Pyramus und Thisbe in seinem Legend of Good Women, wo The Legend of Tisbe of Babilon so beginnt:

*At Babiloine whylome fill it thus,
The whiche toun the queen Simiramus
Let dichen al about, and walles make
Full hie, of harde tiles well ybake:
There were dwelling in this noble toun,
Two lordes, which that were of great renoun,
And woneden so nigh upon a grene,
That there nas but a stone wal hem between,
As oft in great tounes is the wonne:
And sothe to saine, that one man had a sonne,
Of all that lond one of the lustiest,
That other had a doughter, the fairest
That estward in the world was tho dwelling;
The name of everiche gan to other spring,
By women that were neighbours aboute,
For in that countre yet withouten doute,
Maidenes ben ykept for jelousie
Ful straite, lest they didden some folie.*

*This yonge man was cleped Piramus,
Thisbe hight the maide (Naso saith thus),
And thus by report was hir name yshove,
That as they woxe in age, so woxe hir love:
And certaine, as by reason of hir age,
Ther might have ben betwixt hem mariage,
But that hir fathers n'olde it nat assent,
And bothe in love ylike sore they brent,
That none of all hir friendes might it lette,
But prively sometime yet they mette
By sleight, and spaken some of hir desire,
As wrie the glede and hotter is the fire,
Forbid a love, and it is ten times so wode.*

*This wal, which that betwixt hem both stode,
Was cloven atwo, right fro the top adoun,
Of old time, of his foundatioun,
But yet this clift was so narrow and lite
It was nat seene, dere inough a mite,
But what is that, that love cannot espie?
Ye lovers two, if that I shall not lie.
Ye founden first this little narrow clift,
And with a sound, as soft as any shrift,
They let hir wordes through the clifte pace,
And tolden, while that they stoden in the place,
All hir complaint of love, and all hir wo,
At every time whan they durst so.*

*On that one side of the wall stood he,
And on that other side stood Tisbe,
The sweet soun of other to receive,
And thus hir wardeins would they disceive,
And every daie this wall they would threte,
And wish to God that it were down ybete,
Thus wold they sain, „Alas, thou wicked wall,
Through thine envie thou us lettest all,
Why nilt thou cleave, or fallen all atwo,
Or at the least, but thou wouldest so,
Yet wouldest thou but ones let us mete,
Or ones that we might kissen swete,
Than were we cured of our cares cold,
But nathelesse, yet be we to thee hold,
In as much as thou suffrest for to gone,
Our words through thy lime and eke thy stone,
Yet ought we with thee ben well apaid.“*

Daneben mochte Shakspeare auch Golding's Uebersetzung der Metamorphosen des Ovid benutzt haben, obwohl ihm ohne Zweifel Chaucer's Bearbeitung der betreffenden Sage näher lag. — Die übrigen Figuren des Dramas sammt der Intrigue, in welche sie verflochten werden, sowohl die Liebespaare, als auch die athenischen Handwerker, welche die stehende Rolle des Shakspeare'schen Clown in vervielfältigter Gestalt repräsentiren, scheinen Shakspeare's eigene Erfindung zu sein.

In der Schilderung, welche Oberon A. 2, Sc. 2 seinem getreuen Puck von der Entstehung der Blume Love-in-idleness (Viola tricolor) giebt, haben die Commentatoren schon früh Allegorien und Anspielungen auf zeitgenössische Personen und Ereignisse finden wollen. Pope bezog den Passus von a fair vestal throned by the west als ein Compliment auf die Königin Elisabeth. Warburton ging weiter und deutete a mermaid on a dolphin's back auf die Königin Maria von Schottland, die vorher mit dem französischen Dauphin, d. h. König Franz II. von Frankreich, vermählt gewesen war, und deren Rückkehr in ihr Vaterland sodann das aufrührerische Schottland beruhigte (That the rude sea grew civil at her song), bis sie endlich später verschiedene englische Grosse, u. A. die Grafen von Northumberland und Westmoreland, in ihr unglückliches Schicksal verstrickte (And certain stars shot madly from their spheres). — Nachdem der zu allen Zeiten ziemlich schwache Glaube an diese abenteuerliche Deutung Warburton's allmählich ganz geschwunden war, hat der Rev. N. J. Halpin eine neue, noch seltsamere Interpretation aufgebracht in einer 1843 für die Shakespeare-Society herausgegebenen Schrift: Oberon's Vision in the Midsummer-Night's Dream, illustrated by a comparison with Lylie's Endymion. Das Wesentliche seiner Erklärung ergiebt sich aus der Paraphrase des Shakspeare'schen Textes, die er als eine Zusammenfassung seiner mehr sinnreichen als wahrscheinlichen Hypothesen folgendermassen einkleidet:

Oberon. Come hither, Puck. You doubtless remember when, once upon a time, sitting together on a rising ground, by the side of a piece of water, we saw what to us appeared (though to others it might have worn a different semblance) a mermaid sitting on a dolphin's back, and singing so sweetly to the accompaniment of a band of music placed inside of the artificial dolphin, that one could very well imagine the waves of the mimic sea before us would, had they been ruffled, have calmed and settled themselves down to listen to her melody; and, at the same time, there was a flight of artificial fireworks resembling stars, which plunged very strangely out of their natural element down into the water, and, after remaining there a while, rose again into the air, as if wishing to hear once more the sea-maid's music. — Puck. I remember such things to have been exhibited amongst the pageantry at Kenilworth Castle, during the Princely Pleasures given on the occasion of Queen Elizabeth's visit in 1575. — Oberon. You are right. Well, at that very time and place, I (and perhaps a few others of the choicer spirits) could discern a circumstance that was imperceptible to you (and the meaner multitude of guests and visitants): in fact, I saw—wavering in his passion between (Cynthia, or) Queen Elizabeth and (Tellus, or) the Lady Douglas, Countess of Sheffield, (Endymion, or) the Earl of Leicester, [either alarmed at the progress of his rival, the Duke of Alençon, with the Queen, or] all-armed, in the magnificence of his preparations for storming the heart of his Royal Mistress. He made a predetermined and a well-directed effort for the hand of Elizabeth, the Virgin Queen of England; and presumptuously made such love to her—rash under all the circumstances—as if he fancied that neither she nor any woman in the world could resist his suit: but it was evident to me (and to the rest of the initiated), that the ardent Leicester's desperate venture was lost in the pride, prudence, and jealousy of power, which invariably swayed the tide of Elizabeth's passions; and the Virgin Queen finally departed from Kenilworth Castle unshackled with a matrimonial engagement, and as heart-whole as ever. And yet (continues Oberon), curious to observe the collateral issues of this amorous preparation, I watched (whatever others may have done) and discovered the person on whom Leicester's irregular passion was secretly fixed: it was fixed upon Lettice, at that time the wife of Walter Earl of Essex, an Englishwoman of rank inferior to the object of his great ambition; who, previous to this unhappy attachment, was not only pure and innocent in conduct, but unblemished also in reputation; after which she became not only deeply inflamed with a criminal passion, and still more deeply (perhaps) stained with a husband's blood, but the subject, also, of shame and obloquy. Those, however, who pity her weakness, and compassionate her misery, still offer a feeble apology for her conduct, by calling it the result of her husband's voluntary absence, of the waste of affections naturally tender and fond, and of the idleness of a heart that might have been faithful if busied with honest duties, and filled with domestic loves. You cannot mistake, after all I have said — Go—fetch me that flower.

Kehren wir von solchen weithergeholten allegorischen Deutungen, bei denen man sich fragen möchte, für wen in seinem ganzen Publicum Shakspeare sie berechnet haben könnte, auf das einfache Verständniss des betreffenden Textes zurück, so ergiebt sich Folgendes: Love-in-idleness bezeichnet zugleich die in irrem, müssigem Umhertappen begriffene Liebe und die Blume Viola tricolor, unser Stiefmütterchen. Diese doppelte Bedeutung des Wortes macht es erklärlich, dass Oberon für seinen Zweck, solche blinde und unfruchtbare Liebe bei der Titania hervorzurufen, gerade die seiner Absicht schon durch ihren Namen entsprechende Blume wählte. Die eigenthümliche gesprenkelte Färbung dieser Blume, abweichend von ihrer ursprünglichen Weisse, musste zugleich die wunderbare Wirkung erklären, eine solche love in idleness, wie der Name sie verhieß, hervorzurufen. Die Viola tricolor war bunt und purpurn erst geworden durch einen Pfeil Cupido's, der eigentlich nicht sie treffen sollte, sondern eben weil er sein eigentliches Ziel verfehlte, wiederum love in idleness in doppelter Bedeutung des Wortes bewirkte. Dass aber Cupido's Pfeil, selbst so fehlgeschossen, solche gewaltige Wirkung haben konnte, bedurfte ebenfalls, da auf dieser Wirkung des Blumensaftes das ganze Drama beruhte, einer wohlmotivirten und die Phantasie der Zuschauer anregenden und fesselnden Erklärung. Cupido's allmächtiger Pfeil konnte nur abprallen von einer unverwundbaren Keuschheit, von der als Vestalin gedachten, so eben im Westen aufgehenden Luna, die durch ihre Schönheit und ihre erhabene Stellung ihn zu solchem Versuche reizte, und deren Liebesunempfänglichkeit um so mehr hervortrat, als um dieselbe Zeit eine Sirene mit ihren verführerischen Tönen selbst das wilde Meer bezwang und, abermals im Gegensatze zum keuschen Mondgestirne, andere Sterne liebebethört aus ihren vorgeschriebenen Bahnen lockte. Um diese Erscheinungen am Himmel, im Meere und auf der Erde beobachten zu können, musste Oberon den dazu bequemen Standpunkt eines Vorgebirges wählen, und nur er, nicht Puck, durfte Cupido's Pfeilschuss und dessen beabsichtigtes wie dessen wirklich getroffenes Ziel wahrnehmen, weil, wenn Puck das Alles selbst gesehen, Oberon keine Veranlassung gefunden hätte, die Entstehung der Blume so ausführlich und anschaulich, wie es für das Verständniss ihrer Wirkung auf Seiten des Publicums nöthig war, zu schildern. Deshalb nennt er sie auch a little western flower, ein Blümchen, das im Westen, d. h. in England, wächst, wobei zugleich, da auch die Vestalin als im Westen thronend bezeichnet war, das Fehlschiessen Cupido's durch die westliche Richtung, die sein Pfeil nahm, näher bestimmt wurde. Auf eine westliche, d. h. englische und daher dem Shakspeare'schen Publicum wohlbekannte Blume konnte der Pfeil nur fallen, wenn auch das Ziel, auf das er eigentlich gerichtet war, sich im Westen befand.

So erklärt sich aus innerer Nothwendigkeit und auf die einfachste und verständlichste Weise bis auf jedes einzelne Wort diese vielfach commentirte Stelle, und es bleibt darin keine Schwierigkeit über, zu deren Aufhebung man der Annahme von tiefsinnigen Allegorien und Anspielungen auf die Königin Elisabeth bedürfte, oder der Hypothese von Reminiscenzen der Feste in Kenilworth, die zwanzig Jahre vor Midsummer-Night's Dream fielen, und an die, als dieses Drama auf die Bühne kam, kein Mensch mehr denken mochte.

HIPPOLYTA, Queen of the Amazons.

Other Fairies attending their King and Queen.
 Attendants on Theseus and Hippolyta.

SCENE, Athens, and a Wood not far from it.

ACT I.

SCENE I.

Athens. A Room in the Palace of THESEUS.

Enter THESEUS, HIPPOLYTA, PHILOSTRATE, and Attendants.

The. Now, fair Hippolyta, our nuptial hour Draws on apace: four happy days bring in Another moon; but, O, methinks, how slow
 This old moon wanes! she lingers my desires,
 Like to a step-dame, or a dowager,
 Long withering out a young man's revenue.¹

Hip. Four days will quickly steep themselves in nights;
 Four nights² will quickly dream away the time;
 And then the moon, like to a silver bow
 New-bent³ in heaven, shall behold the night
 Of our solemnities.

The. Go, Philostrate,
 Stir up the Athenian youth to merriments;
 Awake the pert and nimble spirit of mirth:
 Turn melancholy forth to funerals;
 The pale companion is not for our pomp. —

[Exit PHILOSTRATE.]

Hippolyta, I woo'd thee with my sword,
 And won thy love doing thee injuries;
 But I will wed thee in another key,
 With pomp, with triumph,⁴ and with revelling.

Enter EGEUS, HERMIA, LYSANDER, and DEMETRIUS.

Ege. Happy be Theseus, our renowned duke!⁵

The. Thanks, good Egeus: ⁶ what's the news with thee?

Ege. Full of vexation come I, with complaint
 Against my child, my daughter Hermia. —
 Stand forth, Demetrius.⁷ — My noble lord,
 This man hath my consent to marry her. —
 Stand forth, Lysander; — and, my gracious duke,
 This man⁸ hath bewitch'd the bosom of my child:
 Thou, thou, Lysander, thou hast given her rhymes,
 And interchang'd love-tokens with my child:
 Thou hast by moonlight at her window sung,
 With feigning voice, verses of feigning love;
 And stol'n the impression of her fantasy⁹
 With bracelets of thy hair, rings, gawds, conceits,¹⁰
 Knacks, trifles, nosegays, sweetmeats (messengers
 Of strong prevailment in unhardened youth):
 With cunning hast thou filch'd my daughter's heart,
 Turn'd her obedience, which is due to me,
 To stubborn harshness. — And, my gracious duke,
 Be it so she will not here¹¹ before your grace
 Consent to marry with Demetrius,
 I beg the ancient privilege of Athens,
 As she is mine, I may dispose of her;
 Which shall be either to this gentleman,
 Or to her death, according to our law
 Immediately provided in that case.

1) to wither out = aussaugen, an Etwas zehren. Der in vier Tagen schwindende Mond hält das Liebesverlangen des Theseus so hin, wie eine Stiefmutter, die bei Lebzeiten noch den Niessbrauch des Vermögens hat, in dessen Besitz der Stiefsohn erst nach ihrem Tode gelangt. — or a dowager ist zur näheren Erklärung zu a step-dame hinzugefügt. 2) Q. B. hat daies. 3) new-bent verbessert Rowe das now bent der Qs. und Fol. 4) triumph = öffentliche Lustbarkeiten, besonders Festzüge. — revelling = Lustbarkeit im Hause, besonders Maskenfest. So in Much Ado about Nothing (A. 1, Sc. 1) I know we shall have revelling to-night. 5) Sh. folgte in dieser Bezeichnung Chaucer in dessen Knights Tale: Whilom, as olde stories tellen us, || Ther was a duk that highte Theseus. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 273. — So in Gascoigne's Jocasta: After her departure came in Duke Creon. Es ist = Fürst. 6) Egeus ist bei Sh. dreisylbig, mit betonter zweiter Sylbe. 7) Diese Worte, sowie die folgenden stand forth, Lysander sind in Qs. und Fol. als Bühnenweisungen gedruckt und erst von Rowe in den Text eingerückt worden. 8) So Qs. und Fol. — Viele Hgg. lassen mit der zweiten Folioausg. von 1632 man, des Verses wegen, aus. 9) the impression of her fantasy ist das Bild Lysander's selbst, das er auf unerlaubte Weise der Phantasie oder der Neigung Hermia's eingeprägt hat. 10) gawd = Tand, Spielzeug. — con-

The. What say you, Hermia? be advis'd, fair maid.
To you your father should be as a god;
One that compos'd your beauties; yea, and one
To whom you are but as a form in wax,
By him imprinted, and within his power¹²
To leave the figure, or disfigure it.
Demetrius is a worthy gentleman.

Her. So is Lysander.

The. In himself he is;
But, in this kind, wanting your father's voice,
The other must be held the worthier.

Her. I would, my father look'd but with my eyes!

The. Rather your eyes must with his judgment look.

Her. I do entreat your grace to pardon me.
I know not by what power I am made bold,
Nor how it may concern my modesty,¹³
In such a presence here, to plead my thoughts;
But I beseech your grace, that I may know
The worst that may befall me in this case,
If I refuse to wed Demetrius.

The. Either to die the death,¹⁴ or to abjure
For ever the society of men.
Therefore, fair Hermia, question your desires;
Know of¹⁵ your youth, examine well your blood,
Whether, if you yield not to your father's choice,
You can endure the livery of a nun,
For aye¹⁶ to be in shady cloister mew'd,
To live a barren sister all your life,
Chanting faint hymns to the cold fruitless moon.¹⁷
Thrice blessed they, that master so their blood,
To undergo such maiden pilgrimage:
But earthlier happy¹⁸ is the rose distill'd,
Than that which, withering on the virgin thorn,
Grows, lives, and dies, in single blessedness.

Her. So will I grow, so live, so die, my lord,
Ere I will yield my virgin patent up
Unto his lordship, whose unwish'd yoke
My soul consents not to give sovereignty.¹⁹

The. Take time to pause:²⁰ and by the next new moon,
The sealing-day betwixt my love and me
For everlasting bond of fellowship,
Upon that day either prepare to die,

For disobedience to your father's will.
Or else to wed Demetrius, as he would;²¹
Or on Diana's altar to protest,
For aye, austerity and single life.

Dem. Relent, sweet Hermia; — and, Lysander, yield
Thy crazed title to my certain right.

Lys. You have her father's love, Demetrius;
Let me have Hermia's: do you marry him.

Ege. Scornful Lysander! true, he hath my love,
And what is mine my love shall render him;
And she is mine, and all my right of her
I do estate unto Demetrius.

Lys. I am, my lord, as well deriv'd as he,
As well possess'd; my love is more than his;
My fortunes every way as fairly rank'd
(If not with vantage), as Demetrius';
And, which is more than all these boasts can be,
I am belov'd of beauteous Hermia.

Why should not I then prosecute my right?

Demetrius, I'll avouch it to his head,
Made love to Nedar's daughter, Helena,
And won her soul; and she, sweet lady, dotes,
Devoutly dotes, dotes in idolatry,
Upon this spotted and inconstant²² man.

The. I must confess, that I have heard so much,
And with Demetrius thought to have spoke thereof;
But, being over-full of self-affairs,²³

My mind did lose it. — But, Demetrius, come;

And come, Egeus: you shall go with me,

I have some private schooling for you both.²⁴ —

For you, fair Hermia, look you arm yourself

To fit your fancies to your father's will,

Or else the law of Athens yields you up

(Which by no means we may extenuate)

To death, or to a vow of single life. —

Come, my Hippolyta: what cheer, my love? —

Demetrius, and Egeus, go along:

I must employ you in some business

Against our nuptial,²⁵ and confer with you

Of something nearly²⁶ that concerns yourselves.

Ege. With duty and desire we follow you.

[Exeunt THEE., HIP., EGE., DEM., and Train.

zeit = irgend ein phantastischer Einfall, irgend ein Ding, dessen Werth nur auf der Laune des Gebers beruht.
11) Wenn es der Fall ist, dass sie nicht hier u. s. w. 12) Die Construction erheischte and within whose power it is. — Das folgende figure bezieht sich auf form: das Bild so zu lassen, wie er es in Wachs ausgeprägt hat. — Die Verbindung von figure und disfigure ist Sh.'sch. 13) Inwiefern meine Mädchenwürde davon betroffen werden, darunter leiden kann. 14) to die the death = des Todes sterben. 15) to know of = von einer Sache Kunde nehmen, sie erforschen. 16) for aye = auf immer. 17) Hermia wird hier als Ordensschwester gefasst, welche ihre kalte Andacht der kinderlosen Mondgöttin, als Repräsentantin jungfräulicher Keuschheit, weiht. 18) Capell änderte earthly happier, was vielleicht Sh. sagen wollte. Die Rose, welche zu Rosenwasser destillirt wurde und so ihren Duft erhalten sieht, ist auf Erden glücklicher, als die an ihrem Stocke verwelkende, welche in unberührter Heiligkeit lebt und stirbt. — Wie oft bei Sh., wird auch hier das Bild und die Sache zusammengezogen in ein Gleichniss. — Den ersten Gedanken des Satzes hat Sh. auch in den Sonnets (5): flowers distill'd, though they with winter meet, || Leese but their show; their substance still lives sweet. 19) Ehe ich meinen jungfräulichen Freibrief der Herrschaft Dessen übermache, dessen unwillkommenem Joche meine Seele nicht die Oberherrlichkeit einzuräumen einwilligt. — Sh. construirte den Relativsatz, als hätte das vor whose zu erwartende to am Schlusse nachgeholt werden sollen, und liess es dann aus, als sei to schon zu whose gesetzt, ein Versehen, das sich häufig bei ihm wiederholt und das die Hgg. der zweiten Folioausg., mit Sh.'s Redeweise unbekannt, mit to whose unwish'd yoke verbessern. 20) Nimm Dir Zeit, Dich zu besinnen, noch anzustehen mit Deinem Entschluss. 21) he would bezieht sich auf your father. 22) spotted and inconstant ist nach Sh.'s Gebrauch der Copula and zusammenzufassen = ein Mann, der mit Treulosigkeit befleckt ist. 23) self-affairs = eigene Angelegenheiten. 24) Ich habe Euch Beide insgeheim zurechtzuweisen. 25) Ein Geschäft in Bezug auf unsere nahe Vermählung. — nuptial ist auch sonst bei Sh. im Singular gebräuchlich. 26) nearly gehört zu concerns. 27) to beteem fasst Steevens hier in einer nirgendwo belegten Bedeutung = to pour forth. Der gewöhnliche Sinn des Wortes = Einem Etwas gönnen, gewähren, reicht auch hier vollkommen aus: Der Strom ihrer Augen bietet der Hermia Thränen oder Regen

Lys. How now, my love? Why is your cheek so pale?
How chance the roses there do fade so fast?

Her. Belike, for want of rain, which I could well
Beteem²⁷ them from the tempest of mine eyes.

Lys. Ah me! for aught that ever I could read,²⁸
Could ever hear by tale or history,
The course of true love never did run smooth;
But, either it was different in blood, —

Her. O cross! too high to be enthrall'd to low!²⁹

Lys. Or else misgraffed, in respect of years, —

Her. O spite! too old to be engag'd to young!

Lys. Or else it stood upon the choice of friends,³⁰ —

Her. O hell! to choose love by another's eyes!

Lys. Or, if there were a sympathy in choice,
War, death, or sickness did lay siege to it,
Making it momentary³¹ as a sound,

Swift as a shadow, short as any dream,

Brief as the lightning in the collied³² night,

That, in a spleen,³³ unfolds both heaven and earth,

And ere a man hath power to say, — behold!

The jaws of darkness do devour it up:

So quick bright things come to confusion.

Her. If then true lovers have been ever cross'd,

It stands as an edict³⁴ in destiny:

Then let us teach our trial patience,

Because it is a customary cross,

As due to love as thoughts,³⁵ and dreams, and sighs,

Wishes, and tears, poor fancy's³⁶ followers.

Lys. A good persuasion: therefore, hear me, Hermia.

I have a widow aunt, a dowager

Of great revenue, and she hath no child:

From Athens is her house remote³⁷ seven leagues;

And she respects me as her only son.

There, gentle Hermia, may I marry thee,

And to that place the sharp Athenian law

Cannot pursue us. If thou lov'st me then,

Steal forth thy father's house to-morrow night,

And in the wood, a league without the town

(Where I did meet thee once with Helena,

To do observance to a morn of May),³⁸

There will I stay for thee.

Her. My good Lysander!

I swear to thee by Cupid's strongest bow,

By his best arrow with the golden head,³⁹

By the simplicity⁴⁰ of Venus' doves,

By that which knitteth souls, and prospers loves,

And by that fire which burn'd the Carthage queen,⁴¹

When the false Trojan under sail was seen,

By all the vows that ever men have broke,

In number more than ever women spoke:

In that same place thou hast appointed me,

To-morrow truly will I meet with thee.

Lys. Keep promise, love. Look, here comes Helena.

Enter HELENA.

Her. God speed fair Helena! Whither away?

Hel. Call you me fair? that fair again unsay.

Demetrius loves your fair:⁴² O happy fair!

Your eyes are lode-stars,⁴³ and your tongue's sweet air

More tuneable than lark to shepherd's ear,

When wheat is green, when hawthorn buds appear.

Sickness is catching: O, were favour so,

Yours would⁴⁴ I catch, fair Hermia! ere I go;

My ear should catch your voice, my eye your eye,

My tongue should catch your tongue's sweet melody.

Were the world mine, Demetrius being bated,

The rest I'll give to be to you translated.⁴⁵

O! teach me how you look, and with what art

You sway the motion of Demetrius' heart.

Her. I frown upon him, yet he loves me still.

Hel. O, that your frowns would teach my smiles such skill!

Her. I give him curses, yet he gives me love.

Hel. O, that my prayers could such affection move!

Her. The more I hate, the more he follows me.

Hel. The more I love, the more he hateth me.

Her. His folly, Helena, is no fault of mine.⁴⁶

Hel. None, but your beauty: 'would that fault were mine!

genug, um die welkenden Rosen ihrer Wangen damit zu erfrischen. 28) Die Fol. lässt Ah me! aus, und die Qs. setzen ever nach I could. Die späteren Folioausgg. setzen Hermia für Ah me! 29) low emendirte Theobald das love der Qs. und Fol. und stellte damit den vom Dichter hier wie in Hermia's folgender Rede beabsichtigten Gegensatz wieder her. 30) friends in den Qs., merit in der Fol. 31) momentary ist das Wort der Qs., wofür die Fol., wie an andern Stellen, das gewöhnlichere momentary liest. 32) collied = kohlschwarz, von to colly = mit Kohlen schwärzen, das in übertragenem Sinne auch in Othello (A. 2, Sc. 3) vorkommt: passion, having my best judgment collied. 33) spleen = plötzlicher Anfall einer Laune oder Stimmung, steht hier = im Nu, unberechnet, unerwartet. 34) edict betont Sh. bald auf der ersten, bald auf der zweiten Sylbe. 35) thoughts = melancholische Gedanken, Grübeleien, wie auch thought bei Sh. häufig = Schwermuth, steht. 36) fancy = Liebeschwärmerei. 37) So die Qs. Die Fol. hat remov'd, das bei Sh. auch sonst adjectivisch = fern, entfernt, vorkommt. 38) Die Huldigung, die man dem Maimorgen darbrachte, bestand darin, dass die jungen Leute beiderlei Geschlechts am ersten Mai in der Frühe des Morgens aus der Stadt in den Wald zogen und von dort den Maibaum, bekränzt, in feierlichem Zuge hereinholten. Sh. fand die Sitte und auch den Ausdruck to do observance to May in Chaucer's Knights Tale. — Die Fol. hat for a morn of May. 39) Cupido's Pfeile waren je nach der Wirkung, die sie hervorbringen sollten, mit einer goldenen oder bleiernen Spitze versehen. 40) Die Tauben, auch die den Wagen der Liebesgöttin ziehen, sind ohne Falsch. — In der folgenden Zeile findet das richtige loves, das der Reim fordert, sich nur in Q. A.; Q. B. und die Fol. haben love. 41) Der Scheiterhaufen, den Dido bestieg, als Aeneas sie verlassen hatte. — In der folgenden Zeile haben Qs. und Fol. Trojan für Trojan, wie anderswo. 42) fair = Schönheit. — Die Fol. hat you fair. 43) lode-star = Polarstern, der dem Schiffer als Leitstern dient. So in Kyd's Spanish Tragedy: Led by the lode-star of her heavenly looks. 44) yours would ist Hanmer's Emendation für your words der Qs. und Fol.: wenn sich die Gesichtszüge (favour) mittheilen liessen, wie eine ansteckende Krankheit, so möchte ich Eure Gesichtszüge gern durch Ansteckung gewinnen. — favour ist vielleicht doppelsinnig zugleich = die Gunst, in der Hermia bei den Menschen, namentlich bei Demetrius, steht. — Staunton liest mit den späteren Folioausgg. your words I'd catch. 45) to translate erklärt Steevens hier mit to change; genauer ist es = übertragen, übermachen. Wenn Helena die ganze Welt besäße, sie würde dieselbe, den Demetrius abgerechnet, auf Hermia übertragen. 46) So Q. A. — Q. B. und die Fol. haben none, auf

Her. Take comfort: he no more shall see my face;
Lysander and myself will fly this place. —
Before the time I did Lysander see,
Seem'd Athens as⁴⁷ a paradise to me:
O then, what graces in my love do dwell,
That he hath turn'd a heaven unto a hell!⁴⁸

Lys. Helen, to you our minds we will unfold.
To-morrow night, when Phœbe doth behold
Her silver visage in the wat'ry glass,
Decking with liquid pearl the bladed grass,
(A time that lovers' flights doth still conceal)
Through Athens' gates have we devis'd to steal.

Her. And in the wood, where often you and I
Upon faint⁴⁹ primrose-beds were wont to lie,
Emptying our bosoms of their counsel sweet,⁵⁰
There my Lysander and myself shall meet;
And thence, from Athens, turn away our eyes,
To seek new friends and stranger companies.
Farewell, sweet playfellow: pray thou for us,
And good luck grant thee thy Demetrius! —
Keep word, Lysander: we must starve our sight
From lovers' food, till morrow deep midnight.

Lys. I will, my Hermia. [Exit HERM.] — Helena, adieu:
As you on him, Demetrius dote⁵¹ on you! [Exit.]

Hel. How happy some o'er other some can be!⁵²
Through Athens I am thought as fair as she;
But what of that? Demetrius thinks not so;
He will not know what all but he do know;
And as he errs, doting on Hermia's eyes,
So I, admiring of his qualities.
Things base and vile, holding no quantity,
Love can transpose to form and dignity.
Love looks not with the eyes, but with the mind,
And therefore is wing'd Cupid painted blind.
Nor hath Love's mind of any judgment taste;⁵³

Wings, and no eyes, figure unheedy haste:
And therefore is Love said to be a child,
Because in choice he is so oft⁵⁴ beguil'd.
As waggish boys in game⁵⁵ themselves forswear,
So the boy Love is perjur'd every where;
For ere Demetrius look'd on Hermia's eyne,⁵⁶
He hail'd down oaths that he was only mine;
And when this hail⁵⁷ some heat from Hermia felt,
So he dissolv'd, and showers of oaths did melt.
I will go tell him of fair Hermia's flight:
Then to the wood will he, to-morrow night,
Pursue her; and for this intelligence
If I have thanks, it is a dear expence:⁵⁸
But herein mean I to enrich my pain,
To have his sight thither, and back again.⁵⁹ [Exit.]

SCENE II.

The Same. A Room in QUINCE'S House.

Enter QUINCE, SNUG, BOTTOM, FLUTE, SNOUT, and STARVELING.

Quin. Is all our company here?

Bot. You were best to call them generally, man by man, according to the scrip.¹

Quin. Here is the scroll of every man's name, which is thought fit, through all Athens, to play in our interlude before the duke and duchess on his wedding-day at night.

Bot. First, good Peter Quince, say what the play treats on; then read the names of the actors,² and so grow to a point.

Quin. Marry, our play is — The most lamentable comedy, and most cruel death of Pyramus and Thisby.

Bot. A very good piece of work, I assure you, and a folly bezüglich, für no fault. 47) So Q. A.; Q. B. und die Fol. setzen like für as. 48) So Q. A.; Q. B. und die Fol. haben into hell. — Manche Hgg. lesen unto hell. 49) Steevens will es dem Urtheil des Lesers überlassen, zu entscheiden, ob das Epitheton faint den Geruch oder die Farbe der Primel bezeichnen solle. Es scheint vielmehr auf das Compositum primrose-beds bezogen werden zu müssen: ein Bett für Müde. In demselben Sinne hat Sh. lazy bed in Troilus and Cressida (A. 1, Sc. 3), und naked bed = ein Bett, in welchem man nackt liegt, kommt bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen häufig vor. 50) sweet ist Theobald's durch den Reim geforderte Emendation für swell'd (sweld) der alten Ausg. — Heath citirt dazu aus der englischen Bibel Psalm 55 (V. 14, 15) But it was even thou, my companion, my guide, and mine own familiar friend. We took sweet counsel together, and walked in the house of God as friends. — Mit eben so gerechtfertigter Emendation liest Theobald drei Zeilen weiter stranger companies für strange companions. — stranger = fremd, und company = Gesellschafter, findet sich auch sonst bei Sh. So in K. Richard II. (A. 1, Sc. 3) the stranger paths of banishment, und in All's well that ends well (A. 4, Sc. 3) I would gladly have him see his company anatomized. 51) So die Qs.; die Fol. hat dotes, was sogar Rowe noch beibehielt. 52) Wie glücklich können doch gewisse Leute vor gewissen andern Leuten sein! 53) Diese Zeile bezieht sich auf die zweitvorhergegangene, wie die folgende Zeile Wings, and no eyes etc. sich auf die Zeile And therefore is etc. bezieht. 54) Für so oft der Q. A. und oft der Q. B. hat die Fol. often. 55) Johnson erklärt hier game mit sport, jest. Der Zusammenhang scheint eher die andere Bedeutung = contentious play, die Johnson verwirft, zu fordern. 56) Den veralteten Plural eyne hat Sh. auch an andern Stellen, aber überall nur des Reimes wegen. So in Taming of the Shrew (A. 5, Sc. 1) While counterfeit supposes blear'd thine eyne. 57) So Q. A. und Fol.; Q. B. his hail. 58) it is a dear expence bezieht Steevens auf den Demetrius, dem es schwer ankommen würde, der Helena Dank zu sagen. Gewiss aber meint Helena, dass sie selbst den Dank von Demetrius für einen theuern Preis erkaufe, für den Preis nämlich, dass sie damit die Liebe des Demetrius zur Hermia begünstige und fördere, also sich selbst Schaden thue. — Dieselbe, von Steevens' Erklärung abweichende Deutung des Satzes giebt auch Staunton. — In der vorhergehenden Zeile liest die Fol. his intelligence. 59) Helena findet eine schmerzliche Freude darin, dass sie den Demetrius auf dem Wege nach dem Walde und auf dem Rückwege sehen, dass sie ihn bei seiner Verfolgung der Hermia begleiten wird.

1) scrip für script = Schriftstück. — Für generally will Bottom etwa nominally oder etwas Aehnliches sagen. 2) names of the actors ist sonst bei Sh. das Personenverzeichniss eines Dramas; hier werden jedoch zugleich die Namen der Schauspieler, welchen die Rollen zuertheilt werden, damit gemeint. — Für das folgende grow hat die Fol. grow on. 3) scil. merry one. Diese Redeweise ist schon vor Sh. gebräuchlich. Ebenso heisst ein merry.³ — Now, good Peter Quince, call forth your actors by the scroll. Masters, spread yourselves.⁴

Quin. Answer, as I call you. — Nick Bottom, the weaver.

Bot. Ready. Name what part I am for, and proceed.

Quin. You, Nick Bottom, are set down for Pyramus.

Bot. What is Pyramus? a lover, or a tyrant?

Quin. A lover, that kills himself most gallantly⁵ for love.

Bot. That will ask some tears in the true performing of it: if I do it, let the audience look to their eyes; I will move storms, I will condole⁶ in some measure. To the rest:⁷ — yet my chief humour is for a tyrant: I could play Eracles⁸ rarely, or a part to tear a cat in,⁹ to make all split.

»The raging rocks,
And shivering shocks,
Shall break the locks
Of prison gates:
And Phibbus'¹⁰ car
Shall shine from far,
And make and mar
The foolish Fates.«

This was lofty! — Now name the rest of the players. — This is Eracles' vein, a tyrant's vein; a lover is more condoling.

Quin. Francis Flute, the bellows-mender.

Flu. Here, Peter Quince.

Quin. You must take Thisby on you.

Flu. What is Thisby? a wandering knight?

Quin. It is the lady that Pyramus must love.

Flu. Nay, faith, let me not play a woman: I have a beard coming.¹¹

Quin. That's all one. You shall play it in a mask, and you may speak as small¹² as you will.

Bot. An I may hide my face, let me play Thisby too. I'll speak in a monstrous little voice: — »Thisne, Thisne,« — »Ah, Pyramus, my lover dear! thy Thisby dear, and lady dear!«

Quin. No, no; you must play Pyramus, and, Flute, you Thisby.

Bot. Well, proceed.

Quin. Robin Starveling, the tailor.

Star. Here, Peter Quince.

Quin. Robin Starveling, you must play Thisby's mother. — Tom Snout, the tinker.

Snout. Here, Peter Quince.

Quin. You, Pyramus's father; myself, Thisby's father.¹³ — Snug, the joiner, you, the lion's part; — and, I hope, here¹⁴ is a play fitted.

Snug. Have you the lion's part written? pray you, if it be, give it me, for I am slow of study.¹⁵

Quin. You may do it extempore, for it is nothing but roaring.

Bot. Let me play the lion too. I will roar, that I will do any man's heart good to hear me: I will roar, that I will make the duke say, »Let him roar again, let him roar again.«

Quin. An you should do it too terribly, you would fright the duchess and the ladies, that they would shriek; and that were enough to hang us all.

All. That would hang us, every mother's son.

Bot. I grant you, friends, if that you should fright the ladies out of their wits, they would have no more discretion but to hang us; but I will aggravate¹⁶ my voice so, that I will roar you as gently as any sucking dove:¹⁷ I will roar you an't were any nightingale.

Quin. You can play no part but Pyramus; for Pyramus is a sweet-faced man; a proper man, as one shall see in a summer's day;¹⁸ a most lovely, gentlemanlike man; therefore, you must needs play Pyramus.

Bot. Well, I will undertake it. What beard were I best to play it in?

Quin. Why, what you will.

Bot. I will discharge it in either your straw-colour beard, your orange-tawny beard, your purple-in-grain beard, or your French-crown-colour beard, your perfect yellow.¹⁹

Quin. Some of your French crowns²⁰ have no hair at Drama von Skelton: Magnificence, a goodly interlude and a merry. 4) Breitet Euch aus, tretet auseinander. 5) So die Fol.; die Qs. haben gallant. 6) to condole = klagen, kläglich thun. — Das vorhergehende storms bezieht sich auf eyes = Stürme in den Augen der Damen, Thränenfluthen. 7) Kommt jetzt zu den übrigen Schauspielern, ausser mir. — Staunton verbindet, wie die alten Ausgg., yet mit dem Vorhergehenden, statt mit dem Folgenden. Indess ist yet hier schwerlich, wie allerdings an manchen andern Stellen, synonym mit now, sondern = jedoch. Bottom leitet mit yet den Ausdruck des Bedauerns ein, dass er einen Liebhaber, keinen Tyrannen zu spielen habe. 8) Eracles verstümmelt aus Hercules. Dass Hercules mehrfach auf der vorshakspere'schen Bühne eine Kraftrolle spielte, ergiebt sich aus einer Anspielung in Greene's Groatsworth of Wit, wo ein Schauspieler sagt The twelve labours of Hercules have I terribly thundered on the stage. — Vielleicht sind die folgenden Verse, welche Bottom declamirt, aus einem solchen bombastischen Stücke, dessen Held Hercules war, oder Sh. dichtete sie als Persiflage in der Manier eines solchen. — In Qs. und Fol. sind sie als Prosa gedruckt. 9) Eine grimmige, bramarbasirende Rolle. — Der sprichwörtliche Ausdruck kommt in demselben Sinne auch in dem Drama Histriomastix (1610) vor: Sirrah, this is you that would rend and tear a cat upon a stage. — So bezeichnet das folgende to make all split ebenfalls einen Eisenfresser und Renommisten auf der Bühne. 10) Phibbus entstellt aus Phoebus. 11) Die Weiberrollen wurden sonst auf dem Sh.'schen Theater von Knaben und unbärtigen Jünglingen gespielt, und Flute soll daher, um seinen Bart zu verstecken, eine Maske vornehmen. 12) to speak small = fein, im Discant reden. Dasselbe versteht gleich darauf Bottom unter little voice. 13) Theobald macht darauf aufmerksam, dass bei der späteren Aufführung des Spiels von Pyramus und Thisbe die Eltern der Beiden nicht auftreten; vielleicht fielen sie fort, als zwei andere neue Rollen, Mauer und Mondschein, besetzt werden mussten. 14) here in den Qs., there in der Fol. 15) study = das Einstudiren, Auswendiglernen einer Rolle. So in Hamlet (A. 2, Sc. 2) you could, for a need, study a speech of some dozen or sixteen lines. 16) to aggravate gebraucht Bottom missverständlich = mildern, wie die Wirthin in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 2, Sc. 4) I beseech you now, aggravate your choler. 17) Bottom, der etwa an sucking lamb denkt, meint einfach eine junge Taube. — Hinter dem folgenden roar lässt die Fol. das you weg. — an't were = as if it were. 18) Ein so hübscher, stattlicher Mann, wie man nur einen an einem Tage im Sommer, wo die Tage am längsten all, and then you will play bare-faced. — But, masters, here are your parts; and I am to entreat you, request you, and desire you, to con them by to-morrow night, and meet me in the palace wood, a mile without the town, by moonlight: there will we rehearse; for if we meet in the city, we shall be dogged with company, and our devices known. In the meantime I will draw a bill of properties,²¹ such as our play wants. I pray you, fail me not.

Bot. We will meet; and there we may rehearse more obscenely,²² and courageously. Take pains; be perfect;²³ adieu.

Quin. At the duke's oak we meet.

Bot. Enough; hold, or cut bowstrings.²⁴ [Exeunt.]

ACT II.

SCENE I.

A Wood near Athens.

*Enter a Fairy and Puck from opposite sides.*¹

Puck. How now, spirit! whither wander you?

Fai. Over hill, over dale,
Thorough² bush, thorough brier,
Over park, over pale,
Thorough flood, thorough fire,
I do wander every where,
Swifter than the moon's sphere;³

And I serve the fairy queen,
To dew her orbs upon the green:⁴
The cowslips tall her pensioners⁵ be;
In their gold coats spots you see;
Those be rubies, fairy favours,
In those freckles live their savours:

I must go seek some dew-drops here,
And hang a pearl in every cowslip's ear.

Farewell, thou lob of spirits:⁶ I'll be gone;

Our queen and all her elves come here anon.

Puck. The king doth keep his revels here to-night.

Take heed, the queen come not within his sight;

For Oberon is passing fell and wrath,

Because that she as her attendant hath

A lovely boy, stol'n from an Indian king:

She never had so sweet a changeling;⁷

And jealous Oberon would have the child

Knight of his train, to trace⁸ the forests wild;

But she, perforce, withholds the loved boy,

Crowns him with flowers, and makes him all her joy.

And now they never meet in grove, or green,

By fountain clear, or spangled starlight sheen,⁹

But they do square;¹⁰ that all their elves, for fear,

Creep into acorn cups, and hide them there.

Fai. Either I mistake your shape and making quite,

Or else you are that shrewd and knavish sprite,

Call'd Robin Good-fellow. Are you not he,

That frights¹¹ the maidens of the villagery;¹²

Skim milk, and sometimes labour in the quern,¹³ sind, sehen kann. — Die Redensart ist sprichwörtlich. 19) Auf dem Sh.'schen Theater wechselte man in der Wahl der künstlichen Bärte, je nach dem Charakter der Rollen, und Bottom schlägt, unpassend genug für eine Liebhaberrolle, lauter Bärte vor, wie sie die Spitzbuben, Mörder und Verräther auf der Bühne zu tragen pflegen. — perfit in den Qs. für perfect der Fol. 20) Wortspiel zwischen French-crown-colour = goldfarbig, von der Farbe der französischen Goldmünze, und French crown = ein Schädel, der in Folge der Lustseuche kahl geworden ist. — Die Fol. hat French-crown colour'd. 21) a bill of properties = ein Verzeichniss der Theaterrequisiten. 22) obscenely gebraucht eben so missverständlich wie hier Costard in Love's Labour's Lost (A. 4, Sc. 1) so obscenely, as it were, so fit. — more obscenely in Q. B. und Fol. scheint, in Bezugnahme auf das Vorhergehende: there will we rehearse; for if we meet in the city etc., der Lesart in Q. A. most obscenely vorzuziehen. Sie können im Walde besser eine Probe abhalten, als in der Stadt. 23) scil. perfect in your parts. Sie sollen ihre Rollen bis dahin auswendig wissen. 24) Diese sprichwörtliche Redensart, wozu aus dem Vorhergehenden we will meet zu suppliren wäre, ist von einem Rendez-vous einer Schützengesellschaft und der Verabredung dazu entlehnt. — Die genauere Interpretation giebt Capell so: When a party was made at butts, assurance of meeting was given in the words of that phrase: the sense of the person using them being, that he would „hold“ or keep promise, or they might „cut his bowstrings“, demolish him for an archer.

1) Die alte Bühnenweisung ist Enter a Fairy at one door, and Robin Good-fellow at another. — Unter den Thüren sind die auf der Sh.'schen Bühne rechts und links befindlichen gemeint. — Robin Good-fellow wird auch hier mit seinem familiären Namen Puck genannt, was ursprünglich einen Dämon bezeichnet. 2) So Q. A. hier und in dem Folgenden; Q. B. und Fol. setzen alle vier Mal through. 3) Manche Hgg. schreiben moones sphere und lesen also auch moones zweisylbig. Nach der Orthographie der Qs. und der Fol. Moons sphere ist eher anzunehmen, dass, um das Zusammentreffen der beiden s zu vermeiden, ein die Aussprache erleichterndes e zwischen moon's und sphere einzuschieben ist. 4) Die abgezirkelten Kreise auf dem Rasen, in denen die Feen ihre nächtlichen Tänze halten. Sh. beschreibt sie ausführlicher in Merry Wives of Windsor (A. 5, Sc. 5) And nightly, meadow-fairies, look, you sing, || Like to the Garter's compass, in a ring: || The expressure that it bears, green let it be, || More fertile-fresh than all the field to see. 5) pensioners hiessen die stattlichen Edelleute, welche eine Ehrengarde der Königin Elisabeth bildeten. Ihre glänzende Tracht, Gold und Roth, wird hier verglichen mit den ähnlichen Farben der Schlüsselblume, einer Lieblingsblume der Feen. 6) lob of spirits = der täppische Gesell unter den Geistern, heisst der koboldartige Puck hier verächtlich im Gegensatze zu den feinen und graziösen Spielen der Feenelfen. 7) changeling, eigentlich = ein Kind, das die Feen mit einem andern vertauschen oder unterschieben, hier = ein Feenkind überhaupt. 8) to trace = auf der Spur folgen, durchstreifen. 9) sheen fasst Johnson hier als das veraltete Adjectiv = shining, bright. Vielleicht ist das Wort aber auch hier substantivisch = Schein, Glanz, wie in Hamlet (A. 3, Sc. 2) And thirty dozen moons, with borrow'd sheen. 10) to square = rechten mit einander, zanken. 11) So Qs. und Fol. — Malone setzte in Uebereinstimmung mit den folgenden Verben skim, labour etc. hier fright, durch Attraction auf you bezüglich. Solche Lizenz in der Construction ist indess in der Manier Sh.'s, der bei skim etc. vergass, dass nicht you, sondern das Relativpronomen that das Subject war. — Die Streiche, welche hier dem Puck Schuld gegeben werden und zu denen er sich gleich selbst bekennt,

And bootless make the breathless housewife churn;
And sometime make the drink to bear no barm;¹⁴
Mislead night-wanderers, laughing at their harm?
Those that Hobgoblin call you, and sweet Puck,
You do their work, and they shall have good luck.
Are not you he?

Puck. Thou speak'st aright;
I am that merry wanderer of the night.
I jest to Oberon, and make him smile,
When I a fat and bean-fed horse beguile,
Neighing in likeness of a filly foal:
And sometime lurk I in a gossip's bowl,¹⁵
In very likeness of a roasted crab;
And, when she drinks, against her lips I bob,
And on her wither'd dewlap pour the ale.
The wisest aunt, telling the saddest tale,
Sometime for three-foot stool mistaketh me;
Then slip I from her bum, down topples she,
And »tailor« cries,¹⁶ and falls into a cough;
And then the whole quire hold their hips, and laugh,¹⁷
And waxen¹⁸ in their mirth, and neeze, and swear
A merrier hour was never wasted there. —
But room, fairy:¹⁹ here comes Oberon.

Fai. And here my mistress. — 'Would that he were gone!²⁰

SCENE II.

Enter OBERON from one side, with his Train, and TITANIA from the other, with hers.

Obe. Ill met by moonlight, proud Titania.

Tita. What, jealous Oberon! Fairies, skip hence:¹
I have forsworn his bed and company.

Obe. Tarry, rash wanton. Am not I thy lord?

Tita. Then I must be thy lady; but I know

When thou hast² stol'n away from fairy land,
And in the shape of Corin sat all day,
Playing on pipes of corn,³ and versing⁴ love
To amorous Phillida. Why art thou here,
Come from the farthest steep of India,
But that, forsooth, the bouncing Amazon,
Your buskin'd mistress and your warrior love,
To Theseus must be wedded? and you come
To give their bed joy and prosperity.

Obe. How canst thou thus, for shame, Titania,
Glance at my credit with Hippolyta,
Knowing I know thy love to Theseus?
Didst thou not lead him through the glimmering night
From Perigenia,⁵ whom he ravished?
And make him with fair Æglé break his faith,
With Ariadne, and Antiopa?

Tita. These are the forgeries of jealousy:
And never, since the middle summer's spring,⁶
Met we on hill, in dale, forest, or mead,
By paved fountain, or by rushy brook,⁷
Or in⁸ the beached margin of the sea,
To dance our ringlets to the whistling wind,
But with thy brawls thou hast disturb'd our sport.
Therefore the winds, piping to us in vain,
As in revenge, have suck'd up from the sea
Contagious fogs; which, falling in the land,
Have every pelting⁹ river made so proud,
That they have overborne their continents:¹⁰
The ox hath therefore stretch'd his yoke in vain,
The ploughman lost his sweat, and the green corn
Hath rotted, ere his youth attain'd a beard:¹¹
The fold stands empty in the drowned field,
And crows are fatted with the murrain flock:¹²
The nine men's morris¹³ is fill'd up with mud;
And the quaint mazes in the wanton green entlehnte der Dichter aus dem Aberglauben der Zeit. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 271—273. 12) villagery = Dorfbewohnerschaft, ländliche Bevölkerung. — Q. B. und Fol. schreiben das nur hier vorkommende Wort villagery; Q. A. hat villageree. 13) quern fassen die Hgg. hier = Handmühle, in der Korn gemahlen wird. Es ist wohl eher das jetzige churn oder kern = Butterfass, in welchem die Milch gebuttert wird. — Puck treibt sein necki-sches Wesen in solchem Butterfasse, so dass die Hausfrau sich vergebens ausser Athem buttert. 14) barm = Hefen.

15) a gossip's bowl = ein Napf voll von gewürztem Warmbier und gerösteten Äpfeln (roasted crabs), um den sich die Gevatterinnen zum Schwatzen versammelten, kommt auch in Romeo and Juliet (A. 3, Sc. 5) vor: Utter your gravity o'er a gossip's bowl. 16) Diesen Ausruf erklärt Johnson daher, dass der so unfreiwillig rückwärts Niederfallende in die Stellung geräth, die ein auf dem Boden sitzender Schneider beim Nähen einnimmt.
17) Viele Hgg. behalten die seltsame Orthographie loffe aus Qs. und Fol. bei, um des Reimes willen auf cough, das in den alten Ausgg. coffe heisst. Indess ist auch der Reim cough—laugh nicht ungenauer als vorher crab—bob.
18) waxen ist die veraltete dritte Person des Plural von to wax = wachsen, zunehmen: ihre Munterkeit nimmt
zu. — Farmer schlug dafür yoxen oder yexen vor, von to yox oder yex = to hickup. 19) Johnson setzt hier ausnahmsweise faery als ein dreisylbiges Wort, ohne dass damit jedoch dem Verse sonderlich aufgeholfen würde. 20) Die Hgg. haben hier den Anfang einer neuen Scene gesetzt, — eine Anordnung, die zwar unmotivirt, doch wegen der Uebereinstimmung in den Citaten nunmehr beibehalten werden muss.

1) Qs. und Fol. lesen fairy skip hence, was Harness mit anderer Eintheilung fairies, keep hence lesen wollte. Dyce dachte an trip für skip. Jedenfalls ist mit Theobald der Plural fairies zu setzen. 2) So die Qs.; die Fol. wast. 3) Das Haferrohr charakterisirt die einfach ländliche Hirtenmusik. 4) to verse = in Verse bringen, besingen. 5) Perigenia hat Sh. für Perigone oder Perigouna, wie in North's Plutarch die Tochter des grausamen Räubers Sinnis heisst, der den Isthmus von Korinth unsicher machte. — Für Æglé haben die alten Ausgg. unsinnig Eagles = Adler, was Rowe zuerst verbesserte. 6) Seit dem Anfang des Hochsommers. — So ist spring of day = Tagesanbruch. 7) paved fountain ist die Quelle, deren Grund mit Kieselsteinen bedeckt ist, im Gegensatz zu rushy brook = schilfichter Bach. 8) Für in der Qs. und Fol., das Sh. auch sonst im weitern Sinne gebraucht, ändern die Hgg. on. 9) pelting = geringfügig, erbärmlich. Für dieses Wort der Qs. hat die Fol. petty.
10) continent = Einfassung, Bezirk. 11) beard doppelsinnig = Bart, als Zeichen der Männlichkeit, und = Grannen an den Kornähren, als Zeichen der Reife. 12) murrain flock = die Heerde, welche durch eine Senche dahingerafft wurde. — murrion in Qs. und Fol. 13) nine men's morris oder merils, wie es eigentlich heissen sollte, war eine Art von Brettspiel, das die Hirten auf einem dazu hergerichteten Rasenflecke mit Steinen und Pflöcken spielten. — Auch die folgende Zeile bezieht sich auf ein Spiel, wo in den verschlungenen Wegen, die in dem Rasen

For lack of tread are undistinguishable:
 The human mortals want their winter here:¹⁴
 No night is now with hymn or carol¹⁵ blest; —
 Therefore the moon, the governess of floods,
 Pale in her anger, washes all the air,
 That rheumatic diseases do abound:
 And thorough this distemperature¹⁶ we see
 The seasons alter: hoary-headed¹⁷ frosts
 Fall in the fresh lap of the crimson rose;
 And on old Hiems' thin¹⁸ and icy crown,
 An odorous chaplet of sweet summer buds
 Is, as in mockery, set. The spring, the summer,
 The childing¹⁹ autumn, angry winter, change
 Their wonted liveries; and the mazed world,
 By their increase,²⁰ now knows not which is which.
 And this same progeny of evils comes
 From our debate, from our dissension:
 We are their parents and original.

Obe. Do you amend it then; it lies in you.
 Why should Titania cross her Oberon?
 I do but beg a little changeling boy,
 To be my henchman.²¹

Tita. Set your heart at rest,
 The fairy land buys not the child of me.
 His mother was a votaress of my order:
 And, in the spiced Indian air, by night,
 Full often hath she gossip'd by my side,
 And sat with me on Neptune's yellow sands,
 Marking the embarked traders²² on the flood;
 When we have laugh'd to see the sails conceive,
 And grow big-bellied, with the wanton wind;²³
 Which she, with pretty and with swimming gait
 Following,²⁴ (her womb then rich with my young squire)
 Would imitate, and sail upon the land,

To fetch me trifles, and return again,
 As from a voyage, rich with merchandise.
 But she, being mortal, of that boy did die;
 And for her sake I do rear up her boy,
 And for her sake I will not part with him.

Obe. How long within this wood intend you stay?

Tita. Perchance, till after Theseus' wedding-day.

If you will patiently dance in our round,
 And see our moonlight revels, go with us;
 If not, shun me, and I will spare your haunts.

Obe. Give me that boy, and I will go with thee.

Tita. Not for thy fairy kingdom. — Fairies, away!
 We shall chide downright,²⁵ if I longer stay.

[Exit TITANIA, with her Train.

Obe. Well, go thy way: thou shalt not from this grove,

Till I torment thee for this injury. —

My gentle Puck, come hither: thou remember'st

Since once I sat upon a promontory,

And heard a mermaid on a dolphin's back

Uttering such dulcet and harmonious breath,²⁶

That the rude sea grew civil at her song,

And certain²⁷ stars shot madly from their spheres,

To hear the sea-maid's music.

Puck. I remember.

Obe. That very time I saw (but thou couldst not),

Flying between the cold moon and the earth,

Cupid all arm'd: a certain aim he took

At a fair vestal throned by the west,²⁸

And loos'd his love-shaft smartly from his bow,

As it should pierce a hundred thousand hearts.²⁹

But I might see young Cupid's fiery shaft

Quench'd in the chaste beams of the wat'ry moon,

And the imperial votaress³⁰ passed on, abgetreten sind, die Spielenden nach bestimmten Regeln umherlaufen. 14) human mortals = sterbliche Menschen, steht, wie Chapman in seiner Uebersetzung des Homer. mortal humans hat, ohne dass dabei nothwendig an eine vermeintliche Unsterblichkeit der Feen zu denken wäre. — Theobald las their winter cheer; indess ist der Sinn wohl, dass die Sterblichen jetzt den gewohnten Winter mit seiner Ruhe und Behaglichkeit entbehren, und statt dessen einen unnatürlich feuchten und ungesunden zu bestehen haben. — here, das Malone mit in this country erklärt, ist wohl eher, wie häufig bei Sh., als Zeitadverbium, mit Hinweisung auf das jetzt, in Folge des Streits zwischen Oberon und Titania, sich herausstellende mannigfache Unheil zu deuten, worauf auch das vorher und nachher wiederkehrende therefore geht. 15) carols sind die christmas carols, die Weihnachtslieder erbaulicher oder heiterer Art, die um die Weihnachtszeit zwölf Nächte lang von Kindern auf den Strassen gesungen wurden. 16) distemperature erklärt Steevens mit perturbation of the elements; Malone deutet es plausibler auf die Verstimmung zwischen Oberon und Titania, welche eine Verkehrung der Jahreszeiten und eine Störung ihres regelmässigen Verlaufes veranlasst habe. — Ueber eine mögliche Zeitanspielung Sh.'s vgl. Einleitung pag. 271. 17) Q. A. hat hoary, Q. B. und Fol. hoared. 18) thin emendirt Tyrwhitt das chin der Qs. und Fol. — Der Winter wird als ein Greis mit kahlem, eisgrauem Schädel gedacht. So in K. Richard II. (A. 3, Sc. 2) Whitebeards have arm'd their thin and hairless scalps. — So personificirt lässt Sh. den Winter in Love's Labour's Lost (A. 5, Sc. 2) zum Schluss auftreten: this side is Hiems, Winter. 19) childing = Kinder zeugend, fruchtbar. 20) by their increase gehört zu knows not: die Welt ist durch diesen Wechsel der Jahreszeiten verwirrt und erkennt nicht mehr an ihren Producten, die nicht mehr zu rechter Zeit erscheinen, welche Jahreszeit gerade ist. 21) henchman = Ehrenpage. — changeling boy ist dasselbe wie changeling. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 7. 22) Die Handelsschiffe, die auf dem Meer fahren. — Wie trader = Handelsschiff, gebraucht Sh. auch merchant in Tempest (A. 2, Sc. 1) the master of some merchant. 23) scil. conceive with the wanton wind = schwanger werden von dem Winde. 24) following = als Beispiel folgend, nachahmend, hat das vorhergehende which zum Object, und dieses which bezieht sich auf den ganzen vorhergehenden Satz to see the sails conceive etc. — Manche Hgg. setzen following mit in die Parenthese und lassen her womb davon abhängen. 25) Oberon und Titania würden geradezu in ein Gezänk gerathen, wenn Titania länger bliebe. 26) Wie to breathe = Etwas laut werden lassen, ist breath = Laut. 27) certain ist eine unbestimmte Zahlenangabe, = einige Sterne. So in Tempest (A. 5, Sc. 1) certain fathoms. 28) Ueber die Hindeutung auf die Königin Elisabeth, welche man in dieser Stelle hat finden wollen, sowie über die Entstehung der Blume Stiefmütterchen (Love-in-idleness), wie Oberon sie hier berichtet, vgl. Einleitung pag. 274 u. 275. 29) Cupido schoss den Pfeil so energisch ab, als ob er damit nicht ein Herz, sondern hunderttausend durchbohren wollte. 30) imperial votaress heisst die fair vestal, weil sie das Gelübde der Keuschheit abgelegt. 31) fancy-free = frei von der Liebes-

In maiden meditation, fancy-free.³¹
 Yet mark'd I where the bolt of Cupid fell:
 It fell upon a little western flower,
 Before milk-white, now purple with love's wound,
 And maidens call it Love-in-idleness.
 Fetch me that flower; the herb I show'd thee once:
 The juice of it, on sleeping eyelids laid,
 Will make or man or woman madly dote
 Upon the next live creature that it sees.
 Fetch me this herb; and be thou here again,
 Ere the leviathan can swim a league.

Puck. I'll put a girdle round about the earth
 In forty minutes.³²

[Exit.

Obe. Having once this juice,
 I'll watch Titania when she is asleep,
 And drop the liquor of it in her eyes:
 The next thing then she waking looks upon
 (Be it on lion, bear, or wolf, or bull,
 On meddling monkey, or on busy ape),
 She shall pursue it with the soul of love.³³
 And ere I take this charm off from her sight
 (As I can take it with another herb),
 I'll make her render up her page to me. —
 But who comes here? I am invisible,³⁴
 And I will overhear their conference.

Enter DEMETRIUS, HELENA following him.

Dem. I love thee not, therefore pursue me not.
 Where is Lysander, and fair Hermia?
 The one I'll slay, the other slayeth me.³⁵
 Thou toldst me, they were stol'n into this wood;
 And here am I, and wood³⁶ within this wood,
 Because I cannot meet my Hermia.
 Hence! get thee gone, and follow me no more.

Hel. You draw me, you hard-hearted adamant:³⁷
 But yet you draw not iron, for my heart
 Is true as steel: leave you your power to draw,
 And I shall have no power to follow you.

Dem. Do I entice you? do I speak you fair?
 Or, rather, do I not in plainest truth
 Tell you I do not,³⁸ nor I cannot love you?

Hel. And even for that do I love you the more.
 I am your spaniel; and, Demetrius,
 The more you beat me, I will fawn on you:
 Use me but as your spaniel, spurn me, strike me,
 Neglect me, lose me; only give me leave,

Unworthy as I am, to follow you.
 What worser place can I beg in your love
 (And yet a place of high respect with me),
 Than to be used as you use your dog?³⁹

Dem. Tempt not too much the hatred of my spirit,
 For I am sick when I do look on thee.

Hel. And I am sick when I look not on you.

Dem. You do impeach⁴⁰ your modesty too much,
 To leave the city, and commit yourself
 Into the hands of one that loves you not;
 To trust the opportunity of night,
 And the ill counsel of a desert place,
 With the rich worth of your virginity.

Hel. Your virtue is my privilege for that.⁴¹
 It is not night, when I do see your face,
 Therefore I think I am not in the night;
 Nor doth this wood lack worlds of company,
 For you, in my respect, are all the world:
 Then how can it be said I am alone,
 When all the world is here to look on me?

Dem. I'll run from thee, and hide me in the brakes,
 And leave thee to the mercy of wild beasts.

Hel. The wildest hath not such a heart as you.
 Run when you will, the story shall be chang'd;
 Apollo flies, and Daphne holds the chase:
 The dove pursues the griffin; the mild hind
 Makes speed to catch the tiger. Bootless speed,
 When cowardice pursues, and valour flies!

Dem. I will not stay thy questions:⁴² let me go;
 Or, if thou follow me, do not believe
 But I shall do thee mischief in the wood.

Hel. Ay, in the temple, in the town, the field,⁴³
 You do me mischief. Fie, Demetrius!
 Your wrongs do set a scandal on my sex.
 We cannot fight for love, as men may do;
 We should be woo'd, and were not made to woo.
 I'll follow thee,⁴⁴ and make a heaven of hell,
 To die upon the hand I love so well.⁴⁵

[Exeunt DEMETRIUS and HELENA.

Obe. Fare thee well, nymph: ere he do leave this grove,
 Thou shalt fly him, and he shall seek thy love. —

Re-enter PUCK.

Hast thou the flower there? Welcome, wanderer.

Puck. Ay, there it is.

Obe. I pray thee, give it me.

schwärmerei, welche Cupido's Pfeil erregt hätte, wenn er nicht sein Ziel verfehlt, oder wenn dessen Gluth (fiery shaft) in den keuschen Strahlen des Mondes, d. h. an Luna's Keuschheit, sich nicht gelöscht hätte. 32) Puck spricht nicht von dem, was er jetzt thun will, sondern was er sich getraute zu thun, wenn Oberon seine Schnelligkeit auf die Probe stellen wollte. — round fehlt in Q. B. und Fol. — to put a girdle round about the world scheint sprichwörtlich gebraucht zu sein für eine Reise um die Welt. 33) soul of love = der innerste Gehalt der Liebe, die Quintessenz der Liebe. — Drei Zeilen vorher haben Q. B. und Fol. when she für das richtige then she in Q. A. 34) Oberon macht sich mit diesen Worten unsichtbar. 35) slay und slayeth emendirt Theobald das stay und stayeth der Qs. und Fol. 36) Wortspiel zwischen dem adjectivischen wood = toll, verrückt, und wood = Wald. 37) adamant = Magnetstein, bezeichnet zugleich die Härte und die Anziehungskraft des Demetrius. 38) scil. I do not love you. 39) So die Qs.; die Fol. as you do your dog. — Malone combinirte ohne Autorität beide Lesarten zu as you do use your dog, und las also us'd einsylbig. 40) to impeach = compromittiren, blossstellen. 41) for that = was das betrifft. Tyrwhitt bezieht for that speciell auf das lange vorhergegangene to leave the city, aber der Sinn ist wohl nur: Eure Tugend stellt mich in Beziehung auf die Gefährdung meiner jungfräulichen Reinheit sicher. — Die alten Ausgg. verbinden for that mit dem Folgenden, wo es aber neben therefore müßig stände. 42) Ich will Dir nicht länger Rede stehen. — question = Gespräch, Rede, steht hier im Plural, weil Helena solche Versuche, den Demetrius in's Gespräch zu ziehen, wiederholt. 43) the field in Q. A.; Q. B. und Fol. and field. 44) So die Qs.; die Fol. I follow thee. 45) Umgekehrt hatte Hermia von Lysander gesagt That he hath turn'd a heaven unto a hell (vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 48.) — to die upon the hand ist nicht ganz to die by the hand, womit Steevens es erklärt, sondern drückt die körperliche Nähe und Berührung der

I know a bank where the wild thyme blows,⁴⁶
 Where oxlips, and the nodding violet grows;
 Quite over-canopied with luscious⁴⁷ woodbine,
 With sweet musk-roses, and with eglantine:
 There sleeps Titania, some time of the night,
 Lull'd in these flowers with dances and delight;
 And there the snake throws her enamell'd skin,
 Weed wide enough to wrap a fairy in:
 And with the juice of this I'll streak her eyes,
 And make her full of hateful fantasies.
 Take thou some of it, and seek through this grove.
 A sweet Athenian lady is in love
 With a disdainful youth: anoint his eyes;
 But do it, when the next thing he espies
 May be the lady. Thou shalt know the man
 By the Athenian garments he hath on.⁴⁸
 Effect it with some care, that he may prove
 More fond on her, than she upon her love.
 And look thou meet me ere the first cock crow.
Puck. Fear not, my lord, your servant shall do so.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE III.

Another Part of the Wood.

Enter TITANIA, with her Train.

Tita. Come, now a roundel,¹ and a fairy song;
 Then, for the third part of a minute,² hence:
 Some, to kill cankers in the musk-rose buds;
 Some, war³ with rear-mice for their leathern wings,
 To make my small elves coats; and some, keep back
 The clamorous owl, that nightly hoots, and wonders
 At our quaint spirits.⁴ Sing me now asleep;
 Then to your offices, and let me rest.

FAIRIES' SONG.

I.

1. Fai. You spotted snakes, with double tongue,⁵
 Thorny hedge-hogs, be not seen;
 Newts, and blind-worms, do no wrong;
 Come not near our fairy queen.

Chorus.

Philomel, with melody
Sing in our⁶ sweet lullaby;
Lulla, lulla, lullaby; lulla, lulla, lullaby:
Never harm,
Nor spell nor charm,
Come our lovely lady nigh;
So, good night, with lullaby.

II.

2. Fai. Weaving spiders, come not here;
 Hence, you long-legg'd spinners, hence;
 Beetles black, approach not near;
 Worm, nor snail, do no offence.

Chorus.

*Philomel, with melody, etc.*1. *Fai.*⁷ Hence, away! now all is well.

One, aloof, stand sentinel.

[Exeunt Fairies. TITANIA sleeps.]

Enter OBERON, and squeezes the flower on TITANIA's eyelids.⁸

Obe. What thou seest, when thou dost wake,
 Do it for thy true-love take;
 Love, and languish for his sake:
 Be it ounce, or cat, or bear,
 Pard, or boar with bristled hair,
 In thy eye that shall appear
 When thou wak'st, it is thy dear.
 Wake when some vile thing is near. [Exit.]

Enter LYSANDER and HERMIA.

Lys. Fair love, you faint with wandering in the wood;
 And, to speak troth, I have forgot our way:
 We'll rest us, Hermia, if you think it good,
 And tarry for the comfort of the day.

Her. Be it so, Lysander: find you out a bed,
 For I upon this bank will rest my head.

Lys. One turf shall serve as pillow for us both:
 One heart, one bed, two bosoms, and one troth.

Her. Nay, good Lysander; for my sake, my dear,
 Lie further off yet: do not lie so near.

Lys. O, take the sense, sweet, of my innocence!⁹
 Love takes the meaning in love's conference.

I mean, that my heart unto yours is knit,
 So that but one heart we can¹⁰ make of it:
 Two bosoms interchained with an oath;
 So then, two bosoms, and a single troth.

Then, by your side no bed-room me deny,
 For, lying so, Hermia, I do not lie.¹¹

Her. Lysander riddles very prettily.
 Now much beshrew my manners and my pride,¹²
 If Hermia meant to say Lysander lied.
 But, gentle friend, for love and courtesy
 Lie further off; in human modesty
 Such separation¹³ as may well be said erwürgenden Hand zugleich mit aus. 46) Zur Verbesserung des Verses las Pope whereon für where, das Malone dagegen zweisylbig lesen wollte. Eher liesse sich noch thyme zweisylbig sprechen. 47) Für luscious vermuthete Theobald des Verses wegen das synonyme lush. 48) Zu dem ungenauen Reim man—on vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 17.

1) roundel = Ringeltanz. 2) Eine so kurze Zeitfrist genügt den Feen, die Aufträge ihrer Königin zu erfüllen. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 2, Anm. 32. 3) scil. some, to war. — rear-mouse = Fledermaus. Aus der Flügelhaut der Fledermäuse werden den jungen Elfen Röcke gemacht. 4) Die Eule heult bei Nacht verwundert die Elfengeister und ihr gewandtes und artiges Treiben an. 5) double tongue = eine gespaltene Zunge. 6) So die Qs.; die Fol. your. 7) So die Fol.; die Qs. theilen diese Worte der zweiten Fee zu. 8) Diese Bühnenweisung ist modern. 9) Fasse, du Süsse, den Sinn meiner unschuldigen Meinung auf, wie in dem Liebesgespräch die Liebe selbst die richtige Deutung fasst. 10) Für we can der Qs. hat die Fol. can you; ebenso in der folgenden Zeile interchained der Qs. 11) Wortspiel zwischen to lie = falsch sein, lügen, und = liegen. 12) manners steht in Verbindung mit pride für das Gegentheil, für want of manners: pfui über meine Unhöflichkeit und meinen Hochmuth! 13) such separation bezieht sich auf das folgende so far be distant: in solcher Entfernung oder Scheidung, wie man in menschlicher Sittsamkeit sie wohlänständig für einen Junggesellen und ein Mädchen heissen kann, so weit haltet Euch fern. — in human modesty ist mit as may well be said zu verbinden.

Becomes a virtuous bachelor and a maid,
So far be distant; and good night, sweet friend.
Thy love ne'er alter till thy sweet life end!

Lys. Amen, amen, to that fair prayer say I;
And then end life, when I end loyalty!

Here is my bed: sleep give thee all his rest!

Her. With half that wish the wisher's eyes be press'd!

[They sleep.]

Enter Puck.

Puck. Through the forest have I gone,
But Athenian found¹⁴ I none,
On whose eyes I might approve¹⁵
This flower's force in stirring love.
Night and silence! — Who is here?
Weeds of Athens he doth wear:
This is he, my master said,
Despised the Athenian maid;
And here the maiden, sleeping sound
On the dank and dirty ground.
Pretty soul! she durst not lie
Near this lack-love, this¹⁶ kill-courtesy.
Churl, upon thy eyes I throw
All the power this charm doth owe.
When thou wak'st, let love forbid
Sleep his seat on thy eyelid.¹⁷
So awake when I am gone;
For I must now to Oberon.

[Exit.]

Enter DEMETRIUS and HELENA, running.

Hel. Stay, though thou kill me, sweet Demetrius.

Dem. I charge thee, hence, and do not haunt me thus.

Hel. O! wilt thou darkling¹⁸ leave me? do not so.

Dem. Stay, on thy peril: I alone will go. [Exit.]

Hel. O! I am out of breath in this fond chase.

The more my prayer, the lesser is my grace.¹⁹

Happy is Hermia, wheresoe'er she lies;

For she hath blessed and attractive eyes.

How came her eyes so bright? Not with salt tears:

If so, my eyes are oftener wash'd than hers.

No, no, I am as ugly as a bear;

For beasts, that meet me, run away for fear;

Therefore, no marvel, though Demetrius

Do, as a monster,²⁰ fly my presence thus.

What wicked and dissembling glass of mine
Made me compare with Hermia's sphery²¹ eyne? —
But who is here? — Lysander! on the ground?

Dead, or asleep? — I see no blood, no wound. —

Lysander, if you live, good Sir, awake.

Lys. [Awaking.] And run through fire I will, for thy sweet sake.

Transparent Helena! Nature here shows art,²²

That through thy bosom makes me see thy heart.

Where is Demetrius? O, how fit a word

Is that vile name to perish on my sword!²³

Hel. Do not say so, Lysander; say not so.

What though he love your Hermia? Lord! what though?

Yet Hermia still loves you: then be content.

Lys. Content with Hermia! No: I do repent

The tedious minutes I with her have spent.

Not Hermia, but Helena I love.²⁴

Who will not change a raven for a dove?

The will of man is by his reason sway'd,

And reason says you are the worthier maid.

Things growing are not ripe until their season;

So I, being young, till now ripe not to reason;²⁵

And touching now the point of human skill,

Reason becomes the marshal to my will,²⁶

And leads me to your eyes; where I o'erlook

Love's stories, written in love's richest book.²⁷

Hel. Wherefore was I to this keen mockery born?

When, at your hands, did I deserve this scorn?

Is 't not enough, is 't not enough, young man,

That I did never, no, nor never can,

Deserve a sweet look from Demetrius' eye,

But you must flout my insufficiency?²⁸

Good troth, you do me wrong, good sooth, you do,

In such disdainful manner me to woo.

But fare you well: perforce I must confess,

I thought you lord of more true gentleness.²⁹

O, that a lady of one man refus'd

Should of another therefore be abus'd!

[Exit.]

Lys. She sees not Hermia. — Hermia, sleep thou there;

And never may'st thou come Lysander near.

For, as a surfeit of the sweetest things

The deepest loathing to the stomach brings;

Or, as the heresies, that men do leave,

Are hated most of those they³⁰ did deceive:

14) found in Q. A; Q. B. und Fol. haben find. 15) to approve = erproben. 16) Steevens liess des Verses wegen this aus. indess lässt sich kill-courtesy = Grobian, dreisylbig lesen. 17) So möge die Liebe dem Schlaf seinen Sitz auf Deinem Augenhild untersagen; so mögest Du vor Liebe nicht wieder einschlafen können. 18) darkling = im Dunkeln. Dasselbe Adverbium in K. Lear (A. 1, Sc. 4) out went the candle, and we were left darkling. 19) my grace = die Huld oder Gunst, die mir zu Theil wird. 20) as a monster gehört zu my presence: da ich ein Ungeheuer bin. 21) sphery = sternengleich, von sphere = Gestirn in seiner Sphäre. — Zu eyne vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 56. — to compare with, intransitiv = es mit Etwas aufnehmen, sich mit Jemandem messen. 22) So die zweite Folioausg. von 1632. — Die Qs. lesen nature shows art, die Fol. nature her shows art, was Malone in nature shows her art umstellt. Indess tritt die Antithese von nature und art ohne her deutlicher hervor, und here, was Steevens mit in this instance erklärt, ist vielleicht = hierin, in Bezug auf das folgende that. 23) on my sword, gleichsam = auf mein Schwert gespiesst. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 2, Anm. 45. 24) So Q. A.; Q. B. und Fol. fügen now vor I love ein. 25) So werde ich, der ich jung bin, erst jetzt zur Vernunft reif oder gezeitigt. — ripe ist hier Verbum. 26) will = Trieb, im Gegensatze zu reason = Vernunft: da ich jetzt den Gipfelpunkt menschlicher Urtheilskraft erreicht habe, so lenkt die Vernunft meinen bis dahin blinden Trieb. — skill ist eigentlich = Unterscheidungsvermögen. 27) So heisst in Romeo and Juliet (A. 1, Sc. 3) Graf Paris this precious book of love. 28) my insufficiency bezieht sich auf das vorhergehende That I did never — — Demetrius' eye. 29) Ich glaubte, dass Ihr ein ächteres adliges Wesen besäset. — lord of = Besitzer von Etwas. 30) Für they der Qs., scil. the heresies, hat die Fol. that. 31) Für you der Qs. hat die Fol. yet. 32) of all loves = um aller Liebe willen, oder = von allen Liebesdiensten, die Du erweisen kannst, — eine Bitte oder Beschwörung, welche auch in Merry Wives of Windsor (A. 2, Sc. 2) vorkommt. — I swoon ist in der Orthographie der Q. B. I wound, in der der Fol. I sound.

So thou, my surfeit, and my heresy,
Of all be hated, but the most of me.
And, all my powers, address your love and might
To honour Helen, and to be her knight. [Exit.]

Her. [Awaking.] Help me, Lysander, help me! do thy best,
To pluck this crawling serpent from my breast.
Ah me, for pity! — what a dream was here!
Lysander, look, how I do quake with fear.
Methought a serpent eat my heart away,
And you³¹ sat smiling at his cruel prey. —
Lysander! what, remov'd? Lysander! lord!
What, out of hearing? gone? no sound, no word?
Alack! where are you? speak, an if you hear;
Speak, of all loves!³² I swoon almost with fear.
No? — then I well perceive you are not nigh:
Either death, or you, I'll find immediately. [Exit.]

ACT III.

SCENE I.

The Same. TITANIA lying asleep.

Enter QUINCE, SNUG, BOTTOM, FLUTE, SNOUT, and STARVELING.¹

Bot. Are we all met?

Quin. Pat, pat;² and here's a marvellous convenient place for our rehearsal. This green plot shall be our stage, this hawthorn-brake our tiring-house;³ and we will do it in action, as we will do it before the duke.

Bot. Peter Quince, —

Quin. What say'st thou, bully⁴ Bottom?

Bot. There are things in this comedy of Pyramus and Thisby, that will never please. First, Pyramus must draw a sword to kill himself, which the ladies⁵ cannot abide. How answer you that?

Snout. By'r lakin, a parlous fear.⁵

Star. I believe, we must leave the killing out, when all is done.⁶

Bot. Not a whit: I have a device to make all well.
Write me a prologue; and let the prologue seem to say, we will do no harm with our swords, and that Pyramus is not killed indeed: and, for the more better assurance, tell them, that I, Pyramus, am not Pyramus, but Bottom
the weaver. This will put them out of fear.

Quin. Well, we will have such a prologue, and it shall be written in eight and six.⁷

Bot. No, make it two more: let it be written in eight and eight.

Snout. Will not the ladies be afeard of the lion?

Star. I fear it, I promise you.

Bot. Masters, you ought to consider with yourselves:
to bring in, God shield us! a lion among ladies, is a most dreadful thing; for there is not a more fearful wild-fowl⁸ than your lion living, and we ought to look to it.

Snout. Therefore, another prologue must tell he is not a lion.

Bot. Nay, you must name his name, and half his face must be seen through the lion's neck; and he himself must speak through, saying thus, or to the same defect:
— Ladies, or, Fair ladies, I would wish you, or, I would request you, or, I would entreat you, not to fear, not to tremble: my life for yours. If you think I come hither as a lion, it were pity of my life: no, I am no such thing: I am a man as other men are; and there, indeed, let him name his name, and tell them plainly he is Snug,
the joiner.⁹

Quin. Well, it shall be so. But there is two hard things: that is, to bring the moonlight into a chamber;
for you know, Pyramus and Thisby meet by moonlight.

Snug. Doth the moon shine that night we play our play?

Bot. A calendar, a calendar! look in the almanac; find out moonshine, find out moonshine.

Quin. Yes, it doth shine that night.

Bot. Why, then you may leave a casement of the great chamber-window, where we play, open; and the moon may shine in at the casement.

Quin. Ay; or else one must come in with a bush of thorns and a lanthorn, and say, he comes to disfigure,¹⁰ or to present, the person of Moonshine. Then, there is another thing: we must have a wall in the great chamber; for Pyramus and Thisby, says the story, did talk through the chink of a wall.

Snug. You can never bring in a wall. — What say you, Bottom?

Bot. Some man or other must present Wall; and let him have some plaster, or some loam, or some rough-cast about him, to signify wall; and¹¹ let him hold his fingers thus, and through that cranny shall Pyramus and Thisby whisper.

Quin. If that may be, then all is well. Come, sit down, every mother's son, and rehearse your parts. Pyramus, you begin. When you have spoken your speech, enter into that brake;¹² and so every one according to his cue.

1) Qs. und Fol. haben Enter the Clowns. 2) pat = just, gelegen, in räumlichem oder zeitlichem Sinne. 3) tiring-house oder tiring-room = Garderobezimmer der Schauspieler. Es hatte den ersteren Namen, weil es bisweilen einen besonderen Anbau bildete zu dem eigentlichen Schauspielhaus, das in seinen eigenen Räumen keinen Platz dafür darbot. 4) bully = Eisenfresser, Renommist, wird Bottom, der den zärtlichen Liebhaber darstellen soll, nur scherzweise genannt. 5) by'r lakin ist abgekürzt aus by our ladykin, ein schmeichelndes Diminutiv aus lady, und parlous ist familiär entstellt aus perilous, in einem weiteren Sinne des Wortes. 6) when all is done = am Ende. 7) d. h. in abwechselnden Versen von acht und von sechs Sylben, das gewöhnliche Metrum der englischen Ballade, wie sie von Bänkelsängern gesungen wurde, aber für Prologe weniger geeignet, welche entweder in Alexandrinern oder in fünffüssigen Jamben mit verschlungenen Reimen geschrieben wurden. 8) Bottom meint wild beast, wie er in seiner nächsten Rede defect für effect sagt. 9) Malone citirt dazu aus einer Anekdotensammlung der Zeit Folgendes, was Sh. vielleicht hier vorschwebte: There was a spectacle presented to Queen Elizabeth upon the water, and among others Harry Goldingham was to present Arion upon the dolphin's back, but finding his voice to be very hoarse and unpleasant, when he came to perform it, he tears off his disguise and swears, he was none of Arion, not he, but even honest Harry Goldingham. 10) Quince will figure sagen. 11) and setzte Collier's alter Corrector mit Recht für or der Qs. und Fol. 12) scil. that hawthorn-brake = das dichte Gebüsch von Hagedorn, das als Garderobezimmer dienen sollte. Vgl. oben Anm. 3. 13) hempen home-spuns, eigentlich = grobe Stoffe, wie der Bauer sie aus Hanf in seinem Hause spinnt und webt, Enter Puck behind.

Puck. What hempen home-spuns¹³ have we swaggering here,

So near the cradle of the fairy queen?

What, a play toward? I'll be an auditor;

An actor too, perhaps, if I see cause.

Quin. Speak, Pyramus. — Thisby, stand forth.

Pyr. »Thisby, the flowers of odious savours sweet,« —

Quin. Odours, odours.¹⁴

Pyr. — »odours savours sweet:

So hath thy breath, my dearest Thisby, dear. —

But, hark, a voice! stay thou but here awhile,

And by and by I will to thee appear.« [Exit.]

Puck. A stranger Pyramus than e'er play'd here!¹⁵ [Exit.]

This. Must I speak now?

Quin. Ay, marry, must you; for you must understand, he goes but to see a noise that he heard, and is to come again.

This. »Most radiant Pyramus, most lily-white of hue, Of colour like the red rose on triumphant brier, Most briskly juvenal, and eke most lovely Jew,¹⁶ As true as truest horse, that yet would never tire, I'll meet thee, Pyramus, at Ninny's¹⁷ tomb.«

Quin. Ninus' tomb, man. Why, you must not speak that yet; that you answer to Pyramus. You speak all your part at once, cues¹⁸ and all. — Pyramus, enter: your cue is past; it is, »never tire.«

Re-enter Puck, and Bottom with an ass's head.

This. O! — »As true as truest horse, that yet would never tire.«

Pyr. »If I were fair, Thisby, I were only thine.« —

Quin. O monstrous! O strange! we are haunted. Pray, masters! fly, masters! help! [Exeunt Clowns.]

Puck. I'll follow you, I'll lead you about a round, Through bog, through bush, through brake, through brier:

Sometime a horse I'll be, sometime a hound,

A hog, a headless¹⁹ bear, sometime a fire;

And neigh, and bark, and grunt, and roar, and burn,

Like horse, hound, hog, bear, fire, at every turn. [Exit.]

Bot. Why do they run away? this is a knavery of them, to make me afraid.

Re-enter Snout.

Snout. O Bottom! thou art changed: what do I see on thee? [Exit.]

Bot. What do you see? you see an ass-head of your own, do you?

Re-enter Quince.

Quin. Bless thee, Bottom! bless thee! thou art translated. [Exit.]

Bot. I see their knavery. This is to make an ass of me, to fright me, if they could. But I will not stir from this place, do what they can. I will walk up and down here, and I will sing, that they shall hear I am not afraid. [Sings.]

The ousel-cock,²⁰ so black of hue,

With orange-tawny bill,

The throstle with his note so true,

The wren with²¹ little quill.

Tita. [Awaking.] What angel wakes me from my flowery bed?

Bot. The finch, the sparrow, and the lark,

The plain-song cuckoo gray,²²

Whose note full many a man doth mark,

And dares not answer, nay;

for, indeed, who would set his wit to so foolish a bird? who would give a bird the lie, though he cry »cuckoo« never so?²³

Tita. I pray thee, gentle mortal, sing again:

Mine ear is much enamour'd of thy note;²⁴

So is mine eye enthralled to thy shape;

And thy fair virtue's force, perforce, doth move me,

On the first view, to say, to swear, I love thee.

Bot. Methinks, mistress, you should have little reason for that: and yet, to say the truth, reason and love keep little company together now-a-days. The more the pity, that some honest neighbours will not make them friends. Nay, I can glee²⁵ upon occasion.

Tita. Thou art as wise as thou art beautiful.

Bot. Not so, neither; but if I had wit enough to get out of this wood, I have enough to serve mine own turn.

Tita. Out of this wood do not desire to go:

Thou shalt remain here, whether thou wilt or no.

I am a spirit of no common rate;

The summer still doth tend upon my state;

And I do love thee: therefore, go with me;

hier im übertragenen Sinne = Bauerlummel, grobe Leute. 14) So die Fol.; die Qs. haben Odours, odorous. — In umgekehrter Weise wird odious und odorous verwechselt in Much Ado about Nothing (A. 3, Sc. 5) comparisons are odorous. — Doch ist die eigentliche Construction the flowers savour sweet of odours, und in Uebereinstimmung damit setzte Pope doth für das folgende hath, indem er das fortgeführte Missverständniss des den Pyramus darstellenden Bottom verwischte. 15) here erklärt Steevens in that theatre where the piece was acting. Vielleicht ist play'd Particip: Hier wird ein seltsamerer Pyramus gespielt, als es je einen gab. — Die Qs. theilen diesen Vers irrthümlich dem Quince zu. — In Qs. und Fol. ist hier weder der Weggang Puck's noch später sein Wiederauftreten bezeichnet. 16) juvenal, affectirt = Jüngling, kommt auch in andern Sh.'schen Dramen vor. — eke veraltet = auch. — Jew, missverständlich oder des Reimes wegen abgekürzt für jewel, steht ebenso in Love's Labour's Lost (A. 3, Sc. 1) my incony Jew! 17) Ninny's tomb für Ninus' tomb, das Grab des alten babylonischen Königs; zugleich ninny = Tölpel. 18) cue = Stichwort in der Rolle der Schauspieler. 19) Vielleicht wäre heedless zu lesen. 20) Unter ousel-cock (in den alten Ausgg. Woosell-cock) versteht Sh. nicht den gewöhnlich so genannten Vogel, dessen Schnabel schwarz ist, sondern das Männchen des blackbird = Schwarzdrossel, das allerdings einen gelblich gefärbten Schnabel hat. 21) with in den Qs., and in der Fol. 22) Der einförmig singende graue Kuckuck. — Die Anspielung auf den Hahnrei (cuckold), dessen Schicksal der Kuckuck in seinem eintönigen Gesange verhöhnt, kehrt bei Sh. öfter in dieser Verbindung wieder. 23) Wenn der Kuckuck auch noch so sehr immer Kuckuck! ruft. 24) In Q. B. und Fol. folgen die nächsten drei Verse in dieser Reihe auf einander: On the first view etc. — So is mine eye etc. — And thy fair virtue's force etc. — Die richtige Anordnung stellte Theobald aus Q. A. zuerst wieder her. 25) to glee = spassen, Witze machen. 26) In den alten Ausgg. werden diese vier Reden in eine, allen Fairies zugetheilte, zusammengezogen. 27) Um meinen Geliebten zu Bett

I'll give thee fairies to attend on thee,
And they shall fetch thee jewels from the deep,
And sing while thou on pressed flowers dost sleep:
And I will purge thy mortal grossness so,
That thou shalt like an airy spirit go. —
Pease-blossom! Cobweb! Moth! and Mustard-seed!

Enter Four Fairies.

1. Fai. Ready.

2. Fai. And I.

3. Fai. And I.

4. Fai. Where shall we go?²⁶

Tita. Be kind and courteous to this gentleman:

Hop in his walks, and gambol in his eyes;

Feed him with apricocks, and dewberries,

With purple grapes, green figs, and mulberries.

The honey-bags steal from the humble-bees,

And for night-tapers crop their waxen thighs,

And light them at the fiery glow-worm's eyes,

To have my love to bed, and to arise;²⁷

And pluck the wings from painted butterflies,

To fan the moonbeams from his sleeping eyes.

Nod to him, elves, and do him courtesies.

1. Fai. Hail, mortal!

2. Fai. Hail!

3. Fai. Hail!

4. Fai. Hail!²⁸

Bot. I cry your worships mercy,²⁹ heartily. — I beseech your worship's name.

Cob. Cobweb.

Bot. I shall desire you of more acquaintance,³⁰ good Master Cobweb. If I cut my finger, I shall make bold with you. — Your name, honest gentleman?

Peas. Pease-blossom.

Bot. I pray you, commend me to Mistress Squash,³¹ your mother, and to Master Peascod, your father. Good Master Pease-blossom, I shall desire you of³² more acquaintance too. — Your name, I beseech you, Sir?

Mus. Mustard-seed.

Bot. Good Master Mustard-seed, I know your patience well: that same cowardly, giant-like oxbeef hath devoured many a gentleman of your house.³³ I promise you, your kindred hath made my eyes water ere now. I desire you more³⁴ acquaintance, good Master Mustard-seed.

Tita. Come, wait upon him: lead him to my bower.

The moon, methinks, looks with a watery eye;

And when she weeps, weeps every little flower,

Lamenting some enforced chastity.

Tie up my love's tongue,³⁵ bring him silently. [Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

Another Part of the Wood.

Enter OBERON.

Obe. I wonder, if Titania be awak'd;

Then, what it was that next came in her eye,

Which she must dote on in extremity.

Enter Puck.

Here comes my messenger. — How now, mad spirit?

What night-rule¹ now about this haunted grove?

Puck. My mistress with a monster is in love.

Near to her close and consecrated bower,

While she was in her dull and sleeping hour

A crew of patches,² rude mechanicals,

That work for bread upon Athenian stalls,

Were met together to rehearse a play,

Intended for great Theseus' nuptial day.

The shallowest thick-skin of that barren sort,³

Who Pyramus presented in their sport,

Forsook his scene, and enter'd in a brake,⁴

When I did him at this advantage take;

An ass's nowl⁵ I fixed on his head:

Anon, his Thisbe must be answered,

And forth my mimic⁶ comes. When they him spy,

As wild geese that the creeping fowler eye,

Or russet-pated choughs, many in sort,⁷

Rising and cawing at the gun's report,

Sever themselves, and madly sweep the sky;

So, at his sight, away his fellows fly,

And, at our stamp,⁸ here o'er and o'er one falls:

He murder cries, and help from Athens calls.

Their sense thus weak, lost with their fears thus strong,

Made⁹ senseless things begin to do them wrong;

zu geleiten und wenn er aufsteht. 28) In Qs. und Fol. sagt die erste Fairy Hail, mortal, hail! und dieses hail wiederholen nur die zweite und dritte, während die vierte leer ausgeht. — Die richtige Eintheilung rührt von Steevens her. 29) Die meisten Hgg. schreiben your worship's mercy. — Indess redet Bottom hier noch alle vier Elfen, und erst nachher die einzelnen an. 30) to desire und andere Verba des Bittens werden in der älteren Sprache häufig mit dem Accusativ der Person und mit of der Sache, um die man bittet, construirt. So in Page of Plymouth: desiring them of justice. 31) squash = unreife Schote. So in Twelfth-Night (A. 1, Sc. 5) as a squash is before 't is a peascod. 32) Die Fol. stellt hier of und you um. 33) Der Senf, der zum Rindfleisch verzehrt wird, kommt auch so in Taming of the Shrew (A. 4, Sc. 3) vor: What say you to a piece of beef, and mustard? 34) Dyce ändert, in Uebereinstimmung mit dem Vorhergehenden (Anm. 32), of more; indess ist auch diese Construction statthaft. 35) love's verbessert Pope des Verses wegen das lover's der Qs. und Fol., welches die Hgg. beibehalten. my love hatte Titania den Bottom schon vorher genannt (vgl. Anm. 27 dieser Scene).

1) night-rule erklärt Douce als night-revel, woraus es entsteht sei. Nares fasst richtiger rule in der herkömmlichen Bedeutung und erklärt es such conduct as generally rules in the night. 2) patch = Narr, mit verächtlichem Nebensinn. 3) Der seichteste Lummel dieser geistlosen Gesellschaft. — thick-skin = Dickfell, als Schimpfwort in Merry Wives of Windsor (A. 4, Sc. 5). 4) his scene = die Bühne, auf der er spielte, oder die Scene, in der er auftrat. — Zu brake vgl. A. 3, Sc. 1, Anm. 12. 5) nowl = Kopf. Das veraltete Wort wird auch noll und nole geschrieben. 6) mimic, gesucht = Schauspieler, geht hier auf Pyramus, der wieder auf die Bühne kommt, wenn seine Thisbe ihre Replik im Dialog erhalten muss. — Die Fol. hat Mimmick, Q. A. minnick, und Q. B. minnock. 7) many in sort = viele zusammen, viele in einem Haufen, geht auf choughs. 8) Sowie ich mit dem Fuss auf den Boden trete, sowie ich mit schwerem Tritt unter sie trete. 9) made hat genau genommen nicht bloss their sense, sondern zugleich auch lost with their fears zum Subject: der durch ihre starke

For briars and thorns at their apparel snatch;
Some, sleeves, some, hats,¹⁰ from yielders all things catch.

I led them on in this distracted fear,
And left sweet Pyramus translated there;
When in that moment (so it came to pass)
Titania wak'd, and straightway lov'd an ass.

Obe. This falls out better than I could devise.
But hast thou yet latch'd¹¹ the Athenian's eyes
With the love-juice, as I did bid thee do?

Puck. I took him sleeping, (that is finish'd too)
And the Athenian woman by his side,
That, when he wak'd, of force she must be ey'd.¹²

Enter DEMETRIUS and HERMIA.

Obe. Stand close: this is the same Athenian.

Puck. This is the woman; but not this the man.

Dem. O! why rebuke you him that loves you so?
Lay breath so bitter on your bitter foe.

Her. Now I but chide; but I should use thee worse,
For thou, I fear, hast given me cause to curse.
If thou hast slain Lysander in his sleep,
Being o'er shoes in blood, plunge in the deep,¹³
And kill me too.

The sun was not so true unto the day,
As he to me. Would he have stol'n away
From sleeping Hermia? I'll believe as soon,
This whole earth may be bor'd, and that the moon
May through the centre creep, and so displease
Her brother's noontide with the Antipodes.¹⁴
It cannot be but thou hast murder'd him;
So should a murderer look, so dead,¹⁵ so grim.

Dem. So should the murder'd¹⁶ look, and so should I,
Pierc'd through the heart with your stern cruelty;
Yet you, the murderer, look as bright, as clear,
As yonder Venus in her glimmering sphere.

Her. What 's this to my Lysander?¹⁷ where is he?
Ah, good Demetrius, wilt thou give him me?

Dem. I had rather give his carcass to my hounds.

Her. Out, dog! out, cur! thou driv'st me past the bounds

Of maiden's patience. Hast thou slain him then?

Henceforth be never number'd among men!

O! once tell true, tell true,¹⁸ e'en for my sake;

Durst thou have look'd upon him, being awake,

And hast thou kill'd him sleeping?¹⁹ O brave touch!

Could not a worm, an adder, do so much?

An adder did it; for with doubler tongue²⁰

Than thine, thou serpent, never adder stung.

Dem. You spend your passion on a mispris'd mood:²¹

I am not guilty of Lysander's blood,

Nor is he dead, for aught that I can tell.

Her. I pray thee, tell me then, that he is well.

Dem. An if²² I could, what should I get therefore?

Her. A privilege, never to see me more. —

And from thy hated presence part I so;²³

See me no more, whether he be dead or no. [Exit.]

Dem. There is no following her in this fierce vein:

Here, therefore, for a while I will remain.

So sorrow's heaviness doth heavier grow

For debt that bankrupt sleep²⁴ doth sorrow owe;

Which now in some slight measure it will pay,

If for his tender here I make some stay. [Lies down.]

Obe. What hast thou done? thou hast mistaken quite,

And laid the love-juice on some true-love's sight:

Of thy misprision must perforce ensue

Some true-love turn'd,²⁵ and not a false turn'd true.

Puck. Then fate o'er-rules, that, one man holding troth,

A million fail, confounding oath on oath.

Obe. About the wood go swifter than the wind,

And Helena of Athens look thou find:

All fancy-sick²⁶ she is, and pale of cheer

With sighs of love, that cost the fresh blood dear.²⁷

By some illusion see thou bring her here:

I'll charm his eyes against she do appear.

Furcht veranlasste Verlust ihres ohnehin schwachen Verstandes machte, dass nun auch sinnlose Dinge anfangen, ihnen Schaden zu thun. — weak und strong stehen im Gegensatze, wie sense und senseless. 10) scil. some snatch at sleeves, some at hats. — some bezieht sich auf briars und thorns. 11) to latch leitet Hammer hier von dem französischen lécher ab und erklärt es mit to lick over. — Da das Wort in diesem Sinne aber sonst nirgendwo vorkommt, so ist es auch hier eher als ein Synonym von to catch = fassen, oder treffen, zu nehmen. Vgl. Macbeth (A. 4, Sc. 3) I have words, || That would be howl'd out in the desert air, || Where hearing should not latch them. 12) So dass bei seinem Erwachen sie das Erste sein musste, was ihm in's Auge fiel. 13) Da Du einmal so tief im Blute bist, dass es Dir in die Schuhe läuft, so tauche Dich ganz hinein und bringe auch mich um, wie Du Lysander umgebracht. — So in Two Gentlemen of Verona (A. 1, Sc. 1) For he was more than over shoes in love. 14) Dass der Mond durch den Mittelpunkt der Erde kriechen könnte und so der Sonne, die mittlerweile bei den Antipoden Mittag macht, störend in den Weg träte. 15) dead = todesstarr. 16) So die Qs.; die Fol. liest mit Verwischung des beabsichtigten Gegensatzes murderer. 17) Was liegt mir an diesen Schmeicheleien im Vergleich mit meinem Lysander? oder auch: was hat das mit meinem Lysander zu schaffen? 18) In der Fol. steht tell true nur einmal. 19) Hast Du im Schlafe Den getödtet, den Du, als er wachte, nicht einmal anzublicken wagtest? — Solch ein Benehmen nennt Hermia dann höhnisch: O schöner Zug! 20) double tongue = gespaltene Zunge, wie die Nattern haben sollen (vgl. A. 2, Sc. 3, Anm. 5), und = Doppelzüngigkeit, wie Hermia sie dem Demetrius Schuld giebt. 21) on a mispris'd mood = auf Grund einer irrigen, verkehrten Stimmung oder Laune. 22) an if, in der Schreibweise der alten Ausgg. and if, steht tautologisch für eine der beiden Partikeln. 23) so fügte Pope des Reimes wegen als nothwendige Ergänzung hinzu. — Qs. und Fol. haben ganz unmetrisch And from thy hated presence part I: see me no more, || Whether he be dead or no. — whether ist einsylbig zu lesen und vielleicht wie an andern Stellen where zu schreiben. 24) Qs. und Fol. lesen slip, von Rowe zuerst in sleep emendirt. — Der Schlaf wird als ein armer Schuldner dargestellt, der dem stets wachen Gram eine Schuld, d. h. sich selbst, zu entrichten hat. Einen Theil wenigstens dieser Schuld wird der Schlaf jetzt dem trauernden Demetrius abtragen, wenn dieser sich niederlegt in Erwartung dessen, was jener ihm darbietet (his tender). 25) some true-love turn'd = die Verkehrung einer wahren Liebe, der Abfall eines treuen Liebhabers. 26) fancy-sick = krank von Liebeschwärmerei. Vgl. fancy-free A. 2, Sc. 2, Anm. 31. 27) Die Liebesseufzer kommen dem jugendlichen Blute theuer zu stehen, da sie dasselbe verzehren und so das Antlitz blass machen. — cheer = Miene, Ansehen. —

Puck. I go, I go; look how I go;
Swifter than arrow from the Tartar's bow.

[Exit.]

Obe. Flower of this purple die,
Hit with Cupid's archery,
Sink in apple of his eye.²⁸
When his love he doth espy,
Let her shine as gloriously
As the Venus of the sky. —
When thou wak'st, if she be by,
Beg of her for remedy.

Re-enter PUCK.

Puck. Captain of our fairy band,
Helena is here at hand,
And the youth, mistook by me,
Pleading for a lover's fee.
Shall we their fond pageant see?
Lord, what fools these mortals be!

Obe. Stand aside: the noise they make
Will cause Demetrius to awake.

Puck. Then will two at once woo one;
That must needs be sport alone;²⁹
And those things do best please me,
That befall preposterously.

Enter LYSANDER and HELENA.

Lys. Why should you think that I should woo in scorn?
Scorn and derision never come in tears:
Look, when I vow, I weep; and vows so born,
In their nativity all truth appears.

How can these things in me seem scorn to you,
Bearing the badge³⁰ of faith to prove them true?

Hel. You do advance your cunning more and more.
When truth kills truth, O devilish-holy fray!³¹

These vows³² are Hermia's: will you give her o'er?
Weigh oath with oath, and you will nothing weigh:
Your vows, to her and me, put in two scales,
Will even weigh, and both as light as tales.

Lys. I had no judgment, when to her I swore.

Hel. Nor none, in my mind, now you give her o'er.

Lys. Demetrius loves her, and he loves not you.

Dem. [Awaking.] O Helen, goddess, nymph, perfect, divine!

To what, my love, shall I compare thine eyne?
Crystal is muddy. O! how ripe in show
Thy lips, those kissing cherries, tempting grow!

That pure congealed white, high Taurus'³³ snow,
Fann'd with the eastern wind, turns to a crow,
When thou hold'st up thy hand. O, let me kiss
This princess³⁴ of pure white, this seal of bliss!

Hel. O spite! O hell! I see, you all are bent³⁵
To set against me, for your merriment:

If you were civil and knew courtesy,
You would not do me thus much injury.
Can you not hate me, as I know you do,
But you must join in souls³⁶ to mock me too?
If you were³⁷ men, as men you are in show,
You would not use a gentle lady so;

To vow, and swear, and superpraise³⁸ my parts,
When, I am sure, you hate me with your hearts.
You both are rivals, and love Hermia,
And now both rivals, to mock Helena.

A trim exploit, a manly enterprise,
To conjure tears up in a poor maid's eyes
With your derision! none of noble sort³⁹
Would so offend a virgin, and extort⁴⁰

A poor soul's patience, all to make you sport.

Lys. You are unkind, Demetrius; be not so;
For you love Hermia; this, you know, I know:

And here, with all good will, with all my heart,
In Hermia's love I yield you up my part;

And yours of Helena to me bequeath,⁴¹
Whom I do love, and will do till my death.

Hel. Never did mockers waste more idle breath.

Dem. Lysander, keep thy Hermia; I will none:
If e'er I lov'd her, all that love is gone.

My heart to her⁴² but as guest-wise sojourn'd,
And now to Helen is it home return'd,
There to remain.

Lys. Helen,⁴³ it is not so.

Dem. Disparage not the faith thou dost not know,
Lest to thy peril thou aby⁴⁴ it dear. —
Look, where thy love comes: yonder is thy dear.

Enter HERMIA.

Her. Dark night, that from the eye his function takes,
The ear more quick of apprehension makes;

Wherein it doth impair the seeing sense,
It pays the hearing double recompense. —

Thou art not by mine eye, Lysander, found;
Mine ear, I thank it, brought me to thy sound.

But why unkindly didst thou leave me so?

Qs. und Fol. haben costs für cost. 28) Oberon drückt den Saft der von Puck ihm gebrachten Blume auf Demetrius' Auge aus. — Cupid's archery geht auf das, was Oberon vorher (A. 2, Sc. 2) von der Färbung dieser Blume durch Cupido's Bogen erzählt hat: Yet mark'd I where the bolt of Cupid fell etc. 29) sport alone = unvergleichlicher Spass, ein Spass, dem kein anderer zur Seite steht. So in Two Gentlemen of Verona (A. 2, Sc. 4) She is alone. 30) badge = Abzeichen der Dienstbarkeit. 31) Wenn im Widerstreit ein Treugelübde das andere aufhebt oder vernichtet, so ist das zwischen beiden ein Zweikampf, der, obwohl Fromme ihn führen, doch in seinem Ausgange teuflisch ist. 32) Diese Gelübde, die Ihr mir weilt, gehören von Rechts wegen der Hermia. 33) Dieses in Kleinasien gelegene Gebirge wird sonst bei Sh. nicht erwähnt. — So in Winter's Tale (A. 4, Sc. 3) or the fann'd snow || That's bolted by the northern blasts twice o'er. 34) Helena's weisse Hand heisst, weiblich personificirt, = die Fürstin alles Weissen. — Hammer änderte ohne Noth princess in pureness um, und Collier schlug impress dafür vor. 35) So die Qs.; die Fol. you are all bent. 36) in souls = im Herzen, in Seelenübereinstimmung. — Der Plural steht, weil von Mehreren die Rede ist. 37) were in den Qs.; are in der Fol. 38) to superpraise = übertrieben loben. Sh. hat das Wort nur hier. 39) sort = Rang, Stand. 40) to extort, sonst = erpressen, ist hier in ungewöhnlichem Sinn = martern, quälen. 41) bequeath ist Imperativ: übermacht Ihr mir den Antheil, den Ihr an Helena's Liebe habt. 42) Für to her der Qs. und Fol. änderte Johnson with her. — to her steht jedoch in allgemeinerer Beziehung = ihr gegenüber, im Verhältniss zu ihr, zugleich durch Attraction von guest-wise, gleichsam as a guest to her. 43) Q. B. und Fol. lassen Helen aus. 44) to aby = Etwas bezahlen, für Etwas büssen. So in Spenser's Faerie Queene: That direful stroke thou dearly shalt aby. — Q. A. hat aby, Q. B. und die Fol. abide. 45) Lysander's Liebe ist Helena, die ihm an jenem Platze nicht länger

Lys. Why should he stay, whom love doth press to go?

Her. What love could press Lysander from my side?

Lys. Lysander's love, that would not let him bide,⁴⁵
Fair Helena, who more engilds the night
Than all yon fiery O's⁴⁶ and eyes of light.
Why seek'st thou me? could not this make thee know,
The hate I bear thee made me leave thee so?

Her. You speak not as you think: it cannot be.

Hel. Lo! she is one of this confederacy.

Now I perceive they have conjoin'd all three,
To fashion this false sport in spite of me.
Injurious Hermia! most ungrateful maid!
Have you conspir'd, have you with these contriv'd⁴⁷
To bait me with this foul derision?

Is all the counsel that we two have shar'd,
The sisters' vows, the hours that we have spent,
When we have chid the hasty-footed time
For parting us, — O! is all forgot?⁴⁸

All school-days' friendship, childhood innocence?

We, Hermia, like two artificial⁴⁹ gods,
Have with our needles⁵⁰ created both one flower,

Both on one sampler, sitting on one cushion,

Both warbling of one song, both in one key,

As if our hands, our sides, voices, and minds,

Had been incorporate. So we grew together,

Like to a double cherry, seeming parted,

But yet an union in partition;

Two lovely⁵¹ berries moulded on one stem;

So, with two seeming bodies, but one heart;

Two of the first,⁵² like coats in heraldry,

Due but to one, and crowned with one crest.

And will you rend our ancient love asunder,

To join with men in scorning your poor friend?

It is not friendly, 't is not maidenly:

Our sex, as well as I, may chide you for it,

Though I alone do feel the injury.

Her. I am amazed at your passionate⁵³ words.

I scorn you not: it seems that you scorn me.

Hel. Have you not set Lysander, as in scorn,

To follow me, and praise my eyes and face,

And made your other love, Demetrius,
(Who even but now did spurn me with his foot)
To call me goddess, nymph, divine, and rare,
Precious, celestial? Wherefore speaks he this
To her he hates? and wherefore doth Lysander
Deny your love, so rich within his soul,⁵⁴

And tender me, forsooth, affection,

But by your setting on, by your consent?

What though I be not so in grace as you,

So hung upon with love, so fortunate,

But miserable most to love unlov'd,

This you should pity rather than despise.

Her. I understand not what you mean by this.

Hel. Ay, do, persevere, counterfeit sad looks,

Make mouths⁵⁵ upon me when I turn my back;

Wink at each other; hold the sweet jest up:

This sport, well carried, shall be chronicled.

If you have any pity, grace, or manners,

You would not make me such an argument.⁵⁶

But, fare ye well: 't is partly mine own fault,

Which death, or absence, soon shall remedy.

Lys. Stay, gentle Helena! hear my excuse:

My love, my life, my soul, fair Helena!

Hel. O excellent!

Her. Sweet, do not scorn her so.

Dem. If she cannot entreat, I can compel.

Lys. Thou canst compel no more than she entreat:

Thy threats have no more strength than her weak prayers.⁵⁷ —

Helen, I love thee; by my life, I do:

I swear by that⁵⁸ which I will lose for thee,

To prove him false, that says I love thee not.

Dem. I say, I love thee more than he can do.

Lys. If thou say so, withdraw, and prove it too.

Dem. Quick, come, —

Her. Lysander, whereto tends all this?

Lys. Away, you Ethiop!⁵⁹

Dem. No, no, Sir: —

Seem to break loose;⁶⁰ take on, as you would follow;

But yet come not. You are a tame man, go!

aushalten oder weilen liess. 46) yon fiery O's = die Gestirne am Nachthimmel, von der runden Gestalt eines O so benannt, wie auch andere kreisförmige Dinge bei Sh. O heissen; so die Erde in Antony and Cleopatra (A. 5, Sc. 2), der rundförmige Theaterraum in K. Henry V. (A. 1, Chorus), die Maale im Angesicht in Love's Labour's Lost (A. 5, Sc. 2). 47) to contrive = intriguiren. 48) So Qs. und Fol. — Zur Vervollständigung des Verses, aber mit Verwischung der von Sh. beabsichtigten Verspause, lesen viele Hgg. mit der zweiten Folioausg. von 1632 O! and is all forgot? — Malone setzt ohne Autorität now für and. 49) artificial = kunsterfahren. — Im Sinne = verschlagen, schlaue, kommt das Wort auch bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen vor. 50) Steevens setzt des Verses wegen für needles der Qs. und Fol. das veraltete neelds. 51) lovely = liebevoll, freundlich gegen einander. So in der englischen Bibelübersetzung (2. Sam. Cap. 1, V. 23) Saul and Jonathan were lovely and pleasant in their lives, and in their death they were not divided. — So auch in Taming of the Shrew (A. 3, Sc. 2) And seal the title with a lovely kiss. 52) M. Mason giebt zu dieser heraldischen Anspielung folgende Erklärung: Every branch of a family is called a house; and none but the first of the first house can bear the arms of the family, without some distinction. Two of the first therefore means two coats of the first house, which are properly due but to one. — Qs. und Fol. lesen life für like, was zuerst Theobald verbesserte. 53) passionate, das in den Qs. fehlt, ergänzt die Fol. 54) Warum verleugnet Lysander die Liebe zu Euch, die doch so voll in seiner Seele liegt? 55) So Qs. und Fol. — Manche Hgg. setzen willkürlich mows für mou'hs. 56) argument erklärt Johnson mit subject of light merriment. Es ist wohl eher in Verbindung mit dem vorhergehenden shall be chronicled aufzufassen: ein Thema der Besprechung oder Erzählung, das auf die Nachwelt übergeht. 57) Qs. und Fol. haben praise, woraus Capell ein substantivisch sonst nicht vorkommendes prays machte. — prayers emendirte Theobald nach Massgabe des vorhergehenden Verses. 58) by that geht auf by my life. 59) Ethiop = Negerin, bei Sh. eine gewöhnliche Bezeichnung weiblicher Hässlichkeit. — In demselben Sinne steht, in Bezug auf die dunkle Farbe, bald nachher tawny Tartar. 60) So die Fol., nur mit anderer Versabtheilung. — Die Qs. haben No, no, he'll || Seem to break loose. — Malone wollte beide Lesarten vereinigen, indem er las No, no, he'll — Sir, || Seem to break loose. — Die ersten Worte richtet Demetrius an d. Lysander wegen seiner Schimpfreden gegen die Hermia; in den folgenden verspottet er Lysander's Bemühungen, sich von Hermia loszumachen, als nicht ernstlich

Lys. Hang off, thou cat, thou burr! vile thing, let loose,

Or I will shake thee from me like a serpent.

Her. Why are you grown so rude? what change is this, Sweet love?

Lys. Thy love? out, tawny Tartar, out! Out, loathed medicine! O hated potion,⁶¹ hence!

Her. Do you not jest?

Hel. Yes, sooth; and so do you.

Lys. Demetrius, I will keep my word with thee.

Dem. I would, I had your bond; for, I perceive, A weak bond holds you: I'll not trust your word.

Lys. What! should I hurt her, strike her, kill her dead? Although I hate her, I'll not harm her so.

Her. What! can you do me greater harm than hate? Hate me! wherefore? O me! what news, my love?

Am not I Hermia? Are not you Lysander?

I am as fair now, as I was erewhile.

Since night you lov'd me; yet, since night you left me.

Why, then you left me (O, the gods forbid!)

In earnest, shall I say?

Lys. Ay, by my life;

And never did desire to see thee more.

Therefore, be out of hope, of question, of doubt;⁶²

Be certain, nothing truer: 't is no jest,

That I do hate thee, and love Helena.

Her. O me! — you juggler! you canker-blossom!⁶³

You thief of love! what, have you come by night,

And stol'n my love's heart from him?

Hel. Fine, i' faith!

Have you no modesty, no maiden shame,

No touch of bashfulness? What, will you tear

Impatient answers from my gentle tongue?

Fie, fie! you counterfeit, you puppet you!

Her. Puppet! why so? Ay, that way goes the game.

Now I perceive that she hath made compare

Between our statures: she hath urg'd her height,

And with her personage, her tall personage,

Her height, forsooth, she hath prevail'd with him. —

And are you grown so high⁶⁴ in his esteem,

Because I am so dwarfish, and so low?

How low am I, thou painted maypole?⁶⁵ speak;

How low am I? I am not yet so low,

But that my nails can reach unto thine eyes.

Hel. I pray you, though you mock me, gentlemen,

Let her not hurt me: I was never curst;⁶⁶

I have no gift at all in shrewishness;

I am a right maid for my cowardice:⁶⁷

Let her not strike me. You, perhaps, may think,

Because she is something lower than myself,

That I can match her.

Her. Lower! hark, again.

Hel. Good Hermia, do not be so bitter with me.

I evermore did love you, Hermia,

Did ever keep your counsels, never wrong'd you;

Save that, in love unto Demetrius,

I told him of your stealth unto this wood.

He follow'd you; for love, I follow'd him;⁶⁸

But he hath chid me hence, and threaten'd me

To strike me, spurn me, nay, to kill me too:

And now, so you will let me quiet go,

To Athens will I bear my folly back,

And follow you no further. Let me go:

You see how simple and how fond⁶⁹ I am.

Her. Why, get you gone. Who is 't that hinders you?

Hel. A foolish heart, that I leave here behind.

Her. What, with Lysander?

Hel. With Demetrius.

Lys. Be not afraid: she shall not harm thee, Helena.

Dem. No, Sir; she shall not, though you take her part.

Hel. O! when she is angry, she is keen and shrewd.

She was a vixen, when she went to school;

And, though she be but little,⁷⁰ she is fierce.

Her. Little again? nothing but low and little? —

Why will you suffer her to flout me thus?

Let me come to her.

Lys. Get you gone, you dwarf;

You minimus, of hindering knot-grass made;⁷¹

You bead, you acorn.

Dem. You are too officious

In her behalf that scorns your services.

Let her alone; speak not of Helena;

Take not her part, for if thou dost intend

Never so little show of love to her,

Thou shalt aby⁷² it.

Lys. Now she holds me not;

Now follow, if thou dar'st, to try whose right,

Of thine or mine,⁷³ is most in Helena.

Dem. Follow? nay, I'll go with thee, cheek by jole.

[Exeunt LYSANDER and DEMETRIUS.]

Her. You, mistress, all this coil is 'long of you.

Nay, go not back.

gemeint. — Die Cambridge Edd. vermuthen, dass hinter he 'll ein Vers ausgefallen sei. 61) potion in Q. A.; Q. B. und Fol. haben poison. 62) Viele Hgg. lassen vor doubt das of weg: hoffe nicht mehr, frage nicht mehr, zweifle nicht mehr. 63) juggler ist dreisylbig (juggeler) zu lesen, wie juggling in K. Henry VI. First Part (A. 5, Sc. 4) She and the Dauphin have been juggling. — canker-blossom = eine Blüthe, an der der Wurm nagt. So in Two Gentlemen of Verona (A. 1, Sc. 1) in the sweetest bud | The eating canker dwells. 64) grown so high, doppelstinnig = so hoch gewachsen, und = so hoch gestiegen in seiner Schätzung, im Gegensatz zu dem folgenden, gleichfalls doppelstinnigen low. 65) Die schlanke, hochgewachsene Helena wird spöttisch mit einem bunt angestrichenen, mit Blumen und Bändern verzierten Maibaum verglichen, den man von den Maifesten in festlichem Zuge mit nach Hause brachte. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 38. 66) curst = zänkisch, giftig im Reden, besonders von bösen Weibern. 67) In meiner Schüchternheit bin ich ein rechtes Mädchen, nicht dreister, als ein ehrbares Mädchen sein darf. 68) Auch die Interpunction der Qs. und Fol. verbindet for love mit dem Folgenden. 69) fond = thöricht, blind für Jemanden eingenommen. 70) little = klein von Wuchs, dasselbe wie low. 71) knot-grass = Knöterich, eine Pflanze, deren Decoct das Wachsthum eines Menschen oder Thieres hindern sollte. So in Beaumont und Fletcher's The Coxcomb: We want a boy extremely for this function, | Kept under for a year with milk and knot-grass. — minimus = Knirps; die gewöhnlichere Form ist minim = alles sehr kleine. 72) Auch hier hat die Fol. abide, die Qs. aby. Vgl. Anm. 44 dieser Scene. 73) Manche Hgg. ändern ohne Grund mit Theobald or thine or mine. — Sh. wendet of, nach einem Interrogativpronomen, = wer oder was von Zweien, auch sonst an. So in Tempest (A. 2, Sc. 1) Which, of he or Adrian, for a good wager, first begins to crow? — most auf right bezüglich: wessen Anrecht auf Helena, das meine oder das Deine,

Hel. I will not trust you, I,
Nor longer stay in your curst company.
Your hands than mine are quicker for a fray;
My legs are longer though, to run away. [Exit.]

Her. I am amaz'd, and know not what to say. [Exit.]

Obe. This is thy negligence: still thou mistak'st,
Or else committ'st thy knaveries wilfully. ⁷⁵

Puck. Believe me, king of shadows, ⁷⁶ I mistook.
Did not you tell me, I should know the man
By the Athenian garments he had ⁷⁷ on?
And so far blameless proves my enterprise,
That I have 'nointed an Athenian's eyes;
And so far am I glad it so did sort, ⁷⁸
As this their jangling I esteem a sport.

Obe. Thou seest, these lovers seek a place to fight:
Hie therefore, Robin, overcast the night;

The starry welkin cover thou anon
With drooping fog, as black as Acheron;
And lead these testy rivals so astray,
As one come not within another's way.
Like to Lysander sometime frame thy tongue,
Then stir Demetrius up with bitter wrong;
And sometime rail thou like Demetrius;
And from each other look thou lead them thus,
Till o'er their brows death-counterfeiting sleep
With leaden legs and batty wings doth creep: ⁷⁹

Then crush this herb into Lysander's eye;
Whose liquor hath this virtuous property, ⁸⁰
To take from thence all error with his might,
And make his eyeballs roll with wonted sight.

When they next wake, all this derision
Shall seem a dream, and fruitless vision;
And back to Athens shall the lovers wend, ⁸¹
With league whose date till death shall never end.

Whiles I in this affair do thee employ, ⁸²
I'll to my queen, and beg her Indian boy;
And then I will her charmed eye release
From monster's view, and all things shall be peace.

Puck. My fairy lord, this must be done with haste,
For night's swift dragons cut the clouds full fast, ⁸³
And yonder shines Aurora's harbinger; ⁸⁴
At whose approach, ghosts, wandering here and there,
Troop home to churchyards: damned spirits all,
That in crossways and floods have burial, ⁸⁵
Already to their wormy beds ⁸⁶ are gone;
For fear lest day should look their shames upon,

They wilfully themselves exile ⁸⁷ from light,
And must for aye consort with black-brow'd night. ⁸⁸

Obe. But we are spirits of another sort.
I with the Morning's love ⁸⁹ have oft made sport;
And, like a forester, the groves may tread,
Even till the eastern gate, all fiery-red,
Opening on Neptune with fair blessed beams,
Turns into yellow gold his salt green streams.
But, notwithstanding, haste; make no delay:
We may effect this business yet ere day. [Exit.]

Puck. Up and down, up and down;
I will lead them up and down:
I am fear'd in field and town;
Goblin, lead them up and down.

Here comes one.

Re-enter LYSANDER.

Lys. Where art thou, proud Demetrius? speak thou now.

Puck. Here, villain! drawn and ready. ⁹⁰ Where art
thou?

Lys. I will be with thee straight.

Puck. Follow me then
To plainer ground. [Exit LYS. as following the voice.]

Re-enter DEMETRIUS.

Dem. Lysander, speak again.
Thou runaway, thou coward, art thou fled?
Speak! In some bush? Where dost thou hide thy head?

Puck. Thou coward! art thou bragging to the stars,
Telling the bushes that thou look'st for wars,
And wilt not come? Come, recreant; come, thou child;
I'll whip thee with a rod: he is defil'd,
That draws a sword on thee.

Dem. Yea; art thou there?

Puck. Follow my voice: we'll try no manhood here. ⁹¹
[Exeunt.]

Re-enter LYSANDER.

Lys. He goes before me, and still dares me on;
When I come where he calls, then he is gone.
The villain is much lighter-heel'd ⁹² than I:
I follow'd fast, but faster he did fly;
That fallen am I in dark uneven way,
And here will rest me. [Lies down.] Come, thou gentle day!

das grösste sei. 74) Dieser Vers fehlt in der Fol. 75) So die Qs.; die Fol. willingly. 76) Als shadows = schattenhafte Wesen, Geschöpfe nicht von Fleisch und Blut, bezeichnet Puck die Elfengeister auch nachher im Epilog: If we shadows have offended. 77) So Q. A.; Q. B. und die Fol. hath für had. 78) to sort = sich fügen. 79) Der Schlaf wird hier als ein leise herbeikriechendes Wesen mit bleiernen Füßen und Fledermausflügeln gedacht. 80) virtuous property = heilkräftige Eigenschaft. — Auf liquor bezieht sich das folgende with his might = vermöge seiner Heilkraft. 81) to wend = sich wenden, gehen. Die Liebespaare sollen nach Athen zurückkehren mit oder in einer Verbindung, deren Frist erst mit dem Tode endet. 82) So Q. A.; Q. B. hat apply und die Fol. imply. 83) Dasselbe Bild von dem Drachengespann vor dem Wagen der Nacht kehrt wieder in Cymbeline (A. 2, Sc. 2) swift, swift, you dragons of the night. 84) Aurora's harbinger ist der Morgenstern, bei dessen Erscheinung die Nachts umgehenden Geister, die wegen begangener Missethaten im Grabe keine Ruhe finden können, entweichen. 85) Die verdammten Geister von Selbstmördern, welche theils auf Kreuzwegen begraben sind, theils in dem Wasser, in das sie sich gestürzt, ein feuchtes Grab gefunden haben. 86) wormy beds = die Gräber, wo sie von den Würmern verzehrt werden. 87) to exile betont Sh. auf der zweiten Sylbe. 88) Dasselbe Epitheton giebt Sh. der Nacht in Romeo and Juliet (A. 3, Sc. 2) black-brow'd night. 89) Morning's love = der Geliebte der Aurora, ist Cephalus, der Jäger, den Oberon auf die Jagd begleitet hat. — Oberon erzählt das als Beweis, dass er nicht, wie die Spukgeister, beim ersten Tagesgrauen zu entweichen brauche, sondern bis nach Sonnenaufgang bleiben dürfe. 90) Mit gezogenem Schwerte und kampfbereit. 91) Auf here liegt der Nachdruck: hier nicht, sondern anderswo, wollen wir unsere Tapferkeit erproben. 92) lighter-heel'd = mit leichteren Fersen, zur Flucht, versehen. 93) grey light = das erste Tagesgrauen. — Drei Zeilen vorher hat die Fol. die Bühnenweisung shifting places.

For if but once thou show me thy grey light,⁹³
I'll find Demetrius, and revenge this spite. [Sleeps.]

Re-enter PUCK and DEMETRIUS.

Puck. Ho! ho! ho!⁹⁴ Coward, why com'st thou not?

Dem. Abide me, if thou dar'st; for well I wot,
Thou runn'st before me, shifting every place,
And dar'st not stand, nor look me in the face.
Where art thou now?⁹⁵

Puck. Come hither: I am here.

Dem. Nay, then thou mock'st me. Thou shalt buy⁹⁶
this dear,

If ever I thy face by day-light see:

Now, go thy way. Faintness constraineth me

To measure out my length on this cold bed:

By day's approach look to be visited.

[Lies down and sleeps.]

Re-enter HELENA.

Hel. O weary night, O long and tedious night,
Abate thy hours: shine, comforts,⁹⁷ from the east,
That I may back to Athens, by day-light,
From these that my poor company detest.
And sleep, that sometimes shuts up sorrow's eye,
Steal me awhile from mine own company. [Sleeps.]

Puck. Yet but three?⁹⁸ Come one more;
Two of both kinds⁹⁹ make up four.
Here she comes, curst and sad.
Cupid is a knavish lad,
Thus to make poor females mad.

Re-enter HERMIA.

Her. Never so weary, never so in woe,
Bedabbled with the dew, and torn with briers:
I can no further crawl, no further go;
My legs can keep no pace with my desires.
Here will I rest me till the break of day.
Heavens shield Lysander, if they mean a fray!

[Lies down.]

Puck. On the ground
Sleep sound:
I'll apply
To¹⁰⁰ your eye,
Gentle lover, remedy.

[Squeezing the juice on Lys.'s eye.]

When thou wak'st,
Thou tak'st
True delight

In the sight
Of thy former lady's eye:
And the country proverb¹⁰¹ known,
That every man should take his own,
In your waking shall be shown:
Jack shall have Jill;¹⁰²
Nought shall go ill;
The man shall have his mare again,
And all shall be well.

[*Exit PUCK. — DEMETRIUS, HELENA, etc. sleep.*¹⁰³]

ACT IV.

SCENE I.

The Same.

*Enter TITANIA and BOTTOM, Fairies attending;
Oberon behind unseen.*¹

Tita. Come, sit thee down upon this flowery bed,
While I thy amiable cheeks do coy,²
And stick musk-roses in thy sleek smooth head,
And kiss thy fair large ears, my gentle joy.

Bot. Where 's Pease-blossom?

Peas. Ready.

Bot. Scratch my head, Pease-blossom. — Where 's
Monsieur Cobweb?

Cob. Ready.

Bot. Monsieur Cobweb; good monsieur, get your weapons in your hand, and kill me a red-hipped humble-bee on the top of a thistle; and, good monsieur, bring me the honey-bag.³ Do not fret yourself too much in the action, monsieur; and, good monsieur, have a care the honey-bag break not: I would be loath to have you overflowed with a honey-bag, Signior. — Where 's Monsieur Mustard-seed?

Must. Ready.

Bot. Give me your neif,⁴ Monsieur Mustard-seed. Pray you, leave your courtesy, good monsieur.

Must. What 's your will?

Bot. Nothing, good monsieur, but to help Cavalery⁵ Cobweb to scratch. I must to the barber's, monsieur; for, methinks, I am marvellous hairy about the face; and I am such a tender ass, if my hair do but tickle me, I must scratch.

Tita. What, wilt thou hear some music, my sweet love?

Bot. I have a reasonable good ear in music: let's have the tongs and the bones.⁶

94) Dies wird als der charakteristische Ruf Puck's und anderer neckischer Geister auch anderswo citirt, und bildet u. A. den Refrain der in der Einleitung (pag. 272 u. 273) mitgetheilten Ballade. 95) now findet sich in Q. A., fehlt jedoch in Q. B. und Fol. 96) Du sollst das theuer erkaufen. — Manche Hgg. setzen für buy der Qs. und Fol. by, abgekürzt aus aby. Vgl. Anm. 44 dieser Scene. 97) Vielleicht ist comforts als Object zu shine zu fassen, wobei freilich das Tageslicht, dem die Anrede gilt, hinzugedacht werden müsste. 98) Sind es erst Drei, die da liegen und schlafen? 99) Zwei von beiderlei Geschlecht, zwei Männer und zwei Mädchen. 100) to fehlt in den alten Ausgg. 101) Das ländliche Sprichwort citirt Puck gleich nachher: Jack shall have Jill — — shall be well. 102) Jack = Hans, Jill abgekürzt aus Gilian = Grete, kommt auch sonst vor = Mann und Weib aus der bäuerischen und dienenden Classe; so in Taming of the Shrew (A. 4, Sc. 1) be the jacks fair within, the jills fair without? 103) Die Fol. hat die Bühnenweisung They sleep all the Act.

1) Die alte Bühnenweisung lautet Enter Queen of Fairies, and Clown, and Fairies, and the King behind them. 2) to coy = kirre machen, liebkosen. 3) honey-bag = der Beutel, in welchem die Biene den Honig sammelt und heimbringt. — Für get your weapons der Q. B. und Fol. liest Q. A. get you your weapons. 4) neif (neafe in Qs. und Fol.) = Faust. So steht das Wort, komisch und pomphaft zugleich, in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 2, Sc. 4) Sweet knight, I kiss thy neif. 5) So Qs. und Fol., entstellt aus Cavalero, einer modischen Anrede, wie vorher Monsieur und Signior. Manche Hgg. verbessern stillschweigend Cavalero. — Grey macht darauf aufmerksam, dass es nach dem Vorhergehenden eigentlich Cavalero Pease-blossom heissen müsse. Indess rührt das Versehen ohne Zweifel vom Dichter her. 6) Die Fol. fügt hier die Bühnenweisung Tita. Or, say, sweet love, what thou desir'st to eat.

Bot. Truly, a peck of provender: I could munch your good dry oats. Methinks, I have a great desire to a bottle of hay: good hay, sweet hay, hath no fellow.

Tita. I have a venturous fairy that shall seek The squirrel's hoard,⁷ and fetch thee new nuts.

Bot. I had rather have a handful or two of dried peas. But, I pray you, let none of your people stir me: I have an exposition⁸ of sleep come upon me.

Tita. Sleep thou, and I will wind thee in my arms. Fairies, be gone, and be all ways away.⁹

[Exeunt Fairies.]

So doth the woodbine the sweet honey-suckle

Gently entwist;¹⁰ the female ivy so

Enrings the barked fingers of the elm.

O, how I love thee! how I dote on thee! [They sleep.]

Enter Puck.

Obe. [Advancing.] Welcome, good Robin. Seest thou this sweet sight?

Her dotage now I do begin to pity;

For, meeting her of late behind the wood,

Seeking sweet savours¹¹ for this hateful fool,

I did upbraid her, and fall out with her;

For she his hairy temples then had rounded

With coronet of fresh and fragrant flowers;

And that same dew, which sometime on the buds

Was wont to swell like round and orient pearls,

Stood now within the pretty flowerets' eyes,

Like tears that did their own disgrace bewail.

When I had at my pleasure taunted her,

And she in mild terms begg'd my patience,

I then did ask of her her changeling child;

Which straight she gave me, and her fairy¹² sent

To bear him to my bower in fairy land.

And now I have the boy, I will undo

This hateful imperfection of her eyes:

And, gentle Puck, take this transformed scalp

From off the head of this Athenian swain,

That, he awaking when the other¹³ do,

May all to Athens back again repair,

And think no more of this night's accidents,

But as the fierce vexation of a dream.

But first I will release the fairy queen.

Be, as thou wast wont to be;

See, as thou wast wont to see:

Dian's bud o'er¹⁴ Cupid's flower

Hath such force and blessed power.

Now, my Titania! wake you, my sweet queen.

Tita. My Oberon! what visions have I seen!

Methought, I was enamour'd of an ass.

Obe. There lies your love.

Tita.

How came these things to pass?

O, how mine eyes do loathe his¹⁵ visage now!

Obe. Silence awhile. — Robin, take off this¹⁶ head. —

Titania, music call; and strike more dead

Than common sleep of all these five¹⁷ the sense.

Tita. Music, ho! music! such as charmeth sleep.¹⁸

Puck. Now,¹⁹ when thou wak'st, with thine own fool's eyes peep.

Obe. Sound, music! Come, my queen, take hands with me,

And rock the ground²⁰ whereon these sleepers be.

Now thou and I are new in amity,

And will to-morrow midnight solemnly

Dance in Duke Theseus' house triumphantly,²¹

And bless it to all fair prosperity.²²

There shall the pairs of faithful lovers be

Wedded, with Theseus, all in jollity.

Puck. Fairy king, attend, and mark,

I do hear the morning lark.

Obe.

Then, my queen, in silence sad,

Trip we after the²³ night's shade;

We the globe can compass soon,

Swifter than the wandering moon.

hinzu: Music. Tongs, rural music: eine Dorfmusik, die aus Zangen besteht, welche mit Knöcheln geschlagen werden. 7) Nach Steevens' Meinung wäre hoard hier zweisylbig zu lesen. — Qs. und Fol. verwischen diese Verse mit ihrer Abtheilung vollends: I have a venturous fairy || That shall seek the squirrel's hoard || And fetch thee new nuts. 8) Bottom will disposition sagen. 9) Entfernt Euch nach allen Richtungen hin. — all ways ist Theobald's Emendation für always der Qs. und Fol. 10) Johnson's Auffassung, dass the woodbine, die Pflanze, das Subject, und the sweet honey-suckle, die Blume, das Object, abhängig von entwist, sei, wird unterstützt durch ein Citat Malone's aus The Fatal Union (1640) a honey-suckle, the amorous woodbine's offspring. — Gifford, der ebenso construiert, citirt aus Ben Jonson's Vision of Delight: Behold || How the blue bind-weed doth itself infold || With honey-suckle, und hält Ben Jonson's bind-weed = Convolvulus, für identisch mit Sh.'s woodbine; honey-suckle = Geissblatt. — Andere fassen, weniger plausibel, the sweet honey-suckle als Apposition zu woodbine und verbinden gently entwist mit dem Object the barked fingers etc. 11) sweet savours = Dinge, die angenehm schmecken und riechen, also hier = Blumen und Früchte. Für savours in Q. B. und Fol. hat Q. A. favours, womit die Blumen gemeint wären, mit denen Titania als Zeichen ihrer Gunst den Bottom schmückt. — s und f ist in den alten Drucken nicht immer genau zu unterscheiden. 12) So Qs. und Fol., wo unter her fairy irgend eine Fee bezeichnet wird, die gerade als dienstbarer Geist bei der Titania war. — Dyce liest auch hier fairies. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 2, Anm. 1. 13) the other pluralisch = die Anderen. 14) o'er verbessert Thirlby das or der Qs. und Fol. — Dian's bud, nach Steevens' Vermuthung = Agnus castus, ist die Pflanze, deren Saft Oberon jetzt auf das Auge der Titania drückt, um die Verblendung zu beseitigen, welche vorher der Saft von Cupid's flower, d. h. der Blume Love-in-idleness, bewirkt hatte. 15) his in Q. A.; Q. B. und Fol. haben this. 16) this in den Qs., his in der Fol. 17) five, die Emendation Theobald's, brachte zuerst Sinn in den Text, der in Qs. und Fol. so lautete: Titania, musicke call, and strike more dead || Then common sleepe; of all these, fine the sense. Aus fine machten die spätern Folioausgg. find. — these five sind die fünf Schläfer. 18) Die Fol. fügt hier die Bühnenweisung Musick still hinzu, d. h. still music = sanfte Musik, wie sie dem angegebenen Zwecke entspricht. 19) now fehlt in Q. B. und Fol. 20) Das Bild ist von einer Wiege entlehnt, in der man ein Kind in Schlaf wiegt. 21) triumphantly = festlich, mit Festgepränge. 22) prosperity ist die Lesart von Q. A. und war in ähnlicher Beziehung schon A. 2, Sc. 2 vorgekommen: you come || To give their bed joy and prosperity. — Q. B. und Fol. haben posterity. 23) Q. A. lässt the aus; in diesem Fall wäre zwischen dem Schluss-s von night's

Tita. Come, my lord; and in our flight
Tell me how it came this night,
That I sleeping here was found²⁴
With these mortals on the ground. [Exeunt.
[Horns sound within.

Enter THESEUS, HIPPOLYTA, EGEUS, and Train.

The. Go, one of you, find out the forester;
For now our observation²⁵ is perform'd:
And since we have the vaward²⁶ of the day,
My love shall hear the music of my hounds. —
Uncouple in the western valley: let them go!²⁷ —
Despatch, I say, and find the forester. —
We will, fair queen, up to the mountain's top,
And mark the musical confusion
Of hounds and echo in conjunction.²⁸

Hip. I was with Hercules and Cadmus once,
When in a wood of Crete they bay'd the bear
With hounds of Sparta: never did I hear
Such gallant chiding;²⁹ for, besides the groves,
The skies, the fountains, every region near Seem'd³⁰ all one mutual cry. I never heard
So musical a discord, such sweet thunder.

The. My hounds are bred out of the Spartan kind,
So flew'd, so sanded;³¹ and their heads are hung
With ears that sweep away the morning dew;
Crook-knee'd, and dew-lapp'd like Thessalian bulls;
Slow in pursuit, but match'd in mouth³² like bells,
Each under each. A cry more tuneable
Was never halloo'd to, nor cheer'd with horn,
In Crete, in Sparta, nor in Thessaly:
Judge, when you hear. — But, soft! what nymphs³³ are these?

Ege. My lord, this is my daughter here asleep;
And this, Lysander; this Demetrius is;
This Helena, old Nedar's Helena:
I wonder of their³⁴ being here together.

The. No doubt, they rose up early, to observe
The rite of May,³⁵ and, hearing our intent,
Came here in grace of our solemnity. —

But speak, Egeus, is not this the day
That Hermia should give answer of her choice?

Ege. It is, my lord.

The. Go, bid the huntsmen wake them with their horns.
[Horns, and shout within. DEMETRIUS, LYSAN-
DER, HERMIA, and HELENA, wake and start up.

The. Good morrow, friends. Saint Valentine is past;³⁶
Begin these wood-birds but to couple now?

Lys. Pardon, my lord.

[*He and the rest kneel to THESEUS.*³⁷

The. I pray you all, stand up.

I know, you two are rival enemies:
How comes this gentle concord in the world,
That hatred is so far from jealousy,
To sleep by hate, and fear no enmity?

Lys. My lord, I shall reply amazedly,
Half 'sleep, half waking: but as yet, I swear,
I cannot truly say how I came here;
But, as I think, (for truly would I speak, —
And now I do bethink me, so it is)
I came with Hermia hither: our intent
Was to be gone from Athens, where we might Without the peril of the Athenian law —³⁸

Ege. Enough, enough! my lord, you have enough.³⁹
I beg the law, the law, upon his head.
They would have stol'n away; they would, Demetrius,
Thereby to have defeated you and me;
You, of your wife, and me, of my consent,
Of my consent that she should be your wife.

Dem. My lord, fair Helen told me of their stealth,
Of this their purpose hither, to this wood;
And I in fury hither follow'd them,
Fair Helena in fancy⁴⁰ following me.
But, my good lord, I wot not by what power
(But by some power it is) my love to Hermia,
Melted as doth⁴¹ the snow, seems to me now
As the remembrance of an idle gawd,⁴²
Which in my childhood I did dote upon;
And all the faith, the virtue of my heart,
The object and the pleasure of mine eye,⁴³

und dem anklingenden s von shade ein euphemisches e einzuschieben. Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 3. 24) Die Fol. hat hier die überflüssige Bühnenweisung Sleepers lie still, um anzudeuten, dass das folgende Exeunt sich nicht auf alle anwesenden Personen beziehe. 25) observation ist die dem Mai dargebrachte Huldigung, schon vorher als observance bezeichnet. Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 38. 26) vaward, eigentlich = Vortrab, gebraucht Sh. in übertragenem Sinne = vorderer Theil, Anfang; so in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 1, Sc. 2) we that are in the vaward of our youth, I must confess, are wags too. 27) Manche Hgg. streichen let them ohne Grund. 28) Das musikalisch wohlklingende Durcheinander, das aus der Vereinigung des Gebells der Jagdhunde und des Wiederhalls davon in den Bergen entsteht. 29) chiding erklärt Steevens hier einfach mit sound. Gewiss ist es hier, wie anderswo, der Grundbedeutung gemäß = ein lautes, leidenschaftliches Geräusch. 30) seem'd verbessert die zweite Folioausg. von 1632 das seeme der Qs. und Fol. 31) Theseus' Hunde haben solche grosse, herabhängende Lefzen (flews) und solch ein sandfarbiges Fell, wie sie der spartanischen Hunderace, aus der sie stammen, eigen sind. — Golding in seiner Uebersetzung des Ovid beschreibt so zwei Hunde des Actäon: with other twain that had a sire of Crete, || And dam of Sparta: th' one of them call'd Jollyboy, a great || And large-flew'd hound. 32) mouth = das Anschlagen, Gebell der Hunde. Das Gebell der verschiedenen Jagdhunde bildete eine vollständige Scala, wie die einzelnen Glocken im Glockenspiel, jede einen Ton tiefer als die andere. 33) nymphs nennt er die Helena und Hermia, weil er sie im Walde schlafend findet. 34) their in Q. A.; this in Q. B. und Fol. 35) Vgl. oben Anm. 25. — Qs. und Fol. schreiben right für rite. 36) Am St. Valentinstage (14. Februar) sollten nach dem Sprichworte die Vögel sich paaren. Auf eine andere Bedeutung dieses Tages für Liebespaare, die sich dann fanden und begrüßten, spielt Sh. auch in Hamlet (A. 4, Sc. 5) in einem Liede an. 37) Die Bühnenweisung ist von Capell eingefügt. 38) So Q. A., welche durch ein Comma am Ende bezeichnet, dass Egeus dem Lysander in's Wort fällt. Viele Hgg. lesen mit Q. B. und Fol. als vollständigen Satz where we might be || Without the peril of the Athenian law. 39) Ihr wisst genug, um ihn zu verurtheilen nach dem Gesetz. 40) in fancy = verliebt, steht als Gegensatz zu in fury = wüthend. — Für following der Q. A. haben Q. B. und Fol. followed. 41) doth, das in Qs. und Fol., vielleicht in Folge der dort verkehrten Versabtheilung, fehlt, ergänzte Capell zuerst. So in K. Henry V. (A. 3, Sc. 5) as doth the melted snow upon the valleys. 42) idle gawd = nichtsnutziger Tand. 43) faith gehört so

Is only Helena. To her, my lord,
Was I betroth'd ere I saw⁴⁴ Hermia:
But, like in sickness,⁴⁵ did I loathe this food;
But, as in health, come to my natural taste,
Now do I wish it, love it, long for it,
And will for evermore be true to it.

The. Fair lovers, you are fortunately met.
Of this discourse we more will hear anon.⁴⁶ —
Egeus, I will overbear your will,
For in the temple, by and by with us,
These couples shall eternally be knit.
And, for the morning now is something worn,
Our purpos'd hunting shall be set aside.
Away, with us, to Athens: three and three,
We'll hold a feast in great solemnity. —
Come, Hippolyta.

[Exeunt THESEUS, HIPPOLYTA, EGEUS, and Train.

Dem. These things seem small and undistinguishable,
Like far-off mountains turned into clouds.

Her. Methinks, I see these things with parted eye,
When every thing seems double.

Hel. So methinks:
And I have found Demetrius, like a jewel,
Mine own, and not mine own.⁴⁷

Dem. Are you sure
That we are awake? It seems to me
That yet we sleep, we dream. — Do not you think
The duke was here, and bid us follow him?

Her. Yea, and my father.

Hel. And Hippolyta.

Lys. And he did⁴⁸ bid us follow to the temple.

Dem. Why then, we are awake. Let's follow him;
And by the way let us recount our dreams. [Exeunt.

Bot. [Waking.] When my cue comes, call me, and I will answer: — my next is, »Most fair Pyramus.« —
Hey, ho! — Peter Quince! Flute, the bellows-mender!
Snout, the tinker! Starveling! God's my life! stolen hence, and left me asleep. I have had a most rare vision.
I have had a dream, — past the wit of man to say what dream it was: man is but an ass, if he go about to expound this dream. Methought I was — there is no man can tell what. Methought I was, and methought I had, — but man is but a patched fool,⁴⁹ if he will offer to say what methought I had. The eye of man hath not heard, the ear of man hath not seen, man's hand is not able to taste, his tongue to conceive, nor his heart to report, what my dream was. I will get Peter Quince to write a ballad of this dream: it shall be called Bottom's Dream, because it hath no bottom;⁵⁰ and I will sing it in the latter end of a play, before the duke: peradventure, to make it the more gracious, I shall sing it at her death.⁵¹ [Exit.

SCENE II.

Athens. A Room in QUINCE'S House.

Enter QUINCE, FLUTE, SNOOT, and STARVELING.¹

Quin. Have you sent to Bottom's house? is he come home yet?

Star. He cannot be heard of. Out of doubt, he is transported.²

Flu. If he come not, then the play is marred. It goes not forward, doth it?

Quin. It is not possible: you have not a man in all
Athens able to discharge Pyramus, but he.

Flu. No; he hath simply the best wit of any handicraft man in Athens.

Quin. Yea, and the best person too; and he is a very paramour for a sweet voice.

Flu. You must say, paragon: a paramour is, God bless us! a thing of naught.³

Enter SNUG.

Snug. Masters, the duke is coming from the temple, and there is two or three lords and ladies more married.
If our sport had gone forward, we had all been made men.⁴

Flu. O sweet bully Bottom! Thus hath he lost sixpence a day during his life; he could not have 'scaped sixpence a day: an the duke had not given him sixpence a day for playing Pyramus, I'll be hanged; he would have deserved it: sixpence a day in Pyramus, or nothing.

Enter BOTTOM.

Bot. Where are these lads? where are these hearts?

Quin. Bottom! — O most courageous⁵ day! O most happy hour!

Bot. Masters, I am to discourse wonders; but ask me not what, for, if I tell you, I am no true Athenian. I will tell you every thing, right⁶ as it fell out.

Quin. Let us hear, sweet Bottom.

Bot. Not a word of me. All that I will tell you is, that the duke hath dined. Get your apparel together, zu of my heart, wie object = ein Bild, sichtbarer Gegenstand, zu of mine eye. 44) So Steevens. Qs. und Fol. haben see. Rowe fügte did vor see ein. 45) like in sickness emendirt Farmer, dem folgenden as in health und dem Sinn entsprechend, das like a sickness der alten Ausgg. 46) So Q. A.; Q. B. we will hear more anon, und die Fol. we shall hear more anon. 47) Der Besitz des Demetrius erscheint ihr als ein unverhoffter Fund noch so unsicher wie der eines Juwels, das dem Finder nur so lange gehört, als der wirkliche Eigenthümer es nicht reclamirt. — Die folgenden Worte bis awake fehlen in der Fol. und wurden als überflüssig und unmetrisch auch von Steevens ausgelassen. 48) did in Q. A. fehlt in Q. B. und Fol. 49) patched fool = ein Narr in bunt-scheckiger Narrentracht, ein erklärter Narr. 50) Weil dieser Traum sich nicht ergründen lässt. Zugleich ein Wortspiel mit Bottom und bottom. 51) scil. at Thisbe's death. Bottom denkt an das Stück, das vor Theseus aufgeführt werden soll, und sagt her death, als ob die Heldin desselben schon vorher erwähnt sei. Da Bottom selbst die Rolle des Pyramus darin spielt und als solcher umkommt, so wollte Theobald after death lesen. — Hanmer änderte the play für a play.

1) Die Qs. haben Enter Quince, Flute, Thisbe and the Rabble. — Auch in der Fol. wird Thisbe unter den auftretenden Personen angeführt. 2) Unter transported versteht Starveling dasselbe, was A. 3. Sc. 1 changed und translated hiess: die Verwandlung, die mit Bottom vorgegangen war. 3) naught emendirt die zweite Folio- ausg. von 1632 das nought der alten Ausgg., dem Sinne gemäss, da Flute ein paramour für ein nichtswürdiges, nicht für ein nichtiges, Ding erklären will. 4) So wären wir Alle gemachte Leute gewesen. made men ist zu verbinden. 5) Er gebraucht missverständlich courageous für ein Wort wie auspicious. 6) right = gerade, good strings to your beards, ⁷ new ribbons to your pumps: meet presently at the palace; every man look o'er his part; for, the short and the long is, our play is preferred. ⁸ In any case, let Thisby have clean linen, and let not him that plays the lion pare his nails, for they shall hang out for the lion's claws. And, most dear actors, eat no onions, nor garlic, ⁹ for we are to utter sweet breath, and I do not doubt, but to hear them say, it is a sweet comedy. No more words: away! go; away! [Exeunt.]

ACT V.

SCENE I.

The Same. An Apartment in the Palace of THESEUS.

Enter THESEUS, HIPPOLYTA, PHILOSTRATE, Lords, and Attendants.

Hip. 'T is strange, my Theseus, that these lovers speak of.

The. More strange than true: I never may believe These antick fables, nor these fairy toys. ¹ Lovers and madmen have such seething brains, ² Such shaping fantasies, that apprehend More than cool reason ever comprehends. ³ The lunatic, the lover, and the poet, Are of imagination all compact: ⁴ One sees more devils than vast hell can hold; That is the madman: the lover, all as frantic, Sees Helen's beauty in a brow of Egypt: ⁵ The poet's eye, in a fine frenzy rolling, Doth glance from heaven to earth, from earth to heaven; And, as imagination bodies forth ⁶ The forms of things unknown, the poet's pen Turns them to shapes, and gives to airy ⁷ nothing A local habitation, and a name. Such tricks ⁸ hath strong imagination, That, if it would but apprehend some joy, It comprehends some bringer of that joy:

Or in the night, imagining some fear, How easy is a bush suppos'd a bear? ⁹

Hip. But all the story of the night told over, And all their minds transfigur'd so together, More witnesseth than fancy's images, And grows to something of great constancy, ¹⁰ But, howsoever, strange, and admirable.

The. Here come the lovers, full of joy and mirth.

Enter LYSANDER, DEMETRIUS, HERMIA, and HELENA.

Joy, gentle friends! joy, and fresh days of love, Accompany your hearts!

Lys. More ¹¹ than to us

Wait in your royal walks, your board, your bed!

The. Come now; what masques, what dances shall we have,

To wear away this long age of three hours,

Between our after-supper, ¹² and bed-time?

Where is our usual manager of mirth?

What revels are in hand? Is there no play,

To ease the anguish of a torturing hour?

Call Philostrate. ¹³

Phil. Here, mighty Theseus.

The. Say, what abridgment ¹⁴ have you for this evening?

What masque, what music? How shall we beguile

The lazy time, if not with some delight?

Phil. There is a brief how many sports are ripe; ¹⁵

Make choice of which your highness will see first.

[Giving a paper.]

The. [Reads.] ¹⁶ »The battle with the Centaurs, to be sung

By an Athenian eunuch to the harp.«

We'll none of that: that have I told my love,

In glory of my kinsman Hercules. ¹⁷

»The riot of the tipsy Bacchanals,

Tearing the Thracian singer in their rage.«

That is an old device; and it was play'd

When I from Thebes came last a conqueror.

just, fehlt in der Fol. 7) Feste Schnüre für die falschen Bärte, die sie in der Posse tragen, damit sie nicht abfallen. 8) to prefer erklärt Theobald = empfehlen, zur Vorstellung einreichen. — Vielleicht gebraucht Bottom aber preferred missverständlich für performed oder presented: unser Stück kommt zur Aufführung. 9) Das Knoblauchessen wird als charakteristisch für die Handwerker nebst dem daher rührenden üblen Geruch auch in Coriolanus (A. 4, Sc. 6) erwähnt: the breath of garlic-eaters.

1) antick fables = possenhafte Fabeln. — Die Hgg. setzen meistens das weniger charakteristische antique fables. Die alten Ausgg. unterscheiden nicht zwischen antick und antique. — fairy toys = grillenhafte Einbildungen von Feen, die in der That nicht existiren. 2) seething brain = ein siedend heisses Gehirn. So in Macbeth (A. 2, Sc. 1) a false creation, || Proceeding from the heat-oppressed brain. 3) apprehend und comprehend stehen in einem lautlichen Gegensatz zu einander und werden eben so geflissentlich darin nachher noch einmal wiederholt. 4) all compact of = ganz zusammengesetzt aus Etwas: sie bestehen ganz und gar aus Einbildung. 5) brow of Egypt = das dunkle, schmutzigbraune Antlitz einer Zigeunerin. So ist in Othello (A. 3, Sc. 4) Egyptian = Zigeunerin, wie hier Egypt = das Zigeunerland. 6) to body forth = aus sich heraus-schaffen, eine äusserliche Gestaltung geben. 7) So die Qs.; die Fol. aire. 8) tricks = Eigenheiten, seltsame Einfälle. 9) Andererseits in der Nacht, indem man sich irgend ein Schreckbild vorstellt, wie leicht wird da ein Busch für einen Bären gehalten. 10) constancy = Bestand, Wirklichkeit. 11) seil. more joy and fresh days of love. 12) after-supper = die Zeit nach dem Abendessen, das zu Sh.'s Zeit gewöhnlich um sechs Uhr eingenommen wurde. 13) So die Qs. — Die Fol. hat Call Egeus und ertheilt demgemäss auch die dem Philostrate zukommenden Reden dem Egeus zu, vielleicht weil auf dem Sh.'schen Theater derselbe Schauspieler beide Rollen übernahm. 14) abridgment = Zeitvertreib, Kurzweil, nicht gerade = eine dramatische Aufführung, wie Stevens das Wort zu speciell fasst. Dagegen ist eine solche wohl unter masque in dem folgenden Verse zu verstehen, weshalb Dyc e dort wie im Anfang von Theseus' voriger Rede mit Recht masque schreibt. Qs. und Fol. haben masks und maske. 15) brief = ein schriftliches Verzeichniss, Auszug. — ripe = fertig, reif zur Darstellung, in Q. A. — Q. B. und Fol. haben ripe = in Fülle vorhanden. 16) So die Qs. — In der Fol. liest Lysander die Titel der aufzuführenden oder declamatorischen Stücke vor, und Theseus knüpft an jeden einzelnen Titel seine Bemerkungen an. Vielleicht war auch das die Bühnenpraxis auf dem Sh.'schen Theater. Vgl. oben Anm. 13. 17) Hercules selbst war der Held dieses Cen-

»The thrice three Muses mourning for the death
Of Learning, late deceas'd in beggary.«¹⁸
That is some satire keen, and critical,¹⁹
Not sorting with a nuptial ceremony.

»A tedious²⁰ brief scene of young Pyramus,
And his love Thisbe; very tragical mirth.«
Merry and tragical! Tedious and brief!
That is, hot ice, and wonderous strange snow.²¹
How shall we find the concord of this discord?

Phil. A play there is, my lord, some ten words long,
Which is as brief as I have known a play;
But by ten words, my lord, it is too long,
Which makes it tedious; for in all the play
There is not one word apt, one player fitted.
And tragical, my noble lord, it is,
For Pyramus therein doth kill himself.
Which when I saw rehears'd, I must confess,
Made mine eyes water; but more merry tears
The passion of loud laughter never shed.

The. What are they that do play it?

Phil. Hard-handed²² men, that work in Athens here,

Which never labour'd in their minds till now,
And now have toil'd their unbreath'd memories²³
With this same play, against your nuptial.²⁴

The. And we will hear it.

Phil. No, my noble lord;
It is not for you: I have heard it over,
And it is nothing, nothing in the world,
Unless you can find sport in their intents,
Extremely stretch'd²⁵ and conn'd with cruel pain,
To do you service.

The. I will hear that play:
For never anything can be amiss,
When simpleness and duty tender it.
Go, bring them in; — and take your places, ladies.

[Exit PHILOSTRATE.]

Hip. I love not to see wretchedness o'ercharg'd,
And duty²⁶ in his service perishing.

The. Why, gentle sweet, you shall see no such thing.

Hip. He says, they can do nothing in this kind.

The. The kinder²⁷ we, to give them thanks for nothing.

Our sport shall be to take what they mistake:

And what poor duty cannot do,

Noble respect takes it in might, not merit.²⁸

Where I have come, great clerks have purposed

To greet me with premeditated welcomes;

Where I have seen them shiver and look pale,

Make periods²⁹ in the midst of sentences,

Throttle their practis'd accent³⁰ in their fears,

And, in conclusion, dumbly have broke off,

Not paying me a welcome. Trust me, sweet,

Out of this silence, yet, I pick'd a welcome;

And in the modesty of fearful duty³¹

I read as much, as from the rattling tongue

Of saucy and audacious eloquence.

Love,³² therefore, and tongue-tied simplicity,

In least speak most, to my capacity.

Re-enter PHILOSTRATE.

Phil. So please your grace, the Prologue is address'd.³³

The. Let him approach. [Flourish of trumpets.³⁴

Enter the Prologue.

Prolog. »If we offend, it is with our good will.

That you should think, we come not to offend,

But with good will. To show our simple skill,

That is the true beginning of our end.

Consider then, we come but in despite.

We do not come as minding to content you,

Our true intent is. All for your delight,

We are not here. That you should here repent you,

The actors are at hand; and, by their show,

You shall know all, that you are like to know.«

taurenkampfes. 18) Warton hält es für möglich, dass Sh. hier auf ein Gedicht Spenser's: The Teares of the Muses (zuerst gedruckt 1591, aber wahrscheinlich viel früher verfasst) anspielt. In diesem Gedichte werden die neun Musen nach einander redend eingeführt, wie sie den Verfall der Kunst und Wissenschaft und die Missachtung derselben zu jener Zeit bitter beklagen. Das Gedicht in seiner ganz elegischen Haltung entspricht jedoch durchaus nicht der Charakteristik, welche Theseus' nächste Worte geben. 19) critical = tadelsüchtig. So in Othello (A. 2, Sc. 1) I am nothing, if not critical. 20) Die Handwerker, welche diesen Titel ihres Stückes aufgesetzt haben, gebrauchen tedious missverständlich = kurzweilig. Eben so charakteristisch für die Redeweise der Clowns ist das folgende tragical mirth. 21) d. h., wie Steevens richtig erklärt: Schnee, der eben so wunderbar seltsam ist, wie heisses Eis. — Für strange snow schlug Upton black snow vor, M. Mason strong snow, Hanmer scorching snow; Collier's alter Corrector emendirte seething snow, in Erinnerung wahrscheinlich an das vorhergehende seething brains (vgl. oben Anm. 2). 22) hard-handed erhält seine genauere Bestimmung in der folgenden Zeile: Leute, die bis dahin nur mit den Händen, nie mit dem Kopfe gearbeitet haben. 23) unbreath'd memories = ihre Gedächtniskraft, die bis dahin nie eingeübt war, und die sie jetzt mit dem Auswendiglernen ihres Dramas angestrengt haben. 24) nuptial = Hochzeit, auch sonst als Singular bei Sh. gewöhnlich. 25) scil. it (the play) being extremely stretch'd: das Stück ist ein Nichts, ein völliges Nichts, falls Ihr nicht über die guten Absichten der Schauspieler Euch amüsiren könnt, da es ausserordentlich ausgedehnt und mit grausamer Mühe auswendig gelernt ist, um Euch einen Dienst zu leisten. 26) duty = Pflichteifer, steht hier für den Pflichteifrigen selbst: Ich mag nicht sehen, wie der Pflichteifrige in der Anstrengung seines Dienstes umkommt. 27) Wortspiel zwischen kind = Art, und kind = freundlich; ebenso zwischen to take = in Empfang nehmen, und to mistake = Etwas verkehrt machen, fehlgreifen. 28) Was ein armer Pflichteifer, die Pflichtergebenheit des Armen, nur unvollkommen vollbringt, das fasst eine edle Rücksicht, die Rücksicht des Edlen, auf im Sinne des Vermögens, des Strebens, nicht des errungenen Verdienstes. 29) period = Abschluss der Rede, Punctum. 30) In ihrer Bangigkeit würgten, erstickten sie den Laut, den sie sonst so gut in ihrer Uebung, so gut eingeübt hatten. 31) fearful duty = die Ergebenheit, die vor lauter Furcht nicht laut reden mag. So ist modesty = Zurückhaltung, im Gegensatz zu saucy = zudringlich. 32) love = Anhänglichkeit der Unterthanen an ihren Herrscher. Solche Anhänglichkeit spricht, für meine Auffassung, am meisten in dem Wenigsten, was sie sagt. 33) address = fertig, bereit zum Auftreten. 34) Diese Bühnenweisung ist nur in der Fol. — Auf dem Sh.'schen Theater ging dem Beginn des Stückes oder dem Auftreten des Prologs ein Trompetenstoss

The. This fellow doth not stand upon points.³⁵

Lys. He hath rid his prologue like a rough colt; he knows not the stop. A good moral, my lord: it is not enough to speak, but to speak true.³⁶

Hip. Indeed, he hath played on this prologue like a child on a recorder,³⁷ a sound, but not in government.³⁸

The. His speech was like a tangled chain, Nothing impair'd, but all disordered.

Who is next?³⁹

Enter PYRAMUS and THISBE, Wall, Moonshine, and Lion, as in dumb-show.

Pro. »Gentles, perchance, you wonder at this show;⁴⁰ But wonder on, till truth make all things plain.

This man is Pyramus, if you would know;

This beauteous lady Thisby is, certain.⁴¹

This man, with lime and rough-cast, doth present Wall, that vile Wall, which did these lovers sunder; And through Wall's chink, poor souls, they are content To whisper, at the which let no man wonder.

This man, with lantern, dog, and bush of thorn,

Presenteth Moonshine; for, if you will know,

By moonshine did these lovers think no scorn

To meet at Ninus' tomb, there, there to woo.

This grisly beast, which Lion hight by name,⁴²

The trusty Thisby, coming first by night,

Did scare away, or rather did affright;

And, as she fled, her mantle she did fall,⁴³

Which Lion vile with bloody mouth did stain.

Anon comes Pyramus, sweet youth and tall,

And finds his trusty⁴⁴ Thisby's mantle slain:

Whereat with blade, with bloody blameful blade,

He bravely broach'd his boiling bloody breast;⁴⁵

And Thisby, tarrying in mulberry shade,

His dagger drew, and died. For all the rest,

Let Lion, Moonshine, Wall, and lovers twain,

At large discourse, while here they do remain.«

[Exeunt Pro., THISBE, Lion, and Moonshine.]

The. I wonder, if the lion be to speak.

Dem. No wonder, my lord: one lion may, when many asses do.

Wall. »In this same interlude it doth befall, That I, one Snout by name, present a wall; And such a wall, as I would have you think, That had in it a cranny'd hole, or chink, Through which the lovers, Pyramus and Thisby, Did whisper often very secretly.

This lime,⁴⁶ this rough-cast, and this stone, doth show That I am that same wall: the truth is so;

And this the cranny is, right and sinister,⁴⁷

Through which the fearful lovers are to whisper.«

The. Would you desire lime and hair to speak better?

Dem. It is the wittiest partition⁴⁸ that ever I heard discourse, my lord.

The. Pyramus draws near the wall: silence!

Enter PYRAMUS.

Pyr. »O grim-look'd night! O night with hue so black!

O night, which ever art, when day is not!

O night! O night! alack, alack, alack!

I fear my Thisby's promise is forgot. —

And thou, O wall! O sweet, O lovely wall!

That stand'st between her father's ground and mine;

Thou wall, O wall! O sweet and lovely wall!

Show me thy chink to blink through with mine eyne.

[Wall holds up his fingers.]

Thanks, courteous wall: Jove shield thee well for this!

But what see I? No Thisby do I see.

O wicked wall! through whom I see no bliss;

Curs'd be thy stones for thus deceiving me!«

The. The wall, methinks, being sensible, should curse again.

Pyr. No, in truth, Sir, he should not. — »Deceiving me,« is Thisby's cue: she is to enter now, and I am to spy her through the wall. You shall see, it will fall pat⁴⁹ as I told you. — Yonder she comes.

Enter THISBE.

This. »O wall, full often hast thou heard my moans, For parting my fair Pyramus and me:

voraus. — Dass der Prolog von Quince gesprochen wurde, steht in der Fol. ausdrücklich verzeichnet. 35) to stand upon points = eigen sein, eine Sache genau nehmen, und = auf die Interpunction achten. Der Prolog ist so falsch interpungirt, wie er ohne alles Verständniss mit falschen Pausen von dem Schauspieler vorgetragen wird. 36) to speak true = richtig sprechen, und = die Wahrheit reden. 37) Hawkins in seiner History of Music bezeichnet recorder als das spätere flagelet; Bacon in seiner Natural History sagt: The figure of recorders, and flutes, and pipes, are straight, but the recorder hath a less bore and a greater, above and below. 38) Er brachte wohl einen Ton hervor, aber nicht in richtiger Behandlung des Instruments. 39) Die Fol. hat zunächst hier die Bühnenweisung Tawyer with a trumpet before them. — Tawyer ist bald für den Namen des Trompeters, bald für den des Schauspielers, der den Prolog sprach, gehalten worden. 40) scil. dumb-show: die Schauspieler, welche sich vorläufig als stumme Personen präsentiren, ohne schon ihr Stück anzufangen. Ebenso treten in Hamlet (A. 3, Sc. 2) die Personen des Zwischenspiels erst in einer Pantomime auf, ehe sie das Drama beginnen. 41) Diese zu Sh.'s Zeit veraltete Betonung von certain ist hier alt und parodistisch angewandt, wie certain selbst, des blossen Reimes wegen, als Flickwort steht. — Eben solche Flickwörter, des Reimes und Verses wegen, kommen im Folgenden vielfach vor; so: think no scorn etc. 42) The bald änderte which by name Lion hight, um den Vers nicht reimlos unter den gereimten stehen zu lassen. — Malone hält es für wahrscheinlicher, dass nach der folgenden Zeile ein Vers, der auf name gereimt, ausgefallen sei. — hight ist ein veraltetes Präsens von to hight, hier komisch gebraucht. 43) to fall = fallen lassen. 44) trusty fehlt in der Fol. 45) Sh. parodirt hier das Spiel mit alliterirenden Wörtern, dessen sich die Dichter vor ihm aus Affectation häufig bedienten. 46) Qs. und Fol. haben loam hier. Doch heisst es vorher This man, with lime and rough-cast, doth present etc. und Theseus sagt nachher Would you desire lime and hair to speak better? — Auch kommt lime in Sh.'s Quelle vor. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 274. 47) sinister = links; in gesuchter und affectirter Sprache. — In der zweiten Zeile dieser Rede haben die Qs. Flute, was die Fol. in Snout verbessert. 48) partition = Scheidewand, und = Distinction im Raisonnement. 49) pat = gerade, just. — now in der vorigen Zeile haben nur die Qs. — In Pyramus' vorhergehender Rede hat die Fol. in dem fünften Verse thou sweet and lovely wall. 50) So die Fol.; die

My cherry lips have often kiss'd thy stones,
Thy stones with lime and hair knit up in thee.⁵⁰

Pyr. »I see a voice: now will I to the chink,
To spy an I can hear my Thisby's face.
Thisby!«

This. »My love! thou art my love, I think.«

Pyr. »Think what thou wilt, I am thy lover's grace;
And like Limander⁵¹ am I trusty still.«

This. »And I like Helen, till the Fates me kill.«

Pyr. »Not Shafalus to Procrus was so true.«

This. »As Shafalus to Procrus, I to you.«

Pyr. »O! kiss me through the hole of this vile wall.«

This. »I kiss the wall's hole, not your lips at all.«

Pyr. »Wilt thou at Ninny's tomb meet me straightway?«

This. »Tide life, 'tide death,⁵² I come without delay.«

Wall. »Thus have I, Wall, my part discharged so;
And, being done, thus Wall away doth go.«

[Exeunt Wall, PYRAMUS and THISBE.]

The. Now is the mural⁵³ down between the two neighbours.

Dem. No remedy, my lord, when walls are so wilful to hear without warning.⁵⁴

Hip. This is the silliest stuff that e'er I heard.

The. The best in this kind are but shadows,⁵⁵ and the worst are no worse, if imagination amend them.

Hip. It must be your imagination then, and not theirs.

The. If we imagine no worse of them than they of themselves, they may pass for excellent men. Here come two noble beasts in, a moon⁵⁶ and a lion.

Enter Lion and Moonshine.

Lion. »You, ladies, you, whose gentle hearts do fear
The smallest monstrous mouse that creeps on floor,
May now, perchance, both quake and tremble here,
When lion rough in wildest rage doth roar.
Then know, that I, one Snug⁵⁷ the joiner, am
A lion fell, nor else no lion's dam:
For, if I should as lion come in strife
Into this place, 't were pity on my life.«⁵⁸

The. A very gentle beast, and of a good conscience.

Dem. The very best at a beast, my lord, that e'er I saw.

Lys. This lion is a very fox for his valour.

The. True; and a goose for his discretion.

Dem. Not so, my lord; for his valour cannot carry his discretion,⁵⁹ and the fox carries the goose.

The. His discretion, I am sure, cannot carry his valour, for the goose carries not the fox. It is well: leave it to his discretion, and let us listen⁶⁰ to the moon.

Moon. »This lantern doth the horned moon⁶¹ present.«

Dem. He should have worn the horns on his head.

The. He is no crescent, and his horns are invisible within the circumference.

Moon. »This lantern doth the horned moon present;
Myself the man i' the moon do⁶² seem to be.«

The. This is the greatest error of all the rest. The man should be put into the lantern: how is it else the man i' the moon?

Dem. He dares not come there for the candle; for, you see, it is already in snuff.⁶³

Hip. I am aweary of this moon: 'would, he would change!

The. It appears by his small light of discretion, that he is in the wane; but yet, in courtesy, in all reason, we must stay the time.

Lys. Proceed, Moon.

Moon. All that I have to say, is, to tell you, that the lantern is the moon; I, the man in the moon; this thorn-bush, my thorn-bush; and this dog, my dog.

Dem. Why, all these should be in the lantern; for all these are⁶⁴ in the moon. But, silence! here comes Thisbe.

Enter THISBE.

This. »This is old Ninny's tomb. Where is my love?«

Lion. »Oh« —

[The Lion roars. — THISBE runs off.]

Dem. Well roared, Lion.

The. Well run, Thisbe.

Hip. Well shone, Moon. — Truly, the moon shines with a good grace.

[The Lion tears THISBE's mantle, and exit.]

The. Well moused,⁶⁵ Lion.

Dem. And then came Pyramus.

Lys. And so the lion vanished.⁶⁶

Qs. haben ohne Berücksichtigung des Reims knit up again. 51) Limander entstellt aus Leander, Helen aus Hero, Shafalus aus Cephalus, und Procrus aus Procris. 52) 'tide für betide = möge mir Leben oder Tod widerfahren. 53) mural = Mauer, ein Wort, das freilich sonst nur als Adjectiv erscheint, ist Pope's Emendation für morall der Fol. — Die Qs. lesen Now is the moon used between etc. 54) Farmer findet hier eine Anspielung auf das Sprichwort Walls have ears. 55) In der Schauspielkunst sind die besten Figuren nur Schatten, nur Abbilder wirklicher Menschen, und die schlechtesten sind eben so gut, wenn die Einbildungskraft der Zuschauer ihnen zu Hülfe kommt. 56) Qs. und Fol. haben two noble beasts, in a man and a lion. — moon ist Theobald's plausible Conjectur, da man nur sehr gezwungen sich auf den Darsteller des Mondscheins, den Mann im Monde, deuten liesse. — Theseus sagt bald nachher von derselben Person: let us listen to the moon. 57) one Snug in der Fol.; as Snug in den Qs.: ich, ein gewisser Snug, der Schreiner, bin weder ein grimmiger Löwe, noch auch selbst eine Löwin. Vor a lion fell ist, nach einer Sh.'schen Auslassung, neither aus dem folgenden nor zu suppliren, und der Zusatz nor else no lion's dam gehört zu den vielen, für dieses Possenspiel charakteristischen, die nur den Vers füllen oder den Reim hergeben. — Barron Field schlug a lion's fell vor. 58) on my life ist vielleicht nicht mit pity zu verbinden, sondern als Betheuerung zu fassen: bei meinem Leben. 59) valour und discretion stehen auch als Gegensätze in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 5, Sc. 4) the better part of valour is discretion. 60) So Q. A.; Q. B. und Fol. haben hearken. 61) So in Coriolanus (A. 1, Sc. 1) hang them on the horns of the moon. — Douce findet eine Beziehung zwischen der aus Horn gemachten Laterne und dem Mond. 62) So die Qs.; die Fol. doth. 63) snuff = Schnuppe des Lichts, und = Verstimmung. Dasselbe Wortspiel in Love's Labour's Lost (A. 5, Sc. 2) You'll mar the light by taking it in snuff. 64) So Q. A.; Q. B. und Fol. for they are. 65) to mouse = Etwas zerreißen, zerfetzen, wie ein Raubthier seine Beute. — So hat der Löwe Thisbe's Mantel gut zerrissen. 66) So Qs. und Fol. Demetrius macht seine Bemerkung über das, was in der Aufführung erst kommen soll, im Präteritum, als ob er die Fabel von Pyramus und Thisbe erzählte, und Ly-

Enter PYRAMUS.

Pyr. »Sweet moon, I thank thee for thy sunny beams:
I thank thee, moon, for shining now so bright,
For, by thy gracious, golden, glittering streams,⁶⁷
I trust to taste of truest Thisby's sight.⁶⁸

But stay; — O spite!
But mark, poor knight,
What dreadful dole is here?
Eyes, do you see?
How can it be?
O dainty duck! O dear!
Thy mantle good,
What! stain'd with blood?
Approach, ye Furies fell!
O Fates! come, come;
Cut thread and thrum;⁶⁹

Quail, crush, conclude, and quell!⁷⁰

The. This passion,⁷¹ and the death of a dear friend, would go near to make a man look sad.

Hip. Beshrew my heart, but I pity the man.

Pyr. »O, wherefore, Nature, didst thou lions frame,
Since lion vile hath here deflour'd⁷² my dear?

Come, tears, confound;
Out, sword, and wound
The pap of Pyramus:
Ay, that left pap,
Where heart doth hop: —
Thus die I, thus, thus, thus!
Now am I dead,
Now am I fled;
My soul is in the sky:
Tongue, lose thy light!
Moon, take thy flight!
Now die, die, die, die, die.⁷⁴

Dem. No die,⁷⁴ but an ace, for him; for he is but one.

Lys. Less than an ace, man, for he is dead; he is nothing.

The. With the help of a surgeon, he might yet recover, and yet prove an ass.

Hip. How chance Moonshine is gone, before Thisbe comes back and finds her lover?

The. She will find him by starlight. — Here she comes, and her passion ends the play.

Enter THISBE.

Hip. Methinks, she should not use a long one for such a Pyramus: I hope she will be brief.

Dem. A moth⁷⁵ will turn the balance, which Pyramus, which Thisbe, is the better;⁷⁶ he for a man, God warrant us; she for a woman, God bless us.

Lys. She hath spied him already with those sweet eyes.

Dem. And thus she moans,⁷⁷ videlicet: —

This. »Asleep, my love?
What, dead, my dove?

O Pyramus, arise!
Speak, speak! Quite dumb?
Dead, dead? A tomb

Must cover thy sweet eyes.

This cherry nose,

These yellow cowslip cheeks,

Lovers, make moan!

His eyes were green as leeks.

O Sisters Three,

Come, come to me,

With hands as pale as milk;

Lay them in gore,

Since you have shore

With shears his thread of silk.⁷⁹

Tongue, not a word. —

Come, trusty sword;

Come, blade, my breast imbrue:

And farewell, friends. —

Thus Thisby ends:

Adieu, adieu, adieu.⁸⁰

The. Moonshine and Lion are left to bury the dead.

Dem. Ay, and Wall too.

The. No epilogue, I pray you; for your play needs no excuse.⁸² Never excuse, for when the players are all dead, there need none to be blamed. Marry, if he that writ it had play'd Pyramus, and hanged himself in Thisbe's garter, it would have been a fine tragedy; and so it is, truly, and very notably discharged. But come, your Bergomask: let your epilogue alone. [A dance.]

SCENE II.

Enter Puck.

Puck. Now the hungry lion roars,
And the wolf howls¹ the moon;
Whilst the heavy ploughman snores,
All with weary task fordone.²
Now the wasted brands do glow,
Whilst the screech-owl, screeching loud,
Puts the wretch, that lies in woe,
In remembrance of a shroud.³
Now it is the time of night,
That the graves, all gaping wide,
Every one lets forth his sprite,
In the church-way paths to glide:⁴
And we fairies, that do run
By the triple Hecate's team,⁵
From the presence of the sun,
Following darkness like a dream,
Now are frolic; not a mouse
Shall disturb this hallow'd house:
I am sent with broom before,
To sweep the dust behind the door.⁶

Enter OBERON and TITANIA, with their Train.

Obe. Through the house give glimmering light,
By the dead and drowsy fire;
Every elf, and fairy sprite,
Hop as light as bird from brier;
And this ditty after me
Sing, and dance it⁷ trippingly.
Tita. First, rehearse your song⁸ by rote,
To each word a warbling note:
Hand in hand, with fairy grace,
Will we sing, and bless this place.
[*Song and dance.*⁹]
Obe. Now, until the break of day,
Through this house each fairy stray.
To the best bride-bed will we,
Which by us shall blessed be;
And the issue there create
Ever shall be fortunate.
So shall all the couples three Ever true in loving be;
And the blots of Nature's hand
Shall not in their issue stand:
Never mole, hare-lip, nor scar,
Nor mark prodigious,¹⁰ such as are Despised in nativity,
Shall upon their children be.
With this field-dew consecrate,
Every fairy take his gait,¹¹
And each several chamber bless,
Through this palace with sweet peace,
Ever shall¹² in safety rest,
And the owner of it blest.
Trip away!
Make no stay;
Meet me all by break of day.

So in K. Richard II. (A. 3, Sc. 2) heavy-gaited toads. 85) new jollity ist in Verbindung mit dem Vorhergehenden aufzufassen: eine Lustbarkeit, die sich vierzehn Tage lang täglich erneut.

1) howls verbesserte Warburton das beholds der Qs. und Fol. — to howl = mit Geheul begrüßen, anheulen, scheint ein Sh.'sches Wort, gebildet nach Analogie von to bemoan etc. — Theobald citirt zu dieser Stelle eine unverkennbare Nachahmung derselben in Marston's Antonio and Mellida, die so lautet: Now barks the wolf against the full-cheek'd moon, || Now lions' half-clamm'd entrails roar for food, || Now croaks the toad, and night-crows screech aloud, || Flutt'ring 'bout casement of departing souls; || Now gape the graves, and through their yawns let loose || Imprison'd spirits to revisit earth. 2) to fordo = abthun, überwältigen. 3) Der Kranke, auf seinem Schmerzenslager wachend, hält das Geschrei der Nachteule für ein Omen seines nahen Todes. 4) Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 2, Anm. 85. 5) Die Feen und Elfen laufen neben dem Gespann der dreigestaltigen Mondgöttin her. — Für triple Hecate steht in As you like it (A. 3, Sc. 2) thrice-crowned queen of night. — Hecate ist bei Sh. gewöhnlich zweisylbig, wie hier. 6) Die Elfen, welche auf Reinlichkeit halten, fegen den Schmutz hinter die Thür, wo er dann liegen bleibt. 7) to dance it = lustig tanzen, wie to foot it und ähnliche Verbindungen mit einem verstärkenden unbestimmten it. 8) your song in Q. A.; this song in Q. B. und Fol. 9) Das Lied, das die Elfen und Feen hier singen sollen, ist nicht angegeben, weil dasselbe wahrscheinlich in das Belieben der Schauspieler gestellt war. In der Fol. ist irrthümlich Oberon's folgende Rede mit The Song bezeichnet. 10) mark prodigious = ein entstellendes Körpermaal von übler Vorbedeutung. 11) Oberon übergiebt jedem Elfen den geweihten Feldthau, mit welchem derselbe seinen Weg (gait) zu einer bestimmten Kammer einschlagen soll. 12) Vor ever ist ein relatives Pronomen zu ergänzen, welches Sh. auch im Nominativ wohl auslässt. — Rowe änderte Ever shall it safely rest, und ein Anonymus stellte die beiden Verse um: And the owner of it blest || Ever shall in safety rest. 13) Puck spricht die folgenden Verse als Epilog an das Publicum gerichtet. 14) Tadelt

That you have but slumber'd here,
While these visions did appear.
And this weak and idle theme,
No more yielding but a dream,
Gentles, do not reprehend: ¹⁴
If you pardon, we will mend.
And, as I 'm an honest Puck,

If we have unearned luck
Now to 'scape the serpent's tongue, ¹⁵
We will make amends ere long:
Else the Puck a liar call.
So, good night unto you all.
Give me your hands, ¹⁶ if we be friends,
And Robin shall restore amends.

THE MERCHANT OF VENICE.

Einleitung.

Von nachstehendem Schauspiel erschienen zuerst im Jahre 1600 zwei von einander unabhängige Ausgaben: die eine im Verlage von James Roberts, der seinen Verlagsartikel schon im Jahre 1598 in die Buchhändlerregister hatte eintragen lassen, und die andere von Thomas Heyes, deren Einzeichnung in diese Register erst vom 28. October 1600 datirt ist. — Das Titelblatt der ersteren Ausgabe in Quarto (Q. A.) lautet: The excellent History of the Merchant of Venice, With the extreme cruelty of Shylocke the Iew towards the saide Merchant, in cutting a iust pound of his flesh. And the obtaining of Portia, by the choyse of three caskets. Written by W. Shakespeare. Printed by J. Roberts. 1600. — Aehnlich — mit den Abweichungen most excellent Historie und choyse of three chests — lautet der Titel der andern Quartausgabe von Heyes (Q. B.), der ausserdem auch die Shakspeare'sche Schauspielergesellschaft namhaft macht: As it hath beene diuers times acted by the Lord Chamberlaine his Seruants. — Von den Varianten, die im Ganzen nicht erheblicher Art sind, verdienen die der Roberts'schen Ausgabe grösstentheils den Vorzug; doch hat die Ausgabe von Heyes, freilich nicht ohne einige geringfügige Differenzen, dem Abdruck in der Gesamtausgabe Shakspeare'scher Dramen in Folio (1623) zu Grunde gelegen. The Merchant of Venice steht daselbst als das neunte Stück in der Reihe der Comedies, zum ersten Mal in Acte, aber nicht in Scenen eingetheilt, und ohne Personenverzeichniss, das Rowe seiner Ausgabe (1709) hinzufügte, nachdem schon eine spätere Quarto (1637) ein ähnliches gebracht hatte.

Was die chronologische Bestimmung unseres Dramas betrifft, so erwähnt in demselben Jahre, 1598, in welchem Roberts A booke of the Marchaunt of Venyse, otherwise called the Jewe of Venyse, in die Buchhändlerregister eintragen liess, Francis Meres in seinem oft genannten Werke Palladis Tamia den Merchant of Venice unter den damals bekannten Lustspielen unseres Dichters. — Auf ein früheres Datum weist schon der Umstand hin, dass eine Stelle des Merchant of Venice (A. 5, Sc. 1) nachgeahmt ist in einem Drama von unbekanntem Verfasser, Wily Beguiled, das, nach Malone, vor dem Jahre 1596 geschrieben sein muss, da Nashe dasselbe in einem Pamphlete des genannten Jahres bereits erwähnt. Damit gewinnt denn auch Malone's Vermuthung an Wahrscheinlichkeit, dass eine Notiz aus dem Tagebuche des Theaterdirectors Henslowe über die Aufführungen auf dem Theater in Newington — 25 of aguste 1594 ne Rd at the Venesyon comodey — sich auf Shakspeare's Merchant of Venice beziehe. Die Shakspeare'sche Schauspielergesellschaft und die Henslowe'sche spielten damals gemeinschaftlich auf dem genannten Vorstadttheater, und da Henslowe das betreffende Stück mit ne (d. h. new) als ein neues bezeichnet, so wäre demgemäss die Entstehung unseres Dramas in das Jahr 1594 zu setzen, eine Zeitbestimmung, welcher auch die Merkmale des Styles und Verses nicht widersprechen.

Die von Shakspeare zu einem Drama verarbeiteten zwei Stoffe, welche die ausführliche Inhaltsanzeige des Titelblatts der Quartoausgaben neben einander speciell namhaft macht, finden sich getrennt in der mittelalterlichen lateinischen Märchensammlung Gesta Romanorum. Die eine Erzählung, betitelt De Milite conventionem faciente cum Mercatore, giebt in allgemeinen Zügen den Vertrag des Kriegers mit dem Kaufmann, die Bedrängniss des Ersteren und seine Rettung daraus durch die Dazwischenkunft der Dame wieder, wie bei Shakspeare, doch fehlt die Freundschaft des Antonio und der jüdische Charakter des Wucherers. Beides Letztere aber findet sich unserm Dichter vorgebildet in einer Erzählung der italienischen Novellensammlung Il Pecorone des Giovanni Fiorentino, welches Werk im Jahre 1554 zuerst gedruckt wurde. Die betreffende Novelle, die erste der vierten Abtheilung, welche Shakspeare wahrscheinlich in einer jetzt verloren gegangenen englischen Bearbeitung gekannt haben muss, erzählt in ihrem ersten Theile von der zärtlichen Freundschaft des reichen venetianischen Kaufmanns Ansaldo für seinen jungen Pathen Giannetto. Er rüstet für ihn dreimal nacheinander ein Schiff aus, mit dessen reicher Ladung Giannetto um die Dame von Belmonte werben will. Zweimal ist er unglücklich und bringt damit seinen Wohlthäter an den Rand des Bankrotts. — Ein weiterer Theil der Novelle von dem Punkt an, wo Ansaldo seinen Freund zum dritten Mal ausrüstet, lautet in einer von Collier in Shakespeare's Library mitgetheilten Uebersetzung so:

Giannetto told him, he had made a firm resolution, to do all in his power to go again; that he could not bear the shame of living in the manner he must do. When Ansaldo found him resolved, he began to sell every thing he had, and equip another ship; and so he did, and disposed of all he was worth, and left himself destitute, to furnish this other fine ship with merchandize: but, as he wanted still ten thousand ducats, he apply'd himself to a Jew at Mestri, and borrowed them on condition, that if they were not paid on the feast of St. John in the next month of June, that the Jew might take a pound of flesh from any part of his body he pleased. Ansaldo agreed, and the Jew had an obligation drawn, and witnessed, with all the form and ceremony necessary; and then counted him the ten thousand ducats of gold; with which Ansaldo bought what was still wanting for the vessel. This last ship was finer and better freighted than the other two, and his companions made ready for the voyage, with a design that whatever they gained should be for their friend. When it was time to depart, Ansaldo told Giannetto, that since he well knew of the obligation to the Jew, he entreated him in case any misfortune happened, that he would return to Venice, that he might see him before he died; and then he could leave the world with satisfaction: Giannetto promised to do every thing that he conceived might give him pleasure. Ansaldo gave him his blessing, they took their leave, and the ships set out.

The two companions observed carefully the ship of Giannetto, while he had nothing in his head but to contrive in what manner to steal into the port of Belmonte; and he prevailed with one of the sailors in the night to sail the vessel into the port of the lady. The morning being clear, his companions looking round, and not seeing any where the vessel, said to themselves, Giannetto has certainly bad luck; but continued their course, wondering greatly where the ship could be gone. The ship being arrived in port, all ran from the castle, hearing Giannetto was come again, and wondering much at his return. He must undoubtedly, say they, be the son of some great personage, as he comes every year with such rich merchandize, and fine ships: would to God he was our master! He was visited by all the principal men of the country, and it was told to the lady, that Giannetto was arrived in port. She saw from the window the vessel, and knew the streamers; and making the sign of the cross, cries: This is certainly a bold undertaking! This is the man who has already left so great riches in this country; and immediately sent for him.

Giannetto ist dieses Mal glücklicher und erlangt in einer Weise, die übrigens mit der Shakspeare'schen Darstellung nichts gemein hat, die Hand der Dame, in deren Besitz er eine Zeitlang glücklich lebt, bis ihm plötzlich der vergessene Ansaldo wieder einfällt. Der Novellist fährt nun fort: Giannetto instantly recollected Ansaldo, and leaving the window, he gave a great sigh, and turned pale; running about the room in great distraction. His lady inquired the cause of his sudden change. He said, he felt nothing. She continued to press with great earnestness, till he was obliged to confess the cause of his uneasiness, that Ansaldo was engaged for the money, and that the term was expired; and the grief he was in, lest his father should lose his life for him: that if the ten thousand ducats were not paid that day, he must lose a pound of his flesh. The lady told him to mount on horseback, and go by land the nearest way, which was better than to go by sea; to take some attendants, and an hundred thousand ducats; and not to stop, till he arrived at Venice: and if he was not dead, to endeavour to bring Ansaldo to her. Giannetto takes horse with twenty attendants, and makes the best of his way to Venice.

The time being expired, the Jew had seized Ansaldo, and insisted on having a pound of flesh. He entreated him only to wait some days, that if his dear Giannetto arrived, he might have the pleasure of embracing him before his death: the Jew replied he was willing to wait, but, says he, if he comes an hundred times over, I will cut off the pound of flesh, according to the words of the obligation: Ansaldo answered, that he was content.

Every one at Venice who had heard of this affair was much concerned: several merchants would have jointly paid the money; the Jew would not hearken to the proposal, but insisted that he might commit this homicide, to have the satisfaction of saying, that he had put to death the greatest of the Christian merchants. Giannetto making all possible haste to Venice, his lady soon followed him in a lawyer's habit, with two servants following her. Giannetto when he came to Venice, goes to the Jew, and (after embracing Ansaldo) tells him, he is ready to pay the money, and as much more as he should demand. The Jew said, he would take no money, since it was not paid at the time due; but that he would have the pound of flesh. And now this was much talked of, and every one blamed the Jew: but as Venice was a place where justice was strictly administered, and the Jew had his pretensions grounded on publick and received forms, nobody dared to oppose him, and their only resource was entreaty; and when the merchants of Venice applied to him, he was inflexible. Giannetto offered him twenty thousand which he refused; then thirty thousand, afterwards forty, fifty, and at last an hundred thousand ducats. The Jew told him, if he would give him as much gold as the city of Venice was worth, he would not accept it; and, says he, you know little of me, if you think I will desist from my demand.

The lady now arrives at Venice, in her lawyer's dress; and alighting at an inn, the landlord asks of one of the servants who his master was? The servant having learned his lesson, answered, that he was a young lawyer who had finished his studies at Bologna, and was returning to his own country. The landlord upon this shews his guest great civility: and when he attended at dinner, the lawyer inquiring how justice was administred in that city; he answered, justice in this place is too severe. How comes that? says the lawyer. I will tell how, says the landlord: you must know, that some years ago there came here a young man from Florence, whose name was Giannetto, he was recommended to the care of a relation who is called Ansaldo: he behaved here so well as to possess the esteem and affections of every living creature, and never was a youth so well beloved. Now this Ansaldo sent him out three times, each time with a ship of great value; he, every time, was unfortunate: and to furnish the last, Ansaldo was forced to borrow ten thousand ducats of a Jew, on condition, that if he did not repay them in June, at the feast of St. John, the Jew might take a pound of his flesh. This excellent young man is now returned, and offers to pay an hundred thousand ducats: the wicked Jew won't take them, although the best merchants in the city have applied to him, but to no purpose. Says the lawyer, this question may be easily answered. If you can answer it, says the landlord, and will take the trouble to do it, and save this worthy man from death, you will get the love and esteem of a most deserving young man, and of all the best men of this city. The lawyer caused a proclamation to be made, that whoever had any law matters to determine, they should have recourse to him: so it was told to Giannetto, that a famous lawyer was come from Bologna, who could decide all cases in law. Giannetto proposed to the Jew to apply to this lawyer. With all my heart, says the Jew; but let who will come, I will stick to my bond. When they came to this judge, and had saluted him, he immediately knew Giannetto; but he did not remember him: for he had disguised his face with the juice of certain herbs. Giannetto, and the Jew, each told the merits of the cause to the judge; who, when he had taken the bond and read it, said to the Jew, I must have you take the hundred thousand ducats, and release this honest man, who will always have a grateful sense of the favour done to him. The Jew replied, I will do no such thing. The judge answered, it will be better for you. The Jew was positive to yield nothing. Upon this they go to the tribunal appointed for such judgments: and our judge speaks in favour of Ansaldo; and desiring that the Jew may stand forth, Now, says he, do you (to the Jew) cut a pound of this man's flesh where you chuse. The Jew ordered him to be stripped naked; and takes in his hand a razor, which had been made on purpoes. Giannetto seeing this, turning to the judge, this, says he, is not the favour I asked of you. Be quiet, says he, the pound of flesh is not yet cut off. As soon as the Jew was going to begin, take care what you do, says the judge, if you take more or less than a pound, I will order your head to be struck off: and I tell you beside, that if you shed one drop of blood you shall be put to death. Your paper makes no mention of the shedding of blood; but says expressly, that you may take a pound of flesh, neither more nor less; and if you are wise, you will take great care what you do. He immediately sent for the executioner to bring the block and ax; and now, says he, if I see one drop of blood, off goes your head. The Jew began to be in great fear, and Giannetto in as great joy. At length the Jew, after much wrangling, told him, you are more cunning than I can pretend to be; however, give me the hundred thousand ducats, and I am content. No, says the judge, cut off your pound of flesh according to your bond; I will not give you a farthing: why did not you take the money when it was offered? The Jew came down to ninety, and then to eighty thousand; but the judge was still resolute. Giannetto told the judge to give what he required, that Ansaldo might have his liberty: but he replied, let me manage him. Then the Jew would have taken fifty thousand: he said, I will not give you a penny. Give me at least, says the Jew, my own ten thousand ducats, and a curse confound you all. The judge replies, I will give you nothing: if you will have the pound of flesh, take it; if not, I will order your bond to be protested and annulled. Every one present was greatly pleased; and deriding the Jew, said, he who laid traps for others, is caught himself. The Jew seeing he could gain nothing, tore in pieces the bond in a great rage. Ansaldo was released, and conducted home with great joy by Giannetto. The hundred thousand ducats he carried to the inn to the lawyer, whom he found making ready to depart. You have done me, says he, a most important service, and I entreat you to accept of this money to carry home, for I am sure you have earned it. I thank you, replied the lawyer, I do not want money; keep and carry it back to your lady, that she may not have occasion to say, that you have squandered it away idly. Says Giannetto, my lady is so good and kind, that I might venture to spend four times as much, without incurring her displeasure; and she ordered me, when I came away, to bring with me a larger sum. How are you pleased with the lady? says the lawyer. I love her better than any earthly thing, answers Giannetto: Nature never produced any woman so beautiful, discreet, and sensible, and seems to have done her utmost in forming her. If you will do me the favour to come and see her, you will be surprised at the honours she will shew you; and you will be able to judge whether I speak truth or not. I cannot go with you, says the lawyer, I have other engagements; but since you speak so much good of her, I must desire you to present my respects to her. I will not fail, Giannetto answered; and now, let me entreat you to accept of some of the money. While he was speaking, the lawyer observed a ring on his finger, and said, if you will give me this ring, I shall seek no other reward. Willingly, says Giannetto; but as it is a ring given me by my lady, to wear for her sake, I have some reluctance to part with it, and she may think, not seeing it on my finger, and will believe, that I have given it to a woman that I love, and quarrel with me, tho' I protest I love her much better than I love myself. Certainly, says the lawyer, she esteems you sufficiently to credit what you tell her, and you may say you made a present of it to me; but I rather think you want to give it to some former mistress here in Venice. So great, says Giannetto, is the love and reverence I bear to her, that I would not change her for any woman in the world, she is so accomplished in every article. After this he takes the ring from his finger, and presents it to him; and embracing each the other, I have still a favour to ask, says the lawyer. It shall be granted, says Giannetto. It is, replied he, that you do not stay any time here, but go as soon as possible to your lady. It appears to me a thousand years till I see her, Giannetto answered: and immediately they take leave of each other. The lawyer embarked, and left Venice. Giannetto made entertainments, and presents of horses and money to his former companions; and having made a great expence for several days, he took leave of his Venetian friends, and carried Ansaldo with him, and some of his old acquaintance accompanied them. Everybody shed tears at his departure, both men and women; his amiable deportment had so gained the good-will, of all. In this manner he left Venice, and returned to Belmonte.

The lady arrived some days before; and having resumed her female habit, pretended to have spent the time at the baths; and now gave orders to have every thing prepared, and the streets lined with tapestry, and filled with men armed for the tiltings and exercises. And when Giannetto and Ansaldo were landed, all the court went out to meet them, crying, Long live our sovereign lord! long live our sovereign lord! When they arrived at the palace, the lady ran to embrace Ansaldo; but feigned anger against Giannetto, tho' she loved him excessively: yet the feastings, tilts and diversions went on as usual, at which all the lords and ladies assisted. Giannetto seeing that his wife did not receive him with her accustomed good countenance, called her, and inquiring the reason, would have saluted her. She told him, she wanted not his caresses: I am sure, says she, you have been lavish of them to some of your former mistresses at Venice. Giannetto began to make excuses. She asked him where was the ring she had given him? It is no more than what I expected, cries Giannetto, and I was in the right to say you would be angry with me; but, I swear by all that is sacred, and by your dear self, that I gave the ring to the lawyer who gained our cause. And I can swear, says the lady, with as much solemnity, that you gave the ring to a woman; and I know it certainly: therefore swear no more. Giannetto said, if what he had told her was not true, he wished every misfortune to fall on him, that might destroy him; and that he said all this to the lawyer, when he asked for the ring. The lady replied, you would have done better to stay at Venice with your mistresses, and have sent Ansaldo here; for I hear they all wept when you came away. Giannetto's tears began to fall, and in great sorrow he assured her that what she supposed could not possibly be true. The lady seeing his tears, which were daggers in her bosom, ran to embrace him, and in a fit of laughter shewed the ring, told every thing which he had said to the lawyer; that she was herself the lawyer; and how she obtained the ring. Giannetto was greatly astonished, finding it all true, and was highly delighted with what he had heard; and went out of the chamber, and told the story to the nobles and to his companions; and this heightened greatly the love between him and his lady. He then called the damsel who had given him the good advice the evening not to drink the liquor, and gave her to Ansaldo for a wife: and they spent the rest of their lives in great felicity and contentment.

Das Motiv zu der Geschichte von den drei Kästchen fand Shakspeare an einer andern Stelle der Gesta Romanorum in einer Novelle, die schon im Jahre 1577 aus dieser Sammlung von Robert Robertson in's Englische übersetzt war. Ein König von Apulien sendet seine Tochter über Meer nach Rom, wo sie den Sohn des Kaisers heirathen soll. Sie leidet Schiffbruch, wird von einem Wallfisch verschlungen und später aus dessen Bauch herausgezogen. Der Kaiser empfängt sie und stellt, um zu wissen, ob sie seines Sohnes würdig sei, dieselbe Probe mit ihr an, welche die Freier der Portia zu bestehen hatten. Dieser letzte Theil der Novelle lautet in der alten englischen Uebersetzung, die unserm Dichter bekannt sein mochte, so:

Then was the emperour right glad of her safety and comming, and had grea' compassion on her, saying: Ah faire lady, for the love of my sonne thou hast suffered much woe, neverthelesse if thou be wor-thie to be his wife, soone shall I prove.

And when he had thus said, he commanded to bring forth three vessels, the first was made of pure gold, beset with precious stones without, and within full of dead mens bones, and thereupon was ingraven this posey: Whoso chooseth me shall finde that he deserveth.

The second vessel was made of fine silver, filled with earth and wormes, and the superscription was thus: Whoso chooseth me shall find that his nature desireth.

The third vessel was made of lead, full within of precious stones, and the superscription, Whoso chooseth me shall finde that God hath disposed to him.

These three vessels the emperor shewed to the maiden and said, Lo, here daughter, these be faire vessels, if thou choose one of these, wherein is profit to thee and to other, then shalt thou have my sonne: but if thou choose that wherein is no profit to thee nor to none other, soothly thou shalt not marrie him.

When the mayden saw this, she lift up her hands to God and said: Thou Lord that knowest all things, grant me grace this houre so to choose, that I may receive the emperours sonne. And with that shee beheld the first vessell of gold, which was engraven, and read the superscription, Who so chooseth me, &c. saying thus: Though this vessel be full precious and made of pure gold, neverthelesse I know not what is within, therefore my deare lord, this vessel will I not choose.

And then shee beheld the second vessel that was of pure silver, and read the superscription, Who so chooseth mee shall finde that his nature desireth. Thinking thus within her selfe, If I choose this vessel, what is within it I know no', but well I wot there shall I finde that nature desireth, and my nature desir-eth the lust of the flesh, therefore this vessel will I not choose. When she had seene these two vessels, and given an answer as touching them, shee beheld the third vessell of lead, and read the superscription, Who so chooseth mee, shall finde that God hath disposed. Thinking within her selfe this vessel is not passing rich, nor throughly precious: neverthelesse, the superscription saith: Who so chooseth mee, shall finde that God hath disposed: and without doubt God never disposeth any harme, therefore now I will choose this vessell, by the leave of God.

When the emperour saw this, hee said, O faire mayden open thy vessell, and see if thou hast well chosen or no. And when this yong lady had opened it, shee found it full of fine gold and precious stones, like as the emperour had told her before.

And then said the emperour, O my deere daughter, because thou hast wisely chosen, therefore shalt thou marry my sonne. And when he had so said, he ordained a marriage, and married them together with great solempnitie and much honour, and they lived peaceably a long time together.

Endlich muss unter den Quellen, welche Shakspeare zu seinem Merchant of Venice benutzen mochte, eine Ballade citirt werden, von welcher Warton aus innern Gründen vermuthet, dass sie älter sei, als das Drama unseres Dichters. Jedenfalls haben die Ballade und das Drama manche Züge mit einander gemein, welche sich in den Gesta Romanorum und im Pecorone noch nicht finden. Das Gedicht ist in Percy's Reliques of Ancient English Poetry abgedruckt und lautet folgendermassen:

*In Venice towne not long agoe
A cruel Jew did dwell,
Which lived all on usurie,
As Italian writers tell.*

*Gernutus called was the Jew,
Which never thought to dye,
Nor ever yet did any good,
To them in streets that lie.*

*His life was like a barrow hogge,
That liveth many a day,
Yet never once doth any good,
Until men will him slay.*

*Or like a filthy heap of dung,
That lyeth in a whoard;
Which never can do any good,
Till it be spread abroad.*

*So fares it with the usurer,
He cannot sleep in rest,
For feare the thiefe will him pursue
To plucke him from his nest.*

*His heart doth thinke on many a wile,
How to deceive the poore;
His mouth is almost ful of mucke,
Yet still he gapes for more.*

*His wife must lend a shilling,
For every weeke a penny,
Yet bring a pledge, that is double worth,
If that you will have any.*

*And see, likewise, you keepe your day,
Or else you loose it all:
This was the living of the wife,
Her cow she did it call.*

*Within that citie dwelt that time
A marchant of great fame,
Which being distressed in his need,
Unto Gernutus came:*

*Desiring him to stand his friend
For twelve month and a day,
To lend to him an hundred crownes;
And he for it would pay*

*Whatsoever he would demand of him,
And pledges he should have.
No, (quoth the Jew with flearing lookes,) Sir, aske what you will have.*

*No penny for the loane of it
For one year you shall pay;
You may doe me as good a turne,
Before my dying day.*

*But we will have a merry jeast,
For to be talked long:
You shall make me a bond, quoth he,
That shall be large and strong:*

*And this shall be the forfeiture;
Of your owne fleshe a pound.
If you agree, make you the bond,
And here is a hundred crownes.*

*With right good will! the marchant says:
And so the bond was made.
When twelve month and a day drew on
That backe it should be payd,*

*The marchants ships were all at sea,
And money came not in;
Which way to take, or what to doe
To thinke he doth begin:*

*And to Gernutus strait he comes
With cap and bended knee,
And sayde to him, Of curtesie
I pray you beare with mee.*

*My day is come, and I have not
The money for to pay:
And little good the forfeiture
Will doe you, I dare say.*

*With all my heart, Gernutus sayd,
Commaund it to your minde:
In thinges of bigger waight then this
You shall me ready finde.*

*He goes his way; the day once past
Gernutus doth not slacke
To get a sergiant presently;
And clapt him on the backe:*

*And layd him into prison strong,
And sued his bond withall;
And when the judgement day was come,
For judgement he did call.*

*The marchants friends came thither fast
With many a weeping eye,
For other means they could not find,
But he that day must dye.*

*Some offered for his hundred crownes
Five hundred for to pay;
And some a thousand, two or three,
Yet still he did deny.*

*And at the last ten thousand crownes
They offered, him to save.
Gernutus sayd, I will no gold:
My forfeite I will have.*

*A pound of fleshe is my demand,
And that shall be my hire.
Then sayd the judge, Yet, good my friend,
Let me of you desire*

*To take the flesh from such a place,
As yet you let him live:
Do so, and lo! an hundred crownes
To thee here will I give.*

*No: no: quoth he; no: judgement here:
For this it shall be tride,
For I will have my pound of fleshe
From under his right side.*

*It grieved all the companie
His crueltie to see,
For neither friend nor foe could helpe
But he must spoyled bee.*

*The bloudie Jew now ready is
With whetted blade in hand,
To spoyle the bloud of innocent,
By forfeit of his bond.*

*And as he was about to strike
In him the deadly blow:
Stay (quoth the judge) thy crueltie;
I charge thee to do so.*

*Sith needs thou wilt thy forfeit have,
Which is of flesh a pound:
See that thou shed no drop of blood,
Nor yet the man confound.*

*For if thou doe, like murderer,
Thou here shalt hanged be:
Likewise of flesh see that thou cut
No more than longes to thee:*

*For if thou take either more or lesse
To the value of a mite,
Thou shalt be hanged presently,
As is both law and right.*

*Gernutus now wact franticke mad,
And wotes not what to say;
Quoth he at last, Ten thousand crownes,
I will that he shall pay;*

*And so I graunt to set him free.
The judge doth answere make:
You shall not have a penny given;
Your forfeiture now take.*

*At the last he doth demaund
But for to have his owne.*

*No, quoth the judge, doe as you list,
Thy judgement shall be showne.*

*Either take your pound of flesh, quoth he,
Or cancell me your bond.
O cruell judge, then quoth the Jew,
That doth against me stand!*

*And so with griping grieved mind
He biddeth them fare-well.
Then all the people prays'd the Lord,
That ever this heard tell.*

*Good people, that doe heare this song,
For trueth I dare well say,
That many a wretch as ill as hee
Doth live now at this day;*

*That seeketh nothing but the spoyle
Of many a wealthy man,
And for to trap the innocent
Deviseth what they can.*

*From whome the Lord deliver me,
And every Christian too,
And send to them like sentence eke
That meaneth so to do.*

Stephen Gosson's School of Abuse, ein Pamphlet, das im Jahre 1579 erschien und gegen das Theater im Allgemeinen aus sittlichen und religiösen Gründen polemisiert, nimmt doch einige Dramen von der allgemeinen Verdamnmis aus und sagt: And as some of the players are far from abuse, so some of their playes are without rebuke, which are easily remembered as quickly reckoned. The two prose books played at the Bel-savage, where you shall finde never a woorde without witte, never a line without pith, never a letter placed in vaine. The Jew, and Ptolome, shown at the Bull; the one representing the greedinesse of worldly chusers, and bloody minds of usurers; the other very lively describing how seditious states with their own devises, false friends with their own swoords, and rebellious commons in their own snares are overthrowne; neither with amorous gesture wounding the eye nor with slovenly talk hurting the eares of the chaste hearers. — Auf diesen Passus hat zuerst Skottowe die Hypothese gegründet, dass in dem genannten Drama The Jew, aufgeführt in der für theatralische Aufführungen dienenden Londoner Herberge The Bull, derselbe doppelte Stoff, wie in dem Merchant of Venice, combinirt gewesen, mithin dieses uns verloren gegangene Drama von Shakspeare benutzt sei. Die Charakteristik des Inhalts, wie Stephen Gosson sie in obigen Worten giebt, ist aber so vage, dass sie diese kühne Vermuthung kaum zu rechtfertigen scheint.

ACT I.

SCENE I.

Venice. A Street.

*Enter ANTONIO, SALARINO, and SOLANIO.*¹

Ant. In sooth, I know not why I am so sad.
 It wearies me: you say, it wearies you;
 But how I caught it, found it, or came by it,
 What stuff 't is made of, whereof it is born,
 I am to learn;

And such a want-wit sadness makes of me,
 That I have much ado to know myself.

Salar. Your mind is tossing on the ocean,
 There, where your argosies with portly sail,
 Like signiors and rich burghers on the flood,²
 Or, as it were, the pageants of the sea,
 Do overpeer the petty traffickers,³
 That curt'sy to them, do them reverence,
 As they fly by them with their woven wings.

Solan. Believe me, Sir, had I such venture⁴ forth,
 The better part of my affections would
 Be with my hopes abroad. I should be still

Plucking the grass to know where sits the wind,⁵
 Peering in maps for ports, and piers, and roads;⁶
 And every object that might make me fear
 Misfortune to my ventures, out of doubt,
 Would make me sad.

Salar. My wind, cooling my broth,
 Would blow me to an ague,⁷ when I thought
 What harm a wind too great might do at sea.
 I should not see the sandy hour-glass run,
 But I should think of shallows and of flats,⁸
 And see my wealthy Andrew, decks in sand,
 Vailing her high-top lower than her ribs,
 To kiss her burial. Should I go to church,
 And see the holy edifice of stone,
 And not bethink me straight of dangerous rocks,
 Which touching but my gentle vessel's side,
 Would scatter all her spices on the stream,
 Enrobe the roaring waters with my silks,
 And, in a word, but even now worth this,
 And now worth nothing? Shall I have the thought
 To think on this, and shall I lack the thought,
 That such a thing bechanc'd would make me sad?
 But tell not me:⁹ I know, Antonio
 Is sad to think upon his merchandise.

1) In den Qs. wird der Name Salanio geschrieben und in der Abkürzung vor den Reden leicht mit Salarino verwechselt. Die Fol. hat bald Salanio, bald Solanio, und letzterer Name wurde schon von Capell der bessern Unterscheidung wegen adoptirt. 2) Antonio's grosse Kauffahrteischiffe, mit ihren stattlichen Segeln emporragend über die vorbeifahrenden kleinen Handelsfahrzeuge, sind gleichsam auf's Meer versetzte venetianische Signori und reiche Bürger, denen die Kleinen im Vorübergehen ihre Reverenz machen. — signior gebraucht Sh. vorzugsweise als Ehrentitel für venetianische Grosse, so in Othello. — pageants ist mit dem Vorhergehenden zu verbinden: die im feierlichen Prachtzuge einerschreitenden grossen Herren, hier in Vergleichung mit den Schiffen, die so das Schaugepränge der See bilden, wie jene auf dem Lande. 3) trafficker, wie trader und merchant, ist zugleich = Handelsmann, und = Handelsschiff. 4) venture = das, was man bei Handelsunternehmungen auf's Spiel setzt: das Schiff und die Waaren. 5) Um zu erfahren, wo der Wind steht, reisst man Grashalme aus und lässt sie fortwehen. — In Much Ado about Nothing (A. 2, Sc. 3) Sits the wind in that corner? 6) Er würde ängstlich auf geographischen Karten nach Häfen, Hafendämmen und Rheden suchen, wo die vom Sturm bedrohten Schiffe eine Zuflucht finden könnten. — Q. A. hat for piers. 7) Würde mich in ein Fieber blasen, würde so blasen, dass ich davon ein Fieber bekäme. — In der nächsten Zeile setzt Q. A. at sea vor might do. 8) Der Sand im Stundenglase würde ihn an den Sand der Untiefen erinnern, in dem sein reiches Schiff ganz umgestürzt, mit dem Verdeck und dem Mast nach unten gekehrt, festsässe. — Qs. und Fol. lesen docks in sand, woraus Rowe, dem die Hgg. folgen, dock'd in sand machte. — Collier schlug vor, Andrew's decks in sand zu lesen. 9) tell not me = redet mir nichts

Ant. Believe me, no. I thank my fortune for it,
My ventures are not in one bottom trusted,
Nor to one place; nor is my whole estate
Upon the fortune of this present year:
Therefore, my merchandise makes me not sad.

Salar. Why, then you¹⁰ are in love.

Ant. Fie, fie!

Salar. Not in love neither? Then let's say you are sad,
Because you are not merry; and 't were as easy
For you to laugh, and leap, and say you are merry,
Because you are not sad. Now, by two-headed Janus,¹¹
Nature hath fram'd strange fellows in her time:¹²
Some that will evermore peep through their eyes,
And laugh, like parrots, at a bag-piper;
And other of such vinegar aspect,
That they 'll not show their teeth in way of smile,
Though Nestor¹³ swear the jest be laughable.

Enter BASSANIO, LORENZO, and GRATIANO.

Solan. Here comes Bassanio, your most noble kinsman, Gratiano, and Lorenzo. Fare you well:
We leave you now with better company.

Salar. I would have stay'd till I had made you merry,
If worthier friends had not prevented me.

Ant. Your worth is very dear in my regard.
I take it, your own business calls on you,
And you embrace the occasion to depart.

Salar. Good morrow, my good lords.

Bass. Good Signiors both, when shall we laugh? say, when?

You grow exceeding strange:¹⁴ must it be so?

Salar. We 'll make our leisures to attend on yours.

[Exeunt SALARINO and SOLANIO.]

Lor. My lord Bassanio, since you have found Antonio,
We two will leave you; but at dinner-time,
I pray you, have in mind where we must meet.

Bass. I will not fail you.

Gra. You look not well, Signior Antonio;

You have too much respect upon the world:¹⁵
They lose it that do buy it with much care.
Believe me, you are marvellously chang'd.

Ant. I hold the world but as the world, Gratiano;
A stage, where every man¹⁶ must play a part,
And mine a sad one.¹⁷

Gra. Let me play the fool:
With mirth and laughter let old wrinkles come,¹⁸
And let my liver rather heat with wine,
Than my heart cool with mortifying groans.
Why should a man, whose blood is warm within,
Sit like his grandsire cut in alabaster?¹⁹

Sleep when he wakes, and creep into the jaundice
By being peevish? I tell thee what, Antonio, —
I love thee, and it is my love that speaks, —

There are a sort of men, whose visages
Do cream and mantle, like a standing pond,²⁰

And do a wilful stillness entertain,
With purpose to be dress'd in an opinion
Of wisdom, gravity, profound conceit;

As who should say, 'I am Sir Oracle,'²¹
And, when I ope my lips, let no dog bark! —

O! my Antonio, I do know of these,
That therefore only are reputed wise,
For saying nothing; when,²² I am very sure,
If they should speak, would almost damn those ears,
Which, hearing them, would call their brothers fools.
I 'll tell thee more of this another time:

But fish not, with this melancholy bait,

For this fool-gudgeon, this opinion.²³ —

Come, good Lorenzo. — Fare ye well awhile:

I 'll end my exhortation after dinner.²⁴

Lor. Well, we will leave you then till dinner-time.

I must be one of these same dumb wise men,

For Gratiano never lets me speak.

Gra. Well, keep me company but two years more,²⁵

Thou shalt not know the sound of thine own tongue.

Ant. Farewell: I 'll grow a talker for this gear.²⁶

Anderes ein, spart Eure Worte bei mir. 10) So Q. B. und Fol.; Q. A. Then y'are. 11) by Janus schwört auch der Venetianer Jago in Othello, (A. 1, Sc. 2). — Das hier hinzugefügte Epitheton two-headed weist schon auf die verschiedenen Gesichter hin, welche im Folgenden beschrieben werden. 12) time = Zeit der Schwangerschaft und Entbindung. 13) Der alte Nestor, der kaum jemals seinen Ernst bei Seite legt, wird in ähnlicher Beziehung erwähnt in Love's Labour's Lost (A. 4, Sc. 3) And Nestor play at push-pin with the boys. 14) Ihr werdet ausserordentlich zurückhaltend, zieht Euch zu sehr von Euren Freunden zurück. 15) Ihr schenkt der Welt, den weltlichen Dingen, zu viel Beachtung. 16) Q. A. every one. 17) scil. my part is a sad one. — Gratiano setzt das vom Theater entlehnte Bild fort, indem er sich die stehende Rolle der damaligen Bühne, die des Narren, beilegt. — Der Nachdruck liegt auf me. 18) Die Runzeln, die das Alter bezeichnen, sollen bei Gratiano von seinem beständigen Lachen kommen. So in Troilus and Cressida (A. 1, Sc. 1) Buried this sigh in wrinkle of a smile, und in Love's Labour's Lost (A. 5, Sc. 2) that smiles his cheek in years. 19) Anspielung auf die Büste auf einem Grabmal oder Denkstein. So in Othello (A. 5, Sc. 2) And smooth as monumental alabaster. 20) Wie ein stehender Sumpf sich mit einer Decke überzieht, die das Wasser darunter nicht erkennen lässt, so ist es auch mit manchen Gesichtern, deren eigentlicher Ausdruck hinter dieser starren Maske versteckt wird. — Bei cream and mantle mit Henley an Runzeln zu denken, scheint nicht in dem Sinne des Dichters. — Zu dem folgenden and do ist nicht mehr whose visages Subject, sondern nur who: solche Leute, die ein eigensinniges Still-schweigen beobachten. 21) So die Qs.; die Fol. hat I am, Sir, an oracle. 22) Für when = whenever setzen die meisten Hgg. mit Rowe who, während nach Sh.'s Construction vor dem folgenden would ein if they should speak bezügliches it hinzugedacht werden muss. — those ears ist zu verstehen the ears of those: Diejenigen würden vermittelt ihrer Ohren in Verdammniss gerathen, welche, einen solchen Thoren anhörend, ihn, obgleich er im evangelischen Sinn ihr Bruder ist, doch einen Narren nennen würden. Eine Anspielung auf Matthäi (Cap. 5, V. 22): Wer aber zu seinem Bruder sagt: Du Narr, der ist des höllischen Feuers schuldig. — damn ist in Qs. und Fol. dam und damme geschrieben. 23) Dieses Ansehen der Weisheit bei den Leuten ist eine werthlose Kleinigkeit, oder, im Tropus, ein Narrengründling, den man mit dem Köder der Melancholie fängt. — this melancholy bait steht = the bait of this melancholy. Ein ähnliches Bild ist in Hamlet (A. 2, Sc. 1) Your bait of falsehood takes this carp of truth. 24) Den Schluss seiner Predigt will Gratiano, da es jetzt zu lang damit werden möchte, nach Tisch vorbringen. 25) Qs. und Fol. haben das veraltete moe (mo) für more, das Rowe in den Text setzte. 26) for this

Gra. Thanks, i' faith; for silence is only commendable

In a neat's tongue dried, and a maid not vendible.

[Exeunt GRATIANO and LORENZO.]

Ant. Is that anything now? ²⁷

Bass. Gratiano speaks an infinite deal of nothing, more than any man in all Venice. His reasons are as ²⁸ two grains of wheat hid in two bushels of chaff: you shall seek all day ere you find them; and when you have them, they are not worth the search.

Ant. Well; tell me now, what lady is the same To whom you swore a secret pilgrimage, That you to-day promis'd to tell me of?

Bass. 'Tis not unknown to you, Antonio, How much I have disabled mine estate, By something showing a more swelling port ²⁹ Than my faint means would grant continuance: Nor do I now make moan to be abridg'd From such a noble rate; but my chief care Is to come fairly off from the great debts, Wherein my time, something too prodigal, ³⁰ Hath left me gaged. To you, Antonio, I owe the most, in money and in love; And from your love I have a warranty To unburthen all my plots and purposes, ³¹ How to get clear of all the debts I owe.

Ant. I pray you, good Bassanio, let me know it; And if it stand, as you yourself still do, Within the eye of honour, ³² be assur'd, My purse, my person, my extremest means, Lie all unlock'd to your occasions.

Bass. In my school-days, when I had lost one shaft, I shot his fellow of the self-same flight The self-same way with more advised watch, To find the other forth; and by adventuring both, I oft found both. I urge this childhood proof, Because what follows is pure innocence. ³³ I owe you much, and, like a wilful youth, ³⁴ That which I owe is lost; but if you please To shoot another arrow that self way Which you did shoot the first, I do not doubt, As I will watch the aim, or to find both, Or bring your latter hazard back again, And thankfully rest debtor for the first.

Ant. You know me well, and herein spend but time, To wind about my love with circumstance; ³⁵ And, out of doubt, you do me now more wrong, In making question of my uttermost, Than if you had made waste of all I have: Then, do but say to me what I should do, That in your knowledge may by me be done, And I am prest ³⁶ unto it: therefore, speak.

Bass. In Belmont is a lady richly left, And she is fair, and, fairer than that word, Of wondrous virtues. ³⁷ Sometimes ³⁸ from her eyes I did receive fair speechless messages. Her name is Portia; nothing undervalued To Cato's daughter, Brutus' Portia; Nor is the wide world ignorant of her worth, For the four winds blow in from every coast Renowned suitors; and her sunny locks Hang on her temples like a golden fleece; Which makes her seat of Belmont Colchos' strand; And many Jasons come in quest of her. O my Antonio! had I but the means To hold a rival place with one of them, ³⁹ I have a mind presages me such thrift, That I should questionless be fortunate.

Ant. Thou know'st, that all my fortunes are at sea; Neither have I money, nor commodity ⁴⁰ To raise a present sum: therefore, go forth; Try what my credit can in Venice do: That shall be rack'd, even to the uttermost, To furnish thee to Belmont, to fair Portia. Go, presently inquire, and so will I, Where money is, and I no question make, To have it of my trust, or for my sake. [Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

Belmont. An Apartment in PORTIA'S House.

Enter PORTIA and NERISSA.

Por. By my troth, Nerissa, my little body is aware of this great world.

Ner. You would be, sweet Madam, if your miseries were in the same abundance as your good fortunes are. And yet, for aught I see, they are as sick that surfeit gear, eigentlich = für dies Zeug, für dies Ding, das häufig ganz allgemein = dafür, vorkommt, bezieht sich hier auf Gratiano's Strafpredigt. — Für farewell der Q. A. haben Q. B. und Fol. fare you well. ²⁷) So verbesserte mit veränderter Interpunction Rowe das It is that any thing now der alten Ausgg.: Ist das nun irgend Etwas, was Gratiano gesagt hat? ²⁸) as fehlt in der Fol. ²⁹) port = äussere Haltung, wie sie sich in der Tracht und in der ganzen Lebenseinrichtung ausspricht, äusserer Anstand und Aufwand, ebenso = das daraus entspringende Ansehen, das man genießt. So in Taming of the Shrew (A. 1, Sc. 1) Thou shalt be master, Tranio, in my stead, || Keep house, and port, and servan's, as I should. — Zu continuance fügt Chedworth ein of, das Sh. in seiner freieren Constructionsweise solcher relativen Sätze auslassen durfte. ³⁰) Die Zeit, in der ich etwas zu sehr den Verschwender gespielt habe. ³¹) Eure Freundschaft ermächtigt mich, Euch alle meine Pläne mitzutheilen. ³²) Wenn Eure Pläne, wie Ihr selber es immer seid, ehrenhaft sind, in dem Bereich der Ehre sich halten. ³³) Der Plan, den Bassanio jetzt auseinandersetzen will, ist ein durchaus unschuldiger. — Diese Worte beziehen sich auf die vorhergehenden Antonio's if it stand — within the eye of honour. ³⁴) Wie es bei einem jungen Manne zu gehen pflegt, der nur seinem eigenen Kopfe folgt, so ist das, was ich Euch schuldig bin, verloren, verthan. ³⁵) Darin, dass Ihr Euch nicht geradezu an meine Freundschaft wendet, sondern mit Umschweifen um sie Euch herumwindet. — In der folgenden Zeile lässt die Fol. me now aus. ³⁶) prest = bereit zu Etwas. — Staunton hält es für möglich, dass prest hier = bound, urged stehe. In dem Falle wäre also press'd zu schreiben. ³⁷) Dass sie ausgezeichnete Tugenden besitzt, das macht sie noch schöner, als ihre Schönheit sie macht. — Den Namen Belmont entlehnte Sh. aus dem Pecorone. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 308. ³⁸) sometimes = einmal, zu einer Zeit. Bassanio spricht von der Zeit, als er mit dem Marquis von Montferrat bei Portia's Vater zum Besuche war. ³⁹) Einen Rang zu behaupten, dass ich es mit einem dieser Freier aufnehmen könnte, als Nebenbuhler eines nur von ihnen aufzutreten. ⁴⁰) Handelswaaren, auf die sich sogleich eine Summe aufnehmen liesse.

with too much, as they that starve with nothing. It is no mean¹ happiness, therefore, to be seated in the mean: superfluity comes sooner by white hairs, but competency lives longer.

Por. Good sentences, and well pronounced.

Ner. They would be better, if well followed.

Por. If to do were as easy as to know what were good to do, chapels had been churches, and poor men's 'cottage-princes' palaces. It is a good divine that follows his own instructions: I can easier teach twenty what were good to be done, than be one of the twenty to follow mine own teaching. The brain may devise laws for the blood; but a hot temper leaps o'er a cold decree:² such a hare is madness, the youth, to skip o'er the meshes of good counsel, the cripple.³ But this reasoning is not in the fashion⁴ to choose me a husband. — O me! the word choose! I may neither choose whom I would, nor refuse whom I dislike; so is the will of a living daughter curbed by the will⁵ of a dead father. — Is it not hard, Nerissa, that I cannot choose one, nor refuse none?

Ner. Your father was ever virtuous, and holy men at their death have good inspirations; therefore, the lottery, that he hath devised in these three chests, of gold, silver, and lead, (whereof who chooses his meaning, chooses you)⁶ will, no doubt, never be chosen by any rightly, but one who you shall rightly love. But what warmth is there in your affection towards any of these princely suitors that are already come?

Por. I pray thee, over-name them, and as thou namest them, I will describe them; and, according to my description, level at my affection.

Ner. First, there is the Neapolitan prince.

Por. Ay, that's a colt,⁷ indeed, for he doth nothing but talk of his horse; and he makes it a great appropriation to his own good parts, that he can shoe him himself.⁸ I am much afraid, my lady his mother played false with a smith.⁹

Ner. Then is there the county Palatine.¹⁰

Por. He doth nothing but frown, as who should say, »An you will not have me, choose.« He hears merry tales, and smiles not: I fear he will prove the weeping philosopher when he grows old, being so full of unmannerly sadness in his youth. I had rather be married to a death's-head with a bone in his mouth, than to either of these. God defend me from these two!

Ner. How say you by the French lord, Monsieur Le Bon?¹¹

Por. God made him, and therefore let him pass for a man. In truth, I know it is a sin to be a mocker; but, he! why, he hath a horse better than the Neapolitan's, a better bad habit of frowning than the count Palatine: he is every man in no man; if a throstle¹² sing, he falls straight a capering: he will fence with his own shadow. If I should marry him, I should marry twenty husbands. If he would despise me, I would forgive him; for if he love me to madness, I shall never requite him.

Ner. What say you then to Faulconbridge, the young baron of England?

Por. You know, I say nothing to him,¹³ for he understands not me, nor I him: he hath neither Latin, French, nor Italian; and you will come into the court and swear, that I have a poor penny-worth in the English.¹⁴ He is a proper man's picture; but, alas! who can converse with a dumb-show? How oddly he is suited! I think, he bought his doublet in Italy, his round hose in France, his bonnet in Germany, and his behaviour every where.

Ner. What think you of the Scottish¹⁵ lord, his neighbour?

Por. That he hath a neighbourly charity in him; for he borrowed a box of the ear of the Englishman, and swore he would pay him again, when he was able: I think, the Frenchman became his surety, and sealed under for another.¹⁶

Ner. How like you the young German, the duke of Saxony's nephew?

Por. Very vilely in the morning, when he is sober, and most vilely in the afternoon, when he is drunk: when he is best, he is a little worse than a man; and when he is worst, he is little better than a beast. An the worst fall that ever fell, I hope I shall make shift to go without him.

Ner. If he should offer to choose, and choose the right casket, you should refuse to perform your father's will, if you should refuse to accept him.

Por. Therefore, for fear of the worst, I pray thee, set a deep glass of Rhenish wine on the contrary casket,¹⁷

1) So die Qs. Die Fol. hat small und verwischt damit das Wortspiel mit dem folgenden mean: in einer mittleren Lebensstellung sich befinden. 2) cold decree = eine Satzung, die ein kaltes Blut entworfen hat. 3) Die Jugend hüpfte leichtfüßig über den langsam hinterdreinfolgenden, lahmen guten Rath hinweg, wie ein Hase über das ihm gestellte Netz. 4) Die Fol. hat reason für reasoning, und in fashion. 5) will = Trieb, Neigung, und = Testament, letzter Wille. — Im Folgenden hat die Fol. it is not hard ohne Fragezeichen am Ende des Satzes. 6) Q. A. liest das Folgende: no doubt, you will never be chosen by any rightly but one who shall rightly love. — who, das auch in Q. B. und der Fol. steht, ist von manchen Hgg. mit Unrecht in whom verändert, da das des Nachdruckes wegen vor shall gesetzte you Object, nicht Subject ist: von Einem, dessen Liebe zu Euch die ächte sein wird. 7) colt = Füllen, und = junger Laffe. 8) Dass er selbst sein Pferd beschlagen kann, hält er für eine Bereicherung seiner angeborenen Talente, für Etwas, das er seinen sonstigen guten Gaben noch angeeignet hat. 9) smith = Hufschmied. So in K. Henry IV. Second Part (A. 5, Sc. 1) here is now the smith's note for shoeing. 10) Johnson vermuthet hier eine Anspielung auf einen polnischen Pfalzgrafen, Albertus a Lasco, der im Jahre 1583 in London eine Zeitlang Aufsehen erregte, dann aber wegen Schulden sich heimlich fortschleichen musste. — county = Graf. 11) Qs. und Fol. haben mounsier le Boune. — Vier Zeilen vorher hat die Fol. rather to be married. 12) trassell in der Orthographie der alten Ausgg. — Die Lust am Tanzen wird hier eben so persiflirt, wie die Lust an Ehrenhändeln. 13) to say to = von Jemandem Etwas sagen, und = zu Jemandem Etwas sagen, zu ihm reden. 14) Du kannst vor Gericht einen Eid darauf ablegen, dass ich vom Englischen nur so viel verstehe, wie man für einen armen Pfennig kauft. 15) So die Qs., die vor der Thronbesteigung Jacob's I., des Schotten, gedruckt waren. Später wurde eine Persiflage der Schotten auf dem Theater verpönt, und die Fol. hat deshalb other für Scottish. 16) Warburton findet hier eine Anspielung auf die beständigen Hülfeversprechungen, die die Franzosen den Schotten ertheilten in ihren Streitigkeiten mit den Engländern. — Vielleicht soll aber nur der Schotte lächerlich gemacht werden, wie er eine Privatbeleidigung sich vom Engländer ruhig gefallen for, if the devil be within, and that temptation without, I know he will choose it. I will do anything, Nerissa, ere I will be married to a sponge.

Ner. You need not fear, lady, the having any of these lords: they have acquainted me with their determinations; which is, indeed, to return to their home, and to trouble you with no more suit, unless you may be won by some other sort than your father's imposition, depending on the caskets.

Por. If I live to be as old as Sibylla, I will die as chaste as Diana, unless I be obtained by the manner of my father's will. I am glad this parcel of wooers are so reasonable; for there is not one among them but I dote on his very absence, and I pray God grant them a fair departure.¹⁸

Ner. Do you not remember, lady, in your father's time, a Venetian, a scholar, and a soldier, that came hither in company of the marquess of Montferrat?

Por. Yes, yes; it was Bassanio: as I think, so was he called.

Ner. True. Madam: he, of all the men that ever my foolish eyes looked upon, was the best deserving a fair lady.

Por. I remember him well, and I remember him worthy of thy praise.

Enter a Servant.

How now? what news?¹⁹

Serv. The four strangers seek for²⁰ you, Madam, to take their leave; and there is a forerunner come from a fifth, the prince of Morocco, who brings word, the prince, his master, will be here to-night.

Por. If I could bid the fifth welcome with so good heart, as I can bid the other four farewell, I should be glad of his approach: if he have the condition of a saint, and the complexion of a devil,²¹ I had rather he should shrive me than wive me.

Come, Nerissa. — Sirrah, go before. —
Whiles we shut the gate upon one wooer, another knocks at the door.²² [Exeunt.]

SCENE III.

Venice. A public Place.

Enter BASSANIO and SHYLOCK.

Shy. Three thousand ducats, — well.

Bass. Ay, Sir, for three months.

Shy. For three months, — well.

Bass. For the which, as I told you, Antonio shall be bound.

Shy. Antonio shall become bound, — well.

Bass. May you stead me? Will you pleasure me? Shall I know your answer?

Shy. Three thousand ducats for three months, and Antonio bound.

Bass. Your answer to that.

Shy. Antonio is a good¹ man.

Bass. Have you heard any imputation to the contrary?

Shy. Ho! no, no, no, no: — my meaning, in saying he is a good man, is to have you understand me, that he is sufficient; yet his means are in supposition.² He hath an argosy bound to Tripolis, another to the Indies; I understand moreover upon the Rialto,³ he hath a third at Mexico, a fourth for England, and other ventures he hath squandered abroad.⁴ But ships are but boards, sailors but men: there be land-rats, and water-rats, water-thieves, and land-thieves,⁵ I mean, pirates: and then, there is the peril of waters, winds, and rocks. The man is, notwithstanding, sufficient. Three thousand ducats: — I think, I may take his bond.

Bass. Be assured you may.

Shy. I will be assured I may; and, that I may be assured, I will bethink me. May I speak with Antonio?

Bass. If it please you to dine with us.

Shy. Yes, to smell pork; to eat of the habitation which your prophet, the Nazarite, conjured the devil into. I will buy with you, sell with you, talk with you, walk with you, and so following; but I will not eat with you, drink with you, nor pray with you. What news on the Rialto? — Who is he comes here?

lässt, und die Freundschaft des Franzosen ihm nichts dabei hilft. 17) contrary = verkehrt, dem Aechten entgegengesetzt. So in K. John (A. 4, Sc. 2) upon contrary feet. 18) So die Qs. Die Fol. hat and I wish them a fair departure, dem Statute Jacob's I. gemäss, das den Missbrauch des göttlichen Namens auf der Bühne verbot. 19) Diese vier letzten Worte fehlen in der Fol. 20) for fehlt in der Fol. 21) Die dunkle Hautfarbe, welche der Prinz von Marocco mit dem Teufel gemeinsam hat, steht der Sinnesart (condition) eines Frommen oder Heiligen gegenüber, wie lautlich to shrive dem to wive. 22) Den Doggerel-rhyme zum Schluss der Scene, den die meisten Ausgg. als Prosa druckten, theilte zuerst Knight richtig ab.

1) In demselben kaufmännischen Sinn, wie Shylock das Wort gebraucht, steht good in Coriolanus (A. 1, Sc. 1) We are accounted poor citizens, the patricians good. 2) Seine Mittel beruhen auf willkürlicher Annahme, sind hypothetischer Art. 3) Sh. hat sowohl upon (on) the Rialto als auch in the Rialto, und versteht darunter die Insel, auf der sich die venetianischen Kaufleute zur Börse versammeln. — Coryate, ein Zeitgenosse Sh.'s, beschreibt in seinen Crudities (1611) die Localität folgendermassen: The Rialto, which is at the farthest side of the bridge as you come from St. Mark's, is a most stately building, being the Exchange of Venice, where the Venetian gentlemen and the merchants do meet twice a day, betwixt eleven and twelve of the clocks in the morning and betwixt five and six of the clocks in the afternoon. This Rialto is a goodly height built, all with bricks as the palaces are, adorned with many fair walks or open galleries that I have before mentioned, and hath a pretty quadrangular court adjoining to it. But it is inferior to our Exchange in London, though indeed there is a far greater quantity of building than in ours. 4) Ausser den genannten vier Schiffen hat er noch andere Handelsunternehmungen in der Welt überall zerstreut. 5) Nach dem Vorgang von land-rats, and water-rats sollte man auch land-thieves, and water-thieves erwarten. Indess ist solche Lizenz in der Umstellung Sh.'sch: wie es Landratten und Wasserratten giebt, so giebt es auch Wasserdiebe so gut wie Landdiebe. — Auf water-thieves bezieht sich dann I mean, pirates. 6) for, und in der nächsten Zeile for that, = because. 7) Douce citirt dazu aus Thomas' Historye of Italy (1561) Folgendes: It is almost incredible what gaine the Venetians receive by the usury of the Jewes, both pryvately and in common. For in everye citee the Jewes kepe open shops of usurie, taking gaiges of ordinarie for XV in the hundred by the yere,

Enter ANTONIO.

Bass. This is Signior Antonio.

Shy. [Aside.] How like a fawning publican he looks! I hate him for⁶ he is a Christian; But more, for that, in low simplicity, He lends out money gratis, and brings down The rate of usance here with us in Venice.⁷ If I can catch him once upon the hip,⁸ I will feed-fat the ancient grudge I bear him. He hates our sacred nation; and he rails, Even there where merchants most do congregate, On me, my bargains, and my well-won⁹ thrift, Which he calls interest. Cursed be my tribe, If I forgive him!

Bass. Shylock, do you hear?

Shy. I am debating of my present store, And, by the near guess of my memory,¹⁰ I cannot instantly raise up the gross Of full three thousand ducats. What of that? Tubal, a wealthy Hebrew of my tribe, Will furnish me. But soft! how many months Do you desire? — [To ANTONIO.] Rest you fair, good Signior;

Your worship was the last man in our mouths.

Ant. Shylock, albeit¹¹ I neither lend nor borrow, By taking, nor by giving of excess, Yet, to supply the ripe wants¹² of my friend, I'll break a custom. — Is he yet possess'd, How much ye would?¹³

Shy. Ay, ay, three thousand ducats.

Ant. And for three months.

Shy. I had forgot: — three months; you told me so. Well then, your bond; and let me see. — But hear you:

Methought, you said, you neither lend nor borrow Upon advantage.

Ant. I do never use it.

Shy. When Jacob graz'd his uncle Laban's sheep, —¹⁴ This Jacob from our holy Abram was

(As his wise mother wrought in his behalf)

The third possessor; ay, he was the third, —

Ant. And what of him? did he take interest?

Shy. No; not take interest; not, as you would say, Directly interest: mark what Jacob did.

When Laban and himself were compromis'd, That all the eanlings¹⁵ which were streak'd and pied, Should fall as Jacob's hire, the ewes, being rank,

In end of autumn turned to the rams;

And when the work of generation was

Between these woolly breeders in the act,

The skilful shepherd peel'd¹⁶ me certain wands,

And, in the doing of the deed of kind,¹⁷

He stuck them up before the fulsome¹⁸ ewes,

Who, then conceiving, did in eaning time

Fall¹⁹ party-colour'd lambs, and those were Jacob's.

This was a way to thrive, and he was blest:

And thrift is blessing, if men steal it not.

Ant. This was a venture, Sir, that Jacob serv'd for;

A thing not in his power to bring to pass,

But sway'd and fashion'd by the hand of heaven.

Was this inserted to make interest good?²⁰

Or is your gold and silver ewes and rams?²¹

Shy. I cannot tell: I make it breed as fast. —

But note me, Signior.

Ant. Mark you this, Bassanio,

The devil can cite Scripture for his purpose.

An evil soul, producing holy witness,

Is like a villain with a smiling cheek,

A goodly apple rotten at the heart.

O, what a goodly outside falsehood hath!

Shy. Three thousand ducats; — 't is a good round sum.

Three months from twelve, then let me see the rate.

Ant. Well, Shylock, shall we be beholding to you?

Shy. Signior Antonio, many a time and oft,

In the Rialto, you have rated me

About my moneys, and my usances:

Still have I borne it with a patient shrug;²¹

For sufferance is the badge of all our tribe.

and if at the yeres ende the gaige be not redeemed, it is forfeite, or at the least dooen away to a great disadvantage: by reason whereof the Jewes are out of measure wealthie in those parties. 8) Diesen Ausdruck leitete Johnson zuerst vom Ringkampf her, später von der Jagd, weil die Hunde sich auf die Hüften des Wildes werfen. Der Sinn ist nicht zweifelhaft, = Jemanden als Beute in seine Gewalt bekommen. 9) well-won = redlich erworben, ist dem interest = unrechtmässige Zinsen, Wucher, - entgegengesetzt. — Die Fol. hat well-worn. 10) Nach dem ungefähren Ueberschlag meiner Mittel, den ich in meinem Gedächtniss anstelle. 11) So Q. B. und Fol. — Q. A. hat although: obgleich ich sonst gegen wucherische Zinsen Gelder weder auszuleihen noch anzuleihen pflege. — by taking of excess bezieht sich auf lend; by giving of excess bezieht sich auf borrow. 12) ripe wants = die Bedürfnisse, die sich gerade eingestellt haben, gerade gezeitigt sind, deshalb befriedigt werden müssen. 13) So Q. B. und beinahe die Fol., nur dass diese he für ye liest. — Q. A. liest Are you resolv'd || How much he would have? und richtet also die Frage nicht an Bassanio, sondern direct an Shylock. — to possess = Jemanden in Besitz von einer Kunde, einer Nachricht setzen. 14) So interpungirt Dyce, indem er das Folgende mit Recht als parenthetischen Satz fasst. Die andern Hgg. beginnen mit this Jacob einen Nachsatz, den sie mit the third schliessen. 15) eanling = das eben geworfene Lamm, von to ean = werfen; daher bald nachher eaning time = die Zeit des Werfens. 16) pyld in den Qs.; pil'd in der Fol. — Das folgende me ist pleonastischer Dativ. 17) Als sie das Werk der Natur oder des Geschlechts vollzogen, als sie sich paarten. — So in Drayton's Moon-calf: nothing doth so please her mind || As to see mares and horses do their kind. 18) fulsome = geil, nach der Deutung von Steevens, unter dessen Citaten jedoch eins vermuthen liesse, dass das Wort synonym mit full, pregnant, sein könnte: aus Golding's Ovid's Metamorphoses, wo das lateinische pleno in ubere mit fulsome dugs übersetzt wird. 19) to fall transitiv = fallen lassen, hier = werfen, von den Lämmern. 20) Wurde diese Geschichte von Laban und Jacob in die Bibel eingerückt, um den Wucher zu rechtfertigen? — In demselben Sinne sagt Antonio bald nachher, in Bezug auf eine biblische Stelle (Evang. Matthäi, Cap. 4, V. 6): The devil can cite etc. 21) Diesen Zug entlehnte Sh. vielleicht aus Marlowe's Jew of Malta: I learn'd in Florence, how to kiss my hand, || Heave up my shoulders when they call'd me dog. — Den Schluss der vorhergehenden Rede Shylock's interpungiren die Cambridge Edd. then, let me see; the rate — 22) spet in Qs. und Fol. Ebenso weiterhin. —

You call me misbeliever, cut-throat dog,
And spit²² upon my Jewish gaberdine,
And all for use of that which is mine own.
Well then, it now appears, you need my help:
Go to then; you come to me, and you say,
»Shylock, we would have moneys:« you say so;
You, that did void your rheum upon my beard,
And foot me as you spurn a stranger cur
Over your threshold: moneys is your suit.
What should I say to you? Should I not say,
»Hath a dog money? Is it possible,
A cur can²³ lend three thousand ducats?« or Shall I bend low, and in a bondman's key,
With bated breath, and whispering humbleness,
Say this: —

»Fair Sir, you spit on me on Wednesday last;
You spurn'd me such a day; another time
You call'd me dog; and for these courtesies
I'll lend you thus much moneys?«

Ant. I am as like to call thee so again,
To spit on thee again, to spurn thee too.
If thou wilt lend this money, lend it not
As to thy friends; for when did friendship take
A breed of barren metal of his friend?²⁴
But lend it rather to thine enemy;
Who, if he break,²⁵ thou may'st with better face
Exact the penalty.

Shy. Why, look you, how you storm!
I would be friends with you, and have your love,
Forget the shames that you have stain'd me with,
Supply your present wants, and take no doit
Of usance for my moneys, and you'll not hear me.
This is kind I offer.

Ant. This were kindness.

Shy. This kindness will I show.
Go with me to a notary, seal me there
Your single bond; and, in a merry sport,²⁶
If you repay me not on such a day,
In such a place, such sum or sums as are Express'd in the condition, let the forfeit
Be nominated for an equal²⁷ pound
Of your fair flesh, to be cut off and taken
In what part of your body pleaseth²⁸ me.

Ant. Content, in faith: I'll seal to such a bond,
And say there is much kindness in the Jew.

Bass. You shall not seal to such a bond for me:
I'll rather dwell²⁹ in my necessity.

Ant. Why, fear not, man; I will not forfeit it:
Within these two months, that's a month before
This bond expires, I do expect return
Of thrice three times the value of this bond.

Shy. O father Abram! what these Christians are,
Whose own hard dealings teaches them suspect
The thoughts of others! — Pray you, tell me this:
If he should break his day, what should I gain
By the exaction of the forfeiture?

A pound of man's flesh, taken from a man,
Is not so estimable, profitable neither,
As flesh of muttons, beefs, or goats. I say,
To buy his favour, I extend this friendship:
If he will take it, so; if not, adieu;

And, for my love, I pray you, wrong me not.³⁰

Ant. Yes, Shylock, I will seal unto this bond.

Shy. Then meet me forthwith at the notary's.
Give him direction for this merry bond,³¹
And I will go and purse the ducats straight,
See to my house, left in the fearful guard³²
Of an unthrifty knave, and presently
I will be with you.

Ant. Hie thee, gentle Jew. [Exit SHYLOCK.
This Hebrew³³ will turn Christian: he grows kind.

Bass. I like not fair terms,³⁴ and a villain's mind.

Ant. Come on: in this there can be no dismay;
My ships come home a month before the day. [Exeunt.

ACT II.

SCENE I.

Belmont. An Apartment in PORTIA'S House.

*Enter the Prince of MOROCCO, and his Followers;¹
PORTIA, NERISSA, and Others of her Train.
Flourish Cornets.*

Mor. Mislike me not for my complexion,
The shadow'd livery of the burnish'd² sun,
To whom I am a neighbour, and near bred.
Bring me the fairest creature³ northward born,
Where Phoebus' fire scarce thaws the icicles,
And let us make incision for your love, gaberdine erklärt Cotgrave mit a long coat or cassock of coarse and, for the most part, motley or party-coloured stuff. — In der vorigen Zeile wäre vielleicht zwischen cut-throat und dog ein Comma zu setzen. 23) Die Fol. hat should für can. 24) Da das Metall seiner Natur nach unproductiv, zeugungsunfähig ist, so ist es auch unnatürlich, Zinsen davon, gleichsam als ein Erzeugniss, zu nehmen. — of barren metal liest die Fol.; die Qs. for barren metal. 25) Wenn er Bankrott macht, seinen Verpflichtungen nicht nachkommen kann. — Für penalty der Qs. hat die Fol. penalties. 26) in a merry sport = zum Spass, ist zu verbinden mit let the forfeit be nominated etc. — So in der Ballade von Gernutus: we will have a merry jeast. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 311. 27) an equal pound = ein Pfund, das der betreffenden Summe entspricht. 28) So die Qs.; die Fol. it pleaseth. 29) to dwell = beharren, fortdauern. So in Macbeth (A. 3, Sc. 2) dwell in doubtful joy. 30) Kränkt mich nicht mit Eurem bösen Verdachte zum Dank für die Freundlichkeit, die ich Euch erweisen möchte. 31) this merry bond = diesen Vertrag, den wir zum Spass aufsetzen lassen. Vgl. oben Anm. 26. 32) fearful = Besorgniss erregend, unzuverlässig. — Mit unthrifty knave = ein Schelm, der es zu nichts bringt, ist Launcelot Gobbo gemeint. 33) So die Fol.; die Qs. the Hebrew. — Q. A. fügt so vor kind ein. 34) fair terms erklärt Johnson richtiger mit kind words, good language, als Roberts mit a fair offer.

1) Die alte Bühnenweisung giebt den Teint und das Costüm des Prinzen und seines Gefolges an: Enter Morochus a tawny Moor, all in white, and three or four followers accordingly. 2) burnished, sonst von der Politur des Metalls gebraucht, bezeichnet hier den goldnen Glanz der tropischen Sonne. So sagte vor Sh. schon Skelton in seinem Crown of Laurel: Like as the lark upon a summer's day, || When Titan radiant burnisheth his beames bright, || Mounteth on high. 3) fairest creature = ein Geschöpf vom hellsten Teint, ist dem my complexion etc. entgegengesetzt: Trotz dieser Verschiedenheit der Hautfarbe ist das Blut des Schwarzen

To prove whose blood is reddest, his or mine.
I tell thee, lady, this aspect of mine
Hath fear'd the valiant:⁴ by my love, I swear,
The best-regarded virgins of our clime
Have lov'd it too. I would not change this hue,
Except to steal your thoughts, my gentle queen.

Por. In terms of choice I am not solely led
By nice direction of a maiden's eyes:⁵
Besides, the lottery of my destiny
Bars me the right of voluntary choosing;
But, if my father had not scanted me,
And hedg'd me by his wit,⁶ to yield myself
His wife who wins me by that means I told you,
Yourself, renowned prince, then stood as fair,<⁷
As any comer I have look'd on yet,
For my affection.

Mor. Even for that I thank you:
Therefore, I pray you, lead me to the caskets,
To try my fortune. By this scimitar, —
That slew the Sophy,⁸ and a Persian prince
That won three fields of Sultan Soliman, —
I would outstare⁹ the sternest eyes that look,
Outbrave the heart most daring on the earth,
Pluck the young sucking cubs from the she-bear,
Yea, mock the lion when he roars for prey,
To win thee, lady. But, alas the while!
If Hercules and Lichas play at dice,
Which is the better man, the greater throw
May turn by fortune from the weaker hand:
So is Alcides beaten by his page;¹⁰
And so may I, blind fortune leading me,
Miss that which one unworthier may attain,
And die with grieving.

Por. You must take your chance;
And either not attempt to choose at all,
Or swear before you choose, — if you choose wrong,
Never to speak to lady afterward
In way of marriage: therefore be advis'd.¹¹

Mor. Nor will not:¹² come, bring me unto my chance.
Por. First, forward to the temple:¹³ after dinner
Your hazard shall be made.

Mor. Good fortune then,
To make me blest,¹⁴ or curs'dst among men!
[Cornets, and exeunt.]

SCENE II.

Venice. A Street.

Enter LAUNCELOT GOBBO.¹

Laun. Certainly, my conscience will serve me to run from this Jew my master. The fiend is at mine elbow, and tempts me, saying to me, — »Gobbo, Launcelot Gobbo, good Launcelot,« or »good Gobbo«, or »good Launcelot Gobbo, use your legs, take the start, run away.« My conscience says, — »No; take heed, honest Launcelot; take heed, honest Gobbo;« or, as aforesaid, »honest Launcelot Gobbo; do not run; scorn running with thy heels.«² Well, the most courageous³ fiend bids me pack: »Via!« says the fiend; »away!« says the fiend; »for the heavens,⁴ rouse up a brave mind,« says the fiend, »and run.« Well, my conscience, hanging about the neck of my heart, says very wisely to me, — »My honest friend Launcelot, being an honest man's son,« — or rather an honest woman's son; — for, indeed, my father did something smack,⁵ — something grow to, — he had a kind of taste: — well, my conscience says, »Launcelot, budge not.« »Budge,« says the fiend: »budge not,« says my conscience. »Conscience,« say I, »you counsel well;« »fiend,« say I, »you counsel well:«⁶ to be ruled by my conscience, I should stay with the Jew my master, who (God bless the mark!) is a kind of devil; and, to run away from the Jew, I should be ruled by the fiend, who, saving your reverence, is the devil himself. Certainly, the Jew is the very devil incarnation,⁷ and, in my conscience, my conscience is but⁸ a kind of hard conscience to offer to counsel me to stay with the Jew. The fiend gives the more friendly counsel:

nicht weniger roth als das des Weissen und deutet damit auf einen eben so hohen Grad des Muthes hin. 4) to fear = Jemandem Schrecken einflößen. — aspect betont Sh. auf der zweiten Sylbe. 5) Portia wird bei der Wahl ihres Gatten nicht ausschliesslich geleitet durch das wählerische Mädchenauge, das auf äusserliche Vorzüge Alles giebt. 6) Wenn mein Vater mich nicht durch seine Weisheit darauf beschränkt und eingeengt hätte, dass ich mich als Dessen Weib hingeben muss, der mich u. s. w. 7) fair, in Verbindung mit for my affection, doppelsinnig = günstig, und = hell, blond. 8) Der Sophi von Persien wird zweimal in Twelfth-Night erwähnt und in dem Drama Soliman and Perseda in einer Stelle, die Sh. vorgeschwebt zu haben scheint: Against the Sophy in three pitched fields, || Under the conduct of great Soliman, || Have I been chief commander of an host || And put the flint-heart Persians to the sword. — Der Säbel des Maroccanerprinzen erschlug den Sophi und einen persischen Fürsten, welcher dem Sultan Soliman drei Schlachtfelder abgewonnen hatte. 9) So Q. A.; Q. B. und die Fol. haben o'er-stare. 10) page verbessert Theobald das rage der Qs. und Fol. — Es ist damit Lichas, der vorerwähnte Diener des Hercules, gemeint, auf dessen unglückliches Schicksal Sh. auch in Antony and Cleopatra (A. 4, Sc. 10) anspielt: Let me lodge Lichas on the horns o' the moon. 11) to be advised = überlegen, überlegsam sein. 12) scil. nor will I speak to a lady afterward etc. 13) Im Tempel soll er den eben erwähnten Eid ablegen. 14) Steevens setzt bless't, für blessed'st, das allerdings neben curs'd'st stehen sollte.

1) Qs. und Fol. haben Enter the Clown alone. — In Q. B. und Fol. nennt er sich selbst im Verlauf seines Monologs Jobbo und Jobbe; in Q. A., wie er nachher überall heisst, Gobbo. 2) with thy heels ist mit scorn, nicht mit running zu verbinden: verschmähe das Weglaufen, als ob Du es mit den Fersen von Dir stiessest. So in Much Ado about Nothing (A. 3, Sc. 4) O illegitimate construction! I scorn that with my heels. 3) courageous erklärt Collier als Ironie von Seiten Launcelot's, der damit die Feigheit des Teufels bezeichnen wolle. Nach Art der Sh.'schen Clowns ist eher anzunehmen, dass Launcelot missverständlich ein Wort für ein ähnlich lautendes, hier etwa für outrageous, gebrauche. So sagt einer der Clowns in Midsummer-Night's Dream (A. 4, Sc. 2) O most courageous day! 4) for the heavens = um des Himmels willen; eine Betheuerung, die auch bei Ben Jonson vorkommt. 5) Er hatte einen gewissen Beigeschmack, d. h. von Unehrllichkeit, im Gegensatz zu dem vorhergehenden honest woman; etwas Aehnliches, was Launcelot aus Delicatesse auslässt, ist auch hinzuzudenken zu dem synonymen grow to und kind of taste. 6) Q. A. hat ill. 7) Q. A. hat incarnal. — Das Wort incarnate, das Launcelot im Sinne hat, wird auch sonst bei Sh. spasshaft entstellt; so in Twelfth-Night (A. 5,

I will run, fiend; my heels are at your commandment;
I will run.

Enter Old GOBBO, with a basket.

Gob. Master, young man, you; I pray you, which is the way to master Jew's?

Laun. [Aside.] O heavens! this is my true-begotten father, who, being more than sand-blind,⁹ high gravel-blind, knows me not: — I will try confusions¹⁰ with him.

Gob. Master, young gentleman, I pray you, which is the way to master Jew's?

Laun. Turn up on your right hand at the next turning, but at the next turning of all, on your left; marry, at the very next turning, turn of no hand, but turn down indirectly¹¹ to the Jew's house.

Gob. By God's sonties,¹² 't will be a hard way to hit. Can you tell me, whether one Launcelot, that dwells with him, dwell with him, or no?

Laun. Talk you of young Master Launcelot? — [Aside.] Mark me now; now will I raise the waters.¹³ — [To him.] Talk you of young Master Launcelot?

Gob. No master, Sir, but a poor man's son: his father, though I say it, is an honest exceeding poor man; and, God be thanked, well to live.

Laun. Well, let his father be what 'a will, we talk of young Master Launcelot.

Gob. Your worship's friend, and Launcelot, Sir.¹⁴

Laun. But I pray you, ergo,¹⁵ old man, ergo, I beseech you, talk you of young Master Launcelot?

Gob. Of Launcelot, an 't please your mastership.

Laun. Ergo, Master Launcelot. Talk not of Master Launcelot, father; for the young gentleman (according to Fates and Destinies, and such odd sayings,¹⁶ the Sisters Three, and such branches of learning) is, indeed, deceased; or, as you would say, in plain terms, gone to heaven.

Gob. Marry, God forbid! the boy was the very staff of my age, my very prop.

Laun. Do I look like a cudgel, or a hovel-post, a staff, or a prop?¹⁷ — Do you know me, father?

Gob. Alack the day! I know you not, young gentleman; but, I pray you, tell me, is my boy (God rest his soul!) alive, or dead?

Laun. Do you not know me, father?

Gob. Alack, Sir, I am sand-blind; I know you not.

Laun. Nay, indeed, if you had your eyes, you might fail of the knowing me: it is a wise father that knows his own child. Well, old man, I will tell you news of your son. [Kneels.] Give me your blessing: truth will come to light; murder cannot be hid long, a man's son may,¹⁸ but in the end truth will out.

Gob. Pray you, Sir, stand up. I am sure you are not Launcelot, my boy.

Laun. Pray you, let 's have no more fooling about it, but give me your blessing: I am Launcelot, your boy that was, your son that is, your child that shall be.¹⁹

Gob. I cannot think you are my son.

Laun. I know not what I shall think of that; but I am Launcelot, the Jew's man, and, I am sure, Margery, your wife, is my mother.

Gob. Her name is Margery, indeed: I 'll be sworn, if thou be Launcelot, thou art mine own flesh and blood. Lord worshipp'd might he be! what a beard hast thou got: thou hast got more hair on thy chin, than Dobbin my phill-horse²⁰ has on his tail.

Laun. It should seem then that Dobbin's tail grows backward:²¹ I am sure he had more hair of his tail, than I have of my face, when I last saw him.

Gob. Lord! how art thou changed! How dost thou and thy master agree? I have brought him a present. How 'gree you now?

Laun. Well, well; but, for mine own part, as I have set up my rest to run away, so I will not rest till I have run some ground.²² My master 's a very Jew: give him a present! give him a halter: I am famish'd in his service; you may tell every finger I have with my ribs. Father, I am glad you are come: give me your present to one Master Bassanio, who, indeed, gives rare new liveries.²³ If I serve not him, I will run as far as God has any ground. — O rare fortune! here comes the man: — to him, father; for I am a Jew,²⁴ if I serve the Jew any longer.

*Enter BASSANIO, with LEONARDO, and other Followers.*²⁵

Bass. You may do so; — but let it be so hasted, that supper be ready at the farthest by five of the clock. See Sc. 1) he's the very devil incardinate, und in K. Henry V. (A. 2, Sc. 3) 'a could never abide carnation.

8) but fehlt in der Fol. 9) Von sand-blind = having an imperfect sight as if there was sand in the eye, bildet Launcelot scherzhaft die Steigerung gravel-blind, und fügt noch das superlativische high davor ein.
10) Q. A. hat conclusions, welches Launcelot eigentlich sagen will, aber nach Art der Sh.'schen Clowns in confusions entstellt, wie Q. B. und Fol. lesen. — to try conclusions = Experimente anstellen. 11) Er will directly sagen. — Zu Anfang dieser Rede hat die Fol. turn upon für turn up on der Qs. 12) sonties entstellt aus sanctities.
13) to raise the waters = die Wasser in die Höhe bringen, dann = losfahren, sich ergiessen. 14) Sir fehlt in der Fol. 15) Die lateinische Folgerungspartikel ergo gebraucht Sh. häufig bei komischen Syllogismen und Raisonnements. — Einige neuere Hgg. streichen das Fragezeichen am Ende des Satzes, weil dasselbe zufällig in Qs. und Fol. ausgelassen ist. 16) such odd sayings = solche seltsame Redensarten, bezieht sich auf Fates and Destinies, und wird dann näher exemplificirt in the Sisters Three, wie die Parzen auch in Midsummer-Night's Dream (A. 5, Sc. 1) heissen: O Sisters Three, || Come, come to me. 17) Launcelot fasst staff und prop im eigentlichen Sinne, nicht im figürlichen, wie sein Vater, und richtet die Frage vielleicht an das Publicum. — Dyce vermuthet, dass Sh. das Folgende geschrieben habe: Do you not know me, father? wie nachher bei Wiederholung der Frage. 18) Es kann lange verborgen bleiben, wessen Sohn Einer ist, aber am Ende kommt die Wahrheit doch an den Tag. 19) Launcelot als Clown macht zwischen boy, son und child einen Unterschied, der in der Wirklichkeit nicht besteht. 20) phill-horse, eigentlich thill-horse, = Deichselpferd. — phill wird für thill in den mittleren Grafschaften Englands gesagt. 21) Unter to grow backward versteht Launcelot = im Wachsthum zurückgehen, abnehmen. 22) Wortspiele mit to set up one's rest = Alles an Etwas setzen, und rest = Ruhe, ruhen, hat Sh. auch sonst. So in Romeo and Juliet (A. 4, Sc. 5) The county Paris hath set up his rest, || That you shall rest but little. — Eben so doppelsinnig steht ground. 23) Zur Equipirung der glänzenden Dienerschaft, mit welcher Bassanio in Belmont bei der Portia auftreten will. 24) Diese Verwünschungsphrase hat Sh. auch in these letters delivered: put the liveries to making, and desire Gratiano to come anon to my lodging.

[Exit a Servant.]

Laun. To him, father.

Gob. God bless your worship!

Bass. Gramercy. Wouldst thou aught with me?

Gob. Here 's my son, Sir, a poor boy, —

Laun. Not a poor boy, Sir, but the rich Jew's man, that would, Sir, — as my father shall specify, —

Gob. He hath a great infection,²⁶ Sir, as one would say, to serve —

Laun. Indeed, the short and the long is, I serve the Jew, and have a desire, — as my father shall specify, —

Gob. His master and he (saving your worship's reverence) are scarce cater-cousins,²⁷ —

Laun. To be brief, the very truth is, that the Jew, having done me wrong, doth cause me, — as my father, being, I hope, an old man, shall frutify²⁸ unto you, —

Gob. I have here a dish of doves, that I would bestow upon your worship; and my suit is, —

Laun. In very brief, the suit is impertinent to myself, as your lordship shall know by this honest old man; and, though I say it, though old man, yet poor man, my father.

Bass. One speak for both. — What would you?

Laun. Serve you, Sir.

Gob. That is the very defect of the matter, Sir.

Bass. I know thee well: thou hast obtain'd thy suit. Shylock, thy master, spoke with me this day, And hath preferr'd thee; if it be preferment, To leave a rich Jew's service, to become The follower of so poor a gentleman.

Laun. The old proverb is very well parted between my master Shylock and you, Sir: you have the grace of God, Sir, and he hath enough.

Bass. Thou speak'st it well. — Go, father, with thy son. —

Take leave of thy old master, and inquire My lodging out. — [To his Followers.] Give him a livery

More guarded²⁹ than his fellows': see it done.

Laun. Father, in. — I cannot get a service, — no; I have ne'er a tongue in my head.³⁰ — Well; [looking on his palm] if any man in Italy have a fairer table,³¹ which doth offer to swear upon a book, — I shall have good fortune. — Go to; here 's a simple³² line of life! here 's a small trifle of wives: alas! fifteen wives is nothing: eleven widows, and nine maids, is a simple coming-in for one man; and then, to 'scape drowning thrice, and to be in peril of my life with the edge of a feather-bed:³³ — here are simple 'scapes! Well, if Fortune be a woman, she 's a good wench for this gear. — Father, come; I'll take my leave of the Jew in the twinkling of an eye.³⁴

[Exeunt LAUNCELOT and Old GOBBO.]

Bass. I pray thee, good Leonardo, think on this.

These things being bought, and orderly bestow'd,

Return in haste, for I do feast to-night

My best-esteem'd acquaintance: hie thee; go.

Leon. My best endeavours shall be done herein.

Enter GRATIANO.

Gra. Where is your master?

Leon. Yonder, Sir, he walks. [Exit.]

Gra. Signior Bassanio!

Bass. Gratiano!

Gra. I have a suit to you.

Bass. You have obtain'd it.

Gra. You must not deny me. I must go with you to Belmont.

Bass. Why, then you must; but hear thee, Gratiano.

Thou art too wild, too rude, and bold of voice; —

Parts, that become thee happily enough,

And in such eyes as ours appear not faults;

But where thou art not known, why, there they show

Something too liberal.³⁵ Pray thee, take pain

To allay with some cold drops of modesty

Thy skipping spirit, lest, through thy wild behaviour,

I be misconstrued³⁶ in the place I go to,

And lose my hopes.

Gra. Signior Bassanio, hear me:

If I do not put on a sober habit,

Talk with respect, and swear but now and then,

Wear prayer-books in my pocket, look demurely,

Nay more, while grace is saying, hood mine eyes

Thus with my hat,³⁷ and sigh, and say amen,

Much A do about Nothing (A. 2, Sc. 3) if I do not love her, I am a Jew. 25) Qs. und Fol. haben Enter Bassanio with a follower or two. 26) infection missverständlich für affection sagt auch die Quickly in Merry Wives of Windsor (A. 2, Sc. 2) her husband has a marvellous infection to the little page. 27) cater-cousin = Vetter im vierten Grade, weitläufiger Verwandter; von Andern mit: Tischvetter, Speisegenoss, erklärt. — Gobbo gebraucht das Wort auf gut Glück, ohne es zu verstehen, und will nur sagen, dass der Jude und Launcelot sich schlecht mit einander vertragen. 28) Launcelot sagt frutify für notify, impertinent für pertinent, wie Gobbo defect für effect sagt. 29) more guarded = mit reichem Besatze versehen. — Das Sprichwort, auf das sich Launcelot's vorhergehende Rede bezieht, ist: The grace of God is better than riches. 30) Die Negation ist hier ironisch gemeint als verstärkte Affirmation. 31) table ist die ausgebreitete innere Fläche der Hand, aus deren Linien die Chiromantie Heil oder Unheil prophezeit. Launcelot hält in dieser Beziehung seine Hand für so glücklich und so zuverlässig, wie nur irgend eine, die ausgestreckt wird, um vor Gericht auf die Bibel einen Eid abzulegen. Das folgende which bezieht Malone auf any man, und Tyrwhitt setzt den Gedankenstrich, der den Ausfall des Nachsatzes andeutet, nicht hinter book, sondern hinter I shall have good fortune, das er also mit swear upon a book verbindet. Dieselbe Interpunction ist in Qs. und Fol. 32) simple gebraucht Launcelot hier und im Folgenden ironisch für das Gegentheil = sehr bedeutend. — In der zweitfolgenden Zeile haben manche Hgg. das volksmässige aleven oder a'leven für eleven. — Q. B. und die Fol. haben nämlich a leven; Q. A. jedoch eleven. 33) d. h. in Gefahr gerathen; sich verheirathen zu müssen. 34) of an eye fehlt in Q. B. und Fol. — Zu for this gear vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 26. 35) liberal = ausgelassen, dreist: wo Du nicht bekannt bist, da nehmen sich diese Deine Eigenschaften etwas zu dreist aus. — Die Fol. hat but where they are not known. 36) misconsterd und misconstred in Fol. und Qs. — Sh. kennt beide Schreibweisen to misconster und to misconstrue. 37) Malone erinnert an die Sitte der Sh.'schen Zeit, bei Tisch den Hut auf dem Kopfe zu behalten. Hier verspricht Gratiano jedoch nur, dass er den Hut sich vor die Augen halten wolle, während das Tischgebet gesprochen wird.

Use all the observance of civility,
Like one well studied in a sad ostent³⁸
To please his grandam, never trust me more.

Bass. Well, we shall see your bearing.³⁹

Gra. Nay, but I bar to-night; you shall not gage me
By what we do to-night.

Bass. No, that were pity.
I would entreat you rather to put on
Your boldest suit of mirth, for we have friends
That purpose merriment. But fare you well:
I have some business.

Gra. And I must to Lorenzo, and the rest;
But we will visit you at supper-time. [Exeunt.]

SCENE III.

The Same. A Room in SHYLOCK'S House.

Enter JESSICA and LAUNCELOT.

Jes. I am sorry, thou wilt leave my father so:¹
Our house is hell, and thou, a merry devil,²
Didst rob it of some taste of tediousness.
But fare thee well; there is a ducat for thee:
And, Launcelot, soon at supper shalt thou see
Lorenzo, who is thy new master's guest;
Give him this letter; do it secretly;
And so farewell: I would not have my father
See me in talk³ with thee.

Laun. Adieu! — tears exhibit⁴ my tongue. — Most beautiful pagan, — most sweet Jew! If a Christian did⁵ not play the knave, and get thee, I am much deceived.
But, adieu! these foolish drops do somewhat drown my manly spirit: adieu!

Jes. Farewell, good Launcelot. — [Exit LAUNCELOT.]
Alack, what heinous sin is it in me,
To be ashamed to be my father's child!
But though I am a daughter to his blood,
I am not to his manners. O Lorenzo!
If thou keep promise, I shall end this strife,⁶
Become a Christian, and thy loving wife. [Exit.]

SCENE IV.

The Same. A Street.

Enter GRATIANO, LORENZO, SALARINO, and SOLANIO.

Lor. Nay, we will slink away in supper-time,
Disguise us at my lodging, and return
All in an hour.

Gra. We have not made good preparation.

Salar. We have not spoke us yet of torch-bearers.¹

Solan. 'T is vile, unless it may be quaintly order'd,²
And better, in my mind, not undertook.

Lor. 'T is now but four o'clock: we have two hours
To furnish us. —

Enter LAUNCELOT, with a letter.

Friend Launcelot, what's the news?

Laun. An it shall please you to break up this, it shall seem to signify. [Giving a letter.]

Lor. I know the hand: in faith, 't is a fair hand;
And whiter than the paper it writ on,
Is the fair hand that writ.

Gra. Love-news, in faith.

Laun. By your leave, Sir.

Lor. Whither goest thou?

Laun. Marry, Sir, to bid my old master, the Jew, to sup to-night with my new master, the Christian.

Lor. Hold here, take this. — Tell gentle Jessica,
I will not fail her: — speak it privately; go.³ —

[Exit LAUNCELOT.]

Gentlemen,

Will you prepare you⁴ for this masque to-night?
I am provided of a torch-bearer.

Salar. Ay, marry, I'll be gone about it straight.

Solan. And so will I.

Lor. Meet me, and Gratiano,
At Gratiano's lodging some hour hence.

Salar. 'T is good we do so.

[Exeunt SALARINO and SOLANIO.]

Gra. Was not that letter from fair Jessica?

Lor. I must needs tell thee all. She hath directed,
How I shall take her from her father's house;
What gold and jewels she is furnish'd with;
What page's suit she hath in readiness.
If e'er the Jew her father come to heaven,
It will be for his gentle daughter's sake;
And never dare misfortune⁵ cross her foot,
Unless she do it under this excuse,
That she is issue to a faithless Jew. —
Come, go with me: peruse this, as thou goest.
Fair Jessica shall be my torch-bearer. [Exeunt.]

SCENE V.

The Same. Before SHYLOCK'S House.

Enter SHYLOCK and LAUNCELOT.¹

Shy. Well, thou shalt see, thy eyes shall be thy judge,
The difference of old Shylock and Bassanio: —
What, Jessica! — thou shalt not gormandize,
As thou hast done with me; — what, Jessica! —

38) sad ostent = ernste Aussenseite, äussere Darlegung von Ernst. 39) bearing = Haltung, Benehmen, von to bear one's self = sich halten, sich benehmen.

1) so bezieht sich auf Launcelot's Worte, in denen er der Jessica seine Absicht mitgeteilt, in Bassanio's Dienste zu treten. 2) Wie der Jessica das Haus ihres Vaters als eine Hölle erschien, so war Launcelot darin ein Teufel, der den Lustigmacher spielte, wie auf dem altenglischen Theater beide Rollen häufig vereinigt waren. 3) in talk in den Qs., die Fol. hat nur talk. 4) Launcelot will inhibit sagen: ich kann vor Thränen nicht sprechen. 5) did ist die Lesart der zweiten Folioausg. von 1632, der die älteren Hgg. folgten, indem sie to get = zeugen, fassten. Steevens und Malone lesen mit den Qs. und der Fol. do für did und beziehen den Satz also auf Lorenzo. 6) strife bezeichnet die streitenden Gefühle der Jessica zwischen ihrer Kindespflicht und ihrer Liebe.

1) Sie haben sich noch keine Fackelträger bestellt, wie solche als gewöhnliche Begleiter von Maskenzügen auch anderswo erwähnt werden; so in Romeo and Juliet (A. 1, Sc. 4). — spoke steht für bespoke. 2) Wenn die beabsichtigte Maskerade nicht geschickt und sinnreich angeordnet wird, so macht sie sich schlecht und wird, nach meiner Ansicht, lieber nicht unternommen. 3) Qs. und Fol. verbinden go mit dem Folgenden. 4) you fehlt in Q. A. 5) misfortune wird, wie sonst fortune, hier weiblich personificirt gefasst, daher unless she do it.

And sleep and snore, and rend apparel out. —

Why, Jessica, I say!

Laun. Why, Jessica!

Shy. Who bids thee call? I do not bid thee call.

Laun. Your worship was wont to tell me, I could² do nothing without bidding.

Enter JESSICA.

Jes. Call you? What is your will?

Shy. I am bid forth to supper, Jessica:

There are my keys. — But wherefore should I go?

I am not bid for love; they flatter me:

But yet I'll go in hate, to feed upon

The prodigal Christian. — Jessica, my girl,

Look to my house. — I am right loath to go:

There is some ill a brewing towards my rest,

For I did dream of money-bags to-night.

Laun. I beseech you, Sir, go: my young master doth expect your reproach.

Shy. So do I his.³

Laun. And they have conspired together: — I will not say, you shall see a masque; but if you do, then it was not for nothing that my nose fell a bleeding on Black-Monday⁴ last, at six o'clock i' the morning, falling out that year on Ash-Wednesday was four year in the afternoon.

Shy. What! are there masques? — Hear you⁵ me, Jessica:

Lock up my doors; and when you hear the drum,

And the vile squeaking of the wry-neck'd fife,⁶

Clamber not you up to the casements then,

Nor thrust your head into the public street

To gaze on christian fools with varnish'd faces,

But stop my house's ears, I mean my casements:

Let not the sound of shallow foppery enter

My sober house. — By Jacob's staff, I swear,

I have no mind of feasting forth to-night;

But I will go. — Go you before me, sirrah:

Say, I will come.

Laun. I will go before, Sir. — Mistress, look out at window, for all this;

There will come a Christian by,

Will be worth a Jewess' eye.⁷ [Exit.]

Shy. What says that fool of Hagar's offspring? ha!

Jes. His words were, »Farewell, mistress;« nothing else.

Shy. The patch⁸ is kind enough, but a huge feeder, Snail-slow in profit, and he sleeps by day

More than the wild-cat:⁹ drones hive not with me;

Therefore I part with him, and part with him

To one that I would have him help to waste

His borrow'd purse. — Well, Jessica, go in:

Perhaps I will return immediately.

Do, as I bid you; shut doors after you:

Fast bind, fast find;¹⁰

A proverb never stale in thrifty mind. [Exit.]

Jes. Farewell; and if my fortune be not crost,

I have a father, you a daughter, lost. [Exit.]

SCENE VI.

The Same.

Enter GRATIANO and SALARINO, masqued.

Gra. This is the penthouse, under which Lorenzo Desir'd us to make stand.¹

Salar. His hour is almost past.

Gra. And it is marvel he outdells his hour,

For lovers ever run before the clock.

Salar. O! ten times faster Venus' pigeons² fly

To seal love's bonds new-made, than they are wont

To keep obliged faith unforfeited!

Gra. That ever holds:³ who riseth from a feast

With that keen appetite that he sits down?

Where is the horse that doth untread again

His tedious measures with the unbated fire

That he did pace them first? All things that are,

Are with more spirit chased than enjoy'd.

How like a younker,⁴ or a prodigal,

1) Die Bühnenweisung der Q. B. und Fol. lautet Enter Jew and his man that was the Clown. — that was bezieht sich auf his man, = sein ehemaliger Diener. 2) So Q. B. und Fol., welche die Rede in Verse abtheilen. — Q. A. hat that I could und druckt es als Prosa. 3) Launcelot will approach sagen, Shylock fasst reproach = Schmach, Beschimpfung. 4) Black-Monday = Ostermontag. Der Name wird so erklärt in Stowe's History of England: Black-Monday is Easter-Monday and was so called on this occasion: in the 34th of Edward III. (1360) the 14th of April and the morrow after Easter-day, King Edward with his host lay before the city of Paris: which day was full dark with mist and hail, and so bitter cold that many men died on their horses' backs with the cold. Wherefore, unto this day, it hath been called the Black-Monday. 5) Q. A. lässt you aus. 6) Die alte englische Pfeife oder kleine Flöte hatte ein Mundstück in Gestalt eines Vogelschnabels, wie Knight bemerkt. — Wie Boswell annimmt, ist jedoch unter fife hier nicht das Instrument, sondern der Bläser, der beim Spiel den Hals dreht, gemeint. Boswell citirt dazu aus Barnaby Riche's Aphorismes (1618) A fife is a wry-neckt musician, for he always looks away from his instrument. — Für squeaking der Q. A. haben Q. B. und die Fol. squealing. 7) Indem Launcelot Jewess' für Jew's sagt, in Beziehung auf die Jessica, modificirt er das sprichwörtliche it is worth a Jew's eye = es ist eine grosse Summe Geldes werth, eine solche Summe, mit der in den Zeiten der Judenverfolgung ein reicher Jude sich von dem Verlust eines Auges loskaufen konnte. — Da Qs. und Fol. Jewes haben, so setzten die ältern Hgg. unmetrisch Jew's. 8) patch = Narr, von der bunten Tracht des Narren, dann eine allgemein verächtliche Bezeichnung = Lump, wie in Midsummer-Night's Dream (A. 3, Sc. 2) A crew of patches, rude mechanicals. 9) So in Othello (A. 2, Sc. 1) Bells in your parlours, wild-cats in your kitchens. 10) Dyce erklärt und belegt diesen sprichwörtlichen Reim mit einem Citat aus Cotgrave's Dictionary: Bon guet chasse malaventure: Pro. Good watch prevents misfortune; fast bind, fast find, say we.

1) So die Qs.; die Fol. hat desired us to make a stand. 2) Unter Venus' pigeons versteht Boswell die Tauben, die den Wagen der Liebesgöttin ziehen. So in Tempest (A. 4, Sc. 1) I met her deity || Cutting the clouds towards Paphos; and her son || Dove-drawn with her. — In der folgenden Zeile hat die Fol. steal für seal der Qs. 3) Das bewährt sich immer. 4) younker verbessert Rowe das younger der Qs. und Fol. — younker = ein reicher, leicht zu prellender, junger Mann, steht hier synonym mit prodigal = der verlorne Sohn im Evan-

The scarfed⁶ bark puts from her native bay,
Hugg'd and embraced by the strumpet wind!
How like the prodigal⁶ doth she return,
With over-weather'd ribs, and ragged sails,
Lean, rent, and beggar'd by the strumpet wind!

Enter LORENZO.

Salar. Here comes Lorenzo: — more of this hereafter.

Lor. Sweet friends, your patience for my long abode;
Not I, but my affairs have made you wait:
When you shall please to play the thieves for wives,
I'll watch as long for you then. — Approach;
Here dwells my father Jew. — Ho! who's within!

Enter JESSICA above, in boy's clothes.

Jes. Who are you? Tell me for more certainty,
Albeit I'll swear that I do know your tongue.

Lor. Lorenzo, and thy love.

Jes. Lorenzo, certain; and my love, indeed,
For who love I so much? And now who knows,
But you, Lorenzo, whether I am yours?

Lor. Heaven, and thy thoughts are witness that thou art.

Jes. Here, catch this casket: it is worth the pains.
I am glad 't is night, you do not look on me,
For I am much asham'd of my exchange;⁷
But love is blind, and lovers cannot see
The pretty follies that themselves commit;
For if they could, Cupid himself would blush
To see me thus transformed to a boy.

Lor. Descend, for you must be my torch-bearer.

Jes. What! must I hold a candle⁸ to my shames?
They in themselves, good sooth, are too too light.⁹
Why, 't is an office of discovery, love,
And I should be obscur'd.

Lor. So are you,¹⁰ sweet,
Even in the lovely garnish of a boy.

But come at once;
For the close night doth play the runaway,¹¹
And we are stay'd for at Bassanio's feast.

Jes. I will make fast the doors, and gild myself
With some more ducats, and be with you straight.

[Exit from above.]

Gra. Now, by my hood, a Gentile,¹² and no Jew.

Lor. Beshrew me, but I love her heartily;¹³
For she is wise, if I can judge of her,
And fair she is, if that mine eyes be true,
And true she is, as she hath prov'd herself;

And therefore, like herself, wise, fair, and true,
Shall she be placed in my constant soul.

Enter JESSICA.

What, art thou come? — On, gentlemen; away!
Our masquing mates by this time for us stay.

[Exit with JESSICA and SALARINO.]

Enter ANTONIO.

Ant. Who's there?

Gra. Signior Antonio?

Ant. Fie, fie, Gratiano! where are all the rest?

'T is nine o'clock; our friends all stay for you.

No masque to-night: the wind is come about;

Bassanio presently will go aboard:¹⁴

I have sent twenty out to seek for you.

Gra. I am glad on 't: I desire no more delight,

Than to be under sail and gone to-night. [Exeunt.]

SCENE VII.

Belmont. An Apartment in PORTIA'S House.

Enter PORTIA, with the Prince of MOROCCO, and both their Trains.

Por. Go, draw aside the curtains, and discover
The several caskets to this noble prince. —
Now make your choice.

Mor. The first, of gold, who this inscription bears:

»Who chooseth me, shall gain what many¹ men desire.«

The second, silver, which this promise carries:

»Who chooseth me, shall get as much as he deserves.«

This third, dull lead, with warning all as blunt:²

»Who chooseth me, must give and hazard all he hath.«

How shall I know if I do choose the right?

Por. The one of them contains my picture, prince:

If you choose that, then I am yours withal.³

Mor. Some god direct my judgment! Let me see.

I will survey the inscriptions back again:

What says this leaden casket?

»Who chooseth me, must give and hazard all he hath.«

Must give — for what? for lead? hazard for lead?

This casket threatens. Men that hazard all,

Do it in hope of fair advantages:

A golden mind stoops not to shows of dross;⁴

I'll then nor give, nor hazard, aught for lead.

What says the silver, with her virgin hue?

»Who chooseth me, shall get as much as he deserves.«

As much as he deserves? — Pause there, Morocco, gelium. So in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 3, Sc. 3) I'll not pay a denier. What, will you make a younker of me? 5) scarfed = bewimpelt. 6) the prodigal in den Qs. spielt deutlicher auf die Geschichte vom verlorenen Sohne an, an welche Sh. hier wie an vielen andern Stellen gedacht hat, als das a prodigal der Fol. — In der folgenden Zeile hat die Fol. over-wither'd. 7) my exchange = mein Wechsel der Kleidung, meine Verkleidung in einen Knaben. 8) Eine sprichwörtliche Redensart, die Jessica hier im eigentlichen Wortsinne versteht. 9) light doppelsinnig, wie oft bei Sh., = hell, und = leicht, leichtfertig. 10) so you are in der Fol. 11) Die Nacht, deren Stille uns schützen soll, spielt den Wegläufer, stiehlt sich heimlich davon. 12) So Q. A.; Q. B. und die Fol. gentle. Sh. beabsichtigte wohl ein Wortspiel zwischen beiden Worten. — by my hood schwört Gratiano, als ob er Mönch mit der Capuze wäre, bei dem Domino, in den er maskirt ist. 13) scil. God beshrew me: Gott strafe mich, wenn ich sie nicht von Herzen liebe. 14) Q. A. lässt die folgende Zeile aus und theilt die beiden letzten Verse dieser Scene irrig dem Antonio zu.

1) many ist zufällig in der Fol. ausgefallen; es steht auch in der Fol. bei der späteren Wiederholung des Spruches. 2) scil. as blunt as lead. 3) Wenn Ihr mein Bild wählt, so bin ich mit dem Bilde die Eurige. Für withal, wie Qs. und Fol. haben, setzen viele Hgg. with all. 4) Ein goldner Geist, der mit dem Höchsten, Kostbarsten vertraut ist, lässt sich nicht herab, wenn niederes Metall oder Schlacken sich ihm darbieten, wie in diesem bleiernen Kästchen. 5) even hand = unparteiische, gerechte Hand. So even-handed justice in Macbeth

And weigh thy value with an even hand.⁵
 If thou be'st rated by thy estimation,
 Thou dost deserve enough; and yet enough
 May not extend so far as to the lady;
 And yet to be afraid of my deserving,⁶
 Were but a weak disabling of myself.
 As much as I deserve! — Why, that's the lady:
 I do in birth deserve her, and in fortunes;
 In graces, and in qualities of breeding;⁷
 But more than these in love I do deserve.
 What if I stray'd no further, but chose here? —
 Let's see once more this saying grav'd in gold:
 »Who chooseth me, shall gain what many men desire.«
 Why, that's the lady: all the world desires her;
 From the four corners of the earth they come,
 To kiss this shrine, this mortal-breathing⁸ saint.
 The Hyrcanian deserts, and the vasty wilds
 Of wide Arabia, are as throughfares now,
 For princes to come view fair Portia:
 The watery kingdom, whose ambitious head
 Spits in the face of heaven, is no bar
 To stop the foreign spirits,⁹ but they come,
 As o'er a brook, to see fair Portia.
 One of these three contains her heavenly picture.
 Is't like, that lead contains her? 'T were damnation,
 To think so base a thought: it were too gross
 To rib¹⁰ her cerecloth in the obscure grave.
 Or shall I think in silver she's immur'd,
 Being ten times undervalued to tried gold?¹¹
 O sinful thought! Never so rich a gem
 Was set in worse than gold. They have in England
 A coin, that bears the figure of an angel
 Stamped in gold,¹² but that's insculp'd upon;
 But here an angel in a golden bed
 Lies all within. — Deliver me the key:
 Here do I choose, and thrive I as I may!
Por. There, take it, prince; and if my form lie there,
 Then I am yours. [He unlocks the golden casket.]
Mor. O hell! what have we here?
 A carrion death, within whose empty eye
 There is a written scroll. I'll read the writing.
 [Reads.] »All that glisters is not gold;
 Often have you heard that told:

Many a man his life hath sold,
 But my outside to behold:
 Gilded tombs¹³ do worms infold.
 Had you been as wise as bold,
 Young in limbs, in judgment old,
 Your answer had not been inscroll'd:¹⁴
 Fare you well; your suit is cold.
 Cold, indeed, and labour lost:
 Then, farewell, heat; and, welcome, frost. —
 Portia, adieu. I have too griev'd a heart,
 To take a tedious leave: thus¹⁵ losers part. [Exit.]
Por. A gentle riddance. — Draw the curtains:¹⁶ go.
 Let all of his complexion choose me so. [Exeunt.]

SCENE VIII.

Venice. A Street.

Enter SALARINO and SOLANIO.

Salar. Why, man, I saw Bassanio under sail:
 With him is Gratiano gone along;
 And in their ship, I'm sure, Lorenzo is not.
Solan. The villain Jew, with outcries rais'd the duke,
 Who went with him to search Bassanio's ship.
Salar. He came¹ too late, the ship was under sail:
 But there the duke was given to understand,
 That in a gondola² were seen together
 Lorenzo and his amorous Jessica.
 Besides, Antonio certified the duke,
 They were not with Bassanio in his ship.
Solan. I never heard a passion so confus'd,
 So strange, outrageous, and so variable,
 As the dog Jew did utter in the streets:
 »My daughter! — O my ducats! — O my daughter!
 Fled with a Christian! — O my christian ducats!
 Justice! the law! my ducats, and my daughter!
 A sealed bag, two sealed bags of ducats,
 Of double ducats, stol'n from me by my daughter!
 And jewels! two stones, two rich and precious stones,
 Stol'n by my daughter! — Justice! find the girl!
 She hath the stones upon her, and the ducats!«
Salar. Why, all the boys in Venice follow him,
 Crying, his stones,³ his daughter, and his ducats.

(A. 1, Sc. 7). 6) Besorgnisse hegen in Betreff dessen, was ich verdiene oder werth bin, wäre eine schwächliche Herabwürdigung oder Schändung meiner selbst. 7) birth ist dem fortunes = Glücksgüter, so gegenübergestellt, wie graces = angeborne Gaben und Vorzüge körperlicher oder geistiger Art, dem qualities of breeding = Eigenschaften, die man der Erziehung verdankt. 8) mortal-breathing saint = ein Heiligenbild, das lebt und athmet, wie eine Sterbliche. — Sh. denkt an das Heiligenbild eines Wallfahrtsortes. 9) foreign spirits = muthige, beherzte Leute aus der Fremde. So in K. John (A. 2, Sc. 1) a braver choice of dauntless spirits, || Than now the English bottoms have waft o'er, || Did never float upon the swelling tide. 10) to rib = einschliessen, wie mit Rippen: das Blei wäre zu gemein, um dem Leichentuche der Portia im dunkeln Grabe zur Einfassung zu dienen; ein bleierner Sarg wäre zu schlecht für sie. 11) Das Silber, das von zehnfach geringerem Werthe ist, als geläutertes Gold. 12) Die englische Goldmünze, zehn Schillinge an Werth, mit dem Bilde eines Engels darauf und deshalb angel genannt, erwähnt Sh. auch sonst. Dieser Münze ist das Bild eines Engels nur aufgeprägt, während in dem goldenen Kästchen der Portia muthmasslich ein solches Engelsbild, das Bild der Portia, im Innern verborgen liegt. 13) tombs ist Johnson's Emendation für timber in Qs. und Fol.: Wie ein vergoldetes Grab trotz dieses äussern Glanzes doch Würmer in sich birgt, so birgt dieses goldene Kästchen einen Tottenkopf. 14) So würde die Antwort für Euch nicht folgendermassen verzeichnet sein: Lebt wohl, Eure Werbung ist fruchtlos. — cold fasst der Prinz dann im eigentlichen Sinne: abgekühlt von der heissen Liebe zur Portia. 15) thus: so wie ich, ohne weit-schweifige Abschiedsreden. 16) to draw the curtain ist je nach dem Context = den Vorhang vorziehen, und = den Vorhang wegziehen.

1) he comes in der Fol. 2) gondola, ein Fahrzeug, dessen man sich in den Canälen Venedigs bedient, wird unterschieden von ship, dem Fahrzeug, das den Bassanio nach Belmont bringen sollte. Als speciell venetianisch kommt das Wort auch in As you like it (A. 4, Sc. 1) vor: I will scarce think you have swam in a gondola. 3) Sh. dachte wahrscheinlich an den Doppelsinn von stones = Steine, und = Testikel, den er auch sonst

Solan. Let good Antonio look he keep his day,
Or he shall pay for this.

Salar. Marry, well remember'd.
I reason'd⁴ with a Frenchman yesterday,
Who told me, in the narrow seas⁵ that part
The French and English, there miscarried
A vessel of our country, richly fraught.
I thought upon Antonio when he told me,
And wish'd in silence that it were not his.

Solan. You were best to tell Antonio what you hear;
Yet do not suddenly, for it may grieve him.

Salar. A kinder gentleman treads not the earth.
I saw Bassanio and Antonio part.
Bassanio told him, he would make some speed
Of his return: he answer'd — »Do not so;
Slubber⁶ not business for my sake, Bassanio,
But stay the very riping of the time;
And for the Jew's bond, which he hath of me,
Let it not enter in your mind of love.⁷
Be merry, and employ your chiefest thoughts
To courtship, and such fair ostents of love
As shall conveniently become you there.«
And even there, his eye being big with tears,
Turning his face, he put his hand behind him,⁸
And with affection wondrous sensible
He wrung Bassanio's hand; and so they parted.

Solan. I think, he only loves the world for him.
I pray thee, let us go, and find him out,
And quicken his embraced heaviness⁹
With some delight or other.

Salar. Do we so. [Exeunt.]

SCENE IX.

Belmont. An Apartment in PORTIA'S House.

Enter NERISSA, with a Servitor.

Ner. Quick, quick, I pray thee, draw the curtain¹ straight.
The prince of Arragon hath ta'en his oath,²
And comes to his election presently.

Enter the Prince of ARRAGON, PORTIA, and their Trains. Flourish cornets.

Por. Behold, there stand the caskets, noble prince.
If you choose that wherein I am contain'd,
Straight shall our nuptial rites be solemniz'd;
But if you fail, without more speech,³ my lord,
You must be gone from hence immediately.

Ar. I am enjoin'd by oath to observe three things:
First, never to unfold to any one
Which casket 't was I chose: next, if I fail
Of the right casket, never in my life
To woo a maid in way of marriage:
Lastly,
If I do fail in fortune of my choice,
Immediately to leave you and be gone.

Por. To these injunctions every one doth swear,
That comes to hazard for my worthless self.

Ar. And so have I address'd me.⁴ Fortune now
To my heart's hope!⁵ — Gold, silver, and base lead.
»Who chooseth me, must give and hazard all he hath:«
You shall look fairer, ere I give, or hazard.⁶
What says the golden chest? ha! let me see: —
»Who chooseth me, shall gain what many men desire.«
What many men desire: — that many may be meant
By the fool multitude,⁷ that choose by show,
Not learning more than the fond eye doth teach,
Which pries not to the interior, but, like the martlet,⁸
Builds in the weather on the outward wall,
Even in the force and road of casualty.
I will not choose what many men desire,
Because I will not jump with common spirits,⁹
And rank me with the barbarous multitudes.
Why, then to thee, thou silver treasure-house;
Tell me once more what title thou dost bear:
»Who chooseth me, shall get as much as he deserves.«
And well said too; for who shall go about
To cozen fortune, and be honourable,
Without the stamp of merit? Let none presume
To wear an undeserved dignity.
O! that estates, degrees, and offices,
Were not deriv'd corruptly!¹⁰ and that clear honour

als Wortspiel benutzt. Eben deshalb spricht er vorher von two stones etc. 4) to reason = hin und her reden, eine Wechselrede führen. 5) So wird die Meerenge von Calais wiederholt in Sh.'s historischen Dramen bezeichnet. 6) to slubber = eine Sache unordentlich oder ungründlich betreiben, sie dadurch entstellen oder verwischen. — Q. B. liest slumber. 7) your mind of love erklärt Steevens richtig mit your loving mind: Euer Geist, der ganz mit der Liebe zur Portia erfüllt sein soll, darf sich durch den Schuldschein des Juden nicht stören lassen. — Sinnreich ist Staunton's Vermuthung: bond of love im Sh.'schen Gegensatz zu the Jew's bond. — Derselbe Ausdruck findet sich in Twelfth-Night (A. 5, Sc. 1) und in Winter's Tale (A. 4, Sc. 3). 8) Er reichte dem Bassanio noch zum Abschied die Hand, mit abgewandtem Gesicht, um die Thränen in seinem Auge zu verbergen. 9) Die Schwermuth, der er sich hingeeben, an die er sich angeklammert hat. So später in A. 3, Sc. 2 rash-embrac'd despair.

1) Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 7, Anm. 16. 2) Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 1, Anm. 13. 3) So müsst Ihr sogleich fort, ohne weiter ein Wort zu verlieren. — Die Fol. hat if thou fail. 4) Darauf, d. h. auf die Erfüllung dieser Bedingungen, habe ich mich gerüstet, mich gefasst gemacht. Steevens erklärt: I have prepared myself by the same ceremonies. 5) Möge mir ein Glück beschieden sein, wie mein Herz es hofft. — Tyrwhitt schlug vor: And so have I. Address me, Fortune, now || To my heart's hope. 6) Das bleierne Kästchen müsste lockender aussehen, als es thut, wenn der Prinz dafür Etwas hergeben oder auf's Spiel setzen sollte. 7) Unter diesen Vielen mag die thörichte Menge verstanden, gemeint sein. — Diese Construction von to mean by belegt Malone mit Citaten aus zeitgenössischen Schriftstellern; so in Holinshed: that meant he by the lords of the queen's kindred that were taken before, und: this meant he by Catesby. 8) Ausführlicher noch wird der Nestbau der Mauerschwalbe geschildert in Macbeth (A. 1, Sc. 6). — Der Vogel baut sein Nest an der äussern Mauer, eben da, wo jeder Zufall des Wetters seine Gewalt ausübt und seine freie Bahn hat. So unsicher ist auch das Urtheil des Auges, das an der Oberfläche haftet und nicht bis in's Innere späht. 9) Ich will nicht mit Leuten gemeinen Schlages oder gewöhnlicher Art übereinstimmen. — Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 7, Anm. 9. 10) O, liesse es sich doch bewirken, dass Besitz, Rang und Amt niemals unrechtmässig erworben würde, niemals auf Unrechtmässigkeit im Erwerb zurückgeführt werden

Were purchas'd by the merit of the wearer!
 How many then should cover, that stand bare;¹¹
 How many be commanded, that command;
 How much low peasantry would then be glean'd
 From the true seed of honour; and how much honour
 Pick'd from the chaff and ruin of the times,
 To be new-varnish'd!¹² Well, but to my choice:
 »Who chooseth me, shall get as much as he deserves.«
 I will assume desert.¹³ — Give me a key for this,
 And instantly unlock my fortunes here.

[He opens the silver casket.

Por. Too long a pause for that which you find there.

Ar. What's here? the portrait of a blinking idiot,
 Presenting me a schedule! I will read it.
 How much unlike art thou to Portia!
 How much unlike my hopes, and my deservings!
 »Who chooseth me, shall have¹⁴ as much as he deserves.«
 Did I deserve no more than a fool's head?
 Is that my prize? are my deserts no better?

Por. To offend, and judge, are distinct offices,¹⁵
 And of opposed natures.

Ar. What is here?

[Reads.] »The fire seven times tried this:¹⁶
 Seven times tried that judgment is
 That did never choose amiss.
 Some there be that shadows kiss;
 Such have but a shadow's bliss.
 There be fools alive, I wis,¹⁷
 Silver'd o'er; and so was this.
 Take what wife you will to bed,
 I will ever be your head;
 So be gone: you are sped.«¹⁸

Still more fool I shall appear

By the time I linger here:

With one fool's head I came to woo,

But I go away with two. —

Sweet, adieu. I'll keep my oath,

Patiently to bear my wroth.¹⁹

[Exeunt ARRAGON and Train.

Por. Thus hath the candle sing'd the moth.

O, these deliberate fools! when they do choose,
 They have the wisdom by their wit to lose.

Ner. The ancient saying is no heresy: —
 Hanging and wiving goes by destiny.

Por. Come, draw the curtain, Nerissa.

Enter a Messenger.

Mess. Where is my lady?

Por. Here; what would my lord?²⁰

Mess. Madam, there is alighted at your gate
 A young Venetian, one that comes before
 To signify the approaching of his lord,
 From whom he bringeth sensible regrets;²¹
 To wit, (besides commends, and courteous breath)
 Gifts of rich value; yet I have not seen
 So likely an ambassador of love.

A day in April never came so sweet,
 To show how costly summer was at hand,
 As this fore-spurrer comes before his lord.

Por. No more, I pray thee: I am half afraid
 Thou wilt say anon he is some kin to thee.
 Thou spend'st such high-day wit²² in praising him. —
 Come, come, Nerissa; for I long to see
 Quick Cupid's post, that comes so mannerly.

Ner. Bassanio, Lord Love, if thy will it be! [Exeunt.

ACT III.

SCENE I.

Venice. A Street.

Enter SOLANIO and SALARINO.

Solan. Now, what news on the Rialto?

Salar. Why, yet it lives there uncheck'd, that Antonio hath a ship of rich lading wrack'd on the narrow seas;
 the Goodwins,¹ I think they call the place: a very dangerous flat, and fatal, where the carcasses of many a tall ship lie buried, as they say, if my gossip Report be an honest woman of her word.

Solan. I would she were as lying a gossip in that, as ever knapped ginger,² or made her neighbours believe she wept for the death of a third husband. But it is true, without any slips of prolixity, or crossing the plain highway of talk, that the good Antonio, the honest Antonio, — O, that I had a title good enough to keep his name company! —

Salar. Come, the full stop.

Solan. Ha! — what say'st thou? — Why, the end is,
 he hath lost a ship.

könnte! 11) Wie Viele würden dann als Herren den Hut aufbehalten, die ihn jetzt als Diener abnehmen müssen!
 — Das umgekehrte Verhältniss drückt der folgende Vers aus. — Zwei Zeilen weiter hat die Fol. peasantry für peasantry der Qs. 12) Das Gleichniss ist nicht ganz durchgeführt, da low peasantry noch ausserhalb desselben steht, und da ferner an das erste Bild vom reinen Samen, vom Weizen und von der Spreu, sich gleich das zweite von den Trümmern der Zeit schliesst, auf welches letztere allein sich to be new-varnished beziehen lässt. 13) Der Prinz will das Verdienst für sich in Anspruch nehmen und wählt demnach das silberne Kästchen, das dem Ver-dienste seinen Lohn verheisst. 14) An den übrigen Stellen, wo dieser Spruch angeführt wird, steht get für have.
 15) Der vor Gericht gestellte Verbrecher kann nicht zugleich der Richter sein; so darf der Prinz, der sich über das ihm widerfahrene Unrecht beklagt, nicht in eigener Sache richten. 16) scil. this silver. 17) I wis, eigentlich = ich weiss, auch sonst als Betheuerung gebraucht = fürwahr: es giebt gewiss Narren, die mit Silber bedeckt, geschmückt sind. 18) Ihr seid beseitigt; mit Euch ist's vorbei. — Vor you are sped fügen manche Hgg. mit der zweiten Folioausg. Sir ein. 19) Qs. und Fol. schreiben wroath, Dyce roth, andere Hgg. wrath. Der Sinn ist = Verdruss, Aerger. 20) Mit my lord erwiedert Portia scherzhaft die Anrede des Dieners an sie, my lady. So in Love's Labour's Lost (A. 5, Sc. 2) Dumaine. Fair lady, — Maria. Say you so? Fair lord, — take that for your fair lady. 21) sensible regrets = sinnvolle Begrüssungen, sinnige Geschenke zur Begrüssung. So in Webster's Appius and Virginia: One was before me with regrets from him. 22) high-day wit = solches Ingenium, wie man es sich nur an Festtagen zulegt. So in As you like it (A. 4, Sc. 1) I am in a holiday humour.

1) Diese an der Mündung der Themse gelegenen Untiefen werden auch in K. John (A. 5, Sc. 3) erwähnt:
the great supply, || That was expected by the Dauphin here, || Are wrack'd three nights ago on Goodwin Sands. 2) Wie die Fama als schwatzhafte Gevatterin gefasst wird, so wird sie als solche weiter charakterisirt an der Liebhaberei, bei ihrem Gevatterschwatz Ingwer zu knupern (to knap = zerbeissen, in kleine Stücke beissen).

Salar. I would it might prove the end of his losses.

Solan. Let me say amen betimes, lest the devil cross my prayer; for here he comes in the likeness of a Jew.

Enter SHYLOCK.

How now, Shylock? what news among the merchants?

Shy. You knew, none so well, none so well as you, of my daughter's flight.

Salar. That's certain: I, for my part, knew the tailor that made the wings she flew withal.

Solan. And Shylock, for his own part, knew the bird was fledg'd; and then it is the complexion of them all to leave the dam.

Shy. She is damned³ for it.

Salar. That's certain, if the devil may be her judge.

Shy. My own flesh and blood to rebel!

Solan. Out upon it, old carrion! rebels it at these years?⁴

Shy. I say, my daughter is my flesh and blood.⁵

Salar. There is more difference between thy flesh and hers, than between jet and ivory; more between your bloods, than there is between red wine and rhenish. But tell us, do you hear whether Antonio have had any loss at sea or no?

Shy. There I have another bad match: a bankrupt, a prodigal,⁶ who dare scarce show his head on the Rialto; — a beggar, that used to come so smug upon the mart. — Let him look to his bond: he was wont to call me usurer; — let him look to his bond: he was wont to lend money for a christian courtesy; — let him look to his bond.

Salar. Why, I am sure, if he forfeit, thou wilt not take his flesh: what's that good for?

Shy. To bait fish withal: if it will feed nothing else, it will feed my revenge. He hath disgraced me, and hindered me half a million,⁷ laughed at my losses, mocked at my gains, scorned my nation, thwarted my bargains, cooled my friends, heated mine enemies; and what's his reason?⁸ I am a Jew. Hath not a Jew eyes? hath not a Jew hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions? fed with the same food, hurt with the same weapons, subject to the same diseases, healed by the same means, warmed and cooled by the same winter and summer, as a Christian is? If you prick us, do we not bleed? if you tickle us, do we not laugh? if you poison us, do we not die? and if you wrong us, shall we not revenge? If we are like you in the rest, we will resemble you in that. If a Jew wrong a Christian, what is his humility? revenge. If a Christian wrong a Jew, what should his sufferance be by christian example? why, revenge. The villany you teach me, I will execute; and it shall go hard but I will better the instruction.⁹

Enter a Servant.

Serv. Gentlemen, my master Antonio is at his house, and desires to speak with you both.

Salar. We have been up and down to seek him.

Solan. Here comes another of the tribe: a third cannot be matched, unless the devil himself turn Jew.

[Exeunt SOLANIO, SALARINO, and Servant.]

Enter TUBAL.

Shy. How now, Tubal? what news from Genoa? hast thou found my daughter?

Tub. I often came where I did hear of her, but cannot find her.

Shy. Why, there, there, there, there! a diamond gone, cost me two thousand ducats in Frankfort. The curse never fell upon our nation till now; I never felt it till now: — two thousand ducats in that,¹⁰ and other precious, precious jewels. — I would, my daughter were dead at my foot, and the jewels in her ear! 'would¹¹ she were hearsed at my foot, and the ducats in her coffin! No news of them? — Why, so; — and I know not what's spent¹² in the search: why, thou — loss upon loss! the thief gone with so much, and so much to find the thief, and no satisfaction, no revenge; nor no ill luck stirring, but what lights o' my shoulders; no sighs, but o' my breathing; no tears, but o' my shedding.

Tub. Yes, other men have ill luck too. Antonio, as I heard in Genoa, —

Shy. What, what, what? ill luck, ill luck?

Tub. — hath an argosy cast away, coming from Tripolis.¹³

Shy. I thank God! I thank God! Is it true? is it true?

Tub. I spoke with some of the sailors that escaped the wrack.

Shy. I thank thee, good Tubal. — Good news, good news! ha! ha! — Where? in Genoa?¹⁴

Tub. Your daughter spent in Genoa, as I heard, one night, fourscore ducats.

Shy. Thou stick'st a dagger in me. I shall never see my gold again. Fourscore ducats at a sitting! fourscore ducats!

Tub. There came divers of Antonio's creditors in my company to Venice, that swear he cannot choose but break.

Shy. I am very glad of it: I'll plague him; I'll torture him; I am glad of it.

Tub. One of them showed me a ring, that he had of your daughter for a monkey.

Shy. Out upon her! Thou torturest me, Tubal: it was my turquoise;¹⁵ I had it of Leah, when I was a bachelor: I would not have given it for a wilderness of monkeys.

— So in Measure for Measure (A. 4, Sc. 3) ginger was not much in request, for the old women were all dead. 3) Wortspiel zwischen dam und damned. 4) Solanio versteht my own flesh von Shylock's eigenem Fleisch und fasst to rebel in derb sinnlicher Art, wie in Hamlet (A. 1, Sc. 3) Youth to itself rebels, though none else near. — at these years geht auf Shylock's Greisenalter. 5) So Q. A. und die Fol. — Q. B. hat my flesh and my blood. 6) Ein Verschwender ist Antonio in Shylock's Augen, nach Johnson's Erklärung, weil er den Bassanio zu seinem eigenen Ruin unterstützt hat; nach der Deutung von Edwards, weil er Geld ohne Zinsen zu nehmen ausgeliehen hat. 7) So Qs. und Fol.: er ist mir in den Weg getreten, wo ich eine halbe Million hätte verdienen können. Malone setzt ohne Grund of half a million. 8) the reason in der Fol. 9) Es muss schlimm gehen, wenn ich es nicht noch besser mache, nicht noch weiter gehe, als Ihr mich unterwiesen habt. 10) Zweitausend Ducaten steckten in dem Diamanten, den Jessica ihrem Vater entwandt hatte. 11) Q. A. O! would etc. 12) Die Fol. how much is spent. 13) Das verunglückte Schiff ist dasselbe, das Shylock A. 1, Sc. 3 erwähnte: he hath an argosy bound to Tripolis. 14) Qs. und Fol. haben ohne Fragezeichen here in Genoa. — Die Verbesserung rührt von Rowe her. 15) Von dem Türkise fabelte man u. A., dass er durch hellere oder dunklere

Tub. But Antonio is certainly undone.

Shy. Nay, that's true, that's very true. Go, Tubal, fee me an officer,¹⁶ bespeak him a fortnight before. I will have the heart of him, if he forfeit; for were he out of Venice, I can make what merchandise I will. Go, Tubal, and meet me at our synagogue: go, good Tubal; at our synagogue, Tubal. [Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

Belmont. An Apartment in PORTIA'S House.

Enter BASSANIO, PORTIA, GRATIANO, NERISSA, and Attendants.

Por. I pray you, tarry: pause a day or two, Before you hazard; for, in choosing wrong, I lose your company: therefore, forbear awhile. There's something tells me (but it is not love), I would not lose you; and you know yourself, Hate counsels not in such a quality. But lest you should not understand me well, (And yet a maiden hath no tongue but thought¹) I would detain you here some month or two, Before you venture for me. I could teach you How to choose right, but then I am forsworn; So will I never be: so may you miss me; But if you do, you'll make me wish a sin, That I had been forsworn. Beshrew your eyes, They have o'erlook'd me,² and divided me: One half of me is yours, the other half yours, — Mine own, I would say; but if mine, then yours, And so all yours! O! these naughty times Put bars between the owners and their rights; And so, though yours, not yours.³ — Prove it so, Let fortune go to hell for it, — not I.⁴ — I speak too long; but 't is to peise the time,⁵ To eke it, and to draw it out in length, To stay you from election.

Bass. Let me choose; For, as I am, I live upon the rack.

Por. Upon the rack, Bassanio? then confess What treason there is mingled with your love.⁶

Bass. None, but that ugly treason of mistrust, Which makes me fear the enjoying of my love.⁷

There may as well be amity and life⁸ 'Tween snow and fire, as treason and my love.

Por. Ay, but, I fear, you speak upon the rack, Where men enforced do speak anything.

Bass. Promise me life, and I'll confess the truth.

Por. Well then, confess, and live.

Bass. Confess, and love, Had been the very sum of my confession.

O happy torment, when my torturer

Doth teach me answers for deliverance!

But let me to my fortune and the caskets.

*[Curtain drawn from before the caskets.]*⁹

Por. Away then. I am lock'd in one of them:

If you do love me, you will find me out. —

Nerissa, and the rest, stand all aloof. —

Let music sound, while he doth make his choice;

Then, if he lose, he makes a swan-like end,

Fading in music: that the comparison

May stand more proper, my eye shall be the stream,

And watery death-bed for him. He may win;

And what is music then? then music is

Even as the flourish when true subjects bow

To a new-crowned monarch: such it is,

As are those dulcet sounds in break of day,

That creep into the dreaming bridegroom's ear,

And summon him to marriage. Now he goes,

With no less presence,¹⁰ but with much more love,

Than young Alcides, when he did redeem

The virgin tribute paid by howling Troy

To the sea-monster: I stand for sacrifice;¹¹

The rest aloof are the Dardanian wives,

With bleared visages, come forth to view

The issue of the exploit.¹² Go, Hercules!

Live thou, I live: — with much, much more dismay

I view the fight,¹³ than thou that mak'st the fray.

*A Song, whilst BASSANIO comments on the caskets to himself.*¹⁴

Tell me, where is fancy¹⁵ bred,

Or in the heart, or in the head?

Farbe den Gesundheitszustand des Trägers anzeigte, seinen Besitzer vor Gefahren bewahrte und die Eintracht zwischen Mann und Weib sicherte. — An letztere Eigenschaft dachte Sh. vielleicht an dieser Stelle. 16) Der Amtsdienster, der den Schuldner verhaften und überall hin begleiten sollte, damit Letzterer nicht entwische. — Shylock gebraucht einen solchen zwar erst in vierzehn Tagen, will ihn aber für alle Fälle schon jetzt engagiren.

1) Ein Mädchen darf nur in Gedanken sich äussern, nicht mit der Zunge. 2) to overlook = durch den Blick verzaubern. So in Merry Wives of Windsor (A. 5, Sc. 5) Vile worm, thou wast o'erlook'd even in thy birth. 3) Dass die Portia, obgleich in ihrem Herzen dem Bassanio angehörend, ihm doch noch nicht ganz und wirklich eigen geworden ist, schreibt sie der bösen Zeit zu, die ihre pedantischen Modevorschriften und Rücksichten geltend macht. — Das letzte yours sowie das yours zwei Zeilen vorher wollte Malone, des Verses wegen, zweisylbig lesen. 4) Wenn es darauf hinausläuft, dass ich Euch doch nicht angehören soll, so möge die Fortuna, die es so gefügt hat, deswegen verdammt sein, nicht ich, die ich durch Euren Verlust mich sonst verdammt fühle. 5) to peise the time erklärt Steevens mit to retard it by hanging weights upon it, Henley wohl richtiger mit to keep in suspense, to delay. — to peise = in der Schwebe halten, balanciren, findet sich in K. John (A. 2, Sc. 2) The world, who of itself is peised well. 6) Wie Hochverräther, um zu bekennen, auf die Folter gespannt wurden, so schliesst Portia scherzhaft, es müsse auch Bassanio sich eines Hochverraths schuldig gemacht haben, wenn er sich auf der Folter befinde. 7) to fear mit dem Accusativ = um Etwas besorgt sein, an Etwas zweifeln. 8) amity and life ist zu einem Begriffe zu verbinden: ein Leben in Freundschaft, ein freundschaftliches Bestehen neben einander. 9) Diese Bühnenweisung fügt Dyce hier ein; die andern Hgg. lassen schon zu Anfang der Scene die Kästchen sichtbar werden und setzen dort The caskets set out. 10) presence = Art und Weise sich darzustellen, äusserliche Haltung und Erscheinung. 11) Portia vergleicht sich der Hesione, der Tochter des trojanischen Königs Laomedon, die als das jährlich darzubringende Sühnopfer dem Meerungeheuer gerade preisgegeben werden sollte, als Hercules erschien und sie befreite. 12) the exploit = der Kampf des Hercules mit dem Meerungeheuer, der mit der Erlegung des letztern endigte. 13) Q. A. liest Live thou, I live with much more dismay || To view etc.

How begot, how nourished?

Reply, reply.

It is engender'd in the eyes,¹⁶

With gazing fed; and fancy dies

In the cradle where it lies.

Let us all ring fancy's knell:

I'll begin it, — Ding, dong, bell.

All. Ding, dong, bell.

Bass. So¹⁷ may the outward shows be least themselves:

The world is still deceiv'd with ornament.

In law, what plea so tainted and corrupt,

But, being season'd with a gracious voice,

Obscures the show of evil? In religion,

What damned error, but some sober brow

Will bless it, and approve it with a text,¹⁸

Hiding the grossness with fair ornament?

There is no vice¹⁹ so simple, but assumes

Some mark of virtue on his outward parts.

How many cowards, whose hearts are all as false

As stairs of sand,²⁰ wear yet upon their chins

The beards of Hercules and frowning Mars,

Who, inward search'd, have livers white as milk;²¹

And these assume but valour's excrement,²²

To render them redoubted. Look on beauty,

And you shall see 't is purchas'd by the weight;

Which therein works a miracle in nature,

Making them lightest²³ that wear most of it:

So are those crisped snaky²⁴ golden locks,

Which make such wanton gambols with the wind,

Upon supposed fairness, often known

To be the dowry of a second head,

The scull that bred them, in the sepulchre.²⁵

Thus ornament is but the guiled²⁶ shore

To a most dangerous sea; the beauteous scarf

Veiling an Indian beauty;²⁷ in a word,

The seeming truth which cunning times put on

To entrap the wisest. Therefore, thou²⁸ gaudy gold,

Hard food for Midas, I will none of thee;

Nor none of thee, thou pale and common drudge

'Tween man and man: but thou, thou meagre lead,

Which rather threat'nest than dost promise aught,

Thy plainness²⁹ moves me more than eloquence,

And here choose I. Joy be the consequence!

Por. How all the other passions fleet to air,

As doubtful thoughts, and rash-embrac'd³⁰ despair,

And shuddering fear, and green-ey'd jealousy!³¹

O love! be moderate; allay thy ecstasy;

In measure rain³² thy joy; scant this excess:

I feel too much thy blessing; make it less,

For fear I surfeit!

Bass.

What find I here?

[Opening the leaden casket.

Fair Portia's counterfeit! What demi-god

Hath come so near creation? Move these eyes?

Or whether, riding on the balls of mine,

— much, much steht in Q. B. und I view in Q. B. und Fol. 14) Diese Bühnenweisung ist aus den alten Ausgg.

— Das folgende Lied wurde nach Capell's Auffassung unter zwei Stimmen vertheilt, von denen die zweite nach dem Reply, reply anhub. 15) fancy = Liebe, Liebesschwärmerei. 16) eye in den Qs.; eyes in der Fol. — Die erstere Lesart würde den Reim auf reply geben. 17) so bezieht sich auf die Kästchen, deren Aeusseres, wie bei vielen Dingen in der Welt, vielleicht am wenigsten ihrem wahren Inhalt oder Wesen entspricht. 18) In der Religion giebt es keine noch so arge Irrlehre, die nicht irgend ein Lehrer mit ehrbarer Miene für fromm erklären und mit einem biblischen Spruch belegen könnte. 19) So die zweite Folioausg.; die Qs. und die Fol. haben voice.

— simple = einfach, klar, was keine Täuschung zulässt. 20) Auf deren Herz oder Muth man sich so wenig verlassen kann, wie auf Stufen im Sande. 21) Eine weisse, blutlose Leber kommt bei Sh. häufig als Symbol der Feigheit vor; so milk-liver'd man in K. Lear (A. 4, Sc. 2). 22) valour's excrement, was eben vorher beards of Hercules etc. hiess. — excrement = Auswuchs, wird auch sonst vom Kopf- und Barthaar gebraucht. So in Winter's Tale (A. 4, Sc. 3) let me pocket up my pedlar's excrement. 23) light doppelstinnig = leicht von Gewicht, trotz der Masse von falschem und erkauften Haar, mit dem die Trägerinnen ihr Haupt belasten, und = leichtfertig, von der Eitelkeit Derer, die sich mit solchem erborgten Schmucke schmücken. — Auf die Mode der Zeit, dass die Damen falsches, namentlich blondes Haar trugen, spielen Sh. und die zeitgenössischen Schriftsteller häufig an.

24) crisped snaky = Locken, die sich kräuseln und ringeln, wie Schlangen. — locks ist mit upon supposed fairness zu verbinden. 25) Indess der Schädel, auf dem diese goldenen Locken wuchsen, schon im Grabe liegt. —

So in Sh.'s Sonnets (68) Before the golden tresses of the dead, || The right of sepulchres, were shorn away, || To live a second life on second head; || Ere beauty's dead fleece made another gay. 26) guiled soll nach Steevens' Erklärung für guiling stehen, wie Sh. das active Particip des Präsens und das passive des Präteritums auch sonst verwechselt habe. Eher scheint guiled = mit Trug ausgestattet, so aus dem substantivischen guile gebildet, wie z. B. in Hamlet (A. 1, Sc. 1) sledded aus dem substantivischen sled. 27) Für beauty wollte Hamner dowdy, und Walker gipsy setzen. — beauteous und beauty sind prägnant zusammengestellt:

der schöne Schleier lässt unter sich, als ihm entsprechend, eine Schönheit vermuthen, aber diese Schönheit ist eine indianische, also nach europäischen Begriffen eine Hässlichkeit, und darin besteht die Täuschung. — Eine Ausgabe Sh.'s von Scott und Webster (1830), wie Dyce notirt, fasste Indian als Substantiv und trennte beauty davon, vielleicht nach einer Conjectur Theobald's: Indian; beauty's. — Das folgende in a word etc. bezieht sich nicht allein auf das zuletzt angeführte Beispiel, sondern resümiert alle vorher angeführten. 28) So Q. A.; Q. B. und die Fol. schieben then vor thou ein. 29) plainness ist Warburton's Emendation für paleness der Qs. und Fol., das neben der Charakteristik des Silbers — pale and common drudge etc. — ungehörig stände. — plainness deutet Staunton richtig, nicht wie Warburton lediglich auf das schlichte Aussehen des Bleies, sondern auch auf den schlichten, geraden Spruch der Inschrift: Which rather threat'nest than dost promise aught. — Malone, der die alte Lesart vertheidigt, legt den Nachdruck auf thy vor paleness. 30) Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 8, Anm. 9.

31) green-ey'd jealousy = die Eifersucht, welcher Alles in einem krankhaften, lividen Lichte erscheint. So in Twelfth-Night (A. 2, Sc. 4) green and yellow melancholy; und in Othello (A. 3, Sc. 3) It is the green-ey'd monster, which doth mock || The meat it feeds on. 32) Q. A. hat range; Q. B. und die Fol. raime. — Manche Hgg. vermutheten rein. — to rain = regnen, ergiessen; so in Twelfth-Night (A. 3, Sc. 1) the heavens rain

Seem they in motion? Here are sever'd lips,
Parted with sugar breath; so sweet a bar
Should sunder such sweet friends. Here, in her hairs,
The painter plays the spider,³³ and hath woven
A golden mesh to entrap the hearts of men
Faster than gnats in cobwebs; but her eyes! —
How could he see to do them? ³⁴ having made one,
Methinks, it should have power to steal both his,
And leave itself unfurnish'd: ³⁵ yet look, how far
The substance of my praise doth wrong this shadow
In underprizing it, so far this shadow
Doth limp behind the substance. ³⁶ — Here 's the scroll,
The continent and summary of my fortune. ³⁷

[Reads.] > You that choose not by the view,
Chance as fair, and choose as true!
Since this fortune falls to you,
Be content, and seek no new.
If you be well pleas'd with this,
And hold your fortune for your bliss,
Turn you where your lady is,
And claim her with a loving kiss. <

A gentle scroll. — Fair lady, by your leave:

[Kissing her.]

I come by note, to give and to receive.
Like one of two contending in a prize,
That thinks he hath done well in people's eyes,
Hearing applause, and universal shout,
Giddy in spirit, still gazing, in a doubt
Whether those peals of praise be his or no;
So, thrice fair lady, stand I, even so,
As doubtful whether what I see be true,
Until confirm'd, sign'd, ratified by you.

Por. You see me, Lord Bassanio, ³⁸ where I stand,
Such as I am: though for myself alone
I would not be ambitious in my wish,
To wish myself much better; yet for you
I would be trebled twenty times myself;
A thousand times more fair, ten thousand times more rich;

That only to stand high in your account,
I might in virtues, beauties, livings, friends,
Exceed account: but the full sum of me

Is sum of nothing; ³⁹ which, to term in gross,
Is an unlesson'd girl, unschool'd, unpractis'd:
Happy in this, she is not yet so old
But she may learn; happier than this,
She is not bred so dull but she can learn;
Happiest of all is, that her gentle spirit
Commits itself to yours to be directed,
As from her lord, her governor, her king.
Myself, and what is mine, to you, and yours,
Is now converted: ⁴⁰ but now I was the lord
Of this fair mansion, master of my servants,
Queen o'er myself; and even now, but now,
This house, these servants, and this same myself,
Are yours, my lord. ⁴¹ I give them with this ring,
Which when you part from, lose, or give away,
Let it presage the ruin of your love,
And be my vantage to exclaim on you. ⁴²

Bass. Madam, you have bereft me of all words:
Only my blood speaks to you in my veins;
And there is such confusion in my powers
As after some oration, fairly spoke
By a beloved prince, there doth appear
Among the buzzing pleased multitude;
Where every something, being blent ⁴³ together,
Turns to a wild of nothing, save of joy,
Express'd, and not express'd. But when this ring
Parts from this finger, then parts life from hence:
O! then be bold to say, Bassanio's dead.

Ner. My lord and lady, it is now our time,
That have stood by and seen our wishes prosper,
To cry, good joy. Good joy, my lord and lady!

Gra. My lord Bassanio, and my gentle lady,
I wish you all the joy that you can wish;
For, I am sure, you can wish none from me; ⁴⁴
And, when your honours mean to solemnize
The bargain of your faith, I do beseech you,
Even at that time I may be married too.

Bass. With all my heart, so thou canst get a wife.

Gra. I thank your lordship, you have got me one.
My eyes, my lord, can look as swift as yours
You saw the mistress, I beheld the maid;
You lov'd, I lov'd; for intermission ⁴⁵

odours on you! 33) Der Maler, indem er die goldnen Haare der Portia malte, hat der Spinne nachgeahmt; wie sie ihr Gewebe bildet, um Fliegen darin zu fangen, so er ein Netz für die Herzen der Männer. 34) to do wird auch sonst vom Malen und andern Kunstschöpfungen gebraucht: wie konnte er seine Sehkraft bewahren, als er sie malte? — So in Twelfth-Night (A. 1, Sc. 5) we will show you the picture — is't not well done? 35) Das eine Auge des Bildes würde, wenn es mit seinem Reiz des Malers beide Augen stöhle, ihn an der Vollendung des Bildes hindern und so sich selber in unfertigem Zustande, d. h. nicht mit dem zweiten dazu gehörigen Auge versehen, lassen. — M. Mason belegt unfurnished in diesem Sinne mit einem Citat aus Fletcher's Lover's Progress: you are a noble gentleman, | Will't please you bring a friend, we are two of us, | And pity, either of us should be unfurnish'd. 36) this shadow ist das Portrait der Portia: so weit dieses Portrait hinter dem Original zurückbleibt, eben so weit bleibt Bassanio's Lob dieses Bildes in seiner Abschätzung hinter dem Portrait zurück. 37) continent = die Einfassung, Einschliessung eines Gegenstandes. In diesem Zettel ist Bassanio's Schicksal in kurzer Zusammenfassung enthalten. 38) So die Qs.; die Fol. you see, my lord Bassanio. 39) Diese Lesart der Fol. passt besser zu der von Portia hier geäußerten Bescheidenheit, als die Lesart der Qs. is sum of something, was manche Hgg. vorziehen. 40) Ich selbst und das Meinige ist nun Euch anheimgefallen und das Eurige geworden. 41) So Q. A. und die Fol. — Q. B. hat my lord's. 42) Wenn Ihr meinen Ring weggebt oder verliert, so soll mir das ein begründeter Anlass sein, über Euch zu klagen. 43) Dieses Particip von to blend hat Sh. auch in Twelfth-Night (A. 1, Sc. 5), sonst auch das gewöhnliche blended. — In dem Wirrwarr der freudig bewegten Menge verschmilzt jede besondere Eigenthümlichkeit in ein Chaos, das aus nichts besteht als aus Jubel, der theils sich äussert, theils stumm ist. 44) from me zweideutig = weg von mir: Ihr könnt mich keiner Freude berauben, die sich Euch wünschen lässt, und = Ihr könnt von mir keine Freude wünschen, die Ihr nicht schon selbst besäset. 45) intermission = Zwischenzeit, die man ungenutzt verstreichen lässt. — So interpungiren alle Hgg. seit Theobald. — Staunton stellt die alte Interpunction wieder her: You lov'd, I lov'd for intermission; | No more pertains to me, my lord, than you, die sich indess nur sehr gezwungen deuten lässt, indem man intermission für

No more pertains to me, my lord, than you.
Your fortune stood upon the caskets there,
And so did mine too, as the matter falls;
For wooing here, until I sweat again,
And swearing, till my very roof was dry
With oaths of love, at last, if promise last,⁴⁶
I got a promise of this fair one here,
To have her love, provided that your fortune
Achiev'd her mistress.

Por. Is this true, Nerissa?

Ner. Madam, it is, so you stand pleas'd withal.

Bass. And do you, Gratiano, mean good faith?

Gra. Yes, 'faith, my lord.

Bass. Our feast shall be much honour'd in your marriage.

Gra. We'll play with them the first boy⁴⁷ for a thousand ducats.

Ner. What! and stake down?

Gra. No; we shall ne'er win at that sport, and stake down. —

But who comes here? Lorenzo, and his infidel?

What! and my old Venetian friend Solanio?⁴⁸

Enter LORENZO, JESSICA, and SOLANIO.

Bass. Lorenzo, and Solanio, welcome hither,
If that the youth of my new interest here
Have power to bid you welcome. — By your leave,
I bid my very friends and countrymen,
Sweet Portia, welcome.

Por. So do I, my lord:
They are entirely welcome.

Lor. I thank your honour. — For my part, my lord,
My purpose was not to have seen you here;
But meeting with Solanio by the way,
He did entreat me, past all saying nay,
To come with him along.

Solan. I did, my lord,
And I have reason for it. — Signior Antonio
Commends him⁴⁹ to you. [Gives BASSANIO a letter.]

Bass. Ere I ope his letter,
I pray you, tell me how my good friend doth.

Solan. Not sick, my lord, unless it be in mind;
Nor well, unless in mind: his letter there
Will show you his estate. [*BASSANIO reads the letter.*⁵⁰]

Gra. Nerissa, cheer yon stranger; bid her welcome.
Your hand, Solanio. What's the news from Venice?

How doth that royal merchant, good Antonio?

I know, he will be glad of our success;

We are the Jasons, we have won the fleece.

Solan. I would you had won the fleece that he hath lost!

Por. There are some shrewd contents in yon same paper,

That steal the colour from Bassanio's cheek:

Some dear friend dead, else nothing in the world

Could turn so much the constitution

Of any constant man. What, worse and worse? —

With leave, Bassanio; I am half yourself,

And I must freely have the half of anything

That this same paper brings you.

Bass. O sweet Portia!

Here are a few of the unpleasant'st words

That ever blotted paper. Gentle lady,

When I did first impart my love to you,

I freely told you, all the wealth I had

Ran in my veins, — I was a gentleman:

And then I told you true, and yet, dear lady,

Rating myself at nothing, you shall see

How much I was a braggart.⁵¹ When I told you,

My state was nothing, I should then have told you,

That I was worse than nothing; for, indeed,

I have engag'd myself to a dear friend,

Engag'd my friend to his mere enemy,⁵²

To feed my means. Here is a letter, lady;

The paper as the body⁵³ of my friend,

And every word in it a gaping wound,

Issuing life-blood. — But is it true, Solanio?

Have all his ventures fail'd? What, not one hit?⁵⁴

From Tripolis, from Mexico, and England,

From Lisbon, Barbary, and India?

And not one vessel 'scape the dreadful touch

Of merchant-marring rocks?

Solan. Not one, my lord.

Besides, it should appear, that if he had

The present money to discharge the Jew,

He would not take it. Never did I know

A creature, that did bear the shape of man,

So keen and greedy to confound a man.

He plies the duke at morning, and at night,

And doth impeach the freedom of the state,

If they deny him justice:⁵⁵ twenty merchants,

The duke himself, and the magnificoes synonym mit pastime hält, oder gar for intermission mit for fear of intermission erklärt. Noch seltsamer deutet Staunton, dieser Interpunction zu lieb, die folgende Zeile: I owe my wife as much to you, as to myself. 46) Wortspiel zwischen at last = endlich, und to last = dauern, Bestand haben. 47) to play mit dem Accusativ = um Etwas spielen oder auf Etwas wetten, vom Glückspiel gesagt. Zugleich liegt in to play wie in to stake down ein frivoler Nebensinn. 48) Qs. und Fol. haben hier einen ganz neuen Charakter Salerio, während doch my old Venetian friend deutlich auf einen der beiden Freunde, Solanio oder Salarino, hinweist (vgl. A. 1, Sc. 1, Anm. 1), von welchen zwei Namen nur der erstere in den Vers passt. In der Handschrift stand wahrscheinlich eine blosse Abbrüviatur des Namens. — Die Aenderung rührt von Knight her und ist auch von Dyce beibehalten. — Schon Rowe setzte Solanio für Salerio der alten Ausgg. 49) him steht für himself, wie in As you like it (A. 4, Sc. 3) Orlando doth commend him to you both, und in K. Richard II. (A. 2, Sc. 1) Gaunt commends him to your majesty. — Von einer Empfehlung des Lorenzo scheint in dem Briefe Antonio's nichts zu stehen; sie ist auch unwahrscheinlich, insofern Lorenzo offenbar schon vorher mit Bassanio enger befreundet war, als mit Antonio. 50) Die alte Bühnenweisung He opens the letter geht natürlich auf Bassanio, der während des folgenden Zwiegesprächs den Brief liest. 51) Wie sehr ich doch ein Prahler war, als ich mich selbst auf nichts schätzte. 52) mere = ganz und gar: Einer, der ganz und gar sein Feind, der nichts als sein Feind ist. 53) Ein Brief, dessen Papier gleichsam der zum Tode verwundete Leib meines Freundes ist. 54) Hat unter seinen Unternehmungen nicht eine es getroffen, ist nicht eine glücklich gewesen? 55) Er klagt, dass die Freiheit oder das Recht in Venedig verletzt sei, wenn man ihm die Gerechtigkeit verweigere. Was näher unter freedom of the state zu verstehen sei, erhellt aus der folgenden Scene. Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 3, Anm. 5. 56) the magnificoes of greatest port

Of greatest port,⁵⁶ have all persuaded with him;
But none can drive him from the envious plea
Of forfeiture, of justice, and his bond.

Jes. When I was with him, I have heard him swear
To Tubal, and to Chus, his countrymen,
That he would rather have Antonio's flesh,
Than twenty times the value of the sum
That he did owe him; and I know, my lord,
If law, authority, and power deny not,⁵⁷
It will go hard with poor Antonio.

Por. Is it your dear⁵⁸ friend that is thus in trouble?

Bass. The dearest friend to me, the kindest man,
The best-condition'd and unwearied⁵⁹ spirit
In doing courtesies; and one in whom
The ancient Roman honour⁶⁰ more appears,
Than any that draws breath in Italy.

Por. What sum owes he the Jew?

Bass. For me, three thousand ducats.

Por. What, no more?

Pay him six thousand, and deface the bond:

Double six thousand, and then treble that,

Before a friend of this description

Shall lose a hair through Bassanio's fault.⁶¹

First, go with me to church, and call me wife,

And then away to Venice to your friend;

For never shall you lie by Portia's side

With an unquiet soul. You shall have gold

To pay the petty debt twenty times over:

When it is paid, bring your true friend along.

My maid Nerissa and myself, meantime,

Will live as maids and widows. Come, away!

For you shall hence upon your wedding-day.

Bid your friends welcome, show a merry cheer;⁶²

Since you are dear bought, I will love you dear. —

But let me hear the letter of your friend.

Bass. [Reads.]⁶³ »Sweet Bassanio, my ships have all miscarried, my creditors grow cruel, my estate is very low, my bond to the Jew is forfeit; and since, in paying it, it is impossible I should live, all debts are cleared between you and I,⁶⁴ if I might but see you at my death.
Notwithstanding, use your pleasure: if your love⁶⁵ do not persuade you to come, let not my letter.«

Por. O love, despatch all business, and be gone.

Bass. Since I have your good leave to go away,

I will make haste; but till I come again,

No bed shall e'er be guilty of my stay,

Nor⁶⁶ rest be interposer 'twixt us twain. [Exeunt.]

SCENE III.

Venice. A Street.

Enter SHYLOCK, SALARINO,¹ ANTONIO, and Gaoler.

Shy. Gaoler, look to him: tell not me of mercy. —

This is the fool that lent² out money gratis. —

Gaoler, look to him.

Ant. Hear me yet, good Shylock.

Shy. I'll have my bond; speak not against my bond.

I have sworn an oath that I will have my bond.

Thou call'dst me dog before thou hadst a cause,

But, since I am a dog, beware my fangs.

The duke shall grant me justice. — I do wonder,

Thou naughty gaoler, that thou art so fond

To come abroad with him at his request.³

Ant. I pray thee, hear me speak.

Shy. I'll have my bond; I will not hear thee speak:

I'll have my bond, and therefore speak no more.

I'll not be made a soft and dull-ey'd fool,

To shake the head, relent, and sigh, and yield

To christian intercessors. Follow not;

I'll have no speaking: I will have my bond. [Exit.]

Salar. It is the most impenetrable⁴ cur,

That ever kept with men.

Ant. Let him alone:

I'll follow him no more with bootless prayers.

He seeks my life; his reason well I know.

I oft deliver'd from his forfeitures

Many that have at times made moan to me;

Therefore he hates me.

Salar. I am sure, the duke

Will never grant this forfeiture to hold.

Ant. The duke cannot deny the course of law;

For the commodity that strangers have

With us in Venice, if it be denied,⁵

= die Senatoren, die am meisten vorstellen, die den grössten Staat machen. — magnifico als Titel eines venetianischen Senators ist auch in Othello (A. 1, Sc. 2) the magnifico is much beloved. 57) deny not bezieht sich auf das Folgende: es wird dem armen Antonio schlecht ergehen, wenn Gesetz, Ansehen und Macht nicht hindernd dazwischen treten. 58) Wie der Vers zeigt, liegt der Nachdruck auf dear: Ist der Freund Euch besonders theuer, der so in Noth ist? 59) Zu unwearied ist aus dem vorhergehenden best-condition'd = bestgeartet, ein superlativischer Begriff zu suppliren: der im Erzeigen von Freundlichkeit unermüdlichste Geist. 60) Eine ähnliche rühmende Bezugnahme auf die alten Römer, als Vorfahren der Italiener in diesem Drama, kam schon A. 1, Sc. 1 vor: Her Name is Portia; nothing undervalued || To Cato's daughter, Brutus' Portia. 61) Malone las des Verses wegen hair zweisylbig; eher ist mit Collier through wie thorough zu lesen. 62) merry cheer = die freundliche Miene des Wirths, der seine Gäste willkommen heisst. 63) Qs. und Fol. lassen Bass. (Reads) aus, als ob Portia selbst den Brief lese. — Rowe fügte das Nothwendige hinzu. 64) Sh. setzt öfter den Nominativ des Personalpronomens, wenn kein Verbum dabei steht, statt des Accusativ; so in As you like it (A. 1, Sc. 2) More suits you to conceive, than I to speak of. — So auch in Ben Jonson's Cynthia's Revels: make this gentleman and I friends. 65) love = Freundschaft. — In der nächsten Rede Portia's ist love die Anrede an Bassanio. 66) nor in Q. B. und Fol.; no in Q. A. — interposer = Einer, der dazwischen tritt.

1) So Q. A.; Q. B. hat Salerio, und die Fol. Solanio. — Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 2, Anm. 48. — Der Gaoler ist der Officer, von dem Shylock vorher gesprochen hatte. Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 1, Anm. 16. 2) So die Qs.; die Fol. lends. 3) Dass Du ein so gutmüthiger Thor bist, auf sein Gesuch mit ihm in's Freie zu kommen, aus dem Gefängniss, in das Antonio gesteckt ist. 4) impenetrable = der keiner Rührung oder Vorstellung zugänglich ist. 5) Das Subject zu will much impeach ist nicht commodity allein, sondern verbunden mit if it be denied; wenn die Handelsvorthelle, welche die Fremden bei uns in Venedig geniessen, verweigert werden, so wird das die Gerechtigkeit des Staates compromittiren; oder: so wird die Verweigerung dieser Vorthelle der Gerechtigkeit des Staates Abbruch thun. — Capell änderte dafür die schon in Qs. und Fol. beobachtete Interpunction und las The duke cannot

Will much impeach the justice of the state;
 Since that the trade and profit of the city
 Consisteth of all nations. Therefore, go:
 These griefs and losses have so bated me,
 That I shall hardly spare a pound of flesh
 To-morrow to my bloody creditor. —
 Well, gaoler, on. — Pray God, Bassanio come
 To see me pay his debt, and then I care not! [Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.

Belmont. A Room in PORTIA'S House.

Enter PORTIA, NERISSA, LORENZO, JESSICA, and BALTHAZAR.¹

Lor. Madam, although I speak it in your presence,
 You have a noble and a true conceit
 Of god-like amity; which appears most strongly
 In bearing thus the absence of your lord.
 But, if you knew to whom you show this honour,
 How true a gentleman you send relief,
 How dear a lover² of my lord, your husband,
 I know, you would be prouder of the work,
 Than customary bounty can enforce you.

Por. I never did repent for doing good,
 Nor shall not now: for in companions
 That do converse and waste the time together,
 Whose souls do bear an equal³ yoke of love,
 There must be needs a like proportion
 Of lineaments, of manners,⁴ and of spirit;
 Which makes me think, that this Antonio,
 Being the bosom lover of my lord,
 Must needs be like my lord. If it be so,
 How little is the cost I have bestow'd,
 In purchasing the semblance of my soul
 From out the state of hellish cruelty!⁵
 This comes too near the praising of myself;
 Therefore, no more of it: hear⁶ other things. —
 Lorenzo, I commit into your hands
 The husbandry and manage of my house,
 Until my lord's return: for mine own part,
 I have toward heaven breath'd a secret vow

To live in prayer and contemplation,
 Only attended by Nerissa here,
 Until her husband and my lord's return.
 There is a monastery two miles off,
 And there we will abide. I do desire you
 Not to deny this imposition,
 The which my love,⁷ and some necessity,
 Now lays upon you.

Lor. Madam, with all my heart: —
 I shall obey you in all fair commands.

Por. My people do already know my mind,
 And will acknowledge you and Jessica
 In place of Lord Bassanio and myself.
 So fare you well, till we shall meet again.

Lor. Fair thoughts, and happy hours, attend on you!

Jes. I wish your ladyship all heart's content.

Por. I thank you for your wish, and am well pleas'd
 To wish it back on you: fare you well, Jessica. —

[Exeunt JESSICA and LORENZO.

Now, Balthazar,

As I have ever found thee honest-true,⁸
 So let me find thee still. Take this same letter,
 And use thou all the endeavour of a man
 In speed to Padua:⁹ see thou render this
 Into my cousin's hand, doctor Bellario;
 And, look, what notes and garments he doth give thee,
 Bring them, I pray thee, with imagin'd¹⁰ speed
 Unto the traject,¹¹ to the common ferry
 Which trades to Venice. Waste no time in words,
 But get thee gone: I shall be there before thee.

Bal. Madam, I go with all convenient speed. [Exit.]

Por. Come on, Nerissa: I have work in hand,
 That you yet know not of. We'll see our husbands,
 Before they think of us.

Ner. Shall they see us?

Por. They shall, Nerissa; but in such a habit,
 That they shall think we are accomplished
 With that we lack.¹² I'll hold thee any wager,
 When we are both accoutred¹³ like young men,
 I'll prove the prettier fellow of the two;
 And wear my dagger with the braver grace;
 And speak between the change of man and boy, deny the course of law, || For the commodity that strangers have || With us in Venice; if it be denied, ||

 'T will much impeach the justice of the state. — Q. A. hat his state, auf the duke bezüglich.

1) Balthasar wird hier in Qs. und Fol. als a man of Portia's bezeichnet. 2) lover = Freund, wie vorher love = Freundschaft. Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 2, Anm. 65. — So bald nachher bosom lover = Busenfreund. 3) So Q. A.; Q. B. und die Fol. haben die veraltete Form egal. 4) Warburton wollte lineaments of manners verbinden, aber Steevens weist nach, dass lineaments in weiterem Sinne = körperliche Bildung überhaupt, gebraucht wurde: Gefährten, welche für einander dasselbe Mass von Freundschaft hegen, müssen auch körperlich, sittlich und geistig einander ähnlich sein. 5) So Q. B. und Fol.; Q. A. hat misery. — my soul ist Bassanio, mit dem Portia Eins geworden ist, und als dessen Ebenbild sie sich den Antonio denkt. 6) heere in Qs. und Fol., was die späteren Folioausgg. here lasen, Rowe endlich zu here are other things änderte. — Das Richtige setzte Theobald. 7) my love = meine freundliche Gesinnung, mein freundliches Vertrauen zu Euch. — Portia rechtfertigt damit und mit dem Drange der Umstände, die sie nicht näher charakterisirt (some necessity), dass sie gerade den Lorenzo mit diesem Amte betraut. 8) honest-true = gewissenhaft treu, verbindet Dyce mit Recht zu einem Compositum. 9) Biete alle Deine Kraft als Mann auf, dass Du schnell nach Padua kommst. — Padua ist Theobald's Emen-dation für Mantua, was Qs. und Fol. haben und was Sh. wahrscheinlich selbst aus Versehen schrieb. Solche Ver-wechslungen italienischer Städtenamen kommen wiederholt in Two Gentlemen of Verona und in Taming of the Shrew vor. — Dass Padua der Wohnsitz des Bellario war, erhellt aus dem folgenden Acte. 10) imagined = erdenklich: mit einer Eile, wie sie sich nur denken lässt. 11) Qs. und Fol. haben tranect und Tranect, nicht in Cursivdruck, wie Eigennamen gedruckt werden. Da das Wort sich sonst nirgendwo findet, so setzte Rowe das bekannte traject (traiect in alten Drucken) dafür, womit denn auch die Erklärung to the common ferry überein-stimmt: die Fähre, mit der man vom Festlande nach Venedig hinüberfährt. 12) So sagt in Twelfth-Night (A. 3, Sc. 4) die als Mann verkleidete Viola: A little thing would make me tell them, how much I lack of a man. 13) accoutred in Q. B. und Fol.; apparell'd in Q. A. 14) reed voice = eine Stimme mit dem Tone einer Rohr-

With a reed voice; ¹⁴ and turn two mincing steps
Into a manly stride; and speak of frays,
Like a fine bragging youth; and tell quaint lies,
How honourable ladies sought my love,
Which I denying, they fell sick and died;
I could not do withal; ¹⁵ — then I'll repent,
And wish, for all that, that I had not kill'd them.
And twenty of these puny lies ¹⁶ I'll tell,
That men shall swear, I have discontinued school
Above a twelvemonth. I have within my mind
A thousand raw tricks of these bragging Jacks, ¹⁷
Which I will practise.

Ner. Why, shall we turn to men? ¹⁸

Por. Fie, what a question's that,
If thou wert near a lewd interpreter!
But come: I'll tell thee all my whole device
When I am in my coach, which stays for us
At the park gate; and therefore haste away,
For we must measure twenty miles to-day. [Exeunt.

SCENE V.

The Same. A Garden.

Enter LAUNCELOT and JESSICA.

Laun. Yes, truly; for, look you, the sins of the father are to be laid upon the children; therefore, I promise you,
I fear you. ¹ I was always plain with you, and so now I speak my agitation ² of the matter: therefore, be of good cheer; for, truly, I think, you are damned. There is but one hope in it that can do you any good, and that is but a kind of bastard hope neither. ³

Jes. And what hope is that, I pray thee?

Laun. Marry, you may partly hope that your father got you not, that you are not the Jew's daughter. ⁴

Jes. That were a kind of bastard hope, indeed: so the sins of my mother should be visited upon me.

Laun. Truly then I fear you are damned both by father and mother: thus when I shun Scylla, your father,
I fall into Charybdis, ⁵ your mother. Well, you are gone both ways. ⁶

Jes. I shall be saved by my husband; he hath made me a Christian.

Laun. Truly, the more to blame he: we were Christians enow ⁷ before; e'en as many as could well live one by another. This making of Christians will raise the price of hogs: if we grow all to be pork-eaters, we shall not shortly have a rasher on the coals for money.

Jes. I'll tell my husband, Launcelot, what you say:
here he comes.

Enter LORENZO.

Lor. I shall grow jealous of you shortly, Launcelot, if you thus get my wife into corners.

Jes. Nay, you need not fear us, Lorenzo: Launcelot and I are out. He tells me flatly, there is no mercy for me in heaven, because I am a Jew's daughter: and he says, you are no good member of the commonwealth, for, in converting Jews to Christians, you raise the price of pork.

Lor. I shall answer that better to the commonwealth, than you can the getting up of the negro's belly: the Moor is with child by you, Launcelot.

Laun. It is much, that the Moor should be more ⁸ than reason; but if she be less than an honest woman, she is, indeed, more than I took her for.

Lor. How every fool can play upon the word! I think, the best grace of wit will shortly turn into silence, and discourse grow commendable in none only but parrots.
— Go in, sirrah: bid them prepare for dinner.

Laun. That is done, Sir; they have all stomachs.

Lor. Goodly Lord, ⁹ what a wit-snapper are you! then bid them prepare dinner.

Laun. That is done too, Sir; only, cover is the word.

Lor. Will you cover then, Sir?

Laun. Not so, Sir, neither; I know my duty. ¹⁰

Lor. Yet more quarrelling with occasion? Wilt thou show the whole wealth of thy wit in an instant? I pray thee, understand a plain man in his plain meaning: go to thy fellows, bid them cover the table, serve in the meat, and we will come in to dinner.

Laun. For the table, Sir, it shall be served in; for the meat, Sir, it shall be covered; for your coming in to dinner, Sir, why, let it be as humours and conceits shall govern. [Exit.

Lor. O dear discretion, how his words are suited! ¹¹

The fool hath planted in his memory
An army of good words; and I do know
A many fools, that stand in better place,
Garnish'd like him, that for a tricky word
Defy the matter. How cheer'st ¹² thou, Jessica?

And now, good sweet, say thy opinion:

How dost thou like the lord Bassanio's wife?

Jes. Past all expressing. It is very meet,

The lord Bassanio live an upright life,

For, having such a blessing in his lady,

He finds the joys of heaven here on earth;

pfeife, wie sie sich bei dem Uebergange vom Knaben zum Manne bildet. 15) Ich konnte es nicht helfen, konnte nichts dabei thun. — Die Cambridge Edd. citiren aus Florio's Giardino di Riecreatione (1591), wo das italienische Io non saprei farci altro übersetzt ist = I cannot do with all. 16) puny lies = Lügen, wie unreife oder frühreife junge Leute sie vorbringen. 17) bragging Jack = ein prahlerischer Hans, als verächtliche Bezeichnung; so in K. Richard III. (A. 1, Sc. 3) silken, sly, insinuating Jacks. 18) to turn to men = zu Männern werden, und = sich den Männern zukehren. In letzterem Sinne fasst Portia Nerissa's Frage.

1) Ich bin besorgt um Euch, um Euer Seelenheil. So in Measure for Measure (A. 3, Sc. 1) O, I do fear thee, Claudio. 2) Launcelot meint cogitation, und dann für good cheer das Gegentheil. 3) neither ist zur Verstärkung des but hinzugefügt: und das ist auch nichts als eine Art von Bastardhoffnung. 4) Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 3, Anm. 5. 5) Das bekannte Sprichwort fand Sh. in zahlreichen zeitgenössischen Anspielungen; so in Ascham's Schoolmaster: If Scylla drown him not, Charybdis may fortune to swallow him. 6) Ihr seid verloren von väterlicher wie von mütterlicher Seite. 7) enow für enough lesen Qs. und Fol. 8) Wortspiel zwischen Moor und more. — Auch ein Wortspiel mit more und less liegt hier vor, wie Staunton bemerkt. 9) Manche Hgg. schreiben lord, als ob es eine Anrede an Launcelot wäre. 10) to cover = den Tisch decken, verdreht Launcelot zu obscönem Sinn, was dann Lorenzo als ein Disputiren, Sylbenstechen, mit der Gelegenheit, die sich darbietet, bezeichnet. 11) M. Mason fasst suited = passlich, zusammenhängend. — Vielleicht ist es eher = gekleidet, angethan, in übertragenem Sinn: wie närrisch sind seine Worte ausstaffirt! So sagt im eigentlichen Sinne Portia

And, if on earth he do not mean it, then
In reason¹³ he should never come to heaven.
Why, if two gods should play some heavenly match,
And on the wager lay two earthly women,
And Portia one, there must be something else
Pawn'd with the other, for the poor rude world
Hath not her fellow.

Lor. Even such a husband
Hast thou of me, as she is for a wife.

Jes. Nay, but ask my opinion too of that.¹⁴

Lor. I will anon; first, let us go to dinner.

Jes. Nay, let me praise¹⁵ you, while I have a stomach.

Lor. No, pray thee, let it serve for table-talk;
Then howsoe'er¹⁶ thou speak'st, 'mong other things
I shall digest it.

Jes. Well, I'll set you forth.¹⁷ [Exeunt.]

ACT IV.

SCENE I.

Venice. A Court of Justice.

Enter the DUKE; the Magnificoes;¹ ANTONIO, BASSANIO, GRATIANO, SALARINO, SOLANIO, and Others.

Duke. What, is Antonio here?

Ant. Ready, so please your grace.

Duke. I am sorry for thee: thou art come to answer
A stony adversary, an inhuman wretch
Uncapable² of pity, void and empty
From any dram of mercy.

Ant. I have heard,
Your grace hath ta'en great pains to qualify
His rigorous course; but since he stands obdurate,
And that no lawful means can carry me
Out of his envy's³ reach, I do oppose
My patience to his fury, and am arm'd
To suffer with a quietness of spirit,
The very tyranny and rage of his.⁴

Duke. Go one, and call the Jew into the court.

Salar. He's ready at the door. He comes, my lord.

Enter SHYLOCK.

Duke. Make room, and let him stand before our face. —
Shylock, the world thinks, and I think so too,
That thou but lead'st this fashion of thy malice
To the last hour of act; and then, 't is thought,
Thou'lt show thy mercy and remorse⁵ more strange,
Than is thy strange apparent cruelty;
And where⁶ thou now exact'st the penalty,
Which is a pound of this poor merchant's flesh,
Thou wilt not only loose⁷ the forfeiture,
But, touch'd with human gentleness and love,
Forgive a moiety⁸ of the principal;
Glancing an eye of pity on his losses,
That have of late so huddled on his back,
Enow to press a royal merchant⁹ down,
And pluck commiseration of his state
From brassy bosoms, and rough hearts of flint,
From stubborn Turks and Tartars, never train'd
To offices of tender courtesy.
We all expect a gentle answer, Jew.

Shy. I have possess'd your grace of what I purpose;
And by our holy Sabbath have I sworn,
To have the due and forfeit of my bond:
If you deny it, let the danger light
Upon your charter, and your city's freedom.
You'll ask me, why I rather choose to have
A weight of carrion flesh, than to receive
Three thousand ducats? I'll not answer that:
But, say, it is my humour: is it answer'd?¹⁰
What if my house be troubled with a rat,
And I be pleas'd to give ten thousand ducats
To have it baned? What, are you answer'd yet?
Some men there are love not a gaping pig;¹¹
Some, that are mad if they behold a cat;
And others, when the bagpipe sings i' the nose,
Cannot contain their urine: for affection,
Master of passion, sways it to the mood
Of what it likes, or loathes.¹² Now, for your answer.
As there is no firm reason to be render'd,
Why he cannot abide a gaping pig;

(A. 1, Sc. 2) How oddly he is suited! von einem ihrer Freier. 12) Q. A. hat far'st für cheer'st der Q. B. und Fol. 13) So Q. A.; Q. B. hat mean it, it || In reason, woraus die Fol. mean it, it || Is reason machte. Letztere Lesart behalten manche Hgg. bei. — mean it kann sich nur auf das Vorhergehende beziehen: Wenn er nicht meint; wenn er nicht erkennt, dass er in dem Besitz eines solchen Weibes schon hienieden die Freuden des Himmels findet, so sollte er billiger Weise nie in den Himmel kommen. — Pope las merit it. Vielleicht wäre für mean it, then zu lesen merit them, so dass sich them auf the joys of heaven bezöge. 14) Jessica bezieht sich auf Lorenzo's frühere Worte say thy opinion. 15) to praise = loben, und = taxiren, abschätzen, für to appraise. — Eben so doppel-sinnig ist stomach = Appetit, und = Trieb, Gelüste zu Etwas. 16) howsoe'er in Q. A.; Q. B. und Fol. haben howsome'er. 17) to set forth = in's rechte Licht stellen: ich will zeigen, wie Du beschaffen bist.

1) So schon Qs. und Fol. — Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 2, Anm. 56. 2) uncapable of = unzugänglich für Etwas. 3) envy = Tücke. 4) Die ganze Grausamkeit und Wuth, die von ihm ausgeht oder ihm eigen ist. 5) remorse = Gewissensbedenken, nicht bloss über geschehene Dinge, sondern auch über solche, die noch geschehen sollen: Du wirst Deine Barmherzigkeit und Gewissensregung noch hervorstechender zeigen, als Deine Grausamkeit sich jetzt auffallend zeigt. 6) where für whereas. 7) to loose = lösen, fahren lassen. Die meisten Hgg. setzen lose, da die Qs. und Fol. beide Verba gleich (loose) schreiben. 8) moiety ist bei Sh. nicht immer = Hälfte, sondern auch oft = ein entsprechender Theil, und steht hier vielleicht in diesem Sinn. 9) a royal merchant = ein Kaufmann, der es an Reichtum und Ansehen mit Königen aufnehmen konnte. Der Ausdruck kommt bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen öfter vor, und der Londoner Bürger Sir Thomas Gresham wurde so genannt. 10) Eure Frage will ich nicht beantworten; aber angenommen, es sei meine Laune, dass ich lieber ein Pfund Fleisch als dreitausend Ducaten haben wolle, habt Ihr damit eine genügende Antwort auf Eure Frage? 11) a gaping pig = ein Ferkel, das die Schnauze aufsperrt und grunzt. — Malone erklärt jedoch: a pig prepared for the table und citirt dazu aus Fletcher's Elder Brother: And they stand gaping like a roasted pig; sowie aus Nashe's Pierce Pen-niless his Supplication to the Devil: Some will take on like a madman, if they see a pig come to the table. 12) Die von den meisten Hgg. beibehaltene Interpunction der Qs. und Fol. verbindet for affection mit dem

Why he, a harmless necessary cat;
 Why he, a woollen bagpipe;¹³ but of force
 Must yield to such inevitable shame,
 As to offend himself, being offended;
 So can I give no reason, nor I will not,
 More than a lodg'd hate, and a certain loathing,
 I bear Antonio, that I follow thus
 A losing suit against him. Are you answer'd?
Bass. This is no answer, thou unfeeling man,
 To excuse the current of thy cruelty.
Shy. I am not bound to please thee with my answer.
Bass. Do all men kill the things they do not love?
Shy. Hates any man the thing he would not kill?
Bass. Every offence is not a hate at first.
Shy. What! wouldst thou have a serpent sting thee twice?
Ant. I pray you, think you question¹⁴ with the Jew.
 You may as well go stand upon the beach,
 And bid the main flood bate his usual height;
 You may as well use question with the wolf,
 Why he hath made the ewe bleat for the lamb;¹⁵
 You may as well forbid the mountain pines
 To wag their high tops, and to make no noise,¹⁶
 When they are fretted¹⁷ with the gusts of heaven;
 You may as well do any thing most hard,¹⁸
 As seek to soften that (than which what's harder?)
 His Jewish heart. — Therefore, I do beseech you,
 Make no more offers, use no further means;
 But with all brief and plain conveniency,
 Let me have judgment, and the Jew his will.
Bass. For thy three thousand ducats here is six.
Shy. If every ducat in six thousand ducats
 Were in six parts, and every part a ducat,
 I would not draw them. — I would have my bond.
Duke. How shalt thou hope for mercy, rendering none?
Shy. What judgment shall I dread, doing no wrong?
 You have among you many a purchas'd slave,
 Which, like your asses, and your dogs, and mules,
 You use in abject and in slavish parts,

Because you bought them: — shall I say to you,
 Let them be free; marry them to your heirs?
 Why sweat they under burdens? let their beds
 Be made as soft as yours, and let their palates
 Be season'd with such viands? You will answer:
 The slaves are ours. — So do I answer you:
 The pound of flesh, which I demand of him,
 Is dearly bought, 't is mine, and I will have it.
 If you deny me, fie upon your law!
 There is no force in the decrees of Venice.
 I stand for judgment: answer; shall I have it?
Duke. Upon my power I may dismiss this court,
 Unless Bellario, a learned doctor,
 Whom I have sent for to determine this,
 Come here to-day.
Salar. My lord, here stays without
 A messenger with letters from the doctor,
 New come from Padua.
Duke. Bring us the letters: call the messenger.
Bass. Good cheer, Antonio! What, man, courage yet!
 The Jew shall have my flesh, blood, bones, and all,
 Ere thou shalt lose for me one drop of blood.
Ant. I am a tainted wether of the flock,
 Meetest for death: the weakest kind of fruit
 Drops earliest to the ground, and so let me.
 You cannot better be employ'd, Bassanio,
 Than to live still, and write mine epitaph.

Enter NERISSA, dressed like a lawyer's clerk.

Duke. Came you from Padua, from Bellario?
Ner. From both, my lord. Bellario greets your grace.
[Presents a letter.]
Bass. Why dost thou whet thy knife so earnestly?
Shy. To cut the forfeiture from that bankrupt there.
Gra. Not on thy sole, but on thy soul, harsh Jew,
 Thou mak'st thy knife keen;¹⁹ but no metal can,
 No, not the hangman's axe, bear half the keenness
 Of thy sharp envy. Can no prayers pierce thee?
Shy. No, none that thou hast wit enough to make.
Gra. O, be thou damn'd, inexorable²⁰ dog,

Vorhergehenden und beginnt mit masters of passion einen neuen Satz. Die richtige Abtheilung schlug zuerst Thirlby vor: denn der Affect, der Meister unserer körperlichen Stimmung, lenkt dieselbe, je nachdem sie Etwas verabscheut oder liebt. — Thirlby vermuthete auch, dass für masters der Q. A. und Fol. oder für maisters der Q. B. eher mistress als Apposition zu dem weiblich personificirten affection zu setzen sei. — sways (swayes) im Singular steht in Qs. und Fol. neben masters (maisters). — Malone vermuthet for affection || Masters our passion, sways it to the mood etc. — eine Conjectur, die auch Staunton mit Recht für sehr plausibel hält. 13) Douce beruft sich zur Unterstützung der Lesart woollen in Qs. und Fol. auf das Zeugniß des Dr. Leyden: who in his edition of the Complaynt of Scotland informs us that the Lowland bagpipe commonly had the back or sack covered with woollen cloth of a green colour, und die Cambridge Edd. sagen: In an illuminated copy of an Office de la Vierge in the library of Trinity College there is a representation of a bagpipe which appears to be of sheepskin with the wool on. — Es sollte mit diesem Epitheton das schlichte Aeussere des Dudelsacks im Gegensatz zu der fatalen Wirkung, die er hervorbringt, bezeichnet werden. — Johnson vermuthete wooden, Hawkins swollen, und Collier's alter Corrector setzte das veraltete bollen = geschwollen, dafür. — Staunton beruhigt sich bei der Lesart woolen bagpipe, ohne eine Anmerkung hinzuzufügen. — Die Cambridge Edd. erwähnen Capell's Emendation wawling bagpipe als die wahrscheinlichste. — Zwei Zeilen weiter stellt Staunton die unzweifelhaft richtige Interpunction wieder her: As to offend himself, being offended. — Andere Hgg. verbinden himself mit being offended. 14) to question = sich in ein Gespräch einlassen, hin und her reden. — In dem letztern Sinne folgt bald nachher to use question. 15) So die Qs.; die Fol. lässt why he hath made aus und liest in der vorigen Zeile or even as well für you may as well. 16) to forbid wird hier zuerst mit dem einfachen Infinitiv des Verbotenen, sodann mit einer Negation verbunden: to make no noise, als ob ein Verbum wie to command vorherginge. 17) So die Fol.; die Qs. fretten. 18) hard = schwer, und = hart. 19) Das Messer des Juden erhält seine Schärfe besser von der steinharten Seele des Besitzers, als von der weichen Sohle seines Schuhs. So in K. Richard III. (A. 4, Sc. 4) the murderous knife was dull and blunt, || Till it was whetted on thy stone-hard heart. — Das Wortspiel zwischen soul und sole findet sich in Julius Cæsar (A. 1, Sc. 1). — Nur die Orthographie der Fol. unterscheidet hier die beiden Wörter, die Qs. setzen beide Male soule.

And for thy life let justice be accus'd!²¹
 Thou almost mak'st me waver in my faith,
 To hold opinion with Pythagoras,²²
 That souls of animals infuse themselves
 Into the trunks of men: thy currish spirit
 Govern'd a wolf, who,²³ hang'd for human slaughter,
 Even from the gallows did his fell soul fleet,
 And whilst thou lay'st in thy unhallow'd dam,
 Infus'd itself in thee; for thy desires
 Are wolfish, bloody, starv'd, and ravenous.

Shy. Till thou canst rail the seal from off my bond,
 Thou but offend'st thy lungs to speak so loud.
 Repair thy wit, good youth, or it will fall
 To cureless²⁴ ruin. — I stand here for law.

Duke. This letter from Bellario doth commend
 A young and learned doctor to our court. —
 Where is he?

Ner. He attendeth here hard by,
 To know your answer, whether you'll admit him.

Duke. With all my heart: — some three or four of
 you,

Go give him courteous conduct to this place.
 Meantime, the court shall hear Bellario's letter.

Clerk. [Reads.]²⁵ »Your grace shall understand, that, at the receipt of your letter, I am very sick; but in the instant that your messenger came, in loving visitation was with me a young doctor of Rome; his name is Balthazar. I acquainted him with the cause in controversy between the Jew and Antonio, the merchant: we turned o'er many books together: he is furnish'd with my opinion; which, better'd with his own learning, the greatness whereof I cannot enough commend, comes with him, at my importunity, to fill up your grace's request in my stead. I beseech you, let his lack of years be no impediment to let him lack²⁶ a reverend estimation, for I never knew so young a body with so old a head. I leave him to your gracious acceptance, whose²⁷ trial shall better publish his commendation.«

Duke. You hear the learn'd Bellario, what he writes:
 And here, I take it, is the doctor come. —

*Enter PORTIA, dressed like a doctor of laws.*²⁸

Give me your hand. Came you from old Bellario?

Por. I did, my lord.

Duke. You are welcome: take your place.

Are you acquainted with the difference
 That holds this present question in the court?

Por. I am informed thoroughly of the cause. —

Which is the merchant here, and which the Jew?

Duke. Antonio and old Shylock, both stand forth.

Por. Is your name Shylock?

Shy. Shylock is my name.

Por. Of a strange nature is the suit you follow;

Yet in such rule, that the Venetian law

Cannot impugn you, as you do proceed.²⁹ —

[To ANTONIO.] You stand within his danger,³⁰ do you not?

Ant. Ay, so he says.

Por. Do you confess the bond?

Ant. I do.

Por. Then must the Jew be merciful.

Shy. On what compulsion must I? tell me that.

Por. The quality of mercy is not strain'd,
 It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven

Upon the place beneath:³¹ it is twice bless'd;³²

It blesseth him that gives, and him that takes.

'T is mightiest in the mightiest,³³ it becomes

The throned monarch better than his crown:

His sceptre shows the force of temporal power,

The attribute to awe and majesty,

Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings;³⁴

But mercy is above this sceptred sway,

It is enthroned in the hearts of kings,

It is an attribute to God himself,

And earthly power doth then show likest God's,

When mercy seasons justice. Therefore, Jew,

Though justice be thy plea, consider this, —

That in the course of justice none of us

Should see salvation:³⁵ we do pray for mercy,

And that same prayer doth teach us all to render

The deeds of mercy. I have spoke thus much,

To mitigate the justice of thy plea,

Which if thou follow, this strict court³⁶ of Venice

Must needs give sentence 'gainst the merchant there.

Shy. My deeds upon my head! I crave the law,

The penalty and forfeit of my bond.

Por. Is he not able to discharge the money?

Bass. Yes, here I tender it for him in the court;

Yea, twice³⁷ the sum: if that will not suffice,

20) So verbessert die dritte Folioausg. von 1664 das inexorable der Qs. und Fol. 21) Die Gerechtigkeit selbst soll deshalb verklagt werden, dass sie Dich am Leben lässt. 22) my faith = mein Christenglaube, wird der heidnischen Lehre des Pythagoras von der Seelenwanderung entgegengestellt, auf welche Sh. auch in andern Dramen, As you like it (A. 3, Sc. 2) und Twelfth-Night (A. 4, Sc. 2), hindeutet. 23) Die Construction ist anakolutisch, da who ohne Verbum steht: da der Wolf wegen Menschenmordes gehängt war, so entwich unmittelbar vom Galgen seine grimme Seele und flösste sich Dir ein, während Du in Deiner gottlosen Mutter lagst. 24) cureless in den Qs.; endless in der Fol. 25) Clerk (Reads) fehlt in Qs. und Fol. I will be bound to pay it ten times o'er,
On forfeit of my hands, my head, my heart.
If this will not suffice, it must appear
That malice bears down truth.³⁸ And I beseech you,
Wrest once the law to your authority:
To do a great right, do a little wrong,
And curb this cruel devil of his will.

Por. It must not be. There is no power in Venice
Can alter a decree established:

'T will be recorded for a precedent,
And many an error, by the same example,
Will rush into the state. It cannot be.

Shy. A Daniel come to judgment! yea, a Daniel! —
O wise young judge, how I do³⁹ honour thee!

Por. I pray you, let me look upon the bond.

Shy. Here 't is, most reverend doctor; here it is.

Por. Shylock, there 's thrice thy money offer'd thee.

Shy. An oath, an oath, I have an oath in heaven.⁴⁰
Shall I lay perjury upon my soul?
No, not for Venice.

Por. Why, this bond is forfeit,
And lawfully by this the Jew may claim
A pound of flesh, to be by him cut off
Nearest the merchant's heart. — Be merciful;
Take thrice thy money: bid me tear the bond.

Shy. When it is paid according to the tenour. —
It doth appear you are a worthy judge;
You know the law, your exposition
Hath been most sound: I charge you by the law,
Whereof you are a well-deserving pillar,
Proceed to judgment. By my soul I swear,
There is no power in the tongue of man
To alter me. I stay here on my bond.

Ant. Most heartily I do beseech the court
To give the judgment.

Por. Why then, thus it is: —
You must prepare your bosom for his knife.

Shy. O noble judge! O excellent young man!

Por. For the intent and purpose of the law
Hath full relation to the penalty,
Which here appeareth due upon the bond.

Shy. 'T is very true. O wise and upright judge!
How much more elder art thou than thy looks!

Por. Therefore, lay bare your bosom.

Shy. Ay, his breast;
So says the bond: — doth it not, noble judge? —
Nearest his heart: those are the very words.

Por. It is so. Are there balance⁴¹ here to weigh
The flesh?

Shy. I have them ready.

Por. Have by some surgeon, Shylock, on your charge,
To stop his wounds, lest he do⁴² bleed to death.

Shy. Is it so nominated in the bond?

Por. It is not so express'd;⁴³ but what of that?

'T were good you do so much for charity.

Shy. I cannot find it: 't is not in the bond.

Por. You, merchant,⁴⁴ have you anything to say?

Ant. But little: I am arm'd, and well prepar'd. —
Give me your hand, Bassanio: fare you well.

Grieve not that I am fallen to this for you;

For herein Fortune shows herself more kind

Than is her custom: it is still her use,

To let the wretched man outlive his wealth,

To view with hollow eye, and wrinkled brow.

An age of poverty; from which lingering penance

Of such misery⁴⁵ doth she cut me off.

Commend me to your honourable wife:

Tell her the process of Antonio's end;

Say how I lov'd you, speak me fair in death;

And, when the tale is told, bid her be judge,

Whether Bassanio had not once a love.⁴⁶

Repent not⁴⁷ you that you shall lose your friend,

And he repents not that he pays your debt;

For, if the Jew do cut but deep enough,

I 'll pay it instantly⁴⁸ with all my heart.

Bass. Antonio, I am married to a wife,

Which is as dear to me as life itself;

But life itself, my wife, and all the world,

Are not with me esteem'd above thy life:

I would lose all, ay, sacrifice them all,

Here to this devil, to deliver you.

Por. Your wife would give you little thanks for that,
If she were by to hear you make the offer.

Gra. I have a wife, whom, I protest, I love:

I would she were in heaven, so she could

Entreat some power to change this currish Jew.

Ner. 'T is well you offer it behind her back;

The wish would make else an unquiet house.

Shy. These be the christian husbands! I have a daughter;

'Would any of the stock of Barrabas⁴⁹

Had been her husband, rather than a Christian!

We trifle time; I pray thee, pursue sentence.

Por. A pound of that same merchant's flesh is thine:

The court awards it, and the law doth give it.

Shy. Most rightful judge!

Por. And you must cut this flesh from off his breast:
The law allows it, and the court awards it.

Shy. Most learned judge! — A sentence! Come, prepare!

Por. Tarry a little: there is something else. —

This bond doth give thee here no jot of blood;

The words expressly are, a pound of flesh:

Take then⁵⁰ thy bond, take thou thy pound of flesh;

Ritson thrice lesen, in Uebereinstimmung mit dem Späteren. Indess ist Sh. in solchen Zahlenangaben nicht immer consequent. 38) truth = Rechtlichkeit, Ehrlichkeit. 39) So die Qs.; die Fol. how do I 40) Der Himmel hat den Eid gehört, den ich geschworen habe. 41) balance = die aus zwei Wagschalen bestehende Wage, ist hier pluralisch. 42) do in den Qs.; should in der Fol. — Letztere hat in der folgenden Zeile: It is not nominated in the bond? 43) Es steht nicht ausdrücklich so in dem Schuldschein. 44) So die Qs.; die Fol. come, merchant. 45) Steevens las, um den Vers zu verbessern, mit der zweiten Folioausg. of such a misery. — Indess ist misery dreisylbig zu lesen und der Trochäus im zweiten Fusse des Blankvers nicht unerhört. 46) Ob Bassanio nicht einmal eine Freundschaft, einen Freund besass. — Vgl. A. 3, Sc. 2, Anm. 65. 47) not in der Fol.; but in den Qs.: Wenn Ihr es nur nicht bedauert, dass Ihr Euern Freund verliert, so wird er es nicht bedauern, dass er Eure Schuld bezahlt. 48) instantly haben Q. B. und Fol. für presently der Q. A. 49) So, mit dem Accent auf der ersten Sylbe, wird der Name des Räubers, den Pilatus auf Bitten der Juden freiliess, in Qs. und Fol., wie bei Sh.'s Zeitgenossen, geschrieben. — Die jetzige Bibelübersetzung hat Barabbas mit dem Ton auf der zweiten Sylbe. — Dyce lässt den Shylock diese drei ersten Zeilen beiseite sprechen. 50) So die Qs.; then take in der Fol.

But, in the cutting it, if thou dost shed
One drop of christian blood, thy lands and goods
Are, by the laws of Venice, confiscate
Unto the state of Venice.

Gra. O upright judge! — Mark, Jew: — O learned judge!

Shy. Is that the law?

Por. Thyself shalt see the act;

For, as thou urgest justice, be assur'd,
Thou shalt have justice, more than thou desirest.

Gra. O learned judge! — Mark, Jew: — a learned judge!

Shy. I take this offer⁵¹ then: pay the bond thrice,
And let the Christian go.

Bass. Here is the money.

Por. Soft!

The Jew shall have all justice; — soft! — no haste: —
He shall have nothing but the penalty.

Gra. O Jew! an upright judge, a learned judge!

Por. Therefore, prepare thee to cut off the flesh.

Shed thou no blood; nor cut thou less, nor more,
But just a pound of flesh: if thou tak'st⁵² more.

Or less, than a just pound, — be it but so much⁵³

As makes it light, or heavy, in the substance,

Or the division of the twentieth part

Of one poor scruple, nay, if the scale do turn

But in the estimation of a hair,

Thou diest, and all thy goods are confiscate.

Gra. A second Daniel, a Daniel, Jew!

Now, infidel, I have thee on the hip.⁵⁴

Por. Why doth the Jew pause? take thy forfeiture.

Shy. Give me my principal, and let me go.

Bass. I have it ready for thee: here it is.

Por. He hath refus'd it in the open court:

He shall have merely justice, and his bond.

Gra. A Daniel, still say I; a second Daniel! —

I thank thee, Jew, for teaching me that word.

Shy. Shall I not have barely my principal?

Por. Thou shalt have nothing but the forfeiture,

To be so taken at thy peril, Jew.

Shy. Why, then the devil give him good of it!

I'll stay no longer question.⁵⁵

Por. Tarry, Jew:

The law hath yet another hold on you.

It is enacted in the laws of Venice,

If it be prov'd against an alien,

That, by direct or indirect attempts,

He seek the life of any citizen,

The party, 'gainst the which he doth contrive,

Shall seize one half his goods: the other half

Comes to the privy coffer of the state;

And the offender's life lies in the mercy

Of the duke only, 'gainst all other voice.⁵⁶

In which predicament, I say, thou stand'st;

For it appears by manifest proceeding,

That, indirectly, and directly too,

Thou hast contriv'd against the very life

Of the defendant, and thou hast incurr'd

The danger⁵⁷ formerly by me rehears'd.

Down, therefore, and beg mercy of the duke.

Gra. Beg, that thou may'st have leave to hang thyself;

And yet, thy wealth being forfeit to the state,

Thou hast not left the value of a cord;

Therefore, thou must be hang'd at the state's charge.

Duke. That thou shalt see the difference of our spirit,

I pardon thee thy life before thou ask it.

For half thy wealth, it is Antonio's:

The other half comes to the general state,

Which humbleness may drive unto a fine.

Por. Ay, for the state; not for Antonio.⁵⁸

Shy. Nay, take my life and all; pardon not that:

You take my house, when you do take the prop

That doth sustain my house; you take my life,

When you do take the means whereby I live.

Por. What mercy can you render him, Antonio?

Gra. A halter gratis; nothing else, for God's sake!

Ant. So please my lord the duke, and all the court,

To quit the fine for one half of his goods;

I am content, so he will let me have

The other half in use,⁵⁹ to render it,

Upon his death, unto the gentleman

That lately stole his daughter:

Two things provided more, — that, for this favour,

He presently become a Christian;

The other, that he do record a gift,

Here in the court, of all he dies possess'd,⁶⁰

Unto his son Lorenzo, and his daughter.

Duke. He shall do this, or else I do recant

The pardon, that I late pronounced here.

Por. Art thou contented, Jew? what dost thou say?

Shy. I am content.

Por. Clerk, draw a deed of gift.

Shy. I pray you, give me leave to go from hence

I am not well. Send the deed after me,

And I will sign it.

Duke. Get thee gone, but do it.

Gra. In christening thou shalt have two godfathers;

Had I been judge, thou shouldst have had ten more,

To bring thee to the gallows, not the font.⁶¹

[Exit SHYLOCK.]

51) this offer = das Anerbieten, von dem vorher in Portia's Worten take thrice thy money die Rede war und dessen Inhalt Shylock noch einmal recapitulirt. — Vgl. oben Anm. 37. — Steevens vermuthete his (scil. Bassanio's) offer. 52) So Q. B. und Fol.; Q. A. hat cut'st. 53) So die Qs.; die Fol. lässt das bezeichnende but aus: wenn es auch nur so viel ist. 54) Vgl. A. 1, Sc. 3, Anm. 8. 55) So Q. B. und Fol.; Q. A. I'll stay no longer here in question. Vgl. oben Anm. 14. 56) Die Entscheidung über Leben oder Tod des Verbrechers steht allein dem Dogen zu, mit Ausschluss aller andern Stimmen, die sich sonst geltend machen. 57) Vgl. oben Anm. 30. 58) Die Hälfte, die dem Staate zufällt von Shylock's Vermögen, kann ein demüthiges Gebahren in eine Geldstrafe verwandeln; aber Antonio's Hälfte muss unverringert bleiben. 59) Antonio will die ihm gebührende Hälfte von Shylock's Vermögen nicht als sein Eigenthum, sondern nur als ein ihm anvertrautes Gut zum Niessbrauch haben, das dann nach Shylock's Tode dem Lorenzo als dessen rechtmässigem Erben zufallen soll. 60) scil. of all which he dies possess'd of. — Diese Auslassung des mit which verbundenen of am Schlusse des Satzes, die durch eine Vermengung mit dem vorhergehenden of veranlasst wird, ist in Sh.'s Manier. — Diese gerichtliche Zusicherung alles dessen, in dessen Besitz er stirbt, an Lorenzo und Jessica, soll der Möglichkeit vorbeugen, dass Shylock die Beiden enterbt. 61) d. h. zwölf Geschworne, die als Pathen ihn nicht zum Taufstein, sondern zum Galgen befördern hätten. — Q. B. und Fol. haben to the font. — So in Ben Jonson's The Devil's an Ass: Not I, || If you

Duke. Sir, I entreat you home with me⁶² to dinner.

Por. I humbly do desire your grace of pardon:⁶³
I must away this night toward Padua,
And it is meet I presently set forth.

Duke. I am sorry, that your leisure serves you not.
Antonio, gratify this gentleman,
For, in my mind, you are much bound to him.

[Exeunt DUKE, Magnificoes, and Train.]

Bass. Most worthy gentleman, I and my friend
Have by your wisdom been this day acquitted
Of grievous penalties; in lieu whereof,

Three thousand ducats, due unto the Jew,
We freely cope your courteous pains withal.⁶⁴

Ant. And stand indebted, over and above,
In love and service to you evermore.

Por. He is well paid, that is well satisfied;
And I, delivering you, am satisfied,
And therein do account myself well paid:
My mind was never yet more mercenary.⁶⁵
I pray you, know me, when we meet again:
I wish you well, and so I take my leave.

Bass. Dear Sir, of force I must attempt you further:⁶⁶
Take some remembrance of us, as a tribute,
Not as a fee. Grant me two things, I pray you;
Not to deny me, and to pardon me.⁶⁷

Por. You press me far, and therefore I will yield.
Give me your gloves, I'll wear them for your sake;
And, for your love, I'll take this ring from you. —
Do not draw back your hand; I'll take no more;
And you in love shall not deny me this.

Bass. This ring, good Sir? — alas, it is a trifle;
I will not shame myself to give you this.

Por. I will have nothing else but only this;
And now, methinks, I have a mind to it.

Bass. There's more depends on this than on the value.⁶⁸

The dearest ring in Venice will I give you,
And find it out by proclamation:
Only for this, I pray you, pardon me.

Por. I see, Sir, you are liberal in offers.
You taught me first to beg, and now, methinks,
You teach me how a beggar should be answer'd.

Bass. Good Sir, this ring was given me by my wife;
And, when she put it on, she made me vow,
That I should neither sell, nor give, nor lose it.

Por. That'scuse serves many men to save their gifts.
An if your wife be not a mad-woman,⁶⁹

And know how well I have deserv'd this ring,
She would not hold out enemy for ever,⁷⁰
For giving it to me. Well, peace be with you.

[Exeunt PORTIA and NERISSA.]

Ant. My lord Bassanio, let him have the ring:
Let his deservings, and my love withal,
Be valued 'gainst your wife's commandment.⁷¹

Bass. Go, Gratiano; run and overtake him;
Give him the ring, and bring him, if thou canst,
Unto Antonio's house. — Away! make haste.

[Exit GRATIANO.]

Come, you and I will thither presently,
And in the morning early will we both
Fly toward Belmont. Come, Antonio.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

The Same. A Street.

Enter PORTIA and NERISSA.

Por. Inquire the Jew's house out, give him this deed,
And let him sign it. We'll away to-night,
And be a day before our husbands home.
This deed will be well welcome to Lorenzo.

Enter GRATIANO.

Gra. Fair Sir, you are well o'erta'en.
My lord Bassanio, upon more advice,¹
Hath sent you here this ring, and doth entreat
Your company at dinner.

Por. That cannot be.
His² ring I do accept most thankfully,
And so, I pray you, tell him: furthermore,
I pray you, show my youth old Shylock's house.

Gra. That will I do.

Ner. Sir, I would speak with you. —
[To PORTIA.] I'll see if I can get my husband's ring,
Which I did make him swear to keep for ever.

Por. Thou may'st, I warrant. We shall have old swearing,³

That they did give the rings away to men;
But we'll outface them, and outswear them too.
Away! make haste: thou know'st where I will tarry.

Ner. Come, good Sir; will you show me to this house?
[Exeunt.]

be such a one, I will leave you || To your godfathers in law. Dieser Ausdruck für die zwölf Geschwornen war sprichwörtlich geworden. 62) Die Fol. stellt um with me home. 63) Die Verba des Bittens construirt Sh. mehrfach mit dem Accusativ der Person und of der Sache. So in Midsummer-Night's Dream (A. 3, Sc. 1) I shall desire you of more acquaintance. 64) to cope mit dem Accusativ = freundlich oder feindlich mit Jemandem oder mit Etwas es aufnehmen, also = begegnen, erwidern: auf Grund dessen wir mit dreitausend Ducaten, die wir dem Juden schulden, Eurer freundlichen Mühe begegnen. — withal, für with, bezieht sich auf three thousand ducats, und es sollte eigentlich also with three thousand ducats we cope your pains stehen. 65) Mein Gemüth strebte noch niemals nach grösserem Lohn, als danach, dass ich zufrieden wäre (well satisfied). 66) Ich muss nothgedrungen Euch noch mit weitem Bitten angehen. 67) d. h. mir zu verzeihen, dass ich so in Euch dringe. 68) Es kommt mehr auf den Ring selbst, als auf den Werth des Ringes an. — Q. A. hat There's more than this depends upon the value. 69) mad-woman muss, wie der Vers zeigt, als Compositum gefasst werden mit dem Ton auf mad. 70) to hold out enemy = als Feindin ausdauern: sie würde nicht für immer Euch böse bleiben. 71) Qs. und Fol. schreiben commandment, zum Zeichen, dass hier wie an andern Stellen das Wort viersylbig auszusprechen sei. — Für valew'd gaint der Q. A. und valued gainst der Q. B. hat die Fol. valued againt, als ob valued und commandment dreisylbig zu lesen wäre.

1) Auf bessere, reifere Ueberlegung. 2) So die Fol.; Q. A. this. 3) old swearing = reichliches Schwören, mehr als genug. So in dem alten Drama Soliman and Perseda: I shall have old laughing. — Dem old swearing entspricht das folgende outswear them = wir wollen noch ärger schwören als sie.

ACT V.

SCENE I.

Belmont. The Avenue to PORTIA's House.

Enter LORENZO and JESSICA.

Lor. The moon shines bright. — In such a night as this,

When the sweet wind did gently kiss the trees,
And they did make no noise, in such a night,
Troilus, methinks, mounted the Trojan walls,
And sigh'd his soul toward the Grecian tents,
Where Cressid lay that night.¹

Jes. In such a night
Did Thisbe fearfully o'ertrip the dew;
And saw the lion's shadow ere himself,
And ran dismay'd away.

Lor. In such a night
Stood Dido with a willow in her hand²
Upon the wild sea-banks, and wav'd her love³
To come again to Carthage.

Jes. In such a night
Medea gather'd the enchanted herbs
That did renew old Æson.⁴

Lor. In such a night
Did Jessica steal from the wealthy Jew,
And with an unthrift love did run from Venice,
As far as Belmont.

Jes. In such a night
Did young Lorenzo swear he lov'd her well,
Stealing her soul with many vows of faith,
And ne'er a true one.

Lor. In such a night
Did pretty Jessica, like a little shrew,
Slander her love, and he forgave it her.

Jes. I would out-night⁵ you, did no body come;
But, hark, I hear the footing of a man.

Enter STEPHANO.

Lor. Who comes so fast in silence of the night?

Steph. A friend.

Lor. A friend? what friend? your name, I pray you,
friend?

Steph. Stephano is my name; and I bring word,
My mistress will before the break of day
Be here at Belmont: she doth stray about
By holy crosses, where she kneels and prays
For happy wedlock hours.

Lor. Who comes with her?

Steph. None, but a holy hermit, and her maid.
I pray you, is my master yet return'd?

Lor. He is not, nor we have not heard from him. —
But go we in, I pray thee, Jessica,
And ceremoniously let us prepare
Some welcome for the mistress of the house.

Enter LAUNCELOT.

Laun. Sola, sola! wo ha, ho! sola, sola!

Lor. Who calls?

Laun. Sola! did you see Master Lorenzo, and Mistress
Lorenzo?⁶ sola, sola!

Lor. Leave halloing, man; here.

Laun. Sola! where? where?

Lor. Here.

Laun. Tell him, there's a post come from my master, with his horn⁷ full of good news: my master will be here ere morning. [Exit.

Lor. Sweet soul,⁸ let's in, and there expect their coming.

And yet no matter; — why should we go in?
My friend Stephano,⁹ signify, I pray you,
Within the house, your mistress is at hand;
And bring your music forth into the air. —

[Exit STEPHANO.

How sweet the moonlight sleeps upon this bank!

Here we will sit, and let the sounds of music
Creep in our ears: soft stillness, and the night,
Become the touches of sweet harmony.¹⁰

Sit, Jessica: look, how the floor of heaven
Is thick inlaid with patines¹¹ of bright gold.

There's not the smallest orb, which thou behold'st,
But in his motion like an angel sings,

Still quiring to the young-ey'd cherubins;

Such harmony is in immortal souls;

But, whilst this muddy vesture of decay

Doth grossly close it in, we cannot hear it.¹²

1) Steevens citirt dazu eine Stelle aus Chaucer's Troilus and Creseide, die Sh. hier vorgeschwebt haben mochte. — Aus Chaucer's Legend of Good Women kannte Sh. auch die von ihm in Midsummer-Night's Dream eingeflochtene Sage von Pyramus und Thisbe. 2) Ein Weidenzweig und Weidenkranz war das Abzeichen einer verlassenen Geliebten oder eines schmachtenden Liebhabers; so in K. Henry VI. Third Part (A. 3, Sc. 3) I'll wear the willow garland for his sake. 3) her love = ihren Geliebten, den Aeneas. Vgl. A. 4, Sc. 1, Anm. 46. 4) Sh. kannte diesen Mythos von der Medea aus Gower's Confessio Amantis. 5) to out-night ist hier doppelsinnig = an Nachtwachen übertreffen, länger wachen als ein Anderer, und = in Erzählung von Nächten aus alten Sagen übertreffen, wie sie bis jetzt darin gewetteifert hatten. — Diese Wechselreden sind nachgeahmt in dem Drama Wily Beguiled von anonymem Verfasser in einem Liebesgespräch zwischen Sophos und Lelia: Sophos. In such a night did Paris win his love. || Lelia. In such a night Aeneas prov'd unkind. || Sophos. In such a night did Troilus court his dear. || Lelia. In such a night fair Phillis was betray'd. || Sophos. I'll prove as true as ever Troilus was. || Lelia. And I as constant as Penelope. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 307. 6) Für Master und Mistress setzen Qs. und Fol. beide Male M. als Abbr. Für and steht in den Qs. nur ein Comma und in der Fol. die Abkürzung &. Erst die späteren Folioausgg. unterscheiden Master und Mistress. — Die Cambridge Edd. setzen deshalb Sola! did you see Master Lorenzo? Master Lorenzo, sola, sola! 7) Das Blashorn, das den Eilboten charakterisirt, wird von Launcelot mit einem Füllhorn identificirt. 8) Qs. und Fol. theilen sweet soul noch der Rede Launcelot's zu. — Die Verbesserung rührt von Rowe her, der jedoch mit den späteren Folioausgg. love für soul setzte. 9) Q. B. und Fol. haben Stephen für Stephano. 10) Sanfte nächtliche Stille passt oder stimmt zu den Tönen, welche die süsse Harmonie anschlägt, oder zu den Empfindungen, welche diese Harmonie in uns erregt. 11) patines, — patients in Q. A., pattens in Q. B. und Fol. geschrieben, — eigentlich das metallene, gewöhnlich vergoldete Kelchschüsselchen, das bei der Messe gebraucht wird, erklärt Dyce hier richtig mit plates, or circular ornaments, of bright gold. — Als ein solcher Schmuck am Plafond des Himmels werden

Come, ho! and wake Diana with a hymn:
With sweetest touches pierce your mistress' ear,
And draw her home with music. [Music.]

Jes. I am never merry when I hear sweet music.

Lor. The reason is, your spirits are attentive:
For do but note a wild and wanton herd,
Or race of youthful and unhandled colts,
Fetching mad bounds, bellowing and neighing loud,¹³
Which is the hot condition of their blood;
If they but hear perchance a trumpet sound,
Or any air of music touch their ears,
You shall perceive them make a mutual¹⁴ stand,
Their savage eyes turn'd to a modest gaze,
By the sweet power of music: therefore, the poet
Did feign that Orpheus drew trees, stones, and floods;
Since nought so stockish, hard, and full of rage,
But music for the time doth change his nature.
The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not mov'd with concord of sweet sounds,¹⁵
Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoils;
The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
And his affections dark as Erebus.
Let no such man be trusted. — Mark the music.

Enter PORTIA and NERISSA, at a distance.

Por. That light we see is burning in my hall.
How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world.

Ner. When the moon shone, we did not see the candle.

Por. So doth the greater glory dim the less:
A substitute shines brightly as a king,
Until a king be by; and then his state
Empties itself, as doth an inland brook
Into the main of waters.¹⁶ Music! hark!

Ner. It is your music, Madam, of the house.

Por. Nothing is good, I see, without respect.¹⁷
Methinks, it sounds much sweeter than by day.

Ner. Silence bestows that virtue on it, Madam.

Por. The crow doth sing as sweetly as the lark,
When neither is attended;¹⁸ and, I think,
The nightingale, if she should sing by day,
When every goose is cackling, would be thought

No better a musician than the wren.
How many things by season season'd are
To their right praise, and true perfection! —
Peace, ho!¹⁹ the moon sleeps with Endymion,
And would not be awak'd!

Lor. That is the voice,
Or I am much deceiv'd, of Portia.

Por. He knows me, as the blind man knows the cuckoo,
By the bad voice.

Lor. Dear lady, welcome home.

Por. We have been praying for our husbands' welfare,²⁰

Which speed, we hope, the better for our words.
Are they return'd?

Lor. Madam, they are not yet;
But there is come a messenger before,
To signify their coming.

Por. Go in, Nerissa:
Give order to my servants, that they take
No note at all of our being absent hence;²¹ —
Nor you, Lorenzo; — Jessica, nor you.

[A tucket sounded.]

Lor. Your husband is at hand: I hear his trumpet.²²
We are no tell-tales, Madam; fear you not.

Por. This night, methinks, is but the day-light sick;
It looks a little paler: 't is a day,
Such as the day is when the sun is hid.

Enter BASSANIO, ANTONIO, GRATIANO, and their Followers.

Bass. We should hold day with the Antipodes,
If you would walk in absence of the sun.²³

Por. Let me give light, but let me not be light;²⁴
For a light wife doth make a heavy husband,
And never be Bassanio so for me:²⁵
But God sort all! — You are welcome home, my lord.

Bass. I thank you, Madam. Give welcome to my friend:

This is the ~~man~~, this is Antonio,
To whom I am so infinitely bound.

Por. You should in all sense be much bound to him,
For, as I hear, he was much bound²⁶ for you.

Ant. No more than I am well acquitted of.

A. und die Fol. haben close in it. 13) bellowing loud geht auf herd, und neighing loud auf colts. 14) mutual = im Einverständniss, in Bezug auf die Musik, die sie hören. 15) Die innere musikalische Seelenstimmung wird hier zusammengestellt mit der Empfänglichkeit für die Musik, welche von aussen her zum Ohre dringt. 16) Der Glanz und Rang eines Statthalters verschwindet in Gegenwart eines Königs, wie sich ein Bach aus dem Binnenlande in das grosse Meer ergiesst. 17) Der wirkliche Werth eines Dings erscheint erst, wenn man es in Beziehung auf hinzutretende Verhältnisse auffasst, wie die Musik erst jetzt, da sie in der Nacht erschallt, von der Portia recht gewürdigt wird. 18) Wenn man nicht in rechter Stimmung und zu günstiger Stunde dem Gesang der Lerche zuhört, so klingt er nicht besser als der Ton der Krähe. 19) Mit diesen Worten heisst Portia ihre Musiker schweigen. Derselbe Ausruf = still da! kehrt häufig bei Sh. wieder; so in As you like it (A. 5, Sc. 4) Peace, ho! I bar confusion, und in Romeo and Juliet (A. 4, Sc. 5) Peace, ho! for shame! confusion's cure lives not || In these confusions. — Qs. und Fol. haben Peace, how the moon etc., was Malone verbesserte. 20) So Q. A. health. 21) our being absent steht ohne Rücksicht auf die Zeit für our absence: sie sollen keine Notiz davon nehmen, dass wir abwesend waren. 22) Die Trompete, die seine Ankunft verkündet. So in K. Lear (A. 2, Sc. 4) What trumpet's that? — Regan. I know't, my sister's. 23) Portia macht durch ihre Erscheinung die Nacht zum Tage, der eigentlich um diese Zeit doch nur auf der entgegengesetzten Erdhälfte bei den Antipoden herrscht. 24) Vgl. A. 2, Sc. 6, Anm. 2, und A. 3, Sc. 2, Anm. 23. 25) scil. heavy for me = schwermüthig um meinetwillen. 26) bound = verpflichtet, und = gebunden, in

Por. Sir, you are very welcome to our house:

It must appear in other ways than words,
Therefore, I scant this breathing courtesy.²⁷

Gra. [To NERISSA.] By yonder moon, I swear, you do me wrong;

In faith, I gave it to the judge's clerk:

'Would he were gelt that had it, for my part,
Since you do take it, love, so much at heart.

Por. A quarrel, ho, already! what's the matter?

Gra. About a hoop of gold, a paltry ring
That she did give me; whose posy²⁸ was
For all the world like cutlers' poetry
Upon a knife, »Love me, and leave me not.«

Ner. What talk you of the posy, or the value?

You swore to me, when I did give it you,
That you would wear it till your²⁹ hour of death,
And that it should lie with you in your grave:
Though not for me, yet for your vehement oaths,
You should have been respective,³⁰ and have kept it.
Gave it a judge's clerk! no, God's my judge,³¹
The clerk will ne'er wear hair on his face, that had it.

Gra. He will, an if he live to be a man.

Ner. Ay, if a woman live to be a man.

Gra. Now, by this hand, I gave it to a youth,
A kind of boy, a little scrubbed³² boy,
No higher than thyself, the judge's clerk;
A prating boy, that begg'd it as a fee:
I could not for my heart deny it him.

Por. You were to blame, I must be plain with you,
To part so slightly with your wife's first gift;
A thing stuck on with oaths upon your finger,
And so riveted³³ with faith unto your flesh.
I gave my love a ring, and made him swear
Never to part with it; and here he stands:
I dare be sworn for him, he would not leave it,
Nor pluck it from his finger for the wealth
That the world masters. Now, in faith, Gratiano,
You give your wife too unkind a cause of grief:
An't were to me, I should be mad at it.

Bass. [Aside.] Why, I were best to cut my left hand off,

And swear I lost the ring defending it.

Gra. My lord Bassanio gave his ring away
Unto the judge that begg'd it, and, indeed,
Deserv'd it too; and then the boy, his clerk,
That took some pains in writing, he begg'd mine;
And neither man, nor master, would take aught
But the two rings.

Por. What ring gave you, my lord?

Not that, I hope, which you receiv'd of me.

Bass. If I could add a lie unto a fault,
I would deny it; but you see, my finger
Hath not the ring upon it: it is gone.

Por. Even so void is your false heart of truth.
By heaven, I will ne'er come in your bed
Until I see the ring.

Ner. Nor I in yours,
Till I again see mine.

Bass. Sweet Portia,
If you did know to whom I gave the ring,
If you did know for whom I gave the ring,
And would conceive for what I gave the ring,
And how unwillingly I left the ring,
When nought would be accepted but the ring,
You would abate the strength of your displeasure.

Por. If you had known the virtue of the ring,
Or half her worthiness that gave the ring,
Or your own honour to contain the ring,³⁴
You would not then have parted with the ring.

What man is there so much unreasonable,
If you had pleas'd to have defended it
With any terms of zeal, wanted³⁵ the modesty
To urge the thing held as a ceremony?

Nerissa teaches me what to believe:³⁶
I'll die for't, but some woman had the ring.

Bass. No, by mine honour, Madam, by my soul,
No woman had it; but a civil doctor,³⁷

Which did refuse three thousand ducats of me,
And begg'd the ring, the which I did deny him,
And suffer'd him to go displeas'd away,³⁸
Even he that had held up the very life
Of my dear friend. What should I say, sweet lady?

I was enforc'd to send it after him;

I was beset with shame and courtesy;³⁹

My honour would not let ingratitude

So much besmear it. Pardon me, good lady,

For,⁴⁰ by these blessed candles of the night,⁴¹

Had you been there, I think, you would have begg'd
The ring of me to give the worthy doctor.

Por. Let not that doctor e'er come near my house.

Since he hath got the jewel that I lov'd,

And that which you did swear to keep for me,

I will become as liberal as you:

I'll not deny him any thing I have;

No, not my body, nor my husband's bed.

Know him I shall, I am well sure of it:

Das Epitheton civil protestirt gegen jeden leichtfertigen Missbrauch, der mit dem Ringe getrieben sein könnte. — So in Romeo and Juliet (A. 3, Sc. 2) come, civil night, thou sober-suited matron. 38) to go away displeas'd in Q. A. 39) shame and courtesy ist nach Sh.'s Art, die Copula zu gebrauchen: die Scham, die die Pflicht der Höflichkeit in mir erregte, Scham wegen meiner Unhöflichkeit. 40) for in den Qs.; and in der Fol. 41) So heissen die Sterne auch in Romeo and

Lie not a night from home; watch me like Argus;
If you do not, if I be left alone,
Now, by mine honour, which is yet mine own,
I'll have that doctor⁴² for my bedfellow.

Ner. And I his clerk; therefore, be well advis'd,
How you do leave me to mine own protection.

Gra. Well, do you so: let not me take him then;
For, if I do, I'll mar the young clerk's pen.

Ant. I am the unhappy subject of these quarrels.

Por. Sir, grieve not you; you are welcome notwithstanding.

Bass. Portia, forgive me this enforced wrong;
And in the hearing of these many friends
I swear to thee, even by thine own fair eyes,
Wherein I see myself, —

Por. Mark you but that!
In both my eyes he doubly sees himself;
In each eye, one: — swear by your double self,
And there's an oath of credit.⁴³

Bass. Nay, but hear me.
Pardon this fault, and by my soul I swear,
I never more will break an oath with thee.

Ant. I once did lend my body for his wealth,⁴⁴
Which, but for him that had your husband's ring,
Had quite miscarried: I dare be bound again,
My soul upon the forfeit, that your lord
Will never more break faith advisedly.

Por. Then you shall be his surety. Give him this,
And bid him keep it better than the other.

Ant. Here, Lord Bassanio; swear to keep this ring.

Bass. By heaven! it is the same I gave the doctor.

Por. I had it of him: pardon me,⁴⁵ Bassanio,
For, by this ring, the doctor lay with me.

Ner. And pardon me, my gentle Gratiano,
For that same scrubbed boy, the doctor's clerk,
In lieu of this last night did lie with me.

Gra. Why, this is like the mending of highways
In summer, where⁴⁶ the ways are fair enough.
What! are we cuckolds, ere we have deserv'd it?

Por. Speak not so grossly. — You are all amaz'd:⁴⁷
Here is a letter, read it at your leisure;
It comes from Padua, from Bellario:

There you shall find, that Portia was the doctor;
Nerissa there, her clerk. Lorenzo here
Shall witness, I set forth as soon as you,
And even but now return'd: I have not yet
Enter'd my house. — Antonio, you are welcome;
And I have better news in store for you,
Than you expect: unseal this letter soon;
There you shall find, three of your argosies
Are richly come to harbour suddenly.
You shall not know by what strange accident
I chanced on this letter.

Ant. I am dumb.

Bass. Were you the doctor, and I knew you not?

Gra. Were you the clerk that is to make me cuckold?

Ner. Ay; but the clerk that never means to do it,
Unless he live until he be a man.

Bass. Sweet doctor, you shall be my bedfellow:
When I am absent, then lie with my wife.

Ant. Sweet lady, you have given me life, and living,
For here I read for certain that my ships
Are safely come to road.

Por. How now, Lorenzo?
My clerk hath some good comforts too for you.

Ner. Ay, and I'll give them him without a fee. —

There do I give to you and Jessica,
From the rich Jew, a special deed of gift,
After his death, of all he dies possess'd of.⁴⁸

Lor. Fair ladies, you drop manna in the way
Of starved people.⁴⁹

Por. It is almost morning,
And yet, I am sure, you are not satisfied
Of these events at full. Let us go in;
And charge us there upon inter'gatories,
And we will answer all things faithfully.

Gra. Let it be so: the first inter'gatory,
That my Nerissa shall be sworn on, is,
Whether till the next night she had rather stay,
Or go to bed now, being two hours to day:⁵⁰
But were the day come, I should wish it dark,
Till⁵¹ I were couching with the doctor's clerk.
Well, while I live, I'll fear no other thing
So sore,⁵² as keeping safe Nerissa's ring. [Exeunt.]

AS YOU LIKE IT.

Einleitung.

Obgleich sich von dem nachstehenden Drama keine zu Shakspeare's Lebzeiten erschienene Einzelausgabe bisher hat nachweisen lassen, so muss doch eine solche einmal beabsichtigt gewesen sein, laut folgender Notiz in den Verzeichnissen der Londoner Buchhändlergilde: 4. August. As you like yt, a book. Henry the ffift, a book. Every man in his humour, a book. The Commedie of Much adoo about nothings, a book. To be staied. — Der Zweck dieser Einzeichnung, welche Malone mit ziemlicher Sicherheit dem Jahre 1600 zuschreibt, war wohl, die Publication der genannten Dramen durch einen unberechtigten Verleger zu verhüten, und wenn auch im Laufe des betreffenden und des nächsten Jahres die drei andern darin namhaft gemachten Schauspiele Shakspeare's und Ben Jonson's in den Druck gelangten, scheint das doch mit dem zuerst erwähnten Lustspiel nicht der Fall gewesen, mithin As you like it zuerst in der Gesamtausgabe in Folio (1623) erschienen zu sein. Es steht daselbst als das zehnte Stück der Comedies, in Acte und Scenen eingetheilt, aber ohne Personenverzeichniss, das erst von Rowe (1709) herrührt. Die Correctheit des Textes, der in der zweiten Folioausgabe nur stellenweise verbessert ist, lässt Manches zu wünschen übrig; dennoch bietet das Drama nicht so grosse Schwierigkeiten, wie manche andere, welche sich zuerst in der Folio finden.

Für die chronologische Bestimmung von As you like it gewährt einerseits die oben angeführte Notiz aus den Registern der Buchhändler, wenn sie wirklich, wie kaum zu bezweifeln, dem Jahre 1600 angehört, einen Anhaltspunkt, andererseits die Nichterwähnung dieses Lustspiels in Francis Meres' Wit's Treasury (1598). — Das Drama müsste also zwischen 1598 und 1600 geschrieben und aufgeführt sein, folglich der mittleren Periode unseres Dichters zufallen, auf welche auch die Merkmale des Styls und Verses durchaus hindeuten. — Malone, der geradezu das Jahr 1599 als das der Entstehung von As you like it annimmt, findet einen weiteren chronologischen Fingerzeig in den Worten der Rosalinde (A. 4, Sc. 1) I will weep for nothing, like Diana in the fountain, wobei Shakspeare an ein bestimmtes Brunnenbild in London gedacht habe. Laut Stowe's Chronik wurde nämlich im Jahre 1596 in Cheapside errichtet a curious-wrought tabernacle of gray marble, and in the same an alabaster image of Diana, and water conveyed from the Thames, prilling from her naked breast. — In einer spätern Auflage seines Werkes von 1603 sagt Stowe, dass das Wasser nur eine Zeitlang geflossen sei, dass jetzt aber die Statue in Verfall gerathe. — Ob sich aus diesen beiden Angaben mit irgend welcher Sicherheit auf ein bestimmtes Jahr für As you like it schliessen lasse, wie Malone will, erscheint doch mindestens sehr zweifelhaft, um so mehr, als Stowe's Worte prilling from her naked breast wenig zu Shakspeare's I will weep passen wollen.

Den Stoff zu seinem Drama entlehnte der Dichter in grösserem Umfange, als es sonst bei der Benutzung novellistischer Quellen seine Art ist, aus einer Erzählung von Thomas Lodge, die, zuerst 1590 veröffentlicht, in zweiter Auflage von 1592 folgendes Titelblatt hat: Rosalynde. Euphues golden Legacie, found after his death in his Cell at Silixedra. Bequeathed to Philautus Sonnes, nursed vp with their Father in England. Fetcht from the Canaries by T. L. Gent. — In der Widmung an Lord Hunsdon sagt der Verfasser u. A.: Having with Captaine Clarke made a voyage to the Ilands of Terceras and the Canaries, to beguile the time with labour I writ this booke. Von einem Original, das er dabei zu Grunde gelegt, schweigt Lodge, und doch kann kaum ein Zweifel bestehen, dass er ein solches benutzt habe: ein altenglisches Gedicht von unbekanntem Verfasser, das man unkritisch genug eine Zeitlang unter dem Namen The Coke's Tale of Gamelyn den Canterbury Tales von Chaucer einverleibt hatte. — Shakspeare scheint dieses Gedicht nicht gekannt, wenigstens nicht benutzt, sondern sich mit Lodge's Rosalynde begnügt zu haben, aus welcher Novelle er, wie die Intrigue seines Lustspiels, so die meisten Charaktere entlehnt hat. Dem verbannten Herzog entspricht bei Lodge König Gerismond von Frankreich; dem Usurpator dessen Bruder Torismond; der Rosalinde die gleichnamige Tochter Gerismond's; der Celia die Tochter Torismond's, Alinda; den drei Söhnen des Sir Rowland de Bois, Oliver, Jaques und Orlando, entsprechen ebenso drei Söhne des Sir John of Bourdeaux, Saladyne, Fernandine und Rosader. Auch Charles der Ringer und Adam finden sich bei Lodge; ebenso die Schäfer Corin und Silvius als Coridon und Montanus, und die Schäferin Phebe unter demselben Namen. Nur Touchstone, der melancholische Jaques, Audrey und William haben keine Vorbilder in der Novelle, sondern scheinen freie Erzeugnisse Shakspeare's zu sein, der freilich auch die übrigen Charaktere theils neu zu schaffen, theils feiner zu nüanciren hatte. Reichliche Auszüge aus der Novelle werden, mit Verweisung auf die Acte und Scenen des Dramas, am besten das Verhältniss, das zwischen Shakspeare und Lodge obwaltet, in das gehörige Licht setzen.

A. 1, Sc. 1. Saladin spricht in einem Selbstgespräch die Absicht aus, seinen jüngern Bruder Rosader verkümmern zu lassen, und fährt dann fort:

Let him know litle, so shall he not be able to execute much: suppress his wittes with a base estate, and though hee be a gentleman by nature, yet forme him anew, and make him a peasant by nourture. So shalt thou keepe him as a slave, and raigne thy selfe sole Lord over all thy fathers possessions. As for Fernandyne, thy middle brother, he is a scholler and hath no minde but on Aristotle: let him reade on Galen while thou riflest with golde, and pore on his booke til thou doest purchase landes: witte is great wealth; if he have learning it is enough, and so let all rest.

In this humour was Saladyne, making his brother Rosader his foote boy for the space of two or three yeares; keeping him in such servile subjection, as if he had been the sonne of any country vassal. The young gentleman bare all with patience, til on a day, walking in the garden by himselfe, he began to consider how he was the sonne of John of Bourdeaux, a knight renowned for many victories, and a gentleman famozed for his vertues; how, contrarie to the testament of his father, hee was not only kept from his land and intreated as a servant, but smothered in such secret slaverie, as hee might not attaine to any honourable actions. As, quoth hee to himselfe (nature woorking these effectuall passions) why should I that am a gentleman borne, passe my time in such unnatural drudgery? were it not better either in Paris to become a scholler, or in the court a courtier, or in the field a souldier, then to live a foote boy to my own brother! nature hath lent me wit to conceive, but my brother denied mee art to contemplate: I have strength to performe any honorable exployt, but no libertie to accomplish my vertuous indevours: those good partes that God hath bestowed upon mee, the envy of my brother doth smother in obscuritie; the harder is my fortune, and the more his frowardnes. With that casting up his hand he felt haire on his face, and perceiving his beard to bud for choler hee began to blush, and swore and swore to himselfe he would be no more subject to such slaverie. As thus he was ruminating of his melancholie passions in came Saladyne with his men, and seeing his brother in a browne study, and to forget his wonted reverence, thought to shake him out of his dumps thus. Sirha (quoth he) what is your heart on your halfe peny, or are you saying a dirge for your fathers soule? what, is my dinner readie? At this question Rosader, turning his head ascanse, and bending his browes as if anger there had ploughed the furrowes of her wrath, with his eyes full of fire, hee made this replie. Doest thou aske mee (Saladyne) for thy eates? aske some of thy churles who are fit for suche an office: I am thine equal by nature, though not by birth, and though thou hast more cardes in the bunch, I have as many trumps in my handes as thy selfe. Let me question with thee, why thou hast feld my woods, spoyled my manner houses, and made harocke of suche utensalles as my father bequeathed unto mee? I tell thee, Saladyne, either answer mee as a brother, or I wil trouble thee as an enemy.

At this replie of Rosaders Saladyne smiled, as laughing at his presumption, and frowned as checking his folly: he therefore tooke him up thus shortly: What, sirha, wel I see early pricks the tree that wil prove a thorne: hath my familiar conversing with you made you coy, or my good looks drawne you to be thus contemptuous? I can quickly remedie such a fault, and I wil bend the tree while it is a wand. In faith (sir boy) I have a snaffle for such a headstrong colt. You, sirs, lay holde on him and binde him, and then I wil give him a cooling carde for his choller. This made Rosader halfe mad, that stepping to a great rake that stood in the garden, hee laide such loades uppon his brothers men that hee hurt some of them, and made the rest of them run away. Saladyne seeing Rosader so resolute, and with his resolution so valiant, thought his heeles his best safetie, and tooke him to a loafst adjoining to the garden, whether Rosader pursued him hotlie. Saladyne, afraide of his brothers furie, cried out to him thus: Rosader, be not so rash: I am thy brother and thine elder, and if I have done thee wrong ile make thee amendes: revenge not anger in blood, for so shalt thou staine the vertue of old Sir John Bourdeaux: say wherein thou art discontent and thou shalt bee satisfied. Brothers frownes ought not to be periodes of wrath: what, man, looke not so sowerly; I know we shal be friendes, and better friends then we have been. For, Aman-tium ira amoris redintegratio est.

These wordes appeased the choller of Rosader (for he was of a milde and curteous nature) so that hee layde downe his weapons, and upon the faith of a gentleman assured his brother hee would offer him no prejudice: wherupon Saladyne came down, and after a little parley they imbraced eache other and became friends; and Saladyne promising Rosader the restitution of all his lands, and what favour els (quoth he) any waies my ability or the nature of a brother may performe, upon these sugred reconciliations they went into the house arme in arme together, to the great content of all the old servants of Sir John of Bourdeaux. Thus continued the pad hidden in the strawe, til it chaunced that Torismond, king of France, had appointed for his pleasure a day of wrastling and of tournament to busie his commons heades, least, being idle, their thoughts should runne uppon more serious matters, and call to remembrance their old banished king. A champion there was to stand against all commers, a Norman, a man of tall stature and of great strength; so valiant, that in many such conflicts he alwaies bare away the victorie, not onely overthrowing them which hee incountred, but often with the weight of his bodie killing them outright. Saladyne hearing of this, thinking now not to let the ball fal to the ground, but to take opportunitie by the forehead, first by secret meanes convented with the Norman, and procured him with rich rewards to sweare, that if Rosader came within his clawes hee would never more returne to quarrel with Saladyne for his possessions. The Norman desirous of pelfe, as (quis nisi mentis in ops oblatum respuit aurum) taking great gifts for litle gods, tooke the crownes of Saladyne to performe the stratagem. Having thus the champion tied to his vilanous determination by oath, hee prosecuted the intent of his purpose thus: — He went to yoong Rosader (who in all his thoughts reacht at honour, and gazed no lower then vertue commanded him), and began to tel him of this tournament and wrastling, how the king should bee there, and all the chiefe peeres of France, with all the beautiful damosels of the countrey. Now, brother (quoth hee) for the honor of Sir John of Bourdeaux, our renowned father, to famous that house that never hath bin found without men approved in chivalrie, shewe thy resolution to be peremptorie. For myselfe thou knowest, though I am eldest by birth, yet never having attempted any deedes of armes, I am yongest to performe any martial exploit, knowing better how to survey my lands then to charge my lance: my brother Fernandyne hee is at Paris poring on a few papers, having more insight into sophistrie and principles of philosophie, then anie warlyke indeveurs; but thou, Rosader, the youngest in yeares but the eldest in valour, art a man of strength, and darest doo what honour allowes thee. Take thou my fathers lance, his sword, and his horse, and hie thee to the tournament, and either there valiantly cracke a speare, or trie with the Norman for the palme of activitie. The words of Saladyne were but spurres to a free horse, for hee had scarce uttered them, ere Rosader tooke him in his armes, taking his proffer so kindly, that hee promised in what hee might to requite his curtesie. The next morrow was the day of the tournament, and Rosader was so desirous to shew his heroycal thoughts that hee past the night with litle sleep; but assoone as Phœbus had vailed the curteine of the night, and made Aurora blush with giving her the bezels labres in her silver couch, he gat him up, and taking his leave of his brother, mounted himselfe towards the place appoynted, thinking every mile ten leagues til he came there. But leaving him so desirous of the journey, to Torismond, the king of France, who having by force banished Gerismond, their lawful king that lived as an outlaw in the forest of Arden, sought now by all meanes to keep the French busied with all sports that might breed their content. Amongst the rest he had appointed this solemne turnament, wherunto hee in most solemne maner resorted, accompanied with the twelve peers of France, who, rather for fear then love, graced him with the shew of their dutiful favours. To feede their eyes, and to make the beholders pleased with the sight of most rare and glistring objects, he had appoynted his owne daughter Alinda to be there, and the fair Rosalynd, daughter unto Gerismond, with al the beautifull dammoselles that were famous for their features in all France.

A. 1, Sc. 2. Den Ringkampf zwischen Charles und Orlando erzählt Lodge so:

With that Rosader vailed bonnet to the king, and lightly leapt within the lists, where noting more the companie then the combatant, he cast his eye upon the troupe of ladies that glistered there lyke the starres of heaven; but at last Love willing to make him as amorous as hee was valiant, presented him with the sight of Rosalynd, whose admirable beautie so inveagled the eye of Rosader, that forgetting himselfe, hee stood and fedde his lookes on the favour of Rosalyn des face; which shee perceiving, blusht, which was such a doubling of her beauteous excellence, that the bashful redde of Aurora at the sight of unacquainted Phaeton, was not halfe so glorious.

The Normane seeing this young gentleman fettered in the lookes of the ladies drave him out of his memento with a shake by the shoulder. Rosader looking backe with an angrie frowne, as if hee had been wakened from some pleasaunt dreame, discovered to all by the furre of his countenance that hee was a man of some high thoughts: but when they all noted his youth, and the sweetnesse of his visage, with a general applause of favours, they grieved that so goodly a yoong man should venture in so base an action; but seeing it were to his dishonour to hinder him from his enterprise, they wisht him to bee graced with the palme of victorie. After Rosader was thus called out of his memento by the Norman, he roughly clapt to him with so fierce an incounter, that they both fel to the ground, and with the violence of the fall were forced to breathe: in which space the Norman called to minde by all tokens, that this was hee whome Saladyne had appoynted him to kil; which conjecture made him stretch every limbe, and try every sinew, that working his death hee might recover the golde which so bountifully was promised him. On the contrary part, Rosader while he breathed was not idle, but stil cast his eye upon Rosalyn de, who to incourage him with a favour, lent him such an amorous looke, as might have made the most coward desperate: which glance of Rosalyn d so fiered the passionate desires of Rosader, that turning to the Norman hee ranne upon him and braved him with a strong encounter. The Norman received him as valiantly, that there was a sore combat, hard to judge on whose side fortune would be prodigal. At last Rosader, calling to minde the beautie of his new mistresse, the fame of his fathers honours, and the disgrace that should fall to his house by his misfortune, rowsed himselfe and threw the Norman against the ground, falling upon his chest with so willing a weight, that the Norman yelded nature her due, and Rosader the victorie.

A. 1, Sc. 3. Die Verbannung der Rosalinde vom Hofe, Celia's vergebliche Fürsprache, Beider Entschluss zu fliehen, ist bei Lodge ebenso dargestellt. Das Ende lautet:

At this Rosalyn d began to comfort her, and after shee had wept a fewe kinde teares in the bosome of her Alinda, shee gave her heartie thankes, and then they sat them downe to consult how they should travel. Alinda grieved at nothing but that they might have no man in their company, saying, it would bee their greatest prejudice in that two women went wandring without either guide or attendant. Tush (quoth Rosalyn d) art thou a woman, and hast not a sodeine shift to prevent a misfortune? I (thou seest) am of a tall stature, and would very wel become the person and apparel of a page: thou shalt bee my mistresse, and I wil play the man so properly, that (trust me) in what company so ever I come I wil not be discovered. I will buy me a suite, and have my rapier very handsomly at my side, and if any knave offer wrong, your page wil shew him the poynt of his weapon. At this Alinda smiled, and upon this they agreed, and presently gathered up al their jewels, which they trussed up in a casket, and Rosalyn d in all hast provided her of robes; and Alinda being called Aliena, and Rosalyn d Ganimedee, they traveled along the vineyardes, and by many by-waies, at last got to the forrest side, where they traveled by the space of two or three dayes without seeing anye creature, being often in danger of wilde beasts, and payned with many passionate sorrowes.

A. 2, Sc. 4. Rosalindens und Celia's Zusammentreffen mit Corin und Silvius und die Niederlassung der beiden Ersteren in der Schäferei erzählt Lodge ebenfalls und schliesst so:

Montanus had no sooner ended his sonnet, but Coridon with a lowe curtesie rose up, and went with his fellow, and shut their sheepe in the folds; and after returning to Aliena and Ganimede, conducted them home weary to his poore cottage. By the waye there was much good chat with Montanus about his loves, hee resolving Aliena that Phæbe was the fairest shepherdice in al France, and that in his eye her beautie was equal with the nimphs. But, quoth he: as of all stones the diamond is most cleerest, and yet most hard for the lapidorie to cut, as of all flowres the rose is the fairest, and yet guarded with the sharpest prickles: so of al our country lasses Phæbe is the brightest, but the most coy of all to stoop unto desire. But let her take heed quoth he, I have heard of Narcissus, who for his high disdain against love, perished in the folly of his owne love. With this they were at Coridons cottage, where Montanus parted from them, and they went in to rest. Aliena and Ganimede glad of so contented a shelter, made merry with the poore swaine; and though they had but countrey fare and course lodging, yet their welcome was so greate, and their cares so little, that they counted their diet delicate, and slept us soundly as if they had beene in the court of Torismond. The next morne they lay long in bed, as wearyed with the toyle of unaccustomed travaile; but assoone as they got up, Aliena resolved there to set up her rest, and by the helpe of Coridon swapt a bargaine with his landslord, and so became mistres of the farme and the flocke, her selfe putting on the attyre of a shepherdesse, and Ganimede of a yong swaine: everye day leading foorth her flockes, with such delight, that she held her exile happy, and thought no content to the blisse of a countrey cottage.

A. 2, Sc. 6 und 7. Orlando und Adam, die, in der Wildniss dem Hungertode nahe, dem verbannten Herzog begegnen, schildert Lodge so:

As he was readie to go forward in his passion, he looked earnestly on Rosader, and seeing him chaunge colour, hee rose up and went to him, and holding his temples, said, What cheere, maister? though all faile, let not the heart faint: the courage of a man is shewed in the resolution of his death. At these wordes Rosader lifted up his eye, and looking on Adam Spencer, began to weep. Ah, Adam, quoth he, I sorrow not to dye, but I grieve at the maner of my death. Might I with my launce encounter the enemy, and so die in the field, it were honour, and content: might I (Adam) combate with some wilde beast, and perish as his praie, I were satisfied; but to die with hunger, O, Adam, it is the extreamest of all extreames! Maister (quoth he) you see we are both in one predicament, and long I cannot live without meate; seeing therefore we can finde no food, let the death of the one preserve the life of the other. I am old, and over-worne with age, you are yoong, and are the hope of many honours: let me then dye, I will presently cut my veynes, and, maister, with the warme blood relieve your fainting spirites: sucke on that till I ende, and you be comforted. With that Adam Spencer was ready to pull out his knife, when Rosader full of courage (though verie faint) rose up, and wisht A. Spencer to sit there til his returne; for my mind gives me, quoth he, I shall bring thee meate. With that, like a mad man, he rose up, and raunged up and downe the woods, seeking to encounter some wilde beast with his rapier, that either he might carry his friend Adam food, or els pledge his life in pawn for his loyaltie. It chaunced that day, that Gerismond, the lawfull king of France banished by Torismond, who with a lustie crue of outlawes lived in that forest, that day in honour of his birth made a feast to all his bolde yeomen, and frolickt it with store of wine and venison, sitting all at a long table under the shadow of lymon trees. To that place by change fortune conducted Rosader, who seeing such a crue of brave men, having store of that for want of which hee and Adam perished, hee stept boldly to the boords end, and saluted the company thus: —

Whatsoever thou be that art maister of these lustie squiers, I salute thee as graciously as a man in extreame distresse may: know, that I and a fellow friend of mine are here famished in the forrest for want of food: perish wee must, unlesse relieved by thy favours. Therefore, if thou be a gentleman, give meate to men, and to such as are everie way woorthie of life. Let the proudest squire that sits at thy table rise and incounter with mee in any honorable point of activitie whatsoever, and if hee and thou proove me not a man, send me away comfortlesse. If thou refuse this, as a niggard of thy cates, I will have amongst you with my sword; for rather wil I dye valiantly, then perish with so cowardly an extreame. Gerismond, looking him earnestly in the face, and seeing so proper a gentleman in so bitter a passion, was mooved with so great pitie, that rising from the table, he tooke him by the hand and badde him welcome, willing him to sit downe in his place, and in his roome not onely to eat his fill, but be the lord of the feast. Gramercy, sir (quoth Rosader) but I have a feeble friend that lyes hereby famished almost for food, aged and therefore lesse able to abide the extremitie of hunger then my selfe, and dishonour it were for me to taste one crumme, before I made him partner of my fortunes: therefore I will runne and fetch him, and then I wil gratefully accept of your proffer. Away hies Rosader to Adam Spencer, and tels him the newes, who was glad of so happie fortune, but so feeble he was that he could not go; wherupon Rosader got him up on his backe, and brought him to the place. Which when Gerismond and his men saw, they greatly applauded their league of friendship; and Rosader, having Gerismonds place assigned him, would not sit there himselfe, but set downe Adam Spencer.

A. 3, Sc. 1. Oliver's Verbannung stellt Lodge folgendermassen dar:

In the depth of his passion, hee was sent for to the king, who with a looke that threatened death entertained him, and demaunded of him where his brother was? Saladyne made answer, that upon some ryot made against the sheriffe of the shire, he was fled from Bourdeaux, but he knew not whither. Nay villaine (quoth he) I have heard of the wronges thou hast proffered thy brother, since the death of thy father, and by thy means have I lost a most brave and resolute chevalier. Therefore, in justice to punish thee, I spare thy life for thy fathers sake, but banish thee for ever from the court and countrey of France; and see thy departure be within tenne dayes, els trust me thou shalt loose thy head. And with that the king flew away in a rage, and left poore Saladyne greatly perplexed; who grieving at his exile, yet determined to bear it with patience, and in penance of his former folies to travaile abroad in every coast till he had found out his brother Rosader.

A. 3, Sc. 2. Wie bei Shakspeare, macht auch bei Lodge Ganymed den scherzhaften Vorschlag, bei Orlando die Rosalinde vorzustellen:

Ganimede, pittying her Rosader, thinking to drive him out of his amorous melancholy, said, that now the sunne was in his meridionall heat, and that it was high noone, therefore wee shepheards say, tis time to go to dinner; for the sunne and our stomackes are shepheards dials. Therefore, forrester, if thou wilt take such fare as comes out of our homely scrips, welcome shall answer whatsoever thou wantest in delicates. Aliena tooke the entertainment by the ende, and tolde Rosader hee should bee her guest. He thankd them heartily, and sat with them downe to dinner, where they had such cates as countrey state did allow them, sawst with such content, and such sweete prattle, as it seemed farre more sweet than all their courtly junkets.

Assoone as they had taken their repast, Rosader, giving them thanks for his good cheare, would have been gone; but Ganimede, that was loath to let him passe out of her presence, began thus: Nay, forrester, quoth she, if thy busines be not the greater, seeing thou saist thou art so deeply in love, let me see how thou canst wooe: I will represent Rosalynde, and thou shalt bee as thou art, Rosader. See in some amorous eglogue, how if Rosalynd were present, how thou couldst court her; and while we sing of love, Aliena shall tune her pipe and plaie us melodie.

A. 4, Sc. 3. Phebe's Brief an Ganymed lautet bei Lodge so:

Faire shepheard (and therefore is Phæbe infortunate, because thou art so faire), although hitherto mine eyes were adamant to resist love, yet I no sooner saw thy face, but they became amorous to intertaine love; more devoted to fancie, than before they were repugnant to affection, addicted to the one by nature, and drawn to the other by beauty: which being rare, and made the more excellent by many vertues, hath so snared the freedome of Phæbe, as shee restes at thy mercie, either to bee made the most fortunate of all maydens, or the most miserable of all women. Measure not, Ganimede, my loves by my wealth, nor my desires by my degrees; but thinke my thoughts as full of faith, as thy face of amiable favors. Then, as thou knowest thy selfe most beautifull, suppose me most constant. If thou deemest mee hard harted because I hated Montanus, think I was forst to it by fate: if thou saist I am kind hearted, because so lightly I loved thee at the first looke, think I was driven to it by destiny, whose influence, as it is mighty, so is it not to be resisted. If my fortunes were any thing but infortunate love, I would strive with fortune: but he that wrests against the will of Venus, seekes to quench fire with oyle, and to thrust out one thorn by putting in another: If then, Ganimede, love enters at the eye, harbours in the heart, and wil neither be driven out with phisicke nor reason, pittie mee, as one whose malady hath no salve but from thy sweet self, whose grieve hath no ease but through thy grant; and think I am a virgin who is deeply wrongd when I am forst to woo, and conjecture love to be strong, that is more forceable then nature. Thus distressed unless by thee eased, I expect either to live fortunate by thy favour, or die miserable by thy denyall. Living in hope. Farewell.

She that must be thine,

or not be at all,

PHÆBE.

A. 4, Sc. 3. Oliver's und Orlando's Wiederfinden und Aussöhnung hat Lodge so:

All this while did poore Saladyne (banished from Bourdeaux and the court of France by Torismond) wander up and downe in the forrest of Arden, thinking to get to Lyons, and so travail through Germany into Italie: but the forrest beeing full of by pathes, and he unskilfull of the country coast, slipt out of the way, and chaunced up into the desart, not farre from the place where Gerismond was, and his brother Rosader. Saladyne, wearie with wandring up and downe, and hungry with long fasting, finding a little cave by the side of a thicket, eating such fruite as the forest did affoord, and contenting himselfe with such drinke as nature had provided and thirst made delicate, after his repast he fell in a dead sleepe. As thus he lay, a hungry lyon came hunting downe the edge of the grove for pray, and espying Saladyne began to ceaze upon him: but seeing he lay still without any motion, he left to touch him, for that lyons hate to pray on dead carkasses; and yet desirous to have some food, the lyon lay downe and watcht to see if he would stirre. While thus Saladyne slept secure, fortune that was careful of her champion began to smile, and brought it so to passe, that Rosader (having stricken a deere that but slightly hurt fled through the thicket) came pacing downe by the grove with a boare-speare in his hande in great haste. He spyed where a man lay a sleepe, and a lyon fast by him: amazed at this sight, as he stood gazing, his nose on the sodaine bledde, which made him conjecture it was some friend of his. Whereuppon drawing more nigh, he might easily discerne his visage, perceived by his phisnomie that it was his brother Saladyne, which drave Rosader into a deepe passion, as a man perplexed at the sight of so unexpected a chance, marvelling what should drive his brother to traverse those secrete desarts, without any companie, in such distresse and forlorne sorte. But the present time craved no such doubting ambages, for he must eyther resolve to hazard his life for his reliefe, or else steale away, and leave him to the crueltie of the lyon. In which doubt hee thus briefly debated with himselfe. Nach einem längeren Monologe Rosader's fährt die Erzählung fort: With that his brother began to stirre, and the lyon to rowse himselfe, whereupon Rosader sodainly charged him with the boare speare, and wounded the lion very sore at the first stroke. The beast feeling himselfe to have a mortall hurt, leapt at Rosader, and with his pawes gave him a sore pinch on the brest, that he had almost fain; yet as a man most valiant, in whom the sparks of Sir John Bourdeaux remained, he recovered himselfe, and in short combat slew the lion, who at his death roared so loud that Saladyne awaked, and starting up, was amazed at the sudden sight of so monstrous a beast lying slaine by hym, and so sweet a gentleman wounded. Rosader giebt sich endlich seinem Bruder zu erkennen: Saladyne casting up his eye, and noting well the phisnomy of the forrester, knew that it was his brother Rosader, which made him so bash and blush at the first meeting, that Rosader was faine to recomfort him, which he did in such sort, that hee shewed how highly he held revenge in scorne. Much ado there was betweene these two brethren, Saladyne in craving pardon, and Rosader in forgiving and forgetting all former injuries; the one submissee, the other curteous; Saladyne penitent and passionate, Rosader kynd and loving, that at length nature working an union of their thoughts, they earnestly embraced, and fell from matters of unkindnesse, to talke of the country life, which Rosader so highly commended, that his brother began to have a desire to taste of that homely content. In this humor Rosader conducted him to Gerismonds lodge, and presented his brother to the king, discoursing the whole matter how all had hapned betwixt them.

A. 5, Sc. 4. Die Lösung der angesponnenen Intrigue fand Shakspeare bei Lodge so vorgebildet:

The king noting well the phisnomy of Ganymede, began by his favours to cal to mind the face of his Rosalynd, and with that fetcht a deepe sigh. Rosader, that was passing familiar with Gerismond, demanded of him why he sighed so sore? Because, Rosader (quoth hee), the favour of Ganymede puts mee in minde of Rosalynde. At this word Rosader sight so deeply, as though his heart would have burst. And whats the matter (quoth Gerismond) that you quite mee with such a sigh? Pardon me, sir (quoth Rosader), because I love none but Rosalynd. And upon that condition (quoth Gerismond) that Rosalynd were here, I would this day make up a marriage betwixt her and thee. At this Aliena turnd her head and smilde upon Ganymede, and shee could scarce keep countenance. Yet shee salved all with secrecie; and Gerismond, to drive away his dumpes, questioned with Ganymede, what the reason was he regarded not Phæbes love, seeing she was as faire as the wanton that brought Troy to ruine? Ganymede mildly answered, If I shuld affect the faire Phæbe, I should offer poore Montanus great wrong to winne that from him in a moment, that hee hath labored for so many monthes. Yet have I promised to the bewtiful shepheardesse to wed my selfe never to woman except unto her; but with this promise, that if I can by reason suppress Phæbes love towards me, she shall like of none but of Montanus. To that, q. Phæbe, I stand; for my love is so far beyond reason, as wil admit no persuasion of reason. For justice, q. he, I appeale to Gerismond: and to his censure wil I stand, q. Phæbe. And in your victory, q. Montanus, stands the hazard of my fortunes; for if Ganymede go away with conquest, Montanus is in conceit loves monarch: if Phæbe winne, then am I in effect most miserable. We wil see this controversie, q. Gerismond, and then we will to church: therefore, Ganymede, let us heare your argument. Nay, pardon my absence a while (quoth shee), and you shall see one in store.

In went Ganymede and drest her self in womans attire, having on a gowne of greene, with kirtle of rich sandall, so quaint, that she seemed Diana triumphing in the forrest: upon her head she wore a chaplet of roses, which gave her such a grace that she looked like Flora pearkt in the pride of all her floures. Thus attired came Rosalynd in, and presented hir self at hir fathers feete, with her eyes full of teares, craving his blessing, and discoursing unto him all her fortunes, how shee was banished by Torismond, and how ever since she lived in that country disguised.

Gerismond, seeing his daughter, rose from his seat and fel upon her necke, uttering the passions of his joy in watry plaints, driven into such an extasie of content, that he could not utter one word. At this sight, if Rosader was both amazed and joyfull, I refer my selfe to the judgement of such as have experience in love, seeing his Rosalynd before his face whom so long and deeply he had affected. At last Gerismond recovered his spirites, and in most fatherly tearmes entertained his daughter Rosalynd, after many questions demanding of her what had past betweene her and Rosader? So much, sir (quoth she) as there wants nothing but your grace to make up the mariage. Why, then (quoth Gerismond) Rosader take her: shee is thine, and let this day solemnize both thy brothers and thy nuptials. Rosader beyond measure content, humbly thankt the king, and imbraced his Rosalynde, who turning to Phæbe, demanded if she had shewen sufficient reason to suppress the force of her loves. Yea, quoth Phæbe, and so great a perswasive, that if it please you Madame and Aliena to give us leave, Montanus and I will make this day the thirde couple in marriage. She had no sooner spake this word, but Montanus threw away his garland of willow, his bottle, where was painted dispaire, and cast his sonnets in the fire, shewing himselfe as frolicke as Paris when he hanseled his love with Helena. At this Gerismond and the rest smiled, and concluded that Montanus and Phæbe should keepe their wedding with the two brethren. Aliena seeing Saladyne stand in a dumpe, to wake him from his dreame began thus. Why how now, my Saladyne, all a mort? what melancholy, man, at the day of marriage? perchaunce thou art sorrowfull to thinke on thy brothers high fortunes, and thine owne base desires to chuse so meane a shepheardize. Cheare up thy hart, man; for this day thou shalt bee married to the daughter of a king; for know, Saladyne, I am not Aliena, but Alinda, the daughter of thy mortal enemye Torismond. At this all the company was amazed, espesially Gerismond, who rising up, tooke Alinda in his armes, and said to Rosalynd, Is this that faire Alinda famous for so many vertues, that forsake her fathers court to live with thee exile in the country? The same, q. Rosalynde. Then, quoth Gerismond, turning to Saladyne, jolly forrester be frolick, for thy fortunes are great, and thy desires excellent: thou hast got a princesse as famous for her perfection, as exceeding in proportion. And she hath with her beauty won (quoth Saladyne) an humble servant, as full of faith as she of amiable favour. While every one was amazed with these comicall eventes, Coridon came skipping in, and told them that the priest was at church, and tarried for their comming. With that Gerismond led the way, and the rest followed; where to the admiration of all the countrey swains in Arden their mariages were solemnly solemnized.

Endlich ist auch das Auftreten des Jaques de Bois bei Lodge ähnlich motivirt, wenngleich die Botschaft Fernandine's nicht so friedlich lautet, wie die seines Gegenbildes bei Shakspeare:

Coridon having thus made them merry, as they were in the midst of their jollitie, word was brought in to Saladyne and Rosader that a brother of theirs, one Fernandine, was arrived, and desired to speake with them. Gerismond overhearing this newes, demaunded who it was? It is, sir (q. Rosader) our middle brother, that lives a scholler in Paris; but what fortune hath driven him to seek us out I know not. With that Saladyne went and met his brother, whom he welcommed with all curtesie, and Rosader gave him no lesse frendly entertainment: brought he was by his two brothers into the parlour where they all sate at dinner. Fernandine, as one that knew as many maners, as he could points of sophistry, and was as well brought up as well lettered, saluted them all. But when he espied Gerismond, kneeling on his knee, he did him what reverence belonged to his estate, and with that burst forth into these speeches. Although (right mighty prince) this day of my brothers marriage be a daye of mirth, yet time craves another course; and therefore from dantie cates rise to sharpe weapons. And you, the sonnes of Sir John of Bourdeaux, leave off your amors and fal to arms; change your loves into lances, and now this day shew your selves valiant, as hitherto you have been passionate. For know, Gerismond, that harde by at the edge of this forrest the twelve peeres of France are up in arms to recover thy right; and Torismond, troupt with a crue of desperate rummagates, is ready to bid them battaile. The armies are ready to joyne: therefore shewe thy selfe in the field to incourage thy subjects. And you, Saladyne and Rosader, mount you, and shew your selves as hardy soldiers as you have been hartly lovers: so shal you for the benefit of your country, discover the idea of your fathers vertues to be stamped in your thoughts, and prove children worthy of so honorable a parent. At this alarum, given him by Fernandine, Gerismond leapt from the boord, and Saladyne and Rosader betooke themselves to their weapons. Nay (q. Gerismond) go with me: I have horse and armor for us all, and then, being well mounted, let us shew that we carry revenge and honor at our fauchons points. Thus they leave the brides full of sorrow, and especially Alinda, who desired Gerismond to be good to her father: hee, not returning a word because his hast was great, hied him home to his lodge, wher he delivered Saladyne and Rosader horse and armour, and himsele armed royally led the way, not having ridden two leagues before they discovered where in a valley both the battailes were joyned. Gerismond seeing the wing wherein the peeres fought, thrust in there, and cryed S. Denis! laying on such load upon his enemies, that he shewed how highly he did estimate of a crowne. When the peeres perceived that their lawful king was there, they grew more eager; and Saladyne and Rosader so behaved themselves, that none durst stand in their way, nor abide the furie of their weapons. To be short, the peeres were conquerors, Torismonds army put to flight, and himsele slain in battaile. The peers then gathered themselves together, and saluted their king, conducted him royally into Paris, where he was received with great joy of all the cittizens. Assoone as all was quiet, and he had received againe the crowne, he sent for Alinda and Rosalynd to the court, Alinda being very passionat for the death of her father, yet brooking it with the more patience, in that she was contented with the welfare of her Saladyne. Wel, assoone as they were come to Paris, Gerismond made a royal feast for the peeres and lords of his land, which continued thirtie dayes, in which time summoning a parliament, by the consent of his nobles, he created Rosader heire adparant to the kingdome: hee restored Saladyne to all his fathers land, and gave him the dukedome of Nameurs: he made Fernandine principall secretarie to himsele; and that fortune might every way seeme frolicke, he made Montanus lord over all the Forrest of Arden, Adam Spencer Captaine of the Kings Gard, and Coridon maister of Alindas flocks.

Das Buch, dem die Auseinandersetzungen des Narren über Ehrenhandel (vgl. A. 5, Sc. 4) entlehnt sind, erschien im Jahre 1595 und ist betitelt: Vincentio Saviolo his Practice. In two Bookes. The first intreating of the use of the Rapier and Dagger. The second of Honor and honorable Quarrels. Von dem zweiten Theile sagt der Verfasser: A Discourse most necessarie for all gentlemen that have in regard their honours, touching the giving and receiving of the Lie, whereupon the Duello and the Combats in divers sortes doth insue, and many other inconveniences, for lack only of the true knowledge of honor and the contrarie and the right understanding of wordes. — Die einzelnen Capitel sind: 1) What the reason is that the partie unto whom the lie is given ought to become Challenger: and of the nature of Lies. — 2) Of the manner and diversitie of Lies. — 3) Of Lies certaine. — 4) Of conditionall Lyes. — 5) Of the Lye in generall. — 6) Of the Lye in particular. — 7) Of foolish Lyes. — 8) A conclusion touching the Challenger and the Defender, and of the wresting and returning back of the Lye, or Dementie. — Die Worte des vierten Capitels, welche der Narr besonders im Sinne hat, lauten: Conditionall lyes be such as are given conditionally: as if a man should saie or write these wordes: If thou hast saide that I have offered my Lord abuse, thou lyes; or if thou saiest so hereafter, thou shalt lye. Of these kind of lyes given in this manner often arise much contention in wordes whereof no sure conclusion can arise.

Die Stelle in Marlowe's Hero and Leander, aus welcher Phebe einen Vers citirt (vgl. A. 3, Sc. 5), lautet im Zusammenhange so:

On this feast-day, — oh, cursed day and hour! —
Went Hero thorough Sestos, from her tower
To Venus' temple where unhappily,
As after chanc'd, they did each other spy.
So fair a church as this had Venus none:

The walls were of discolour'd jasper-stone,
Wherein was Proteus curv'd; and over-head
A lively vine of green sea-agate spread,
Where by one hand light-headed Bacchus hung,
And with the other wine from grapes out-wrung.

Of crystal shining fair the pavement was;
The town of Sestos call'd it Venus' glass:
There might you see the gods, in sundry shapes,
Committing heady riots, incest, rapes;
For know that under neath this radiant flour
Was Danae's statue in a brazen tower;
Jove slily stealing from his sister's bed,
To dally with Idalian Ganymed;
And for his love Europa bellowing loud,
And tumbling with the Rainbon in a cloud;
Blood-quaffing Mars heaving the iron net
Which limping Vulcan and his Cyclops set;
Love kindling fire, to burn such towns as Troy;
Sylvanus weeping for the lovely boy
That now is turn'd into a cypress-tree,
Under whose shades the wood-gods love to be.
And in the midst a silver altar stood:
There Hero, sacrificing turtles' blood,

Vail'd to the ground, veiling her eyelids close;
And modestly they open'd as she rose:
Thence flew Love's arrow with the golden head;
And thus Leander was enamoured.
Stone-still he stood, and evermore he gaz'd,
Till with the fire, that from his countenance blaz'd,
Relenting Ero's gentle heart was strook:
Such force and virtue hath an amorous look.
It lies not in our power to love or hate,
For will in us is over-ru'd by fate.
When two are stript long ere the course begin,
We wish that one should lose, the other win;
And one especially do we affect
Of two gold ingots, like in each respect:
The reason no man knows; let it suffice,
What we behold is censur'd by our eyes.
Where both deliberate, the love is slight:
Who ever lov'd, that lov'd not at first sight?

ACT I.

SCENE I.

An Orchard, near OLIVER's House.

Enter ORLANDO and ADAM.

Orl. As I remember, Adam, it was upon this fashion bequeathed me by will but poor a thousand crowns;¹ and, as thou say'st, charged my brother on his blessing to breed me well: and there begins my sadness. My brother Jaques he keeps at school, and report speaks goldenly of his profit:² for my part, he keeps me rustically at home, or, to speak more properly, stays³ me here at home unkept; for call you that keeping for a gentleman of my birth, that differs not from the stalling of an ox? His horses are bred better; for, besides that they are fair with their feeding, they are taught their manage, and to that end riders dearly hired: but I, his brother, gain nothing under him but growth, for the which his animals on his dunghills are as much bound to him as I. Besides this nothing that he so plentifully gives me, the something that nature gave me, his countenance⁴ seems to take from me: he lets me feed with his hinds, bars me the place of a brother, and, as much as in him lies, mines my gentility⁵ with my education. This is it, Adam, that grieves me; and the spirit of my father, which I think is within me, begins to mutiny against this servitude. I will no longer endure it, though yet I know no wise remedy how to avoid it.

Adam. Yonder comes my master, your brother.

Orl. Go apart, Adam, and thou shalt hear how he will shake me up.

Enter OLIVER.

Oli. Now, Sir! what make you here?⁶

Orl. Nothing: I am not taught to make anything.

Oli. What mar you then, Sir?

Orl. Marry, Sir, I am helping you to mar that which God made, a poor unworthy brother of yours, with idleness.

Oli. Marry, Sir, be better employed, and be naught awhile.⁷

Orl. Shall I keep your hogs, and eat husks with them? What prodigal portion⁸ have I spent, that I should come to such penury?

Oli. Know you where you are, Sir?

Orl. O! Sir, very well: here, in your orchard.

Oli. Know you before whom, Sir?

Orl. Ay, better than him⁹ I am before knows me. I know, you are my eldest brother; and, in the gentle condition of blood, you should so know me. The courtesy of nations allows you my better, in that you are the first-

1) Orlando spricht von den testamentarischen Verfügungen seines Vaters. — Manche Hgg., die an der ungenauen Construction Anstoss nehmen, setzen he vor bequeathed, das eigentlich erst vor charged zu suppliren ist. — Für poor a thousand der Fol. hat die zweite Folioausg. von 1632 das gewöhnlichere a poor thousand. Sh. fasst a thousand als ein unzertrennliches Wort. 2) of his profit bezieht sich auf school: von dem, was er auf der Schule profitirt oder lernt. — So in Othello (A. 3, Sc. 3) I thank you for this profit. — Wie report speaks goldenly steht in Macbeth (A. 1, Sc. 7) golden opinions. 3) Für stays schlug Warburton sties vor, wie in Tempest (A. 1, Sc. 2) here you sty me, in this hard rock. Indess liegt der Nachdruck auf unkept. 4) his countenance = die Art und Weise, wie er mich unterstützt oder behandelt. — to seem lässt sich mit dem adverbialen: augenscheinlich, offenbar, umschreiben. 5) gentility = angeborener Adel. — to mine = untergraben. 6) Was treibt Ihr hier? to make für to do. — Der Gegensatz zwischen to make = Etwas schaffen, zu Stande bringen, und to mar = Etwas vernichten, verderben, ist bei Sh. sehr häufig. 7) be naught awhile = seid einmal nichts nutz; ist zugleich eine sprichwörtliche Verwünschung. 8) prodigal portion = das Erbtheil des verlorne[n] Sohnes im Evangelium, auf den auch die Anspielungen von keep your hogs und eat husks sich beziehen. 9) Für him der Fol. setzen manche Hgg. he. So steht him für he in Hamlet (A. 2, Sc. 1) Your party in con-

born; ¹⁰ but the same tradition takes not away my blood, were there twenty brothers betwixt us. I have as much of my father in me, as you; albeit, I confess, your coming before me is nearer to his reverence. ¹¹

Oli. What, boy!

Orl. Come, come, elder brother, you are too young in this. ¹²

Oli. Wilt thou lay hands on me, villain?

Orl. I am no villain: ¹³ I am the youngest son of Sir Rowland de Bois; he was my father, and he is thrice a villain, that says, such a father begot villains. Wert thou not my brother, I would not take this hand from thy throat, till this other had pulled out thy tongue for saying so: thou hast railed on thyself.

Adam. [Coming forward.] Sweet masters, be patient: for your father's remembrance, be at accord.

Oli. Let me go, I say.

Orl. I will not, till I please: you shall hear me. My father charged you in his will to give me good education: you have trained me like a peasant, obscuring and hiding from me all gentlemanlike qualities: the spirit of my father grows strong in me, and I will no longer endure it; therefore, allow me such exercises as may become a gentleman, or give me the poor allottery ¹⁴ my father left me by testament: with that I will go buy my fortunes.

Oli. And what wilt thou do? beg, when that is spent? Well, Sir, get you in: I will not long be troubled with you; you shall have some part of your will. I pray you, leave me.

Orl. I will no further offend you, than becomes me for my good.

Oli. Get you with him, you old dog.

Adam. Is old dog my reward? Most true, I have lost my teeth in your service. — God be with my old master! he would not have spoke such a word.

[Exeunt ORLANDO and ADAM.]

Oli. Is it even so? begin you to grow upon me? I will physic your rankness, and yet give no thousand crowns neither. Hola, Dennis!

Enter DENNIS.

Den. Calls your worship?

Oli. Was not Charles, the duke's wrestler, here to speak with me?

Den. So please you, he is here at the door, and importunes access to you.

Oli. Call him in. [Exit DENNIS.] — 'T will be a good way; and to-morrow the wrestling is.

Enter CHARLES.

Cha. Good morrow to your worship.

Oli. Good Monsieur Charles, what's the new news at the new court?

Cha. There's no news at the court, Sir, but the old news: that is, the old duke is banished by his younger brother the new duke, and three or four loving lords have put themselves into voluntary exile with him, whose lands and revenues enrich the new duke; therefore, he gives them good leave ¹⁵ to wander.

Oli. Can you tell, if Rosalind, the duke's ¹⁶ daughter, be banished with her father?

Cha. O! no; for the duke's daughter, her cousin, so loves her, — being ever from their cradles bred together, — that she ¹⁷ would have followed her exile, or have died to stay behind her. She is at the court, and no less beloved of her uncle than his own daughter; and never two ladies loved as they do.

Oli. Where will the old duke live?

Cha. They say, he is already in the forest of Arden, ¹⁸ and a many merry men with him; and there they live like the old Robin Hood of England. They say, many young gentlemen flock to him every day, and fleet the time carelessly, as they did in the golden world. ¹⁹

Oli. What, — you wrestle to-morrow before the new duke?

Cha. Marry, do I, Sir; and I came to acquaint you with a matter. I am given, Sir, secretly to understand, that your younger brother, Orlando, hath a disposition to come in disguised against me to try a fall. ²⁰ To-morrow, Sir, I wrestle for my credit, and he that escapes me without some broken limb shall acquit him well. Your brother is but young, and tender; and, for your love, I would be loath to foil him, as I must for my own honour if he come in: therefore, out of my love to you, I came hither to acquaint you withal, that either you might stay him from his intendment, or brook such disgrace well as he shall run into, in that it is a thing of his own search, and altogether against my will.

Oli. Charles, I thank thee for thy love to me, which, thou shalt find, I will most kindly requite. I had myself notice of my brother's purpose herein, and have by underhand means laboured to dissuade him from it; but he is resolute. I'll tell thee, Charles, it is the stubbornest young fellow of France, full of ambition, an envious emulator ²¹ of every man's good parts, a secret and villainous contriver against me his natural brother: ²² therefore, use thy discretion. I had as lief thou didst break verse, him you would sound. 10) Eine völkerrechtliche Begünstigung räumt Euch als Erstgeborenem einen Rang über mir ein. 11) his reverence = die Ehrfurcht, die dem Vater zu Theil geworden, und an der auch Oliver, weil er vor dem Orlando da war, nähern Antheil hat, als dieser Letztere. 12) Aus der entsprechenden Stelle bei Lodge ergiebt sich, dass Oliver sich thätlich an Orlando vergreifen will, worauf dieser ihm die Hände festhält und ihn für solches Gebahren zu jung erklärt. Vgl. Einleitung pag. 348. 13) Oliver fasst villain = Schurke, Orlando fasst es = von niederer Herkunft. — Bei diesem Worte packt der erzürnte Orlando seinen Bruder an der Kehle. 14) allottery, wofür allotment gebräuchlicher ist, = das zuerkannte Erbtheil, d. h. die a thousand crowns, von denen vorher die Rede war. 15) good leave = freien, vollkommenen Urlaub. — loving = anhänglich. 16) Hanmer wollte vor duke's hier zur bessern Unterscheidung old, und ebenso in Charles' Antwort vor duke's ein new setzen. Aber damit ginge die Sh.'sche Pointe verloren, die in dem doppelsinnigen Gebrauche von the duke's daughter liegt. 17) Das he der Fol. verbessern so die späteren Folioausgg. 18) Den Ardenne Wald fand Sh. bei Lodge. Vgl. u. A. Einleitung pag. 351. — Von Robin Hood, dem in Balladen vielgefeierten Räuber und Wilddieb, der mit seinen lustigen Gesellen in den Wäldern Nordenglands sein Wesen trieb, findet sich bei Sh.'s dramatischen Zeitgenossen manche Erwähnung und Anspielung. 19) golden world = das goldene Zeitalter. 20) fall = das Niederwerfen des einen Ringers durch den andern im Ringkampf. 21) envious emulator = neidischer Anfeinder. So kommt emulation vor in Julius Cæsar (A. 2, Sc. 3) virtue cannot live || Out of the his neck as his finger; and thou wert best look to 't; for if thou dost him any slight disgrace, or if he do not mightily grace himself on thee,²³ he will practise²⁴ against thee by poison, entrap thee by some treacherous device, and never leave thee till he hath ta'en thy life by some indirect means or other; for, I assure thee (and almost with tears I speak it), there is not one so young and so villanous this day living. I speak but brotherly of him; but should I anatomize him to thee as he is, I must blush and weep, and thou must look pale and wonder.

Cha. I am heartily glad I came hither to you. If he come to-morrow, I'll give him his payment:²⁵ if ever he go alone²⁶ again, I'll never wrestle for prize more; and so, God keep your worship! [Exit.]

Oli. Farewell, good Charles. — Now will I stir this gamester.²⁷ I hope, I shall see an end of him; for my soul, yet I know not why, hates nothing more than he: yet he's gentle; never schooled, and yet learned; full of noble device; of all sorts²⁸ enchantingly beloved, and, indeed, so much in the heart of the world, and especially of my own people, who best know him, that I am altogether misprised. But it shall not be so long; this wrestler shall clear all: nothing remains, but that I kindle the boy thither,²⁹ which now I'll go about. [Exit.]

SCENE II.

A Lawn before the Duke's Palace.

Enter ROSALIND and CELIA.

Cel. I pray thee, Rosalind, sweet my coz, be merry.

Ros. Dear Celia, I show more mirth than I am mistress of, and would you yet I¹ were merrier? Unless you could teach me to forget a banished father, you must not learn² me how to remember any extraordinary pleasure.

Cel. Herein I see, thou lovest me not with the full weight that I love thee. If my uncle, thy banished father, had banished thy uncle, the duke, my father, so thou hadst been still with me, I could have taught my love to take thy father for mine: so wouldst thou, if the truth of thy love to me were so righteously tempered, as mine is to thee.

Ros. Well, I will forget the condition of my estate, to rejoice in yours.

Cel. You know, my father hath no child but I, nor none is like to have; and, truly, when he dies, thou shalt be his heir: for what he hath taken away from thy father perforce, I will render thee again in affection: by mine honour, I will; and when I break that oath, let me turn monster. Therefore, my sweet Rose, my dear Rose, be merry.

Ros. From henceforth I will, coz, and devise sports. Let me see; what think you of falling in love?

Cel. Marry, I pr'ythee, do, to make sport withal:³ but love no man in good earnest; nor no further in sport neither, than with safety of a pure blush thou may'st in honour come off again.

Ros. What shall be our sport then?

Cel. Let us sit, and mock the good housewife,⁴ Fortune, from her wheel, that her gifts may henceforth be bestowed equally.

Ros. I would, we could do so; for her benefits are mightily misplaced, and the bountiful blind woman doth most mistake in her gifts to women.

Cel. 'T is true, for those that she makes fair, she scarce makes honest; and those that she makes honest, she makes very ill-favouredly.⁵

Ros. Nay, now thou goest from Fortune's office to Nature's: Fortune reigns in gifts of the world, not in the lineaments of Nature.

Cel. No: when Nature hath made a fair creature, may she not by Fortune fall into the fire? — Though Nature hath given us wit to flout at Fortune, hath not Fortune sent in this fool to cut off the argument?

Enter TOUCHSTONE.⁶

Ros. Indeed, there is Fortune too hard for Nature, when Fortune makes Nature's natural⁷ the cutter-off of Nature's wit.

Cel. Peradventure, this is not Fortune's work neither, but Nature's; who, perceiving⁸ our natural wits too dull to reason of such goddesses, hath sent this natural for our whetstone: for always the dulness of the fool is the whetstone of the wits.⁹ — How now, wit? whither wander you?¹⁰ teeth of emulation. 22) Ein heimlicher und schurkischer Ränkeschmied gegen mich, seinen leiblichen Bruder. 23) Wenn er nicht im Ringkampf mit Dir grosse Ehre davonträgt. — grace steht im Gegensatz zu dem vorhergehenden disgrace. 24) to practise against = Jemandem nachstellen. 25) payment euphemistisch, wie to pay oft gebraucht wird. So in K. Henry IV. First Part (A. 2, Sc. 4) and with a thought seven of the eleven I paid. 26) alone = ohne Stütze. 27) gamester = Lebemann, Abenteurer. 28) sorts = Stände: er ist von Leuten jedes Standes geliebt, als ob es mit Zauberei zginge. 29) Als dass ich den Burschen zu dem Ringkampf anfeuere, entflamme. So in Macbeth (A. 1, Sc. 3) that, trusted home, || Might yet enkindle you unto the crown.

1) I, d. in der Fol. fehlt, ergänzte Rowe in seiner zweiten Ausgabe. 2) to learn ist synonym mit to teach: Du musst mich nicht lehren, wie ich mich auf eine ungewöhnliche Heiterkeit besinnen könnte. 3) Um Deinen Spass mit der Liebe zu treiben. — Celia bezieht sich auf Rosalindens Worte and devise sports. 4) Als gute Hausfrau bezeichnet Sh. die Fortuna auch in Antony and Cleopatra (A. 4, Sc. 13), weil Beide ein Rad, die Eine ein Spinnrad, die Andere das stets sich drehende Rad des Wechsels haben. Von diesem Rade soll die Glücksgöttin durch den Spott der beiden Mädchen vertrieben und so beständiger und unparteiischer in der Vertheilung ihrer Güter gemacht werden. — equally = in unparteiischem Sinne. 5) honest = ehrbar; ill-favouredly = hässlich von Ansehen. — Die adverbiale Form ist vielleicht doppelsinnig zu fassen: Fortuna macht sie hässlich, und = in hässlicher Stimmung. 6) Die Fol. bezeichnet ihn als Clown. 7) natural = Einfaltspinsel, Narr. und als Adjectiv von natural. Das Wortspiel wird noch fortgesetzt. 8) So die Folioausg. von 1632. — Die Fol. hat perceiveth, was Malone beibehält, indem er zugleich hinter goddesses ein and einschiebt. 9) Der Stumpfsinn des Narren ist der Schleifstein der Witzigen, schärft den Verstand anderer gescheiter Leute. — Einige Hgg. ändern ohne Grund of his wits. 10) Die sprichwörtliche Redensart wit, whither wilt thou? eigentlich von umherschweifenden Gedanken gebräuchlich, ist hier umschrieben und auf den scherzhaft als wit bezeichneten Narren Touch. Mistress, you must come away to your father.

Cel. Were you made the messenger?

Touch. No, by mine honour; but I was bid to come for you.

Ros. Where learned you that oath, fool? ¹¹

Touch. Of a certain knight, that swore by his honour they were good pancakes, and swore by his honour the mustard was naught: now, I'll stand to it, the pancakes were naught, and the mustard was good, and yet was not the knight forsworn.

Cel. How prove you that, in the great heap of your knowledge?

Ros. Ay, marry: now unmuzzle your wisdom.

Touch. Stand you both forth now: stroke your chins, and swear by your beards that I am a knave.

Cel. By our beards, if we had them, thou art.

Touch. By my knavery, if I had it, then I were; but if you swear by that that is not, you are not forsworn: no more was this knight, swearing by his honour, for he never had any; or, if he had, he had sworn it away before ever he saw those pancakes, or that mustard.

Cel. Pr'ythee, who is 't that thou mean'st?

Touch. One that old Frederick, ¹² your father, loves.

Cel. My father's love is enough to honour him enough. ¹³ Speak no more of him: you'll be whipped for taxation, ¹⁴ one of these days.

Touch. The more pity, that fools may not speak wisely, what wise men do foolishly.

Cel. By my troth, thou say'st true; for since the little wit that fools have was silenced, the little foolery that wise men have makes a great show. Here comes Monsieur Le Beau. ¹⁵

Enter LE BEAU.

Ros. With his mouth full of news.

Cel. Which he will put on us, as pigeons feed their young.

Ros. Then shall we be news-cramm'd.

Cel. All the better; we shall be the more marketable.

Bon jour, Monsieur Le Beau: what's the news?

Le Beau. Fair princess, you have lost much good sport.

Cel. Sport? Of what colour?

Le Beau. What colour, Madam? How shall I answer you? ¹⁶

Ros. As wit and fortune will.

Touch. Or as the Destinies decree.

Cel. Well said: that was laid on with a trowel. ¹⁷

Touch. Nay, if I keep not my rank, —

Ros. Thou lovest thy old smell. ¹⁸

Le Beau. You amaze ¹⁹ me, ladies: I would have told you of good wrestling, which you have lost the sight of.

Ros. Yet tell us the manner of the wrestling.

Le Beau. I will tell you the beginning; and, if it please your ladyships, you may see the end, for the best is yet to do: and here, where you are, they are coming to perform it.

Cel. Well, the beginning, that is dead and buried.

Le Beau. There comes an old man, and his three sons, —

Cel. I could match this beginning with an old tale. ²⁰

Le Beau. Three proper young men, of excellent growth and presence; —

Ros. With bills ²¹ on their necks, — »Be it known unto all men by these presents,« —

Le Beau. The eldest of the three wrestled with Charles, the duke's wrestler; which Charles in a moment threw him, and broke three of his ribs, that there is little hope of life in him: so he served the second, and so the third. Yonder they lie, the poor old man, their father, making such pitiful dole over them, that all the beholders take his part with weeping.

Ros. Alas!

Touch. But what is the sport, Monsieur, that the ladies have lost?

Le Beau. Why, this that I speak of.

Touch. Thus men may grow wiser every day! it is the first time that ever I heard breaking of ribs was sport for ladies.

Cel. Or I, I promise thee.

Ros. But is there any else longs to see this broken music ²² in his sides? is there yet another dotes upon rib-breaking? — Shall we see this wrestling, cousin?

Le Beau. You must, if you stay here; for here is the place appointed for the wrestling, and they are ready to perform it.
